Funds are distributed

The traditional Memorial Day Parade will held Monday, beginning with a 9:00 a.m. service in Veterans Memorial Park on Mountain Avenue and Shampike Road. Members of the Springfield Volunteer and Carer Fire Departments, Vietnam Veterans, members of the V.F.W., American Legion, Jewish War Veterans and other proud veterans will participate. Staging for the parade will begin at the Edward V. Walton School at 9:30. The Parade will begin at 10:00 a.m. in front of the township municipal building, which is anticipated for 11:00 a.m.

Union County Prosecutor Andrew K. Ruzicko began distributing portions of the $2.05 million in restitution paid by Automated Mobile Systems Inc. on behalf of Lin-River Associates to the Union County municipalities of Springfield, Westfield and Scotch Plains Tuesday.

AMS and Lin-River Associates, both of which are owned by James C. Madaluna Jr. and Frank Capone, were the target of a 20-month investigation by the Special Prosecutions Unit of the Union County Prosecutor's Office. The investigation culminated on Dec. 1, 1993, when Madaluna and Capone entered a plea of guilty to a one count accusation charging Lin-River Associates with theft by deception for their role in artificially inflating the cost of garbage disposal at their transfer station in Linden.

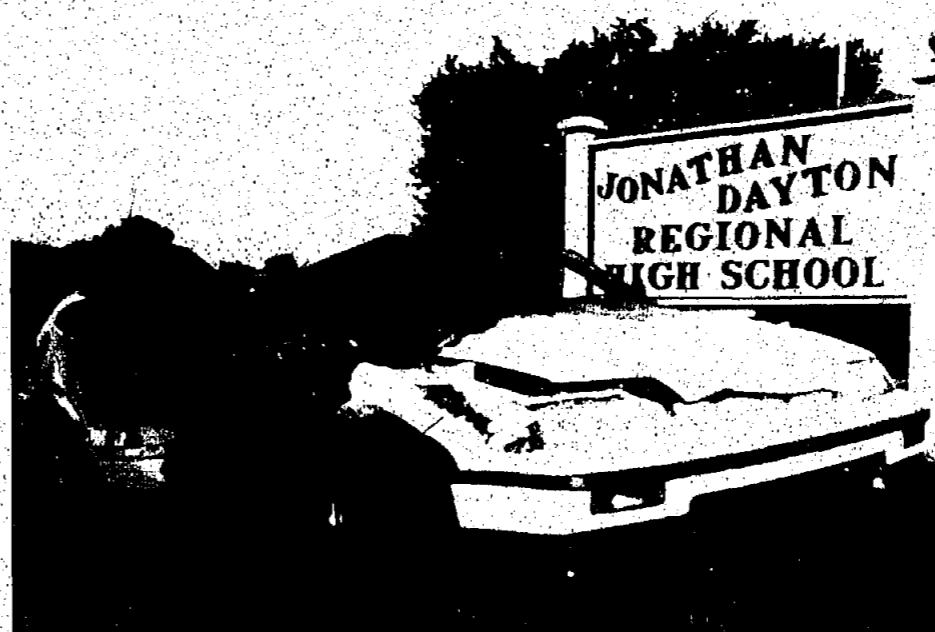

Pursuant to a plea agreement with the Prosecutor's Office, AMS was ordered to pay $2.05 million to the Prosecutor's Office on behalf of the victims of this criminal scheme, the municipalities of Union County.

Beware of solicitors

Fireman's Mutual Benevolent Association President Jim Beyer wishes to make Springfield residents aware that the organization or organizations who have been telephoning households and soliciting donations posed as representatives of the Fire Department are not affiliated with either the Springfield F.M.B.A. or the Springfield Volunteer Fire Department.

Beyer said the volunteer department is running its annual fund drive, but that campaign is conducted by mail.
According to Beyer, the solicitors in question have been calling people and reminding them to change the batteries in their smoke detectors and then asking for donations.

Town to eliminate grass clipping pickup

By Dennis McCarthy
Managing Editor
Mayor Marcia Forman announced Tuesday evening that, effective June 15, the township of Springfield will no longer pick up or be responsible for grass clippings. All residents will be notified of this decision by mail immediately.

Forman was undecided, and Committee member John Holman was not present at the meeting.
Forman said the township spent approximately $12,000 in disposal fees last summer when the Union County Resource Recovery Facility announced it would not accept the clippings. The township Public Works Department is currently utilizing four workweek one-truck pickups to pick up the grass and transport it to a Chatham facility where disposal costs are $10 per cubic yard.

"Times have changed, and we can't pick up the grass," Pappas said. Katz added that the pickup has become a personal service with trucks going house to house. "If you don't leave it to have any meaning at all, we cannot pick up grass," he said.
The mayor's announcement Tuesday stirred some heated public input. "It's not as simple as you say," said resident Francis Cronst. "There are a lot of people very unhappy." Not all residents are able to afford a mulching lawn mower, he said. He added that residents are blaming the mayor for the new policy.

Township awarded restitution funds

By Dennis McCarthy
Managing Editor
Union County Prosecutor Andrew K. Ruzicko presented the Mayor and Township Committee with a $129,110.01 check Tuesday at a public meeting as restitution for money that was defrauded from taxpayers by a Linden real estate holding company.
The money is Springfield's share of $2,050,000 owed to 21 municipalities from the case of the State vs. Lin-River Associates. "This money came out of taxpayers' pockets, and it is our intention to put it back there," said Committeeman Jeffrey Katz. The committee intends to apply the money to reduce the 1994 tax revenue by slightly more than 1 tax point, he said.

The committee introduced a bond ordinance for which there will be a public hearing on June 14. The bond ordinance appropriates $4,000,000 for capital improvements. This figure includes a $195,000 down payment.
The committee voted May 3, 4, 0, at a special meeting to introduce a $15 million 1994 municipal budget, with Committeeman Harry Pappas abstaining. The average homeowner in Springfield will be asked to pay an additional $260 to cover a 17-point increase in taxes this year.

The budget represents a $934,135 increase over 1993's $44,218,893 budget. Each of the 17 points represents an additional $106,000, or 1 point, that the municipality has to generate in municipal taxes.

Police arrest man on fugitive warrant

By Dennis Schmal
Staff Writer

Officers responded and found William Velez, 33, whose last address was a homeless shelter in Newark, in the 1972 Buick LeSabre.

Velez told arriving police that he drove to Springfield with the owner of the Buick, which was unregistered, unlicensed and had stolen plates, Detective Judd Levinson said Tuesday. Velez said Denko instructed him to hook up police arrived, which Velez did, police said.

Springfield police arrested an Elizabeth man last week for possession of stolen property and, in the process, discovered he had served 22 years in state prison and was wanted on a fugitive warrant.
Robert Denko, 54, of Elizabeth was arrested May 20 and charged with possession of stolen property and possession of burglary tools after police apprehended him in possession of a gym bag allegedly stolen from a car on Milltown Road in Springfield.
Police discovered, after they did a computer check of a vehicle that Denko owned, that he had served 22 years in prison after being convicted of carrying out a string of burglaries and sex assaults in Union County in 1971-1972. He had been paroled in 1993.

According to police, Denko has subsequently been convicted with a series of burglaries in Passaic and Lake Hopatcong.
The incident began at 9:30 p.m. May 20 when a resident reported a suspicious vehicle with one male occupant in the passenger seat at Milltown and Elmwood roads.

Officer Steve Hollyfield checked the area for Denko and apprehended him with the stolen gym bag, a flashlight, gloves and a pry bar, Levinson said. Both suspects were being held in Union County Jail in Elizabeth. Velez was being held on $5,000 bail and Denko was being held on no-bail warrants for parole violations.
Levinson said, if convicted, Denko could be sent back to state prison to complete his term.

Former Springfield resident considered for state award

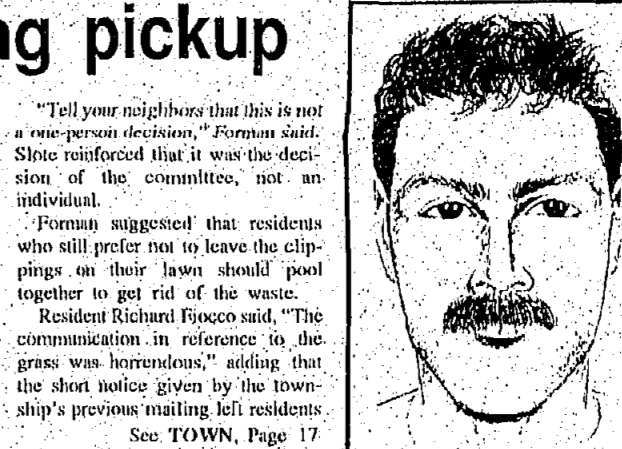

By Mark Devaney
Correspondent

On June 28, Patricia Cumberly-Heller is not going to plan "anything special." Such a nonchalant statement from the former 40-year Springfield resident who related yet firm manner with which she runs Champion Container Corporation of Avenel, N.J., is a lot less cloudy because of her sagacious guidance.
Cumberly-Heller took over the helm of Champion when her husband, Jerry Heller, died in 1991. Heller's death left the company's fate in doubt until she decided to take a bold step, making her, at that time, the only female owner of a container distributor in the United States. But then again, bold steps seem to come naturally to Cumberly-Heller.

The move into a male-dominated industry brought Cumberly-Heller face-to-face with many chauvinistic preconceptions about where women belonged. Yet she overcame both male and female skepticism by working hard and proving that a person's ability and determination matter more than her or his gender. Cumberly-Heller advises all future entrepreneurs to "take the risk and go for it; you're only young once." She also believes that in order to be a leader, "you must never expect your workers to do anything that you wouldn't do yourself."

Prior to meeting Jerry Heller, she was a nurse and a single mother living in Springfield. She began as a "gofer" in the Avenel plant and has done everything there from fetching coffee to driving a forklift. In short, she went from knowing nothing about the container industry to knowing everything.

Her life's accomplishments back up her words. Cumberly-Heller's list of community involvements in the Springfield area is impressive: 20 years in the Democratic Organization, 10 years with Board of Health, nine years on the First Aid Squad, 15 years as a board member of the Suburban Deborah Hospital, 27 years with the Girl Scouts; she has been president

Suspect sought

Springfield police are still seeking the whereabouts of a man wanted in connection with a carjacking in the township April 30. According to police, the man rammed his vehicle against another car from the rear and boot the driver with a pipe before stealing the vehicle. He was seen accompanied by a black male. Anyone with information may call police at 912-2249.

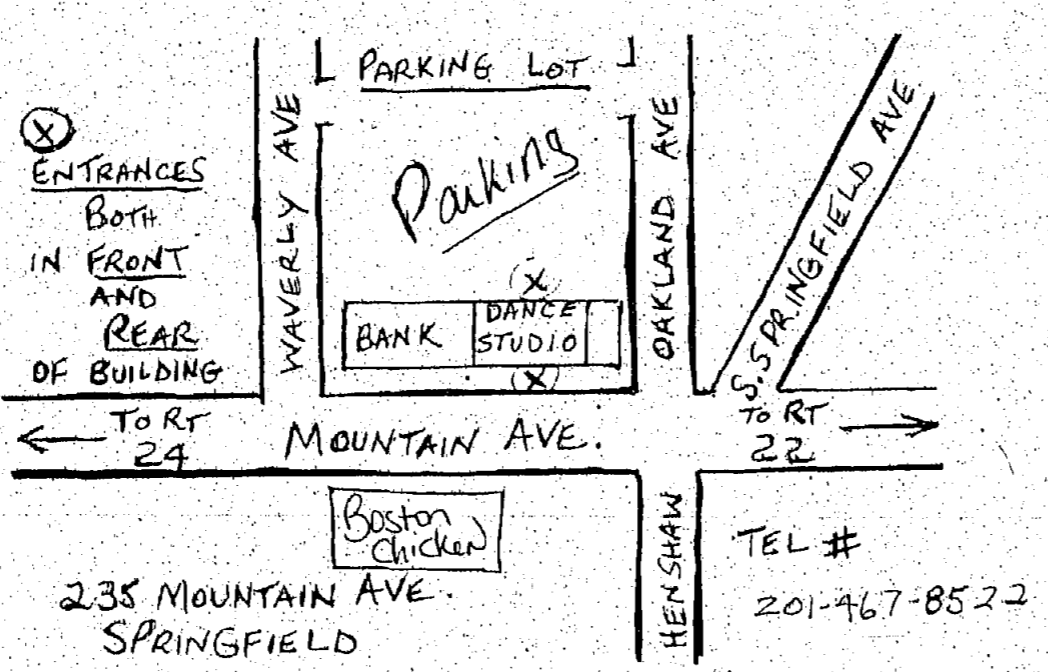

Patricia Cumberly-Heller, formerly of Springfield, is being considered for top entrepreneur.

Superintendent chairs conference

"The theme of this year's conference — 'Building Our Future Together' — reflects the New Jersey Association of School Administrators' understanding of the need for cooperation and collaboration on the part of New Jersey educators, board members and governmental and community leaders." If education in our state is going to thrive, said Union County Regional High School District Superintendent Donald Merachuk.

Merachuk is chairperson of a statewide conference of more than 1,300 educational leaders which will take place this week at Bally's Park Place Hotel in Atlantic City. The 12th annual spring conference is sponsored by NIASA and the New Jersey School Boards Association.

"With learning no longer confined only to the schools, coupled with increasing state and federal mandates and the prospect of limited resources, we must all come together to share our thoughts and ideas on how best to build and provide for the future," noted Merachuk.

Noted school administrators, school board members, Department of Education personnel and nationally known educators will conduct small group presentations, roundtable discussions and general sessions geared to deliver ideas and training necessary for "Building Our Future Together."

The depth and variety of the sessions appeal equally to administrators and board members.

NIASA is an organization of professional educators dedicated to the advocacy of students in New Jersey. The Association protects the rights and opportunities, serves the educational interests and promotes the educational welfare of New Jersey's youth — the leaders of tomorrow.

A statewide advocacy organization, the New Jersey School Boards Association is a federation of more than 600 local boards of education. NISBA represents the education and related health and safety interests of New Jersey's public school students and advocates the positions of local school districts. The association also provides in-service training and technical assistance to the state's 4,000 unpaid volunteers who serve as members of New Jersey's local boards of education.

Regional board appoints firm to study school configuration

The Board of Education of the Union County Regional High School District has retained Towers Perin, an international management consulting firm, to conduct a comprehensive study of the regional district's current school configuration while examining the feasibility of alternative educational configurations within the district's six communities.

The Towers Perin study requested by the regional Board of Education will include the following components: a critical examination of a potential pre-kindergarten through grade 12 regionalization of schools in Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield; a possible grades 7 through 12 regionalization for all six towns; with each community maintaining its own kindergarten through grade 6 school district; a thorough review of the desegregation scenarios outlined by the already-completed Deloitte and Touche studies, which were commissioned by the district's constituent municipalities; and an examination of the Union County Regional High School District's currently existing, including specific recommendations on how the current system of delivering education in the regional district could be improved.

Each component of the Towers Perin study will explore the educational and financial impact, both positive and negative, that each scenario might have on the six regional district communities.

"The regional Board of Education would like to see an objective study which will indicate the best possible educational configuration for our students," said Donald Merachuk, regional district superintendent of schools. "We all want to know if we have the best configuration now, with six K-6 districts feeding into a regional high school district, or if we can improve upon what we have. Towers Perin is a firm with an outstanding reputation, and our Board of Education is confident that it will receive a study which is comprehensive, thorough and objective."

Bugene R. Smalley Jr., vice president, and Paul J. Mayer, managing consultant, are the primary Towers

Perin officials who will be working on the Union County Regional High School District study. Representatives from Towers Perin and the regional Board of Education, have indicated that it will take four to five months to complete all of the research and writing for this report. It is anticipated that the study will be completed and copies of the report received by the Regional Board of Education before the end of October.

Over the past 50 years, Towers Perin has grown to be one of the world's largest management consulting firms. The organization has performed studies on many school districts throughout the United States, including Union Township and Tenafly, York, N.Y.; Baltimore, Md.; Dayton, Ohio; Savannah-Chatham County, Ga.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; and Martinehead, Mass. Towers Perin also has completed extensive educational studies for the New Jersey State Department of Education and for Union County College.

Resident's efforts help national Leukemia Society

The third annual Pharmaceutical Industry "Fight Against Leukemia" Golf Outing, held May 9 at the Upper Merion Club in Clifton, raised more than $50,000 for the National Leukemia Society of Philadelphia. Organized by the Torrance-Lazar, medical advertising agency of Parsippany, the charity golf tournament has so far brought in more than $150,000 for clinical research and patient aid programs.

The event was the brainchild of Joe Torce, president and CEO of TRK, who was stricken with the disease in 1991. Thanks to a revolutionary procedure called autologous bone marrow transplant, Torce's disease is in complete remission today.

"Torrance-Lazar has been very good to us," said Springfield resident Leonard Scidlo, executive director of the Northern Jersey Chapter. "These funds will be dedicated to the Leukemia Society's 'Cure 2000' campaign."

In addition, Torrance-Lazar, the sponsors of the golfing event, will donate Leukemia Laboratory of Cranbury, Ciba Pharmaceuticals.

Town eliminates clippings pickup

With little time for preparation and notice, the town's decision to eliminate newspaper clippings pickup was a surprise to many residents. "We've had this service in town for years," said "Poo" Plank, who has been home for about 40 years.

The committee agreed that the first mailing should have been done by the service contractor and stated that was why the extra time was added. They announced that they sympathized with residents who were unable to mail but strongly reinforced their position in favor of leaving the clipping to be broken down and naturally provide citizens with the service.

An authority from the Westfield Nursery said Tuesday afternoon, "The more often you cut it, the better it grows." He also mentioned that being able to plant the seed, he suggested cutting no more than one third of the overall grass length to avoid a thatching problem.

Township nets funds

The municipality's generation-skipping tax credit election was approved by the town board on May 23. The town is still waiting for the final approval from the state and federal governments.

To determine how much each household is required to pay, the 17 rate is multiplied by the assessed value of the property. The total amount is then divided by the number of households in the town. The amount is then multiplied by the number of households in the town.

Most of the increase is attributed to the generation-skipping tax credit. Taxes that year went down 21 points. But it was a false decrease which reduced the township's surplus by approximately $1 million, he said.

Gitter gets high marks
Alex Gitter, a junior at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, recently received one of the highest scores in the United States on "Le Grand Concours", the national French language examination administered by the American Association of Teachers of French.

Gitter earned fourth place nationally in the Category B B French track, which was taken by approximately 10,000 high school students from across America. He also earned first place in the Mid-Atlantic Region and Second Place in New Jersey in Category B. Approximately 77,000 American high school students participated in "Le Grand Concours" this year.

Gitter is enrolled in the French II class taught by Viviane Levy at Jonathan Dayton in addition to taking Spanish at the school. She is planning to enroll in both French and Spanish classes as a high school senior and would like to pursue the study of both languages while in college.

A last minute reminder is being issued by the Springfield Biocentennial Committee that the comprehensive exhibit about the Township of Springfield at the Donald B. Palmer museum will end on May 31.

Increase in the fitness club population is now evident

The typical seasonal increase in fitness club population is evident this time of year.

Fitted with new members getting in shape for the summer, and students home from college for summer break, the fitness industry is seeing an increase in new members. The fitness industry is particularly busy at this time of year because of the extra edge some take of competition.

Though the relationship between strength and performance has been well established, an increase in strength without regard to function can hinder one's ability to perform at an optimal level. It is imperative to maintain a particular muscle, group while ignoring its antagonist (muscle that performs an opposite action of the muscle group that is being trained).

If flexibility is not maintained, and/or a muscle imbalance is formed, injury can occur while training, or when performing a particular sport.

No joint appears to be as susceptible to this type of injury as the shoulder, especially in those athletes who perform overhead activities such as throwing a baseball, swimming, or serving in tennis.

A former patient of mine developed shoulder pain with a decrease in performance stemming from a decrease in flexibility and overtraining a particular muscle group. This patient had been an avid tennis player for years.

without developing any shoulder problems in that time.

She had performed aerobic and weight-training utilizing Nautilus and free-weights, with an increase in intensity of such activities over the past six months. She began to develop pain in her right shoulder, while performing a military press behind her head. Upon evaluation, among other subjective findings, it was apparent she had a decrease in shoulder flexibility.

Health Advice

especially in the ability to rotate the shoulder externally while keeping the arm elevated out towards the side of the body, parallel to the floor, and rotating the shoulder back to get in a cocked position in order to throw an object.

As I questioned her lifting routine, it was obvious that stretching of the shoulder girdle musculature was not employed, while an emphasis was placed on training the muscles that internally rotate the shoulders (pecs and lats) with free-weights, while her aerobic routine included resistance band exercises that further strengthened those muscle groups. A muscle imbalance had developed and the injury occurred because she was unable to get either arm in a position to properly perform a military press.

Teen-agers stage production of 'Hair'

By Bea Smith
 Lifestyle Editor

Fresh from their lead roles in the spring production of "Fiddler on the Roof" at Union High School, teenagers Kevin Glackin and Tara Flynn, accompanied by Michelle Hasselmann, came by to say that they have started a theatrical company of their own. "It's called Glackin Production Co.," said Glackin, who visited his office last week with Flynn and Hasselmann. "And I know it takes guts, which we have, and so we're staging 'Hair' May 27 and 28 at 8 p.m. at Townley Presbyterian Church on Salem Avenue in Union.

The two 18-year-old producers said the music will be provided by a local band called Low Budget. There are four members in the band," said Glackin, "and they're really more established than we are."

"The ticket prices are $3 each," said Flynn. "Everyone can afford a ticket. However," she said, "the play is not for children under the eighth grade. The general isn't for the little ones. We know that. It's just part of the play. You have to expect that going into it."

"Also," she added, "it's a very historical show."

"Yes," said Glackin, "the show is a product of the times, and it can be taken in two ways. It is set in 1969 in the hippest area in New York — on the streets of New York. There were certain themes and messages that were going out from 1968 to 1994."

"It's now a part of us. I feel that anybody can enjoy the play," he said. "There's an important message

Picard exhibit set

"Metamorphosis," an exhibition of paintings by Claude Picard of Elizabeth will be the next show at the Les Malamut Gallery in the Union Public Library in Fribourg Park. This will be a public reception on June 5 from 2 to 4 p.m. The exhibit is an invitation, it was announced. The show will continue through July 7.

Picard was born in Montreal, Canada, in 1926 and started in studying art at the Beaux-Arts de Montreal and the government closed the school during the war. He then became a civil engineer until he retired in 1985 and he said he returned to his first love — the arts.

Anniversary concert due

The Plainfield Symphony's 75th birthday celebration will be held Sunday at 8 p.m. at an anniversary concert in Crescent Avenue Church, 716 Washington Ave., Plainfield.

Peggy Thomas will be the honorary chairperson of the anniversary concert. Her early recollections of the original people such as her brother-in-law, Kenneth F.H. Underwood, Joshua Looney, and Kevin Barlow "have been invaluable to the Symphony Board." Her early association with the formation of the orchestra, and her progression into the concert life of Plainfield remains today, and serves as an inspiration to the community," it was reported.

It was through the efforts of these three men and friends that the Plainfield Symphony became a reality. They recruited a violinist and conductor from New York City, Christian Krings, to be their conductor. Krings served as conductor until 1928. Monday nights were established as rehearsal nights. The tradition continues

Club New York set on Elizabeth site

By Sean P. Carr
 Staff Writer

Club New York, an "upscale" nightclub with a Gothic theme, held its grand opening last weekend in Elizabeth.

Owners say they spent more than $1 million in renovations. Walls and floors have been silk-screened and frosted with symbols and figures from medieval times. It features visions of gullews and gargoyles, a multi-faceted stained glass ceiling and wrought-iron chandeliers.

"Club New York will offer all the style, glamor and excitement associated with the New York night club, but without the hassles of commuting and parking," said co-owner Maurice Panzino of Union. "It's time New Jersey had a club of this caliber," he said.

The club's owners have been involved with clubs and other types of nightlife spots in New York and the Elizabeth area for several years.

Panzino also owns two clubs in Manhattan.

The club will not feature the modern hip-hop and rap music that dominates much of today's airwaves.

The club held a special pre-opening party Thursday for friends, associates, city businesspersons and press. As the invited guests mixed and mingled, we got early hints of what the club will offer musically.

A mix of club and house music and "classic disco" of the 1970s pondered through the "state-of-the-art" music system as it roared south through the room.

Kohl — as in, "and the Gang" — straddled through the music, looking as stylish as ever and right at home.

"This place is great. It's exciting," Kohl — as in, "and the Gang" — straddled through the music, looking as stylish as ever and right at home.

Lindenites to play Sunday in Carnegie

The New Jersey Youth Symphony, under the direction of Music Director George Marinus Mall, will celebrate its 15th anniversary season with a performance Sunday at 2 p.m. at Carnegie Hall, New York City.

Karl and Albert Grodman, both of Linden members of the New Jersey Youth Symphony, will perform with the New Jersey Symphony on May 29.

Sharing the stage on this occasion will be the Milwaukee Youth Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of its music director Margery Deutsch. Major underwriting for the New Jersey Youth Symphony's appearance at Carnegie Hall has been donated by AT&T.

In this second appearance in five seasons at Carnegie Hall by the New Jersey Youth Symphony, the music of William Schuman, Maurice Ravel, and Camille Saint-Saëns will be performed.

Founded in 1979 with the assistance of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and the Junior League of Newark and Elizabeth, the New Jersey Youth Symphony has grown from one orchestra of 65 members to a five-ensemble family serving nearly 800 young people ages 8 through 18 during the school year. There are two complete symphony orchestras of approximately 95 players; the Youth Symphony under the direction of Mall, and the Youth Orchestra under the direction of Barbara Barstow. The remaining ensembles consist of two string training groups and one wind band training group.

DINING REVIEW
By Joseph D'Allegro
Start Writer

Some of the best dining can be done in small, neighborhood bars and taverns. The Silo Pub at 103 Union Ave., already known for its relaxed atmosphere and dining style is coupled with the generous portions often lacking in more expensive eateries.

After sampling an array of appetizers, I can recommend the jalapeno pepper poppers without reservation. They come nicely breaded and stuffed with cheddar cheese. The taste is forceful, but not of the blindingly hot, infants dissolving sort that keeps so many people away from most jalapeno dishes. Dipping sauces, honey-mustard and salsa, are available to add even more flavor to the experience.

Other recommended appetizers include breaded scallops, which arrived golden brown. They were wonderfully tender, having been fried perfectly. The zucchini and mozzarella sticks were each filling and spicy, they go well with any sandwich or burger.

The most expensive menu item, flame broiled New York strip steak, comes in at less than $8. This is served over most points and includes onion rings, French fries and vegetables. A hearty sandwich can be had for even less, and a highly recommended roast beef sandwich can be had for less than $4.

I ordered a hot pastriani sandwich on a roll. It comes in minutes, its neck-knacker roll filled with a layer of steaming hot meat piled over an thick. A large portion of newly prepared omelette arrives at its side with a pickle slice.

My friend orders a Tuscan chicken sandwich. It comes marinated and grilled with all the usual garnishes and large strips of crispy bacon. What's surprising is the quality of the meat. This is real bird, not the processed, bland chicken patties passed off at lesser places.

The Silo, which lies directly across from the giant Tuscan Dairy Farm plant, is frequented by an eclectic mix of regulars, drawn, no doubt, by its considerable charm.

The establishment boasts two bars, a large, well-ventilated restaurant, several flat bars, and a pool table. Its two jukeboxes cover all popular musical bases, from Sinatra to Guns n' Roses, Buddy Holly to Michael Jackson. Those interested in catching up on their favorite show, news or sporting event can tune in to one of the 12 televisions scattered throughout both of Silo's levels.

The downstairs section is open daily from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. It caters to sports fans and is serviced by three satellite television antennas. The large model train running through the stained oak bar leads to

Study reveals importance of natural light

Americans are tired of having to chop for their dream home in a bland sea of look-alikes, according to a recent Builder magazine focus group study.

The study showed that while different ages and occupations lead to a diverse list of requirements for homes, and townhouses, several specific features made the top of the list in every group. Natural light and scenic views were two areas the groups were not willing to compromise on.

Natural light equates spaciousness and warmth while landscaped views through well-positioned windows reflect quality, said Paul Aaron, branch manager of Pella Windows and Doors, based in Springfield.

More homeowners are expecting their desire for abundant light and views to be addressed at the blueprint stage," Aaron said. "Even do-it-yourself remodelers are wanting to add these features to their homes with custom wood windows. In addition to aesthetics, larger or uniquely shaped windows can aid the light and views that make older homes more attractive to new buyers."

Among the Builder magazine singles and couples focus group, 80 per-

Choosing a contractor is easy if you follow these basic steps

Deciding what kind of roof you want is only half the battle of getting a good new roof for your home. Finding a good roofing contractor is the rest.

There is no secret as to the best way of selecting a professional roofing contractor who can deliver a quality roofing application on time within budget. Here are a few suggestions, offered by the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association (ARMA):

- Get more than one quote. For a major roofing project, it is prudent to obtain at least three quotes. Make sure everyone is bidding on the same quality of materials and workmanship. Get a firm bid in writing, including total cost of materials, labor, cleanup and removal from the premises of old roofing. Make sure you understand the total cost, method of payment and completion date before signing any contract.
- Better Business Bureau. Once you have a contractor under consideration, check with your local BBB office to determine if the contractor has been the target of consumer complaints and, if so, how the complaints were resolved. How a firm resolves a complaint can tell more about a company than the complaint itself, unless the company has been the object of an unusually high number of complaints.
- Roots in the community. Check the yellow pages of your local telephone book or the home improvement pages of your local newspaper for the names of roofing contractors who have established local roots in your community—someone who can be contacted if there is a problem or who can service the roof when needed.
- Don't do business with so-called 'gypsy' contractors who go door-to-door selling roofing off the back of a truck, especially after a roofing-damaging storm. Also avoid pressure-type telephone solicitations.
- Professional affiliations. A professional roofing association, if your community has one, can offer a list of established roofing contractors. These associations, which operate under various names, often are listed in telephone yellow pages or can be traced through your local Chamber of Commerce. The National Roofing Contractors Association (708-299-9070) can also provide names and telephone numbers of local affiliates.
- Better Business Bureau. Once you have a contractor under consideration, check with your local BBB office to determine if the contractor has been the target of consumer complaints and, if so, how the complaints were resolved. How a firm resolves a complaint can tell more about a company than the complaint itself, unless the company has been the object of an unusually high number of complaints.
- Like any other business, home improvements and repairs can result in complaints about shoddy workmanship, business methods and even consumer scams—practices that regre-

Fans can provide cooling effects without overwhelming bills

The way most people look at it, there's no trick to beating the heat in summer—as long as you're willing to pay the price.

There is an alternative, however. More and more homeowners are finding that fans can provide them with the cooling effects they seek, without resulting in overwhelming utility bills.

There are a wide variety of powered ventilators currently available. Properly selected and installed, they can create an indoor environment which remains comfortable all summer long.

Whole-House Fans
Foremost among the energy-saving powered ventilators is the whole-house fan. Situated near the center of the home, the fan can be used during the summer months to draw in cooler evening air through screened windows and doors, creating a pleasant and comfortable indoor environment. The fan also produces breezes that can make the temperature seem two to eight degrees cooler than it actually is.

An effective cooling device at temperatures well into the eighties, the whole-house fan can yield substantial energy savings as it takes much of the cooling burden off of the air-conditioning system, yet can be operated for as little as one-tenth of the cost of air-conditioning operation. Useful in all climates, the whole-house fan can replace the air-conditioner in some areas of the country.

The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI), a voluntary organization of manufacturers of static and powered home ventilating equipment, offers a simple method for proper selection of whole-house fans. HVI labels displayed on members' products show the certified capacity of the fan as measured in cubic feet of air moved per minute (CFM). To determine the necessary CFM rating for a whole-house fan, multiply the interior square footage of the home (excluding garage, attic or basement) by three.

In warmer, more humid climates, a larger capacity is needed, and the square footage should be multiplied by four or more. The resulting number is the CFM rating for the fan needed for the home.

It is important for the homeowner to provide sufficient static vents for the whole-house fan to function properly. To determine the necessary vent area, the CFM rating should be divided by 750. The resulting number will be the square feet of static vent area which must be provided.

Ceiling Fans
Ceiling fans, devices which have been around since the turn of the century, have enjoyed a rebirth in popularity recently, largely because of their decorative appeal. However, the fans also offer significant cooling and energy-saving benefits to homeowners.

Research has shown that ceiling fans when the fan is on make room-occupants feel comfortable at temperatures up to 85 degrees Fahrenheit. The fans are extremely economical to operate and can yield substantial savings when used to supplement air-conditioning. Based on DOE national averages, an article in "Consumer Reports" estimated that the cost for operating a ceiling fan for eight hours would be one-half cent.

The fans are available with short-stem assemblies, allowing them to fit easily into rooms with standard eight-foot ceilings, with seven feet of clearance. The fans range in size from 36 to 52 inches across. The smaller models are designed for use in tight quarters such as hallways, small offices, stairways, dining rooms, apartments and small homes where space is at a premium. The larger fans are suited to living rooms, play rooms, large porches, bouliards, etc. and, thanks to truly silent operation, bedrooms.

HVI cautions consumers to be very careful in selecting a ceiling fan. The

Proper ventilation prolongs roof

If you want to extend the life of your roof, air it out.

According to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association (ARMA), proper ventilation of attic areas not only will help you get maximum service life from the roof but will also improve hot-spot cooling efficiency.

Attic ventilation is an often over-looked and little understood concept. Inadequate ventilation may result in premature failure of the roofing material or fastening system.

In hot summer months, radiant heat from the sun can cause very high roof deck temperatures. Heat buildup in unventilated attics will contribute to premature roof failure, in addition to creating heavier air conditioning loads.

Cold weather causes different and more serious problems. Heavy insulation and tighter construction techniques reduce air migration in the home, leading to condensation problems when water vapor gener-

Installing proper insulation can greatly reduce costs

In addition to fueling new home sales, record low interest rates have been a great catalyst for home remodeling projects.

The reasons are as obvious as the projects themselves. By improving the appearance, efficiency and/or livability of homes, owners are enhancing the overall market value.

Not surprisingly, residential spending continues to be one of the most popular home improvement. But, as many professional remodelers already know, the multiple benefits to residing are key to its popularity.

Residing is always a top priority for homeowners because it immediately eliminates some of the exterior maintenance and increases the home's value and curb appeal," said Bill McDonald, product manager for Atlanta, Ga.-based Amoco Foam Products Company. "With the right energy-saving products, residing a home can have a favorable impact on reducing heating and cooling costs."

Realizing improved energy efficiency lies with the materials underneath the new siding. Most contractors use foam insulation products to provide a smooth, level surface for new siding and to provide increased R-value. Housewrap products that act as air barriers, which reduce energy robbing drafts, caused by seams, cracks and crevices, are also commonly used to increase a home's comfort. Material selection depends upon climate, budget, and the degree of additional insulation protection required.

As a recognized leader in energy savings products, Amoco Foam Products Company offers a wide variety of products tailored to meet homeowners' specific needs:

- Amofoam®-SI is designed for homeowners seeking maximum thermal performance. Thickness at 1-inch, which is 1-inch are commonly used. Amofoam-SI possesses superior wall-leveling capabilities, and in addition, its 2" x 8' sheets are designed with shiplap edges that interlock to form tight seals between boards that help reduce drafts caused by air infiltration.
- Amofoam®-P28 is a 3/8-inch thick insulation board constructed of extruded polystyrene sandwiched between plastic films.

In addition to enhancing the R-value of a home, the unique 4" x 8" fan-fold feature of Amofoam-P28 has fewer seams, which assists in cutting down air infiltration and providing a level surface for new siding.

Amofoam-P1 is the original all plastic siding underlayment product

Any way you describe it, the American-Standard 5000 is a shade quieter than your typical air conditioner. Its compressor is surrounded with thick sound-absorbing insulation, a thoughtful touch courtesy of American-Standard's engineers. The compressor itself is rather remarkable, too.

Built and tested by American-Standard for incredible durability, the 5000 also has our Spring Frost coil, which resists corrosion five times better than traditional coils. Both compressor and coil have a 10 year limited warranty. It all helps make the 5000 extremely efficient - up to 14 SEER. In an air conditioner, quality like this is practically unheard-of.

Gwaldis receives top producer award

Kathleen Gwaldis, a sales associate with Weichert Realtors, received a regional award for the greatest number of listings and the office's top producer award for the greatest number of sales and market listings sold in March. Gwaldis, an experienced real estate professional, has been licensed for seven years. She is a member of the Greater Eastern Union County Board of Realtors. The Union Office's top sales associate since 1987, she is a member of the company's 1993 President's Club, the New Jersey State Million Dollar Club at the Silver Level, Weichert's Million Dollar Sales and Marketed Club, and the company's 200-Market Club. However, the housing affordability index did show a quarter-to-quarter increase, as the figure for the first quarter 1993 was 123.6, compared to this year's 129.5 quarter-to-quarter figure.

When the Housing Affordability Index measures 100, a family earning the median income has exactly the amount needed to purchase a median-priced resale home using conventional financing and a 20 percent down payment. Since the median is the midpoint, the index shows that the families in New Jersey had at least 120.5 percent of the income needed to qualify for a home purchase with the median price of $145,900.

Median family incomes in New Jersey stood at $24,831, a slight gain of $240 over the fourth quarter of 1993, $24,600. The housing affor-

Maintenance can prevent overheating

Does your car have aluminum cylinder heads? If you don't know it would be wise to find out, says the Car Care Council. Aluminum heads are more vulnerable to damage from overheating than the traditional cast iron type. Excessive heat can warp the temperature-sensitive heads, resulting in a major repair expense. And it can happen so fast you may not have been aware your car was in trouble.
