Area code 847: a numbers racket?

On Feb. 15 the ICC denied the request made by NeuStar, Inc.---a body that administers code 847 numbers for telecommunication carriers---to introduce the 224-code overlay.

NeuStar claims that 847 numbers have been exhausted, but not everyone accepts that. Groups like the Northwest Municipal Conference and Citizens Utility Board view the scenario as number hoarding.

Seamus CUB statistician

Glynn says that analyzed data indicates to CUB's satisfaction that at least 3.8 million unassigned numbers are held by the 38 phone carriers who serve the 847 code. Among those 38. CUB data indicates that AT&T and MCI Worldcom are the greediest. CUB calculates that AT&T has used only 8 percent of its in-hand 847 numbers and MCI's utilization rate is higher, an estimated 22 percent.

Common Myths About Estate Planning

by Chester M. Przybyło

A great deal of confusion remains over what constitutes a proper Estate Plan. Rumors, statements taken out of context, gossip, some bad characters that have bilked the innocent, and even turf battles over business interests have created widely held beliefs that just aren't correct. These stories have become myths. They can be harmful to you and your loved ones.

One myth is that if you have a Will, probate will not be required, and your assets can be transferred immediately to the beneficiaries of the Will. In fact, having a Will mandates a probate in many cir-

Probate is the process of distributing assets to beneficiaries, and it occurs in the state of your legal residence as well as any state where you own real property. The Probate process might be finalized in less than a year, but if your estate is large with more complex assets the process can take years to finalize. The procedures, as well as the cost of probate, are determined under your state's laws.

Additionally, because it is a court proceeding, the probate of your estate is part of the public record. This means that anyone who wishes to access your records may do so.

A second myth, believed by approximately 70 percent of the population, is that if you don't have a large estate, you don't need a Will. Many people also believe that if there is no Will, all the decedent's belongings will go to the surviving spouse.

A Will provides legally binding guidelines on how to distribute your property after your death. It also names the person you want to administer your estate. If you don't have a Will, then state law (the state where you are a permanent resident) makes many of the decisions you did not make for yourself.

Generally, if you and your spouse hold joint title to assets, then those assets pass automatically to your spouse. If you die and do not have a Will, all of your individually owned assets are subject to your state's "intestacy" laws. These intestacy laws normally divide the estate between a spouse and children, using a pre-determined percentage, based upon the number of children and the decedent's marital status. If there is no spouse or children, then the intestacy laws have provisions for dividing the assets among other relatives, and even the state.

If you do not have a Will, a court will appoint someone to administer your estate. This person will be responsible for performing all the administrative functions of probating your estate. This appointce may or may not be someone you would have chosen to manage your estate. They may not even have any real idea of what your wishes are concerning the disposition of your assets.

Not having a Will or Trust nearly always increases probate costs and delays. Additional court appearances will be required, such as to appoint someone to administer your estate, and additional money will be spent for services such as determining whom your heirs are. A failure to legally document what you want to happen makes eve ryone's job much more difficult.

You can't afford to rely on myths when it comes to your estate Find out the facts, plan carefully and execute a plan to provide you with peace of mind and security for your heirs.

Chester M. Przybyło is a member of the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys and has been engaged in the practice of law for the last 30 years. For more information or to attend all upcoming seminar, call (773) 631-2525.

Maine Republican fundraising surpasses all expectations

In what is turning out to be an unexpected boon for the Maine Township Regular Republican slate of candidates, the fundraiser they have planned at The Crystal Palace on March 9 has already exceeded their original record setting goal of $20,000 by almost double. "The positive buzz this Republican state of candidates has been able to generate is just phenomenal," said Republican Committeeman Bill Darr. "All nine candidates have met or exceeded their personal commitments in fundraising for the upcoming Lincoln Day Dinner. Everyone who's anyone is jumping on this bandwagon. Our precinct captains have been selling tickets at an unusually high rate. Our fundraising success includes unprecedented financial support from all sectors of the Maine Township community including Republic elected officials, business and the general public which demonstrates the slate's broad based appeal. Our event is still days away and we have already raised over $38,000. That's $23,000 more than our previous best fundraiser. It looks like our guest speaker will have a packed house to address on Friday night." concluded Darr.

State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka will give the keynote address at the Maine Township Republican Lincoln Day Dinner. Topinka, the Riverside Township Republican Committeeman, was a state senator prior to being elected as Illinois State Treasurer in 1994. She was re-elected to another four-year term in 1998. Topinka is seen as a rising star in Illinois politics and has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Secretary of State, Lieutenant Governor or United States Senate in 2002. Topinka will be joined by numerous state and local elected officials as well as candidates for mayor, alderman, park boards, school boards and

Marriott Theatre to present Mame

Terry James, Executive Producer of the award-winning Marriott Theatre in Lincolnshire, is proud to present Mame, starring Hollis Resnik, Alene Roberston, and Paula Scrofano; and a Marriott all-star cast! Preview performances begin on March 21st, Press Night is March 28th and runs through May 20th.

She is everyone's favorite Auntie Mame! Outspoken, and totally outrageous. For over 35 years, she has sprung up bigger than life on stage, screen and of course the original novel by Patrick Dennis. However, none compare to Jerry Herman's smash hit musical, Mame! Now, three of Chicago's favorite leading ladies, Hollis Resnik (Mame), Alene Robertson (Vera), and Paula Scrofano (Gooch), are joined by Aaron Thielen (Patrick), Bryce Bashford (young Patrick), and an All-Star cast, in bringing this classic musical to life. So warn the stuffy, the snobs and stodgy. Mame s coming to town to prove once and for all -- "Life's a banquet."

Performance Schedule Wednesdays at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.; Thursdays at 8 p.m.; Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5 p.m. & 8:30 p.m.; and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

what you plan to grow, the better the soil, the healthier the plants. Good soil preparation will get your garden off to a strong start and will keep it healthy after you've put away your shovel. Prior to planting, turn over the soil to a depth of 12 inches, break up any clumps, rake and then apply peat moss or compost. Test the pH level (acidity or alkalinity) of the soil with a test kit. Some local garden centers and counties will also test soil or provide infor-

Aim for constant bloom. The prettiest gardens are in bloom every week of the season. Vary flower types and planting times to allow for constant bloom. Largersized bulbs produce larger flowers and usually bloom the first year they are planted.

Practice routine maintenance. When transplanting flowers to your garden, water them thoroughly until established. When direct-sowing seeds in your garden, don't allow seeds to dry out. Maintain even moisture until germination is completed and plants get established. They should then be watered at least once a week during dry periods, preferably with a drip hose so water reaches the roots of the plants.

Is Glenview Park Center, "too popular"?

recreation center, open only one month, already boasts a membership of 4,000, but its overnight popularity brings a problem, the undesirable behavior of unsupervised teens.

The new $23 million center has attracted teen visitors whose behavior, especially in washrooms and around the health and fitness club, has drawn complaints from adult members, forcing the district to take a second look at rules and regulations, according to Commissioner John Winand.

As a result, teen members under 18 are not allowed to use the club unless thre is a liability waiver on file signed by the parents. Teens ages 14 and 15 are required to take a class on the use of equipment and locker room ettiquette before using the facilities without adult supervision, and a child 13 or younger

The community needs to understand that the Park Center health and fitness club is different from the community center, remarked board commissioner Judy Beck. Precisely, because it's a club.

John Quill, supervisor of leisure services, tells that on a Saturday twelve unsupervised teens were dropped off. After paying the $10 day-rate fee, they created such disturbances that as many complaining phone calls eame in afterward about the undisciplined behavior. The Katinas to perform March 18

Sponsored by Family Christian Center and Shine 89.7 WONU. The Katinas, one of the hottest contemporary Christian music acts today, is scheduled to perform at Family Christian Center of Munster, located at 340 West 45th Avenue, pastored by Steve and Melodye Munsey (In Illinois, 45th Avenue is Glenwood-Lansing Road). They will stage their eclectic performance on Sunday evening, March 18, at 6 p.m.

The Katinas are not newcomers to the contemporary Christian gospel scene. Since 1977 the young Katina boys have taken their name on the road performing at youth conventions, high schools, and churches. In recent years The Katinas have performed with such artists as R. Kelly, CeCe Winans, Michael Bolton, Wynnona, and Jasmine www.FamilyChristian.org.

Guy; as well as touring the country wth the 1998 E.R.A.C.E. (Eliminating Racism and Creating Equality) Tour where they shared the stage with dcTalk, Out of Eden, Jennifer Knapp, and Temple Yard. Born in American Samoa, the artists are only five of the twelve siblings who were reared on that island nation. Their music, much of it written by members of the group, shows the influence of their family background in its scope and message. Although it is not a ticketed event, a free-will offering will be taken at this concert, and, judging by their past appearances here, seats will go quickly. For more information the public can call our 24-hour Information Hotline at (219) 972-0999 or visit

Dominican Center Stage presents Much Ado About Nothing

Intricate schemes and fielde story of courage and determinaof Shakespeare's most charming comedies, Much Ado About Nothing, presented by Dominican University Center Stage. Performances will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 16 and 17 at 8 p.m., and on Sunday, March 18 at 3 p.m. in the Lund Auditorium, 7900 W. Division Street, River Forest. Tickets are $12.

In this play about "nothing" (pronounced noting in Elizabethan English, a pun on evesdropping), gossip proves more powerful than fate as it manipurates the relationship of Benedick and Beatrice, and challenges the love of Claudio and Hero. However, tension eventually gives way to celebration. In this adaptation, directors Michael and Jill Poehlman have chosen to transplant the Bard's tale to the period of the roaring 20's. A time about "pushing the envelope of what celebration could be," says Michael Pochlman.

Survey finds adults purchase tobacco for underage youth issue is of growing concern for been made in restricting illegal

Cook County Board President John H. Stroger, Jr., and the Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) have released results from a recent survey that found an unusually high number of adults who were willing to buy cigarettes for minors (under 18 years of age) at area convenience stores. One in six adults agreed to the purchase when approached.

"Of the 3,000 young people who start smoking each day, 1,000 of them will succumb to tobacco-related disease," said Dr. Karen L. Scott, CCDPH Director. "We clearly need to do a better job educating the public about the devastating effects associated with underage tobacco use."

On August 18, 23, and 24 of 2000, the health department conducted observational surveys in three regions of the county to determine how often adults (strangers) would buy cigarettes for minors. Management in three convenience stores of a major chain agreed beforehand to allow the surveys to take place. At each location, a teenage volunteer was situated near the front of the store, but out of direct sight of the cashier. As adults approached the storefront, the teen volunteer asked them to purchase cigarettes. If the adult agreed to the buy, the volunteer would reach into their pocket and then explain that they did not have enough money. CCDPH staff members were positioned close enough to allow direct observation of each

Of 180 requests made for cigarettes countywide, 29 (16%) of the adults were willing to purchase. Ten of 48 women (20.8%) were willing to make the purchase, while 19 of 132 men (14.4%) agreed to buy. In each location, 60 requests to purchase were made, with 16% willing to buy-north, 15% west, and 16.6% south. The survey was the first of its kind to be administered in Cook County.

Data from the CCDPH annual survey of youth access to tobacco shows that some progress has OLR students won First Place in the Battle of the Books. Students battled against 8 other area schools sponsored by Niles Public Library. Every match was timed to last 30-minutes. Naming the correct book helped earn points for their team. Students prepared for these matches by reading over 67 books selected by the Niles Library. Battle of the Books is now in its 22nd year of existence. This is a fantastic achievement for these students and we hope more students in grades 4th through 6th grade will consider joining in this activity for next year. It's a fun way to read!

A multi-grade classroom setting allows for interaction with adjacent grades when academically beneficial, and specific grade-level instruction when appropriate. Small class sizes make it possible for students to get individualized attention, and allow teachers to provide more comprehensive and worth while projects. Enrichment programs supplement each student's education, giving him or her the opportunity to excel. Standardized test scores verify the academic strength of the program.

Area's seniors take in a Maine East history class

A program called "YES!" \(\) (for Youth Exchanging with Seniors), was presented a second time when seniors from Niles. Morton Grove. Des Plaines and Park Ridge mixed with Maine East students during the daylong program on Feb. 15.

YES!, a program developed by Maine East Communications Director Liz Paine, is an effort to cross-link generations. This time. "YES!" Day took an ethnic tone, as it played off the school's diverse student population.

The 37 senior citizens, mostly emigrees from northern European countries themselves, began the day's encounter in a history class with ESL (English-assecond-language) students. "Because ESL is combined with social science subjects like U.S. History, our students have improved their command of English very rapidly," Mary Haw-ley, chaiman of the school's history department, said.

Croatian-born social-science teacher Snjezana Salamon, who taught the history class, knows first-hand how it feels. "When I came to this country 20 years ago, the school I went to had no ESL program, so my first months here were painful indeed," she said.

The student population at Maine East is exceptionally diverse, with close to 60 languages, other than English, spoken in students' homes.

The first "YES!" Day was held at Maine West last Novem-

LISZEWSKI

Dear Editor: As a resident of unincorporated Maine Township for more than 30 years, I'd like to provide the answers for the five questions Maine Township Trustee Willard "Bill" Bell asked about the proposed Plan Commission, and ask that he consider some simple facts he chose to ignore. I'd also like to offer suggestions for what should be done in both the short and long term.

Q. I. What is the Plan Commission supposed to do?

It's really quite simple. The commission is to provide the same kind of protection to residents of this area that has long been afforded residents of municipalities. To guard us against further development which could increase the flooding. To enure that developers ean't swap the school and park districts in the area, and make no contributions to those districts. To provide a local control on infrastructure and building changes. To immediately give legal standing to file objections with Cook County, while determining what should be done over the longer

Q. 2. How are they supposed

In the short run, they are to guard against further random development which has resulted in inferior infrastructure, overly dense population, inadequate parking, and the multitude of problems which have haunted the area since before I lived here. In the long run, to attempt to bring order to the chaos, and improve the quality of life for municipalities.

Q. 3. When are they supposed to do it?

Mike Yesner clears up the facts for Willard Bell

Just as soon as the political rhetoric dies down, and our Town Board passes the ordinance that the State of Illinois gave it the power to pass on January 1 of this year.

Q. 4. How much will it cost? Nothing, or close to it, to enable the Commission to start providing the needed protection and have legal standing with Cook County. The Board will, of course, retain budgetary control over the Commission, and will establish funding, if needed, for

O. 5. What will be the qualifications to serve on the Commislong term goals.

Ideally, a majority of members will be residents of unincorporated. Hopefully, one or more members will be an architect, planner, or have related skills. Legally, the makeup will be determined by who Supervisor Thompson nominates, and The Board ratifies. Most of all, they will be dedicated to improving the quality of life in the area, protecting property values, and, by extension, protecting the property values in the adjacent

Letters to the Editor

I will turn now to the facts Mr. Bell so conveniently ig-

For years, all we in this area have heard from Maine Township is "That is under the control of Cook County. We're sorry, there's nothing we can do to prevent flooding, or substandard roads, or dense housing, or inadequate infrastructure, or ignoring the impact of more population on the educational and recreational needs of the area." Now, with the enabling legislation passed in Springfield, The Township could have legal standing to object to new development. All they need to do is pass an ordinance. But, the majority seem to prefer to wait, and take a chance that developers will act quickly, before our Town Board passes an ordinance, to further destroy the remaining undeveloped land. Would Mr. Bell tolerate his home town of Park Ridge providing such an open window for developers? Of course not! But, it is fine to have such a window for the unincorporated residents he is supposed to be protecting.

He also ignores the fact that even without planning commissions, there is local building permit control in unincorporated. A suburban resident simply cannot fight a developer at The County Building. A planning commission would provide local protection immediately.

And, he ignores the fact that in the municipalities, there are issues like tear downs, commereial area versus residential, blending with existing buildings, general rules for land use, etc. Here in unincorporated, anything with high commercial potential is immediately annexed by a surrounding town. There never has been any attempt to have neighboring properties blend in, tear downs are not an issue, and it is too late to implement over all land use planning. Suggestions that the commission be modeled after a municipal commission is simply not relevant. The issues are different, as is the level of immediate need.

The answer to the question what should be done now is. quite simple, if only the majority of The Board could be persuaded to look out for the needs of their constituents.

The enabling should be passed immediately, and commission named using the criteria I suggested. That would ensure immediate standing with Cook County. The Commission should, within 90 days of taking office, submit a report to the Board, outlining what it feels it should be its long term goal, and request funding. The Board should then consider the recommendations and budget request, and act appropriately.

Simple? Yes. Effective? Yes. Cost controlled? Yes. Timely? Yes Good government? Yes. Will it happen? Only if the Board decides to act responsibly, instead of politically.

Mr. Bell refers to what residents should expect from Republican elected officials. What we've come to expect is to hear speeches, read letters to the editor, and get no action. And, he is correct in saying our expectations are being met. That's why it really is time for a change, to Democrats, who will get things

Very truly yours, Mike Yesner Democratic Party Candidate. Maine Township Supervisor

Driving under the influence

While on patrol early in the morning of Feb. 28 an officer observed a northbound car on the 8500 block of Milwaukee going 56 mph in a 35 mph zone. The car was stopped on the 9100 block of Milwaukee and the officer smelled alcohol on the driver's breath. Suitable fit for a variety of vehicles -- Avoid seats with larger bases because they will not fit in smaller vehicles. A narrow base is more versatile.

· Easy Belt Path -- Make sure the child's seat belt path is easily accessible.

• Built-in locking clips --Built-in clips are a great alternative to traditional clips.

 Accessible harness adjusters -- Adjusters make it more convenient for parents to move the child in and out of the seat.

Educator of the Year award winner

Linda Smentek, a Morton Grove resident who is a teacher and technology director at Hayt Elementary School in Chicago, has been selected to receive the 2001 Technology Educator of the Year Award given annually by Illinois Computing Educators (ICE) and AT&T.

The award, which will be presented at a reception hosted by TECH 2001 and AT&T at Maidaner's restaurant in Springfield on March 20, recognizes an outstanding educator who has shown a commitment to integrating technology into the classroom.

Agnes Hicks, AT&T public relations manager, praised Smentek and said: "AT&T supports this awards program and the TECH 2000/AT&T demonstration because we believe technology is a critical tool for enhancing teaching and learning. Ultimately, we believe our efforts will make a difference as youths prepare to move from the classroom to the workplace." Since joining the Hayt staff in 1997, Smentek totally rebuilt the computer lab for use by students in grades 3 through 5, initiated a program to involve teachers and students in curriculum-based projects, and improved communications with parents. She developed a technology newsletter and an on-line newspaper, obtained several grants to support the school's computer projects, and attended numerous workshops and conferences to stay abreast of educational technology.

Last year, Smentek expanded her computer program to include grade 2 and oversaw the implementation of an experimental new program in the prekindergarten classes using the "Computers for Tots Program." She has been teaching school for more than 20 years.

Illinois Computing Educators is a statewide organization that assists professional educators in maximizing the potential of technology in the classroom. TECH 2000 is a group of innovative Illinois educators dedicated to increasing awareness of the need for additional funding in the area of classroom technology and the

AT&T has joined with TECH 2000 for the past five years to help bring Illinois teachers and students to Springfield to demonstrate to state legislators and others how technology is being used in the classroom to improve achievement.

The awards reception will follow the 10th annual TECH 2000/ AT&T Students for the Information Age demonstration at the State Capitol Building in Springfield where some 140 public schools will participate and represent legislative districts from throughout the state.

The weather is a primary factor in the life of a farmer. Who knows better than a farmer how Mother Nature's conditions will affect his crops and his livelihood. A farmer will check the weather several times a day with instruments including a rain gauge, thermometer, Palmer Index subsoil moisture map, a barometer -- even Doppler radar -to prepare for and respond to every weather condition, from hail storms to a drought.

Plant Biologist

A farmer has to be a grade "A' biologist to maintain the health of his crops. Using such tools as a soil probe and a crop insect identification map, a farmer will regularly scout his field in search of any potential threats to his crops, ncluding pests, plant disease and unhealthy roots.

Animal Care Specialist

Just as a farmer cares for the health of his crops, he also focuses much of his attention on the health of his livestock. From dayto-day nutrition, injury prevention and healthcare to midwiving calves and piglets, a farmer must

A Farmer's Many Hats

A farmer is always thinking "safety first" when working with his heavy equipment. A farmer must know all the working parts of a combine, tractor, hay baler, several-ton hauling equipment -even his own cars and trucks. A farmer familiarizes himself with all operating training manuals, uses two-way radios to maintain communication and carries a grease gun to keep all of a machine's parts running smoothly. Mechanic is invested into the machinery that works his land. Concerned with the "health" of his machinery, he also must be handy with tools such as a wrench and welding torch to not only prolong the life of his investments, but to prevent serious accidents.

Independent Businessman At the end of the day, a farmer is ultimately an economist and businessman. Faced with hundreds of decisions each day, he uses today's technology -- the Internet, specialized software and computers -- to analyze the stock market; track trends in business and weather; and maximize his profitability

Any Mom who has little kids has undoubtedly had days where a simple trip to the grocery store turns into an endurance marathon of patience. I call these my "I Love Lucy" rerun days. A series of events goes wrong very quickly and each time you make a decision it causes another problem. Most Moms have "I Love Lucy" days on a weekly basis and sometimes the only thing a Mom can do is laugh. The unbelievably ridiculous things Moms experience to simply function in society are cause for celebration. Moms should be honored weekly for the feats of magic they perform as second nature. My recent trip to the Niles Police Department to cover the police beat for The Bugle was one of my best 'I Love Lucy" days in a long time. Sometimes no matter how hard a Mom tries to plan and anticipate fate takes over and you realize you don't have any control - it's time to sit back, relax and laugh. And remember, we've all been there.

The reports had to be in by Monday morning so I planned to take my year old daughter, Maizie with me to the station after I dropped my four year-old son, Kalvin off at school. Unfortunately Kalvin didn't have school this particular Monday because it was Lincoln's birthday so I had to drag both of them with me.

First I had to pack: diapers, wipes, change of clothes, Vascline, snack for Kal, snack for Maizie, water for Kal, water for Maizie, dinosaurs for Kal to play with and dinosaurs for Maizie. I almost forgot my notebook and

When we got there I had to balance the police reports on my lap, keep my one leg extended so Maizie could cruise, feed her cheerios and retrieve her fallen dinosaurs while reading the reports and taking notes. Kalvin wanted to sit on the same chair with me because there were some strangers sitting in the waiting room too. Kalvin's foot was digging into my back and he was hitting me on the head with his dinosaurs while eating his snack that was getting his fingers sticky. He insisted on putting his fingers in my hair to show me just how slicky they were. I had just taken a shower that morning for the first time in 3 days, A pony-tail or hat are essential for a Mom. Maizie was crabby because I was trying to wean her off the bottle so shewas hungry and whiney. Eventually her cheerios spilled on the floor and the female officer leaned over to the glass window and gave me the hairy

Then Kal had to go to the bath-room - #2. I couldn't leave the reports sitting on the chair while I traipsed off so I disengaged Maizie, Kal and myself and we proceeded to the bathroom with reports in hand. I have to mention that the bathroom at the Niles Poaround my neck and screaming. Now the strangers in the waiting area are also giving me the hairy eyeball. I returned the reports, cleaned up

What to know about car seats

The rule for children in automobiles is simple, succinct, and unequivocal: No matter how short the trip, or how much they fuss, children MUST be buckled up - preferably in the backseat every time they get in a vehicle. You can help ensure the safety of your child while traveling if you conduct a car seat safety check-

- 1. Do you have the car seat instructions? You will need them to adjust the scat as your child grows. Send in the registration card: it is important if the seat is
- 2. Does your car have a passenger-side airbag? An infant in a rear-facing seat should never ride in the front seat of a car that has a passenger-side airbag.
- 3. Is your child facing the right way for both weight and age? Infants should ride facing the back of the car until they weight 20 pounds and are close to

- 4. Is the harness snug; does it stay on your child's shoulders?
- 5. Is the car seat belt in the right place and pulled tight to keep the seat in place?
- 6. Have you tried the car scat in your vehicle? Not all car seats fit in all vehicles. Be sure to read the "car seat" section in your owner's manual.
- 7. Is your child too tall for a convertible seat and at least 40 lbs.? If so, use a booster seat.
- 8. Has your child's car seat been recalled? To check, call the Auto Safety Hotline at (800) 424-

The Safe America Foundation. Cosco Inc., and the American Academy of Pedicatries remind you that injury prevention depends on the practice of good safety habits. For year-round safety information, call: (770)

Glynn explains that phone companies obtain blocks of numbers in 1.000s or 10.000s. He said the two companies hold a significant number of blocks that have not been used at all or that have been only used to a minimal degree.

CUB's number crunching and the questions it provokes were sufficient for the ICC to deny NeuStar's request, and ICC Chairman. Richard Mathias, urged NeuStar in writing to reevaluate the status of code 847.

Furthermore, the ICC has requested that the Federal Communications Commission conduct an audit of all phone carriers who serve Illinois---the best way for finding out what's out there, says ICC spokeswoman, Beth Bosch.

'We are also asking that Neu-Star release 847 numbers," Bosch said. That could make about 90.000 numbers available mmediately

Members of the Northwest Municipal Conference are delighted with the blocking of NeuStar's request, and they applaud asking the FCC to look into the hoarding question.

CUB Executive Director Martin Cohen recalled that in 1998 the phone industry insisted all 847 numbers had been used up. Cohen added, "The data clearly shows the phone companies simply have not complied with rules laid down by both the FCC and

Compliance with rules would eliminate hoarding by requiring carriers to return all numbers they haven't used within six "Some (companies) have sat on (847) numbers for years." said Glynn.

However. ÁT&T's attorney. John Dunn, denies the phone company is refusing to return phone numbers. But, said CUB data is based on confidential information submitted to the FCC by NeuStar.

In turn. AT&T has requested an audit of CUB data. Glynn says that, based on CUB's source material, he does not feel challenged by their request.

"We prepared our report with the ICC and FCC in mind, so we welcome scrutiny of our assessment, especially if it will bring an end to hoarding on the part of the phone companies,"

March is National Nutrition Month

So many choices and so much temptation. Making smart decisions about food can be a difficult undertaking in these days of "super-sizing" and "free refills." It is difficult to avoid overcating when too much is made available to us everywhere. The result of overeating is not just obesity . . . heart disease, diabetes and cancer are on the rise, causing lifethreatening health consequences for Americans.

The answer: Watch your serving size. Portion control is a key point for weight and health management, along with physical activity to maintain a healthy life-

March is National Nutrition Month and this year's message is: 'Food and Fitness: Build A Healthy Lifestyle.' The Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) and the American Dietetic Association (ADA) reminds residents to learn the ABC's of healthy living:

Aim for Fitness: Make regular exercise a part of your daily activity. A healthy balance between food and litness is a necessary part of achieving and maintaining proper weight. Approximately 30 minutes of daily physical activity such as walking, biking or swimming can help.

Build a healthy base: Build your meals upon grains, vegetables, and fruits. Add lean meats. beans and low-fat dairy to increase protein and other nutri-sweets as long as they are eaten occasionally and moderately.

Choose sensibly: Remember to balance meals with variety and moderate portion sizes. Ignore the barrage of advertising that extols the availability of exaggerated portions of high fat and high

The ADA recommends the following healthy hints:

 Know your portions: a recommended serving size of meat is 3-4 ounces, that's about the size of a deck of eards or the palm of a woman's hand.

Business owner praises Niles Park District

Dear Editor:

I have been a Niles business owner for htc past 15 years and as the election draws near 1'd like of share some of my observations regarding the Niles Park District. Unfortunately I cannot vote but I pay property taxes and some of those are used for the Niles Park District, so despite not being a Niles resident, I believe I at least have an opinion that counts

I do not want a candidate telling us he/she has "ideas" for imroving the Park District, I do not think it needs improving. We don't need new programs. If you cannot find a program for your-self between the Village, the Library, the School District and the Park District, then maybe the problem is you. More programs mean spending more money. Niles is clearly on par with the surrounding suburbs in programs they are offering. I for one would like to keep my mon-

I went to three meetings last year and did not see any of the new candidates at the meeting.

One new candidate recently insinuated the lack of attendance at Park District meetings is a bad thing, I disagree. It appears to me the lack of residents at meetings are a good thing! Historically residents only show up to meetings when they have problems. No attendance implies no problem! Accordingly. I have to support the incumbents Barbaglia, Bussey Hynes, and Terpinas. Taxes have not been raised since they took office and at one of the meetings I was at, there was talk of the Park District being debt free in a few years! This is from a Park District that was losing money before these commissioners took

I hope the residents feel the same as a business owner. I truly believe the Niles Park District is finally a model for the surrounding Park Districts like it was years ago. As such, let's keep it that way and let's keep our money by keeping the current commissioners.

P. Mellos, a Niles Business Owner
