HAMMERS.

A hammer is a most useful and necessary tool in the hands of a carpenter or anyone who has a legitimate use of it. With it you may drive a nail or bruise a finger. When one needs a hammer he needs it badly. It is really a household necessity. To bring to the hammer is a term often used when one is compelled to sell at auction his personal property. The carpenter then and the auctioneer as well use the hammer. The miner uses a hammer to drive his drill. The circus man uses a hammer to drive the stakes for the tent ropes. The stone-cutter uses it to guide his chisel. There is the riveting hammer, the tack hammer, blocking hammer, brick-layer's hammer, steam hammer, trip hammer. Hammers of stone are still found in the relics of antiquity and are still in use among barbarians. There is the piano hammer, the gun hammer and the dental hammer, the horseman's hammer, the blacksmith's hammer, and the forger's hammer. There are more kinds of hammers than anything else in the world. In mythology there is Thor's hammer by the throwing of which thunder and lightning was caused. Everyone of these hammers, even the mythological one, has some good and legitimate purpose, but there is just one hammer in the world that is the opposite of all these others, and that is the hammer which the professional knocker wields with such malicious and fatal results. That is one hammer which should forever be cast out from the line of ancestral hammers of fame and dignity. If you are toting a hammer like this, throw it away. Bury it so deep that you will have to go around on the other side of the globe to resurrect it. This kind of a hammer should never be used. The man who wickedly and wantonly wields the knocker's hammer should be forever silenced with a well directed blow on the head with a sledge hammer. Boost—Don't knock.

DAIRY FACTS

AUTUMN AND WINTER BEST FOR DAIRYING

A study of the prices paid for creamery butter over a period of 13 years shows that invariably the price per pound paid for butter on the larger markets of the United States is highest during the fall and winter and lowest during the spring and summer months. Therefore, a farmer who breeds his cows to freshen in the fall will get more from the volume of cream produced than he would get from the same volume in the spring, points out J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division of Clemson college.

The fall calf is also cheaper to raise because it is fed milk, grain, and hay during the winter months, and by spring is old enough to get a considerable amount of its feed requirements from pastures; while spring-born calves must be fed milk and grain during summer, then grain, hay and silage the following winter, thus making the spring-born calf cost considerably more at one year of age than a calf born in the fall. Furthermore, the farmer has more time to devote to the care of the calves in fall and winter than in the spring and summer season, when crops require most of his attention. This same thing applies to mature cows in that they are giving their greatest flow during the slack winter months and are dry or nearly so during the dry, hot, busy season.

The cow that freshens in the fall is fed dry feeds during her heaviest production when the product sells at the highest price, and therefore yields a greater return on the feed consumed. This production comes at a period of the year when it is easier to deliver a cream of good quality because of cool weather conditions and lack of flies and dust. On the other hand, the cow that calves in the spring produces her heaviest yield during the busy summer when hot weather and flies make it difficult to deliver a high quality product to the creamery and when the price is lowest. The spring-freshened cow does not improve in her milk flow during the fall and winter months, but usually goes down in milk during the hot summer months, thus making it difficult for her to return a profit on dry feeds. She will also be dry in late winter months and must be fed on dry feeds when she is not returning an income.

When spring comes new pastures help boost the milk flow of the cow which freshens in the fall, and thus she will finish her lactation period with high production. In spring the price begins to fall off, but the cow is producing at a cheaper rate because she is on pasture. She is then dry during the hot season when butterfat sells at the lowest price and when farmers are busy with their field crops.

Cows Do Not Like Rye as Well as Other Feed

The most that can be said against rye as a food for dairy cows or, for that matter, for any live stock, is that it lacks palatability. The animals don't like it as well as they do wheat or corn and many other foods. They always fall to do as well on things they don't relish as they do on things they like. This is probably due solely to the fact that they do not eat as much. It is the extra pound of food that the animal eats that makes him fat, or that makes the cow give the extra pound of milk.

There is very little difference in the chemical composition of rye or wheat, but wheat is considered the better food. Animals like it better. Rye contains seven-tenths of 1 per cent more digestible protein than wheat, and ought to be a little better to balance up a home-grown ration, but the consensus of opinion is that it is not.

Ordinarily it is more profitable to grind the wheat or rye, sell the flour for human food and feed the bran and middlings. The by-products contain a greater per cent of protein and are more effective in making a balanced ration out of home-grown roughage.

What is practically the same thing, in most cases, will pay to sell the rye at market price and purchase bran and middlings or some other feed than to feed the whole rye to dairy cows. In the case of fattening hogs this would not be true for there more carbohydrates are needed to make fat.

Prevent Growth of Horns

Before a calf is one week old dampen the skin over the horn button and apply lard around these parts. Then rub thoroughly with a stick of caustic potash on the horn buttons until the skin is ready to bleed. Wear an old glove and also wrap the end of the caustic stick with thick paper to protect the hand. The treatment, if properly applied, perfectly prevents the growth of horns.

Milk Richer in Butterfat

A gentleman from the Minnesota College of Agriculture writes that the cow that freshens in the fall or winter will give milk richer in butterfat during the early part of her lactation than the cow that freshens in spring and summer. He also remarks that a large share of the greatest seven-day butter records are made by cows freshening in the cool months. This must be bitter news for the man who believes in pasture, timothy hay and nibbles of corn.—Dairy Farmer.

The Perfume Bearers
And because the breath of flowers is far sweeter in the air (where it comes and goes, like the warbling of music) than in the hand, therefore nothing is more fit for that delight than to know what the flowers and plants that do best perfume the air.—Francis Bacon.

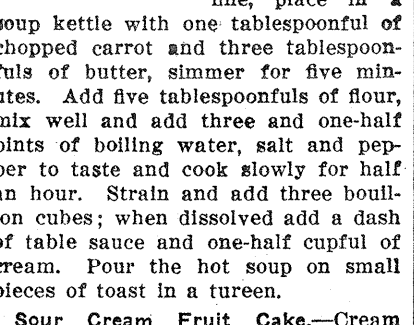

Literary Difference
Jud Tunkins says the difference between the old drama and the new is that Shakespeare said things ordinary people couldn't think of, while the modern author says what everybody suspects, but is too polite to mention.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

How few cooks ever prepare onion soup, and yet it is one of the most wholesome of cream soups. Try this one:
Onion Soup.—Peel, slice and parboil for five minutes five good-sized onions, drain and chop fine, place in a soup kettle with one tablespoonful of chopped carrot and three tablespoonfuls of butter, simmer for five minutes. Add five tablespoonfuls of flour, mix well and add three and one-half pints of boiling water, salt and pepper to taste and cook slowly for half an hour. Strain and add three bouillon cubes; when dissolved add a dash of table sauce and one-half cupful of cream. Pour the hot soup on small pieces of toast in a tureen.

Sour Cream Fruit Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar. Add one-half of a grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of powdered ginger. Add a cupful of warm molasses, to which a scant teaspoonful of soda has been added, dissolved in a bit of water, and one-half cupful of sour cream. Add the yolks of two beaten eggs and flour to make a thick batter. Beat in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and lastly add one-half pound each of raisins and currants and one-half cupful of nuts, all well-floured. Bake in a tube cake pan well-greased and lined with greased paper. Bake in a slow oven with careful watching.

Cream of Corn Soup.—In a double boiler place one quart of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of canned corn, one-half an onion, three sprigs of parsley, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika, and one teaspoonful of salt. When hot stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour smoothed with a little cold milk; stir until thickening begins, then cover and cook for fifteen minutes; remove the onion and parsley and press through a sieve. Serve hot garnished with popcorn.

WALKING INTO THE SAME OLD TRAP

(Dearborn Independent.)
The bootleg game is repeating in detail the abuses which called down the public wrath upon the saloon, and this may prove the deciding factor in prohibition enforcement. The abuse which did more than any one thing to set the public upon the saloon was its greed for the trade of children. It is part of the liquor history of this country (and within recent months in England) that the liquor interest fought with every conceivable weapon the proposal to keep children out of saloons. It was in meeting the saloon resistance to this proposal of plain decency that the public got in training for the bigger fight.

The bootleg business is repeating the game of annexing youth as a customer. The vicinity of high schools everywhere is infested with gentlemen who peddle the illicit stuff. Mere kids, with too much money for their own good, know in increasing numbers where to get the booze. In a number of cities special investigations have been made along these lines with appalling disclosures.

Now, what will occur sooner or later is this: parents who complacently read in the papers that the bootleggers are busy, and who naturally assume that it only means that the old-time bootleggers are getting their liquor (as a matter of fact, few people strenuously object to that) are going to catapult out of their easy chairs and explode a yell of wrath that will shake Washington when they learn that it is not the old-time bootleggers, but their young sons and daughters that are getting the liquor. And when that starts, the bootleggers can kiss their graft goodbye. It will all be over.

The complacency of America means that it has not yet caught on to this ancient indecency of the liquor business—the corruption of youth. When the American people learn what is going on, prohibition will be no longer a joke, and prohibition enforcement will become a cruel steel trap.

SEPARATED MILK IS VALUABLE FOR PIGS

The Michigan experiment station has recently reported an interesting experiment in growing pigs on corn and water as compared to corn and separated milk. Two pigs that got milk gained 221 pounds each in five months. Those on corn and water gained only 95.

At the end of five months the milk-fed pigs were marketed and the two stunted pigs put in separate pens. Pig No. 4 got shelled corn, water and a good mineral mixture. Pig No. 3 got corn and separated milk and though he only weighed 43 pounds at seven months old he weighed 350 pounds at a year old, a gain of 307 pounds. Number 4 gained only 28 pounds, weighing 76 pounds at one year. Then No. 3 was marketed and No. 4 got separated milk and corn for five months. At the end of this time he had gained 274 pounds, weighing 350 pounds, showing that separated milk can bring out even a stunted pig to make good gains. The gains with separated milk cost 87 cents per pound, with skim milk at 65 cents per 100 pounds. Gains without milk cost 19.7 to 39 cents per pound.

Although separated milk contains valuable mineral matter this was evidently not what was lacking in the corn. The main deficiency was in protein and in the growth-promoting vitamins, both of which were supplied abundantly by the separated milk. Many people try to feed pigs on corn alone, while others who have dairy cows separate the milk and throw the skimmed milk away. Both are making a serious mistake. If separated milk is not available one should use alfalfa pasture, tankage or some other protein supplement along with corn.

Some will say that they get better results on corn alone than were obtained by the Michigan station. This is probably true where pigs are getting some grass or weeds to supply them with mineral matter and vitamins and with some of the supplementary proteins. The main thing to remember is that corn is not a complete feed for growing animals.

Separated milk should be considered as a supplementary feed, not as a complete feed in itself. Where fed in moderate quantities, two or three pounds of separated milk may take the place of one pound of corn. In large amounts count eight or ten pounds of milk equal to one pound of corn. A good rule is to count 100 pounds of separated milk worth half the price of corn per bushel.—Charles I. Bray, Colorado Agricultural College.

Worm-Free Pigs Bring Top Prices on Market

Hog raisers of Clay county, Nebraska, have built more than 1,000 movable hog houses during the past two years, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, in order to keep their herds on clean ground and prevent roundworm infestation. Farmers of the county became interested in hog-lot sanitation in 1922, when the county agricultural agent arranged with two hog raisers to carry on demonstrations of the method and the results obtained by following the system. The litters which were farrowed and kept on clean pastures were in both cases much more thrifty than those kept in old, infested quarters. In one case, where 35 litters were farrowed in clean quarters and kept on clean pasture, 228 pigs were weaned without a runt. These pigs topped the market in six months, when they averaged 135 pounds each. Litters on the same farm which were kept in old hog lots soon developed runts. A farmers' automobile tour was organized to visit the demonstrations and a number of individual visits were also made by farmers from all parts of the county. The economic advantage of hog-lot sanitation was so evident that farmers throughout the county are successfully following the practice or are building movable hog houses and completing other arrangements to adopt the system.

Live Stock Notes

The market docks the lambs when the sheepman doesn't.

Pure bred live stock on every farm will add millions to the value of the agricultural output and increase the prosperity of the individual farmer.

Cowpeas provide a very good supplement with corn in a pig ration. They contain about 24 per cent protein and experiments show that a ration of half cowpeas and half corn gives very good results.

If you do not dock the lambs in spring, the market man will dock the price in fall or winter.

It is likely that green apples might cause abortion in sows because it is known that indigestion or the feeding of fermenting slop or damaged feed may do so.

A great many flock owners encounter disease among their sheep and think that some medication is necessary while in reality variety of food would check the trouble.

Charles Beach passed away at his farm home one mile south of Gagetown Wednesday, Jan. 28, 1925, after a short illness of blood poisoning. He was a prosperous, highly respected citizen. He was the son of John and Caroline Beach and was born near Caro June 12, 1856. At the age of 14, he moved with his parents to the state of Kansas making the long tiresome journey with teams and covered wagons. After a year's residence, they returned to Michigan, locating near Big Rapids. He came to Caro the following year. In 1878 he was united in marriage to Miss Eleanor Streeter. Their family consisted of Alvin Beach and Mrs. Lura Ames, who passed away about four years ago. Nine grandchild-

The Questioner

He that questioneth much shall learn much, and content much; but especially if he apply his questions to the skill of the persons whom he asketh; for he shall give them occasion to please themselves in speaking, and himself shall continually gather knowledge; but let his questions not be troublesome, for that is fit for a poser; let him be sure to leave other men to turn to ask.—Lord Bacon.

Here are Spring Hats that will go well with the new Spring Coats and Suits, but they will look equally well when worn with your winter wrap. Of every new material, they are brilliant with the smartest shades of Spring and they are surprisingly good values at

DEFORD NEWS

William Brown, first supervisor of Novesta township in 1868, was a smart man but not a prophet and could not tell what the township would be in 1924. That it would pay more bridge tax in first 50 years of its life than any township in Tuscola, and then financially take the lead of other townships around, having a good start of many settlers. Deford is her capital and her tillers of the soil are men of justice that "escheweth evil."

On Thursday, Jan. 27, our hand car men were called on in their work of the road to face the wind and froze their "phis" and now have sore cheeks as unquestionable evidence.

Oh, how heartless the man who can forget the tree under whose shade he played in childhood.

At this date, 28, motorists can go east, south and west, but north we cannot go. Parties come from Detroit, go west to Caro, then make Cass City by angling road.

William McCartney is a world's marvel. For years he has laid in one position on his back like a stone. Not a sore on his body. Appetite good. Health excellent. No complaint of his sad lot. For seven years to our knowledge, he has been thus helpless. The want of exercise we hear so much of affects neither his appetite nor health.

Saw Sim Pratt today and was surprised how he has improved in past two months. Six months ago he looked as if he could hide behind a broom handle. Now fairly fleshy, with the flush of health on his face. No, T. B. and the boy are strangers.

Barbers will have to turn to other pursuits of life. Our women are about to adopt the close cut of hair. And are bound to dress like the men. Nice men who admire the clean shave will have to bottle their pride and raise whiskers that we may distinguish the sexes. Troubles that the world has passed through are but "light afflictions" compared with what is before us.

Let us understand that we live at a time when we can speak truthfully of the goodness and greatness of our country. The great Milton said, "They err who count it glorious to subdue by conquest far and wide." But our nation does not belong to that class of nations. The United States has engaged in three great wars, and in each case her battles were for the liberty of fellowman. In our first war, the Revolutionary fathers fought for their own liberty and the liberty of their descendants. In our Civil war we fought to cement the union and the liberty of the enslaved blacks, making it possible for "judges to just and statesmen to be human." In the world's great war, our nation fought that the shackles should be loosened from the weak countries, to give them liberties

MAKES PLEA FOR THIEF WHO HAD MENACED LIFE

Banker Shattuck Asks Mercy for Man Who Had None for Him.

Paris.—At the end of a trail of vengeance that led half way around the world and cost two lives, hundreds of thousands of dollars, Albert R. Shattuck, American millionaire, found—

The story goes back to a day in 1922, when the soft-spoken banker in the Shattuck home on Washington square, New York, turned with a snarl upon his employees, and blew sharply on a whistle.

The astonished banker, his wife and four loyal servants were driven down to the cellar at the pistol's point. There Murey insulted Mrs. Shattuck vilely. Only the certainty that the apache would not hesitate to kill restrained the white-haired millionaire from violence.

Inside the vault, Shattuck alone kept his head. With a dime's edge and a broken knife, the banker attacked the hinges of the heavy steel door. Loosening the screws with the most difficulty, he pried the door open and tottered, with his wife in his arms, into the cellar, just as every one was on the point of collapse.

From that day, Shattuck swore vengeance upon Murey. He did not talk of it much, but private detective agencies learned quietly that there was no limit to the reward if they could trap the apache.

Murey was heard of first in this country, then in that, hunted day and night, but always eluding pursuit. Shattuck kept on the trail. It led to the Indies, then to Europe, then to Africa. Still the bandit kept ahead of the international police put on his track. Justice became the banker's one aim. Some called it vengeance. Then Murey was trapped. A woman was the leader in the deed—his sweetheart, with whom he kept in touch throughout the flight.

Trapped With Sweetheart. Growing bolder, the bandit came to Paris, or rather to a little villa outside the city, where his sweetheart used to meet him. One day the gendarmes of Paris followed her to the villa and a revolver battle ensued before Murey threw up his hands. One was mortally wounded. First an attempt was made to have the apache king taken to New York, but it was decided the French charges against him were the more serious. The jury found Murey guilty as charged, resisting an officer with violence, which resulted in the fatal wounding of the police. The judge sentenced him to die on the guillotine.

The Shattucks, their long pursuit ended, wrote to Dumergue: "Justice cannot ignore pity. This man has expressed regret for his crimes. We believe he is sincere."

Sought to End Life Where Son Is Buried

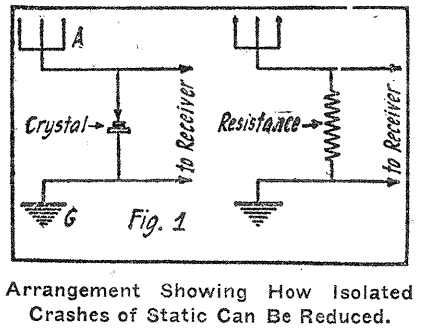

North Bergen, N. J.—Charles Alexander attempted suicide on the grave of his son in Fairview cemetery, according to police, who found his body stretched on the grass-covered mound which indicates the spot of his son's interment. The police state Alexander went to the cemetery and remained at the grave throughout the night. It is said poison was used by the brooding man in his suicidal attempt. Physicians at a local hospital declared he will recover. Edgar was the son's name. Seven years ago, at the age of nine, the boy was killed in a railroad accident.

Reducing Summer Static Nuisance

Simple Methods, Worked Out by Experts, May Be of Aid to Amateurs.

By L. W. HATRY, 5XV

Everyone is trying by the use of various ideas and devices, to eliminate as much as possible static at the smallest cost in signal strength. If the strong signal that is unreadable through heavy static can be worked into a medium signal that is readable through the static left with it, satisfaction will result. So, we leave the signal as strong as possible and leave the static as weak as possible in any of the devices that follow.

Arrangement Showing How Isolated Crashes of Static Can Be Reduced.

Two old methods embody either the use of the crystal or the grid leak (high resistance) and are fairly effective with most receivers, although they will not work with all. The first method consists in shunting the crystal across the aerial and ground binding posts of the receiver (see Fig. 1), and adjusting it for best static reduction point. The crystal should be a carborundum with a heavy, firm contact, so that once adjusted it may be depended upon for a time.

Benefit of Loose-Coupling. Loose-coupling properly handled is also of great benefit in bettering static-signal ratio and, if the coupling control on your receiver is unused, an excellent method of eliminating static noises is being neglected.

Large Inductance Connected in Ground Circuit Also Reduces Static.

Method that, at least, works. The coil L may be any large inductance that is wound with a couple of hundred or more turns. It should be preferably of heavy wire (No. 18 to 20) and an ordinary type of coil; bank or honeycomb would coils will not work well. Fig. 3 shows another connection of the coil that brings in more QRN and stronger signals; the weather should determine which is used. In operation there is a proper jail record kept and is kept properly filed and does it comply with section 2551, compiled laws, 1915?—Yes.

ing the receiver on one of the afflicted nights do not work at the edge of oscillation, as is usually the case. Instead, go noticeably deeper into oscillation. This reduces the volume of the C. W. chirp, but it also deadens QRN very effectively.

Better Static Signal Ratio. A single turn of wire used as the receiver primary with no further coupling or loading devices, instead of the usual tuned circuit, will give a better static-signal ratio. For the best results it is necessary for the receiver secondary and its components to be constructed from the low-loss viewpoint. Also, the antenna should have its fundamental wave outside of the range of the tuner or the wave range.

Will Reduce Static While Allowing Strong Signals to Come Through.

A low antenna, not too long, nor of too great capacity, is helpful in avoiding static. A good specification is 20 to 25 feet high and 75 to 100 feet long, or less. It should be of the single-wire type and of low resistance. The simplest way to achieve the low resistance is to make the single wire of several strands of large wire, say No. 14, twisted together and soldered every two feet.—Radio News.

How Ants "Seu" Leaves

Edward Step, F. L. S., in the London Sphere, tells of a little red ant, widely distributed through all of the countries of the Far East and South, which constructs shelters for its domestic cattle among the branches of trees, uniting a number of leaves together by means of silken threads.

Although stress has been placed on the encouraging spread of Esperanto, it is not possible for the average person to believe that a universal tongue, absolutely artificial in its origin, ever will attain general use, or even make enough progress to facilitate understanding among the peoples of different speech.

"When is a woman middle-aged?" is a question capable of many answers, according to the country in which the matter is being discussed, and the number of years to the credit of the people discussing it.

Three Immigrants Watched

A number of our standard trees are importations from distant corners of the world. Some specimens were brought in years ago by seafarers who, admiring a tree's beauty, would bring home a young shoot and try to make it grow.
