He earned the award while serving as a machine gunner with Company A, 2d Battalion, 39th Infantry, on a reconnaissance inforce mission in Long An force mission in Long An province.

When part of his platoon became pinned down by intense enemy fire, Specialist Costor—then a private—voluntarily exposed himself to the enemy in order to circle their position. Carrying his machine gun through rice paddies and swamps, he arrived at the rear of their position only to find his weapon had been jammed by mud.

Under heavy fire, he managed to clear his weapon and bring effective fire on the enemy.

Specialist Costor entered the service June 19, 1967, and took training at Fort Polk, La., and Fort Benning, Ga., before going overseas.

Planning Night For Students Set Thursday

The annual Educational Planning Night will be held at Ord High School Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7 p.m. Purpose of the program is to acquaint high school juniors and seniors and their parents with the programs offered by various educational institutions which will be represented.

The evening program will consist of three periods in which students and parents may attend sessions of schools they are pri-marily interested in.

Representatives of some 30 col-leges and vocational schools plan to participate in the program.

They will be representing academic colleges throughout the state as well as nursing and medical schools. Other institutions to be represented include beauty and barber schools, business schools, and vecational, technical schools.

In addition, members of the various armed forces and local representatives of the U.S. Department of Agriculture will present materials and information on careers in their respective fields.

Students and parents from Ord and surrounding towns have been invited to participate.

Two Cars Demolished in Collision; Quartet Recovering From Injuries

scribed by her doctor as "much simproved and coming along fine" after sustaining numerous serious injuries in a two car automobile crash Friday.

Mrs. Harkness, 44, was the driver of a car which collided with one driven by Mrs. Bill Ryschon, 24, about 12:30 p.m. Both cars were totally demolished.

Also injured was Mrs. Ryschon, who sustained bruises and a cut on her lower leg that required four stitches to close; her five-week old son, Randy, who suf-fered two fractured ribs and a torn lung tissue; and Sam Gilki-son, 23, who suffered scalp lacer-chest that caused some internal hemorrhaging.

Gilkison was a passenger in the Ryschon car. He was a service friend of Mr. Ryschon and was visiting the family while on leave. He was also recuperating from a broken ankle received in a truck accident while assigned to Qui Nhon, Vietnam. He was released from the hospital Tuesday and returned to the Ryschon home for further recuperation. His home is in Manchester, Ohio.

Mrs. Harkness was injured more seriously, apparently be-cause she was thrown from her automobile through a barbed wire fence. Dr. Murray Markley said

County Extension Office Draws Attention As Consumer Information Headquarters

County Agent

During this political year of 1968 everyone has been talking about "headquarters" — campaign headquarters, candidate headquarters, To Mrs. Homemaker, though, there is a special headquarters she can't forget during Nebraska Extension Consumer Information Weck (Nov. 11-16). This is her local county extension office — her consumer informa-tion headquarters.

In political headquarters there is always something to shout about, and consumer information headquarters is no exception. Homemakers who have utilized the services of their own extension service are quick to praise the consumer information that is available right at their fingertips. It is as close as the nearest telephone, mailbox, or the coun-ty extension office itself.

Consumer information head-quarters offers homemakers no propaganda literature, but simply brochures and pamphlets with the latest facts in the areas of home management, foods, clething and home furnishings pre-paied by specialists in the field.

Personal service is another feature of the county extension of-fice. No buying or consumer question is too small or insignifi-cant to merit the attention of the agent. If he or she does not have the answer at fingertip, he will consult extension specialists at the University of Nebraska who are familiar with latest research findings.

Sheritf Clarence Fox, who investigated the accident, estimated that the Ryschon car was traveling 50 miles an hour and the Harkness car 40 miles per hour prior to the impact. He measured skid marks of approximately 27 yards in both direc-tions. Weather conditions were perfect at the time of the accident; however, the intersection

The sheriff said Mrs. Harkness would probably have not been injured severely had she been

None of the Ryschon passengers were wearing seatbelts either; however, the baby was strapped into an infant seat, and that was credited with perhaps that was tredited with perhaps saving its life. The seat was thrown under the front dash-board but the support it provid-ed kept injuries to the child

Mrs. Don Wright, a registered nurse, has helped care for the baby since the accident.

The injuries to Mrs. Harkness were complicated by an asthma attack at the scene. Dr. Markley said it was aggravated by the grass and dust that she lay in after being thrown from the car. He said there was some concern for a while that she might lose her right foot, but that fear had abated.

County electors gave Martin a sweeping vote of confidence as they cast 1,645 ballots for him and only 696 for his opponent. The big margin helped Martin to a sizeable overall victory and ina sizeable overall victory, and in-sured that Nebraska's three con-gressmen will all be Republicans.

In local races Rudolf Kokes received solid backing from his home county in a bid to return to the state legislature. The vote was 1,389 for Kokes and 730 for opponent Fred Frost. It helped him to take a comfortable, but not one-sided, overall triumph over his foe from Wolbach.

Their 41st Legislative District race had been probably the most bitterly contested of the local scraps.

In another oft-discussed con-test, the county apparently chose to remain in Educational Service Unit #13. The vote was 1,074 against exclusion and 729 for. The 1st Ward's 509 votes wasn't likely to change that.

In a surprisingly close contest, North Loup turned down a peti-tion to sell liquor by the drink. The measure failed by only 16 votes, 119 to 103.

Alfred Burson retained his spot on the County Board of Supervisors by defeating Edmund heav ran Huffman, 177 to 148, Carson Rogers was unopposed in his bid for reelection, and Earl Nelson topped Bill Voyek handily in vote.

The United Methodist Church of Constock was the scene for the Oct. 26 wedding of Robin Erikson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Erikson, and Bruce novie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Hovie, all of Comstock.

Rev. Robert Frescoln per-formed the 2 o'clock afternoon ceremony in the presence of 70 guests. Bouquets of white, yellow and bronze mums with autumn leaves decorated the altar. Karen Hickman of Kearney sang "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. James Riddle was organist. Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared wearing a floor-length modified A - line gown fashioned of ivory faille trimmed in Victorian lace at the wrists and mandarin neckline. The large neckline bow and floorlength streamers in the back were also fashioned of faille. Miss Erikson's veil of ivory illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls and iridescents. Yellow poms and burnt orange carnations formed her bouquet.

Serving as maid of honor was Barbara Hansen of Ord. She wore a mint green, A-line, empire floor - length gown and coat ensemble and carried a yellow mum wand tied with a shower of burnt orange ribbon.

Roxanne Erikson, sister of the bride, was ring bearer. She wore a burnt orange A-line frock trimmed with lace at the wrists and neckline.

John D. Fisher of Kearney served as best man. The guests were seated by Gary Treptow, cousin of the bride, and John Hovie, brother of the bride-

Ord JC-Ettes Plan Projects, Set Goals Thirteen members attended the

Monday evening meeting of the Ord JC-Ettes at the Veterans Club. Plans were made to hold a dessert smorgasbord for the December meeting and a gift grab bag. The Bosses Night banquet was discussed, and Pat Kokes volunteered to serve as chairman of the decorations committee.

The Preacher Says:

"It is possible to read the Bible as a lawyer reads a will or as the heir reads the will. This Sunday I will be preaching on the subject, SINAI; THE MOUNT OF LAW. I will ask and then answer these two questions: WHAT DID GOD DO HERE? WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO US TODAY? In these two questions you will learn that you are the heir, and what the benefits of you will learn that you are the heir, and what the benefits of being that heir are: You are invited to be present at 11:00 a.m. for our services. Come and journey with us from the crossing of the Red Sea to the giving of the Ten Commandments."

Stellar guard Rick Klauz puts the stopper on Ord's Mike Winterfeld after an eight-yard pickup in last week's game at Lexington. The host Minutemen put the stopper on all the Chants, holding them to five first downs. They also scored in the last minute of play to take a 7-6 victory.

Chants Discover Lexington Contest Extends Just One Minute Too Long

Most coaches would be happy to have the opposition facing third and 12 from their own 31were 6.0 and there were only 3 minutes and 35 seconds to play.

But Coach Dave VanNordheim of Ord was not optimistic as he paced the sidelines Friday night at Lexington.

"I hate these third and 12 situations. I just hate 'em' the uations, I just hate 'em," the veteran coach said to no one in particular as Lexington lined up for its third-down play.

Alis fears were justified. Late-blooming Bob Nisley, shifting over from his tailback position to quarterback, hit sophomore and Mark Wortman with an 11yard pass that brought up fourth and one. Nisley sneaked for the yardage and then guided his Minutemen to their only touch-down, which was scored with 49 seconds to play Rick Klaux hick seconds to play. Rick Klauz kicked the extra point, and a valiant Old effort to obtain its biggest win of the season was doomed.

Until that series Ord had been in command since scoring its only touchdown with 27 seconds to go in the first half. A bad snap-back from center, which ruined 10 first downs. a chance to kick the extra point, proved the difference.

With the victory Lexington continued its suddenly triumphant ways. The Minutemen lost their first three games of the year but have come on to tie two and win three. Ord's mark dropped to 26.

The Chanticleers were penalized only three times for a total of 15 yards. But two of those fiveyarders were costly. One of them put the Chants in a first and 15 hole from which they could not recover after they had moved to the Lexington 12-yard line early in the fourth quarter. That drive eventually ended with Ron Bredthauer trying an unsuccessful field goal from outside the Lexington 15. from outside the Lexington 15yard line.

The other penalty gave the Minutemen five, hard yards be-tween the Ord five and 10-yard lines on their winning drive. They had earned a first-and-goal at the 10 when an Ord lineman jumped offsides. From the five Lexington moved in on three plays, with fullback Rick Strohmyer getting the last yard off his own right

Both defenses were outstanding. Lexington limited Ord to one first down from scrimmage during the opening half, and to a total of night. But they couldn't take advantage of the opportunities proferred except for their one scoring punch.

That time Tim Markley returned a kick to the Lexington 45-yard line, three yards further downfield than the scrimmage line from which it had been booted. On third and one from the 36, Markley hurled a 35-yard halfback option pass to Bredthauer, who carried the ball to the Lexington one. The pigskin was in ington one. The pigskin was in the air most of that distance, and Bredthauer made a fantastic catch. Three Lexington defenders surrounded him as he shot sky-ward and claimed the ball with a grasp solid enough to withstand the jar of any defensive man when he came back to earth. The Minutemen pulled him down immediately, but from there Dick Janda sneaked across in two tries

The Markley - to - Bredthauer play was the same one that had worked for a touchdown the previous week against Broken Bow. That score was erroneously attributed to the Janda-to-Bredthauer combination in last week's

In the second half the Minutemen reached Ord's 25 once and the 23 another time. But both times the Chant defense successfully protected its honor.

Ord made only the one serious second half threat. Just before Bredthauer missed his field goal try, Bruce Hurlbert, had dropped a pass as he ran free in the left flat. Had he caught the ball, he appeared to have a touchdown appeared to have a touchdown sacked up as the Minuteman de-fense was going the other way to cover Bredthauer.

Parents Scheduled For Honors

A disappointing 1968 football season will be closed with Par-ents' Night Friday at the Ord field.

At Football Finale

Parents of this year's players will be honored in a ceremony starting at 7:15 p.m. Grand Island

Northwest will provide gridiron opposition for the Chanticleers

15 minutes later.

The Northwest team is characterized as big and fast with a multi-formation pro-offense. The multi-formation pro offense. The team's 1968 record is only so-so, but among its victories is a tri-umph over once-beaten Hastings St. Cecilia.

Ord takes a 2-6 record into the final fray, but comes off its finest defensive effort of the year. That was a 7.6 loss last week to Lexington.

The Chants will close their year like they started it — crip-pled. Dick Janda is a doubtful player because of pulled liga-ments after starting all year at ments after starting all year at quarterback, starting tailback Steve Turek will be slowed by an ankle injury suffered two weeks ago "He can't cut on it," Coach Dave VanNordheim reports), and second-team fullback Jim Novot-ny will be out with an ankle in-

Bill Klanecky broek a hand before the first game of the season, and it seems to Coach VanNordheim like that's the way it's been all season.

"We haven't gotten any breaks but the wrong kind," he said Wednesday.

Among the more successful pheasant hunters on opening day Saturday was this quartet of Tennessee-ans. Left to right are Britt Brown, L. H. Hensley, Charles E. Amos, and D. F. Bennett. All are from Kingston, Tenn., except Amos who hails from Lenoir City. It was their first time to hunt Nebraska, and they were well satisfied with their opening day's haul. Bennett said he hunted last year in Michigan and got four birds in five days. The season continues through Jan. 19 in this part of the state.

No deer yet, but Dale Hubel has his first coyote of this hunting season. The predator was downed early Monday morning on the C. E. Gilroy place five miles east of town. Hubel got it with a bow and arrow while deer hunting. He said a good-sized fawn came by a fast lope, and the coyote came shortly thereafter in hot pursuit. He slew the animal, which he described as a "medium-sized female," with one shot. The arrow shows teeth marks where the coyote bit it as it tore through her body. as it fore through her body.

It is therefore necessary to attack these pests where they congregate. Spray around foundations, basement window casements, foundation plantings, and even out in the yard for a distance of 5 to 10 feet. Insecticides of choice are: Chlordane 45 percent emulsifiable concentrate, mixed at the rate of 4/5 (34 ounces) pint per gallon of wa-

About all we can do to eliminate them once they are in the house is to vacuum them up and dispose of them or swat them,

A side benefit from spraying the lawn 5 to 10 feet around the house with Chlordane or Sevin is that this will help control crickets, ground beetles, clover mites, and some roaches before they gain entrance into the house.

Millipedes or thousand - legged worms usually feed on decaying organic materials in lawns and organic materials in lawns and gardens. This time of the year they will enter basements or ground floors of buildings. Dusting with 5 to 10 percent Sevin or 5 percent malathion dust around the foundation will help control them. This practice will also help keep down the invasion of sow bugs.

Ordinary mouse traps will usually control mice in the home or garage. The traps can be baited with many kinds of attractive food. Bacon tied to the trigger is a good bait. Peanut butter, butter, flour, small pieces of bread, or even cheese can be used. Use several mouse traps in infested rooms and in the gar-age or other buildings near the

Culworm Damage Observed

Inspection of a number of corn fields this past week revealed that some corn ears had been damaged by western bean cut-

· Damage was observed in one field in the Elyria area and saveral fields in the Mira Valley area, and leads us to believe the infestation, although light, might be wide-spread throughout the county.

David Keith, University of Nebraska extension entomologist, inspected some of the damaged ears that had been collected. His observations led him to believe that the damage was caused by western bean cutworm. However, he is not able to positively iden-tify the cause without actually seeing the causitive agent, and would not at this time designate Valley County as an infested area with western bean cutworm. We are, however, informing you of these observations at this time, because if this insect is present in the county this year we will need to take necessary steps to prevent damage to our 1969 corn crop.

The University of Nebraska Entomology Department has been working with methods to control western bean cutworm for the past three years. Certain sprays at the proper time have proven effective in reducing damage caused by the insect. However, more work is needed and as information becomes available it will be included in this column.

Fall Is Fine To Visit Chalk Mine

One of Nebraska's newest and most popular scenic attractions is an abandoned chalk mine, located alongside Highway 11; in the winding North Loup Valley between Scotia and Cotesfield.

Crowned by Happy Jack Hill, the mine is expected to attract more than 10,0000 visitors annually. It was opened as a public park last spring.

Summer is probably the best time to visit the mine's interior. The subterranean dampness provides a welcome relief from the scorching Nebraska sun.

But late fall is also a fine time to visit, the mine, and especially to climb the hill which towers above it. For Happy Jack provides a view of the river valley which is unexcelled in this part of Nebraska. It's especially beautiful when the many hues of autumn decorate the surrounding countryside.

countryside.

The mine has been closed for more than 30 years, having been shut down for good during the depression years. However, mineral rights are still held by the United Mineral Products Co. of Cmaha.

Experts estimate that the chalk

Experts estimate that the chalk deposit inside is between six and seven feet thick. The vein runs horizontally through the hill, between a soapy sand formation and thick layers of hard silica.

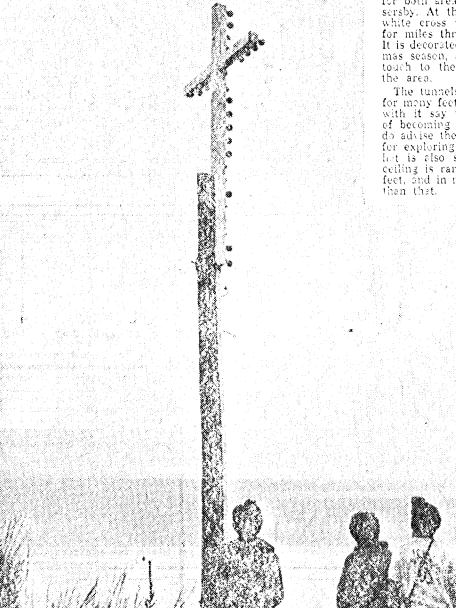

The mine was opened in 1877, and at one time there were more than 70 uses for its product. They included as cattle and chicken feed, fertilizer, road bed, and polish for silverware, rings, brass, and cooking utensils.

Railroad ties now make the walk to the top of the hill easier for both area residents and passersby. At the summit stands a white cross which can be seen for miles throughout the valley. It is decorated during the Christmas seasen, adding a men-made touch to the natural beauty of the area.

The tunnels of the mine wind for many feet, but those familiar with it say there is no chance of becoming lost. However, they do advise the use of a flashlight for exploring its depths. A hard lost is also suggested since the ceiling is rarely higher than six feet, and in many places it's less than that.

Hilltop is perfect for quiet moment of meditation.

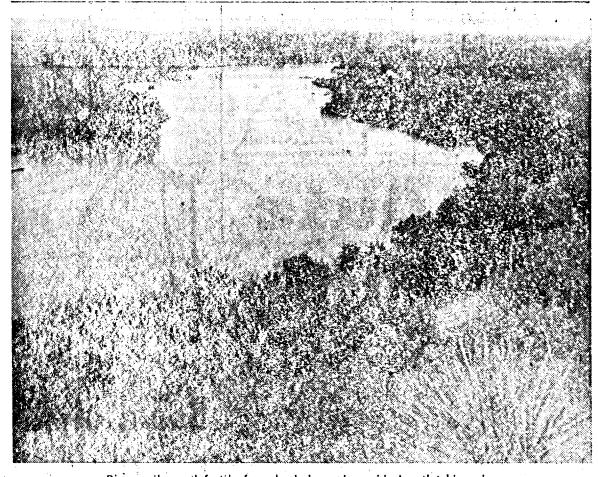

Various tunnel openings provide photographer's wonderland.

Actions Speak Louder

Way back there two months ago at Chicago - and even regardless of what either of the two Presidential nominees might do or say, only one man could have any control over the events that might shape the outcome of this election.

How right they were!

Lyndon Johnson's complete bombing cessation — whether politically motivated or not — was almost the boost Hubert Humphrey needed to put him over the top, and it was ample evidence of the power the man in office can wield if he chooses. Now that the peace talks have been delayed indefinitely, the arguments will rage even more intensely as to how much the President's bombing halt was based on political motives.

Some Support for LBI's Action Certainly there is reason to be suspected. It would appear to be more than mere coincidence that a war which had raged for four years could suddenly be brought under control on such short notice.

The actions of the South Victnamese government in refusing to go along with the talks of course casts even greater doubt on the credibility of Johnson's motives.

Yet there is some evidence to support the President's posi-

It's general knowledge among those who make it their business to be informed on such matters that the attrition rate of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong has been considerable during recent months. That, more than any sudden decision is to be kind and benevolent, is why they have failed to mount any ma-jor offensives during recent months. Informed persons say the Communists have been beaten so badly in large-force engage-ments that they have teyerted to the small-force guerrilla the-tics that were so successful for them during the early part of the war. And they're not averse to talking while they fight when they know their foe is an impatient one who might make unusual concessions in an effort to be tid of the whole niess:

Communists Wanted Humphrey

It also stands to reason that the Communists would have preferred a Humphrey in the White House rather than a Nixon. They might therefore have been willing to make some concession to get the bombing stopped and sway the election in Hum-

Whether this is true or not, our government should have gotten its story straight with its South Vietnamese allies before proceeding on such a monumental course.

The only real surprise in the South Vietnamese position is the tough stance taken by President Thieu. It is generally known that his vice-president, Nguyen Cao Ky, had questioned the haltthe bombing course all along.

In an article written while the cessation was still being considered, Paul Scott said that Ky had vigorously denounced the concessions required by the United States as "no concessions at

What Concessions? Of the demand to re-establish the Demilitarized Zone, Ky

"Communist troops cannot live or fight in the DMZ now because of U.S. bombings and shelling. Where is the concession?" Of the demand that the Communists refrain from attacking South Vietnam's cities, Ky stated:

"Hanoi has tried to attack the cities several times in recent months, but our forces with the help of Americans have beaten them back and defeated them with huge losses. It is ridiculous to consider this a concession by the North Vietnamese." He also requested the names of specific cities that the Communists had agreed not to attack, rather than accepting a general statement that they would stop their assaults.

Finally, Ky suggested that Hanoi be required to announce its concessions publicly as the U.S. and South Victuain were having to announce their's, 'so the whole world would know the terms." the terms."

Thieu, on the other hand, has in the past usually gone along with U.S. desires. It was a distinct surprise to see him take such an adament stores.

Whatever results now, both Democrats and Republicans must admit that it made for a much more interesting evening

Spend It or Lose It

The United States Chamber of Commerce cites the case of a bewildered Connecticut school district which found it was a lot easier to get federal funds than to give them back.

The Chamber quoted Rep. Thomas J. Meskill as telling how the school district received $3,744 in federal aid for a project to help educationally deprived children. It had spent $2,113,50 when officials decided the program was not fulfilling its purpose.

So they tried to return the balance of $1,630.50, but found no takers in Washington. The money remained in a Connecticut

"It's obvious that government red tape continues to flourish. at a time when every red cent is needed to hold down the federal deficit and trim a shocking $184.4 billion budget," the Chamber concluded.

It might have gone further.

1 For example, when the fiscal year ends for the military services, it's a generally accepted practice to spend any excess money still available, whether there's a need or not. The feeling is that otherwise the budget makers will see that a particular agency did not use the amount it had been allotted the previous year, so its appropriation sum will be reduced for the coming

Board of Regents Okays Huge Hike For University of Nebraska Budget

The Nebraska Press Assn. LINCOLN - While stating that it was painful to do, the Board of Regents nevertheless put its stamp of approval on a University of Nebraska budget request totaling almost $175 million

Main new projects the university hopes to finance are library expansion and a life science building on the city campus, a home economics facility on the east campus, completion of a basic science facility at the medical center, and a music-speech facility and classroom faculty office building at UNO. In addition to the new responsi-bilities for UN-O, Hardin said the university during the coming biennium would have to finance the operation of a new major addition to the university hospital and the new clinics at the medical center.

The proposed budget, he said, also "envisions an enrollment of well over 33,000 full and part-time students on all campuses by 1970, and additions to the faculty and staff to serve them."

According to the proposal, faculty salaries will be raised 9 percent each of the two years of the biennium, on the average.

Something Different

The Pretty Little Red Fellows

Len Cronk, young Ord attorney, has been enjoying a good laugh at himself while he suffers, this past month. He saw some attractive red foliaged plants.

"Aha" he thought, "how pretty they would be beside my fine new house."
So he hied himself to County Extension Agent Schade and asked what they were, and for instructions to plant them. John didn't know what they were, but they were so bright and gay he liked them too. Len went home and set them out, several dozen of them, doing a good job of molding the soil up around them, and watering. He was pleased with himself until the County Agent came rushing to him to declare that the pretty little red plants were POISON IVY.

By then Mr. Cronk didn't need to be told, for he was breaking out furiously. Yes, he is still scratching.

After removing the offending plants of course.

An unlikely item I learned this week: people who repair the caning on chairs charge by the HOLE.... (this reminds me of our government which pays for things not done nor used, like idle pastures).

It seems the charge is 15 cents per hole, when you wish a new bottom put in a cherished old chair. Or, if you live in Chicago, 25 cents per hole. I knew this work could be engaged, but never had I deliberated over how charges would be set.

When you read this the election will be over and we will likely know the worst . . . or the best. Whatever it is, however the election comes out, I think that I won't be the only one to heave a sigh of relief. I'm heartily tired of all this campaigning, the endless claims and counter-claims. Now we'll see how many promises are kept.

New President Ain't Seen Nothin' If He Thinks Campaign Was Bad

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Al Dunbar told the fellers at the conservation office the other day that the new administration coming in reminds him of a baseball story from way back. This manager got so mad at his short-stop fer making errors he went out to show the short stop how out to show the short stop how to play. The manger dropped the first ball hit to him and got madder than ever with his player.

"You got this position so messed up that nobody can play it," he said. Al allowed as how our next President was going to be in the same fix that manager was in. He said the federal guvernment was in such a mess he's afraid nobody can run it. Fer instance, said Al, if our new President don't cut back on federal spending both be called our new president ing, he'll be called ever name in the book. But if he cuts back on any federal services and benefits, he'll be called the same names. All in all, said Al, he'd as soon be elected guest of honor at a hanging as to have to step into Johnson's job in January. From the poor President's uary. Even the new President's problems has got problems, was Al's words.

Sac Walford got the floor and announced there was one critical issue the politicians didn't bring up during the campaign. One issue that ain't been give near the attention it needs, said Sac, is lead. He was of the opinion too many people in this country are suffering from lead settled in the seat of their pants. We're getting to the place, he said, we can't recognize our lead problem as old-fashioned laziness. We call it by a whole string of polite names, but all the time more and more people are catching the disease. The guvernment has now got the country divided into the givers and the takers are fast getting into the majority. Sac allowed it was time the new administration time the new administration started to even up the load.

Al got control of the floor again and he allowed as how we got too much protest in this country and not enough produce. He said all the people waiting fer handouts and suffering from fer handouts and suffering from lead in the pants reminded him of the feller that was put in a room and told to find his way out. The feller tried pulling the bars off the window, digging up the floor, and butting through a wall, but he didn't think to try the door that was left unlocked. We got too many records in this We got too many people in this country looking fer ways through the walls instead of open doors, was Al's words.

With Al speaking in them parables again, and Sac carrying on about the lead disease, I figure, Mister Editor, the session at the conservation office was a taste of the advice the new President will be getting, and I'm agreed with Al that I'd rather be the guest of honor at a public lynching than to be sitting in the next President's chair. track of Communist China's military aid to North Vietnam, were stunned by Ismail's nuclear weapons report.

Although there have been recent reports that North Korean pilots are in Southern China training with Russian built bombers capable of dropping nuclear bombs, the U.S. has no hard evidence that Peking has offered evidence that Peking has offered any atomic weapons to Hanoi.
Also, American intelligence officials seriously doubt the capability of Peking to manufacture factical nuclear weapons. Because of the highly complex military technology and prohibitat tary technology and exorbitant expenditure, Russia is believed to be the only Communist nation that can produce tactical atomic weapons.

All U.S. officials so far have been able to learn from the Malaysian government is that Ismail's speech was cleared by top officials and that the information in it was believed to be accurate.

Australia may be the next na-tion to announce plans to seek its own atomic weapons.

Defense Minister Allen Fairhall hinted at this possibility in a recent Australian speech which Johnson Administration officials are now carefully studying.

In addressing Australia's electrical industry, Fairhall stated:

"I am interested in the possibilities of atomic reactors to probabilities of atomic reactors to pro-bilities of atomic reactors to provide ever-increasing quantities of fower at decreasing cost, as well as the fissionable produls on which the future security of this country might well depend."

According to Australian diplofer John C. Gorton approved Fairhall's address. They also say that Gorton will make an important duclear policy statement before the general election in Australia next year. Since 1965 the Australian

"Choose Ye this Day whom ye will serve" On Tuesday, the American people were given the privilege of choosing who they wanted to be their President. Those who exercised this privilege went to the polls, took a ballot and then in the seclusion of the voting booth marked their X for their checks condidates.

chosen candidates. What a great honor it is to be able to vote for candidates of individual preference! But what a tragedy it is when able and qualified voters neglect the most cherished right of this nation. It has often been said and I think it quite right, "the person who doesn't vote, doesn't deserve to live in freedom." Although your personal preference might not have been the nation's preference we are charged by law to faithfully support the nation's choice: AS LONG AS HE REMAINS TRUE TO THE CONSTITUTION. And even then there are proper channels in which to remove such a character from office if he disregards the constitution.

But speaking of voting; each individual should vote in the national election but in the spiritual election everyone must Joshua when speaking to the Israelites said, "choose ye whom they would serve. They could vote to follow God or to follow Satan. But this one thing they had to do. They had to make that decision and in doing so they cast their vote.

You also, must cast a vote in a spiritual election. Satan has cast his vote for your soul. Jesus Uhrist has cast his vote for your soul. The score is tied. No one else has legal right to vote except you. You are the only one who can vote and break that tie. You must decide to vote for either Satan or for Christ.

To refuse to vote is to choose defeat. If you are not willing to vote for Christ by accepting and living for him you do not deserve eternity in Heaven, you do not deserve the promise of Salvation, you do not deserve to live in the city of Heaven where a the gates are lined with pearls and streets are paved with gold.

There is no need in your fretting over the matter though, for if you do not deserve these things, be ye certain that God is not going to bestow these things upon you and even then they will be given by his grace.

You hold the deciding vote. You cast that vote by how you

You hold the deciding vote. You east that vote by how you live your life. No one else can east it for you. To whom are you going to vote for? Christ or Satan? DO REMEMBER TO VOTE FOR CHRIST IS TO VOTE FOR YOURSELF AND TO VOTE FOR SATAN IS TO VOTE AGAINST YOURSELF!

People Will Vote On Nursing Home

December on whether or not a city owned nursing home will be established here.

The judicial committee of the City Council reported at its November meeting that a sufficent number of legal signatures had been submitted requesting such a vote.

In other action the councilmen agreed to a hike in gas rates requested last month by representatives of Kansas Nebraska Natural Gas Co., Inc.

The rates will average 4 to 5 percent for domestic users and 7 percent for compagnish users.

7 percent for commercial users, according to James Asbury, chief engineer at the company's Has-tings office. He was present at both the October and November meetings and agreed verbally on behalf of his firm to pay all legal publication costs in connection with the increased prices.

If the nursing home issue passes, the facility will be financed by bonds which the city will guarantee. Dr. Glen Auble, chairman of the steering committee which is requesting the vote, told council members that he expects the nursing home. he expects the nursing home to be self-supporting and to pay for itself in 20 years. He emphasized that the city will be out no construction expense in such a situation

A definite date for the special election has not been set. Dr. Auble said a 68 bed facility costing approximately $392,000 will be requested. in 20 years, as we expect them to be, Ord will have a nursing home at no expense to the city," he said. He indicated that patients in the home, if it is established, will pay an average of $208 per month at current wage and price levels. Patients in double rooms will pay slightly less than that, while those in single rooms will pay a little more.

Dr. Auble also appeared at this month's meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce "to en-list members as home mission-aries to go out and start talking."

little more.

He said some people may be confused by a statement which must appear on the ballot. It says that in the opinion of bond consul, "These bonds are valid obligations of the village, payable from advalorem taxes levied without limitations against all the taxable property within the limits of the village."

Such a statement appeared on such a statement appeared on the ballot when the nursing home at Campbell was approved, and Dr. Auble said he assumed something similar would be re-quired here.

However, he said he wanted to point out that the ballot went on to state: "While the bends of this issue are a general obligation debt of the village, village officials, based upon the advice of their consultants, expect that the revenues of the numerical borne will be ada. of the nursing home will be adequate to pay the principal and interest on these bonds, making them self-liquidating." Thus, Dr. Auble said, the city is required to guarantee the bonds with tax revenues; how-ever, he does not believe that such revenues will ever be need-

Honors Go Elsewhere In Improvement Contest

Neither Ord nor North Loup was successful in its quest for a top prize in Nebraska's 1968 Community Improvement pro-

Prize winners were announced Friday at an awards banquet in Lincoln. The contest was designed to encourage community improvement in such diverse greas as beautification, cultural enrichment, and industrial development. It was sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Ec-onomic Development.

North Loup competed in Class I, for communities up to 800 in population. Top prize winners in that category were Pilge first; Stuart, second; and Coleridge, third. They received $500, $375, and $250, respectively, as did the top three entrants in the other classes.

Cambridge was the winner in Class II, for communities between 800 and 2,000 in population. Wisner was second, and Rushville third.

Ord competed in Class III with other towns between 2,000 and 7,000 in population. Ralston was first in that category with York second and Gordon third.

In Class IV, for cities between 7,000 and 30,000 in population, North Platte was first, Beatrice second, and South Sioux City, certificates of recognition were presented to each competing city's chairman at a moon luncheon preceding the awards banquet. Dr. F. J. Osentowski was chairman of the Ord program and assemble by the contilinate from Ord and North Loup were the only communities from this area participating in the competition.

Besides the overall winners, prizes were awarded for top performance in six individual areas. Those winners were:

Parks and recreation - Seward;
Community wide beautification — Ralston;
Tourism and special events —
Cozad.

Downtown improvement - Mil-

Industrial sites — Gering; Cultural enrichment - Beatrice.

Each participating community prepared a brochure showing its achievements during the past year, and those of the winners were displayed at the awards banquet.

"Some of those books were out of this world," Dr. Osentowski said Monday. "Beatrice, for example, had one six inches thick." The Ord chairman said he thinks a greater segment of the community should be involved in the 1969 project, and he plans to work toward that end.

"We still have some great projects coming up, such as comple-tion of the Elks Club and possibly a new nursing home," he said, "and some of the other communities may be running out of material."

What Can I Do With My Life?

There are four things, and only four things, that a person can do with his life, is an interesting assertion by Dr. Joseph Fort Newton in his autobiography. Dr. Newton says each man has the choice of four ways his life may go.

First, he can run away from it, or try to, as Jonah the prophet did in the Bible account. Second, he can run along with life, hunt with the pack, think with the herd, in obedience to the phrase, "Everybody's doing it. Why shouldn't I?" (We could suggest this may be the very reason why he should not do it, if he has any standards or any character.) Third, he can take hold of life with singleness of purpose, and submitting himself to discipline, can run life to some end. Fourth, he can give himself up utterly in self-surrender to a Cause or a Person and let the Cause or the Person run his life. son and let the Cause or the Person run his life.

If we were to be able to accurately measure the lives of those around its, we would find the majority of people "running along with life," adapting themselves like the chameleon and other plants and animals who "change color" according to environment. They take on the complexion of their surroundings, molded by society, not its molders. The Bible calls for Christians to "be transformed"... not conformed" to the standards of the world around us. (Romans 12).

the individual who finds life worth while has discovered the adventure of the fourth thing to do with life. Even when we see one who has given his life to a misguided or wrong philosophy, such as athiestic Communism, we see a happiness in the person's life as he works completely for what he thinks is a good Cause. Jesus Christ says we cannot find real satisfaction in life till we are ready to completely and totally surrender life to Him." Jesus said, "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." — Matthew 10:39. To find the true meaning of life is to find God's love and purpose, and then completely let Him run one's life according to His great plan.

Chants Close Dismal Year By Dropping 7th Game

Temperatures in the mid 20s provided an appropriate setting Friday night as the Ord Chanticleers closed a disastrous 2.7

football season.

Just as the game started in 28-degree weather and closed with 24 degree readings, so things started cold football-wise for Ord and ended colder. When the sparse gathering of faithful fans finally got to go home and warre finally got to go home and warm their frozen digits, Ord was on the short end of a 32-7 score.

The final beating was administered by a so-so Grand Island Northwest team that finished with a 5-4 record.

The defeat marked the close of Ord Coach Dave VanNordheim's worst season in 17 years of coach-

But it was Fagan, who played end on offense, that did the most damage. Besides his long kickoff return, the 150 pound senior caught all four of his team's completed passes and turned two of them into touchdowns. into touchdowns.

Sixteen seniors played their last games for the Red and White, and another watched from the sidelines with his broken foot still on the mend. That was Dan Holtz, who suffered the injury following Ord's second game of the season.

Also spending most of their time on the sidelines Friday were Dick Janda and Steve Turek, half the starting backfield most of this year. Janda was hobbling with a knee injury and Turek with an ankle ailment.

Underclassmen Shine While things were dismal enough for Ord fans, there were a few rays of brightness. Some of the biggest were the fine performances turned in by underclassmen who should be back to lend a helping hand next year.

Paul Markowski, for example, had another excellent game at had another excellent game at defensive end, Coach VanNord-heim had lauded the junior for his play at that position the prehis play at that position the previous week against Lexington, and Friday night's showing was no less outstanding.

Also coming up with his top performance of the year was junior Bruce Hurlbert, who stepped in for Turek at the tailback position. tion. Hurlbert gained 66 yards on 13 carries and got the only Ord touchdown with a 34-yard scam per around right end.

Other underclassmen who per Other underclassmen who performed well during the season were Bill Miller, junior linebacker; Bruce Worm, junior guard; Jim Novotny, junior fullback; Bob Peterson and Loren Vancura, sophomore linebackers; and Jim Naeve, sophomore defensive back. Markowski, Miller and Worm were regulars most of the season, while the others saw spot duty and drew some starting assignments.

ed the touchdown on a one-yard sneak after contributing the big play of the drive. That was a 19-yard keeper on third and eight that took the ball to the Ord 16. The Chants battled back, taking advantage of a Northwest fun-ble. Steve Wells recovered it at the Ord 23 after Economic the Ord 32 after Fagan had made

Tim Markley subbed for Janda at quarterback most of the game, and he contributed two big plays that kept the 68-yard drive go-ing. Once he threw to Ron Bredth-auer for 10 yards, and another time he threw to Bredthauer for 12. The last one was on a third-and 12 play.

Hurlbert capped the drive with his sweep, and Bredthauer's kick put Ord ahead, 7-6, with nearly three minutes gone in the sec-ond quarter.

Weakness Exploited
But Northwest took the ensuing kickoff and moved directly downfield to score on a nine-yard Bocka-to-Fagan pass. Two other throws to Fagan, one for 21 yards and the other for 13, helped the drive along. Turek was attempting to cover that area on his injured ankle, and each time the Knights needed third down yardage they picked on him. After the touchdown Markley went in and played the rest of the game, but he too found Fagan a hard

The half ended 13-7, and after a warming spell Ord came out to find things colder than ever. Fagan took the opening kickoff back to the Chant two-yard line before he was ridden down, and on the first scrimmage play Donnie Hinrichs pushed over. The kick by Bob Wiles made it 20-7.

The visitors got another score before the end of the quarter as they drove 57 yards. As has been the case so often this season, it

The following information, con-cerning possible dangers on the horizon for the fed cattle market, is taken from a report by L. H. Simerl, of the University

We are well aware of the fact that fed cattle prices have been running slightly above 1967 lev-els. Despite the large output of beef this past summer, it is felt that these prices will hold near recent values for several weeks. Later this winter, however, we may see the beginning of a change in the price level. The direction of this change is not real clear, though, and it is expected that fed cattle prices will aver that fed cattle prices will average about the same during the next 12 months as they have the

There are, however, some danger spots in the outlook for fed cattle. These include: (1) excessive weight per head; (2) bunched market; (3) increased imports of beef; (4) a general increase in cattle slaughter; (5) greater production of competitive meats; (6) a possible drop in consumer demand. We would at this time like to explore each of these possibilities little further.

Excessive weight—The feeding of cattle to excessive weights is a possibility, but a less likely one now that cattle feeding has largely because the control of the cattle feeding has largely because the cattle feeding has largely become a business of pro-fessionals. The farmer - speculafor who used to feed cattle to "top the market" has pretty well retired from this expensive hobby. Observations of the cattle feeding and marketing practices lead us to believe that average slaughter weight seldom increas-es by more than 30 pounds. We must remember, however, that even this slight increase in slaughter weight would increase beef output by 2 percent. The danger in feeding cattle to heav-ier weights lies in average slaugh ier weights lies in average slaughter weights above 30 pounds per head, since a 2 percent increase in beef output can be absorbed into the regular market channels.

It should be kept in mind that the big danger of excessive slaughter weights is to the owner of the heavy cattle. Generally, he suffers from the high cost of such gains and often from declining prices of prime cattle as well.

Bunched marketing—The disorderly flow of cattle into the market channels is still a hazard. This practice is possibly less haz-ardous now than in former years when most farmers fed out only one lot of cattle each year. The orderly flow of feeders into the feedlots this past summer may be an indication that bunched marketing is not likely to occur in the next few months.

Imports—Imports of beef, like hemlines on skirts have gone just about as high as they can go. Imports are, at the present time, near the level at which quotas could be imposed. It is difficult to believe that exporting countries want to ship so much beef to the U.S. that quotas will need to be imposed.

Increase in cattle slaughter-A general increase in cattle slaughter seems unlikely. There is no indication that farmers and ranchers have been building up their cattle herds by any large amounts. There were some drought areas, but generally most areas have an abundant supply of feed. Therefore, it is not possible that large forced sales will be necessary. The price of feeder cattle and calves has been very good. Therefore, we do not expect a heavy sell-off of herds because of low prices and profits.

Competitive meats—The prossible of the prossible of the profits of the prossible of the profits of the pro

Competitive meats—The prospective supply of competitive meats such as pork, broilers, and turkey is moderate. Pork output is expected to be near 1967 levels during the next few months and up by some 46 percent during the early part of 1969. Broiler production, too, is near the 1967 level. Turkey production, on the other hand, was cut by about 15 percent this year.

Consumer demand—The consumer demand for red meat is holding very strong. Unemployment is at an all-time low. When people have money to spend, and the price of red meat is within the limits of their budget, there will be a demand for beef.

The increase in the income tax and the much talked about cut in government spending has not brought on a recession—at least not yet. We would caution the cattle feeder against taking a lackadaisical attitude toward the possibility of President Johnson's tax increase not affecting the demand for beef. The recession is previously to occur next March very likely to occur next March when millions of taxpayers find that they owe Uncle Sam a lot more than they expected. By looking over the possible hazards put forth, it can be assumed that fed cattle prices should remain quite stable during the next 12 months. There are possibilities, however, of periods of slightly depressed prices on the horizon. on the horizon,

We would caution feeders to not make the mistake of going overboard because of the adequate supply of cheap feed, thus upsetting the tonnage of fed beef on the market by feeding cattle to excessive weights. Controlling the weight of slaughter cattle appears, to be the key to possible favorable profits in the fat cattle business. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lange and family visited Mrs. Clara Lange over the weekend. Robert is em-

Frowns for Some, Smiles for Others -They All Mean Report Cards Are Out

Any extremes on the faces of the younger set this week may be well justified—report cards, came out yesterday.

And for the first time parents of junior high and high school students will be able to tell a lot more about how their children are doing by the reports they bring home. Ord High School has switched to a new type of report card that gives much more in-formation than the old one.

Specifically, the new cards of-fer opportunities for teachers to check 13 separate areas in which students may need improvement. The old cards offered only seven, and even some of them over-lapped.

Actually, the new reports are not cards at all. They are mere-ly sheets of paper and may seem a bit flimsy, but that's no draw-back since they don't have to be returned. Carbon papers on the back insure that essential information is retained on three other similar reports that will be issued at the end of the second.

third, and fourth quarters. In addition, the information is entered by carbon on a card which will remain in the possession of school authorities at all times.

The new reports may scare some parents since they appear at first glance to be a bit complicated, with holes punched around all edges. But boo Norton, principal at the high school, pointed out that the holes merely provide an easier means of sorting for school officials and should not be of concern to the parents. All information indicated by the punched holes is also contained on the cards in writcontained on the cards in written form, he said.

"The only disadvantage I can see to the new reports is that they don't have to be signed by the parents," Norton explained. "The reports are the student's to keep. But we compensate for that in part by mailing all failing reports, insuring that the cards of the student's to the students." least get to the residence."

As in the past high school stu-dents will receive separate eards

State Roads Department Will Switch To Longer-Range Highway Planning

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Assn.

BINCOLN — The State Roads Department will present the 1969 legislature with a six-year program for highway construction, according to the new state engineer. Marvin Nuernberger.

Traditionally, the department has restricted its projection of construction, work to a two-year. construction work to a two-year period. Nuernberger said the long-range outlook will be expanded "so that highway system plenning can be done on a more orderly basis."

orderly basis."

Eventually, he said, 12-year construction programs will be prepared.

The emphasis on planning deeper into the future was recommended by the consulting firm of Ernst & Ernst, which studied the highway department at the request of the legislature.

Nuernberger, who succeeded John Hossack Nov. 1 as state ensincer, said the department has gineer, said the department has completed "an extensive man-power survey." He said every position has been evaluated as to its worth to the department and "adjustments in personnel have been made and will continue

Close Vote Result of Many Factors

The Journal concluded:
"Nixon made unifying the nation his number one priority in his first post-election appearance. There is one constructive way to try to attain it."; Numerous arguments could be offered to refute this position. First, as many have already pointed out, George Wallace certainly leaned more toward Nixon than Humphrey on defense matters. And the combined Nixon-Wallace vote would indicate a sizeable majority preferred the President-elect's position.

Second, to say that the charge of a "security gap" brought about the close election is to ignore many other factors, among

• The effect of President Johnson's late bombing halt.

• The effect of Nixon's refusal to debate.
• The effect of the Democratic party's late doctoring

• The effect of the late labor drive to pull dissident union members back to the Humprhey camp (this was really a major factor considering Wallace's poor showing in labor areas where the polls had predicted he would do well).

The Choices Are Still Nixon's

But regardless of why the election was so close, the end result is that Nixon is the winner and should now be allowed to choose men of his own thinking to serve in key positions. To select liberals as his top advisers simply to promote unity would be more harmful than beneficial, for it would lay the way open for internal dissension as well as external.

The country sorely needs a leader—one who is not afraid to step out front. That has been one of the great shortcomings of Lyndon Johnson during his five years in office; in attempting to satisfy everyone, he has satisfied no one.

satisfy everyone, he has satisfied no one.

By doing what he feels is right, without so much concern as to how it will affect his public image, Nixon can bring a much greater unity to this country than he could by appointing individuals and pursuing policies primarily because he feels they might appeal to one or more interest groups.

The President-elect surprised many by naming Spiro Agnew as his running mate after news stories said the choice had been limited to super-liberals John Lindsay, Charles Percy, and Mark Hatfield. We are confident Mr. Nixon will also assert his leader-ship in selecting a cabinet, and until he does we put no confidence in the rumors that Nelson Rockefeller will be secretary of defense, William Scranton secretary of state, and so on. William Scranton secretary of state, and so on.

Fairer Trials Coming for Military

A little-noticed law was signed into effect last week by President Johnson that should make military justice a bit more just.

The legislation provides bail privileges for the first time to individuals being held by military authorities and, more importantly, creates a system of military judges independent of local

Be Prepared and Stay Alive!

The freezing temperatures of recent days, accompanied by numerous snow flurries, offer proof positive that winter is here. The blizzard season is yet to come, though, and the Quiz offers the following suggestions to help you prepare for that part of the year. They are re-printed from the Civil Defense Reporter. We consider them especially applicable for rural residents or persons who do much traveling.

1. Examine battery - powered equipment. If you have an emergency generator, is it in working order?

2. Put in a full supply of heating fuel. Check your pantry, and stock an extra supply of food. Eliminate any fire hazards. Especially guard against overheated coal or oil burning stoves, fireplaces, heaters, or furnaces.

5. Unless you're in good shape, stay indoors during storms and cold snaps. If you must go out, avoid overexertion. 6. Dress to fit the season. Don't pile on long johns and sweaters, but select loose fitting, lightweight, warm clothing in several layers; which can easily be peeled off and put on again to avoid perspiring and subse-quent chilling.

7. Don't kill yourself shovel-

Maynard had seen in his farm journal where the folks at North Carolina State University had decided a sow makes a poor mother and they had made a machine to replace her.

This mechanical pig mama is called the Autosow, Maynard said, and the science fellers claim it does a better job of feeding and protecting the pigs than their real mama.

1. Stay in the car. You are more likely to be found there than if you go wandering around in a blizzard and become disoriented because of blowing snow. 2. Keep a window open a bit for fresh air. (Freezing wet snow can completely seal you in, and seal out oxygen.)

3. Beware of carbon monoxide, the silent killer. Run the motor and heater sparingly and only with a window open for ventilation.

I may be old-fashioned, but I figure a mama ought to be looking after her young uns more and using the auto less. And I ain't too sure but what this new Autosow won't change the taste of hog meat before they get through with it — change it fer the worse, that is. Of all the misrepresented "truisms" I hear today, one of them is, "You MUST have a college degree." Hog wash!

I won't argue that a college education isn't helpful. But this is still a world of self-made men and women. And every time I hear a professional educator expending the processing of a first pounding the necessity of a "college degree" I laugh inside. (Probably I should laugh openly . . . and then explain myself when I fall prey to the wrath of an educated mind.)

Too much emphasis has been placed on education for education's sake!

We are confronted, statistically, with the failure of school drop-outs and the drag they are on our society. But how often have you seen figures on the "college graduates" that have be-

There are probably thousands upon thousands that have not even gone into the fields that they were trained in as specialists.

Secondly, one of my biggest peeves is that today's schools place little importance on the "pride of a job well done." As any adult will tell you, life's biggest reward is NOT in a monetary gain, but in the knowledge of a job well done. No salary or wage in the world can compensate for the feeling of having done a day's work and done it well.

Her answer:

"We know the price of every-thing and the value of nothing because all values have been carefully and efficiently destroyed before our eyes. We pin our faith in men because we have not been given anything bigger—and when men fail, as fail they must, we are left bewildered and hopeless."

Please, educators, teach our youth some values. And please, adults, give our educators some help. Without values what is life worth?

At Secretary Rusk's request, the President has ordered the CIA to limit its circulation of reports detailing the tremendous amounts of new military equip-ment that the Russians have moved into Czechoslovakia and are keeping there.

These alarming CIA reports clearly show that the Soviets now have four to five times more fire power in Central Europe than do the combined NATO forces. To match the modern Soviet military arms, NATO nations would have to more than double

CETAK'S GW MARKET - Ord, Nebraska

The Bohunk and the Polack, as vice-president elect Spiro Asnew might describe them, are at it again. The two friendly feuders, who've openly criticized one another's hunting skills in the past, have proof that they're both capable of getting a goose or two. The birds that Jim Cetak, left, and Spud Kapustka have downed this fall will be part of the feed at the annual Ducks Unlimited banquet.

What's Good for the Hunter Is Good for the Diner

"This year it will be ALL GOOSE!"

Spud Kapustka of Elyria was referring to the annual Ducks Unlimited Benefit scheduled Jan. 25, 1269, at the Elyria Community Hall.

Conveived by nimrods Kapustka, Jim Cetak of Ord, and Cash Welniak of Elyria, the DU banquet — limited to 100 guests — has become a yearly event for the benefit of Hospitalized at Ord in serious condition is Larry Jensen, 25, of North Loup. He is suffering from a severe concussion and has a blood clot on the brain, according to his physician, Dr. Murray Markley.

Also injured in the accident was Geweke's wife, Carol, who received a severe laceration of the scalp and a badly cut left ear. She was reported to be in good condition Tuesday by Dr. Otis Miller

Miraculously uninjured in the crash was the Geweke couple's three month old baby, Barry. Even though the car turned over more than once, the baby re-mained in the front seat area where it was riding when the impact occurred. It suffered only minor bruises.

Funeral services for Geweke, who was the soft of prominent Mira Valley ranchers Lloyd and Naomi Geweke, were conducted Sunday at the United Methodist Church in Ord Church in Ord.

The Gewekes were enroute to their parents' residence when the accident occurred. They were coming from Lincoln where Don was a senior in the College of Agriculture at the University of Nebraska.

Bill VanZandt had the lead role of Elliot Nash in "The Gazebo," and his performance made the show an outstanding success. On stage almost the entire evening, VanZandt played the role of a mystery writer who was being blackmailed because his wife (El-len Dale) had spent a week in a

The script dealt with Nash's inner turmoils and his eventual decision to bump off the blackmailer. Plotting the perfect crime, he apparently shot the blackmail-er and buried his body (played by Doug Zapp) underneath a gazebo which his wife had purchased. But then the troubles started. First Nash learned that he apparently had shot the wrong man, since the blackmailer ended up dead in another location. His attempts to find out which of his relatives or friends he had shot were hilarious.

In; the surprise ending was that Nash had not shot the blackmailer after all. His bullet had missed relatives or friends he had shot wits mark, but the intended victim and died on the spot of a heart well-warm.

Husband Will Be Brought to Trial In Death of Former Ord Resident closed to the public, including

The husband of a 1956 Ord High School graduate will stand trial in Grand Island for her

Thomas F. Davis, 32, was ordered bound over to district court last week on a charge of murdering Phyllis Lee Davis, 29. Mrs. Davis, who was the mother of seven children, was found dead in her car early Aug. 14 at an intersection east of Grand Island

The decision of Hall County Judge Edward Dixon that Davis should stand trial climaxed a preliminary hearing shrouded with controversy. Public interest in the case was already at a high level because of rumors that it was connected with a housewives call - girl ring and organized crime, and that a substantial number of Grand Island business-men were involved. But it reached monumental proportions when Judge Dixon ordered the preliminary hearing closed to the public, including the press.

The judge stuck by his decision in the face of opposition from the state news media, the general public, and at least one Grand Island attorney. (On the first day of the hearing attorney Lloyd Kelly, who was not involved in the case, defied Judge Dixon's ban and entered the courtroom, only to be charved with contenut and was cited as one reason for dismissal by Mitchell. only to be charged with contempt of court and thrown out.)

Before ordering Davis to stand trial, Judge Dixon twice rejected motions by defense attorney John Mitchell that the case be dismissed. Mitchell contended the state had failed to show that a crime had been committed, or to show there was reasonable cause to believe the defendant had committed it.

The prosecution called eight witnesses in the preliminary hear-ing, while the defense called none. Among those summoned was an Ord woman, Mrs. Cheryl Crane.

The subject matter of her testimony was not disclosed.

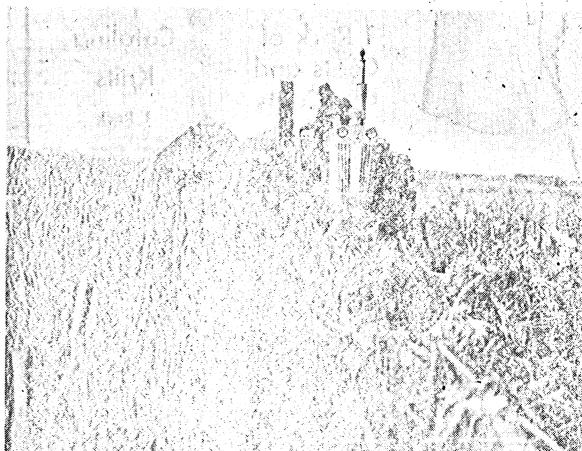

Mrs. Davis' death was first declared a traffic fatality, but a coroner's jury which met six times over a 29 day period eventually concluded that she died "as the result of a felonious act at the hands of Thomas F. Davis and person or persons unknown." and person or persons unknown Forty witnesses were called to testify before the coroner's jury and it was rumored that they would all be called to appear at the preliminary hearing. In fact, the Grand Island Independent and Discovictional decision to said Dixon's final decision to close the trial to the public was attributable to this possibility. (Defense attorney Mitchell had originally requested that it be closed.)

Testimony presented to the coroner's jury had also been Dennis Dailey attempts to close a gaping hole created by North Loup-Scotia blockers in the first quarter of their game with Arnold. He was too late, though, as Al Williams (center in black) barged through for the second Wildcat touchdown in a 40-0 victory. Arnold's 297-pound Keith Andre (88) is much too late as he tries to offer assistance.

One of the busiest Wildcats was Al Williams, here trying vainly to catch a Jim Clement pass. Although he failed this time as an Arnold defender pressed him too closely, on three other occasions Williams was successful. The three receptions accounted for 45 of North Loup-Scotia's 76 passing yards.

Keys to the North Loup-Scotia victory were an overpowering offense which scored the first two times it had the ball and a crushing defense which limited Arnold to negative rushing yardage in the first half.

the first half.

The first team offense piled up a 26-0 halftime lead as it scored on drives of 60, 30, 69, and 46 yards. The defense did its part by limiting Arnold to three first downs and a net yardage of 36 passing and minus 13 rushing. It also set up the second touchdown by blocking an Arnold punt.

The second half was not quite so bad as the winners scored only once in each of the two final quarters. Their defense eased up too as second - teamers saw a as second · teamers saw a good deal of action, but it was still sound enough to keep Arnold at bay.

Whole Team Lent a Hand Gordy Kriewald, a superb freshman, and Al Williams, an equally superb senior, sparked the first-half outburst. Larry Tol-en took over in the second half as the Wildcat leader.

Kriewald carried only six times during the afternoon but gained 43 yards. He had carries of 11 and 15 yards in his team's opening series, with the second run in particular standing out. On it the 165 - pounder broke two tack-Arnold five-yard line, and from there he carried it across in two

But this show was by no means limited to the backfield. Up front ends Dale Coufal and Cliff Jorgenson, tackles Dick Benson, Gordy Khyn, and Chuck Wegner, guards Jon Reeves and Robert Vlach, and center Bruce Bergman were pushing their foes all over the cold, windy field. Their work made that of the backs much easier to accomplish.

On defense too it was a team effort as Arnold consistently found all holes plugged. District Conference sprint champion Lanny Geiser could never find running room as he was held to four yards the first half. He eventually wound up with 50 for the afternoon, but his first double-figure tote (a 17-yarder) didn't come till the fourth quarter. By then North Loup - Scotia had built a 33 0 lead.

Blocked Punt Pays Off
Kriewald's touchdown burst and Tolen's extra - point kick gave the winners a 7-0 lead on their first possessien. Then, as Arnold faced fourth and 19 from its own 34, a black-clad Wildeat burst through to block Geier's punt. That gave North Loup Scotia the ball at Arnold's 30.

The hosts threw up stiff opposition as their Greeley County foes had to use nine plays to get their second touchdown. But two crucial third-down efforts kept the drive alive and led to eventual scoring success.

The Wildcats scored again on their first possession of the second quarter. This time they drove 69 yards with Clement interspersing passes of 16 and 14 yards among 10 rushing plays. Both passes went to Williams, who again got the touchdown with a four-yard burst off his own right tackle. Tolen's kick made the score 20 0.

The winners upped that to 26 0 the next time they had an opportunity. Jorgenson made an excellent punt return to the Arnold 46, and from there his team pushed it across in six plays. The big ones were a pair of 15-yard passes from Clement. One went to Williams and one to Benson. Clement scored the six points on

(From two major Respiratory Diseases) Thousands

Deaths from two Respiratory Diseases (RD) - emphysema and chronic bronchitis - have approximately doubled every five years since 1950. The figures are: 1950, 3,157 deaths; 1955, 5,616; 1960, 12,426; 1965, 23,432.

Your Christmas Seal contribution—a matter of life and breath—helps fight the growing menace of RD, including tuberčulosis.

Carpenter said he would seek to have the legislature order At-torney General Clarence Meyer to find out if he could.

Perhaps the only way to do so, Carpenter said, would be for the 1969 unicameral to pass a law putting the state in the property tax field — and then have the constitutionality of this act challenged in the courts.

LINCOLN — Nebraskans have recently completed a re-appraisal of their basic legal document—the state constitution— and accepted 13 proposed changes.
There has been considerable discussion in recent years about the window of piecewood amond. Toxaphene, Korlan, and Rotenone. It must be reincombered that some of these products do have restrictions on their use: in regard to the age of animals on which reapplications can safely be used, and in regard to the nearness of application to the time of slaughter. Win One, Lose One

There was some rare good news last week among reports of more student violence in California.

The score was 1 to 1 for administrators in their battle with rebellious students of the San Francisco area, which has long been a seething hotbed of student unrest.

At San Francisco State College the rebels won as school president Robert Smith ordered that institution closed indefinitely. But across the bay at Berkeley the ridiculous demands of two student protestors fell on deaf ears.

There, the University of California student body president and the editor of the school newspaper gave up on an 18-day hunger strike after they had been ignored by school officials. Before starting the fast, they had pledged not to eat until administrators agreed to give them credit for a course on racism taught by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver. (Cleaver has served prison sentences for possession of marijuana, assault to kill, and rape. He is presently charged with three counts of attempted murder and three counts of assault.)

No Moral Victory Here

The militant Black Panthers were also at the core of the trouble across the bay, A small percentage of San Francisco State's 18,000 students clashed off and on for a week with police over the suspension of a part-time instructor, George Mason Murray, who was also minister of education for the Panthers. Murray had been suspended for 30 days after urging Negro students to earry guns to the campus to protect themselves against "racist

A committee of 100 professors supported Murray and had threatened a faculty strike if he were not reinstated.

Smith may have felt he was winning a moral victory in beating them to the punch, but if so he was mistaken. For even though he had the satisfaction of closing down the school before the rebels did, the doors were locked just as tight as they would have been had the rebels turned the key themselves.

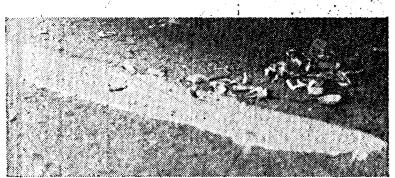

Thus, the great majority of the school's serious-minded students were denied an opportunity to pursue their educations because of the actions of a few.

Call It Surrender

Gov. Ronald Reagan appropriately denounced the closing as "an unprecedented act of irresponsibility . . . an act of capitula-tion—surrender, if you will—to a small, unrepresentative faction of faculty and student militants determined to substitute violence and coercion for orderly grievance procedures available to all."

Militant black leaders, to no one's surprise, expressed de-light that "education had stopped."

The situation merely emphasizes the extreme to which "academic freedom" has been carried in this country and how, when so carried, it can strangle the thing it purports to save.

It's true—you can drive a horse to water, but you can't make him drink.

One day recently a dark green Pontiac, license number 47 £44, swung to a stop just south of Carson's IGA. From the driver's side a hand shot out bearing an ash tray full of crud.

The tray was turned upside down and then the car sped away, leaving behind a pile of eigarette butts, bottle caps, and beer can flip tops.

Less than a hundred feet away a litter barrel stood unused. Aren't you glad you use litter barrels? Don't you wish everybody did?

An American Petroleum Institute publication observed that the domestic petroleum industry is faced with the task of producing 64 billion barrels of liquid petroleum between 1965 and 1980 while maintaining adequate reserves. This has been determined by a new U. S. Department of the Interior study which concludes that oil men must step up their rate of petroleum discoveries and achieve greater efficiencies in recovering oil already discovered, if future petroleum requirements are to be satisfied.

Consolation Wanted

Well, friends and neighbors, I really blew it this time.
All these years I've had a thing about reading directions:
I detest to read the instructions, so often long, involved, and yet written for the simple-minded. I guess that's me, I'm simple-minded or I'd carefully read them all and every one. Usually I tead the directions as I pitch the article, out or haul it to the

And . . . I also get tired of the junk mail I receive, all the items I did not order, the stamps I didn't send for, the neckties I never wanted, all the donations I'm asked to make for places

I can't even locate on the map.

And the endless letters. The letters and letters.

For example, I'll frankly say I got too many letters from Mr. Nixon's various committees. Every day I'd get like two. I kept thinking of the big postage bill. Sometimes they were duplicates but cometimes they weren't too. cates, but sometimes they weren't too.

But anyway, at last we got our boy Nixon elected. So, if I thought about it at all, I thought the Nixon letters would subside. And goody, thought 1.

But they kept on coming. Mighty tight organization, doing the job, wouldn't you say? But I was tired of them. They were thank you letters, letters of appreciation and what not; yet, I was tired of them, polite letters or not.

I began to pitch them in the waste basket, as I often do with letters from firms I do not know. Bad habit you say? I guess

For this week a friend inquired, "Did you get your invitation

I looked blank. "What inaugural ball?" I asked stupidly.

"Well, you'd better go home and dig through your waste basket," he smiled, "and rescue that invitation."

So when I got hong I dug and I prodded, but no waste basket in the house — and there are many — had that important invitation in it. I must have had a neat spell and burned it up! My face kept falling, and falling, and falling. For I don't get invited to a Presidential inaugural very often.

Serves me right, you say? I suppose. I'm just too carefree about my mail,

The only bright lining to the big black cloud is, I couldn't have gone anyway.

Even that isn't too consoling. I'm furious at me.

* WASHINGTON — Israel's surprise bombing attack inside the United Arab Republic on Oct. 31 was aimed more at the Kremlin than Egyptian President Nasser.

The retaliation raid, which partly destroyed a huge Sovietbuilt transformer station at Nag Hammedi, was a blunt warning to the Russian leaders that none of their economic or military projects in Egypt are off limits. The bold Israeli assault on the strategic target less than 150 miles north of the Aswan High Dam served notice that the Dam served motice that the Russians' most costly foreign project in Africa could be hit.

The military response came after Russia had ignored an earlier diplomatic warning from Israel to curb the Egyptians' firing of Soviet - supplied artillery across the Suez Canal cease - fire line.

has been no protest.

Since the Israeli attack, an estimated 2,000 Soviet military technicians have been working to improve the Egyptian early warning air defense facilities so future attacks can be detected. Although Israeli planes pene

Elyria Couple's Son Cited by Navy

Chief Petty Officer Erving F. Zulkoski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zulkoski of Elyria, has received a citation from Seventh Fleet commander for outstanding performance of duty while serving aboard the U.S.S. Cochrane. Chief Zulkoski was leading boilerman on the Cochrane from March to August of this year during combat opera-tions against North Vietnam.

The Valley County native was responsible for the operation of, and repairs to, his ship's main propulsion boilers and associated equipment. Partly because of resourcefulness and outstanding performance, the Cochrane was able to meet all commitments for naval gunfire support without a significant casualty.

The citation states that Zulkoski's skill and judgment con-tributed significantly and direct-ly to the successful accomplishment of the ship's mission and to the United States effort in Vietnam.

The Essence of Christianity

"In his book, Christ In The Haunted Wood, Norman Pittenger writes that '(the Church) is the fellowship of the , redeemed. But even more, it is the fellowship of the redeemers. For those who have been taken into the Church are taken into Christ — and this means that as they share in His life they must also share in His work. To be saved is to become a saviour — not a saviour in one's own right, but a saviour with Christ and for Christ and in Christ, who is the world's only Saviour. This carries with it the Christian's task which is to be the agent or instrument through whom the healthy, life-giving power of God in Christ flows out into the world at large. This is the reason that 'missionary activity' is of the essence of Christianity.'" (Quoted from: "Just A Minute For Mission", Dept. of Interp. and Stewardship, United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., 1967)

As we take part in the various activities of our churches as we find them listed below, may we always remember that their purpose, and ours is to promote the Kingdom of God, and to make us His instruments in this community and through out the world.

Loup Valley Chamber Favors Sales Tax Cut

tain the state sales tax at its present 2½ percent rate after Jan. 1.

Members of the United Loup Valley Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution at their meet-ing Thursday asking the legisla-ture to go ahead with a sche-duled reduction in the tax rate.

When the combination sales When the combination sales and income tax was approved early 1967, a provision was written into the law that the sales tax rate would drop to 2 percent on Jan. 1, 1969. However, Gov. Norbert Tiepnam has planned his budget for the next biennium on the assumption that the present 21-2 percent rate will be reent 2½ percent rate will be re-trined. He has also called a spe-cial legislative session to convene Dec. 9. One of the subjects to be considered is the tax rate. Governor Tiemann maintains that his proposed budget offers nothing new, but the 2½ percent rate is necessary merely to keep present programs operating.

Kokes for Reduction Incomplete surveys made last week by a couple of the state's daily newspapers indicate the governor will have a hard time getting the 33 votes needed to re-tain the 2½ percent. Senator Rudolf Kokes of Ord, reelected earlier this month to represent the 41st Legislative District in the Unicameral, indicated Monday that he will probably vote against keeping the present rate.

Kokes said he would vote for retention only if two conditions are met:

First, that revenue bonds be dropped as a possible means of financing highway construction.

Second, that revenues from the ½ percent difference in the sales tax rate be applied totally for highway construction.

Opposed to Revenue Bonds "I'm against the issuance of revenue bonds for highway construction," Kokes explained.
"However, I do feel additional revenues are needed for highway issue revenue bonds for highway construction when they approved a constitutional amendment ear-

The state's highways are sup-ported now solely by gasoline taxes, Kokes stated.

"Not even sales taxes on cars, "Not even sales taxes on cars, oil, grease, etc., go into the highway budget," he said. "Instead, cars support the general fund, and I don't think it's fair."

Senator Kokes said he had talked with other legislators last week when he was in Lincoln, and most of them feel the change in rates should not be approved.

People Expected Drop "I think the people felt the rate would be dropped when they vot-ed this month to retain the state income tax, he said, "and I think we would be breaking faith with them to keep it at its pres-

"Also, many of the legislators said in their recent campaigns that they would vote against retention of the 2½ percent rate. The people expect them to keep their word." their word."
Kekes said he had told his constituents during the campaign that he would vote against retention of the present rate unless the conditions he outlined earlier

Honey Sales Project Planned Again Sunday

"Honey Sunday" will be observed in Ord this Sunday, Dec. 1, as a carry-over of the annual benefit started last week to help mentally retarded children in the community.

Larry Kokes, local chairman of this year's effort sponsored state-wide by Nebraska charters of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, explained that "due to lack of man power and the fact that so many Ord residents were not at home, we will give the door-to-door sales program a second try." The honey will be sold at $1 a jar.

Ericson Will Be More Accessible

One of Marvin Nuernberger's first official pronouncements as Nebraska's new state highway en-gineer brought good news for residents of this area.

Nuernberger announced last week that Highway 91 from Bur-well to Ericson will be paved during 1969 and 1970. State Senator Rudolf Kokes said the contract for work on Highway 91 will be let on or about Mar. 14. Work will begin next summer, and plans are for one light coat of ciliate bear.

For despite a severe drought in early summer, this year's har-yest is an excellent one. The late freeze was considéred a principal contributing factor.

Dry-land corn especially was reported as "much better than anticipated." "That's the rule in many cases," observed Lloyd Zikmund, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. Irrigated corn was also producing good yields, and popeern was reported "of exceptional quality." The same was true of grain sor-One of the top dry-land corn yields was from the George Ben farm south of Ord. It measured out at approximately 75 bushels net per acre. "Mr. Bell planted late, but his corn matured exceptionally well because of the long fall," Zikmund reported. Irrigated corn yields were aver-aging 125 bushels an acre, "with some much higher than that."

running unusually high earlier this month with measurements of 22 to 24 percent. Normally it's in However, there was better news in this area yesterday from

Virgil Bencke, manager of the Farmers Co-Op Elevator. He said moisture content this week was down to the 19-to-22 percent

This is important because the higher the moisture content, the greater will be the reduction in yield when the corn dries.

"This is unexplained by anybody," Zikmand stated. "I suppose it's a result of the heavy rain we received this fall."

He said most corn is being dried either on the farm or compared the mercially.

Although prices have been down most of the fall, hovering around the $1.05 a bushel mark, Zikmund said they haven't had as detrimental an effect as one might thick.

Most farmers are participating in the feed grain program, he said, so they obtain a 3½-percent loan on their corn and then store it on the farm. If prices go up later they can sell it, or if they need it for feed they can go ahead and use it and pay off their loans from livestock sales or other sources.

"This is what most of the farmers in Valley County are doing," he stated. "As a result, we don't have the market flooded, and I hope prices will go up.' Zikmund said corn is already selving at $1.20 a bushel in the O'Neill area. County agent John Schade added a cautionary note, however, against farmers yielding to temp tation and overfeeding because of low prices. "Our market cattle prices are still pretty good," Schade said, "but they won't be if we overfatten the cattle and produce more meat. Over production will drop prices in the meat area too.

"So just because the corn is cheap; farmers should not think they're getting a bargain and use it to overfeed their cattle.

"It doesn't do any good to feed cheap grain to cheap cattle," he concluded. Popcorn, considered the number two commodity crop in this area, was reported of average yield but good quality. Again the moisture content, however, was running high.

Sheldon Van Horn, manager of the Blevins Popcorn Co. bins in North Loup, said his firm was paying $2.35 a hundred for corn on the car. He said that was the same price paid last year. He said production is down this year because farmers overproduced in 1966. His firm purchased 12 million pounds that year, whereas it will buy only 6 around.

Acreage is also down, he said, with about 400 acres of white popeorn contracted this year. Two years ago it was 2,000 acres, he Van Horn also said Nebraska popcorn producers are encountering greater competition from growers in other parts of the over the land now, from Maryland to California," he stated. He said this was frue because they could make more money per acre with popeorn than with feed corn. This year's harvest of both popcorn and feed corn is late.

"Normally we're done by the second week in November," Van Horn said of the popcorn harvest. "But this year we were in the middle of it." Zikmund estimated the feed corn harvest as two weeks behind schedule, "Usually by Dec. 1 it's nearly complete," he sail.

Lynn Griffith, Quiz advertising manager, presents gobbler to Mrs. William J. Novosad Sr.

Damage estimated roughly at $2,000 resulted from an early morning fire Friday at the E. J. Lange farm west of town. Ord volunteer firemen answered a call for help after the worst of the flames had been contained by Lange, his son Dave, and his son in-law Edmund Huffman. The fire destroyed 500 bushels of corn and did extensive damage to a grain dryer. Lange said a tractor was being run through the night unattended to draw heat from a propage source across the grain and dry it. One of the men failed to check the tractor as scheduled about 1 a.m., and it subsequently ran out of fuel. Heat then built up inside the dryer until it burst into flames. Lange said the fire was discovered about 5 a.m., but he waited until nearly 6 to call the Fire Department.

For those who have yet to bake that traditional pie for the holiday dinner, Mrs. Roger Benson (she's the sister of Ord's Clyde Baker) of 314 S. Acmon, Moscow, Idaho, suggests this simple delicious one.

1½ c. canned pumpkin

½ c. firmly packed brown sugar

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Sevenker were hosts to the Happy Dozen Club at their home Monday eyening. Mrs. Rollin Dye and John Lemmon were high scorers, and Mrs. Clyde Baker and Ernest Horner the low prize winners. The Dec. 16 Christmas party will be held with Mr. and Mrs. John Lemmon.

2/3 c. evaporated milk 1 egg yolk (optional)
1¼ t. pumpkin pie spice
1 baked 9 inch pie shell,

Blend custard mix, pump-kin, sugar, milk, egg yolk and spice. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring constantly. Pour into pie shell. Cool or chill until set. Top with whipped cream.

Mrs. Benson suggests that one also add other spices to taste — usually ½ t. each ginger, cloves and allspice.

Around Thanksgiving Day the question may arise, "Why is the turkey bald?" There is an interesting old Indian legend that tells all about it.

It seems that long ago the Great Spirit for some June. Great Spirit for some unremembered reason extinguished all fire on earth with one exception. He left a single spark concealed in a hollow tree. A turkey which belonged to a public which discovering tree. A turkey which belonged to a noble chief discovered this spark by accident. Knowing how badly man needed fire on earth, this intelligent bird gathered bits of dried grass and moss and piled them around the spark. Then it blew its breath upon the spark until it blazed up and ignited the grass and moss, thus saving fire for man. But in the process the blaze burned the feathers off the turkey's head and thers off the turkey's head and

It may be six or seven years — or twenty two or three, But, will you, till I call him back, take care of him for me? He'll bring his charm to gladden you and, should his stay be brief, You'll have his lovely memories as solace for your grief.

I cannot promise he will stay, since all from life return, But there are lessons taught down there I want this child to learn.
I've looked the wide world over in my search for teachers trué,
And, from the throngs that crowd life's lanes I have selected

Now will you give him all your love, nor think the labor vain, Nor hate me when I come to call to take him back again?" I fancied that I heard them say, "Dear Lord Thy Will be done, For all the joy the child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run. We'll shelter him with tenderness we'll love him while we may, And, for the happiness we've known, forever grateful stay. But, should the angels call him much sooner than we've planned. We'll brave the bitter grief that comes and try to understand."

to enumerate his blessings.
"We've got a little bit of pride going," says the Ord High basketball coach in assessing his team's prospects for the coming season, and this is going to have to help

Overall Trubey says his team quality is down some from last year's Class B state semifinalists. But he's not crying too loudly. To back up that pride, Trubey has six lettermen and better speed than last year's quinter possessed. Height "is a little below average" for a Class B school, but good outside shooting will help offset some deficiencies.

Experience is also a problem for the Chanticleers, with only three seniors on the squad, They are Ron Bredthauer, 6-4 post man, Steve Turek, 5-11 post man, and Dick Janda, 6-1 utility man. All lettermén, they also rank among the top six from which Coach Trubey will draw his starting lineup. The other possible starters are Bill Miller, 5-11 wing man, Bill Klanecky, 5-10 wing man, and Duane Kovarik, 5-10 point man, All are juniors.

man, and Duane Kovarik, 5-10 point man. All are juniors.
"Our top six have looked pretty good in practice so far," Trubey reported yesterday. "But our second five are not fully developed. We hope they'll come along later on, but the early patt of the year we're going to be pretty weak on the bench."

Bredthauer and Klanecky are returning starters, and ranked second and third behind Lyle Christensen in scoring for the Christensen in scoring for the 1967-68 team. Trubey reported that Klanecky has not been bothered by a bro-ken hand suffered in football practice, but said he got behind when he missed the past week of workouts because of sickness. Football injuries have also failed to hamper Janda and Tur-ek to any noticeable extent.

"Dick is completely recovered," Trubey said of Janda's knee ailment suffered in the next-to-last game, "and Steve is okay once he gets warmed up."

The Chants will stick to the same double post offense which has served them so well in the past. On defense they'll be basically a man-to-man team, although the zone and press will be employed on occasion. During Trubey's five years at

Ord, his teams have compiled an overall 8423 record. Last year's mark was 18-5. Three times the Chants have gone to the state

"The schedule is what really bothers us," Trubey said, "It's go-ing to be treacherous. I was talking to Conde Sargent of the Omaha World-Herald the other day, and he said several of our early opponents will possibly be rated in the state's top 10."

That shouldn't seare the Chante

That shouldn't scare the Chants too much, however, since they've been up there themselves each of the past five years.

Ord opens Dec. 6 with a road game against Cozad, then returns home to meet O'Neill the next night. Trubey is presently carrying 13 men on his varsity team, but will drop one to the junior varsity before the opener. In summation, he stated:

"We've got a pretty good foundation — a nucleus that is going to be pretty tough. But we need a stronger bench. We're shooting from the outside rather well, but that's not our best percentage shot. And the preponderance of juniors may hurt, since in the past most of our boys haven't really come along until their senior years.'

Every Member Visitation

The Every Member Visitation was conducted last Sunday by the Scotia United Methodist Church. Seventeen teams were officially commissioned during the morning worship service, and last-minute instructions were given by the general chairman, Charles Beebe, at a poon dinner. The teams were at a noon dinner. The teams were then sent out to visit in the homes of members and friends of the church. Their purpose was to gain deeper spiritual commit-ment and to underwrite the financial program of the church for the new year, 1969. Homes into which the visitors were commissioned to go had received a series of letters and literature over the past several weeks ex-plaining the program. The visita-

Use Your Checking Account

to Save Time, Steps, Money

Your Checking Account will make life more pleasant in dozens of ways. Here are just a few of them:

1. Checks save you time, trouble and travel. Instead of driving or walking all around town to pay your monthly bills in cash, just write checks and mail them. Takes minutes instead

2. Checks are the safe way to pay. Unlike cash, a check can be spent only by the person or firm you've written it to. And since you don't have to keep large sums of cash on hand when you have a Checking Account, there's no danger that your money will be lost or stolen.

3. Checks prove you've paid. If there's ever any question about whether you paid a certain bill, your cancelled check — endorsed by the recipient — provides legal proof of payment.

4. Checks make personal bookkeeping easy. Your Checking Account is a perfect record of how much you've deposited from your earnings, how much you've spent for food, clothing, medical care, entertainment, and all the other items in your budget.

5. Your checking account gives you a clear and complete record of tax deductible items to refer to when making up your income tax return.

To Tax or Not To Tax

The "credibility gap" has been a major drag on the present federal administration, creating a situation where the people have had little or no trust in their governmental leaders. Consequently they have failed to give Lyndon Johnson and his staff the support a President needs so very much to be successful.

Now Gov. Norbert Tiemann seems intent on creating a similar credibility gap at the state level.

In early 1967 when the present state income and sales tax was passed, it contained a provision that the sales tax rate would be 2½ percent "until Jan. 1; 1969, and on and after such date the rate shall be 2 percent."

Now that that date is drawing near, Governor Tiemann has called a special session of the legislature. One reason for this special session is to consider legislation retaining the sales tax at 2½ percent.

Budget Up 20 Percent

The governor says this rate is necessary "to simply continue the programs which we began last biennium." Yet his projected budget shows an increase of $70 million over the $268 million appropriated from the general fund for the 1967-68 period. That's an increase of more than 20 percent.

If this is simply a "hold-the-line" budget as Tiemann says it is, with no new programs planned, that $70 million must be accounted for by inflation. Surely inflation, as rampant as it is, has not caused a 20 percent increase in costs since 1967.

The principal issue, however, is not an economic one. Governor Tiemann says his proposed budget "is one Nebraska tax-

On that he is right, for the 1/2 percent drop will never be noticed by the average citizen. Even on a $2,00 automobile—if there is such a thing any more—the savings would be only $10.

It's the Principle of the Thing

However, there is a very large principle of honesty involved. The lawmakers set up the present tax plan with a promise that the rate would drop as of Jan. 1, 1969, and that's exactly what it ought to do. Of course if a dire emergency existed, the legislature would have an obligation to consider holding on to the present rate. But no such emergency exists.

Governor Tiemann has set up charts in the old Senate Chamber to show the legislators why the 2½ percent rate must be retained. It may be that he can convince a sufficient number of them that it is necessary,

But if so, serious consideration should be given to Senator Rudolf Kokes' suggestion that in the future budget requests be presented to the full Senate instead of just to the budget committee. This would make every senator a budget expert—or at least make it easier for him to become one—and make it harder for the executive branch to smooth-talk its way through controversial budgetary items.

When the legislators go into session, they should remember the promise they gave their constituents.

It's a cinch the constituents will remember — maybe even

Pity Is Hard To Feel Sometimes

No man is an island, and no country is either.

The fallacy in Charles De Gaulle's attempt to Isolate his country from its allies has become readily apparent during the past week as France's economic world came tumbling down around

It would be easy for Americans and Britons to sit back and chortle at De Gaulle's current economic problems were it not for the knowledge that a strong France is still desirable in a united western alliance.

Consequently, wiser men than De Gaulle have prevailed in the two English-speaking countries, and they are among the 10 nations lending France huge sums of money to stave off even more serious problems.

This assistance is more than De Gaulle deserved, for certainly a great deal of his problems were self-inflicted.

The immediate cause of the past week's crisis was the fact that too much French currency was leaving the country. At first this was caused because of imports greatly exceeding exports so that France was paying out more than she was taking in. Then, as the problem grew, speculators sensed that a devaluation might be upcoming so they started hoarding French francs. That only increased the problem, since money became more scarce than ever.

In retrospect, one wonders if De Gaulle ever rues the day he ordered United States military installations in his country closed down. Free-spending American servicemen were contribut-ing great sums of money to the French economy, just as if it were being received for the sale of exports.

But with his haughty disdain for accepting anything from Anglo-Saxons or cooperating with them in any way, De Gaulle ordered this wind-fall abolished. From that time forward his path was downhill.

In working toward his one consuming goal — restoration of France to her previous days of grandeur — De Gaulle forgot that every castle must have a solid foundation.

When Britain devalued about a year ago, the French leader was in there kicking to further weaken her economic status. Like-, wise, when the U.S. dollar ran into so much difficulty earlier this year, it was De Gaulle leading the effort to force devaluaion and kick the props from under the American economic system.

Now that the whole batch of back-stabbing efforts have backfired, De Gaulle can be thankful that his western neighbors are not the kind who hold grudges.

According to the Rotary Reminder, "If you are making $7,500 a year, and just received a $375 pay hike, don't rejoice. You were better off a year ago, Your federal taxes will be increased $147, your Social Security $40, your state and local levies $31. That should leave you $157 from the leave to the state and local levies. $31. That should leave you $157 free and clear — but it doesn't.

The expected 3 percent hike in the cost of living will cost you turkey, this Thursday. $181, making you $24 poorer than in 1966."

Fundamental Changes Recommended In Nebraska's Road-Building System

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — The Legislative Council Roads Study Committee conducted "hundreds" of interviews with citizens all across Nebraska to find out "what they wanted and how they wanted to get it."

The committee, headed by Senator Jerome Warner of Waverly, said this investigation showed the people "want good roads, they are willing to pay for those and they want they are will be to pay for them." them, and they want them now." In its report to the Legislative Council, the committee made a series of recommendations it said would accomplish what the citizens were demanding.

Those recommendations, if implemented by the 1969 legislature, would result in basic changes for Nebraska's traditional roadbuilding system.

The Warner committee's proposals were based on suggestions which had been included in three reports submitted by hired con-sultants who studied the state's road needs, financing, and man-

The committee took these consultant reports across the state in a series of hearings. Then, the senators refined the consultants' recommendations and prepared their report to the Legislative Council.

The report called for legislation requiring a classification of every street and highway in the state on the basis of its function. A new agency which would be known as the Bureau of Public Roads Classification and Standards would supervise this project. The bureau would also establish standards for construction of the various classes of roads. The bureau would have eight members. Two would represent the State Department of Roads, two would be county officials, two more would be from city government, and the other two would be lay representatives chosen from different areas of

The State Highway Commission, which the consultants urged be abolished, would be retained under the Warner committee's proposals. The commission would be the final authority in the event of disputes over classification. In controversies over standards, the bureau would settle its own dis-

Each level of government the cities, the counties, and the state — would be required, un-der the committee's recommendations, to prepare a six-year road and street construction program. This would be updated

In addition, annual programs listing specific projects to be un-dertaken would be filed with the state. The Highway Commission would decide if these annual plans were compatible with the six-year goals.

Until the six-year and annual plans were filed, the governmental subdivision could not receive its financial assistance from the state, according to the committee's recommendation.

The Warner committee also urged professional engineering assistance at the local level and suggested state aid incentives to every city sidestreet and county hire qualified personnel. The committee said those cities and counties which cannot af-ford professional help independently should be encouraged to join together and hire someone to serve two or more subdivi-

In another effort to make sure professional engineering becomes available to the subdivisions, the committee recommended that the state license county highway supervisors and city street superintendents. Boards of examiners for each would be established to test candidates.

The committee said all the planning and organizing should be done before additional financing is made available. This should be accomplished, the report said, by 1970.

At that time, the financing recommendations would come into effect. They include: • Raising the gas tax by a penny and the diesel fuel tax two

• Boosting car registrations to $15 and hiking farm truck regis-tration fees by $10. Local truck registrations would be increased 25 percent.

• Transferring $3\frac{1}{2}$ million from the general fund to the highway cash fund, as the "nonuser's" share of the road pro-

• Issuing $15 million in revenue bonds, under a constitutional amendment adopted this fall by the voters. Another bond is-sue should be authorized for 1971, the committee said. According to the committee's estimates, this should make a total of about $105 million avail able for the highway cash fund during 1970. The present "hodge-podge" of formulas for distribution of road money to cities and counties should be wiped out, the committee said, and substituted to the committee said. ted with new formulas.

Under the Warner committee's recommendation, the state would get 60 percent of this cash fund and the cities and counties would receive 20 percent each.

The split among counties and among cities would be made with formulas based on a new set of criteria, Warner said the committee decided not to establish a maximum number of miles which could be on the state road system, as the consulting firms had recommended. He said the committee felt this was best left flexible so progress would not be stymied by arbi-trary restrictions.

The Warner report said passage of the revenue bond amendment was a major step forward. "There could be no clearer indication," the report said, "that Nebraska citizens want an ac-celerated road program."

Even though the recommendations shatter precedent at almost every turn, they weren't expected to meet heavy opposition. This is because the committee has exposed the basic proposals to witnesses at hearings across the state.

Chief objections to the report from the consultants concerned a recommendation that state government have the final say on

Discussion on High Guyernment Salaries Shows That Charity Does Begin at Home

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ted King told the fellers at the country store Saturday night there was one angle to the war in Vietnam that didn't get no attention in the last campaign fer President. He brung to the ses-sion a bunch of figures compiled by Senator Stephen Young of Ohio that had the fellers shook

We have an outfit called the Agency on International Development in South Vietnam that goes by the letters AlD, this piece explained. Senator Young found out there are 782 guvernment folks working over there on AlD who make $25,000 a year or more, and they still get another 25 percent fer hardship conditions and $3,000 more fer living allowance.

Senator Young found out that 28 AlD people in Vietnam get more than $41,000 a year, 82 get $35,000 or more, 262 are paid more than $30,000, and 400 get more than $24,000. He found out they have five AID forestry experts that are getting $36,000 apiece, living in air conditioned apartments, drawing hardship money and living allowances, and studying forestry in an area where there ain't no trees.

Ted reported that several Congressmen, based on Senator Young's figures, were advocating setting up a committee fer federal studies on this matter. Ted said he was all in favor of federal studies, and what we need in this country right now besides a good five-cent nickel was a federal study to find out what happens to federal studies.

Paul Zentz agreed with Ted, said there ain troo end to the good that can come from a federal study. Right now, fer instance, Paul said we need a federal study to find out what happened to that $6 billion cut in STAMPS spending we were going to get when they raised taxes $2 billion. He said he had seen where we were going to end up the fiscal year $8 billion more in the hole. Paul figured they added the $6 billion cut to the extra $2 billion taxes and come out $8 billion on the minus side, and a federal study would show that them gu-vernment folks was using the "new_math,"

Archie Mason said the guvernment was people and people was the guvernment and all people was spending twice as much as they made, and he wished Ted and Paul would get on some subject they knowed somethin' about, like that subsidy check both gets from the Agriculture

Personal, Mister Editor, I didn't get a chance to speak during the session, but all the talk about the cost of everything reminded me of what that old rancher said when they asked him what he aimed to do with $100,000 he inherited. He said he reckoned he would just try to keep his little place going till the money was military advisers have recommended that the Army be permitted to go ahead with plans to activate the 6th Infantry District.

Funds for the division, originally scheduled to be formed this year at Fort Campbell, Ky., were knocked out of the Army's budget by Defense Secretary Clark Clifford. This decision, which represented a major policy change, was by far the most controversial Clifford has made since taking office. Described as an economy move to save $125 million, Clifford's action was based on the assumption that the Russians would not create a new crisis in Europe. One week after the plan for the new division was killed, the Russians moved their military forces into Czechoslovakia following, a secret call-up of 1 million of their

None of these Soviet reserves have been returned to civilian life, according to the Defense Intelligence Agency's latest reports, although several of their units have been pulled out of Czechoslovakia and are now stationed inside Russia.

In light of these Russian mili-tary developments, the Joint Chiefs of Staff believe that a strategic reserve of five divisions is now more urgently needed than ever.

If the reserve forces aren't built back up to their pre-Vietnam levels immediately, they are convinced the Russians will take this as a sign of U.S. weakness and be tempted to make new military moves in Europe or the Middle East. A militant Soviet Union is fore-

There are local people unfamiliar with the Nebraska State Assa, for Retarded Children (NSARC), which had its beginning as a group of friends and parents who implemented plans for bettering conditions at the institution in Beatrice. They have been expanding their efforts over the state to correct past neglect of the retarded. They work for legislation, and some forms of recreation are encouraged. Camps to give greater joy and build social concepts have been established. Finding or making jobs for those ready to work have made earners of potential taxeaters.

The NSARC needs financial help in order to cover the state with active programs. The efforts of our North Central Assn. for Retarded Children have been di-rected toward our local needs. It should be our obligation also to create interest in and accept contributions for the expanded effort to aid more of the state's retarded. It would be well, therefore, for those who contribute to specify if they wish their money to be used locally or in the broad-er field. Some have contributed for both local and state use.

Jome to Church

By Leonard S. Clark, Pastor Scotia & North Loup United Methodist Churches

Since it is my privilege to prepare this week's editorial, I should like to share a few lines from the pen of another, the Rev. George Mecklenburg entitled "When You Attend": "When you attend church -

You take a stand for faith and for a spiritual interpreta-tion of life! You testify and witness to the faith that is in

You count on the side of the spiritual! You tell the world that you believe in God, Eternity, and Immortality! You challenge all that is evil, all that which is contrary to the will of God! You say that you are against everything that hurts human beings. You tell your neighbors that you are seeking something higher!

You salute Christ and His Church! You appreciate what the Church has done for humanity!

You come to God's house to adore, to worship, to praise! You become a part of that host that has been worshipping God down through the ages. You have been caught up in the Spirit!"

Is this not reason enough to attend church regularly? Start a regular attendance at the church of your choice this coming Sabbath Day! The church needs you! You need the "See You in Church Sunday!"
