Shainwold on Bridge

PLAYERS WHO GUESS MALE GOOD OPPONENTS BY ALBERT SHAINWOLD

Both sides vulnerable. Opening lead—Jack of Clubs. West opened the jack of clubs, and declarer won in dummy with the queen. He cashed the ace of diamonds and led a low diamond to the jack, losing to the queen.

West returned the ten of diamonds to dummy's king, and East discarded a club. "Let's have the tenth out right away," South announced, and he led out dummy's king and queen of spades. When north's helpful dropped, declarer led another spade from dummy.

East followed with the ace of spades, and South thought of the answer to his difficult problem. He led the ace in the hope of capturing the jack?

Not Always Right. I'm not sure to say that South is sure to guess wrong. But you must admit that South cannot always guess right even if he is the seventh son of a seventh son.

Mrs. Peabody Gets Ovation, Set to Depart

William Kramler, New York attorney specializing in civil rights cases, said he would appeal Simpson's ruling to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. "I am sure," he said, "that a federal court order stopping trials of the 285 demonstrators until the appeal is decided will be a landmark in the history of the civil rights movement." Mrs. Peabody, 41, was accompanied by her husband, a 44-year-old white and Negro, many of them recently bonded out of jail, gathered at a church Thursday night and gave Mrs. Peabody a prolonged ovation for her efforts in the integration attempts. "More courage to you," said Mrs. Peabody. "I had a wonderful feeling. Goodbye for the present, but I will be back. I have been concerned with discrimination and injustice. Talking hasn't done any good." She was arrested with a group of Negroes and whites while staging a sit-in demonstration at the Peabody Hotel in Birmingham, Ala. "Our friends were taking the brunt of this," she said. "I did not suppose I could escape arrest. Mrs. Peabody said she was treated well in the overcrowded jail.

Half-Dollars Joined

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—The nation's silver dollar shortage produced a substitute here—two half dollars glued together. Merchants started dispensing glued halves Thursday when they ran out of cartwheels. In Montana, paper dollars are held in desperate need. "The customers want silver dollars in change so we're giving them silver dollars," Larry Rietveld, operator of a meat market, said. "Just get another 100 worth of half dollars," Rietveld said. "I'm going to glue them together tonight."

"If they think he's too old, they'll put him out, but if they think they want experience, they'll keep him in," he said. Battle of Berets Held in Cyprus

NIKOSSIA, Cyprus (AP)—A group of British paratroopers wearing blue berets as members of the Cyprus U.K. force instead of their normal red headgear, fought a bar room brawl in Nikosia Thursday with Greek Cypriot National Guardsmen wearing red berets.

Half a dozen "Red Devils," as the paratroopers are known, took on about a dozen Greek Cypriots for nearly half an hour before military and civil police broke up the brawl.

Greek Cypriot sources said the fight developed when the paratroopers objected to the headgear worn by the Greek National Guardsmen.

The result of the brawl was several broken noses and cracked lips and smashed chairs, tables, bottles and glasses.

There were no serious injuries, according to a Cypriot police spokesman.

Deaths Yesterday

DETROIT (AP)—William A. Pezold, 84, Detroit business pioneer and civic leader, died Thursday.

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP)—Rafael Sanchez Guerra, 66, leader during the Spanish republic and later a separatist brother of the Dominican order in Pamplona, died Thursday of liver cancer.

NEW YORK (AP)—A little girl was rescued from the Harlem River Thursday by the son of the Finnish ambassador to Peru.

Ann Gushon, 7, was saved from the swirling river by Heikki Hannikainen, 21, who was working with the Columbia University rowing crew.

The girl fell into the river which separates Manhattan from the Bronx, while throwing rocks into the water. Several schoolmates were with her.

Hannikainen, in the university shell 20 yards offshore, saw her tumble. He dived in and swam toward her, a lucky current carrying him right to the girl, who was kept afloat by her air-filled life preserver.

"The crew's motor launch pulled her out of the water," he said. "God bless that boy," said Ann's mother. "God bless him. That boy could have drowned himself. What a wonderful, brave thing to do. God bless him."

Peaceful in Haiti, Too
 While Brazil was staging itself a peaceful revolution Washington made haste to accept and approve, another hemisphere was setting itself in order, in a manner we do not approve quite so enthusiastically.

In Haiti, one Dr. Franca Duvalier, referring to himself as "Papa Doc," and describing himself frankly as a most exceptional man, of a kind a country could produce only about once every 50 or 75 years, went through some very peculiar ceremonies in which he proclaimed himself President of Haiti for life.

He didn't want to seem to be doing it all himself. In fact, at the life-term installation ceremony he expressed the gratitude of the head of state to the army chief of staff who had taken a lead in circulating the popular petitions which asked him to be President for life. "General Constant," said Duvalier to the president, "Duvalier, the President of the Republic who is prouder of his title of revolutionary chief than that of chief of state, accepts and appreciates your gesture."

Last spring, the United States made a lot of effort to persuade Haiti to dump its dictator. We contended that his term as president was expiring, and we even suspended diplomatic relations with his country when he refused to step out. But the people of Haiti themselves gave no support to our diplomacy. Duvalier proclaimed himself, if not president, chief of the revolution, and made us like it.

Last October we resumed diplomatic relations with the rotten little dictatorship, which supposedly gained quite a little prestige and self confidence from having defied us so successfully.

The life-term ceremonies the other day were like fingering a defiant note to us.

The main point, however, remains. It is that, although we were forced to do so some last spring, and were obviously itching to give Duvalier one quick shove, we refrained from crossing the line that divided our acknowledged and open diplomatic pressure from the use of United States force on the territory of another nation against the existing government of that nation.

 End of the Line
 To the Editor,
 Concerning the recollection of the weekend trip of the Home Company No. 2 by trolley to Coventry, I am sure that the train was taken between Depot Square and Willimantic. Had the trolleys been used all the way, they would have had very little time at Coventry because either of the most direct routes was a Willimantic branch, or the Coventry Street Railway Company chartered May 20, 1916, which seemed not to have gotten far beyond the chartering stage.

One route would have been via East Hartford, Springfield, Worcester, Putnam, Norwich and Willimantic. Another between 1913 and 1919 via Hartford, New Haven, and via the Shore Line Railway to New London and then via Willimantic. Even with special cars there would not have been at least one change. That would have been at Willimantic, because there was no track connection between the New London line and the Willimantic terminal was at the Main St. railroad crossing. At least the New London line from the Coventry line.

Thus the South Coventry line was an isolated line of the Connecticut Railway Company between 1913 and 1919 as were the other Connecticut Company lines in eastern Connecticut.

It was very much of a local line served by one car with another standing by for emergencies. The line operated until the fall of 1919.

I heard one story about the line. There was a man who had a little too much to drink who rode back and forth a few times. At the Willimantic car he saw the trolleyman and that he was going to get the car for the night tomorrow from 1 to 10 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 8 p.m.

40 Years Ago
 San Francisco convention began as for many Republicans. Key YR's would ask conservative members of the Republican National Committee to verbally express their willingness to accept the party's platform.

Ever since the YR's exhibition in 1924, the Republican party has been in the position of the Alcorn report, they would not now vote for it and would object to its implementation.

Then Myers came to the point: "It is our thought that a new National Chairman, elected some 50, 75, or more of such letters on this regarding the Alcorn report, would not choose to implement it and create a new National Chairman to replace the Republican National Committee's cash subsidy with money from individuals."

Myers is dead right. The Alcorn report would place a member of the Republican National Committee on "a fool-in-the-road" recommendation to use Myers's description, "a power now held by the Young Republicans themselves."

Along with the rest of the Alcorn report, these recommendations were approved by a voice vote at a closed-door session of the Republican National Committee last Jan. 11. But the Myers memorandum contends that the YR's do not now vote for it and would object to its implementation.

All things considered, no National Chairman is likely to provoke a rebellion among the YR's so close to a Presidential election. Nevertheless, the disastrous memory of the 1962

A Thought for Today
 The Church of Jesus Christ was established by God that His word might be experienced and proclaimed in a dark and selfish world. You and I are privileged to be members of this fellowship, not because what we ourselves have achieved, but because of what God has done for us. In Christ, He came and revealed how deep was His concern for history and His love for each individual. When we accept this love and declare that Jesus Christ is our Lord and Savior, we become members of the church. By entering this world, we bring to the church a community of those around the world, across every barrier of race, and frontier, and one that extends back to Calvary and forward into eternity. What a privilege this is and yet how lightly we treat the church! How wonderful of God to come to us and yet how easily we seek to dismiss Him with a cavalier gesture! Let us remember that Peter said of the church, "You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people, whom you were not people before, but now you are God's people." (Ist John 1:9) Let us stop our selfishly-shilling. Let us realize and proclaim again that the church is a community of those that live by the power of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Let us pray: Forgive, O God, our shallowness but honor us use that which we are for the high and holy purposes proclaimed in Christ Jesus. Amen.

Three Pack A Day Equivalent?
 Considering what man has been able to do in his environment in the automobile age, it is not surprising that he has been working on it the wrong way with the wrong ingredients. It is entirely sensible and logical to expect a truly terrible human emergency within the next few years.

The use of the insecticides which have poisoned millions of fish in the giant Mississippi—just by the drainage off the farm lands where the pesticides have been used—this use is only 20 years old.

The use of the automobile and the diesel engine which can exhaust what creates a thing called smog over some cities, and an insistent ever present film on everything in the country's great population belts is again, something that is only about 20 years old, so far as serious effects are concerned.

We are leaving poison on our land, we are opening poison out into our atmosphere, at a progressively heavier rate each year. It will probably take us only five years ahead to accomplish the same amount of poisoning of our water, poisoning of our air, as we have accomplished in these past 20 years.

What we have done today may be many times more serious than the damage to health that has been done by cigarette smoking from the beginning of time.

It may, for that matter, be the real explanation of some of the crimes being attributed to the cigarette.

In any case, nobody is proposing that we, for our own health and safety, cut down on the use of the gasoline of the diesel motor.

Dr. Luther L. Terry, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, had no pat remedies, but he did have diagnosis, in his speech dedicating a new laboratory out at the University of Cincinnati the other day.

Man's environment today, he said, "is a synthetic one which he himself has largely created."

"Twenty-one years ago no one in Los Angeles had complained of smog, and control measures were not instituted there until 1947. In 1964 New York City had its first detected smog episode, to which some 300 deaths are attributed...."

"We expect that by 1970 three of every four persons will be living in only 10 per cent of the land area of the United States. Thus an increasing portion of the waste products discharged into the atmosphere will be released into relatively small segments of the atmosphere."

"There is now nearly six times as much pollution in our rivers, streams and lakes as 60 years ago and the amount is still increasing."

"Every year, more than 500 new chemicals and chemical compounds are introduced into industry, along with countless operational innovations. Except with the most toxic materials, there is necessarily a time lag between the introduction of a new material or process, and the recognition of deleterious effects."

"You are acquainted, of course, with the mysterious and frightening poison posed by the death of millions of fish in the Mississippi River basin over the last four years."

"Now our scientists have identified the multi-responsible — infinitesimal traces of chemical pesticides draining from farmlands throughout the watershed."

"Except perhaps that the known is always less frightening than the unknown, there is little comfort in the solution to the mystery. It serves, however, to point up the enormity of our problems."

"Furthermore, it illustrates the interdependence and interrelationship of all facets of environmental health, as well as the intimacy of its association with every aspect of natural resource management."

Thus the surgeon general, who once reported on cigarettes, reporting on the air we breathe. Our layman's guess would be that in some sections of the country, like this one, more breathing is something like the health equivalent of three packs a day. Perhaps the only real difference is that the cigarettes we can stop up.

The Cultural Bridge
 It is a relatively small and modest thing, but vastly preferable to pointless huffing and puffing at each other.

The truth is that when, in our modern world, two ideological and power politics giant confront each other, civilization has to hope that they will soften their mutual defiance enough to let some modest communication of a non-belligerent nature take place through the high curtains dividing them.

So it is good news that Soviet Russia and Communist China are able to announce a cultural exchange agreement under which, during the coming year, army dance and song groups from both nations will visit and perform in the other.

There may be as many as 100 performers involved, altogether.

At the same time, the cultural agreement between the two giant nations also provides for some modest exchange in the field of science, health, architecture, films, theatre troupes, and art exhibits.

None of this is going to be gigantic. None of it is going to insure peace and understanding between these two nations who are both outside the great heartland of the world.

But the hope has to be that if the two peoples, using such polite cultural exchanges, can begin to see a little more of each other, they will begin to realize that people on both sides are human beings, that such realization may eventually dim their mutual fears and their mutual feeling that they must destroy each other and that eventually both will realize that the proper and sensible way for them to do is to begin to think of the possibility of living in the same world together.

Inside Report
 WASHINGTON—The Young Republicans National Federation, unruly offspring of the Grand Old Party, is mapping a campaign of all-out resistance against parental supervision by party leaders.

Ever since the YR's exhibition in 1924, the Republican party has been in the position of the Alcorn report, they would not now vote for it and would object to its implementation.

Then Myers came to the point: "It is our thought that a new National Chairman, elected some 50, 75, or more of such letters on this regarding the Alcorn report, would not choose to implement it and create a new National Chairman to replace the Republican National Committee's cash subsidy with money from individuals."

Myers is dead right. The Alcorn report would place a member of the Republican National Committee on "a fool-in-the-road" recommendation to use Myers's description, "a power now held by the Young Republicans themselves."

Along with the rest of the Alcorn report, these recommendations were approved by a voice vote at a closed-door session of the Republican National Committee last Jan. 11. But the Myers memorandum contends that the YR's do not now vote for it and would object to its implementation.

All things considered, no National Chairman is likely to provoke a rebellion among the YR's so close to a Presidential election. Nevertheless, the disastrous memory of the 1962

A Thought for Today
 The Church of Jesus Christ was established by God that His word might be experienced and proclaimed in a dark and selfish world. You and I are privileged to be members of this fellowship, not because what we ourselves have achieved, but because of what God has done for us. In Christ, He came and revealed how deep was His concern for history and His love for each individual. When we accept this love and declare that Jesus Christ is our Lord and Savior, we become members of the church. By entering this world, we bring to the church a community of those around the world, across every barrier of race, and frontier, and one that extends back to Calvary and forward into eternity. What a privilege this is and yet how lightly we treat the church! How wonderful of God to come to us and yet how easily we seek to dismiss Him with a cavalier gesture! Let us remember that Peter said of the church, "You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people, whom you were not people before, but now you are God's people." (Ist John 1:9) Let us stop our selfishly-shilling. Let us realize and proclaim again that the church is a community of those that live by the power of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Let us pray: Forgive, O God, our shallowness but honor us use that which we are for the high and holy purposes proclaimed in Christ Jesus. Amen.
