Berea Police Develop Smart Phone App for Better Communication

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

A new app for smart phones is being developed by the Berea Police Department, to help communication with the community.

Chief of Police David Gregory introduced the new app to Berea City Council on Tuesday evening, and said it was still in the design phase.

"We hope this will build better communication with the community," Gregory said, "to let them know what's going on, as well as hearing from them."

Gregory said he's particularly excited about one of the tabs on the app, for alerts to the community. People with smart phones can receive alerts about active shooters, closed streets, and other emergencies through this tab. Gregory reported that they would receive this alert even quicker than on Facebook.

Other tabs on the app include a locator, so people can call the police and pin their location within the city so police can find them. Reports and photos can be sent to the police regarding suspicious activity, and forms can be accessed for civilian accident reports, parade applications or Residence Watch.

Gregory said the Residence Watch forms are very cumbersome, so it will be much easier for residents to sign up for the service on the phone. Residence Watch is for people who will be out-of-town for an extended period of time, who would like the police to keep an eye on their home.

The Berea Police are using a developer who specializes in doing these types of apps for police departments. It cost around $1,100 for development and $1,000 in annual maintenance. Council member Jerry Little said this seemed like a very low price for the service.

Gregory hopes the app will be ready to use by mid-March.

Mayor Steve Connelly reported that different citizens asked him about

First Time Ever, Berea Community Student Wins Children's Champion Contest

Isaiah Lewis, a third-grader from Berea Community, standing with FRYSC Director Diane Smith, was the winner of the Children's Champion award, a county-wide contest where elementary school students compete to have their drawing selected as the Children's Champion picture for the year. Isaiah is the first student from Berea Community to have his drawing selected as the winner, in the 20 year history of the contest. He was given his certificate Wednesday at school, and he also received congratulations at city council on Monday evening. Isaiah's drawing will now be put up on three billboards around Madison County; at Safety City, and two near Highway 25.

Concern for Future of Spoonbread Festival

What a lovely invitation to the community is the letter from President and Mrs. Roelofs. Putting legs (no pun intended) on inclusion and not just paying it lip service. It's easy to buy the lie that feelings of exclusion are the sole purview of those in racial or religious minority groups. Truth be told, most feel the sting of it, in one way or another.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if the much varied population of this town could indeed feel a part of the big picture of who we are as Bereans? How sad that including the working class and the business community doesn't seem to be the goal from the executive seat.

To say I was stunned to read a draft of an agreement that was apparently put together by the mayor and the Berea Human Rights Commission regarding the Spoonbread Festival is an understatement. I can tell you that the board of directors of the Berea Chamber of Commerce as a group sees it as pure and simple bullying. It's hard to understand why the most successful event in Berea would be singled out for unenforceable, not to mention unconstitutional, regulation. To add insult to injury, a member of the HRC reportedly posted the thing on social media well before it was even presented to the chamber director.

As best I can tell, this vendetta began with a demonstration by that same HRC member and a little group of protesters who interrupted the Spoonbread Festival parade this past year. Their gripe was ostensibly that Confederate memorabilia was being sold by some of the vendors. And I'm told they were correct. Ironically the two vendors who had the items were apparently an African American and an Asian.

I realize that an event for the working class, who spend their days laboring in the factories and restaurants and pay those occupational licensing fees that keep this town going, does not play well into the image of Berea that is promoted by the city.

Nonetheless, the Spoonbread Festival unarguably brings more people to town for those three days in September than any other.

It's a monumental feat that involves contributions from many local business people and much hard work from the tiny three member staff of the Chamber, not to mention the army of volunteers that gladly donate their time for this community event. Ask any local restaurateur; they can tell you about the welcome added business the festival brings. The city has certainly been an instrumental partner in bringing it this far. Seems like a no brainer to continue that support, especially since every dollar spent by those attendees is a shot in the arm of the local economy.

In the early years of the festival I was among the people who thought it would be another of those events to quickly go into decline and die a natural death. As it turns out the Spoonbread Festival continues to grow and has outlived all sorts of other attempts to draw people to Berea. It would be a shame to see it moved.

Invitation to join in communal walk/run

To the Editor and our fellow Bereans,

Since we arrived at Berea College, we have been emphasizing the value of regular exercise as one element of a healthy life. You may have heard that members of the college community get together a couple of mornings each week in order to walk or run together.

Of course, many members of the college community find other ways to be physically active, but many of us have enjoyed meeting at 7 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. We gather in the Seabury Athletic Center lobby and walk or run out along the Beebe-White bike trail toward the Artisan Center. Going that full distance results in a running round trip of a bit over four miles.

Others, mostly the walkers, go as far as Middletown School and turn around there for a round trip of two miles. Some community members have joined in this activity, and we just want all others to know that all are welcome.

There is something pretty special about the company of people you exercise with. (Leashed) pets are welcome, too. We usually provide bananas and granola bars, in case you need a little bit of extra fuel, and unless it is cold outside, we also put up a water station at Middletown School.

This group meets to run or walk throughout the fall semester, but takes a break from outdoor running from Christmas through Spring Break. We will resume on Tuesday, March 15, and continue until the end of the spring semester. We go in any and all weather conditions (except for thunderstorms), but the indoor track in Seabury Center is always available if outdoors seems to uncomfortable.

Please join us if you are so inclined,

Lyle and Laurie Roelofs
(and the other members of the BC Run Walk Club)

Thwart mass murder by abolishing gun free zones

Dear Editor,

We noted recently Ms. Myers' appeal for letters to the editor. Never to leave a damsel in distress, I once again lay down the plow and take up the pen to pass along a legislative item the community should let their servants in Frankfort know they support.

State Representative Tim Moore's House Bill 221 would end the reckless prohibition against concealed carry by permit holders in Kentucky's public schools and universities. There is another piece of legislation which has been authored in the house (HB-270) which is riddled with naive restrictions upon concealed carry in schools and universities.

As has been proven in many parts of the country (particularly by Stalinist politicians in DC and NYC as demonstrated with their well armed protection details), there isn't a warp in the space-time continuum over Walmart that makes concealed carry work perfectly fine there but somehow "dangerous" on school grounds.

The logical answer to thwarting mass murder is abolishing so-called "Gun Free" zones. As with the Democrat Party's unconstitutional "No Negroes" signs of the past, their "No Guns" signs belong upon the trash heap of history as well.

Ode to a Dandelion

Wonder about life, that amazing, wondrous affair that we take so for granted, incomprehensible and miraculous though it might be?

The dandelion is a case in point.
That plant that dares to raise its head in the least expected of places, whether in a crack in the pavement, in an otherwise solid green, manicured lawn, or even in a junk yard,
amongst ruined or antiquated parts.
All the dandelion seems to require is a wee bit of sun, soil and water for it to sprout and flourish.

The dandelion:
roots buried deep;
long, green toothed leaves held out to catch the dew;
sun-yellow, multi-layered, star-shaped flowers held high on slender stems waving in the breeze;
and, with time,
fragile puff-balls of seeds, each with a tiny parachute-stem to be flown far-afield by the wind-or children blowing.
All these parts,
perhaps save the seeds,
a vitamin rich source of nourishment for us other.

This dandelion, this "weed,"
the bane of mankind,
the scourge of gardeners everywhere who strive for neat perfection.

It dares arise anew seemingly obvious of the consequences
most likely meted out.

With so many starving in the world, we yank, poison, trod,
and otherwise do our darndest, to get rid of this simple,
and yet elegant, dandelion.
This tenacious, hardy source of beauty and nutritious food, suffers in silence (to our ears at least) as it is systematically killed.

Makes me wonder where our priorities lie.

Instead of celebrating and cherishing this wonder of life we try our best to destroy it.

But, perhaps I shouldn't be surprised at our wanton waste.
This is just a symptom that portrays other areas where we grab, drill and bulldoze to get what we want, regardless of consequential destruction or losses.

Tears flow for us all.
When will we wake up --?

The Alternate Director shall have the power and authority to participate and vote in matters of the Board of Directors or any committee established by the Board of Directors in the absence of the designated Director.

The Director and the Alternate Director must each be a member of the governing body or a senior management employee of the Member or the Member's electrical utility system.

Question: Risk and Reliability, Who Pays Cost if Wrong?

Amp Ohio with over 40 years in business, 129 members, all personnel in place to take care of all electric needs for Berea or any other members.

The bottom line is:

Over a 5 year period there will be very little difference in the cost of electricity no matter who sells it to Berea.

So why change something that isn't broken.

Look back over the years, we have enjoyed low cost, reliable service and a good track record.

Portions of the Proposed KMEA Ordinance

ORDINANCE 08-2015

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF BEREA, KENTUCKY, APPROVING AN INTERLOCAL COOPERATION AGREEMENT AUTHORIZING THE FORMATION AND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE KENTUCKY MUNICIPAL ENERGY AGENCY

Section 1. Creation of Joint Public Agency. That the formation, creation and establishment of a joint public agency pursuant to the Act, to be known as the "Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency", is hereby authorized and approved.

Section 2. Approval of Interlocal Cooperation Agreement. That the proposed Interlocal Cooperation Agreement (the "Agreement"), attached to the resolution as Exhibit A, forming, creating and establishing the Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency ("KMEA"), having been prepared and tendered to this City, is hereby approved, with such changes, insertions and omissions as the City's Mayor shall approve, such approval to be conclusively evidenced by the execution of said documents, in order to effectuate the purposes of this Ordinance; and the Mayor and City Clerk are hereby authorized to execute and acknowledge same for and on behalf of the City so that KMEA may constitute a joint public agency of which the City is a member thereof.

Section 3. Appointment of KMEA Representatives. That pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, the City hereby appoints and approves _____ as its representative and director to the KMEA Board of Directors and _____ as its alternate representative to the KMEA Board of Directors.

Section 4. KMEA Line of Credit. That the City recognizes that KMEA will need to establish credit to begin to operate and to review and initiate projects and coordinated actions for its members (the "Members") and hereby requests KMEA to establish a line of credit for its operations and initial activities in an amount not to exceed $5,000,000 (the "Line of Credit") for the purpose of funding KMEA's operations, projects and undertakings. The City recognizes and understands that KMEA's Members, including the City, will be assessed proportionally, from time to time, for the repayment of said Line of Credit all in accordance with the terms of the Agreement and the actions of the KMEA Board.

Section 5. City Officers Authorized to Execute Necessary Documents. That the Mayor, City Clerk and other officers of the City, be and are hereby authorized, on behalf of the City, to execute any and all documents, and to take whatever action, necessary to implement this Ordinance.

Section 6. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage and approval.

Question: Risk and Reliability, Who Pays Cost if Wrong?

Council was asked to approve the above ordinance.

These are reasons I moved to table the ordinance that would include Berea in the proposed Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency.

I have many concerns on the agreement that would make the City of Berea a partner in what has the potential to become a huge liability. We have been asked to agree to something that is all unknowns. We really have no idea of how much this could eventually cost or of how much savings, if any, the city would see.

The KEMA group is taking no risk. They would have a blank check for start up, they are not even able to say how much money they will need. All they seem to know for sure is that they want a five million dollar line of credit, to start.

The federal government has control over federal requirements, the EPA, and other government entities place on power plants. So, no one really has a fixed power cost. I don't believe there's anyone who'd be able to say what the costs will be in 2019.

I see this proposal as too risky for the citizens of Berea. We would take on all the risks and unknowns for what MAY BE a small savings somewhere down the road.

I feel good that Berea is financially sound, I want to keep it that way. Think about that five million dollar line of credit, we as a city and any of the others who sign on to this agreement will have to guarantee the loan.

At the time I voted not to renew the contract with KU, I expected that we as a city would go to other power providers including KU and negotiate. I never dreamed somebody would want to start a whole new company, with all the unknowns and try to sell it to us.

After an ordinance is passed we would not be able to walk away from the agreement or just say, "We want out," until all indebtedness and obligations are cleared up. A thing like this is so easy to get in to, getting out could be costly.

MY question: If this was you personally, investing your own money, would you be interested in this deal?

Jerry Little

Foot note: After all that has happened, was it really about getting lower cost, clean energy, etc. for the members or was it about starting a new agency?

I ask this is because of some of the reasons we were told for wanting to start the new Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency (KMEA).

- 1.) a nonprofit pays no income tax (saves money)
- 2.) buying power in groups (saves money)
- 3.) sharing cost of administration (saves money)
- 4.) sharing cost of consultants and lawyers (saves money)
- 5.) not going it alone gets better terms (saves money)

of their house, and the wholesale bakery sells products through stores, restaurants and farmer's markets. They have created a successful business doing something they love that provides their livelihood.

Their story reflects a current trend in American employment, according to Peter Hackbert of the Entrepreneurship for the Common Good program at Berea College.

"We are becoming independent businesses and not dependent on an employer," Hackbert said.

People create freelance businesses by sharing their marketable skills.

Hackbert points out another local model of this type of entrepreneurship: the mini mall/antique booths. Berea has at least five such establishments.

"We know that 25% of people in Berea are under the poverty line. Every one of the people that rents a booth is an entrepreneur, and this kind of 'survival' entrepreneur provides an important revenue stream for the household," Hackbert said.

Hackbert sees lots of potential for these freelance businesses in Berea. The Arts Accelerator program model, where freelancers share space, could be expanded for a variety of businesses. One example is a place for knowledge workers like accountants, web developers, writers, and graphic designers. Besides offering support and saving money by sharing resources, they could work with each other on ideas and jobs.

There are some principles echoed by Elliott, Windland, Hackbert, and other experts in business development that provide a window into how these businesses could rise up in Berea.

One characteristic of these freelance businesses is that they follow an organic growth pattern. Clementine's began by baking in a home kitchen and selling at farmer's markets, and has expanded gradually through the help of a Kentucky State University small producer grant and a loan to add a certified kitchen.

This growth pattern is echoed in a new feasibility study for the Berea Farmer's Market, an outlet for many local freelancers. Nathan Routt of the Kentucky Center for Agriculture and Rural Development concluded that the market is currently ready for a permanent location with a covered pavilion. There is also potential for the market to grow to include into a year-round retail space with cold storage and a commercial kitchen, over time and in response to customer demand.

These freelance businesses also are more dependent on partnerships than competition for their success.

Elliott points out, "When the restaurants and stores where we sell our products are successful, it makes us more successful, too."

Routt notes that for the continued growth of the Farmer's Market, partnerships with the City, College, and local businesses are a real key. In the mini mall/antique store model, each vendor depends on the success of the other vendors in the store to help attract customers.

Both Hackbert and Elliott agree that businesses in Berea have to reach a market beyond just Berea, whether that is visitors to town or to neighboring communities. While Clementine's sells locally at Happy Meadow and the Farmer's Market, their largest outlet is Market on Main in Somerset.

Also, those creating their own employment need to do their homework. Hackbert has his students do research by talking with potential customers and other businesses in the field. The City offers an entrepreneur class that helps local freelancers make the step to open a business. Elliott and Windland admit a little sheepishly that they have never taken an entrepreneur class or done any market research because they are too busy baking. But they have a mentor at a wholesale bakery in Washington that has generously shared his successful business model and information.

One of the largest barriers to people taking on the freelance model, Hackbert notes, is health insurance. Elliott & Windland have found the Kynect system helpful in finding an affordable insurance plan as they grow their business.

Hackbert has the idea that Berea could become known as a town of experimentation and innovation. Assets like the solar farm, the local food movement, the working artist studios, and workshops offered throughout the year are a solid foundation. But the potential of adding numerous freelancers in creative clusters around Berea could create a more hip and edgy college town where people want to live and visit.

SINGERS

have been joined this year with seventh graders Trinity Strong and Kaylee Kapp, and eighth grader, Kyleigh Jackson.

Tate sent in seven auditions from her choir students, and the above six students were selected.

There were 1,200 auditions total sent in from schools across Kentucky, and only 200 were selected for the All-State Choir. The students selected for the All-State Choir, including the six Farristown students, performed at the KMEA (Kentucky Music Educators Association) conference on February 4 in Louisville.

Kyleigh, Trinity and Kaylee described the experience of performing with the most talented young singers in Kentucky as "overwhelming, but in a good way."

"You connect to people with your voice," Trinity said.

The process of performing at the KMEA conference is a grueling one, with the 200 students cramming rehearsals in for two days before the performance. The choirs perform five songs each. The music is sent to the All-State students ahead of time, so they can prepare for the performance, but this year the music was sent after Christmas break.

"Last year I practiced during Christmas break," Andrew said, "but this year I couldn't because we hadn't received the music yet."

Andrew had a particularly difficult assignment, in his participation with the mixed chorus. They had to learn one African tune in the native language, so it was challenging to work on the pronunciation as well as the music. The music the students performed at KMEA was a mix of spiritual, contemporary, festival, and other musical genres.

The audition tapes were sent in last October, so the Farristown students had to wait a few months to see if they were chosen for the All-State choir. One of them groaned that it was, "forever! We had to wait forever!" to find out if they would indeed be one of the 200 selected.

All six of the Farristown singers plan to continue their work in music, and a few of the eighth graders are interested in pursuing drama as well when they graduate to Madison Southern. Then they can audition for the musicals at the school, they said.

Serenity and Trinity also play piano, and for Serenity that is as big a passion as singing.

"It was such a great experience," Erica said, with the fervent agreement of her fellow Farristown singers.

Road, and on the website.

Todd Ritter from the Division of Water also sent a letter, confirming that BMU has not exceeded the lead and copper action levels for the 2015 monitoring period.

In other business:

- The Berea City Council approved a resolution to accept the $500,000 CDBG (Community Development Block Grant) for the renovation and construction of the Berea Fire Station on Chestnut Street.

- The City of Berea met with Madison County Fiscal Court to discuss work on the state roads that are within city limits. It was decided that the county would be responsible for secondary state roads within Berea, such as Highway 595 or 1016. The state would be responsible for Highway 21 and Highway 25 within the City of Berea.

- Connelly signed a proclamation recognizing the achievements of the Madison Southern High School cheerleaders, who placed second in the Large Varsity Division II competition in Florida, the highest a team from Madison County has ever placed at the varsity level.

- City Council heard the first reading of the updated ordinance regulating alcohol sales within the City of Berea. The state requested that they carefully define "open bar," which is prohibited within Berea's ordinance. The ordinance now states that, "any area for serving alcohol must be operated in connection with a restaurant . . . must be directly connected with a dining room and must be only a service area for patrons of the restaurant." An open bar is "a bar with unlimited alcohol sales; a facility that sells alcohol without food; or not purchased "in conjunction with a meal."

- Council heard the first reading of the amended 2015-16 budget.

the quality of the water in Berea, because of the situation in Flint, Michigan. He spoke to Ed Fortner, the director of the Berea Municipal Utilities (BMU), who reported that BMU is in compliance with all EPA and Kentucky Division of Water regulations, including lead and copper.

"BMU is actually under 'reduced monitoring' status with the rule," Fortner reported, because of past testing results, where BMU's water were well below the allowed lead limit of 0.015 mg/L. BMU's water came in at 0.002 mg/L.

Fortner wrote that residents were welcome to review the annual Consumer Confidence Report that details the results of the water quality monitoring. The report is available at BMU's office on Harrison Culbreth, who created the Berea Christmas Parade, Walk with the Arts, and the Red Lick Valley Artisan Studio Tour, received a standing ovation when she was announced the Artist of the Year. Criteria for the award included devoting time to practice and/or perform one or more art disciplines, enhancing their own skills and professional development, promoting of themselves as an artist, and impacting the Berea community in a positive manner.

Spotlight on Local First Responders

Meet Jared Rigsby, a firefighter on C Shift with the Berea Fire Department.

it during my second year in college when I switched my major to fire science.

When did you first consider becoming a firefighter? What drew you to the profession? I have always thought about firefighting growing up around the fire house. But I would say I started to seriously consider

What is the most rewarding part of being a firefighter? Getting to help and serve the community where I was born and raised. Berea being a small town, you can actually see the difference you are making every day.

What is the strangest situation you've ever faced in your job? Responded to a structure fire on Big Hill Road. The guy was trying to light his fireplace with gas. There was a small explosion that caught the dog on fire, who ran to the back bedroom and caught that end of the house on fire. The dog survived.

Tell us about your family. I'm married, and my wife, Allie, is a paramedic at Madison County EMS. I have a three-year-old son, Parker. My father retired as chief at Berea Fire Department in 2009.

What is difficult about being a firefighter? For me, it's being away from my family every third day. Every third day doesn't sound that bad until you've done it for a couple of years and you see how much you can truly miss.

Tell us something that most people wouldn't know about you. I like to go rock climbing, and I'm learning to play the piano.

"Environmental Hero" to Speak at Berea College

Physicist and philosopher Dr. Vandana Shiva, who has been called an environmental "hero" by Time Magazine, will be speaking Thursday at a Berea College convocation at 3 p.m. in Phelps Stokes Chapel.

Shiva, the director of the Navdanya seed-saving network in northern India, will speak on Making Peace with the Earth at the Berea College convo on March 3. Shiva will discuss the role that women play in preserving the eco-balance of the world's food system.

Dr. Shiva's visit to Berea is co-sponsored by the convocations program and by the Berea College Women's & Gender Studies department, which is observing its 25th anniversary during 2016.

Shiva is the author of more than 20 books, and was identified by Forbes magazine as one of the "Seven Most Powerful Women on the Globe" for changing the practice and paradigms of agriculture and food.

In 1991, Shiva founded Navdanya, a national movement to protect the diversity and integrity of living resources – especially native seed – and to promote organic farming and fair trade. For the last two decades, Navdanya has worked with local communities and organizations, serving more than 500,000 men and women farmers, resulting in the conservation of more than 3,000 varieties of rice from across India. The organization has established 60 seed banks in 16 states across the country.

Charles said, who grew up next to White Station in Madison County.

Charles, who will turn 90 on March 10, has lived in Madison County his entire life, except for a few years where he lived in Ohio and worked in construction. He attended Slick Rock Elementary, a one-room schoolhouse, before attending Madison High in Richmond.

When comparing his years growing up in the early 1930s to the present, he said with a grin, "we sure didn't have all these blacktop roads!" He grew up on a farm that his stepfather rented, since his father passed away before he turned one year old. His two older siblings have already passed away, but he still has a half brother and a few half sisters still living.

Charles, whose mother's name was Mary Ballenger, dropped out of school after eighth grade to help out on his stepdad's farm, where they raised tobacco and corn. He also took odd jobs, and eventually worked as a carpenter's assistant. That became his trade, and he made furniture and cabinets out of a little shop in his garage as a side business.

In 1957, Charles was hired by Berea College as a supervisor in facilities management. He worked there for 38 years, and remembers making $1.25 an hour when he was first hired. He and his wife, Edna McHone, already had one child, Carolyn, who was nine when Charles took the job at Berea College. A year later their son, Kenny, was born.

Along with work and family, Charles' life has revolved around the church. Early in his 20s, he received a call to ministry from God. He assisted Elmer Barrett at Bearwallow Holiness Church, and eventually took over as pastor; he continues to preach to this day.

Church, he said, has been his favorite thing along with spending time with his family. He leads a church service at The Terrace on Tuesday nights, preaches at Bearwallow a few nights a week, and will visit neighboring churches on the other nights. A very sprightly nonagenarian, Charles expresses gratitude to God for his continuing good health and energy.

He has lived with his son, Kenny and their family for 20 years off of Highway 1016, near the Bobtown area. Though it isn't always easy having three generations in the same household, it has been a positive experience for all of them, and Charles enjoys spending time with his grandchildren. Kenny said his dad has always been careful about interfering with their parenting, and will "leave the room," when they're about to issue a punishment.

Growing up, Kenny said their family didn't take a vacation because the church kept them so busy, but once he got a driver's license he took his mother to Florida. Fortunately, Kenny said, he was able to do this before she died. Years later, he was finally able to pull his dad away from the church so he could take a vacation as well.

Kenny remembers attending one of the revivals with his father when he was very young. They didn't have a lot of money, so when Kenny saw the collection plate getting passed around, he thought that looked like a good way to make some extra cash.

"I went around and took a collection for myself," Kenny said, "and when we got home Dad had a discussion with me."

Kenny said their father wouldn't spank them, but would sit down and have long discussions about their actions, and the consequences.

"By the time he was done, I wished he would have just given me a whooping," Kenny said smiling.

But a "whopping" wasn't quite the discipline style of his gentle father, Kenny said.

The next day, Kenny went back to the revival, and on the instruction of his father, tried to return the money. The church attenders, however, wouldn't take the money back.

Charles regrets not being able to work the way he used to, but is grateful that he can continue with his ministry at Bearwallow.

"I really enjoy meeting people," Charles said, as he thinks about his work at the college, and at the church. "I never meet a stranger."

Photos Submitted

For the first time ever, swimmers from Berea earned medals at regional competition, and advanced to the state swim meet to earn points. At Regionals in Barbourville on Feb. 12-13, Flanary Patterson placed 1st in diving and Brandon Turner placed 3rd in the 100 breaststroke, giving them entry to the State Swim Meet this past Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 25-27 in Louisville. There they both scored points, with Flanary placing third in diving at state, and Brandon placing 15th in the 100 yard breaststroke. The Madison Southern swim coach is John Stratman. Other swimmers from Southern competed well, and even broke school records, at the Region 8 Swim Meet at Stivers Aquatic Center in Barbourville. Preliminary competition was held on Friday, Feb. 12, and the top 16 swimmers from each event returned on Saturday for the final competition. Swimmers who returned on Saturday for finals, and set new school records, were Megan Frontz, Ally Bowling, Flanary Patterson and Lainey Patterson for the girls 200 Medley Relay; Brandon Turner for the 200 Individual Medley, and the 100 Breaststroke; Brandon Turner; Matt Devere, Carter Smith, Brandon Turner and Ben Gilliam for the Boys 200 Free Relay; and Megan Frontz, Ally Bowling, Flanary Patterson and Lainey Patterson for the girls 200 free relay. Flanary Patterson broke a school record in diving. Other swimmers returning for finals were Lainey Patterson in diving; Carter Smith, Ben Gilliam, Ryan Branstutter and Paul Frantz for boys 400 free relay; and Courtney Baktis, Hannah Robinson, Kyla Lloyd and Brooke Tompkins for the girls 400 free relay. Hannah Robinson broke the school record for the 100 Butterfly. Competing in the state meet were Lainey Patterson, ranked 19th in diving, Flanary Patterson, ranked 1st in diving, and Brandon Turner, ranked 15th in 100 Breaststroke. Brandon was also the 1st alternate in the 200 Individual Medley.

Mary Hayes said, "Stuff from the 70s and 80s. Rock and Roll. You can understand every bit of it. It makes sense."

Rachel Caltagerone said, "Folk. I think it has a good vibe and it usually means something. It's not just words." Paul Caltagerone said, "Reggae. It's just calm and collected and it talks about good times."

Homemakers Learn About Early Signs for Heart Attacks

The Silver Creek Homemakers Febuary meeting was a lot of fun with 20 members present along with two visitors, Gayle Powell and Jennifer Gergen, that we welcomed. Peggy Brookshire brought our awareness to Febuary's Heart Health Month and spoke about early signs for women of heart attacks. They can be quite different than those for men. Women should talk to their doctor if they have acid reflux more than once a week; that could be a beginning stage of heart trouble. Our main lesson on "Communicating Essentials" was given by Marian Abbott. She gave us a few tips on active listening, which is actively trying to understand what the other person is trying to communicate to you. There are four parts of listening: 1. Hearing - the physical processes of taking in sound; 2. Interpreting - the process of finding meaning in what is being communicated; 3. Evaluating - determining the significance of what's being said; and 4. Responding - the act of replying or answering back. Body language is particularly important because of how you are perceived. It is the unspoken message being expressed. When you are speaking it is important to keep and maintain eye contact with someone. Give a smile, it shows confidence. We hope you have enjoyed these small tips of life's lessons. We invite you to be a part of Silver Creek Homemakers. It meets the first Thursday of each month at the UK Extension office on Duncannon Lane in Richmond. If you have any questions please call 859-623-4072.

Berea is much like the Madison County Public Library

Shelf Notes
Ruthie Maslin, Madison Co. Library

As I was sitting in an amazing and exciting meeting this week with Dr. Chris Green, Director of the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center at Berea College, it struck me how much Berea is like the Madison County Public Library.

Even though I go to work at the library every day, walk countless steps around the buildings, sign off on every bill for every book that's ordered to fill the shelves, still, every day I discover some new gem of a book I can't wait to read.

And Berea is like that for me.

Case in point: I can't tell you how many times I have driven by the building, parked in front of it, even taken my nieces and nephews in for after school tutoring, but yesterday was the first time I was in the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center. And it blew my mind.

What a gem right in the heart of Berea! The moment I walked through the doors, I was immediately hooked. From the famous Dolly Parton pinball machine to the massive relief map of the Appalachian Mountains, to the colorful, exquisite, packed-with-information displays, I couldn't get enough.

Dr. Green is a big part of the appeal as well. During our whole meeting, his smile and enthusiasm never dimmed. We were there to plan our community celebration of the work created by Madison Countians as part of Kentucky Poet Laureate George Ella Lyon's "Where I'm From: A Poetry of Place" project that is collecting poems from all 120 Kentucky counties this spring.

It was Dr. Libby Falk Jones, BC English professor, who brought us all together for this meeting. Last fall, some of her creative writing students collaborated with students in dance and graphic design to create these wonderful multimedia "Where I'm From" performance pieces. As she and I were talking about the project and the community celebration, she asked, "What about the Appalachian Center?" It was a perfect suggestion.

After our meeting wrapped up, Dr. Green gave MCPL Adult Program Coordinator Athena Gentry and I the grand tour. I must say, I did not want to leave the Faber Library and those beautiful shelves flush with the richness of Appalachian writing.

But he urged us onward and upward to meet the talented Chris Miller, Associate Director and Curator for the center, and the creative mind behind those amazing displays, who gave us a tour of the archived collection housed in a climate controlled room for preservation.

Athena and I were like kids in a candy shop, exclaiming with delight over the treasures carefully cataloged and archived there. The rows of tiny leather boots, shelves of iron cooking pots, and rolls of vintage textiles – it was sheer joy.

One of the things I love about Berea is the continual pleasure of discovery. Yes, I had visited the old Appalachian Center as part of an Appalachian Studies class some 25 years ago. And I have been a huge fan of Loyal Jones for decades. But it was just this week that I made this new discovery of a place that celebrates his years of work with the center.

As I explored the Center's website, my joy of discovery deepened. So many of my favorite programs are part of the Center – Grow Appalachia and the Brushy Fork Institute, Appalachian Heritage Literary Journal, and the Celebration of Traditional Music.

And the Associated Faculty – wow! Silas House, Crystal Wilkinson, bell hooks, and Chad Berry – such a wealth of talent and resources for the campus and the community.

I encourage you to check out the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center and discover all that it has to offer. It is located in Stephenson Hall, 205 North Main St., close to the Chestnut Street intersection. And I hope you will join us on April 11 at 7 PM at the Center for "Madison County, Kentucky's Where I'm From: A Poetry of Place" celebration.

In the meantime, the Madison County Public Library in partnership with Sustainable Berea, the Berea Neighborhood Food Project, Grow Appalachia, and others, is presenting an exciting new monthly gardening series on the third Tuesday of each month at 6:30 PM.

This month's session on March 15 is extra special, as we will feature Lisa Hilgenberg, Horticulturist at the Chicago Botanical Garden's 3.8-acre fruit and vegetable garden that last year produced 3 tons of fruit and vegetables. Lisa will be presenting a session at 10 AM at the Richmond library branch that day and 7 PM at the Berea branch that evening. The evening session is actually a "double-header," with the very popular "AppalSeeds Heirloom Seed Starting Workshop" at 6 PM that evening in Berea. The AppalSeeds workshop will be held at the Richmond branch on March 17 at 6:30 PM.

Separate registration is required for these events, and you can register through the "Events Calendar" on the library's website, www.madisonlibrary.org.

There are lots of exciting activities happening at the Madison County Public Library, and I hope I will see you here soon!

George Ella Lyon Honored as Kentucky Poet Laureate for 2015-16, George Ella Lyon is on a mission to find a poem from every county in her project "Where I'm From." Lyon first began writing poems in elementary school. While attending Centre College in Danville, Kentucky she discovered that writing was what she loved most during her study of English and music. Her love for music and words have been an inspiration to many as she teaches the impact and power that words have in expressing and connecting the hearts of both readers and writers.

"Though I write in many forms, I am first of all a poet; which means my job is to see and sing the connections between things. The spider's web is a delicious image for this and for the wonder of something newly made from old patterns, like the sentences writers spin each day. The strength of my web comes from family, friends, words, music, dreams, mountains, and the joy of making. Think about the life you are spinning and how you could write about its different strands."

Charles Bracelen Flood was the author of fifteen books, many of which were critically acclaimed, including Lee: The Last Years and First to Fly: The Story of the Lafayette Escadrille. He wrote a number of books on historic figures, including Robert E. Lee and William T. Sherman. His short pieces were published in magazines, including The New Yorker, The Atlantic and Esquire. The Washington Post had this to say about Grant and Sherman - The Friendship That Won the Civil War, it was "beautifully defined and explored... a powerful and illuminating study of the military collaboration that won the war for the Union." "Mr. Flood's versatility is impressive..." wrote New York Times Janet Maslin.

Flood graduated from Harvard and was a member of Archibald MacLeish's noted creative writing seminar. He was a past president of PEN America Center and served on the governing bodies of the Authors League and Authors Guild. Flood was born and raised in New York City, spending much of his life there. Much later in life he lived with his wife, Katherine, in Richmond, Kentucky until his death in 2014.

Lucy Flood will be presenting works of her late father Charles Bracelen Flood. She is an editor specializing in helping writers and artists ignite their creative fire, and write from the heart of their artistic inspiration. She lives with her husband in the Bay Area and enjoys writing at dusk on the patio of her favorite creek-side café. One thing she misses about Kentucky is watching fireflies flash against a dark sky. She is the author of the forthcoming novel The Way Minnows Kiss.

Chamber, City Lock Horns Over Spoonbread Festival

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The ancient conflict between independent, private enterprise and governmental regulation has sprung up this past week in Berea over what is fast becoming one of the biggest annual events in town – the Spoonbread Festival.

Both conventional media and social media have been hot the last several days, as people weigh in on the issue of whether the City of Berea should or could require the Berea Chamber of Commerce to screen the merchandise that is sold by their vendors at their signature fall festival. The particular item the city wants screened out– the Confederate battle flag – has brought even more heat to the conflict.

“I’m afraid the media frenzy is creating a bigger issue out of the Confederate flag than it really is,” Jennifer Napier, the president of the Berea Chamber said. “The flag has become the pawn in this. It’s really about our concern with government control over a private entity.”

In the past, the City of Berea has issued a two-page contract to the Chamber for the Spoonbread Festival, outlining the guidelines for spending the $5,000 grant they have received annually

Fiscal Court Discusses Trucks on County Roads

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Maintenance of county roads became a topic at the Madison County Fiscal Court meeting in Berea on Tuesday, when Magistrate John Tudor expressed concern about the heavy trucks that were tearing up Hunter Lane.

“I’m wondering if there’s something we can do, require them to bond the road or something like that, because we have to keep repairing them as they are torn up,” Tudor said.

Magistrates Roger Bargner and Larry Combs said they remembered considering putting weight limits on trucks years ago, but that was for subdivision roads.

Judge Reagan Taylor pointed out that if they were going to put weight limits on county roads, there could be an expense to the county.

“What’s the cost to get an engineer out here to do an estimate,” Taylor said. “We need to check into that. But we’re all in agreement that we need to look into it.”

Magistrate Tom Botkin asked the public to help the recent epidemic of road signs being stolen or vandalized by keeping their eye out and calling

Mitchell Tolle’s prints will soon be sold at the Dinner Bell gift shop, which Charles and his wife, Marilyn, have rebranded and re-envisioned. They will be holding an open house for the shop on April 8 from 5 - 8 p.m., where Tolle, Sr., will unveil his newest painting. They will also be selling Tator Knob pottery, arts and crafts from Gallery 123, fair trade art, and Warren Brunner’s books.

Dinner Bell Gift Shop to Sell Local Art & Fair Trade

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Mitchell Tolle prints, Tator Knob pottery, fair trade crafts, old fashioned candy . . . these are only some of the new items Bereans can expect at the rebranded and re-envisioned gift shop of Dinner Bell Restaurant.

The official presentation of this new Berea gift store will take place next month, at the open house on April 8 from 5 - 8 p.m., and will include not only the unveiling of a brand-new Mitchell Tolle painting, but also a give-away of a clay bell crafted by Sarah Culbreth of Tator Knob. Charles and Marilyn Arnold, who purchased the Dinner Bell several months ago, envision this new store as another gateway into the arts and crafts heart of Berea.

“This is a bit out of our realm,” Charles said, “but we’re having loads of fun.”

The Arnolds have owned and managed the Berea Subways since they were first built, but this is their first foray both into restauranting and retail.

Luna Zorro Opens on Chestnut

By Critley King
Citizen Reporter

Recently, the City of Berea said “Hello” to Luna Zorro, a new art gallery and store located on Chestnut St. that according to owner and artist Kayla Harned is all about Appalachian themes and being resourceful.

Harned explained that the whole gallery is based around light and how it fuels the earth, plants, and animals. The store slogan is, “Let the earth fuel you and the light guide you.”

“All of it (the art) has a Kentucky feel and all pieces are uniquely made,” said Harned, who has a strong connection to Kentucky and Berean roots, having lived here since second grade.

Harned said she began wanting to open a gallery after attending EKU as an art education major. She wanted to teach children art, but in a different way than she has seen.

“Art had really helped me in my path and in discovering things,” said Harned. “It helped me look at the world in a better way.”

Harned then switched her focus to printmaking.

The idea behind Luna Zorro began at the Spoonbread Festival, where Harned and her fiancé/business partner Tim Harding had a booth. Around the same time Harned and Harding were looking for an apartment in Berea and happened upon 408 Chestnut St.

“I just saw all the potential,” Harned said.

In the folksy yet hip feeling space, visitors will find a wide variety of artistic medium and experiments.

“I do up-cycled jewelry with copper,” said Harned. “Of course the main focus here is printmaking. It is a traditional art that I love. There are also paintings, and pillow making.”

The couple forewent other jobs to focus on their start-up, with Harned mainly doing the drawings and conceptual production and

Library, Sustainable Berea Partner on Gardening Series

By Kim Kobersmith
Citizen Reporter

Gardeners and wannabes have an opportunity to learn from an expert next week.

The Berea Library and Sustainable Berea are collaborating on an educational workshop series called “How Does Your Garden Grow?” The series will kick off March 15 at the library with Lisa Hilgenberg, horticulturist at the Chicago Botanic Garden’s 3.8-acre Regen-stein Fruit & Vegetable Garden.

Titled “Urban Gardening: Make the Most of the Space You Have,” Hilgenberg will share about site selection, soil health, starting seeds, information on growing specific vegetables, and making the most of your square footage.

Hilgenberg has vegetable gardening in her blood: her family’s Century Farm heritage dates to 1881. In 2015, the Regen-stein Garden’s 55,000 plants produced a harvest of three tons of fresh fruits and vegetables.

She grows everything from herbs to fruit trees, and according to Cheyenne Olson with Sustainable Berea, it is beautiful as well. “Espaliered apple trees grow against walls, lettuces grow six feet up in boxes, and foods and flowers wrap in circles.”

The information will be adaptable to all sizes of gardens. The library asks that people make reservations for the class on the website at www.madisonlibrary.org or by phone at 859-986-7112.

Other classes in the series will be held on the third Tuesdays. The April 19 class on planting raised beds will be hands-on at the Berea Urban Farm. It will cover how to transplant, when

One of her favorite activities was writing feature stories about exceptional and interesting Bereans, as well as famous people who were guests of Berea College convocations. She enjoyed being a reporter because she could do it from home while enjoying being there for her three children.

Known for her warm and charming personality, Jean often took flowers she grew to shut-ins or people in the hospital and nursing homes.

She was preceded in death by her parents, William and Ruth Clark; and her husband of 55 years, Jack W. Engle.

Jean is survived by her children, Joan E. Keith and her husband, James Lee Keith; Judy (Tim Hiscock) E. Groleau, and Jack C. Engle; seven grandchildren, Joseph Keith, Krista Lewis, Christopher Groleau, Kelley Groleau, Megan Groleau, Jessica Engle, and Justin Engle; and two great grandchildren.

Services took place at 3 p.m. on Monday at Davis & Powell Funeral Home with Revs. Mark and Lisa Cardwell-Reis officiating.

Burial followed in the Berea Cemetery. Jean was a member of First Christian Church where expressions of sympathy may be made to the Building Fund of First Christian Church 206 Chestnut Street, Berea, Kentucky 40403. www.davisandpowellfuneralhome.com

What Do You Know? The photo to the right from Warren Brunner's archives show what appears to be a crafts fair, with then Governor Martha Layne Collins and Al Smith. Can anyone identify who the other three people are, and what the local event may have been? Or have any other information to share?

RESPONSE TO PHOTO FROM LAST WEEK

A few different people called in about the photo that appeared last week, of three men with one driving a truck. The driver, according to callers, was Carl (Snake) Roberts who was driving a milk truck for Southern Belle. It was around 1969. The two men with him were John Wayne Alcorn on the right, and Roger Jones on the left from Gabbardtown. They used to play music together.

From our readers

Keeping a community and its members thriving

Dear Editor,

The editorial by Teresa Scenters in last week's Citizen was full of name-calling and blaming, but sadly contained no real reliable information. Thank goodness people were concerned enough to seek out other sources with better information before jumping on that bandwagon! I hope that the next time Scenters picks up her pen she can find a way to provide factual information to support her statements. It would save a lot of people a lot of scurrying around.

I may misunderstand her intentions, but it appears to me that the bottom line of the whole thing is that Scenters is afraid to see any change in the Spoonbread Festival, even changes that might make the SBF a safer and more friendly event for all concerned, or that might bring a new sense of integrity to the situation. I gather she believes that accommodating some individuals would necessarily trample the rights of other individuals. While I can agree that change is sometimes scary, and that sometimes in the course of change some people don't get to have everything their usual way, I heartily believe that instituting structure and accommodations where they have been lacking can be positive for everyone concerned. I suspect that those holding most tightly to the tradition of the last six years or so will eventually discover that they haven't been hurt at all by the Mayor's new guidelines.

That said, in the bigger picture, I am intrigued by the relationships between communities and individuals because there are so many complicating and difficult factors. How can an individual's uniqueness be honored and utilized by the community to which she belongs? Who belongs to what community and by whose decree? Who doesn't belong in a particular community and what does that mean for that individual and that community? And a very primary question in Berea these days, when the larger community group includes a variety of smaller communities with differing sets of values, how can the larger community sustain itself, and specifically, how can it put to good use all of the qualities available in the smaller groups so that the larger community continues to thrive?

To keep the conversation going in a productive and healthy way, and to help me (and other interested Bereans) come to a better understanding about these issues, I intend to host a two-part forum during which I will do short presentations followed by discussion. My perspective comes from a blend of deep ecology, occupational science, and spiritual traditions, which together provide a framework that I and others have found useful for solving problems. I would love for a variety of points of view to be represented at both meetings of this forum, so that as many as possible perspectives can be included in how we think about the community of Berea. This forum is on the schedule for the community room at the public library on April 10 and April 24 from 2-4 PM. Stay tuned for more information closer to that time.

Publisher's Note: I'm not sure what Ms. Gailey interpreted as name calling in the opinion piece I wrote last week. Maybe I too misinterpret her intentions, but it seems to me she is impugning my integrity and without using the word, calling me a liar. Just to keep the record straight, there were no untruths in that column. None of us wants anyone to feel unsafe at the festival or anywhere else. In my mind, this edict from city hall is just another assault on First Amendment rights, and a case of political correctness run amok. We can agree to disagree.

Please continue the Spoonbread Festival

Dear Editor,

This is an open letter to Mayor Connelly and the Berea City Council:

I am writing this in response to the headlines in both the Berea Citizen and the Richmond Register. It appears to me that a small, vocal group is causing the Mayor to prepare a resolution directed to the Chamber of Commerce which seems to threaten to cut off support for the Spoonbread Festival. I want to let everyone know that I fully support the efforts of those leaders and volunteers which have worked so hard to make sure we have a successful festival each year.

I have been a participant/vendor in the Spoonbread Festival for several years now. I see more and more people attending the festival each year. The festival has grown more than anyone really expected in the formative years. I would challenge anyone to find a restaurant, motel, or service station which has not benefited greatly each year the festival has been held. It has been a personal benefit to me. I have enjoyed meeting many people over the years and being able to show and sell some of my craft. I can't pay the mortgage with my sells, but I have been very happy with my sells each year.

I understand that the Confederate Flag and/or items showing the flag is the big issue. In my opinion, the more attention given to this, the more some will want to show this silly emblem of the past. Kentucky was a border state, never a part of the confederacy. Sure Kentuckians fought on both sides of this useless war. I had ancestors on both sides. But that war ended long ago, and anything pertaining to it should be put in the past except as a part of history books and museums. We are the United States of America, and should be proud to fly only the American flag, Old Glory!

It is my hope that everyone will continue to support the Chamber of Commerce and its leaders, and that we will continue to have a successful 2016 Spoonbread Festival. Please do not let this exceptionally successful event come to an end by regulating it out of existence.

Make Energy Decision Based on Facts

Dear Editor,

When, before, has a council member taken out a full-page ad in this paper for any purpose other than to seek reelection?

It was quite surprising to see councilman Jerry Little's ad related to choosing Berea's next wholesale electric power provider, a decision that is now being debated. It is clear that councilman Little is either passionate about his already formed decision - to go with Kentucky Utilities (KU) no matter what the facts may dictate - or he has been co-opted by others who want to see KU get the contract. Perhaps it is some of each. Just as he has shouted and belittled others in meetings about this process, he now wants to shout at the rest of the community via this paper. Is this the way to make such a critical decision on the future of our city?

A few other council members appear to be carefully evaluating the facts that are placed before them. I hope their decisions will be guided only by those facts. Other council members have been conspicuous by their absence or apparent disinterest in THE most critical decision the council will make for many, many years. Have these council members already made their decisions without consideration of the facts? Will they just vote along with whoever shouts the loudest? Either action is unacceptable of those we've elected to make decisions for our benefit.

Reliability and cost are the most important considerations in a choice of electric provider. When it comes to reliability and cost, I must turn to Berea's consultants who have a long history of working with our city evaluating these critical aspects. The consultants consider the Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency (KyMEA) to be superior to KU on both cost and risk. Those who make electric power decisions for the ten cities that are currently part of KyMEA also carefully considered the alternatives and they are convinced that KyMEA is a better choice on all fronts than is KU. (Yes, they also considered going with AMP Ohio, which Mr. Little mentioned.) Some of these cities have dedicated power boards or staff whose total job is focused on the best electric power decisions for their communities. Is Mr. Little right and ten other cities wrong?

I have observed multiple KyMEA meetings and I am confident that their processes, guidelines and strategies are all robust and in the best interests of their respective communities. Mr. Little has never attended a meeting, so it is possible he is acting out of fear of the unknown. It is clear from some of the things he's said and read that KU - or some other invested party - has been feeding him their versions of the "facts." Is that appropriate? Is that the way we contract for services in our city?

Contact your council members, today. Tell them you expect them to make their own, thoroughly evaluated decisions and NOT simply to listen to the loudest voice in the room. This decision is too important.

Let free enterprise reign

Dear Editor,

In 1977 a group of neo-Nazis wanted to hold a protest march in Skokie, Illinois. The city government denied the request and the Nazi organizers appealed to the ACLU. The ACLU sued the village of Skokie and after appealing all the way to the Supreme Court, they and their Nazi clients prevailed.

In a 1978 article titled Skokie as Symbol, author Jean Caffey Lyles says this about defending First Amendment principles, "Skokie is a disturbing symbol to remind us that the shallowness of our commitment to those principles could ultimately jeopardize the rights of all of us. In the midst of the heated debate that is sweeping through our community regarding the rebel flag we need to ask ourselves if we are guilty of holding a shallow or worse, selective, commitment to civil rights."

Underlying this issue seems to be a self-righteous smugness that says, "My values are superior to yours." I have heard people who oppose the sale of rebel flag memorabilia say it does not represent our community's values. That's odd because I don't remember a referendum on collective community values being passed.

Our values are subjective, and more diverse than we could ever determine. I don't know any two people, never mind an entire community, who share exactly the same values. For somebody to hold the moral high ground because their values are better than those opposing them is to say, "I know what is in your heart." To hold that view is to be guilty of the worst kind of hubris. It is arrogant, judgmental, intolerant and dismissive, not to mention elitist.

The only thing we can say with certainty about the rebel flag is that it means different things to different people. Unless you have the supernatural ability to know what is in the hearts of others, you have no right to judge them. No doubt there are rebel flag owners who are racists and bigots. But in my experience that is not representative of the majority. It is hurtful to many of them to be judged so harshly by those who don't really know them.

Let's change the scenario a little bit. Suppose a vendor at the Spoonbread Festival wearing Muslim clothing was selling hats, window clings and T-shirts that had star and crescent moon symbols on them. Many people would find it offensive and others would see it as threatening. Many would say it does not represent our values. Studies tell us that only a small minority of practicing Muslims hate America and western culture, but that has not prevented many Americans from having a prejudicial opinion of all Muslims. To judge a whole group of people by the actions of a minority would be arrogant, judgmental, intolerant and dismissive.

As long as nobody's rights are being violated and the vendors are not doing anything illegal, let free enterprise reign. There is no compelling reason for any kind of action that would stifle commerce or censor free speech. If we do not diffuse this issue it will get out of hand and my prediction is that the Spoonbread Festival will morph into the Rebel Flag Festival. People will come from near and far, by the thousands, wearing rebel flag hats, shirts, buckles and tattoos. Flags will fly from cars, vans and pick-up trucks. Free speech will have it say. My hope is that our commitment to the First Amendment is not as shallow as political correctness would dictate.

Chamber's right to regulate Spoonbread Festival vendors

Dear Editor,

The Spoonbread Festival is a wonderful event where the business community has given back to Berea residents and thousands of people from 25 states, during the last 20 years. Parking, kiddie land, music, street entertainment, hot air balloon glow, hot air balloon rides, tractor show, car show and parade are all free thanks to local businesses.

Designed around free family fun for all ages the festival is a safe environment for families to visit and enjoy local culture through arts and crafts, music, dance, food and activities. Among the first desires of developers was to bring our community together. There's never been a racial harassment incident reported during the festival. Nor do we ever want one! Everyone is welcome. Festival Coordinators will not tolerate an environment where visitors don't feel safe.

In our great country, we have rights. One is freedom of speech. If I don't like what someone is saying, I have the right to turn them off, walk away or not go where they're displaying their right to speech. Berea is made up of very diverse groups. To be honest, some of them make me uncomfortable, but they have a right to be here as much as I do. These groups hang banners from their buildings that make me very uncomfortable. But that's their right and I keep my mouth shut. However, I don't attend their activities nor purchase items from businesses that promote things I don't agree with! This is my right.

Some bumper stickers I see on cars in our community down right scare me! But it's their right to display them. My family and I are subjected to these signs of hatred day after day. While totally against my beliefs and an embarrassment when one of my children many years ago asked me to explain the meaning of one of them, I have no control over what is stuck to the vehicle in front of me.

Roads are funded by my tax dollars as well as theirs.

Happy 90th Birthday Charles Whittamore

They shall still bring forth fruit in old age...Psalm 92:14

Nobody could have had a better father, and you've been a wonderful grandfather & great-grandfather. Hope we'll get to celebrate many more birthdays with you!

Love, Carolyn & family

As we celebrate the 90th birthday of my dad, Charles Whittamore. I have personally reflected over the years, the wonderful times we have shared, and the many things he has taught me. It is not until you grow older and have children of your own, that you realize how valuable those things you have been taught are.

I want to thank Dad for always being there for me, always believing in me, and always loving me. I LOVE YOU DAD. MAY GOD CONTINUE TO BLESS YOU. I hope and pray that we have many more days together.

Thank you for everything.

Love, Kenny

My most humbling memory of Charles Whittamore would be when all the guys were in the garage. He came in and told the crew, "Look how good my sons are working together!" Love you Charles, J.R. Scenters

Charles is a great guy and wonderful brother. Thanks for being there for me when I needed you. Money is no problem for Charles. He gets 3 checks a month for cleaning out the ditches on Bear Wallow Road. Happy birthday! Love (your brother), J.B. Crane

When I think of Charles, one thing stands out most in my mind. He asked me and my twin sister, Eula, to go to church at Livingston. On our way, Charles was driving awfully close to the edge of the road, which was close to the river. When we got to church, I needed dry clothes. If this leaves you to wonder about his driving, you draw your own conclusion, Ha Ha! Beulah Willis

My mind goes back to 1971. Charles was in a revival at Bobtown Holiness Church. At the altar call, he came and asked me did I want to pray, and I said, "I'm on my way." Little did I know that in 2012, Charles would marry his sister, Beulah and me. God has been so good to spare him for 90 years. Rev. William Willis, Asst.Pastor Bear Wallow Holiness Church

I was in Wal-Mart parking lot going down the right way. I saw a red truck coming at me the wrong way. I said, "Who is that?" He rolled down his window and it was J.B.'s brother, Charles. Eula Combs

When I would stay all night with him and Granny, she would sit up with us and watch TV. Papa would go to bed and go to sleep. When he would go to turn over, he would get up on all fours and flip in the bed. I guess it was so he wouldn't hurt Granny when he turned over in the bed. Joy Johnson Ritchey

Growing up you don't realize what special moments you are having until you become an adult. Once adulthood takes over, those tiny moments from your childhood help shape the person you become. In my life, I have several people that provided those moments. My "Pap", Charles Whittamore, provided many.

I remember one summer when I was 6 or 7 years old and had a loose tooth. Pap had come home from work at dinnertime to check on Granny and us. He went inside, and I got into his work car, a white Ford Fairmont, as my memory goes. I was looking into the rearview mirror trying to pull my tooth. During this, I accidentally knocked the car out of gear, and it rolled down the drive, across the road, and into the ditch. I was scared to death. Pap came and got me out of the car. Just as Pap did this, a police officer was coming down the road. Pap stood firm and waited on the officer. He explained the situation, and in my young eyes, protected me.

At that time, I did not understand him standing firm and facing life head on would have an impact in my life. Throughout my childhood and still today, I look to my Pap for help and wisdom in my life. Shane Johnson

Charles Whittamore is kind. He spends hours some days calling people to check on them and to cheer them up. He has always been more than kind to me. When I first started cooking, not everything was great. Kenny didn't like all of it, but his Dad always ate everything and never complained.

One of my favorite stories that Charles tells is when he fell into the shrubs at Berea Hospital moving some equipment. You should ask him about that if you want to laugh.

Charles is like my Dad in that he had to go to work very young, and he didn't get to attend school through high school. I have a great respect for Charles for his talents and abilities. He retired from Berea College after working many years in a supervisor position. He is a very smart man.

Charles is a good leader with his church. He has a way of leading people without hurting their feelings. He is a man of great faith. If you have a need of prayer, I would recommend you go to his church. He is a good grandpa. He has always been there for Alyssa and Katie. If they were in trouble, he would try to stay out of the way. He never wanted to go against us as parents. He has done this for all his grandkids.

Charles has made a difference to many people in this life, and I hope he will continue for many more years doing so. Tammy Whittamore

There are many stories I could tell about my grandfather. I could talk about my trips with him when I was a child, when he would take me to McDonald's for a Happy Meal after a trip to the IGA. I could talk about how he let me jump on his bed and play with all of his fancy cologne, even though both my parents said I wasn't allowed. I could talk about the random, unplanned trips to Wal-Mart we would make as a child, when he would buy toys for my sister and me for no other reason than the fact that he loved us and he could. I could even talk about the time we went on vacation in Florida and he insisted that a giant statue of a monkey was an old man, ultimately threatening that "if that's not an old man, I'll eat it!" All of these are fond memories I have of him. My fondest memories of my grandfather, though, are actually the most mundane.

For my entire life, my grandfather has been around whenever I needed him or wanted him, be it as a playmate, a guardian, a mentor, or just a friend. Growing up, he listened to all of my stories and humored me in all of the games I played (or tried to play) with him, even though I'm sure they didn't make much sense to him. He comforted me when I was sad and picked me up from school on the days when I was sick or when my parents couldn't be there to get me. Whenever I got sick, he was always there to pray for me and to bring me anything I needed. These little things mean more to me than the big "memorable" stories ever could.

Happy 90th birthday, Papa. Thank you so much for being there for me all my life, and may you receive as much love, happiness, and kindness today as you have given to me and so many other people in all your years. Alyssa Whittamore

Back in the first part of 2010, my beloved husband wanted to be baptized. He was battling with cancer. So, my Uncle Charles and Brother Darren Sloan came to our house and baptized my late husband out in our garage.

June Bug (my late husband) had the biggest smile on his face. The smile that you could never forget. I could never thank my Uncle Charles and Bro. Darren Sloan enough for doing that for him. Just to see that smile on June Bug's face was worth it all.

Uncle Charles is so very special to me. I love him with all my heart, and I thank God we have been blessed to have him for 90 years.

Love always, your niece, Terry Combs Pearson

We moved to Madison County in 1963 or 1964. We went to Bear Wallow Church, and Bro. Charles was there. He has been my pastor since then. So that's been quite a few years. I knew his wife, Edna. She was a very nice lady. We love Bro. Charles and his family very much.

We wish him a very Happy Birthday and many more. Loyd and Cora Baker

My most cherished memory of you will always be your unconditional love and your unfailing friendship. A true friend is one who steps in when the whole world steps out. Thank you for being such a friend to me.

You are truly a great friend and fellow minister of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. I wish you a very Blessed and Happy 90th Birthday. God bless you, my dear friend. Your friend in Christ Jesus, Jimmy Chrisman

Charles has been my friend, my confidant, whom I love as a brother in Christ. I'm glad I have been a member of his church for 30 years. He has given us good preaching and teaching. May God bless you with many more birthdays! Vernon and Wanda Hisle

Charles is a very good preacher, a great man of God! Bobby Gadd

Charles is well loved. Phyllis Foster

Charles has encouraged me many times along the way, and we love him very much! He has always been my pastor, no matter where I went to church. Love, Randy and Jennifer Webb

Many highs, many lows. Bro. Charles has been on God's road. May you travel many more.

I first met Charles while he was working at Berea College. I got re-acquainted with him while his son, Kenny, was re-building a truck for me. It has been a blessing to me to have crossed paths with this family. Mike Robinson

My friend Charles Whittamore. In life, one makes many acquaintances but few friends. You epitomize what the Bible talks about in Proverbs 18:24. Ruth and I wish you a Happy Birthday. Certainly, you have been a good friend, and a brother in Christ. I treasure time spent in your presence. Have a blessed day. Your friends, Lawrence and Ruth

My first recollection of Charlie Whittamore was when I was a young man just back from the service, although I must have known him much earlier, since my Dad and Mr. Whittamore both worked for Buildings and Maintenance at Berea College. For about a month, Mr. Whittamore, my Dad, and I worked together in the evenings and weekends to renovate an old house that I had bought on Christ-mas Ridge. The three of us worked side-by-side, hammering, sawing, and painting. We were enjoying our progress and fellowship. We didn't talk very much, confident in the other's ability and skill. Years went by when we had no direct contact, except seeing each other in passing and pausing for a brief visit.

About seven years ago, I once again had the opportunity to work with Mr. Whittamore. We renewed our friendship.

Charlie is perhaps the most decent man I know. He is a stalwart Christian, living his faith with warmth and an acceptance for all, but most especially for his friends and family. I am proud to call him my friend. Happy Birthday Charlie! John Stevens

I have known Charles for many years but just recently developed a closer friendship with him. During this most recent period, I have come to see him in a different way.

Charles is a deeply spiritual man, who has a fear-some loyalty to his congregation and his family. I have enjoyed his keen sense of humor, and he has a remarkable work ethic. He is a model and an inspiration for his friends. I am honored to call him friend. Happy 90th, Charles. You are a one of a kind! Richard Bellando

BCES students celebrate cultural diversity on annual CULTURE NIGHT

Berea Community School prides itself on diversity, which is why at Berea Community students start at a young age understanding various cultures. Understanding cultural diversity can complete you as a person and will help you succeed as you grow and experience the world, this is why it is very important at Berea Community.

On Thursday, March 3, the students at Berea Community Elementary School displayed for their families and community what they've learned in social studies this year. During the event, over 650 people attended. The goal of culture night is to allow Berea students and their families to experience diversity in different cultures. Students spend weeks learning about an assigned culture, and then present on Culture Night to their guests. Culture night is open to friends and family of all Berea students

Kindergarten students studied

Berea, First graders studied Mexico, Second graders studied Ireland, Third graders studied Japan, Fourth graders studied Kentucky, and Fifth graders studied Native America. Fifth grader Reece Cvatican, a student who has participated several times in this event, stated, "Culture night is always a lot of fun. I think it's a great opportunity for students and families to become more culturally diverse." Each grade chose a culture that compliments their curriculum, and they created art, food, and performances on that theme. The representation of countless countries and our great state were set up throughout the elementary side in classrooms and the gym, all decorated with accuracy.

Over the year's Culture Night has slowly evolved. When it started in 2006, teachers and students presented solely in classrooms, and each class studied different cultures. The places each grade studies now depends on their social studies curriculum. Fourth grade studies Kentucky and Fifth grade studies Native America because of their social studies class. Students spend months learning about their set country. They explore the different crafts, clothing, religions, food, etc. During culture night, students get the chance to present three different things; crafts with information, food prepared and set up in the cafeteria, and a presentation put on by the whole grade.

This year marked the fourth year second grade teacher, Brittany Kaylor, was the chairman of Culture Night. "Over the years it has become easier to be able to plan everything out." When in the first few years, planning started in November. Ms. Kaylor added, "This year we started in January. I believe that this year was a huge success not only for all the teachers, but also for the students and all of their hard work."

This year was the 10th culture night, and, according to students, teachers, and families, it was a huge success.

Freshman students visit and tour BCTC

PIRATE Lead Photographer

On Tuesday, March 1, Berea Community High School freshmen visited Bluegrass Community Technical College (BCTC) to tour the campus and learn about some new possible options for their future. Mrs. Charlotte Haycraft, the Gear-UP coordinator for BCHS, was in charge of the event to make sure everything went off without a hitch.

The Freshman class arrived at BCTC around 10:00 a.m. and entered an auditorium where influential figures talked to the students about a number of different topics. The speakers discussed past students who had gone to BCTC and graduated from the community college and what they did with their lives and career afterwards. The speakers also mentioned what student's expected salary might be when they graduated from BCTC, depending on what field they intended to go into. The speaker discussed the efficiency of going to BCTC for a student's first two years of college and then transfer to another college for their last two. While some students turned their nose up at the idea of attending a community college, others considered it a very viable option because community colleges are often vastly cheaper than state or private universities.

"It might just be me because I know I don't want to attend community college, but I feel like it could have been more educational," said freshman Maria Murphy.

Overall the trip was a success and the Freshman got to learn vital information about higher education.

KATIE OKUMU
PIRATE Senior Editor

On Tuesday, March 8 2016 the journalism and media students of Berea Community High School traveled to Campbellsville, Kentucky to attend the Kentucky Highschool Journalism Workshop. Highschools from various counties were invited to the event that included an introduction by guest speaker Connie Leonard. Leonard, winner of eleven Emmy awards, described to the engaged students the importance of siezing opportunities in Journalism particularly in order to achieve your goals.

After the inspiring introduction, students attended various classes on broadcasting, proofreading, ethics, social media, etc. These 9 a.m. sessions provided opportunities for mass communication students to fine tune their respective crafts.

Junior journalism student Tyler Isaac said, "In Sports Broadcasting they talked about how they put [information] on their website...they actually had a video make it on ESPN that was filmed at Campbellsville."

Students attended second sessions at 11. a.m., which ranged from public relations to acting for the screen.

After their second session, the students ate lunch together in the cafeteria.

To wrap up the trip to Campbellsville, the students took a guided tour of campus. The tour allowed students to learn more about the opportunities that a small campus offers to mass communication students. "[The trip offered] opportunities for a career [or] major they hadnt thought about pursuing," said media teacher Mary Anne Sowers.

Overall, the trip to the Kentucky Highschool Journalism Workshop was a success.

ABNER KROUSE
PIRATE Staff Reporter

"People come first and are treated with dignity and respect; lifelong learning, scholarship and service; diversity and inclusion of people and thought; excellence, honesty, integrity, and trust." These are just a few of Morehead State University's (MSU) core values that students strive to exemplify.

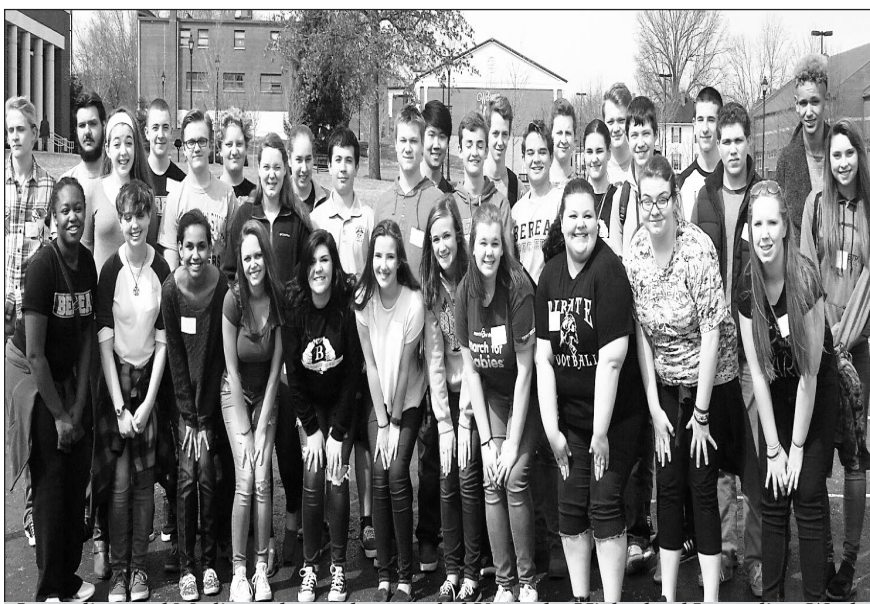

On Tuesday, March 1st, the Berea Community High School sophomore class went on a college visit to MSU. This field trip helped expose the students to college life at MSU as well as the application process.

While at Morehead, the students learned about the university's different clubs and activities, scholarships, academic programs, and housing, financial aid, and even toured the campus. Sophomore Mikaela Morgan, who visited the campus, said, "We also learned that Morehead was founded as a school to teach teachers, and I have always personally been interested in pursuing a career in education, so it was neat to hear about their program and the history behind the school." The students weren't the only ones that learned something new about the university. Chaperone and teacher, Travis Blankenship said, "The fact that they [MSU] are ranked the safest campus in Kentucky was kinda surprising for the size of the school. I was under the assumption... that smaller [liberal arts] schools generally are safer, but learning about that was really fascinating."

Sophomore Elliot Sandberg added, "The best part of the trip was probably seeing how the school [MSU] interacted with the students... [current students] came together to pay for the [new] recreation center." Both Morgan and Sandberg thoroughly enjoyed the visit and thought that the trip to MSU was very interesting.

After a successful trip to MSU, Blankenship said, "... it's really impressive. Hopefully many of our students will feel like they will want to go there."

Berea student accepted to Gatton Academy

KYRA MORGAN
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Three students at Berea High school have applied for an opportunity that would allow them to take college classes while in highschool. The Carol Martin Gatton Academy of Maths and Sciences at Western Kentucky University, which is called Gatton by most, is the foremost public school in Kentucky. Gatton is run by the Center for Gifted Studies at WKU, under the director Dr. Julia Roberts. Gatton students stay in Florence Snyder Hall on WKU's Campus.

At Gatton, students take all college classes. They are in class alongside the college students and take sixty credit hours by the time they graduate high school. The students are dual enrolled at both Gatton and their high school. Gatton has a focus on STEM (Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics) subjects and really pushes their students to get involved in the research and projects that go on in these fields on campus.

This year, Berea Community High School had three sophomores apply: Virginia Deaver, Kyla Wilkie, and Ian Wilkie. There are three stages of applying to Gatton: the application, which is reviewed, the interviews, then and finding out whether or not they got accepted. Getting to the interview stage means that applicants are automatically on the waiting list for Gatton. All three of these students made it to the interviews portion. Which was last Saturday, and all the Gatton applicants were there. "It was a really great experience getting to meet the all of the other applicants, because I hadn't really been around that many from other schools. It was really nice to get to be around a bunch of people who were there for the same reasons I was," said Virginia Deaver.

Kyla Wilkie was accepted into Gatton Academy. "I think it's a pretty great opportunity," said Kyla Wilkie.

Spring Sports Preview

BILLY RICHMOND

TYLER ISAAC
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Spring sports for Berea Community is imminent. Baseball, softball, tennis, and track have already begun practicing for this year's upcoming season. Although baseball's last year record was (7-18), The Pirates are working on improvement for a better upcoming season.

"I'm very excited, I think that we'll have a good year. I think that we'll have an even record this year" said Tyler Pumphrey. To get ready for the upcoming season, the baseball team has been working on an improved batting average and fielding. They have showed improvement in practice by hitting from the pitching machine and constantly working on fielding grounders. The Pirates have small but strong lineup heading into this season with some experienced seniors. According to the head coach Steven Bailey, "This year we have three seniors on the team semicolon Trevor Woods, Sean Long, and Jayson Smith. Trevor and Sean have played on the team since middle school so the advantage that will bring to the table is valuable experience in leadership. Although being his first year on the team I also look for Jayson to provide a voice of leadership." The Pirates Baseball start off the season away at Jackson County on March 10.

The Pirate Softball team is looking come back after the loss of two valuable seniors with a good season. The Pirates ended their season last year with a record of (8-11) and are working hard this season to better that not only by practicing but by becoming a closer team.

"My goal as a coach this year is to make everyone a better player, and come together as a team," said assistant coach Jeff Sandefur.

The Pirates first game is on March 15 at home against Garrard County.

This year's track and field team are going to be entering the upcoming season with a new coach, Erica Woods.

The track and field team have experience and strong senior line up, alongside a great coach to start the season.

"The coaches this year are really knowledgeable and is the best coach that we've had," said Josh Lamb.

The first track and field meet is Saturday, March 12.

is also entering the upcoming season with a new coach, Michael Slaughter.

"Goals for myself and the team are making it pretty far in regionals and also to make it to team regionals" said senior Dalton Gadd.

"I expect this year's team to grow a lot as players, partly because we have a lot of young players and partly because we have a of of determined upperclassmen who i believe will really be working to step up their game" said head coach Michael Slaughter.

"I hope we go farther in regionals then we did last year, and we finally have enough people to go to team regionals, so I hope we do that" said Candace Elam.

The tennis team's first match is Friday, March 11.

As the year is coming to and end, spring sports are just beginning. The change is a reminder to students that there are a few more practices, a few more games, and few more senior nights left to go.

PEEL paragraphs implemented to increase critical thinking skills

JD LOVELL

GREG SCHLOEMER
PIRATE Managing Editor

For current and former students of Mrs. Angela Baker, a junior-level English teacher at Berea Community High School, "PEEL paragraphs" are no unfamiliar concept. For the rest of the school, however, this new-and-improved way of writing is only now becoming a rhetorical tool.

"PEEL," an acronym for: point of paragraph, evidence, explain, and link to thesis, "is a framework for analytical writing," said Mrs. Baker. "It helps students answer prompts with the questions why? and how?"

The concept of PEEL is fairly simple: when writing a paragraph, students should, first, establish a clear "point of paragraph." In other words, the writer should make it clear to the reader what they intend to convey in the sentences that will follow. After clearly stating their point, the writer should then present one piece of evidence (typically in the form of a quote from an article, novel, or other text), then should proceed to explain that evidence and its relevance to the point of paragraph. For a fully-developed paragraph at a junior or senior-level course, the two Es (evidence and explain) should be repeated three times, creating a paragraph with three solid pieces of evidence. Finally, to conclude the paragraph, the writer should link back to, in the case of essay writing, the thesis (main idea) of the work.

After noticing PEEL's great success in Mrs. Baker's classrooms, Berea Community Middle and High School Principal, Mrs. Donna Lovell, asked Baker to help teachers and students implement it throughout the entire school and across a variety of subjects. Since the beginning of the second semester, she has held two workshops to train faculty members on the use of the tool. She has been available to teachers beyond those sessions PEEL, though predominantly being used for English classes, can be utilized in any subject such as science. Mr. Joshua Woodward, a science teacher at Berea Community High School had this to say "It really helps to show me if a student understands the topic they are writing about or not. A poor writer can not clearly show if they understand the topic or not, however with the PEEL method students are taught to write more clearly, therefore I can clearly understand what a student comprehends and what they may need a little more information about."

"It's helped," said junior Alex Horn, who has been using PEEL paragraphs in nearly all of her classes, "because it helps organize my writing and allows for better explanations."

The technique reaches even further than increasing student comprehension. Mrs. Angela West, a BCMS social studies teacher, has also noticed the benefits of utilizing the PEEL writing process. "I have students come up to me in my social studies class and say that they used the PEEL technique to help them write a speech, or just when analyzing a historical document," Mrs. West said. "It really gives the students a smooth transition to high school level historical analysis. It is a great tool for critical thinking."

In commenting on her experiences with PEEL inside her classroom, Mrs. West has touched on the most important aspect of the writing technique: it is an incredibly valuable tool in critical thinking. That makes it, for students, useful not only in the classroom, but in all areas of life.

Golden ticket initiative a success with elementary students

VIRGINIA DEAVER
PIRATE Managing Editor

This spring, Berea Community Elementary School's library has started a new reading initiative for its Pirate readers. Larinda Agee, the Elementary school's librarian, has brought to life a "Golden Ticket" reading contest to excite students.

Berea Community Elementary Golden This ticket initiative is a contest designed to inspire young Pirate readers to read through as many elementary library books as possible. Golden paper tickets are randomly hidden within books throughout the library, waiting to be found by a student reading through their chosen story. If a Berea reader finds a ticket within their book, he/she is given the opportunity to redeem the ticket for a prize from Mrs. Agee. Alexandria Mullins, a fifth grader at Berea Elementary, was lucky enough to discover two golden tickets in the books she had checked out. "It's really amazing," said Alexandria about finding her tickets, "it's an unbelievable thing, like, you flip the page, you find it, and you're like 'Wow! I wonder what I'm going to get!' ...It's a mix of wonder and amazement...an unbelievable feeling that you might not always experience..." Alexandria found her first golden ticket in the book Smile, a graphic novel, and her second in her favorite book series, the Hunger Games. "...I've already read [the Hunger Games] once, but I really wanted to read it again," said Alexandria.

The Golden Ticket Contest is one of the first Berea Community Elementary School reading incentives to be highly run by Berea Pirate Library Leaders, a group of elementary students who are in charge of organizing sections of the library. "I've seen them [Library Leaders] be very strategic," said Larinda Agee. "...like the little girls who have the picture books about snow and hundreds day and stuff, they hid theirs in there because they were like 'Oh! I bet these will be checked out!' ... because of the season...and then some students have put theirs in newer releases or books that are really popular right now. It's cool to see them thinking about the strategy."

With 8 to 10 Pirate readers already having found golden tickets within their books, excitement has begun to spread among the elementary students. "Now that there have been a few [winners] in every grade level," stated Agee. "It's kind of spread to where I can see the kids up here [at the library desk] when they're checking out saying, 'Ooh, I hope maybe I have a golden ticket in here! Maybe when I get home tonight I'll have one!', so it's exciting to do that too."

Spring Fashion Update

Melting snow and flowers sprouting out from the ground are not the only things changing as winter rolls away and spring approaches. With each new season of weather, there is always a new season of fashion as people rush to transform the staple pieces in their closets to match both the weather and current styles. Several trends are going to make appearances in the coming weeks, both on runways and in Berea Community High School students' wardrobes.

For girls, this year's spring looks will contain a lot of girly, feminine pieces with 70s-inspired undertones. Fringes will make a strong return on the bottoms of tops, kimonos, and handbags. Long, tea-length skirts will replace the short, skater skirts that have been on racks since 2013. Shoulderless cropped shirts with Woodstock vibes will also appear.

As the cool shades of black, military green, and raspberry begin to fade alongside the cold wind, bright, pigmented shades will splash into stores. Sunshiney buttercup, bold peach, soft periwinkle, iced coffee, and lilac grey are just a few of the hues that are expected to color outfits of students during the warmer months.

Senior Kerri Adkins expressed that one of her ideal spring outfits includes pairing muted shirts with light-weight cardigans, jeans, and strappy sandals. Alongside the new trends for girls are the new spring styles that are going to pop up in male wardrobes.

Spring fashion for men this season was all about faux fur coats, turtlenecks, and elevated suiting. Pants were also bigger and baggier this season in lines from Versace, Tom Ford and Giorgio Armani. High waisted jeans and bellbottoms replaced the once popular skinny jeans. Fashion for men is evolving, and it seems bigger is in and smaller is out this season.

One person not bucking this trend is Brandon Fletcher. "I think the trend looks like you're stuck in the 90's," the fashionable senior commented.

As the cold and dreary January months change into the cool summer weather of summer and spring, fashion will evolve from the once short skater shirts that once populated the hallways of Berea Community.

Job Shadowing

HUIYU CHEN

PIRATE STAFF REPORTERS

While the juniors from Berea Community High School were working hard on their state ACT exam, many seniors experienced the workplace firsthand. Members of the senior class participated in job shadowing on Tuesday, March 1st. Job shadowing is a way for seniors to explore careers they have expressed interest in. It also gives seniors an opportunity to discover careers they might have not considered before.

Berea Community High School guidance counselor Eef Fontanez has been leading the program since its inception. He said about the program, "We've been doing job shadowing for the last six years. It's part of our college and career readiness path. We encourage it so that students can validate the career path they want to enter or make the decision to not enter that career. It gives students a hands on look at the career they have expressed interest in."

Della Walter spent a day shadowing with Rachel Small Stokes, the associate pastor at Union Church. Della started her day by studying The Bible with retired ministers. After the study session, Della meet people from the community to discuss the welcoming of newcomers, and made visits to church members' house. "I learned not only about the ministry, but also what behind the scenes; people I worked with were very inclusive; this experience allows me to see the day to day part of the job," said Della. Della chose Union Church because she has an interest in the ministry field, but she has not decided yet if she would become a minister in future.

"I job shadowed Ms. Colegrove in the elementary. She is one of the special needs teachers on that side," added Nick Carpenter. He also expressed his interest in the field, saying that it was a career he was definitely considering. The seniors gained great first hand knowledge on possible career paths through Job Shadowing Day. This exposure will provide a lot of help when it is time for them to pick careers.

About Denmark, from a native

Dear Editor,

Denmark has been mentioned numerous times in the American political debate.

Denmark is a constitutional democracy Denmark, with a one-chamber parliament with 179 members. Of those members, 135 are elected in their respective constituencies and another 40 are elected across Denmark and divided by the political parties that proportionally get the most votes. Greenland and The Faroe Islands are represented with two members each.

It is difficult for one party to win the majority; it hasn't happened for more than 125 years because many parties are represented in the parliament. This time around nine parties. This means the Danish democracy is dependent on compromises.

It is a common notion in America that Denmark is a socialistic country, but in the past 50 years the government has been led by a right winged/center coalition for 30 years, and the other 20 years by a social democrat prime minister supported by center and small socialistic parties. It is important to realize that the Social Democracy is a very democratic party that accepts the capitalistic market economy, which includes the term "demand and supply". So calling Denmark a socialistic country, or a communist country is not correct.

It is correct the Danish welfare state is built on the idea of a big common money box that pays for most education, roads, airports, medical treatment, military, long term unemployment, et al.

A proportional tax system is used in Denmark. The first $6,500 is tax free for all. Average municipality/county tax is 25% of everything above $6,500. The federal bottom tax is 8% of everything above $6,500 and below $60,000. The top tax is 15% of everything above $60,000. A labor market contribution is 8% of everything above $6,500, and a health contribution is 4% of everything above $6,500. A voluntary church contribution is .75%.

There is also a "VAT = value added tax" on all goods and services of 25%. There will be a tax deduction of 20% of your travel expenses if you drive to work.

Example 1: If you make $50,000 annually, your taxes are approx. $18,700, with no deductions.

Example 2: If you make $600,000 annually, your annual taxes -- including church tax -- are approx. $291,180 if you have no deductions.

Example 3: If you make $12,000 annually your taxes are approximately $2,255.

You pay additional taxes on cars and gasoline. To make a comparison, in Denmark you will pay approx. $55,000 for a new Toyota Camry. However, the public transportation system is extensive.

It is always about choices, but I think Danes are good at looking at what is left after the taxes and what benefits are included, not on how much they pay. The benefits are colossal. E.g. my own father spent three months in a hospital, part of the time in ICU, after a heart attack. We never saw an invoice, because it was paid for via taxes. Today students are being paid approx. $800 to go to college and tuition is free. The public may choose to send patients to private hospitals.

A long way down the road both the Conservatives, Moderates and Socialists believe it is better to have a healthy and well educated workforce and that is what the higher taxes ensure.

It is not unusual that voter turnout is close to 85-90%.

Topics for later classes include harvesting and safely storing crops, how to extend the growing season, cooking and preserving the harvest, and seed saving for next year's garden.

The inspiration for the series is the Berea Victory Garden Blitz, to help those who receive a new garden bed know what to do with it. Olson shares, "I started gardening when I was in my 50's and was amazed with how easy it is to grow food in a raised bed." Those who want a raised bed through the Blitz this April can call 859-985-1689.

Hilgenberg will share her expertise at other events during her visit. She will speak at the Sustainable Berea Annual Meeting on March 14th at 6:30 about Edible Landscaping, or the marriage of flowers and food. The afternoon of the 15th, from 2:30 pm - 4:00 pm, she will work with the Berea Arts Council, Sustainable Berea, and Fiber Frenzy to plan the re-make of an unkempt lot by Fiber Frenzy on North Broadway into a garden. The public is invited to interact with Lisa and bring any questions they might have about growing food and flowers, trees and shrubs.

Should I ask City Council to ban all bumper stickers? No, that is ridiculous! It's their right to put whatever they want on their vehicles. This is America! It is, however, my right and responsibility to ensure my community is safe by electing officials that won't tolerate any small group ruling our community; officials who will listen to all and not allow anyone's constitutional rights to be taken away. Tourism has funded another event in Old Town. I attended once and frankly, felt very uncomfortable. Guess what? I've never been back. That's my right.

Applying rules to the Spoonbread Festival that aren't being imposed on First Friday and others using public property and receiving tourism funds is discrimination.

This festival is for the community, but belongs to the Berea Chamber of Commerce and its 275+ tax paying businesses and individual members.

If merchandise being sold makes you uncomfortable, please stay home! That's your right, it's the Chamber's right to regulate the vendors as they see fit, it's their festival!

When they first purchased the Dinner Bell, they knew they wanted to re-create the gift shop connected to the dining area, but they didn't have a specific idea. The plan started to take shape when Charles purchased Mitchell Tolle's framing equipment from his old gallery.

"Mitchell had given me a ride to my house, because one of my employees needed a sawzall when we were loading up Mitchell's framing equipment," Charles said. "On the ride back I asked him if he would continue painting, and who would frame his stuff if he did, since he was selling it all to me. Then it just kind of hit me to ask him if he would be interested in selling his prints through the Dinner Bell."

Tolle was intrigued by the idea, since his art had only been sold in galleries before, such as his own.

"People can be very intimidated by art, and galleries," Tolle said. "I like that the art will be in a restaurant, a comfortable place for people to come."

Charles has purchased over 200 of Tolle's prints, and his staff is currently framing them in preparation for the grand opening of the gift shop. Tolle's son, Mitchell Tolle, Jr., traveled down to teach them how to frame his father's work – something he has worked on since his teenage years.

Tolle, who has not been able to paint much the past year, will be unveiling his new painting of the Boone Tavern at the open house in August. He has "always wanted" to do a painting of the tavern, and this will be his first one.

Selling her pottery through the Dinner Bell will also be a new experience for Culbreth, who has traditionally been loyal to the Berea College retailers, such as the Log Cabin and Boone Tavern gift shop. When Marilyn first asked her about selling her art in the gift shop, Sarah was "humored."

"I would never have considered that," Sarah said, "but I got involved, and it's been an absolute delight working with Charles and Marilyn."

People who attend the open house will all receive a ticket for the clay bell that Sarah has crafted, and there will be a drawing at the end of the evening.

"To have a chance at it, you have to come that night," Sarah said. "It is a stunningly gorgeous, special bell, not large and not small."

The Dinner Bell store will also be selling arts and crafts from A Villager's Hands, a fair trade non-profit that Jo Brosius from Berea started with her husband over two years ago. Jo, who has traveled to over 60 countries, started the organization because of the intense poverty she was seeing.

"People who live in this type of poverty have no way of getting out of it," Jo said.

Jo has organized arts and crafts groups in seven different countries – Guatemala, Indonesia, China, Vietnam, Kenya, Uganda, and Peru – and brings the items to the states to sell them. All profits made go back to the villages, which have already made goals on how to spend the money.

In addition to the local art in the gift shop, which includes Warren Brunner's books, pieces from the art fellows in 123 Gallery in Old Town, Charles and Marilyn have a vision of a "Mass General type of store with less clutter." There will be toys made from a Kentucky craftsman, some primitive stuff, and other gift-giving items.

from Berea Tourism. For this 20th year anniversary, however, the Chamber received a four-page document with added requirements and regulations.

Mayor Steve Connelly, who writes up all the contracts for the City of Berea, said he meant the draft agreement as the beginning of the conversation that needed to take place between the City and Chamber.

"It has been mentioned that they [chamber staff] want to grow even more in the future," Connelly said, "and city staff has already been talking about challenges we're having with how large the festival has grown. There were electrical concerns by the staff last year, so I wanted to begin the planning early, and start the conversation with the chamber."

The issue of prohibiting the sale of Confederate flag memorabilia, Connelly said, was just a small part of the agreement. He added that addendum both because of the controversy of the Confederate flag, and the recent decision by the Kentucky Fair Board to prohibit Confederate flag memorabilia in their future contracts.

Connelly pointed out that even though the grant the Chamber receives of $5,000 is fairly small, the chamber relies heavily on city support for the festival. Employees from the police department, codes office and streets department work a great deal of overtime during the festival regulating traffic, cleaning bathrooms, monitoring vendors, and picking up trashing.

The city has estimated, Connelly reported, that their in-kind contributions with the Spoonbread Festival along with the grant costs the city anywhere from $20,000 to $30,000.

Napier said that when she and a Chamber staff member met with the city administrator, they were told that all the items in the draft agreement were negotiable except for the Confederate flag item.

"I asked them if the city would consider an ordinance against the selling of the Confederate flag, but was told that would be illegal for them because of free speech," Napier said, "so they were essentially asking us to do something that they can't."

And that, Napier said, was the essential reason the Chamber feels they can't comply with the requirement to ban the flag.

"The problem is that city leadership is asking the Chamber to do things they wouldn't do themselves. The problem is not the Confederate flag itself, but government mandating what can and can't be sold at the Spoonbread," Napier said.

As far as the other concerns listed in the agreement, Napier said, it wasn't the responsibility of the chamber to enforce things such as how electricity is used or requiring vendors to get a business license.

Chamber members have had meetings with the mayor and city administrator on the agreement, but no resolution has been reached. Chamber members related that they were considering moving the festival from its usual spot on Jefferson and Broadway; something that surprised the mayor.

"I heard from the Chamber that this would be a deal breaker," Connelly said. "There's obviously more conversation that needs to take place. The fact is, other cities and organizations have reviewed banning the Confederate flag because it's such a lightning rod, so why inject this sensitive issue into Berea's fair?"

Napier pointed out that the year before, there was a vehicle in the car show painted like the General Lee from Dukes of Hazard, with a Confederate flag painted on top. It won one of the trophies.

"Would we say that car couldn't enter the contest with this regulation?" Napier asked. "We're willing to work with the city, but this is a really deep-rooted issue."

Currently, there are no meetings planned between the Chamber and City. The Chamber of Commerce members are discussing whether they could turn down the grant from Berea Tourism, which may make the agreement in question null and void.

"We also have to look to the future, even beyond this problem," Napier said. "What's next? Do we ban political parties? Religious groups? That government control is a problem."

Later, Napier said, "I just ask people in Berea to pray about this."

Emerging Artists Exhibit at Kentucky Crafted

Berea Art Fellows currently working at The Gallery 123 in Old Town Artisan Village showed their wares at the Kentucky Crafted market last week. Kentucky Crafted is the Kentucky Arts Council's signature arts marketplace for wholesale buyers and the general public. The marketplace was held from March 4-6 at the Lexington Convention Center. "For more than 30 years, artists in the Kentucky Crafted Program have represented the best of the Commonwealth's art and craft production on local, state, national and international stages," said Lori Meadows, executive director of the arts council. "Kentucky Crafted artists contribute mightily to the Commonwealth's global association with artistic excellence and quality craftsmanship." Gallery 123 was among the state's finest producers of art, craft, literature and artisanal food participating in The Market, which offers buyers from galleries, shops and online retail venues across the nation the opportunity to select products from this elite group of exhibitors. The Market was open exclusively to the trade on March 4. From March 5-6, the marketplace opened to the public. In addition to shopping for fine art and craft, visitors enjoyed musical performances, sampled regional food products, participated in hands-on activities, and explored Kentucky arts and culture through special exhibits. Gallery 123 is a project of the Arts Accelerator Program sponsored by Berea Tourism. The emerg-

The Chieftains Perform with Berea College Students

The Chieftains, an internationally renowned traditional Irish band, and the Berea College Folk-Roots Ensemble joined forces in a concert on Wednesday, March 9, at the Eastern Kentucky University Performing Arts Center in Richmond. The Dublin, Ireland-based Chieftains were looking for a group to sing at their concert as part of their American tour. Elizabeth DiSavino, director of the Berea College Folk-Roots Ensemble, volunteered the group of Berea College students, including Jay Callahan, Blake Durham, Adam Hudson, Jonathan Kemp, Joseph Muth, Julie Nelms, Tyler Rosso, Michelle Watson-Jones, Whitney Worthington and Jared Zanet. Using Appalachian music as its touchstone, Berea's Folk-Roots Ensemble branches into other kinds of traditional and roots-based music. The Chieftains, who formed their band in 1962 in Dublin, have popularized traditional Irish music around the world. They often collaborate with well-known guest artists in their concerts from a wide range of musical styles, such as Roger Daltrey, James Galway, Art Garfunkel, Mick Jagger, Tom Jones, Madonna, Willie Nelson, Luciano Pavarotti, Earl Scruggs, Ricky Skaggs, Sting and The Rolling Stones.

Fee Portrayal to Take Place

John G. Fee (1816-1901) was the founder of both Union Church of Christ (an anti-slavery, non-denominational church) and First Christian Church in Berea. He also planted the seeds for what would become Berea College. John G. Fee was a fighter for social equality throughout the country until his death in 1901. He is buried in the Berea Cemetery.

The Retired Disciple Ministers and Spouses, in cooperation with The Kentucky Humanities Council, invite the public to attend this dramatic presentation.

As the son of a slaveholding father, John Gregg Fee witnessed firsthand the benefits of having slaves and the profits that could be made from their labor. When he graduated from college and enrolled in Lane Theological Seminary, Fee began to understand the inherent wrong and destructiveness of slavery. He was determined to become an abolitionist and work for the immediate end to slavery. Feeling betrayed, his father took him out of school and forced John to return home. Rather than staying in the North, Fee committed his life and work to ending slavery and discrimination at home in Kentucky.

Fee's anti-slavery efforts garnered the attention of Cassius Clay, a prominent politician and outspoken emancipationist from Kentucky. Their relationship became hostile when they couldn't agree on how to go about ending slavery.

An historical treat will be offered to Bereans at the end of this month, when Boone Tavern hosts a dramatic portrayal of John Gregg Fee.

On March 29 at 10 a.m., Obadiah Ewing-Rouse will perform a dramatic portrayal of John Gregg Fee, "Abolition... Amen!"

MSHS Senior Brings Awareness to CHDs

By Kayla Weaver
Madison Southern Eagle

For Madison Southern senior Dakota Bender, Congenital Heart Defects (CHDs) has had a bigger impact on him than most 18-year-olds.

Throughout February 26-29, Dakota helped raise more than $150 through a Krispy Kreme doughnut drive. With two cousins who have been affected by this defect, Dakota's family has long been a part of the CHDs community. A charity that is dear to them is Kerrington's Heart, an organization that helps families affected by the defect.

"Heart disease can not only hurt the children with it, but the family as they watch their loved ones suffer," Dakota said, "Those kids are Heart Warriors with all the heart defects they endure; what's funny is they have some of the best hearts emotionally. These kids deserve better so I hope we all can come together to bring better awareness to CHDs so we can help fight and end this."

These defects have been known to show signs as early as birth. CHDs affect the heart with heart rhythm problems, heart failure, stroke, development delays, and if not treated properly, may end in death. For a child to be diagnosed with CHDs their heart has to have been born with an abnormally structured heart and/or large vessels.

Impacting one in every 100 persons; an average of nearly 40,000 babies are born every year in the United States with this defect, with roughly 1.8 million adults living with it. Currently, there is no cure for CHDs and many organizations have been created to raise money for research to find a more powerful stability for those affected. These organizations also help support families affected by the defect by helping with medical bills and treatments that are used to keep their children alive. If the defect is caught early on, parents are faced with the decision of putting their child through multiple heart procedures. Even after procedures, patients could face life long struggles with cardiac issues.

February happens to be Heart Health month where schools around Madison County took part in promoting healthy living. Through Kerrington's Heart, Dakota and those like him help raise money and awareness by hosting drives at Zumba classes and also at the Wild Hearts 5-K Run that is held yearly in Lexington.

With a defect that impacts more than just the people it harms, hope is running high for the families of Congenital Heart Defects and hope is something we all need.

For more information about Congenital Heart Defect or how you can help visit kerringtonshheart.org.

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES MARCH 1956

Twelve girl scouts received first class pins at the investiture service held on March 5, 1956 in the Berea High School Auditorium. From left to right in the front row are Dona Clare Hougen, Helen Bibbee, Leeann White, Jeraldine Hughes, and Christine Hopkins, who were members of Troop 1 under the leadership of Mrs. Gordon Ross and Mrs. Leon Sanborne. In the second row are members of Troop 2, Nora Allen, Janet Louise Britton, Louise Boggs, Margaret Pugsley, Rosemary Rogers, Rose Marie Taylor and Ann Cruse. Mrs. Wilson Evans and Mrs. Robert Boggs were the leaders of the troop. Leaders in the back row are Mrs. Raymond Drukker, Mrs. Richard Hougen, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Sanborne, Mrs. Paul Hadley, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Jerome Hughes, and Mrs. Corban Goble.

At the Girl Scout investiture service on March 5, 1956, recipients of second-class pins were Merle Weeks, Dianne Giffin, Jean Grossman, Anne Hadley, Gracia Chin, Carol Cruse, Linda Wear, Linda Essary, Nita Byrd, Sandra McClellan, and Trudy Gilkerson.

Tenderfoot badges were awarded to Merle Weeks, Nita Byrd, Margaret Weeks, Trudy Gilkerson, and Polly Downs. New brownies who received pins were Linda Rae Coyle, Lee Carol Hahn, Pat Hobein, Susan McAfee, Jane Carol Rogers, and Joan Carol Williams.

Proficiency badges were given to Jeraldine Hughes, Betsy Wright, Julia E. Smith, Leeann White, Barbara Gulkler, Dona Clare Hougen, Helen Bibbee, Christine Hopkins, Marilyn Kindel, Sandra Fortune, Nora Ruth Allen, Louise Boggs, Janet Louise Britton, Marion Cox, Sharon Kirk, Margaret Pugsley, Claire Ross, Rose Mary Rogers, Rosemarie Taylor, Ann Cruse, Molly Lou McAfee, Helen Hovey, Jennie Whiteaker, and Jane Carol Singleton.

The Berea City Council prohibited the city's fire engines to go outside city limits at their meeting in early March, because of the Kentucky Inspector Bureau's warning. The Bureau wrote that "regular municipal fire department organization . . . should not be weakened by having any of its members respond outside the city limits. The apparatus responding to rural areas must be manned by firemen who are not members of the municipal organization."

The council also approved the levying of fines from $25 to $100 on people who were so negligent in taking care of their grass or trash fires, that the fire department had to be called.

It was shocking in March 1956 when the No. 1 rated Berea Pirates basketball team fell to the Madison Central Indians 63-60 at Regionals in Lexington. Berea, however, was playing without regular forward, Dorse LeMaster. This was the first time in four games that the Indians were able to beat the Pirates.

The Berea Pirates received the 44th District Basketball Tournament trophy at Eastern State College. Team members included Phil Ed Hammond, David Singleton, Don Mills, Dorse LeMaster, Jimmy Williamson, Darrell Bicknell, Maurice Walker, Johnny Eades, Billy Jennings and John Earl Stiver.

George Ella Lyon Honored as Kentucky Poet Laureate for 2015-16, George Ella Lyon is on a mission to find a poem from every county in her project "Where I'm From." Lyon first began writing poems in elementary school. While attending Centre College in Danville, Kentucky she discovered that writing was what she loved most during her study of English and music. Her love for music and words have been an inspiration to many as she teaches the impact and power that words have in expressing and connecting the hearts of both readers and writers.

"Though I write in many forms, I am first of all a poet; which means my job is to see and sing the connections between things. The spider's web is a delicious image for this and for the wonder of something newly made from old patterns, like the sentences writers spin each day. The strength of my web comes from family, friends, words, music, dreams, mountains, and the joy of making. Think about the life you are spinning and how you could write about its different strands."

Charles Bracelen Flood was the author of fifteen books, many of which were critically acclaimed, including Lee: The Last Years and First to Fly: The Story of the Lafayette Escadrille. He wrote a number of books on historic figures, including Robert E. Lee and William T. Sherman. His short pieces were published in magazines, including The New Yorker, The Atlantic and Esquire. The Washington Post had this to say about Grant and Sherman—The Friendship That Won the Civil War, it was "beautifully defined and explored... a powerful and illuminating study of the military collaboration that won the war for the Union." "Mr. Flood's versatility is impressive..." wrote New York Times Janet Maslin.

Flood graduated from Harvard and was a member of Archibald MacLeish's noted creative writing seminar. He was a past president of PEN America Center and served on the governing bodies of the Authors League and Authors Guild. Flood was born and raised in New York City, spending much of his life there. Much later in life he lived with his wife, Katherine, in Richmond, Kentucky until his death in 2014.

Lucy Flood will be presenting works of her late father Charles Bracelen Flood. She is an editor specializing in helping writers and artists ignite their creative fire, and write from the heart of their artistic inspiration. She lives with her husband in the Bay Area and enjoys writing at dusk on the patio of her favorite creek-side café. One thing she misses about Kentucky is watching fireflies flash against a dark sky. She is the author of the forthcoming novel The Way Minnows Kiss.

Conflict Between City & Chamber Heats Up Over Spoonbread Festival

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Decorum and calm slowly eroded at Tuesday night's city council meeting, as tempers rose when members of the Berea Chamber of Commerce and Bereans United for Social Justice (BURJ) both argued their agendas before the council.

On point for both groups was the Spoonbread Festival -- the fall event that the Chamber implements every year -- and whether Confederate flag merchandise could be sold by the festival vendors. Mayor Steve Connelly had issued a draft contract to the Chamber of Commerce earlier this year, with several changes including a restriction against the selling of Confederate flag items.

Connelly indicated at the end of the city council meeting that he was willing to negotiate or forgo most of the suggested changes in the draft contract, but he would stick to the restriction that Confederate memorabilia could not be sold on city property. In the 19 years that the Spoonbread Festival has been held in town, the Berea Chamber has used city property around Berea Memorial Park for no charge.

Earlier, Berea Chamber President Jennifer Napier stated that the chamber would consider not applying for the $5,000 they usually receive from the Berea Tourism Commission, in order to forgo the signing of the appropriations contract. But Connelly replied that the ban on Confederate items would be in place for any group that licensed to use

Council Reviews Final Drawing of $10.4 Million City Hall

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The final drawings of the new Berea City Hall, Fire and Police station complex were presented to city council at their work session on Tuesday.

The complex, which city staff have estimated may cost over $10 million, would include training and office space for the police and firefighters, as well as new space for the financial office that would include a drive-through for paying bills. The City of Berea has received a $500,000 grant specifically for the fire station portion from the Community Development Block Grant, and they may borrow the rest of the money from Rural Development with a ceiling rate of 3.125.

"Rural Development will be bidding on the project, and they told us that would be the ceiling rate. They may go down depending on the market, but it won't go up," Berea City Administrator Randy Stone said, who further reported that Rural Development would give them a 40 year loan.

Since Rural Development will only release the money when the project is 80 percent done, the city will need to secure interim funding as well. Construction of the new city complex, Stone said, should take approximately 18 months.

Mayor Steve Connelly, City Clerk Cheryl Chastain, and Stone will be moving to the Berea Municipal Utilities building in May, and Economic Development Director Danny Isaacs will move to the

Baptist Health Hospital Purchases Land at Exit 77

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Baptist Health Richmond has recently purchased land at Interstate Exit 77 from Rodney Short, with the plan to "invest in the health of Berea."

The Richmond hospital purchased 14 acres, and at this point, according to Marketing and Public Relations Coordinator Megan Tracy, they are not positive how they will use the land.

"We are looking at the future health needs of Berea, and we will be exploring the best use of the land," Tracy said.

Baptist Health has been interested in broadening their health services to Berea for a while, Tracy said. Hospital leadership will be seeking to meet with the different stakeholders in Berea, to investigate the needs and wants of the community.

Joshua Woodard works with his 9th grade students at Berea Community as they run experiments on the "payload" they'll be sending up to space in mid-April. The Honors Integrated Science class has been working since January on a weather balloon they'll send into space attached with a camera. The balloon will go up approximately 100,000 feet before it pops and comes back to earth.

Berea Science Class Prepares for April Launch of Weather Balloon

If the weather cooperates this April, Berea Community science students will be launching a high altitude weather balloon to near space, with experiments tagging along for the ride.

"The scale of this project is something the students simply do not see, and the excitement and enthusiasm in the class reflects that," Joshua Woodward, the teacher of the 9th grade Honors Integrated Science class at Berea Community, wrote on his gofundme page.

Woodward has been working on this project with his freshman students since January. They posted the project on the gofundme page in order to raise the necessary funds to purchase the needed equipment for the balloon launch, which includes the balloon, helium, camera equipment, construction materials, and mate-

Parker to Share Poems & Writing Process at Conversation Cafe

Tina Parker will be the featured artist at Berea Arts Council's Conversation Café on Tuesday, March 22, at 6 p.m.

Parker will discuss her writing process, will read from her poems, and will celebrate the release of her book, Mother May I's with refreshments and a raffle drawing for prizes donated by local artists.

Mother May I is a series of linked narrative poems that explode the stereotype of the ideal mother as they explore the raw, bodily realities of childbirth and parenting young children. The book begins in the midst of daily struggles that come with raising toddlers, and uses flashbacks in later poems to address the themes of miscarriage, infertility, childbirth, and the complexities of parenting. The result is a collection that highlights the duality of joy and pain present in the every day, and the immediacy of death in the face of vibrant life.

Tina Parker started writing in the third grade with her first diary, a tiny red book with a lock and key.

"I kept it locked, too, and I even took a flashlight to write in the hall closet," Parker said.

Parker grew up in Bristol, Virginia, and in the Southern Baptist church, where she was taught to be soft-spoken and polite. The diary was a way to give voice to feelings she wouldn't dare say out loud.

"The diary contains comebacks to my older brother that I thought of hours later and tiny rants against my gym teacher who I wrote was 'so mean' because she made us play volleyball," Parker said.

Parker now has two published books of poetry—the full-length collection Mother May I released in March from Sibling Rivalry Press, and a chapbook Another Offering, published by Finishing Line Press.

Keep Spoonbread Festival in Berea

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

I lived in Washington D.C. for one year during college, and during that time there was one of those infamous government shut-downs in the city, when Congress couldn't get a federal budget passed. I remember Democrats and Republicans pointing fingers at each other on T.V., explaining why the other party was being completely unreasonable, and why they couldn't possibly get a budget passed until compromises were made on the other side of the aisle.

Meanwhile, tourists and other city visitors were being interviewed, and they didn't care what the political wrestling was about. They didn't care about the principles involved, or why one political party felt they couldn't give in on any point. What they cared about was getting the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum open again, and they demanded that the legislature do whatever was needed to make that happen.

That's how I've felt about the conflict between the City of Berea, and the Chamber of Commerce regarding the Spoonbread Festival, and the proposed regulation against the sale of Confederate flag memorabilia. I know there are grievances, principles involved with the Confederate flag, government vs. private enterprises, but ultimately what I care about is having the Spoonbread Festival continue to be in Berea, and for the business and city leaders to work together.

This possible divorce between the business community and government of Berea over this festival has the potential to cause more damage to this town than the sale of hundreds of Confederate belt buckles, and it has me very alarmed. Yes, there are some serious differences of opinions and values in this town, but our community won't work if people pull up stakes when those values crash into each other. Just as children are always the true losers in any divorce, the Berea people will be the true losers if the Chamber and City continue to knock heads until one of them breaks.

So I'm asking leaders from the city and the chamber to do whatever they have to do to keep the Spoonbread Festival in Berea, and that means making whatever compromises are necessary. In other words, don't just point to the other side and demand they give in.

Because if there is one thing that most everyone who lives in Berea agrees on, it's this — that we love this diverse, ornery, split-apart town of ours, and we love our festivals. And we want the festivals here, in the city limits, with tourists visiting our local businesses, dang it. And nobody gets to divorce!

Surely that's a good enough reason for the chamber and city leaders to settle down, and continue to hammer out this thing until it's resolved. Pretty please, with cherry on top, make it happen.

From our readers

Please make Berea a welcoming community

Dear Editor,

I'm pleased that Berea's City Council has passed a resolution against intolerance and hate, in response to documented incidents in our community. This lays the foundation for the proposed Spoonbread Festival contract, which follows Kentucky State Fair guidelines by adding Confederate merchandise to the list of items already prohibited at the Festival.

I hope everyone can agree that Berea wants to promote itself as a welcoming community. Businesses which rely on the tourist industry count on that. The fact is, regardless of the differing views of individuals, the Confederate Flag is perceived by many as a symbol of hate. Therefore, its presence at a festival supported by tax dollars and city services is the opposite of welcoming. My hope is that Berea would choose to consider the safety of all at any city-sponsored gathering.

Further, when institutions and political organizations are seen as condoning this symbol, there is evidence that it emboldens people to act. This is the reason South Carolina decided to remove the flag from their state capitol building after nine of their own were murdered in an act of hate. Surely, the Berea community will want to do everything in our power to prevent further harassment or violence.

I encourage all members of Berea's Chamber of Commerce to add their voices to this important community conversation. Our children are watching and learning from our actions and our words.

Wendy Z. Warren

Don't include hateful symbols at public events

Dear Editor,

Free speech should not include hateful symbols at a public event, whether or not such event is on municipal property.

I pray there'd be a ruckus if Nazi flags and memorabilia were sold. It should be the same way with confederate flags and merchandise -- and any other hate-based items.

What Do You Know?

RESPONSE TO PHOTO FROM LAST WEEK

Connecting the Dots

Dear Editor,

A few months ago I attended a gathering in Frankfort bringing together leaders in health and housing to discuss issues of common concern and consider ways they might better work together to address them. The keynote speaker that day was the former Lt. Governor Crit Luallen. In speaking of the issues Kentucky faced she noted three concerns that served as impediments to progress. The first she cited was a failure to "connect the dots." The second was the lack of sustained effort, and the third was the failure to consider the "consequences of inertia." In short, I understood her to say that if we don't look at how these issues link, who they will affect, and how they may affect them, the more costly things will become in the long run.

All the more reason why many in the "age-friendly" cities movement cite "looking (at your community) through an age-friendly lens" as essential to any comprehensive planning process.

That is why I was only somewhat delighted to learn in a recent Partnership for a Fit Kentucky article, of Berea's commitment to "street makeovers" for walking and biking and the "institutionalization of pedestrian safety as part of the Berea strategic plan."

In the story, the mayor pointed out that the movement for street makeover started with one member of the planning commission insisting that all new developments have sidewalks. "At first," he added, "developers resisted because of the added expense." However, that all changed when "other voices" from the community, including representatives from public schools, law enforcement, city government, Cooperative Extension Services, parents and the Bike Pedestrian Action Committee; AKA Berea Healthy Communities Board and a $146,500 grant from the Kentucky Department for Public Health lent support for that commitment.

The city should be applauded for listening to and responding to those "voices."

It does however, raise other questions such as how many voices may not have been heard from in the planning process and how many more initiatives may actually be taking shape that are not taking into account the wishes of all of its intended audience?

In speaking about the results from Berea's first ever "age-friendly" survey in October, I said that the findings could be viewed in one of two ways. The first might indicate that on many of the issues impacting "quality of life", our city leaders and the Berea community have clearly different views regarding what needs to be done and what has been done.

One of the issues of concern raised in the survey results was the lack of public knowledge. (less than 22% of responders felt the city was doing a good job in providing that information). In the absence of knowledge to the contrary, the responses may reflect in part, the public's perception of what they believe is not taking place.

Knowing more about the committees charged with tackling these concerns and knowing who else may be working on similar quality of life issues could go a long way towards maximizing efforts to improve conditions for all of our city's residents.

Sometimes connecting the dots begins with knowing who, what, and where the dots are!

Are you aware of any other projects being worked on that would apply to our "Age Friendly" movement? If so, let us hear from you.

Put yourself in the shoes of others

Dear Berea Citizen,

Let's see, some folks believe there should be no restrictions on the selling of the Confederate Flag at Spoonbread because of freedom of speech and free market principles. I would propose that this rationale is based more on the types of materials being sold than the 1st Amendment and free market thinking.

Imagine if a booth was selling Nazi flags and paraphernalia; or literature advocating Sharia Law with pictures of ISIS flags and atrocities; or perhaps even more offensive, blatantly anti Christian propaganda, say, deviant pictures of Jesus Christ. These same folks would be out with shotguns running these merchants out of town! And, I'd be there with them (without the shotgun).

Seems to me the issue boils down to what prism people are viewing the world through. Rebel flags may not be offensive enough to you to weigh against allowing them at the Festival, but they certainly would be to other citizens in our community.

Try putting yourself in the shoes of those African Americans, Jews and more who have witnessed the hatred represented by the KKK and others by waving the Confederate flag and think how you would view it. Just because you are not offended, doesn't mean it should be considered acceptable.

IN SERVICE TO BEREA

Meet Robert Ward, a sergeant with the Berea Police Department.

main thing that drew me in was public service. I just thought that was what I was meant to do.

When did you first consider becoming a policeman? What drew you to the profession? When I was about 20 years old. The

What is the most rewarding part of being a policeman? Changing someone's life for the better.

What is the strangest situation you've ever faced in your job? When I first began my career, I worked in a county jail. I remember being face-to-face and being surrounded by inmates convicted of murder and other awful crimes. Needless to say, a strange and tense environment.

Tell us about your family. I have a wonderful, supportive wife and four beautiful children. Also a beautiful niece we raise.

What is difficult about being a policeman? Witnessing personal struggles and tragedy. Also crimes against children.

Tell us something that most people wouldn't know about you. I've always had a deep love of music. I am the vocalist in a local band. We play quite a bit in Central Kentucky. I've been playing live for about two years now. Music has changed my life for the better.

rials for the experiments. So far the class has raised $2,330, which is enough for the launch, but they are hoping to raise more so they can purchase extra materials for the experiments. And perhaps even t-shirts for the class.

As long as they have good weather conditions, the students are planning to launch the weather balloon on Saturday, April 16. Most of them will travel north of Bardstown for the actual launch, while a few others will stay in Berea for the "landing." The balloon will stay in space for a couple of hours, and when it reaches approximately 100,000 feet up, it will pop and come back down.

They are launching north of Bardstown, Woodward said, because of the wind patterns in this area, which will push the balloon towards Berea.

Members of the Launch Committee in the science class will help to make the decision of whether the weather conditions are appropriate for the launch. Other committees in the Honors Integrated Science Class include Administrative, Executive, Media, Design/Construction, Testing, and Research.

The students admitted that working on the committees was the hardest part of the project.

"It's the most challenging, but also the most rewarding," one 9th grader said. "You have to push yourself."

Several of the students have been working on the experiments that will be sent up with the balloon, while others have been calculating how much weight can be carried. There will be a GPS on the launch, but at some point that will quit working. At that point, students can track the balloon through a radio transmitter.

Plants and possibly tardigrades -- segmented micro-animals -- will be sent up so students can see what affects the extreme conditions of space will have on them. Some of the students are still researching what will go in their "payload."

"It was important to me that the students really sunk their teeth into collaborative work," Woodward said. "To be honest, I really didn't think this would work; I thought they would fail and we could learn from that. But they're really pulling this off."

city property.

"But at this point, in terms of negotiating a contract for the use of city property," Connelly said at the end of the council meeting, "there will not be any Confederate flag emblems given away or sold on city property intentionally authorized by the city. That's the position I'm going to take; everything else can be worked out."

He said there would be exclusions worked into the agreements, so exceptions can be made for groups such as the Battle of Richmond Association (BORA).

Meta Mendel-Reyes of BURJ, a group that formed in August 2015, first stood up at the council meeting to, "encourage or require that the Chamber of Commerce sign the contract that has been prepared by the mayor. We're concerned about the Confederate flag merchandise . . . this is not a free speech issue, this is an issue of where my tax dollars go. We're talking about a festival that the City of Berea gives $5,000 to and probably up to $15,000 in in-kind services."

Mendel-Reyes said that people could "wear Confederate flags on their shirts, on their heads," but free speech didn't extend to requiring a city-supported event to sell Confederate merchandise.

Napier addressed the council on behalf of the Berea Chamber, and expressed regret that the request to not sell Confederate merchandise got all the attention by the media. She stated that many of the additions to the contract -- such as electrical concerns and limiting the number of booths -- were not fair to ask of the Chamber.

"What we are asking for is just the city's support," Napier said. "Let the 20th anniversary of the Spoonbread Festival continue in its present location where it's always been."

Council member Jerry Little asked if chamber members had looked at the second draft of the city contract that Connelly just sent, but Napier said they hadn't had time to look at it carefully, but it didn't look significantly different from the first one.

When council member Diane Kerby asked Napier what she was specifically asking for, Napier replied that they questioned why the contract had changed from previous years.

Conflicting views arose between Napier and Connelly about different interactions they had. Codes Director Dale VanWinkle also took issue with Napier's assertion that he had given his approval of their electric schematics.

"I won't be lied on," VanWinkle said.

Napier also asserted that Connelly had not met with them when a meeting was scheduled between the chamber and city, to which Connelly replied that he had not been invited.

"Let's get to the table so we can talk about this," Connelly said at one point, and Napier replied that, "You forget, sir, that we are run by volunteers and a board of directors that are all volunteers." "You'll just have to overcome that," Connelly said, who said he had been trying to meet with Chamber staff since November.

Sandy Rowlette stood up as well, to relay the history of the Spoonbread Festival, and she reported how many hours she and her family worked at the festival. She received a strong response from some council members, however, when she said, "how many times has a council member participated in the preparation of the festivals, or even cared to come down."

"Whoa, whoa, whoa. We're getting on a personal level," Kerby replied.

Gail Bowman from Berea College also addressed the council, and said she has never known an African-American who was not offended by the Confederate flag.

Council member Steve Caudill informed audience members during his comments that the city council had no power to affect the decision to restrict the sale of Confederate merchandise on city property, since that power lay with the mayor.

Connelly scheduled a meeting with Napier and the Chamber for Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Tolle building. They are the last four staff members still present in the city building on Chestnut, along with the firefighters. The fire department, Stone said, will not be moving until they absolutely have to, since that move will affect the coverage area.

Stone announced that a private enterprise could be moving in the Welcome Center train depot as of July, and they were currently finishing up the "old post office" so the county clerk could move over. By April 15, Stone said, the food bank would be ready to move over to the old sewer commission building. It cost $70,000 to renovate the building for the Berea Food Bank.

In other business:

- Bob Soffel from CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) stated that the organization was in trouble, and they would need support from government entities if it was to survive. He passed out information about Madison County CASA, and asked for support from the City of Berea. CASA volunteers act as a special advocate when a child is involved in family court.

- The amended budget for 2015-16 was approved, with Council member Ronnie Terrill as the only negative vote. Terrill has voted against every budget of the City of Berea since taking office.

- City council approved the new ordinance for alcohol licensing, which specifically defined what a stand-alone bar was in terms of eligible restaurants.

- Two change orders were approved for the Berea Municipal Utilities. One change order was for a credit of approximately $35,000 for a sewer project, and the other was for an added cost of $10,500 for the new roof of the BMU building, where the contractors had to replace some metal.

For the written assessment at districts, up to three students from each school take a test with approximately 35 questions. They have 35 minutes to complete the test. The top five students in each written assessment are invited to compete at Regionals.

It is the same for written composition, but these tests are on-demand writing. Students are given a prompt to write about and will have 45 minutes to complete.

With future problem solving, four students from a school are on one team. That team is given a future scenario -- for about 30 years in the future -- and they use the six-step problem solving to try and figure out a solution. They are given 90 minutes to complete. The top two schools from districts are invited to move on to Regionals.

For the quick recall competition, four students at a time from each school have a buzzer, and try to buzz in first with the correct answer, somewhat like Jeopardy. There are two 10-minute halves with a three-minute halftime. The top two schools from districts are invited to Regionals.

Berea Community Students Help to "Glean" Food for Students in Need

tions to the elementary classrooms.

For senior Della Walters, organizing the gleaning program at Berea Community School is about helping other students serve.

"It helps them understand how much we waste as a society, and offers them a way to give back that is accessible to all of them," Della said.

The idea to collect and redistribute fresh produce and non-perishable food came from Berea Community's middle and high school principal, Donna Lovell, and a parent, Nancy Naumer, back in November. Eight high school students then got on board, a male and a female from each grade, and met with the Madison County Chapter of Glean KY. They decided to be a part of Glean KY's work and do what they could at the school.

The next step was to raise awareness among the other students. After a fun round of mock practice with the other leaders, the teams made presenta-

This past week was the first one with a consistent schedule of collecting.

The volunteers take turns monitoring the basket for the correct items, and weighing the food after each meal. They are gathering between five and seven pounds of food a day.

Walters noted that many students have come on board with the idea. When bananas were served for a meal without the collection basket out, several students put their fruit on the table anyway.

"This program puts healthier food in the hands of people who might not be able to afford it," Walters said.

Currently, the Glean volunteers are offering the food to any student who needs it through the Family Resource/ Youth Services Center at the school. The original idea was to offer it through the weekend backpack program, but the logistics were difficult to work out. Once the Glean volunteers gather more than students can Eight high school students from Berea Community, a male and female from each grade, have been working with the Madison County Chapter of Glean KY, to collect extra produce from the school's breakfasts and lunches for low-resource families in the community. use at the school, the extra will be offered to the Food Bank.

This student-led initiative is filling two needs – both reducing the amount of food waste, and providing more healthy food to students. In that way, Berea Community is succeeding in its mission to "...educate each student to be a fulfilled, responsible citizen."

What Do You Know?

RESPONSE TO PHOTO FROM LAST WEEK

The two men who were featured in last week's photo were, according to one reader, Pruitt Smith on the left and Mark Clark on the right. Smith was in charge of plumbing on the campus of Berea College, and Clark was in charge of painting and maintenance.

Why prohibit "magic" games and not flag?

Dear Editor,

I have been very confused by the portrayal of the conflict over the Confederate flag at the Spoonbread Festival as a matter of free speech.

As I understand it, the Berea Chamber of Commerce already bans participation by vendors that would do things like offer tarot card readings, sell "magic" type games, or other things that the Chamber strangely associates with the occult or paganism (a religious perspective protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution). Presumably they think that these types of activities offend Berea's sensibilities so much that they need to be banned.

So I don't see why the Chamber or anyone else should object to the exclusion of the Confederate flag on "free speech" grounds. The historical and cultural roots of the Confederate flag are objectively rooted in the actual slavery and segregation of our fellow American citizens, which I believe is far more offensive than playing cards. But I suppose the Chamber disagrees.

Foolish to forfeit city support for symbol of hate

Dear Editor,

I add my voice to the chorus of Bereans who agree with the Mayor and speak out against the sale or distribution of the Confederate flag at the Spoonbread Festival.

It is clear from history that the symbol of the South's rebellion stirs emotions that are counter to what our democracy should be. Berea is better than that.

The Festival was a success in years past without controversial products to sell. Making the flag an issue has already brought unfavorable publicity to the City and the Festival. What vendors do we think will flock to sell and distribute their wares if they see the Berea Chamber as defending a symbol of racist thinking? Berea is better than that.

As past president of the Chamber, I can attest to the huge contribution that the City of Berea makes to the expenses, infrastructure, security, and parking management of the Festival. It would be foolish to forfeit that support to defend a symbol that causes hate and division. Berea is better than that.

The Chamber should think very carefully about this issue. If it wants money and support from the City and all its citizens, it seems to me that the best choice is to accept the Mayor's reasonable contract terms.

Please prohibit sale of Confederate flag

Dear Editor,

As a citizen of Berea and a person who attends the Spoonbread festival every year, I urge the Chamber of Commerce to prohibit the sale of confederate flag merchandise. The reason I ask this is simple, this flag is a symbol of racism and hate, for many people. In the same way the swastika is a symbol of racism and hate. The Spoonbread festival should not become a vehicle for the sponsorship of hateful merchandise. Again, I urge the Chamber of Commerce to prohibit the sale of confederate flag merchandise. Hateful symbols are not what the Spoonbread festival and Berea is all about.

Jessica Spencer
Berea

Why promote flag that contradicts Berea's traditions?

Berea Citizen

The Berea Chamber of Commerce would have us believe that they want to include confederate flag merchandise at Spoonbread Festival because of free speech issues. That's nonsense.

The Chamber already prohibits free speech at Spoonbread. They already prohibit drug paraphernalia, items of the occult, gambling items, martial arts weapons, pornographic or hazardous products such as fireworks.

Personally I agree with those restrictions. They are not areas I want showcased in a festival that welcomes tourists and celebrates Berea traditions.

However I do not understand why the chamber considers confederate flag merchandise acceptable. Perhaps the chamber has forgotten what makes Berea unique. Berea was founded by John G. Fee with the goal of bringing Kentucky into the civil war on the Union side. Berea College was founded to educate blacks and whites together. We have a long history of racial inclusion that makes us unique in the area.

Why in the world would we want to offend local citizens and tourists by promoting confederate flag merchandise that contradicts our long traditions? Surely John G. Fee is turning over in his grave.

Mayor is not above the law

Dear Editor,

Like many citizens who respect the Founder's system of limited government, I have become increasingly concerned over the last several years about the authoritarian bent of this small town's chief executive.

We have seen played out in the pages of the Citizen over the last couple of months Mayor Connelly's latest crusade against our constitutionally guaranteed freedoms; that being the attempt to compel the Chamber of Commerce to conform to his idea as to what is or is not an "acceptable" symbol of history. I encourage the chamber to stand fast, as the Constitution is clearly on the side of individual liberty and not the rabble-rousers or a schoolyard bully in a bowtie.

For those who just can't believe the mayor could possibly be so cavalier about upholding his oath to protect and defend the Constitution, consider the following: In 2012, our state legislature enacted KRS 65.870 which reiterated the fact that only the people's representatives in Frankfort could regulate matters concerning firearms. The law clearly gave inferior governmental bodies within the commonwealth six months to comply.

Ironically, when it comes to what is acceptable or unacceptable public displays, the City of Berea has been in violation of state law for well over three years. In summer 2015, I inquired to the city parks director as to why the city had signage at all its public parks that specifically forbade "Weapons or Firearms"? This citizen was then told new signs to replace the illegal signs were, "On order."

Fast forward to noon-time on March 1, 2016. As my family and I walked through Memorial Park I had chance, separate meetings with both the parks director and the mayor. When asked again about the illegal signs, both curiously repeated the same "on order" story.

So, why will you find no such illegal signs at our city parks today (as I write this, only bare signposts remain)? You will find them gone because I called the mayor's hand by making a public records request for the purchase orders of new signs you and I had supposedly paid for last summer. The mayor was subsequently forced to admit there were no signs "on order." I will let the readers draw their own conclusions as to what this says about the mayor's veracity.

Whether it was the thought of being shackled and frog marched like the "evil" Kim Davis (KRS 65.870 clearly defines the penalty for failure to comply with the law as "Official Misconduct," punishable by up to a year in jail) that brought the mayor into compliance, or just a guilty conscience is of little consequence. All that matters is mothers will no longer be led to believe it necessary to leave their .38 behind when watching over their precious children at our city parks and you now have a fuller understanding about how Mayor Connelly (habitually) attempts to subvert our Constitution.

I can't speak to the quality of Steve's constitutional law education, but on the first day of my training, we were reminded the law isn't what you "think" it is or "should" be; the law is what it is...and no man is above it.

Empty Bowls Event Next Wednesday

Berea residents can help address local hunger needs on Wednesday, March 30 by participating in the annual Empty Bowls event and meal.

The Empty Bowls event will take place from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Commons, located in the Woods-Penniman Building on the Berea College campus. The idea behind Empty Bowls is simple – in exchange for $10, guests will be served a meal of soup in a ceramic bowl made and donated by Berea College ceramics student volunteers or local potters. Guests keep the bowl as a reminder of all the empty bowls in the world.

All proceeds go to fight local and regional hunger through donations to the Berea Community Food Bank and other local food banks.

Tickets can be purchased at the door on the day of the event, or from 11:15 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Berea College Dining Services, located in the Alumni Building.

For more information about this event, please contact Sheila Lyons at 859-985-3935.

Escape from Happiness Performs Next Week

Next week, Berea College Theatre Laboratory will close their season with a production of Escape from Happiness, a play by George F. Walker.

The play opens on Tuesday, March 29, and runs to Saturday, April 2. All performances will take place in the McGaw Theater, Jelkyl Drama Center promptly at 8 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at the box office Monday - Friday between 1 - 5 p.m., or one hour prior to each performance. Reservations can also be made over the telephone by calling 859-985-3300. Berea College students are admitted free of charge with a valid student ID as part of their student activity fees.

Escape from Happiness is the third part of a roaring comedic trilogy that deals with issues such as family relationships, abuse, crime, police morality and more, while still managing to convey messages of love and interconnectedness. The play centers on a family living in a neighborhood in Canada that is growing more and more impoverished and crime-filled. Nora, the mother, lives with her youngest daughter, Gail, and "the man who looks like her husband," Tom. When Nora and Gail return home one day to find that Gail's husband Junior has been attacked and left for dead on the kitchen floor, they must call on the help of Gail's sisters to get to the bottom of it. Anything to keep those untrustworthy cops from lurking around their house investigating.

Directing the play is senior theatre major Moriah Griffin.

"I first found this play while searching for a comedic monologue for acting class my freshmen year, and when I came across it I felt like I had struck gold. When I read it the first time I couldn't help laughing out loud, even though I was out in public, and now even though I have been working with this script for a few months I still find myself disrupting rehearsals with laughter," Griffin said. "I think this script asks some very important questions without trying to shove the 'right' answers down our throats. I hope everyone who comes to see this production will laugh and find joy in the humor, but I also hope they walk away with seeds of new ideas about family relationships, individual moral responsibility, happiness and many of the other themes present in this show."

IN SERVICE TO BEREA Spotlight on Local First Responders

Meet Brad Hylton, a lieutenant with the Berea Fire Department.

When did you first consider becoming a firefighter? What drew you to the profession? It was a thought early on in my life, but I never really pursued it until about age 20 when I became a volunteer. My family had been a part of the fire service in Berea since the late 60s, and this, along with the opportunity to serve my community, drew me to this career.

What is the most rewarding part of being a firefighter? Being there to help someone when they are in need, and seeing that they truly appreciate the service.

What is the strangest situation you've ever faced in your job? I could never narrow it down to one situation. I will only say it is hard to believe the situations people get themselves into, and that they are willing to call the fire department to help get them out of it.

Tell us about your family. My wife Amy and I have been married for 16 years. I have a daughter, Heidi, 14, and a son, Kenten, 11.

What is difficult about being a firefighter? Seeing families going through a bad situation or losing what seems like everything at the time.

Tell us something that most people wouldn't know about you. I don't know what this says about my life, good or bad, but I really can't think of anything that most people wouldn't already know. Now people know I need to find a hobby.

Penix to Hike Boone Trace Again

Curtis Penix from Michigan returns to hike the Kentucky portion of the original Boone Trace from Fort Boonesborough, near Winchester, through the Cumberland Gap to Martin's Station, located in Lee County, Virginia from April 2 through April 10.

Penix and Givan Fox had hiked the Trace from Kingsport, Tenn., over 16 days in March 2015.

Penix's fifth-great grandfather, Joshua Penix, came with Daniel Boone along Boone Trace in 1779 and it has been Penix's wish to continue to walk in the steps of his great grandfather. It has never been "hiked" north to south in modern times and this hike will be again somewhat of a research expedition. It can be followed on his web site www.lostinthewander.com where daily blogs will be posted and a schedule of his camp sites will be available. A map with a GPS locator showing his position in real time as the hike progresses will also be available to view on the website.

Boone Trace was opened by Daniel Boone and his trailblazing party during March and April 1775 and was the first road, EVER, into the land that was to become Kentucky. It is of enormous historical significance to the founding of Kentucky, but also the opening of the entire west. It is also frequently confused with the Wilderness Road which evolved out of Boone Trace later in 1796.

Penix is a member of the Friends of Boone Trace, Inc. whose mission is to support the hike and save the remnants of Boone Trace while elevating awareness of its historical importance. Avid hikers that would be interested in preserving a part of history are invited to join the Keepers of Boone Trace. Members will adopt portions of the Trace and help maintain and preserve it for another 200 years. Any interested hikers can contact Penix through his web site or Friends of Boone Trace online at www.boonetrace1775.com.

Plan for the Upcoming US 25 Yard Sale

June 2 - 4, 2016 will be a busy weekend, as the US 25 Yard Sale holds its 5th annual event.

Stretching 565 miles from Woodfin, N.C. & Rocky Top, Tenn. to Richwood, Ky., this event has quickly become the nation's 4th longest yard sale event as well as one of Berea top drawing events, with several hundred carloads of shoppers visiting town each day.

The goal is to get folks off the interstates and get them to slow down and visit our downtowns. And we encourage local residents to have a huge yard sale to get folks to visit. Almost every city, village and town along the route participates. Maps of the route in each state are on the Facebook page and are available to download or use with your smart phone.

It's a great opportunity for nonprofits, church and school groups to set up shop and make some money. And now is the time to start organizing personal sales. If someone would like to participate, consult local officials as to permit requirements, set up legally and safely along or close to US 25, price it to sell and go for it. You will have more luck if you set up on at a site along the main road or use extra visible signage, because getting these shoppers off US 25 and down a side road will be tough. They're on a mission!

And remember—Thursday is a BIG sales day—if you're not set up Thursday, you are going to miss several hundred shoppers. And—we already have a couple of local venues lined up for vendors to rents spots along US 25 in town. So, the event seems to be catching on with folks. Our Facebook fans grew 6-fold in 2015.

No use of the US25 right-of-way is permitted and those who set up to sell must control parking and are responsible for cleanup when you are finished. It is a free event. If you own property on US25 & are renting out spots, we would recommend securing a modest-refundable clean-up fee from those you rent out to.

Go to our Facebook page, "Like and Share" it and find info, hot spots lists and maps of the route at <https://www.facebook.com/U.S.25YARDSALE>. Ya'll come! On down US 25!

those nights, and drive slowly around to witness the 20 live scenes.

"There are around 240 people volunteering for this," Sarver said. "There were approximately 6,000 people at our Christmas displays, and we're expecting around that much for Easter."

People from the church built all the scenes, and they also made their own costumes. Live animals will also be present such as lambs, llamas, sheep and donkeys.

The scenes will go from "manger to tomb," in Jesus' life, and each scene will have a narrator and a lamb. There will also be multiple videos to watch while driving around the display, or waiting to drive through.

Sarver did give a parent advisory, however, that there would be a real portrayal of the crucifixion. While there would not be people actually hanging from the crosses, they also will not gloss over the fact of Jesus' death.

SCHOOL

Baker created their own instruments as part of the "challenge" they worked on throughout the school year.

"Teams could pick their own team challenge from several different ones," Destination Imagination coach Connie Mondine said. "They chose a fine arts challenge where they had to create an original mystery story before 1990, and all the costumes and language had to fit the chosen time period."

The Berea Community team decided to create their mystery for 1940.

Since they were also required to showcase some type of talent during the mystery plan, they decided to go as a jazz band with homemade instruments.

"They're all musicians, so it seemed like a great talent to showcase," Mondine said.

The six students made an upright bass from an old trunk, using scrap wood, and the guitar was made from an old suitcase. They used weed whacker strings for both instruments. Drums were made from white plastic tubs and PVC pipes.

"They played a Miles Davis song, Four," Mondine said. "They just loved all of it."

They also found out that math was very important, and they had to get the exact spacing for their instruments in order for the sound to work.

Because of this "exceptional engineering and design," the students also won the Renaissance Award in addition to taking home the championship.

School board members approved going to the Community Eligibility Provision (CEP) starting next year. This provision allows every child in the school to receive a free breakfast and lunch. Schools are eligible if they have a certain percentage of students who receive free or reduced meals.

"The only downside to this is making sure you receive enough reimbursement to cover costs," Berea Superintendent Mike Hogg said. "But I'm sure we'll see an increase in breakfast, which will off-set our losses from the part- and full-pay students."

School board members Will Bondurant pointed out that many parents wouldn't go on the free or reduced meals because of pride, and this way their children could still have full meals. Hogg agreed, stating that many kids wouldn't get meals once their parents owed a great deal of money to the school. This way, all Berea students could always eat.

The last school day for Berea Community will be May 26, which is approximately a week later than planned in the school calendar. Graduation will take place on May 27. Staff will work from June 1 - 5.

The school also approved school calendars for the next two years, to give parents more time to plan. The beginning day for the fall of 2016 is August 9, with fall break from October 3 - 7. For the calendar in 2017-18, school will not start until August 15, to stretch out the summer so that work on the new HVAC system will be completed before the start of school. Because of this late start day in 2017, fall break for that year will be shorter.

Several juniors and seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society on Monday night, in a ceremony that current society members conducted. The students inducted were Jordan Adams, Denise Burdine, Carissa Coy, McKenzie Daughtery, Malcolm Davis, Candace Elam, Dalton Gadd, Alexandria Horn, Sam House, Austin Jennings, Jared Kilgore, Mallory Lakes, Jennifer Lee, Catrina McCollum, Wynn McDonald, Katie Okumu, Vanessa Patel, McKenzie Perry, Patty Phillips, Elvia Reyes, Maria Rojas, Olivia Rojas, Ty Robinson, Karmadri Santiago, Cherish Simpson, Chloe Skeese, Jayson Smith, Roy Smith, and Isabella Whatley.

mond reported to the fiscal court that they were ready to move on phase two of the building project. They plan to apply for funding from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to pay for the expansion, and will bring a resolution to the fiscal court since they would serve as the pass-through organization.

They need to provide a 10 to 15 percent cash match for the grant, so they will be financing for the required cash amount, and paying it back with donations.

In other business:

- Judge Reagan Taylor signed a proclamation for Arbor Day, which will be celebrated nationally on April 29, 2016.

- Gary Folckemer from ECU Emergency Management proposed a "complete set of live tests of our mass communication capability," through the outdoor warning siren system. There are four sirens located on the ECU campus; they would like to do the testing in August. Folckemer said they wanted to make sure the county had no concerns about the proposed testing.

- Madison County Conservation District turned in their 2016-17 budget with no significant changes.

- Nola Newman from Berea was appointed to the Madison County Tax Assessment Board. John Gillam just ended his second term, so he is required to step down before serving another term.

- Judge Reagan Taylor changed the terms for the EMS board members, so members would alternate. William Bradley's will expire in 2017. Randy Rigsby and Glenn Burckett were appointed for two-year terms.

- Jimmy Marcum

was appointed as a road commissioner.

- The Madison County Fiscal Court approved their Mutual Aid Agreement with BGAD.

- The courthouse will close for half a day on Friday. The next fiscal court meeting will be on Tuesday, April 12.

would change property values, what the rates of depreciation were, and some negative perceptions of manufactured homes.

The commission unanimously agreed to not change the current city ordinance.

Olson pointed out that the manufactured homes, which did look just like stick homes, cost around the same so they did not afford a price reduction for people.

Planning and zoning also changed their meeting time on the second and fourth Tuesdays to 6 p.m. instead of 6:30 p.m. This would allow staff to leave earlier, Olson said.

In other business:

- Planning and zoning waived the sidewalk requirement for Dale Ballinger, who is building a warehouse for his business on Paint Lick Road near Lee's Chicken. Near the road, it drops to 25 - 30 feet, making it necessary to rebuild the road in order to construct a sidewalk. There were also no other sidewalks in the area, so it would not have connected to other blocks.

- Planning and zoning changed the area of the new city hall campus on Chestnut Street to PSF (Public/Semi Public Facilities). The City of Berea didn't have to request the change, since they are government, but they wanted to make the future land use map appropriate.

- A new cell phone tower was requested on 456 Paint Lick Road by W. Brent Rice of McBrayer, McGinnis, Leslie and Kirkland, PLLC. The landowner was agreeable, and it should bring better coverage to that area, Brent said. Verizon will be the initial carrier on the cell phone tower, and it will accommodate up to three more carriers. Planning and zoning approved the request.

ery one of them. Our team has genuinely enjoyed every game they have played and, win or lose, it has been a terrific season and we can't wait to get back on the court next year."

Bobtown Arts Receives Grant

For the second year, Bobtown Arts, a non-profit ceramic studio, has received support from the Appalachian Fund of Berea College.

A matching grant of $6,500 for the construction of a gas kiln followed the 2015 grant which purchased four new wheels to expand the teaching program. Bobtown, located four miles from the city of Berea, was established on a 21-acre farm in 2013 by Clarence and Vicky Hayes. The arts program has completed the first phase of their broader goal by providing a free pottery studio, complete with wood fired kiln, for any intermediate ceramic artist who needs space, materials, and equipment to partici-

Master potters Philip Wiggs and Clarence Hayes designed and built the efficient kiln that uses waste wood from lumber yards and waste vegetable oil.

The Bobtown potters have included diverse artists from Madison and Estill Counties and students from Berea College's ceramic program. The artists focus on high-fired glazes, which produce the most artistic decoration and finish for clay ware, and orient young potters to the technical and aesthetic components of ash and salt glazing.

This spring, a beginning, six-week throwing course is being taught by Clarence Hayes each Tuesday. It will launch on April 12. For more information on how to access the free studio or register for a course, call 859-985-2747. Monthly firings are also listed on the website, bobtownarts.org.

Spring wood firing will be held April 1-3, with kiln opening at noon on April 5.

Visitors are welcome to tour the studio and the working farm and meet the local artists each Saturday during open studio.

Bobtown Arts long term mission is to create and support a vibrant community of diverse artists, clay artists, writers, musicians and visual artists who share studio space, materials, and inspiration. The belief is that art can change the world, one artist at a time.

Is Berea Actually Getting (Gasp) Multiple New Restaurants?

Photos by Kim Kobersmith/The Citizen

There are several new restaurants or food businesses looking to open in Berea, including Native Bagels from Katie Startzman, left, who shares some samples with Mike, Julianna, and Cooper O'Brien. To the right, Tricia Taylor stands by some of the loose leaf teas she serves in her gallery/tea and coffee shop in Herb and Willow located in Old Town.

Japanese Steakhouse? Thai Noodle Bar?

By Kim Kobersmith
 Citizen Reporter

Those who like to go out to eat in Berea are about to have a lot more options.

New food places, including a rolling bagel cart, a Japanese steakhouse, a hometown café with a healthy twist, and a Thai-inspired noodle bar all plan to open in the next few months.

Some folks might not have had the chance yet to check out Herb and Willow, the latest drink and snack place to open in town. Business partners Tricia Taylor and Sam Moody opened in late November at 136 North Broadway. They serve custom-blended loose-leaf teas, locally roasted coffee, and baked goods from Clementine's Bakery.

Taylor was part of the Arts Accelerator program last year and after completion, she decided to stay in Berea. A potter, she wanted to open a gallery space that would feature her work and other up-and-coming artists not featured in existing gift shops. The beverages and baked goods help get people in to check out the art as well as providing a hang-out spot for people in Old Town.

Katie Startzman of Native Bagel Company will begin to serve in mid-April. Her traditional bagels with a creative twist combine her Pennsylvania roots and current Kentucky home, including her never-before-seen cornmeal bagel. Her spreads include maple bacon and vegetable cream cheese, and her sandwiches will feature seasonal local ingredients like eggs, greens, and pickled vegetables.

While working as a network designer, Startzman took the MACED entrepreneur class last fall hoping to develop a food business for her local, real-life community. Her bagels will be available via delivery on a subscription basis and she will sell bagels and sandwiches from her hot dog-like bagel cart at the Farmer's Market and local events.

Street Side Café at 426 Chestnut Street will open in early May. Owner Linda Isaacs will serve American food with a healthier twist including farm fresh and Kentucky Proud ingredients. The burgers will be pure Black Angus and the sides will include broccoli and pasta salads. Isaacs wants everyone to

Giant Colon on Display March 28

Through early detection treatment, the rate of colon cancer deaths can be significantly reduced.

To raise awareness of the importance of regular and early screenings, Saint Joseph Berea will have its inflatable colon on display at the Saint Joseph Berea Colon Cancer Prevention Event. The event will take place on Monday, March 28 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the front lawn at Saint Joseph Berea.

Kay Mullins, RN, and Mitzi Alexander, RN, both with Saint Joseph Berea, will be on hand to provide colon cancer awareness education and to give a tour of the inflatable colon on the hospital's front lawn. Educational information about healthy diets and colon screenings will also be available.

The giant-size colon is 20 feet long, 12 feet wide and 10 feet tall. It allows people to walk through and see the types of issues a physician looks for during screenings, such as polyps along the lining of the colon.

Colorectal cancer is especially prevalent in Kentucky, with incidence rates above the national average. In 2013, Kentucky ranked fourth in the nation for colon cancer deaths.

The goal of the display is to reduce the rate of colon cancer deaths by helping people understand the importance of screenings.

Because individuals in the early stages of colorectal cancer often do not experience any symptoms, regular screenings are critical to catching the cancer before it reaches advanced stages or spreads to other areas. According to the CDC, colorectal cancer is the second leading cancer killer in the United States, and at least 60 percent of deaths from this cancer could be avoided if those aged 50 years or older had regular screening tests.

Gyude Moore, the Minister of Public Works in his home country the Republic of Liberia, will speak at Berea College's Service Convocation on March 24 at 3 p.m. in Phelps Stokes Chapel.

Moore, a 2006 graduate of Berea College, was a political science major and now holds a master's of science in foreign service from Georgetown University. Moore will address the persistent patterns of power and privilege in communities that are perpetuated through enforcement of clear lines of separation or "margins." His assertion will be that the role of just people everywhere is to regard margins with skepticism and push them back further and further.

Republic of Liberia's Minister of Public Works to Speak

Wesley and Lainey Alexander said, "We're going to hunt Easter eggs at church with our cousins."

Will and Alex Holbrook said, "Going to Ma Maw's in Fleming-Neon to dye Easter eggs and see the Easter Bunny."

Berger to Teach Watercolor Class

Next Wednesday evening, March 30, local artist Bob Berger will teach his first class in the watercolor series that the Berea Arts Council is sponsoring.

The spring class will meet on Wednesday evenings for six weeks, until May 11. The class will not meet on May 4. Participants will learn how to turn perception into watercolor designs by developing an artistic and focused observation. They will investigate the formal elements of watercolor such as composition, space, form, color temperature and intensity, while maintaining an appreciation for the immediacy of the medium. Visit the Berea Arts Council website for more information and to download the registration forms - www.BereaArtsCouncil.org or call 859-985-9317 for more information.

Deadline Approaches for Primary Election Registration

Madison County citizens who want to register to vote in the primary election must have their registration cards at the Madison County Clerk's Office no later than Monday, April 18, 2016 by 4:30 p.m.

County residents may complete voter registration cards at the Madison County Clerk's office at the courthouse on West Main Street in Richmond or at the Berea Branch office in Berea City Hall on Chestnut Street in Berea. If a resident has moved, he or she should change their address with the driver's license office at 122 N. Second St. in Richmond. There will be a $13 fee. They should also stop by the county clerk's office by April 18 to fill out a new voter registration card.

In approximately two weeks, a notification post card will be sent with the name of the polling location and precinct. Please contact the county clerk's office if the card is not received after making an address change. Knowing the name of your precinct on Election Day is an important part of each registered voter's responsibility. If you have any questions regarding voter registration contact the Madison County Clerk's Office by calling the Election Center at 859-624-4703 Ext 2.

Rededication of Boone Trace, Fort Twitty Markers

A rededication of the highway historical markers for the Daniel Boone Trace and Fort Twitty will take place this Friday, March 25 at 2 p.m. at their new location.

The Madison County Historical Society and the Society of Boonesborough are sponsoring the short ceremony for the rededication. The signs are now placed south of Richmond on Golden Leaf Boulevard, near its intersection with Duncannon Lane. The two signs were previously located on US 25, approximately one mile from the new location, which has been deemed more appropriate and historically accurate.

The public is invited to attend this ceremony. Several speakers will provide short comments about the history and importance of the events that took place at these locations. In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at the Arcadian Cove Assisted Living Facility located 0.4 miles north on Golden Leaf Boulevard. Further information is available from Tom Black, president of the Madison County Historical Society, at 582-6963.

The two markers being commemorated were installed under the auspices of the Kentucky Historical Society's historical marker program. The Boone Trace marker was originally placed in 1972 at the I-75 rest stop and subsequently moved to the Fort Estill hill on US 25 when the rest stop was demolished. The Fort Twitty marker had resided on the Fort Estill hill since its creation in about 1955.

The Madison County Historical Society and the Society of Boonesborough sponsored refurbishment of the Fort Twitty marker with its highly weathered condition, and upon its return the renewed marker was installed in its current location. The reconstruction of Duncannon Lane and the creation of Golden Leaf Boulevard provided a new, highly visible site that was directly accessible to Fort Twitty. Additionally, it was on Boone Trace, so that marker was also moved. Recent research has confirmed that Boone Trace ran up Harts Fork of Silver Creek, through the southern portion of the Richmond Industrial Park and then directly to Fort Twitty through this site.

Boone Trace is one of the most historically important trails in America. Blazed by Daniel Boone and his party of axmen in March of 1775, it made entry into the Western lands beyond the Appalachian Mountains possible.

At the time of this trail opening, the country north of the Ohio River was inhabited by Native Americans who considered Kentucky their exclusive hunting territory. Intrusions by white pioneers were not acceptable, and one demonstration of their resistance occurred on the early morning of March 25, 1775, just north of these markers with a pre-dawn attack on Boone's party. Captain William Twitty and his slave, Sam, were killed. Felix Walker was wounded, but able to move on to the Kentucky River within a few days. His diary provides the details.

Twitty and Sam were buried at the site of the attack, which became known as Fort Twitty or the "Little Fort", commemorating the hasty erection of a small stockade used for protection until the party moved out. The site is now owned by the Boonesborough Chapter of the D. A. R., which also erected a small stone monument in 1937.

feel welcome, so she plans to serve meals for gluten-free, vegan, and other special dietary needs.

Isaacs is from Jackson County, but felt that people in Berea would appreciate the healthier options she plans to serve. While doing a major renovation of the historic building, she is also honoring its history, preserving the 15' tin ceilings and wood flooring. There will also be restaurant displays, sharing about the building's past.

At the end of May, the former Wan Pen building near Walmart will become Yamato Japanese Steakhouse. The fine dining menu will feature hibachi grilled meat and vegetables, a wide variety of sushi, and bento box meal combinations. Those who wish can also have Saki and wine.

Owner David Dong from Georgia plans to open his 7th restaurant in Berea because there is no other Japanese food restaurant in the area, and he found this an ideal location.

Noodle Nirvana, coming in early July to 315 Chestnut Street, is the brainchild of Mae Suramek. According to Suramek, it will be "a fast, casual build-your-own noodle bowl eatery dedicated to creating epic, fresh noodle bowls and uplifting local communities." The sauce menu will include house special curry and spicy peanut and the noodle selections will include zoodles, i.e., pasta made from zucchini. Protein choices will include beef, chicken, and tofu, and Kentucky craft beers will also be offered.

Besides offering her comfort food to Berea, Suramek also wants to create a business model that impacts non-profits in a big way. That inspiration is from her years of working with nonprofits and seeing how a business could really make a difference. She will choose one nonprofit per year and offer them an in-store display, daily profits once a month, hosting for a yearly fundraiser, and more.

In addition to these new restaurants, the City of Berea is working to move a restaurant into the train depot, because they believe it is an ideal restaurant spot, though no plans are final yet.

Thanks to these five entrepreneurs, the local food scene will become more vibrant and unique, providing jobs and serving the stomachs of locals and visitors alike.

City Still Split on Energy Decision

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

In the past several weeks, the Berea City Council has heard presentations from Kentucky Utilities (KU), KyMEA (Kentucky Municipal Energy Agency), AMP-Ohio, and their own energy consultants, but they are still far from making a decision about power purchasing, or joining KyMEA.

Berea City Administrator Randy Stone will be setting up a session in the next couple of weeks for city council members to discuss all the power purchase options, and he expects the discussion to be "interesting." Council members have been digging through the energy issue for months now, and one thing they all agree on is that it is one of the most complicated topics they have ever had to tackle.

Council member Jerry Little has been the most vocal against joining KyMEA, a newly formed government agency of ten municipal utilities in Kentucky that have joined forces to negotiate better wholesale electric costs. Most of the municipal electric utilities, which purchased wholesale electric power from KU for decades, decided to cancel their contracts with KU last year because of terms they found unfavorable that were later overturned.

Initially, the Berea City Council was supportive of joining KyMEA, but they backed off when they read through the interlocal agreement. Since then, the council has solicited wholesale electric bids through their consultants, and received approximate-

And the Teachers Get the Pie! Students from Shannon Johnson Elementary got to throw pies at their teachers last Friday, as the culmination of a fundraiser for Hospice Care Plus. In every grade, the teacher of the class that raised the most money for Hospice was rewarded by getting a whip cream pie thrown in his or her face by the child who raised the most money from the class. It was a raucous afternoon for the elementary school, as students stood up to scream and cheer as they saw their favorite teachers taken down by pie.

Berea College Offers Free, Family Friendly Modern Dance Matinee

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Students from Berea College perform in Kinetic Expressions in 2015 (above), the annual concert the college gives on modern dance. A free, shorter performance will be offered on Saturday, April 9 at 3 p.m. for families that will include the more colorful, dramatic dances.

Families will have the opportunity to attend a free modern dance performance at Berea College next weekend, when Kinetic Expressions 2016 holds a matinee on Saturday, April 9 at 3 p.m. in the Seabury Gym.

This is the second year that Berea College has offered Kinetic Expressions at a free matinee for families, and college staff are hoping to bring in a lot of children from the community for the performance.

"It's a great opportunity for kids to see modern dance," Sarah Downs said from the Berea College Dance Program. "We made the matinee an hour, because that seems like the amount of time kids are able to sit for a performance. We've chosen the most engaging dances, ones that are more colorful and dramatic, with bodies being thrown in the air, for the matinee. We want lots of kids and families to attend."

A teen dance class will also be performing at the matinee, with dancers from both Berea Community and Madison Southern. At the end of the afternoon performance, children will be invited to the stage to dance to the song, Happy, with the whole cast. A donation of $5 is suggested. Downs said they would use those funds to help with costumes for the following year.

CASA Re-Energizes to Serve County's Abused Children

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The Lunch on the Lawn event this Friday at the courthouse in Richmond will not only be an event to honor Child Abuse Awareness Month, but also an opportunity to recruit for a revitalized CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates).

CASA, a program that partners volunteer advocates with abused or neglected children in the judicial system, has been languishing in Madison County for some time. Judge Jeffery Walson first brought the program to the county 18 years ago, and single-handedly got it started. It was a strong organization for many years, but community involvement has been slowly decreasing.

"The reason for failure is it didn't have grassroots support the last several years," Bob Soffel said, who has been working as the interim director since November. "There was a real lack of community buy-in."

Soffel agreed to volunteer as the executive director for 120 days, to see if it was feasible to keep Madison County CASA going. He took a hiatus from his business, Critical Energy Solutions, and has spent the last four months talking to everyone he could in the community. People responded very positively, Soffel reported, and he found tremen-

Massage and Yoga Studio Opens in New Berea Location

A new location for massage and yoga opened in Berea in March, when Andri Kukas received a $5,000 business development grant from the United Way.

Kukas used the grant to renovate a portion of her home into a separate work space, Thrive Studios, where she hosts other practitioners and operates her business, Healing Massage. She is a licensed massage therapist and a registered yoga teacher, and has a BS in ecology.

"I am a holistic health practitioner," Kukas said. "I have had many clients recover from simple injuries, aches and stiffness, but also more serious conditions such as chronic headaches, sciatica, frozen shoulders, whiplash, even anxiety attacks and sleeplessness."

The main techniques Kukas uses are craniosacral therapy and myofascial release, also called deep tissue. This work can all be done full clothed.

Kukas said the two main camps for massage therapy are restorative and relaxation. She does both.

"I can do a swedish relaxation oil massage, or pregnancy massage, reiki, or thai massage too," Kukas said.

A client of Kukas', Joe White, said, "I had been suffering on and again for years with sciatica...I had been experiencing pain for more than six months consistently...In only a couple of visits, I was much improved. In a season of visits, I felt great. Andri not only provided corrective massage, but also gave me advice and guidance for stretching, sitting and standing posture and other corrective measures. I feel so much better that I have been able to return to laborious work."

Thrive Studios was previously located in Churchill's, and before that, on Chestnut Street. The business moved to its present location in Berea, 97 Taylor Drive, three minutes from I-75. This is a mixed use facility of Kukas's residence and a separate work studio, so visits to the site are by appointment only.

"I made a smart business move by eliminating rent, and am simultaneously offering a sweet little oasis to my clients that provides a serene and optimal healing environment overlooking a pond, the pinnacles, and soaring birds," Kukas said.

Kukas also does home visits.

"I travel weekly to work on a client who has a traumatic brain injury because it would be so much work to get him to me," she said.

Beginner Slow Flow Yoga classes at Thrive Studios are Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Detailed instructions and small classes allow for individual attention (if desired) as to avoid injury later if you develop a more rigorous practice. Attention is given to staying within your personal limi-

Students learn correct body mechanics, stretching, strengthening, balance, breathing, and cultivate inner peace through meditation. Starting in May, Thrive Studios will be hosting intermediate, power, and laughter at the same times on Mondays and Fridays.

Prices are $30/month for one yoga session/week, or $45/month for two sessions/week and a person may take one make up lesson per month if arranged in advance. It is $10/drop-in class. Massage therapy is $50/hour. Discounts are offered for package purchases.

Thrive accepts cash, check, or credit. People are invited to like Thrive Studios on Facebook or email andrikukas@yahoo.com to stay informed on workshops, discounts, mother's day specials, and a Grand Opening celebration. April classes start next week. Direct questions, register for classes, or schedule a massage by calling or texting 859-582-6295.

Audible Egg Hunt Takes Place at Glades Christian Church

The fifth annual Audible Easter Egg Hunt took place last Saturday at the Glades Christian Church in Berea.

This annual event was co-sponsored by the Berea Lions Club and Families Advocating For The Blind (F.A.B.). Members from both organizations, as well as parents and children, took part in the event.

Special Easter Egg shaped devices, equipped with talking electronics, allow the vi-

Above, children, parents, and members of the Berea Lions and Families Advocating For The Blind (F.A.B.) gather before the hunt.

Obituaries from local funeral homes are printed free in the Berea Citizen as a courtesy to our readers.

Textile Artist to Demonstrate at Artisan Center

Brilliantly colored fabrics will become 'fins and feathers' as textile artist Marilyn Foulke, of Louisville, demonstrates how she captures a variety of fish and bird species in her quilts on Saturday, April 9, from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Kentucky Artisan Center at Berea. For her creations, Foulke uses a combination of piecing, raw edge appliqué and machine quilting. A native Louisvillian, Foulke has been interested in fiber and fabrics from an early age. Her love of hand and machine sewing began with grade school projects, and she has always been interested in color and design. In 1997, she began creating quilts, wall art and wearable art. Her quilt making is informed by her career as a mathematics teacher for over 30 years, and her love of geometry, symmetry, logic and balance.

"I am a self-taught quilter," Foulke said. "My work is not constrained by 'rules' or patterns, and I enjoy creating outside the box. I love to experiment with unusual embellishments and materials."

In Foulke's quilted wall hangings, she uses fine quality cottons and silk, sometimes hand dyeing them to get the color she wants. Most of her pieces are one-of-a-kind and her fish and bird-themed quilts are all based upon observation, drawings and photographs taken during her travels.

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Officers arrested Grant Graham, 34, of Georgetown and Kayla Young, 24, of Berea. They were both charged with first degree possession of controlled substance. Graham was also charged with several traffic offenses.

Public Intoxication

Public Intoxication

• On March 28, officers were called to Berea Health Care Center because of a suspicious person. The person was located and seemed confused and stated that she did not know why she was there. She was also unsteady on her feet and had slurred speech. Officers arrested Andrea Isaacs, 26, of McKee and charged her with public intoxication.

• On March 28, officers arrested Roscoe Abner, 34, of Richmond. An investigation revealed that he sold several rings to a pawn shop in Richmond. Berea College Recognized For Strong Graduation Rates of Low-Resource Students

On March 24, Berea College President Lyle Roelofs attended a meeting hosted by the U.S. Department of Education focused on highlighting institutions across the country that are making significant strides in increasing graduation rates among students eligible for Pell Grants.

"For students from low- and moderate-income families, a college degree is the surest path to the middle class in our country," said U.S. Secretary of Education John B. King, Jr. "I applaud the colleges and universities that have taken measurable steps to open up this pathway and make it a successful one for students from all backgrounds. But we need these types of efforts to become the rule and not the exception."

King continued, "Since the beginning of his administration, President Obama has worked to ensure more Americans have the opportunity to get a quality, affordable higher education, with promising results - more students are graduating from college than ever before. But many American families still feel that college may be out of reach for their children."

In a newly published report titled, Fulfilling the Promise, Serving the Need, Advancing College Opportunity for Low-Income Students, the U.S. Department of Education says colleges and universities have a responsibility to expand access to all students and offer targeted support for low-income students. The report is also a call to action for institutions with significant gaps between completion rates for Pell Grant recipients and overall completion rates, as well as institutions that have positive outcomes but enroll too few low-income students. The Pell report is available online at <http://www2.ed.gov/about/overview/focus/advancing-college-opportunity.pdf>.

Roelofs said, "Considering the ongoing national discussion about affordability and access, we at Berea College find it especially gratifying to be recognized as a leader in serving the public good by educating talented, low-income students who become service-oriented leaders in Appalachia and beyond."

Roelofs also stated, "Nationally, fewer than 13 percent of low-income college students graduate by the time they are 24. At Berea, we graduate five times as many."

Ted Mitchell, U.S. Under Secretary of Education, commented, "For us to thrive as a diverse democracy and for individuals to achieve their dreams of success, higher education must fulfill its promise of providing opportunity to all students, regardless of their race, gender or income level."

Mitchell continued, saying, "That opportunity means access, but getting into college is not enough. It's getting in and getting through that matters. There are remarkable institutions around the country succeeding at making access and success a reality for low-income students. We need to learn from their leadership and spread the word about practices that work."

The Department of Education conference with college presidents, trustees and campus leaders from across the nation was held to discuss ongoing work. Among those attending were several who represented colleges and universities included in the report. The event spotlighted the promising and proven practices developed by these institutions to advance success for low-income students, and encourage broader conversations among the field to accelerate this work.

Can We Just Agree to Disagree and Not be So Disagreeable?

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

differing political and world-views our staff manages to work toward a common goal and get it done every week. All the while, actually being friendly with each other.

Tuesdays in the office are hectic but we try to have a little fun too. There's been some singing going on this morning, fun for the singers (who shall remain nameless) and if it was a little off key no one was telling them.

In the middle of one of those tunes Sheila made an announcement that April 4th will be "National Hug a Newsperson Day."

Of course we all laughed. She then had to prove it to us by looking it up on the website nationaldaycalendar.com.

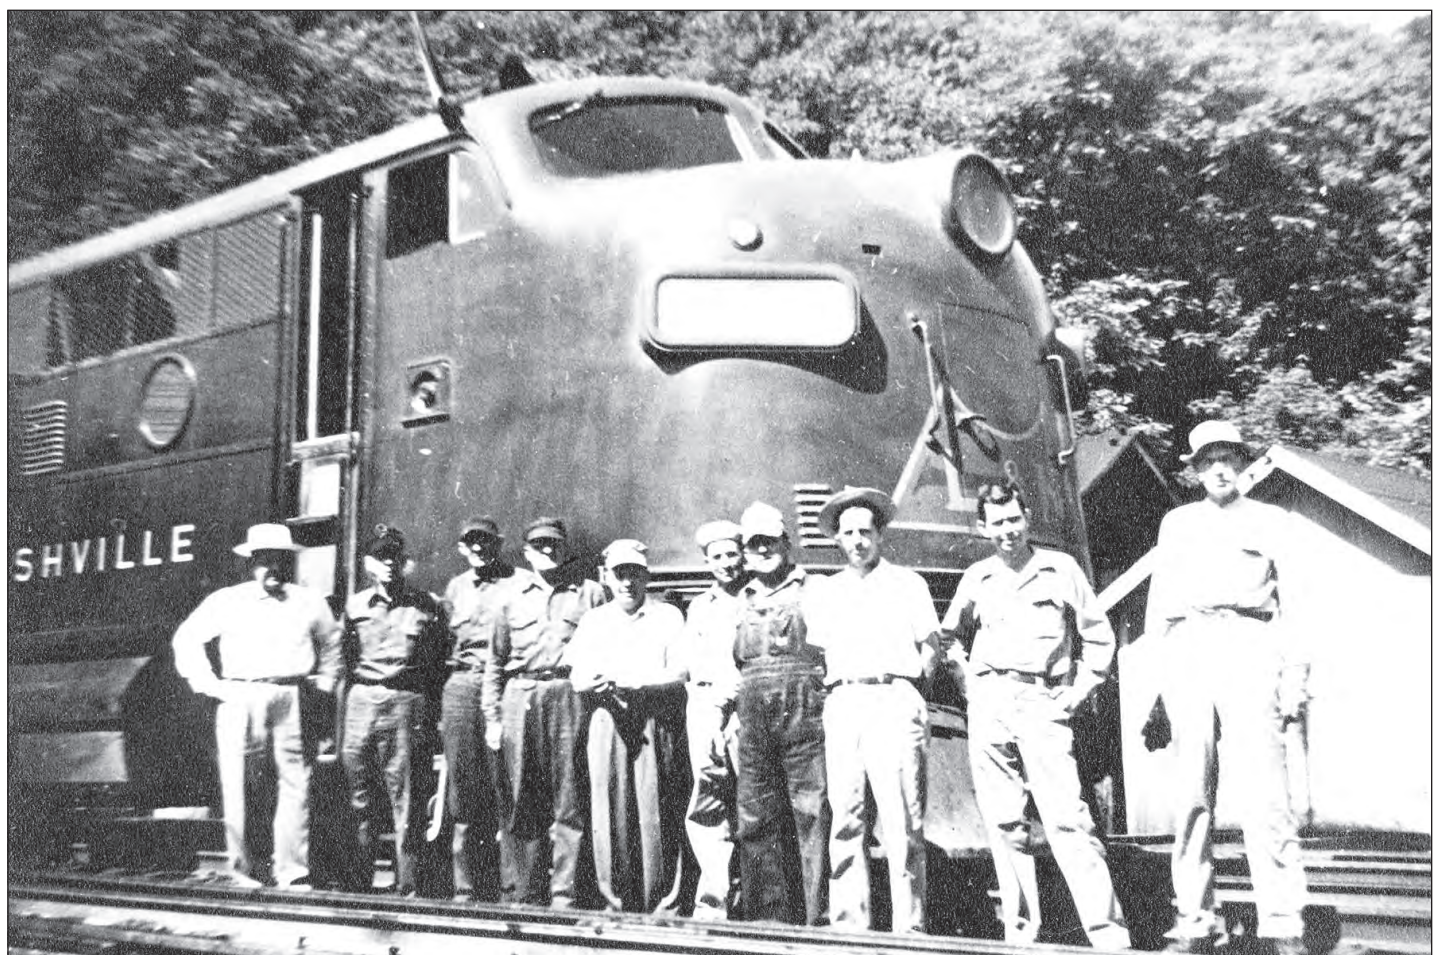

I kid you not. There is indeed such a website.

I'm sure you're not, but just in case you are wondering, Thursday, March 31st, the day most of you will be reading this edition of the paper, is National Prom Day, National Bunsen Burner Day, National Clams on the Half Shell Day and National Tater Day. I can see myself celebrating taters but the other things, not so much.

It seems there are plenty of food related days on the site, from chocolate macarons to rotisserie chicken, and almost anything you can think of in between, there's a national day for it.

As it turns out, maybe we shouldn't have been having fun at work today at all. National Have Fun at Work Day is January 28th. On March 28th we are supposed to celebrate Mom and Pop businesses and Lemon Chiffon cake. I'll go on the record as being in favor of both.

Now, to petition for a National Get Over Yourself and Find Some Bigger Fish to Fry Berea Day.

What Do You Know?

Can anyone identify the men standing with the train in the above photo? Or share any other information regarding the train or what prompted the photograph?

Pranking the King of April Fools Day

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers, Editor

My husband is the king of office pranks, and April 1 is his favorite time of the year.

He has pre-warned his office mates about Friday, in order to build the anticipatory dread in their hearts. His pranks are both simplistic and sophisticated, and he has the technical knowledge to make someone's life quite miserable. At various jobs before, his female co-workers would find Chippendale dancers on their computer wallpaper, or office equipment mysteriously malfunctioning.

At my previous job, he delighted in pranking one particular co-worker of mine. He once changed her wallpaper to a photo of the Orcs from Lord of the Rings, and everytime it was boot-ed up a fart sound was activated. He also put a dab of super glue at the end of all her pens, switched her desk drawers, and once even snatched her keys so he could park her car smack dab in the grassy area in the middle of the parking lot.

I usually found out about these pranks when he would run into my office at lunchtime, hide behind the door, and she followed, shrieking, "BETH! I'M GONNA KILL HIM!" And to answer the inevitable question, yes, it was an unusually tolerant type of office environment.

His plans for this Friday (this will not be a spoiler, since he works out of county) include arriving very early so he can gather all the staplers in the office to put on his desk, place Annoy-a-Trons in the front office, and place the life-size Darth Vader that I bought him for his birthday in the women's bathroom to tell them to "release their anger" whenever the door opens. He purchased these Annoy-a-Trons -- small circular devices that emit annoying sounds at random intervals -- specifically for Friday.

With me, he's not quite so sophisticated. His favorite prank has always been the drive-away-right-when-she's-about-to-open-the-passenger-door-of-the-car, circle around, return, repeat. It just never quit being awesomely funny to him. It only stopped when my children got old enough to start screaming at him because they thought he was leaving Mommy behind.

I have never been his equal at these pranks. It's hard for me to think them up, and when I do, they often seem to go too far, over that vague, invisible line between humorous and cruel. For example, during college I snuck into his apartment and put all his stuffed animals in nooses that hung from the ceiling of his bedroom. They were hanging there, basically committing group suicide, when he came back from class. I thought it was hilarious, but he called, extremely upset with me, repeating the phrase that, "you just don't do that to stuffed animals." It took him weeks to forgive me for that. I have asked people about that prank over the years, and they all agreed that hanging stuffed animals by their necks had definitely gone too far. Some people were really shocked that I trespassed on such sacred ground. For whatever reason, it was clear that I just didn't have an internal radar on what was appropriate or acceptable in prank world.

So for this year's April Fools Day, I have decided to recruit some help. My two sons quickly agreed to work with me on Operation Prank Daddy this Friday. I have also put that tool of all things informational -- the Internet -- to use with a google, "best April Fools pranks." I know it lacks integrity to have to google for pranks, but frankly, I needed the help. I did personally come up with the idea of dressing his penguin pillow pet in his underwear, which evidently is fine to do to a stuffed animal as long as it does not lead to asphyxiation. And of course, I'll have to keep him from reading the newspaper for a couple of days.

Successfully pranking my husband is a small ambition certainly, but of such small victories are great lives built upon. So Merry April Fools Day to all, and to all a good night.

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

Stereotyping of rebel flag inaccurate, damaging

Dear Editor,

Mrs. Elkins, fifth grade teacher from long ago, told about an event that happened in her neighborhood when she was a girl. A fire had started in someone's house and the poor homeowner went around knocking out the windows and opening the doors, hoping the wind might blow it out. Of course, the fresh air only led to hotter, more destructive flames and destroyed the house long before the firefighters could contain it.

Without a doubt, the rebel flag is a symbol that stirs up a lot of unwanted emotions. Unfortunately, the fires of this issue have expanded due to all the winds blown onto it. It could have/should have been handled differently. Individuals and groups have needlessly been scorched by the heat.

Now, the socially-observer

vant people of our community of 12,000 +/- see a rebel flag and think, "there's a redneck racist who is looking for trouble". This stereotyping is inaccurate and damaging. There must be a better way.

dous support among the law enforcement community, the judicial system, the detention center, and the nonprofit organizations. He did not, however, find support for the program with the elected officials of the Madison County Fiscal Court, and very little with the elected officials of the two cities.

"I was disappointed with the lack of support among the elected officials," Soffel said. "In areas where CASA is strong, there is a good partnership with the city or county."

Despite the lack of support from the three governments, Soffel is very positive about the future of Madison County CASA, and the people he has recruited either for the board of directors or as volunteer advocates.

The Lunch on the Lawn, which will start at 12 p.m. on Friday, will be a swan song for Soffel, who plans to step down as the temporary director of CASA on Thursday and return to his business.

"I think that's when my 120 days are up," Soffel joked, "though I may have put in a couple of extra days."

He will continue either working as an advocate or board member, however. Magistrate John Tudor will sign the Child Abuse Month Proclamation on Friday, and Judge Nora Shepherd along with Katie Ellis, the widow of Richmond Police Officer Daniel Ellis who was killed in November, will both speak.

Ironically, the four suspects in the shooting of Ellis will be in the courthouse during the event. All of them, Soffel said, had large DNA (dependency, neglect, and abuse) files from when they were children.

Ellis will also be leading the pinwheel planting, when people who attend the lunch event will be asked to place a pinwheel on the courthouse lawn in support of the 419 abused and neglected children reported in Madison County during 2015.

Soffel, who volunteered as a CASA advocate in Fayette County for eight years, has stayed in touch with all the children he has worked with as an advocate.

"I'm pleased," Soffel said, "to report that they're all flourishing. Just because their case was finished didn't mean our relationship was over. For a child who has been abused or neglected, having an adult advocate is so important."

CASA, which started in the late 1970s, partners with the judicial system to provide volunteer advocates for abuse or neglected children. A juvenile court judge in Seattle started the organization, so someone could speak specifically for the abused children in court cases.

CASA volunteers who are paired up with a child are expected to stay with that case until it's closed and the child is placed in a safe, permanent home. For many children, the CASA volunteer is the one constant adult presence in their life.

People interested in working with CASA can call 859-228-0468 or email forthechild@madisoncasa.org.

Boone Tavern Named "One of South's Best Hotels" By Southern Living

The Historic Boone Tavern Hotel has been awarded recognition by Southern Living magazine as "One of The South's Best Hotels and Inns."

The honor is part of the magazine's annual "Best of the South Travel Awards" that cites top destinations for lodging, dining and other travel-related entertainment across the South.

The honor puts Boone Tavern among a select group of boutique hotels, such as the Greenbrier in West Virginia and the Peabody in Memphis, that Southern Living calls its "favorites."

Southern Living stated, "In the early 1900s, Nellie Frost, wife of Berea College president William G. Frost, thought the area needed a great hotel to welcome visitors. In 1909, Boone Tavern was built, and it has since hosted guests including Henry Ford, Calvin Coolidge, Eleanor Roosevelt and the Dalai Lama. A recent $11 million renovation made it the first LEED Gold-certified hotel in Kentucky."

"We are pleased that Historic Boone Tavern has been recognized by Southern Living as one of the Best Hotels in the South for 2015," said Gary McCormick, general manager of Boone Tavern Hotel & Restaurant. "This is a tribute to our entire staff and for their hard work and dedication in making sure that every guest has a great hospitality experience."

Boone Tavern Hotel was built in 1909 by Berea College to serve as a guest house for visitors to campus. Its strategic location on the old "Dixie Highway" and its reputation for fine food, comfortable accommodations and gracious hospitality made it a popular spot for travelers from the dawn of the automobile age.

The hotel's dining room features well-known historical favorites, such as "spoonbread" – a signature item of Boone Tavern – and "Chicken Flakes in a Bird's Nest" that was developed by Richard Houghton, the innkeeper for more than three decades.

Contemporary classics on the menu include an array of appetizers, salads, entrees and desserts created from Kentucky Proud® products, many of which are grown on the Berea College Farm.

The College's students are an important part of Boone Tavern. Students help staff the hotel and restaurant, working 10-15 hours per week as part of the Berea College Labor Program that provides employment at the hotel and more than 120 other departments and work areas across campus.

People who are interested in seeing all the dances of the Kinetic Expressions performance can attend on Thursday or Friday night at 8 p.m. This full performance lasts two hours, with twelve different pieces performed. Half of the dances are choreographed by students, and the other half are choreographed by faculty, staff, or guests. The modern dance category will be stretched a bit this year, Downs said, with the presentation of a classical Indian dance by a Berea College student, Baharta Natyuum.

The annual performance of modern dance, or Kinetic Expressions, at Berea College started in 1997 when the faculty and staff decided to put on a concert. Since then, students as well as faculty and staff are invited to "audition" their dance in the fall, when several pieces are chosen for the spring concert. The dancers then have until April to rehearse the different pieces that are chosen.

Downs, who teaches the class Improvisation and Choreography, requires her students to choreograph a dance as their final project. These dances can then be entered into the Kinetic Expressions auditions.

"All the people who audition get a vote on which dances are accepted," Downs said. "The top ten pieces get into the show."

A guest artist is also invited every year. Adalhi Aranda Corn, the founder of Bluegrass Youth Ballet in Lexington, has choreographed one of the pieces, for the 11th dance in the show. The 12th piece is the finale where all 50 of the dancers participate; faculty members take turns choreographing this piece. This year, Stephanie Woody has choreographed the finale.

Downs said people would be surprised at the amount of talent that exists among the faculty and staff at Berea College when it comes to dance choreography. A biology teacher has choreographed one of the ten pieces this year.

Tickets for the Thursday and Friday evening performances are $7. To order tickets, contact Downs at 985-3738, or through email at sarah_downs@berea.edu. Sales from the tickets help to pay for the production costs.

ly five. KU and AMP-Ohio are two of the bidders.

Ed Fortner, director of Berea Municipal Utilities, recommended joining KyMEA early on, after the City of Berea cancelled their contract with KU. It's a position he continues to take. The current KU contract will last until the spring of 2019.

"By going through KyMEA, we would have a lower cost of borrowing, the administrative costs are much lower than what we pay at KU, and there's no return on investment," Fortner said. "KyMEA has to answer to the municipal utilities that would be board members, like Berea would be if we joined. KU only answers to their stockholders."

The municipal utilities in Kentucky that have joined KyMEA are Barbourville, Bardwell, Benham, Owensboro, Corbin, Falmouth, Frankfort, Madisonville, Paris, and Providence; Paducah is considering membership. Both Nicholasville and Bardstown chose to continue their contact with KU, however, when the electric utility offered them more favorable terms.

Tom Calkins, the utilities director of Nicholasville, said, "Everything is different now than it was two years ago. We never gave notice to KU, and they took the ten-year contract requirement off the table, and offered a lower return on investment. Our rates are now lower than Berea."

Calkins, who also serves as the CFO of Nicholasville, pointed out that they, like Berea and Paris, have all three utilities under the city – water, electric, and sewer.

"This is a very complicated issue, and I already have trouble controlling my time," Calkins said. "These municipal utilities that only have electric also have power boards and other infrastructure set up to manage a commitment like KyMEA."

Fortner said the other municipal utilities that joined KyMEA have had no conflicts with their city councils, and the utility directors' decision to join was not challenged.

"They feel pretty sorry for me," Fortner said wryly.

Fortner said he didn't take enough time to educate the city council members on the KyMEA situation, and wasn't careful enough to make sure they understood the interlocal agreement.

Some city council members have expressed concern that the interlocal agreement would force the City of Berea to abide by power purchasing decisions of the KyMEA group. Fortner said that joining the group would not obligate the City of Berea to any purchase – they could take as much or as little advantage of the collaboration as they wished. Berea could even purchase power from KU after joining KyMEA, though Fortner said he didn't see why they would want to make that decision.

Little, who at one city council meeting said he was, "sick of hearing about KyMEA," stated that he is still considering all the options.

"I wouldn't be ready to make a vote at this point," Little said, who also mentioned that going with KyMEA "is like going to Las Vegas."

Josh Bills, chairman of the Berea Utilities Advisory Board, is in favor of joining KyMEA, and sees more opportunity to invest in renewable energy through the group.

"It's an opportunity that presents, potentially, the best outcome," Bills said. "This is uncharted territory, but when the city council decided to cancel their contract with KU, they chose to go into uncharted territory. We would have the opportunity to do a significant municipal energy project with our allies in Kentucky."

Bills pointed out that the energy portfolio that KyMEA is considering has the greatest amount of renewable energy options.

"This is really exciting," Bills said. "We could have the lowest wholesale costs, and an opportunity for the lowest carbon footprint with the portfolio they are considering."

Stone said the City of Berea will be scheduling a public forum on the power purchasing decision within the next few weeks, after the city council meets to discuss all the information from the various presentations.

BCHS students win big at FBLA Regionals

JOSEPH CAUDILL
PIRATE Staff Reporter

On Thursday, March 10, the Berea Community High School Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) competed at Regional competition at Eastern Kentucky University, against 22 other schools in the region. Future Business Leaders of America is a membership-based organization that prepares students for careers in business and future education through varieties of community service, academic, and leadership activities. When FBLA members choose to compete in Business-oriented fields, they are offered an abundant and diverse array of divisions in which they can compete, such as Animation, Business Ethics, Emerging Business Issues, Global Business, and many more enriching topics. "We [educators] don't do a lot of demonstrated learning in a classroom [as much as] we should, and [one of the things important to me] is to make sure that our kids are able to demonstrate knowledge and to be able to compete with schools," stated Berea Community High School FBLA Supervisor and Business/Marketing teacher Russ Shearer.

Although FBLA brought back trophies in multiple events in last year's regional competition, Berea witnessed many more competing club members qualifying for FBLA State Competition in this year's 2016 Regional Competition: Sophomores Dante Clavere, Alex Mondine, and Freshman Ryan Whitt placed 1st in Most Talented, Freshman Emily Nigro placed 1st in Introduction to Business, Sophomores Carmen Hazelwood, Sierra Lurty, and Crystal Williams placed 1st in

Emerging Business Issues, Junior Malcolm Davis placed 1st in Impromptu Speaking, Juniors Ty Robinson and Wynn McDonald placed 1st in Management Information Systems, Junior Jordan Adams placed 1st in Insurance and Risk Management, Juniors Vanessa Patel, Izzy Whatley, and Candace Elam placed 3rd in Global Business, Junior Sam House placed 2nd in Networking concepts, Seniors Claire Hogg, Emma White, and Kerri Adkins placed 1st in Business Ethics, Seniors Greg Schloemer and Hunter West placed 1st in Network Design, Senior Claire Sandberg placed 1st in Accounting II, and Senior JD Lovell placed 2nd in Job Interview.

"[FBLA is important] because it teaches you important traits that you need to continue to use throughout high school and college and life in general," stated Senior Claire Sandberg, "it's a great way to find friends that are interested in the same things that you are or to broaden your horizons." With a record amount of club members advancing to State Competition, Berea Community made a great display of its accomplishments, despite the fact of competing against much larger schools. "FBLA is an important [group] at our school because it's one of [the very few groups at Berea] where we can take 50 to 60 kids from a school of about 350 kids and compete with the Pulaski counties and the Madison counties and the Estill counties where they'll have 700 or 800 kids to choose from. I think it's very important that we finished 3rd overall, with a school from just 350 kids. I think that's very important."

Members Qualifying for State Competition will begin competition on April 18.

Juniors inducted into National Honors Society

JOSEPH CAUDILL
PIRATE Staff Reporter

On Monday, March 21, several Berea Community High School juniors and seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society during the Berea Board of Education meeting in the Kennedy Theatre. The ceremony was conducted by current society members.

Current members lit four candles on stage, one for each pillar of the society: scholarship, leadership, service, and character. With each pillar, a current member read a small speech which described its importance to the organization. At the end, all the inductees held a small candle and recited a pledge.

Junior Sam House said, "It was an honor to be able to become a part of NHS. The candle lighting was special."

Linda Williams, a former NHS sponsor of eight years, and Eef Fontanez are the co-sponsors of Berea Communities chapter of NHS. Williams says to be inducted into NHS is, "both a privilege and a responsibility because, by getting in, students have to demonstrate an enormous amount of leadership and service."

Many of the NHS members are already a part of Student Council or other associations that focus on service. Therefore NHS and the other associations co-inside when it comes to events like Sara Care, food drives and spirit weeks.

The newly inducted members are: Jordan Adams, Denise Burdine, Carissa Coy, McKenzie Daugherty, Malcolm Davis, Candace Elam, Dalton Gadd, Alexandria Horn, Sam House, Austin Jennings, Jared Kilgore, Mallory Lakes, Jennifer Lee, Catrina McCollum, Wynn McDonald, Katie Okumu, Vanessa Patel, McKenzie Perry, Patty Phillips, Elvia Rojas, Maria Rojas, Olivia Reyes, Ty Robinson, Karmadri Santiago, Cherish Simpson, Chloe Skeese, Jayson Smith, Roy Smith and Isabella Whatley

Linda Williams said, "These students who were inducted are the same ones that we hope will take those leadership and service skills into the world to truly make it a better place."

Community Eligibility Program considered

KYRA MORGAN
PIRATE Staff Reporter

On Tuesday, March 15, the Berea Community School Board met in the Middle and High School library to discuss providing the whole school with free breakfast and lunch. This would be a new system put into place by the cafeteria workers at the start of the next school year in August. It is a program called The Community Eligibility Provision, or CEP. This will change the way students get food from the cafeteria, because they will know longer have to pay at the end of the line, so there is room to try some things that haven't been done before.

"We are working on having a grab and go breakfast option for middle and high school students, so they all have fuel for the day," said Superintendent Mike Hogg.

The cafeteria at Berea Community Schools currently serves nine hundred lunches and four hundred breakfasts each day. Under the new program, the school hopes to raise the number of breakfasts and lunches served. In the pilot schools (schools who are the first to try this program), the number of students that got a school breakfast increased by 25 percent and the number of lunches increased by 13 percent.

Qualifying schools are schools with forty percent of students who are "identified". These students qualify for the free and reduced lunches. The program takes out the need for schools to worry about students who can't pay for lunch.

At the Berea Community School Board's meeting, the decision was unanimous to implement this new program.

"I was glad to see folks come out to the meeting and have a discussion focused on work to meet the needs of students so they are ready to learn. If students are hungry, learning can be negatively influenced," said Mike Hogg.

Because of the progress of the School Board, next school year, Berea Community School's students will be provided with free breakfast and lunch.

Life Choices focus of field trip

BILLY RICHMOND
PIRATE Staff Reporter

People make many important decisions throughout life. For example, people decide where they'll live, how they'll earn money, who they'll marry (or if they marry at all), and whether they'll have kids. These are all large life choices.

On March 16, Berea Community High School's health class went on a life choices field trip. The students traveled to Richmond, KY. The class first went to drug court where they learned about the process that those prosecuted with criminal offenses go through. Next, they toured the Madison County Detention Center, visiting the jail cells, security room, the cafeteria, and recreational areas. The students saw how the choices you make in life can lead to irreversible causes when they visited the Morgue, and lastly the Davis and Powell

Funeral Home.

"The part I liked most about the trip is that each one of the locations we went could've been associated with substance abuse," said sophomore Wade Bradford.

The trip had a big affect on the attitudes of the students attending. Most of the students said they were surprised to see how many inmates were trusted to walk around and help work. "What I thought was the point of this field trip was to show us what would happen if we did drugs," said Garret Pain.

In the end, some choices will be the most important decisions a person will ever make. Whether these choices are for better or worse, you will have to accept the consequences, even though they may change your life. Berea Community High School's health class attempted to help students make positive choices with the life choices field trip.

Berea band distinguished for second year

CLAIRE HOGG
PIRATE Managing Editor

The booming of trombones, the purr of flutes, and the boldness of trumpets were heard all around Madison County as the annual high school band competition festival was held at Eastern Kentucky University's Center for the Arts on March 23, 2016. Berea Community High School was in attendance and scored distinguished, for the second year in a row, on both sight reading and performance.

The competition consists of two different categories. In the sight reading section of the competition, bands are given a piece of new music and must perform the song with no prior knowledge of the score. In the performance section, bands play three chosen pieces that they have been practicing for months in advance.

There are three judges for the performance category and one judge for the sight reading section. Bands are rated on a scale from 1-4 based on their tone quality, intonation, interpretation, technique, rhythm, and balance.

High schools from around the area are invited to attend the band festival. According to Berea Community High School band director Matthew Barnhill, the concert band spent around five months preparing the pieces for the performance section. The group performed "Festivo" by Vaclav Nelhybel, "Ammerland" by Jacob de Haan, and "Algorhythms" by Gary Fagan. These pieces, along with the band's sight reading, landed them high markings in the event.

Berea Community High School senior Jayson Smith has been a member of the band for the majority of his high school career. Smith expressed his pride in the band's hard work: "We came in very prepared and got distinguished on both sight reading and our normal symphonic band. It makes me really happy to see all of our practice time yielding such a positive outcome."

The band will compete again at the band festival next year and Barnhill is hoping for a three-peat of their success.

JD LOVELL
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Monday evening, the Berea Pirates suffered a defeat from the Clinton County Bulldogs. The game only lasted 5 innings, Clinton County scored 15 runs against Berea's 5 runs. According to the mercy rule play stops after a ten point deficit is created, causing Berea to drop to a record of 0-3.

Senior Trevor Woods knew that the Pirates were at a disadvantage. "I felt alright about it, we knew there were some challenges coming into the game, our pitchers were not well rested and that makes defending difficult," said Woods after scoring 2 runs Monday evening.

The first inning proved to be one of the most difficult points of the game. The Bulldogs opened up the inning with 6 runs, so the Pirates had their work cut out for them. They gave a great effort offensively, but failed to defend when they needed to.

Despite their shortcomings on Monday, Jayson Smith takes this as a learning opportunity, rather than looking upon it negatively. "We need to improve and rest our bullpen [pitchers] and get back to the fundamentals, we are making stupid mistakes that could easily be avoided. Those are the facts we have to accept if we want to stay competitive." Smith had an excellent night, recording two hits for two at bats, a single and a double.

The team had a batting average of .473 on Monday; the Pirates have no problem getting on base, but had a problem defending it. With 7 errors and giving up 13 unearned runs, the weak point was evident.

"Our offense is way ahead of our defense right now and I'm ok with that, you know? We had to spend most of our pre-season practicing in the gym, due to the weather, so our primary focus was hitting. Hitting the ball better from top to bottom of our line up is one of our goals this year and thus far we are doing that very well." Coach Steven Bailey added after the game.

The Pirates have a difficult schedule ahead of them but are confident in their ability to stay strong and compete this season. The Pirates travel to Paris on April the eleventh to take on the Greyhounds.

BCHS Softball loses to East Jessamine

OBI OKUMU
PIRATE Staff Reporter

The BCBS softball team girls had a loss at East Jessamine County on March 29. The game was a close tie with a score of 2-3. "Everyone has been working hard as a team, and we have improved greatly," said junior softball player Jordan Sanderfur. The J.V team also played that night, giving it their all against East Jessamine.

The game had several stand-out performances, especially from team member Sandefur, who scored two home runs. Seniors Della Walters took lead the team and was responsible for cheering and supporting the lady pirates at the game. Walters was also a great at scoring many out's for the lady Pirates team. "Ally McMahan has done a great job this season, and has improved on pitching," Sandefur said. Strong players also included Miranda Gooch who smartly got a player from east Jessamine out.

"The team this season is doing great and have performed in their best condition." Added Sanderfur. Freshman Brooke Castle gave it her best during a pitch, Drawing applause for her effort at the bat.

Though the game was a loss, the Pirates played a great game. They will surely win victory as the season progresses.

Tennis team tries to bounce back

CLAY BEAVIN
PIRATE Junior Sports Editor

The Berea Pirate tennis team has begun the season steadily. They entered Monday, March 28's match at .500 (2-2) with wins over Rockcastle County and Danville and losses to Madison Central and Boyle County.

The Pirates took on Garrard County Monday night at the Wilson Evans Tennis Complex at Berea College. The team struggled against Garrard County, with the girls dropping eight matches and only winning two and the boys losing 6 matches and only winning 3.

Despite this, there were many positives to draw from the match. Sophomore David Gadd was the Pirates top seeded player, meaning he took on Garrard County's top seed. Gadd won convincingly, recording a score of 8 games to 0, keeping Gadd undefeated on the season. Senior Dalton Gadd also recorded a win, beating his opponent 8 to 4. David and Dalton (no relation) also won their doubles match 8 to 1. Juniors Alexandria Horn and Candace Elam recorded their teams only wins, both winning in a tie breaker in singles play.

Dalton Gadd said about the match, "I felt pretty good about the outcome of it. David Gadd and myself came out with big wins in singles and in doubles. I

Elam said about her match, "It was really tough and close. She was a great player, but I ce out on top."

The team will be working hard to bounce back from the loss and recapture a winning record. They play again against Madison Southern and Lincoln County in a tri-match on April 12.

Track & Field compete in Williamsburg Relay Meet

PIRATE Managing Editor

On Saturday, March 12, the BCBS Track & Field team competed in Williamsburg, KY at the Williamsburg Frostbite Relay Meet, marking the start of their season.

For both the Boys and Girls teams, the meet was a huge success. Sophomore Taiza Alexander placed first in Long Jump. Additionally, the Girls 4x100m relay and the Distance Medley events placed in the top 10 overall. Berea competitors in the field events also experienced success, and for all Pirates, the day was a fun, action-packed competition.

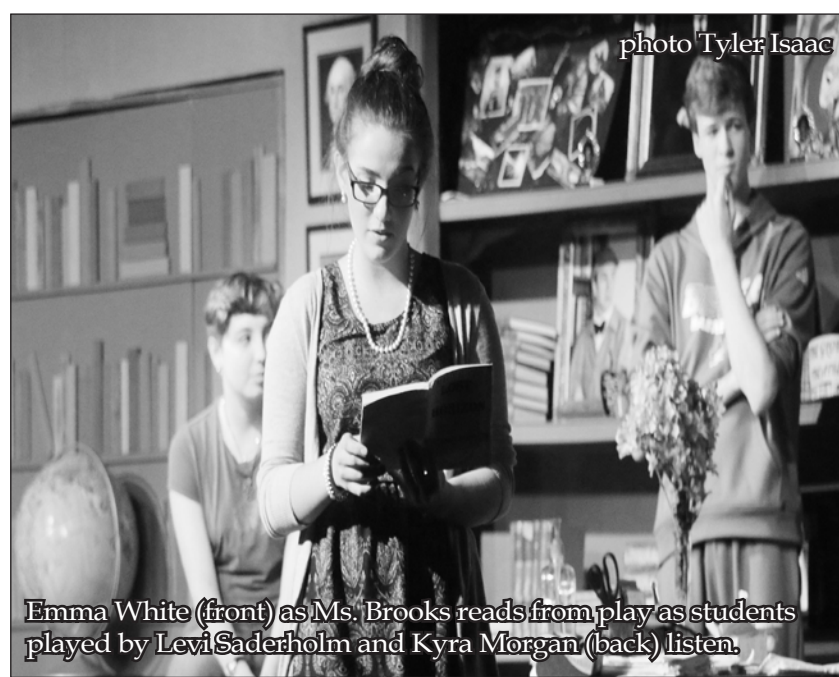

"It was good to start the season off with a win in my event," said Alexander. "We all did well and got to have fun doing events we wouldn't normally do, and I'm excited for upcoming meets and practices."

In the months leading up to this match, the Pirates were hard at work preparing for the season. In her first season with Berea, Head Coach Erica Woods commented on the dedication that many Pirate athletes have put forth in the offseason in order to prepare themselves to compete. "Some students have participated in indoor meets, do workouts outside of practice, and find time to get a workout in when we haven't held practices," Woods said. "For a coach, that is a phenomenal thing to witness and knowing they are willing to put in the work, they will reap those benefits as we delve deeper into the season."

Though they had a great deal of success in the first meet alone, Woods noted that she still has a number of goals to fulfill before the season ends. "There are a lot of new athletes this year and I want to peak their interest in the sport as well," she noted. "I love this sport and want to share my passion with my athletes, so we're going to compete, but we're going to enjoy doing what we do."

The Pirates have already begun preparation for their next meet, which will take place on Tuesday, April 12 at Madison Central.

BEREA COMMUNITY PLAYERS PRESENT: "OUR MISS BROOKS"

TYLER ISAAC
PIRATE Staff Reporter

The Berea Community High School drama department showcased their production of Our Miss Brooks on March 17-19. The show was directed by high school drama teacher, Jody Flara and student directed by senior Greg Schloemer.

Our Miss Brooks is a play that chronicles the struggles of a high school English teacher (Miss Brooks) who, every year, is put in the very stressful position of directing the school play without the resources needed to do so. Hugo, the high school basketball coach, has had conflict with Miss

Brooks in the past over use of the school gym between putting on plays and basketball practice. Secretly, Miss Brooks is head over heels for Hugo and tries desperately to impress him. Ted, a high school basketball player, is in detention after school with Miss Brooks one day and decides he wants to be in his first high school play. This causes a very hysterical conflict between Hugo (Basketball Coach) and Miss Brooks because Hugo doesn't want his star player to get caught up in drama and not be able to put basketball as his first priority. Jane is a girl who the basketball jock, Ted, wouldn't have ever even noticed without joining the high school play, and she and Ted fall for each other as well. Our Miss Brooks is filled with comical as well as heartwarming moments that are destined to entertain.

There are three main ways that plays are directed at Berea Community High School. Most plays have both a student and a main director, but some can be singularly directed by either a student or Ms. Flara. In the case of a co-directed play, actors get a lot more feedback and the targeted audience becomes larger because the play appeals to a larger general public. On the other hand, singularly directed plays reveal more of a director's personal touch. But what does this mean for the actors? "Overall, in both situations of directing, constructive criticism from the director helps you build your character," said senior performer Daniel Montoya.

Emma White took on the leading role of Miss Brooks in this production and executed her role beautifully; playing a well witted, stressed out Miss Brooks perfectly. Levi Saderholm also had an outstanding performance as the character of Ted. His character was very sarcastic and was bound to keep you laughing throughout the duration of the play. Some other standout performances were Miss Finch, played by Claire Hogg, Hugo, played by J.D. Lovell, Principal Wadsworth, played by Daniel Montoya, Jane, played by Katie Okumu, and Rhonda, played by Virginia Deaver. All these characters had their own personality and the cast did a tremendous job in their performances.

Greg Schloemer, the student director of Our Miss Brooks, said, "I am extremely proud of everyone's performance. They put in a lot of hard work and it really paid off."

The next high school play will be Brighton Beach Memoirs. Be sure to come out and enjoy this production on May 5,6,7 at 7:00 p.m.

Cyberbullying takes on new form in "Afterschool App"

EMMA WHITE
PIRATE Lead Photographer

Cyberbullying is when a person is tormented, threatened, harassed, humiliated, embarrassed or otherwise targeted by another person using the Internet or messaging. Recently, cyberbullying has taken a new form on a social media network and is specifically targeting students.

In November of 2014, an anonymous social network app called "After School" launched. This app gave middle and high school students all over the U.S. access to post secrets and gossip anonymously to their classmates.

22,300 public schools in the U.S. each have their own page on After School on which students from their school to post.

Right after the app launched, there were multiple threats posted that caused the FBI and police to get involved. These problems spanned all the way to the extreme of bringing a gun to school, and included an abundance of cyberbullying. After School's creators, Cory Levy and Michael Callahan, were soon forced by Apple to update the app's safety features. In response to being taken down from the App Store for a brief period, the app creators added a "report" button so that students could report any inappropriate or threatening posts, and changed the app's age rating to "17+" (the rating was originally 12+).

Additionally, to protect the safety of the app's users, the creators developed a content filter that would automatically report the user if there were attempts to include violent words in students' posts.

Unfortunately, even their improvements don't catch everything, and cyberbullying is still an evident problem within the app. Freshman Blake Maupin said, "I've seen on several occasions people calling out others, just to try to start something at school...it has turned into gossip central."

For students at BCBS and other high schools around the country, apps like After School are being misused. School administrators are focused on protecting students and creating a safe online environment for all.

Proposed City Hall, Police & Fire Station

Renderings provided by Brandstetter Carroll Inc.

Berea City Council recently reviewed these final drawings of the Municipal, Police and Fire campus that is being proposed. Though bids have not been received for the project, city officials have stated that it may cost around $10.4 million. The campus would extend to the edge of the city's property by First Christian Church, and there would be a handicapped accessible walkway from the church to the city campus, since the parking lots would no longer be connected. Much of the original city hall building would be preserved, with additional construction to the sides and back. The county clerk's office will be moved to the old post office next door, so all county functions would be in one building. City council meetings would still take place in the courtroom. There would be a separate entrance and exit to Chestnut Street.

Weatherford Awards Given to Books that "Illuminate Appalachian South"

The winners of the 2015 Weatherford Awards were Nickole Brown's Fanny Says (poetry), Robert Gipe's Trampoline (fiction) and Studying Appalachian Studies: Making the Path by Walking, edited by Chad Berry, Shaunna Scott and Phillip Obermiller (non-fiction).

The Weatherford Awards honor books that "best illuminate the challenges, personalities and unique qualities of the Appalachian South." Granted by Berea College and the Appalachian Studies Association for 36 years, the awards commemorate the life and achievements of W.D. Weatherford, Sr., a pioneer and leading figure in Appalachian development, youth work and race relations, and of his son, Willis D. Weatherford, Jr., who was Berea College president from 1967-84.

These winning authors will be recognized at the 2016 Appalachian Studies Association Conference at Shepherd University in Shepherdstown, West Virginia.

Nickole Brown's Fanny Says (BOA Editions) is an "unleashed love song" to Brown's late grandmother. A cross-genre collection that reads like a novel, this hilarious and often wrenching book is both a collection of oral history and a moving and lyrical biography that wrestles with the complexities of the South, including poverty, racism and domestic violence.

One Weatherford Poetry judge said about Fanny Says, "I've known Fanny my whole life because in her I see the personality and nuances of many Appalachian women." Another said: "Fanny Says is a declaration of independence and strength for rural women told in innovative and interesting poems that never failed to get me excited about the art of poetry."

Finalists for the 2015 Weatherford Award in poetry are Pauletta Hansel's Tangle (Don Madres Press) and William Wright's Tree Heresies (Mercer University Press).

Librarian reconnects with former life as a writer

Shelf Notes

Ruthie Maslin, Madison Co. Library

*"And time yet for a hundred indecisions,
And for a hundred visions and revisions,
Before the taking of a toast and tea."*

-- T.S. Eliot,

"The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock"

I haven't always been a librarian.

Once upon a time, I worked in the literary arts, creating, collaborating, and cultivating writing and writers across Kentucky and beyond. Poetry readings, open mics, workshops, performances, literary journals, short story contests, anthologies, even summer camps and after school programs were the focus of my daily work.

And I loved it – loved the immersion in the cacophony of creative voices, loved the drama and the beauty of it all. I discovered early on that I loved writing and I loved writers. Becoming a librarian seemed a natural outgrowth of that love.

But somewhere between love and reality, I lost touch with my "writerly" (to borrow a phrase from Kentucky writer Jim Wayne Miller) self.

As strange as it may sound, even surrounded by books and writing every single day of my life, I became disconnected from writers.

But time has a way of looping back around at odd moments, and several months back, I came face to face with an old friend: writing. Writing that builds community. Writing that links our shared experience on this planet. Writing that defines and redefines and shatters and recreates who we are as humans.

It was KY Poet Laureate George Ella Lyon's massive statewide partnership project with the KY Arts Council – "Where I'm From: A Poetry of Place" – that reconnected me. As the Madison County Public Library served as a facilitator and poem gatherer for our county, I suddenly found myself in the company of writers again. All of a sudden, I was at poetry workshops, and people were sharing their work, and words were curling down blank pages like a fast-growing vine.

We have now passed the first stage of gathering poems from local writers (I sent 66 pages of poems to the KAC to post on their site for KY Writers Day on April 25). The project has proven so popular that George Ella recently announced it would continue through the end of her Poet Laureate term at the end of this year.

The second stage involves sharing and celebrating the work. The poems collected will be on the KAC website and will be archived by the University of Kentucky's Special Collections. Writers from across the state will gather in Frankfort at the Capitol on April 25 for KY Writers Day. And we will celebrate locally with a community event on April 11 at 7 PM at the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center at Berea College.

"Madison County, Kentucky's Where I'm from: A Poetry of Place" is a multidisciplinary celebration of our community identity. Berea College students and community members will share work from the project, and the event is free and open to the public.

During my process of repatriation with writing, I have reconnected with two long-time writer friends who are also Appalachian Center associated faculty – Silas House, the NEH Chair in Appalachian Studies, and Crystal Wilkinson, Appalachian Writer in Residence. MCPL is currently making plans with Silas to feature his novel, Eli the Good, in a multi-county community reading program this fall. He has a new book coming out in 2017.

Crystal's novel, The Birds of Opulence, was released earlier this month by the University Press of Kentucky, and it is quite stunning. I was able to attend the book release at her Lexington book store, Wild Fig Books & Coffee, a few weeks ago, and she read the first chapter aloud to a packed house. I was mesmerized. This is a book to savor. I usually speed read books, but I enjoyed this a chapter a day, letting the story and the images settle in and mellow. We have several copies available for check-out at the library.

Crystal Wilkinson will be one of the authors featured at the Berea Book Fest at the MCPL Berea location from 10 AM-2:30 PM on Saturday, April 16. A joint project with the Berea Writers Circle, Robie Books, and the library, this second annual event features a whole day of public readings and author signings.

Joyce Hunsucker from the Berea Writers Circle says she is excited about this second year of the event and the opportunity to continue introducing the community to new authors and creating a space for authors to share their work with the community. She says the event strives to feature new authors each year, and this year, the work of children's authors has been added.

Authors scheduled to appear at this year's Berea Book Fest include Crystal Wilkinson, Nancy Jensen, Carter Sickels, Ed Ford, Julie Hensley, Tasha Cotter, Lucas McWilliams and Sophia McWilliams, Rebecca Patrick-Howard, Melinda Richardson and Julia Richardson, Jereme Zimmerman, Brandon Thompson, Laura Frantz, Marie Mitchell and Mason Smith, Gail Nall, Joshua Gray, Tina Parker, Vicky Hayes, and Barbara Wade. The event is free and open to the public.

I hope you will visit the library soon and reconnect with your writerly self or even discover a new author. I'll see you soon!

Reflections

Usually we report on March incidents from old issues of the Citizen for our Reflections section, but this week, we bring you Berea memories from one of our readers.

Remembering Berea

By Mary M. Allen

Does anyone remember when gasoline was 19 cents a gallon?
Bread was 5 cents a loaf?
When postage stamps to mail a letter were 3 cents? And a postcard was 1 cent?
When you hitched your horse and buggy to a hitching post on Main Street?
When Walter Engle had a clothing store on Chestnut Street? It was where Steve Connelly has his law office now.
When Bill Malicote had a

When Rev. O. B. Mylum was pastor of Berea Baptist Church?
When Purkey's was the only supermarket in Berea?
When Henry Todd had a junk yard - car parts etc.?
When Scott Seals had a theater - you could go see a movie for 25 cents, and popcorn was 5 cents?
Ogg Studio, Porter Moore Drug Store, Lucas Tourist Home where Berea Bank is now. Eplees Tourist Home - G & M Cafe?
Little Mama's Tea Room on Short Street?
I remember when a fallen hero would arrive in Berea at the train station. Lots of people would gather to meet them. The train would blow a long, sad signal upon the arrival of a father, son, husband, sweetheart. They would come home in a flag draped casket. High respect was shown to them.

Does anyone remember the celebration when WWII was over? Bells ringing, horns sounding, people yelling, it was a very exciting time.
Does anyone remember when an older lady named Henrietta Childs would come to the country schools, and tell stories to the children. She wore a black cape, was sort of bent over. She would have a shoebox with little toys, birds, dolls, etc. all wrapped in tissue paper. She would keep us children spellbound for a whole afternoon. She would make noises like the animals, and make the birds fly, etc. Such precious childhood memories.

When you heard a car coming up or down the road, we would run to the road to see it go by, perhaps even chase after it.
Who remembers ballerina skirts, pony tails, bobby socks, saddle oxford shoes? They would be black or brown with white.
Bubble gum, when you could buy 1 cent candy, when we walked to and from school?
There was no TV, and few telephones.
Revivals in country churches would last two weeks or more; every night the visiting preacher would preach hell, fire, and brimstone. People would listen to the word of God and many would change their ways of living.
When you hung your clothes on the clothesline to dry? There were no electric lines through the country. When you had a hand pump in the kitchen for water supply, which came from a well or spring.

When US 25 was the only major highway through Kentucky? When I-75 came through Berea? When Lucy Cummins would tell your fortune?
When Muncy's had a lumber company?
When Ellis Pitts had a used furniture company on Adams and Broadway Street?
Winner Hotel - Lincoln Hotel.
When Nellie Bales taught piano lessons?
Who remembers Dave Carter pushing a wheelbarrow everywhere he went in Berea? Who remembers Elijah "Lige"

Williams?
Who remembers Model A cars? Model T. Ford?
Who remembers when everyone grew a vegetable garden, grew their own food? Canned it in glass jars for winter. When doctors came to your home to deliver a baby, and would have a black bag with his tools in it. He would come in a horse and buggy.
My dad walked several miles a day to go to work on the W.P.A., got paid $1.25 an hour. He would leave home before daylight, carrying a kerosene lantern, and work all day building the Menelaus Pike. He would get home after dark, through rain, snow, heat, sleet, whatever the weather offered.
Those were the good old days to remember.

Singer, Banjo Player, & Storyteller to Give Free Concert

On Tuesday, April 5, traditional singer and banjo player Sara Grey will give a free concert at the Berea College Loyal

Jones Appalachian Center. Grey is internationally known for her singing of traditional ballads, her clawhammer banjo playing and her abilities as a teacher and storyteller. Originally from New Hampshire, Grey has lived in Arkansas, North Carolina, Ohio, Montana, New York, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Scotland and England, and all of these places have informed her music.
In this special Berea concert, Grey will lead the audience on a musical journey, following the old songs from their origins in the British Isles and down through generations of singers in the Appalachian mountains. The concert will be held from 7-9 p.m. at the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center. Admission is free and open to the public. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. and no reservation is required.
Brian Peters wrote, "In Sara's performance, the art of the singer and that of the storyteller merge to produce a web of tales and songs capable of transporting an

Grey describes her singing as "a love affair with traditional songs for over 60 years," a pursuit which has earned her a wealth of knowledge concerning these ballads and how they have moved and evolved. Grey has recorded numerous albums, including several with her son, guitarist and singer Kieron Means, and Sara was recently featured in the book Wayfaring Strangers: The Musical Voyage from Scotland and Ulster to Appalachia by Fiona Ritchie and Doug Orr.
The Loyal Jones Appalachian Center is located on the Berea College campus in Stephenson Hall, 205 North Main Street. This concert is co-sponsored by Berea Tourism, the Berea College Music Department and the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center.
