P R E F A C E.

THE writings of Moses and the Prophets come recommended to us with such sacred solemnity, that should excite our most earnest endeavours to understand them in the language in which they were first delivered; to effect this, and make if possible the Hebrew language a part of school instruction, the author of the following Lexicon, about three years since, published a plain Grammar of that language, and now commits to the Public the following sheets, calculated for the use of Schools, as well as for private Students. The knowledge of the original Scriptures are so pleasant, and their beauties so many, as far outweigh the small labour and time expended in the acquisition of their language. So essentially necessary is the knowledge of these original Scriptures to the Ministers of GOD'S Word, that he who is ignorant in this point should blush, whenever he undertakes to explain to his hearers a passage in the sacred Code: It is in vain for him to alledge his skill and knowledge of the Greek language; the Greek of the New Testament can never be properly understood by any one, who does not understand the language of the Old. As all the Scriptures are a revelation from GOD, though they were delivered part by part, at different times, by different persons, in different places, and in different ages, through the continued space of fifteen hundred years, from Moses to St. John in Patmos; yet they must be every where consistent in principles, views, sentiments, and unforuniformity of style, else the ALMIGHTY would be found to contradict himself; so then the New Testament is only the fulfilling of the Old: now who will venture to affirm that he understands the latter half of this revelation, when he is at the same time so completely ignorant, that he knows not a word, or even a letter, in which the former was written?

IT was an expression frequent in the mouth of Melancton, that he preferred the knowledge of the Hebrew before all the wealth of a kingdom; and well he might, if he was a sedulous enquirer after truth and knowledge; as a scholar he was acquainted with the language, from which all others have branched out as from a parent-stock, and which contained an history of many ages when other languages were mute, and other histories contained nothing that could be depended upon. Without doubt, this was the unvaried language of our first parents, and the general one at the Dispersion: As new objects occurred, and the Children of Israel became acquainted with trade, arts and sciences, many new words might, nay must, have been introduced, and other old ones used in a more extended sense, yet the ground work remained the same, as is sufficiently evident from the first chapters of Genesis, thus, אַדָּם, Adam, had his name from אָדָם, to be like, because created in the likeness of GOD, Gen. 1. 26. Eve, הוּוֹה, i. e. Life, was so named, because she was to be the mother of all living, Gen. 3. 20. Cain, קַיִן, i. e. Gain, was so named by Eve, who at his birth said, I have gained a man from the LORD; but Abel, אָבֵל, Lamentation, for he was murdered, and thence proceeded a train of woe and lamentation to his parents, and to the murderer in particular, who from that moment was proclaimed a fugitive and vagabond: No sooner was a Son born, to be set in the place of the murdered Abel, than his mother named him Set,  $\eta\psi$ , Setb. These and many other particulars might be brought of the language being in part the same before the deluge, as it was in the time of Ezra, who settled the Code of Hebrew Scripture. As this language has such evident marks of the highest antiquity, for in all probability all others were at first but dialects of it, the author of the following Lexicon has placed the most evident derivatives in such languages as he was acquainted with at the bottom of the page, with some mark of reference to the root from whence they are supposed to spring: That they may be derived is supposed by the word being there placed, but the manner in which they are formed is not always mentioned, in order that the Student may, if he thinks proper, pass them by unnoticed, or otherwise exercise his own ingenuity.

THE plan on which this Lexicon has been executed is that of Mr. Pike's, who so digested his Work, as to ease the attempt in searching for the Root, which in the generality of books of this kind might have been sought for in seven or eight different places without success: All the reader has now to do is to observe this general Rule, Reject all affixes and letters acquired in forming, and under the three or two remaining letters, the root required may be found. Sometimes when only two radicals remain, the  $\eta\psi$  with with an hyphen has been added in the Lexicon, to shew that it is not strictly radical: nor is the ך, which in other Lexicons has been inserted in many roots of two letters, regarded in this; neither is the feminine noun put down unless necessary, and it contained a sense different from the masculine. Let it be remembered also, that the Defectives in Pe-nun and Pe-iod are ranked under their respective permanent letters, so that the reader will find his trouble much more eased than when he was obliged to attend to the old rule for finding the root, which was this, Reject all affixes and letters acquired in forming, if less than three remain, add ך or ם to the beginning; or ך or ם to the middle; or double the second radical; or add ן or ם to the end.

IN the course of this work all the Chaldee words, and some Hebrew ones, have been supplied, which Mr. Pike either purposely omitted, or else they escaped his elaborate diligence. The quotations that are interspersed, and refer to the chapter and verse of the bible, are transcribed from the above Gentleman, with the same freedom as he transcribed them before from the excellent Concordance of Dr. Taylor of Norwich: In a word, the author has taken from every writer that lay in his way whatever favoured his purpose without thinking himself in the least accountable: Whenever a passage in Scripture required a sense different from what was usually exhibited, it has been freely adopted, though not without mentioning at the same time how it had been rendered by others: The Authors mostly consulted were Pike, Parkhurst, Taylor and

Dr. Gregory Sharpe, but most of all the Scriptures themselves.

THOSE who know how many Books must be turned over in a compilement of this sort, will easily pardon the inaccuracies that may occur, especially when he recollects with Scaliger the laborious toil of a Lexicon writer.

*Si quem dura manet sententia judicis olim,
 Damnatum ærumnis suppliciiisque caput ;
 Hunc neque fabrili lassent ergastula massâ,
 Nec rigidas vexent fossa metalla manus ;
 Lexica contexat, nam cetera, quid moror? omnes
 Pœnarum facies hic labor unus habet.*

To the Student the author would recommend the being attentive to every particularity of the language, as well as the different changes each word might be supposed to undergo from a false pronunciation, as this perhaps has been the source of greater variation in the original text than usually imagined: A Scribe would naturally write as he pronounced, and thus confound letters of the same organ, hence perhaps נשון, 2*Sam.* 1. 22. is written for נסון, and שור for סור, Hof. 9. 12. words supposed to be thus changed, are noted in the following work; and the acute Critic might find out some hundreds more than are here noticed, though some words of this kind are now so far considered as separate roots, that they have obtained a separate place for themselves in every Lexicon, thus שניך and סניך, שעה and סעה, are considered as distinct roots, though evidently related, if not quite the same. It is to enable the reader to judge of these interchanges that the letters letters in the following short Grammar are ranged according to the organ of speech, by which they are supposed to be pronounced, and at the same time it is hinted what letters not of the same organ do also interchange. There are some particular advantages, as Mr. Pike has well observed, which this language has above all others. In its alphabet it has but just so many letters as answer all the simple articulations of speech. It has but two or three letters to each primitive root. It has fixed upon those letters for serviles, which are most easily pronounced. It varies the root in the most brief and expeditious way by an addition of one or two of the serviles. It has no more moods, tenses, numbers and genders than are necessary and nature requires. Throughout all the derivatives of the same root the original idea is still preserved, thus גל-ה, or גול, to roll. When it doubles its last radical, it doubles as it were its idea, and גלל, is to roll over and over; but when it doubles both its radicals, as in גלגל, it signifies to roll repeatedly over and over again, or repeatedly roll round and round, hence this last word signifies a wheel, or any thing in perpetual rotation: Again, when a root takes א, this letter either increases or else diminishes, and inverts the sense, thus גבא, to be hollow, comes from גב-ה, to be prominent, the א inverting the meaning, but רבא, signifies to destroy, to smite so as to kill, from רב-ה, simply to smite down. Many more particulars are mentioned in this Lexicon under each servile letter, and more still might be observed, but to notice every singularity would lead us into a dissertation on the language. As the origin of alphabetical betical writing has been hinted under the letter  $\aleph$ , and the ancient form of the letters frequently mentioned, the author has prefixed the Samaritan form to the Hebrew, as evidently the oldest we are now acquainted with. Such as the following short Grammar does not satisfy, are referred to a larger one, published by the same hand, with Biblical examples, at Carmarthen, in 1773.

THE following sheets were laboured with a good design; may the blessing of GOD attend the use of them.

H E B R E W L E X I C O N .

THE form of the Hebrew letters, now in use, is modern and different from the ancient characters, which are still retained in the Samaritan; the rude and uncooth shapes of these plainly indicate, that they were originally the outlines of those symbolic figures formerly made use of. Egypt is universally allowed to have been the parent of idolatry, which had its rise, in all probability, from the use of symbols in the communication of ideas. Instead of this uncertain method, some great genius, considering the powers of the human voice, abridged some of the most remarkable of these symbols, and adapted them to sounds; hence the names as well as the rude characters of the old Phœnician or Samaritan alphabet, might represent the image whence the character had been taken: thus אֵלֶף which signifies an ox, might in the first rude alphabet have been the abridged symbol of that animal.

ה

ה is the fifth letter in the Hebrew alphabet, it is both a vowel and a servile; the modern form of it is made up of the ד with a small stroke under the left side. The name and ancient form are accounted for several ways. Boderian thinks, as the name (הא behold!) implies demonstration, that the figure of it was taken ademonstrantis gestu. Another derives its form from a small red worm. Mr. Baxter has a singular conjecture, he supposes it might have represented the Isis of the Ægyptians; the letter indeed imitates the female voice, and is used in feminine terminations.---As a numeral it stands for 5. As a servile, ה Prefixed (from הא behold!) is (1.) emphatic, the, this; (2.) is also vocative or pathetic, as השמים O heavens! (3.) asks a question, or expresses a doubt, what? what not? whether? (4.) forms the conjugation הפעיל and its passive הפעל, the former with י inserted before the last radical; (5.) before ת it forms the conjugation התפעל---Post-fixed (from היא she) (6.) it forms nouns feminine, as אשה woman; (7.) the third person singular preter feminine, as פקדה she visited; (8.) to a verb or noun her, as פקדה he visited her, ידה her hand; (9.) to words of time or place, to, towards; (10.) sometimes to a noun his, as Gen. 12. 18. אהלה his tent; but in this sense I believe it will be found to be (11.) Paragogic, where it points out something eminent in the idea, and is (1.) added to a verb, as הלצה deliver thou, thou, for thou art able to deliver, Psal. 6. 4, &c.

 נשכבה בבשחבו we lie down, alas! in our shame,
 Jer. 3. 25. it is (2.) added to a noun, ישועתה certain salvation, or speedy deliverance; (3.) to a particle איכרה alas! how? by what woeful ca- lamity? (4.) to a pronominal affix ולא יענוכרה they will not answer thy repeated cries, Jer. 7. 27.
 הא a demonstrative particle, behold! see! lo! hah!

the modern Hebrew we have only the least of its members, perhaps the digitus index. It also signifies any thing thrown from the hand, as a javelin, which form it bears in the Greek and modern languages. This letter is the 4th vowel, founded as ee in meet; but before another vowel becomes a consonant, and should be founded as y in year.

י is a servile, in numbers it stands for 10; when prefixed (from the 3d pronoun) it (1.) forms the 3d person masculine of all verbs, (2.) appellative nouns and proper names. Inserted (3.) it forms many nouns, if inserted after the first radical it denotes the consequence of the participle active, as ריה ריח odour, the consequence of air in motion; if inserted after the second radical, it implies the consequence of the participle passive, as קציר קצור harvest reaped, from קצור קצור cut down; and (4.) the conjugation E spoil הפעיל; (5.) postfixed the name of a people, as עברי an Hebrew; (6.) the ordinal numbers, as שלישי the third, &c. (7.) the second person fem. future and imperative; (8.) plural masc. in regimine; (9.) to a noun my, to a verb me. It is also,

Paragoric where it heightens the sense: --- (1.) It is annexed to feminine adjectives, as in Psf. 110. 4. על דברתי after the most excellent order. Lam. 1.1. רבת עמם she that was swarming full with people. (2.) It is annexed to the affixes, as Psf. 103.3. עונותי thy vast iniquities. (3.) It is annexed to verbs, as Ruth 3.3. ושמתי and put carefully on. (4.) In the same manner it is added to both participles and to the infinitive.

מ

מם the thirteenth letter is a servile and a consonant; the sound of this letter, as well as form of it in the Samaritan alphabet, seems to have been taken from the rolling of the sea, and resembles the undulation thereof. מים signifies water, in Ægyptian Mw whence the Greek Mv in Tyrian מיא as well as Greek Mava is mother, as saith Eustatius, water being the mother of all productions. This letter is a liquid labial; as a numeral מ stands for 40, but the final ם 500. As a servile מ (1.) prefixed, from מן or מנה to distribute, is the particle from, with, by; (2.) forms the participle of Epol, and with ת Etpol; whence (3.) it forms nouns signifying the instrument, means, or place of action, as מגן a shield; (4.) to an infinitive, מפקד from visiting; (5.) it also expresses a simple degree of comparison as טובה חכמה מפנינים, Prov. 8. 11. wisdom is good before pearls, i.e. better, here it supplies the place of מן as מן אחד two are better than one; (6.) postfixed (from הם them) to a noun their, to a verb them, as דברם their word, פקדם he visited them; (7.) with ו forms some nouns פדיום redemption; (8.) also some adverbs, as יומם by day.

מ a particle, an abbreviation of מן from מנה to distribute, 1. from, by; 2. without; 3. at, near, toward; 4. before, in the presence of; 5. against; 6. of, concerning, for; 7. from, out of; 8. rather than, more than; 9. because of, by reason of; 10. according to; 11. with an infinitive, left that,

נ

נון the fourteenth letter, is a consonant; it is uncertain from whence the original form of this letter was taken. It is a liquid labial, and a servile; as a numeral it stands for 50, the final ן stands for 700. Nun is only strictly radical, when followed by א, ה, ו, ע, or when the second radical is doubled.

נ as a servile, 1. when prefixed (perhaps from נוה to rest) forms the preter of Nepol: 2. from the first pronoun forms the first person plural of verbs: 3. forms proper names, as נמרוד Nimrod; also appellatives, נרגן a whisperer: 4. ן postfixed, (from אתן) them, their feminine: 5. also forms many nouns, especially with ן preceding, as שכרון drunkenness: 6. it is paragogic where it sometimes encreases the signification, and sometimes diminishes it; thus Psal. 11.2. ידרכון קשת simply translated is they shall bend the bow, but it means more, they shall bend the bow with an hostile intention. In Gen. 2.17. God threatened the disobedience of our first parents in these strong terms, מות תמות thou shalt surely die; this Gen. 3.3. is softened by the woman, God bade us not

תו the last letter in the Hebrew alphabet; the ancient form of this letter was more like that it bears among the English and modern letters. It was the terminus or cross of the Egyptians, by which they marked the height of the inundation of the Nile, and it is still visible on the mummies, and almost on every Egyptian monument that remains. It is a dental, as a numeral it stands for 400; it is a servile, and when prefixed st, (from את) forms nouns, as תלמיד a scholar; 2. forms particles, as תחת under, from נחת to descend; 3. denotes the 2d person future sing. and plu. masc. and fem. of verbs; 4. postfixed, 2d person sing. preter; 5. is

A COMPENDIOUS

GRAMMAR of the Hebrew Tongue.

I.

1. The Hebrew letters are twenty-two:

Form	Finals	Sam.	Name	Sound*
א	1		אֵלֶף Aleph	a,
ב	2		בֵּית Beth	b,
ג	3		גִּמֵּל Gimel	g,
ד	4		דַּלֶּת Daleth	d,
ה	5		הֵאָהֵ He	e,
ו	6		וָאוּ Vau	u,
ז	7		זַיִן Zain	z,
ח	8		חֵת Heth	h,
ט	9		טֵת Teth	th,
י	10		יֹד Iod	i,
כ	20	500	כַּף Caph	k,
ל	30		לָמֶד Lamed	l,
מ	40	600	מֶם Mem	m,
נ	50	700	נּוּן Nun	n,
ס	60		שְׁמַעַח Shamech	sh,
ע	70		אֵין Oin	o,
פ	80	800	פֶּה Pe	p,
צ	90	900	צַפְדִּי Tfaddi	f,
ק	100		קוּפֵה Quoph	q,
ר	200		רֶשֶׁת Resh	r,
ש	300		שֵׁן Sin	s,
ת	400		תַּו Tau	t,

2. Hebrew is read from right hand to left: when no vowel falls between two consonants, supply in reading a short e.

3. The vowels are five ו, ע, י, ה, א, all the other letters are consonants.

4. These 11 letters איתן משה וכלב are called servile, because they serve all the purposes of grammatical inflections, by supplying the place of pronouns, particles, &c. See each of these letters in the lexicon.

* The Aleph is sounded as a in all; Gimel as g in go; He as e in there; Vau as oo in moon; Heth as h in bart; Iod as ee, but before a vowel y as in year; Caph the aspirated k, a sound familiar to the Welsh; Oin as o in cold, but before a vowel ong as in wrong, or the French on; Tfaddi as f in pleasure; Quoph as in q or k soft as in kill; Sin as s in sin.

5. A root is a word, whence others are formed, usually of three letters: the eleven letters that are not servile always make part of the root, and tho' radical letters are never servile, except ט when used for ת, yet servile letters are often radical.

6. With regard to the organs of pronounciation, the letters may be considered as

Dentals	ד, ט, ת	Liquid Dentals	ג, ר, ל
Labials	ו, ב, פ	Liquid Labial	מ
Palatines	ק, ג, נ	Liquid Palatine	ל
Sibilants	צ, ז, ש, ס

Note, ר, ג, מ, ל as liquids are sometimes interchanged, as ע and צ are from their similitude.

II. Of Nouns.

1. Nouns have two genders, masculine and feminine; and two numbers, singular and plural.

2. Feminine nouns are distinguished from masculine by their ending in ה or ה servile, by the addition of which they are formed from their masculines, thus מלך a king, מלכה a queen, מלכות a kingdom; but nouns that end in י masculine, end in ת only, as מצרי an Egyptian man, מצרית an Egyptian woman; בן a son, בת for בנת a daughter.

3. The plu. masculine ends in ם or ים, as מלכם or מלכים kings: the plu. fem. ends in ות as מלכות queens; but ית or ות sing. makes יות in the plu. as מצריות Egyptian women; מלכיות kingdoms: these feminine plurals often drop their ו

4. Some fem. nouns in ה singular end in תים plural; but then the plural is supposed to be restrained to two only, as שנה a year, שנתים two years.

5. Some feminine nouns have in the plural both feminine and masculine termination, by way of eminence, nence, as בָּמָה an high place, בְּמוֹתָם exceeding high places.

6. Nouns fem. sing. in regimine, or when connected, change ה into ת, as תּוֹרַת יְהוָה the law of Jehovah: nouns plural in regimine drop their ם as מְלֹכֵי אֶרֶץ kings of the earth.

6. A simple degree of comparifon takes מִן or מִנּוּ before the word compared, fee מִן or מִנּוּ in the Lexicon; an higher degree takes מְּ or מְּאֹד fee Lexicon.

7. The Hebrews have no cafes, yet the following ferviles answer to the cafes of the Latins, Gen. prefixes ה or שֶׁל of; Dat. ל to or for; Acc. אֵת the; Voc ה O; Abl. בִּי by, or from.

III. Of Pronouns.

1. Personal Pronouns have three perfons, 1st, אֲנִי or אֲנֹכִי I; plu. נַחֲנוּ, אֲנַחֲנוּ We, Us. 2<sup>d</sup>, אַתָּה, אַתָּה masc. אַתָּי fem. Thou; plu. אַתֶּם masc. אַתֶּנָּה, אַתֶּנָּה fem. Ye, You. 3<sup>d</sup>, הוּא He, הִיא She; plu. הֵם, הֵמָּה masc. הֵן, הֵנָּה fem. They.

2. Instead of the pronouns the following parts are affixed to words, י or נִי Me or Mine; plu. נוּ Us, Ours. כִּי, כִּה masc. יך, כִּי fem. Thou, Thine. כֶּם masc. כֶּן fem. Ye, Yours. הוּ, הוּ His, Him; הָ, הָ Her. מוּ, הֵם, הֵם masc. הֵן, הֵן fem. Them, Their.

3. Relative pronoun, אֲשֶׁר Who, instead of it שׁ or ה is prefixed, fee שׁ and ה in Lexicon. Demonstrative, זֶה, זֶה, זֶה, הַלְלוּ, הַלְלוּ, הַלְלוּ This; fem. זֹאת. אֵל, אֵלָּה These. Interrogative, מִי Who? מִן, מִן What? מִן prefixed alone asks a Question, fee Lexicon.

IV. Of Verbs.

1. The Conjugations, as they are improperly called, were first named from the old example פִּעַל Pol, hence comes נִפְעַל Nepol; הפְּעִיל Epol; הפִּעַל Epol;

Epól; and התפעל Etpól: or as they are termed in other Grammars, Kal, Niphal, Hiphil, Huphal or Hophal, and Hithpahel.

2. Verbs are said to have three Conjugations, 1. Pol or Kal; 2. Epoil or Hiphil; 3. Etpól or Hithpahel: Pol denotes mere action, as פקד he visited; its passive Nepól prefixes נ in the preter tense, as נפקד he was visited: Epoil is casuallý active, it prefixes ה and inserts י after the second radical, to the preter, as הפקיד he caused another to visit; its passive Epól drops the י as הפקר he was caused to visit or be visited. Etpól the reciprocal conjugation is formed from Pol, by prefixing הת in the preter, as התפקד he visited himself.

3. Each conjugation has 3 moods, 2 tenses, 1 participle, Pol has two; all have 2 numbers, 3 persons and 2 genders, as in the following example.

4. Example of a verb through mood, tense and person.

				Indicative Mood.
Plu.		Preter Tense, visited .		Sing.

5. Example of a regular verb through every conjugation in the 3d person singular.

3d Conj.	2d Conjugation.		1st Conjugation.

מתפקד	מפקד	מפקיד	נפקד	פוקד Par.act.
				פקוד Par.paf.

6. Throughout all the conjugations the personal affixes are added, and the particles declined as in Pol.

7. In Nepol the נ is prefixed only to the preter and participle, but ה to the imperative & infinitive.

8. In Epoil, Epol and Etpol, the formative ה is always dropt after another servile, so throughout the future, and מ prefixed to the particles of each.

9. Epol is the same as Epoil, the formative י being dropt, as it is also often in Epoil itself.

10. In Etpol verbs beginning with ש or ס transpose ה as השהמר for התשמר, verbs beginning with צ transpose and change it into ט as נצטרק for נתצרך. In Chaldee verbs beginning with ז transpose ת and change it into ד Dan.2.9.

V. Irregular Verbs,

1. Are either defective, i.e. drop a radical letter, or reduplicate, i.e. double one or more radicals.

2. Defectives have either two radicals only, or י or נ for their first, or ה for their last, from the old example פעל, those that drop the first radical are called defective in pe פ; those that drop the second, defective in oin ע; those that drop the third, defective in lamed ל.

3. Verbs with but two radicals often take ן before the last, as ישׁוּם from שׁם; and in Epol before the former, as הוּקם from קם

4. Verbs with ׳ for their first radical, often drop it in the future, imperative and infinitive of Pol, to which last they postfix ת (לקח to take, follows this form) and in Nepol and Epol change their ׳ into ן

5. Verbs with ן for their first radical, drop it in the future, imperative and infinitive of Pol, and in the preter of Nepol, and thro' out Epol and Epol.

6. In Etpol the two latter kind of verbs are regular.

7. Verbs with ה for their last radical, often drop it, or change it into ׳, and generally form the infinitive by changing ה into ות

8. Verbs with ׳ or ן for their first radical, and ה for their last, sometimes drop both first and last radical.

9. The verb נתן to give, often drops both its ן's,

10. In verbs ם is often dropt after ם servile, and ן and ת before ן and ת servile.

11. Reduplicate verbs are regular, except those resembling נלל in some forms use ן instead of the last radical, as סבותי for סבתתי; and in Etpol, and sometimes in other conjugations, take ן after the first radical.

12. Pattern of a verb defective in Pe-iod, ישב to dwell.

VI. Of Paragogic and Servile Letters.

1. For the serviles as well as paragogic letters, see them respectively in the body of the Lexicon; only observe that paragogic letters are פ, ו, י, א, ה, נ, and found at the end of words, where they seem annexed only for sound, but in reality supply the place of adverbs.

VII. The Syntax.

RULE 1. The verb agrees with its noun, in number, case and gender, as הארץ היתה Gen. 1. 2. the earth was; and יהי אור let there be light.

Obs. 1. Sometimes a noun feminine is joined to a verb masculine; for the sake of dignity, as Gen. 1. 14. יהי מארת let there be luminaries, i.e. eminent luminaries.

Obs. 2. A noun plural, signifying collectively or distributively, with a verb singular יהי מארת Joel 1. 20. בהמות השרה תערוג the beasts of the field shall cry, i.e. each of the beasts.

Obs. 3. A verb plural with a noun singular, as Prov. 28. 1. נסו רשע the wicked flee, i.e. each wicked man.

Obs. 4. The plural word expressing the true God has a verb singular, as Gen. 1. 1. ברא אלהים the Aleim created.

RULE 2. The adjective agrees with its substantive in gender and number, as בן חכם a wise son.

Obs. 1. Nevertheless adjectives masculine are joined with substantives feminine, & vice versa, as Gen. 1. 16. המארת הנרלים the great lights. Deut. 1. 28. ערים נרלת great cities. See above Rule 1.

Obs. 2. Adjectives, numerals alone excepted, are placed after their substantives, if otherwise, the verb to be is understood.

Obs. 3. An adjective, having two substantives of different genders, is mostly masculine; the same may be said of a verb and two nouns. See Gen. 2. 1. and Job 1. 13.

Obs.

Obs. 4. An adjective or pronoun with two substantives is put in the plural number, as 1 Kings 1. 21. and Gen. 1. 27.

Obs. 5. An adjective singular is joined with a noun plural, signifying distributively, as Gen. 27. 29. ארוך ארוך ארוך curst are they that curse thee, i.e. every one.

RULE 3. The infinitives of verbs are used as substantives, and have מ, ל, כ, ב prefixed.

Obs. 1. An infinitive added to a verb frequently denotes succession, as ברוך אברוך Gen. 22. 17.  blessing I will bless thee, i.e. continually bless.

RULE 4. The conjunctive ו prefixed to a verb, will sometimes supply the want of the signs of person, mood and tense, and unite it in signification to a preceding verb, e. g. Gen. 1. 28. וכבשה and subdue it, for כבשוה subdue ye it. See Exod. 12. 23. and Joel 1. 16.
