Winter Steps Advance as Group Plans for Unemployed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Winter's crunching tread shuffled into step with the president's unemployment committee today to bring the first biting freeze of the season to the capital on the same day that the group meets to seek a means of shielding the nations unemployed from distress during the cold months. Freezing temperatures were forecast for tonight while the members of the cabinet committee were fixing tomorrow for a meeting to discuss how the nation can cooperate with local government and private industry in dealing with unemployment during the winter. Secretary Lamont after a conference with President Hoover, indicated that as chairman of the cabinet committee appointed Saturday, he would summon his associates to a session immediately following the regular cabinet gathering. Secretaries Hyde, Hurley, Wilbur, Davis and Mellon, with the addition of Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board constitute the membership of the president's committee and with one or two exceptions are expected to be on hand. In advance of the session, Secretary Lamont made a visit to New York to gather opinion of business leaders on the outlook, while a number of economic and industrial studies have been made for the president both by official and organizations and by semi-private institutions. The results of the studies will not be known until the committee assembles tomorrow, but it was intimated the administration contemplated seeking large relief appropriations from congress.

Political Talk Hits Revenue Tariff Change

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 20 (AP)—A vigorous attack on tariff protection was made here tonight by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and traditional freetrader, in a political speech. "An unfounded rumor has appeared in the press that the government was considering an all round 10 per cent import duty for revenue purposes. No government in which I am in charge of the national finances will ever give serious consideration to a proposal like that," he said. "The world crisis is temporary, it is driving many people to a state of panic. Before we have a change, it must be proved beyond all dispute that the policy we have pursued for the last century is not the best policy for this country. Introduction of a tariff system into this country would strike at the purity of the political life of this nation. Parliament would become a sink of corruption. Members of parliament would go there not to represent national interests but pledged to support the selfish interests of particular industries. "Once begin a policy of protection and you are on a slippery slope that leads to a bottomless pit."

Baker Goes Before Radio Commission

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Charges that a group of business men at Muscatine, and newspapers, operated by the Lee Syndicate, had conspired to drive station KTNT off the air were laid today before the radio commission by Norman Baker. Baker is seeking renewal of his license to operate the station. The commission stated in August that it was not convinced that operation of the station, beyond Oct. 31, would be in the public interest. In his testimony, Baker asserted the Muscatine Journal, the Times and Democrat, published in Davenport, along with a group of business men, the American Medical association, the Iowa medical association, and other medical organizations, had attempted to discredit him and his interests. Baker Institute included The attack, he claimed, also had been directed at the Baker cancer institute, where he stated that thousands of persons afflicted with cancer had been cured without an operation. Under cross examination, Baker said he advertised the Baker cancer institute over his station, as well as the "TNT" magazine, he publishes. He said his friends had bought stock in a newspaper he planned to establish in Muscatine in November and added that he sponsored another enterprise known as the "Peoples Protective association" to which members contributed. Lenker Gives Testimony Preceding Baker, J. W. Lenker of Wilton Junction, a farmer and state president of the farmers protective association, testified KTNT served the Muscatine area, and that the laborers there "would like to see it stay on the air." The hearing was recessed until Tuesday morning. After the day's session, Baker told newspapermen he would present documents to show that a conspiracy existed in Iowa to "ruin my business." Commission Counsel Fisher said medical and newspaper men against whom the charges were made would take the witness stand defend themselves.

Rebels Drive Government Forces Back

Rainy Season Hinders Military Operations of Forces

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 20 (AP)—Occupation of all the seaboard states of Brazil except Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Bahia was claimed by the insurgents in a statement issued today by their foreign representative, Lindolfo Collor. The statement said rebel soldiers from Minas Geraes had occupied the state of Espirito Santo, driving a wedge between the federal states of Rio de Janeiro and Bahia, and isolating the northern federal army. Declare Martial Law It reported fighting was in progress in all three of the states controlled by the federals. Martial law was said to have been declared by the government in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. On the southern border of Sao Paulo state, the rebels claimed to have driven the federals beyond the Itarare and Paranapanema rivers, which the insurgent troops had begun crossing at various points. The rebels said the federal retreat was so hasty the pursuing forces had lost contact with them. Announcement of the occupation of Espirito Santo and of the federal flight came as an official message from Curitiba, state of Parana. Rains Hinder Dispatches passing through here from the Brazilian war areas today indicated that the coming of the spring rainy season delayed large military operations over the week end in the main battle sector, that of Sao Paulo-Parana. Airplanes found taking off and landing difficult, while ground troops found the going heavy and apparently rested on the battle line established last week. One advice from rebel sources was that their "advance" on this front was continuing but it was not specific. 200 Miles Front The fighting brought about by the revolutionary movement, which began Oct. 3, as a result of dissatisfaction in the southern states over the national elections held last spring, is developing principally in four areas. These are in Sao Paulo-Parana, where rebel armies are pushing over a 200-mile front to gain the rich metropolitan of Sao Paulo; in Minas Geraes, a large state northwest of the federal district which supplies much of Rio de Janeiro's food; in the far northeast, where a revolutionary army is marching south with the hope of capturing Bahia; and ultimately driving on to the federal capital, and in the vicinity of Florianopolis, the island capital of Santa Catherina which is the only region now held by the federals south of Sao Paulo.

Italian State, Church Fight For Control

Lord States Fascist Recruit Youth to Win Ideals

"Two forces, the church and the state, are contending for control of cultural life in Italy. The Fascisti, by recruiting the youth of Italy at its most impressionable age, is successfully winning Italy over to Fascist ideals of culture."

These views on modern Italian culture were presented to the Humanist society last evening by Prof. Milton Lord, director of university libraries. The society met at the home of Mary Mueller, of the Romance languages department, 429 E. Jefferson street.

Professor Lord, who returned to the United States last spring after four years as librarian of the American academy in Rome, served with four other Americans on a commission which catalogued the Vatican library. While in Rome he was impressed he told the society last night, by the vast program the Italian government had begun in collecting antique treasures and in furthering cultural development.

Youths Undergo Training

"Italian youths who wish to become Fascist undergo a long period of training. At about six years of age, they are recruited to the ranks, as 'Bambini.' Later they enter the advanced guard. At 18 they may be admitted to the ranks. There are no church organizations; the Fascisti furnish the children with athletic activities and social organizations, appealing to the Italian love of spectacles," Professor Lord continued.

"The church, on the other hand, has the children for but one hour's religious instruction a week. These are the campaign plans of the two great forces at work in developing culture in Italy."

Concert Review

By ADDISON ALSPACH

The university symphony orchestra, under the direction of Prof. F. E. Kendrie drew a large audience to the Iowa Union lounge yesterday afternoon for its first appearance this year, in a short and interesting program of old favorites.

Characteristically, the orchestra was at its best in lyric passages. Though the instrumentation is not perfect it seems surprisingly adequate at this early date judged by the amount and variety of tone produced. String quality is good again this year; there are three good horns and an excellent flute.

Opening with "Pomp and Ceremony" by Elgar, the program through the overture to "Der Freischutz" and the suite from Bizet's "Carmen," concluding with the prelude to Act 3, "Lohengrin,"—and a varied program surely, with a promise for an unusually fine concert season.

The blankets will be presented as has been the practice in past years, at one of the basketball games.

Lentz Reports 400 Students Find Jobs in Last Five Weeks

Success from the unemployment situation among University of Iowa students has been given to more than 400 men and women within the last five weeks by the university's employment bureau.

The report of Arthur G. Lentz, manager, shows all except 100 of the students were given work in September. Two hundred of the jobs will continue throughout the school year, and the remainder are odd pieces of work of every conceivable sort.

Lentz estimates the students placed in positions during September will earn nearly $35,000 by June, the board and room jobs accounting for about $17,000.

Season's Opener

TONIGHT the university theater will open its season's run of eight productions with an English war drama, Journey's End. Last year's tentative plan of using only works of American playwrights seems to have been hardly practicable beyond the experimental stage.

Nothing can quite strangle human desire for understanding, sympathy, and confirmation. Left to rankle in the mind, resentments and doubts are small lodestones to the spirit. A few individuals work better under stress of anger, but most persons slump when fretted by unuttered thoughts and worries.

Recognizing this effect upon efficiency, a Chicago manufacturing company has installed professional confidantes to whom its 40,000 feminine employees can pour out their woes and heartaches. This clever confessional system has brought marked increase in the efficiency of the workers.

Viewed coldly, it may seem bald commercial exploitation; on the other hand, if these trained confessors can bring comfort and encouragement to the women laborers by absorbing the froth of their discontent, they are self-justified.

Now, Mary and Alice can empty their emotional ashpans on an impersonal counselor and proceed to their work, instead of giving vent at home and causing a strain on the family tie or seeking vicarious outlets in the woodpulp magazines and third rate movies.

Thank goodness! Heaven selected its musical instruments before the uke and the sax were invented. —Burlington Hawk-Eye.

It's getting so they have to insist that college freshmen wear loud caps so they can be told from the college presidents. —Cedar Rapids Gazette.

The invention most needed by churches now is a collection plate that can be passed by radio. —Boston Herald.

There are few persons with courage enough to admit that they haven't got it. —Life.

Vending Inspiration: The churches have tried about everything except swinging half doors. —Passaic News.

One gratifying impression we get from modern theological discussions is that hell is not as hot as it was 40 years ago. —Toledo Blade.

Humanism's Better Side: A GIRL who was not very good looking once made a statement to the effect that it is better to be good than to be beautiful. Some romantic bard conceived the notion that the girl was possessed of a divine spirit and composed a sonnet about her.

And then, a long time afterwards, when both the poet and the girl were dead, a man who called himself a scientist, a master of Freudian psychology and a Watsonian disciple, upon reading the poem psychoanalyzed the girl, gave her an inferiority complex, and attributed her utterance to the very carnal instinct of self preservation.

Of course, very few persons ever read and understood the poem, for poems, as such, are only for the few who trip lightly over clouds through ethereal spaces, skip the rope with sunbeams and live on the nothingness of immateriality.

tions, and all that "junk" of the modern age. They want the drug store to stand for biologicals and to be a place to fill doctor's prescriptions. They want to get rid of the present notion that the drug store is a place to get a "coke," a malted milk, or golf clubs.

Perhaps the main reason for this feeling lies in the disrepute that goes with the "drug-store cowboy" which implies that it is a loafing place, a demoralizing influence.

"We sell one bottle of patent medicine today where we sold a dozen bottles 10 years ago," comments a local pharmacist. Other druggists express the same view—that persons have gradually lost confidence in these widely advertised remedies.

But as a matter of fact, drug stores in the aggregate are benefitting greatly by the very things some of the more professional pharmacists belittle, so that as a business proposition the fountain and general sale type has helped take the "drug" out of drug store.

"Tell Me All About It, Dearie"

AND then I got mad and said just what I thought! "Wouldn't you have?" The urge to tell one's troubles is an emotional stopeck draining out petty grievances, a means of relief for sharp little indignities and injustices that prick pride or conscience.

Nothing can quite strangle human desire for understanding, sympathy, and confirmation. Left to rankle in the mind, resentments and doubts are small lodestones to the spirit. A few individuals work better under stress of anger, but most persons slump when fretted by unuttered thoughts and worries.

The so called scientist, too, remained all but unread save by a few of his students, for in dealing with complexes, inhibitions, and hidden capers of the subconscious mind he too spoke a language not ordinarily understood.

The poor girl, who was after all quite a human sort of person, never received any consideration for herself as she was. From the divine spark of the poet to the negative charge in a scientist's aggregation of atoms may be said to constitute her entire treatment.

Prof. Norman Foerster, who two weeks ago told THE DAILY IOWAN readers something of the aims of the new humanists, advocates treating persons like this one cited above as human beings.

Council Plans Correct Vote

Members Check Votes, Names at Desk of Judge

Precautions are being taken by the student council elections committee to insure the honesty and accuracy of the vote to be cast in the liberal arts class elections tomorrow at Iowa Union. Six or seven members of the council will be on duty at the election judge's desk during the voting hours to check the names of voters, which will be announced aloud as they come in the door. Each judge will be in charge of a part of the alphabetical list of bona fide voters' names and it will be his duty to see that they are accurately checked.

A representative of each political faction, whose privilege it will be to challenge the authenticity of any voter's identity will also be at the desk. This measure is being taken to prevent students from voting for others whom they know do not intend to vote. Ballots must not be signed by voters nor should the names of candidates be written in on the ballots. Ballots so marked will not be counted.

The ballot box will be placed in full view of the voters during voting hours and locked in the office at the noon hour. Students may vote from 8 to 12 a.m. and from 1 to 5 p.m.

James L. Records stated that the special gifts committee would work during the entire drive instead of stopping work today as formerly planned. He also mentioned a donation of $100 which has been received from John B. Snow, an American citizen now residing in England.

George H. Frohwein, chairman of the soliciting organization, spoke of the soliciting work and introduced his four team captains, W. L. Davis, E. J. Zethamel, S. I. Updegraff, and James E. Catena. ### HORACE MANN

The beginning kindergarten class and the rooms of Mrs. Baker, Miss Haberstroh, Miss Buresh and Miss McGuire all were 100 per cent in banking last week. The average for the school was 93 per cent, the highest for this year. A representative of Thrift, Inc., the company sponsoring school banking, visited the school yesterday. She congratulated the school for its high standing in thrift and talked to some of the rooms on the advantages of saving. The 1P's and 1A's have been 100 per cent in banking since the beginning of school.

The school nurse's examination showed 73 children to be underweight 10 per cent or more, representing more than 20 per cent of the total enrollment. Eighty children are now drinking milk at school, but not all these underweights are included.

Eldon Parizek won the contest among the boys, and Sybil and Esther Rabic tied among the girls, in the written spelling contest before the P.T.A. last Thursday afternoon. ## Sixth Carload of Potatoes

We have just received our sixth carload of potatoes on this crop. This car consists of 300 120-pound bags of Genuine Red River Ohio Potatoes from Edinburg, N. D. As you will note by referring to your map, Edinburg is located only a short distance south of the Canadian border. It is in the north end of the valley that we are able to get the highest quality Red River Ohios. The recent cold snap froze a lot of potatoes up north and this has resulted in a very much firmer market. We quote:—

Genuine Red River Ohio Potatoes, in two bushel branded bags, at per bushel $1.40

Second Carload of Apples

Our first carload of apples sold in just about three days. We have purchased from the same orchard another carload, which should arrive in Iowa City in about a week. Only fancy and extra fancy apples will be packed in the ring faced tub bushels. The minimum size fruit will be two and one-half inches in diameter. The car will consist of 320 bushels of Rome Beauties, and 320 bushels of Delicious. The Rome Beauty Apple is the finest baking apple that grows. A great many people consider Delicious the finest eating apple that grows. Not all western apples are alike. The quality of this fruit should be seen to be appreciated. We will accept orders for delivery upon arrival at:—

Taking Electrical Convenience From Ol' Man River

THE total capacity of waterwheel generators built by General Electric in the last ten years is more than enough to supply light and power for twenty cities of one million population.

Installed in power houses along the waterways, these machines transform the strength of mighty rivers into useful electric energy for homes, for industry, and for transportation.

The vision and skill of college-trained men are largely responsible for the continuing leadership of General Electric in its service of furnishing machines and devices that provide the swift, sure convenience and the economy of electricity—on land and sea and in the air.

Little Hawks Clash on Shrader Field in Interclass Football Game Today

Senior Class Plays Others at City High

Junction Game Nears as Teams Play Class Tilt

The Iowa City high football squad was divided into two parts last night in preparation for the interclass battle. The seniors were put into one group and the rest of the squad into another. The fracas will be staged at 4 p. m. on Shrader field.

The two halves of the Little Hawk squad went to work immediately on formations and plays to be used in the annual battle. Both sides were optimistic as to the outcome. The seniors, of course, are out to show the underclassmen what the game is all about.

Regulars Aid Seniors

Their offense is built around Capt. Bud Wright and "Pinky" Vestermarck, with Vic Curry, Lawrence Burr, Johnny Van der Zee and others to help out.

The main offense of the underclassmen is centered around "Ike" Ilesness and Cleatus Stimmel.

After the interclass tussle Coach George Wells will shape his squad to meet the invasion of the strong Columbus Junction team on Shrader field Saturday. The Red and White men were anxious to turn the tide of battle against the Junction boys because of their defeat at the hands of the fast Clinton team last Friday night.

Stimmed Injured

The only injuries resulting from the Clinton game belong to Cleatus Stimmel. Stimmel has been carrying an injured shoulder most of the season and received injuries to his right leg in the mix with the river city boys.

St. Patrick's Team Works on Passing for Rapids Gridders

After two consecutive wins, St. Patrick's are getting primed for the immaculate conception invasion here Oct. 25. Coach Louis Loria's men took a light workout last night stressing passing.

By repeated drill the St. Patrick coach hopes to correct the teams passing. Although line plunging and end skirting defeated St. Wendeslaus, the Green and White mentor has decided to use an aerial attack against the Cedar Rapids team next Saturday.

Nov. 7 Coach Loria will take his band of scrappy Irish to Rock Island, Ill., where they will play St. Joseph high. This promises to be a real game as the Illinois team has a good reputation and a clever outfit.

Handy Spurs Men in Preparation for First Home Game

A short scrimmage followed by a skull practice was the dish served up to the University high squad yesterday afternoon, as Coach Handy started to iron out the flaws found in the Monticello game last Friday. Emphasis will be placed upon tackling and defensive tactics all week, as the Blue and White gridders prepare for their second conference game with Tipton next Friday. So far the squad has escaped serious injuries, and barring unforeseen accidents, should be in fine shape for this encounter.

In yesterday's scrimmage the regulars found the going tough against the second string, although several times the backs broke through for good gains. Particular attention was paid at all times to minor details in the carrying out of plays and formations. The same lineups were used as in previous games.

At Tipton this Friday the Handymen meet one of the strongest teams in the Little Seven conference. A victory will go a long way toward determining the conference champion-

Strikes and Spares

Hawk Frosh Scrap 0 to 0 on Iowa Field

The Cyclones and the Bears, frosh second stringers, played 40 minutes of scoreless football yesterday afternoon on Iowa field. The teams battled up and down the gridiron with neither eleven showing any advantage over the other.

Bennie Shine, a quarter on the Cyclones, played stellar football throughout. Time after time he dashed around the ends and slashed through tackles with good support from linemen.

Rule, signal caller on the Bears, was the main ball totter for his team. Jansen, right halfback, also showed to good advantage.

In order to decide which team is to play the Wildcats Thursday afternoon, a coin was flipped, and Irvin Nelson, Cyclone's coach, won the toss from Ray Gaylor, Bears coach. The lineup:

Varsity Rests, Veteran End New Leader

Although the Hawkeyes did not defeat the powerful Purdue eleven last Saturday, they displayed a better brand of football than they had previously shown and Coach Burt Ingwersen gave his regulars their first rest in several weeks. However, the exemption of the varsity did not prevent the Old Gold mentors from sending the second string gridders through a long scrimmage with the crack yearling eleven.

George H. Rogge, senior end, will lead the Iowa team in the first invasion of the year against Detroit. Rogge, former Ida Grove athlete, was a regular last fall, but has been alternating with Jim Hay at right end this season. He has of late been handicapped by a leg injury which marred his play last Saturday but he is expected to be in good shape for the Detroit tilt. Rogge weighs 175 pounds and is six feet tall.

A large number of the reserves were under fire yesterday afternoon as the coaches checked up on the better utility men. Graham and Weller played the best offensive game for the second string. None of the forwards were able to open up holes in the scrappy frosh line. Swaney and Foster led the stubborn rhying forward wall in turning back the thrusts of the reserve ball toters.

Except for Rogge's leg injury and minor wounds of Higdon and Leo Jenvold, the Hawkeyes escaped from the Big Ten struggle Saturday in good shape. Prospects are that the Old Gold mentors will make the best of the open date this week and prepare carefully for the string Titan eleven.

Zupke Revamps Regular Backfield

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 20 (AP)—Draught alterations in Illinois' backfield were made today by Coach Bob Zupke, as the Illini strove to forget Saturday's walloping by Northwestern. Captain Olaf Robinson, whose play was above reproach against the Wildcats was moved from fullback to quarter and Art Sutton of the reserves, a good passer, was moved into Robinson's place. Pete Yanuskus was back at left half, but Hunter Russell who started at end Saturday, was at the other half. Gil Berry, halfback, and Mark Swanson, end, both of whom started last Saturday were out with minor injuries.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 20 (AP)—Minnesota's practice today was confined to a light drill and listening to a recital of faults committed in the Indiana game Saturday. The Gophers have an open date and Coach Crisler indicated he will take it easy until Wednesday when preparation for Northwestern will begin in earnest.

Purdue Pays for Win

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 20 (AP)—Coach Noble Kizer today started another search for a reserve fullback, after the serious injury suffered by Alex Yunevitch at Iowa Saturday. Horstman was moved into Yunevitch's place, but a helper must be found. Kizer let the regulars off today and tomorrow will start building a defense for use against Wisconsin's powerful eleven Saturday.

Wearers of the GREEN

Another youth who has taken Horace Greeley's advice is Henry Arthur Landis of Amherst, Mass. Landis is fighting for a position in the frosh backfield.

Winning three letters in football at Amherst high and being elected captain in his senior year is Henry's grid record. He made quite a name as a ball carrier in eastern prep circles.

Basket ball is another sport in which Landis excels. He won two bucket ball letters, and was elected to the captaincy in his senior year. He was the team's highest scorer last season.

After the basket ball season, Henry was out for baseball. He has played all the infield positions during his two years on the diamond. Second base is his best position. His hitting ranked him up with the leaders, and during those years, Landis played errorless ball. He also led the nine in his last year at Amherst.

After the close of the grid season, Henry expects to report for cage practice, and will follow with baseball in the spring.

Harriers Win Gopher Meet by One Point

Following discovery that Howard W. Wickey, Iowa cross country runner, was eligible for the Minnesota meet Saturday, the results of the meet have been reversed, and the Hawkeyes are winners by a score of 28 to 29. Before the discovery of Wickey's eligibility, the result was 25 to 31 for Minnesota.

Conditions Course

During his freshman year, Wickey conditioned the first semester of beginning German, with the provision that if the second semester was passed with a "C" average, the first semester condition would be removed. Wickey, however, preferred to take no chances on his status, and repeated the course during the second semester of the year, removing the condition.

When the team went to Minneapolis Saturday, Wickey was apparently in good standing scholastically. However, Coach George Bresnahan received a telegram from university authorities that Wickey was not eligible. After telephoning to Iowa City, Coach Bresnahan entered into an agreement with Minnesota whereby Wickey and Duncan, a Gopher ineligible, were allowed to run, but their places were not to be counted unless they were later discovered to be in good standing.

Finishes Second

Wickey came in second, and by the method of cross country scoring, in which the first five men of each team to finish are counted, Iowa totaled only 28 points. With Wickey out, Minnesota's score was 31 points. After the team returned to Iowa City, Wickey's record was rechecked, with the result that the removal of the condition was discovered and Wickey was found to have been eligible at the time of the meet.

On the cleanest locker-room floor you'll catch the germ of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

YOU don't have to make any one of the teams to have "Athlete's Foot." The glee club probably has some victims. The man who gets all his exercise out of differential calculus, not to mention the "crammer" and the "pluggie," may be wondering about that redness between the toes, with i-t-c-h-i-n-g. Or it may show up with a thick, moist skin condition. Or again, with tiny blisters on toes, or a dryness with scales.

The fact is, all these symptoms point straight at the ringworm germ known to the boys in Science Hall as tinea trichophyton. This tiny parasite of the vegetable kingdom has infected about half the men in college, according to many authorities. The U. S. Health Service reports that "at least half of all adults suffer from it at some time." Universities as far apart as California and Pennsylvania have found 50% of the men infected. And the co-ed gets it too. Little tinea trichophyton has made itself a campus pest.

It lurks in the very places where we all go for cleanliness and health—on the edges of swimming pools and showers—in gymnasiums—on locker and dressing room floors. In spite of modern sanitation (you have to boil socks 15 minutes to kill it) this fungus parasite infects and re-infects bare feet almost any time they come in contact with damp floors.

Absorbine Jr. kills the germ of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

Tests in a famous New York "lab" have revealed that Absorbine Jr. penetrates flesh-like tissues deeply and that wherever it penetrates, it KILLS the ringworm germ.

It might not be a bad idea to examine your feet tonight. At the first sign of the symptoms mentioned, douse on Absorbine Jr. And keep a bottle handy in your locker as a preventive. Use it after every exposure of bare feet on damp floors. At all druggists—$1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

CIMME A GUY LIKE TANDY

HANDY AND TANDY!

CARL HANDY (Above) CAPTAIN OF THE CALIFORNIA ELEVEN WHICH FACES WASHINGTON!

RAY TANDY STANFORD CAPTAIN WHO LEADS THE WARRIORS AGAINST SOUTHERN CALIF. THIS SATURDAY!

The far west's game of games for 1930 will be played at Palo Alto this Saturday when the Southern California Trojans battle (and that old verb is just the word for what will take place) the Stanford Cardinals. Two famously individual coaching systems will be involved—that of Glenn Scobey ("Pop") Warner, who made Stanford famous before President Hoover did, and that of Howard Jones, bred at Yale, who has battled the Warner system on even terms for five seasons.

The Cards and Trojans have been justifying pre-season optimism on the part of their followers. Each element believes Saturday's game will decide the Pacific Coast championship and in all probability the best claimant for 1930 national football honors. (Washington State—me eye)

California's Golden Bears were walloped early by those Washington "Huskies," 16-0, and the experts generally agree that the Cards and Northwestern inflicting upon the Illinois the worst defeat they have suffered since Zuppke became coach, Notre Dame's complete route of Carnegie Tech, and Wisconsin's smashing victory over Pennsylvania.

The Wildcats displayed power and versatility that marks them as one of the nation's best teams. The Chicago press backs the Purple with the zeal that Des Moines papers support Drake.

Chicago dailies hailed the N. U. eleven as the Big Ten champions before the football season opened. Coach Hanley's team has thus far substantiated their claims. The backfield is gifted with talent and ability. The line is weighty and experienced.

Knut Rockne is carrying on as usual. As the Irish bowl over opponents with monotonous regularity, new feathers are added to his cap, which is fast taking on the appearance of an Indian's headdress.

The Associated Press sent out only a modest one paragraph account of Oregon's 7 to 0 victory over Washington. Interest in that game is heightened hereabouts when fans are reminded that the Oregon squad is coached by Doc Spears, former Minnesota mentor, and the Washington Huskies are coached by Jimmy Phelan, the young man who cashed in on the fame he received for piloting Purdue into the conference title last year.

Wisconsin and Michigan applied for titular consideration from Big Ten fans. The Badgers have surpassed the highest hopes of their most ardent backers. The Wolverines have become a genuine threat with surprise triumphs over Purdue and Ohio State.

In the East Dartmouth and Army stand out. The former has amassed a total of 225 points, while nary a point has been counted against it. The Cadets showed their mettle with a 6 to 0 win over Harvard.

Down South Alabama handed Tennessee its first defeat since 1926. The score was 18 to 6. Southern Methodist was doped to romp over Baylor, but the Louisiana Bears held it to a 14 to 14 tie. The high quality of southern football was further demonstrated when Duke university of North Carolina swamped Navy, 28 to 0.

Kansas and Oklahoma lead the Big Six. The Jayhawks took the state crown by crushing their Aggie rivals. By the way, the Oklahoma Aggies, who licked Iowa and tied Indiana, were beaten 6 to 0 by Oklahoma City University. Nebraska staged a comeback after its poor season's start, in shading Ames, 14 to 12. Drake flashed power in conquering its arch enemy, Grinnell, 20 to 7.

On the Pacific coast there are only three unbeaten teams, namely Oregon Stanford and Washington State. Coach Jones' Golden Bears of Southern California were soundly spanked by the Olympic club, 13 to 0. See you tomorrow.

Purdue's Pirates have been signed to play the program of dances for the annual Sigma Delta Chi "River-er's Rassele" to be held in the Memorial gym on the evening of October 24. The ducats priced at two and one-half dollars are much in demand.

Laughing Boy

By Oliver La Farge

(What Has Gone Before) Laughing Boy meets Slim Girl at a ceremonial dance and falls in love with her because she is different from any other squaw he has ever known.

Now and then she goes to the town for an afternoon. She tells Laughing Boy she goes to help the minister's wife. She goes to spend the afternoon with a white man. He gives her money, and with this money she is able to keep herself and Laughing Boy.

(Now Go on With the Story)

After that there were long, flawless days when they were at home together. At his house she sat at her loom, time passing with the thump of the batten, the ring of the hammer or rasp of the file. There were chatter and laughter, songs, and long, rich silences. Work then was all love and inspiration.

She had known a good many different kinds of pleasure, but this was a new richness, something that did not exhaust itself, but grew, a sharing of achievement, designs, colors, fingers, hands, and brain creating overcoming. There was a great deal to be silent about. It came to her as she was weaving the colored threads to her intent, why was this not enough?

This is it. This is the thing I have always wanted. There is nothing better; why endanger it. Why not let that man go now? Why not just do this?

The batten thumping down on the wet, the hammer ringing on white metal. As long as I keep on my way, there is danger. I can't ever go back to what used to be now. This is what is worth while. A hogahn in the Northern desert would be beautiful now.

Sure fingers interlocking dark blue and black, driving the toothed stick down over the juncture. I cannot stop halfway now. I am making a new trail of beauty. When I get through, it will be wonderful. Nothing will ever have been like our life.

Lifting the treadle to let a line of crimson follow the shuttle through the design. We shall command money, money will command everything. I have needed sheep, their dust in their lungs, hot, a little girl howling at the sheep. We shall be above that. A little girl watching old Light Man drive by to his summer camp in a buckboard behind two spanking pintos.

A tiny touch of white brings the red meander to life, and deepens the thunderous background. Navajo women are just getting really strong. I am not going to turn into a fat old squaw. My dear, my dear, you will be gray when you are old? Your silver is beautiful. Is anything in the world worth the risk of separating your force and my loom?

The blue shuttle goes under six wad two, meets it. A close weave looks like a true diamond. Are you afraid now, Come With War? I can handle these men. I make my own trail, and I do not stop halfway. I shall make something perfect, that nobody else has made. If I stop now, I might as well stop now, for this trail, after all it cost me to learn to make it. I shall pay myself back for everything that has been.

A single wet strand has no thickness at all, and a blanket is long. It needs patience to finish it, and to make it beautiful, one must not be afraid of the colors.

Laughing Boy, having done his thinking and made up his mind, did not mull over his decision, any more than when he had started a bracelet; he worried whether it ought to have been a necklace. If he did think of other forms, it was only in reflecting that after this was done he would make more, and always more.

You make your dress out of iron files, you get some small piece of iron from a trader for your anvil. In a hard wooden board you cut depressions for hammering out bosses and conchos and hemispheres for beads. When you have bought or made your tools, and have your skill, you go ahead. You make many things, rings, bracelets, bow-guards, necklaces, pendants, belts, bridles, buttons, hatsbands. No two are alike but they are all of the silver or of silver and turquoise.

Having what he had, he went ahead with living. There were many days, all different, some high emotion, some of mere happiness, but they were all made of the same stuff, there was one element beautiful in all of them. So he worked content.

When he had made something that had truly satisfied him, he would give it to her, saying, "That is for you. There is no use selling that to Americans, they do not understand."

It always pleased her, but she would appraise the jewelry carefully, checking it against their mutual profits, his sales and horse trades, her blankets, and what she brought from the town. If it could be paid for, she put it away, otherwise she required that it be earned. Her primitive banking won his astonished admiration. For her, it was a happy symbol that their fortune, however earned, should be stored in things of beauty. And every day, at the end, the sun went down and the harsh horizons dimmed. Then there was the magic dinner, ready for him and for that a banquet. They spoke dreamily in the firelight, side by side, and knew a great intimacy. They were not two individuals, but two parts who together made a whole, and there was no cleavage between them.

The first-time Laughing Boy rode away to Natanhettin with the horses, he rebelled against the need to leave their tiny valley, and against the prospect of recurring trips, some of several days' duration. But very shortly he found that, no matter how much in love, a man needs both time to himself, alone, and in general periods of being away from the sphere which is permeated by the influence of a woman. He had a use for these days alone. After all, at the end of a day the sun always set, and it was less than half the time that a strayed animal, a bit of trading, or the need of moving his herd kept him away overnight.

Here he could ride the range and sing. Here it was that he thought of the best designs for his silver. It was beautiful, too, watching the long-maned ponies in the good grass, or coming down to water. Then there was the trading, meat and drink to a Navajo, and in general periods of penetration. It was so pleasant to sit down with another Indian for a long morning of smokes, gossip, and business, learning all the new and driving a close bargain. Very few of his people ever came by his house, and those were mostly specimens like Yellow Singer. He did not want any one there; that was a place apart, just as here he always had the feeling of a secret knowledge he could not share, something beyond the comprehension of the men he encountered.

He listened to the gossip, jokes, and talk about women that was frank enough, seeing in it all that they had no idea of what he knew. He did not get to speak of his wife, knowing that he could never tell them about her, nor yet make a pretense of speaking as if she were just a wife, as they did. Few ever asked after her, and then in a tone of a certain constraint, though their words were formal enough. He had expected something of the sort, for what his uncle had said; she broke the rules and upset things. If they knew her, she was troublesome to them. Of course they resented the disturbance of their minds, and called it bad, with tales that grew in telling. So he sat, as it were, on the edge of their domestic discussions. When it was a matter of horses, he came to be listened to with respect. Every one agreed that he knew horses, and that he was an excellent trader; when he was speaking about a horse he was trying to sell at the moment, nothing he said was believed.

Trading was brisk and profitable. His own people were active enough in it. Hogs came down that way, and occasionally a Zuni would pass by. A tourist company in Los Palos was having a good season; they found it convenient to let Slim Girl that they wanted so many ponies delivered on such a day. They often got fearful catnip, but always sound, and profitable for all the Easterners paying two dollars a day.

His profits went back into the herd. One by one he was getting himself animals that satisfied him, that made him happy to touch and proud to ride them. When the day came that they went back to T'o Tiaki, they would bring fine blankets and much jewelry on splendid horses. He made a pair of brass-mounted saddles, and began, little by little, as he earned the silver, a squaw's bride that should be envied from the San Juan to the Little Colorado.

Those days of life ceased to be penalties. As he settled in the saddle at dawn, it was rather like reentering the old, familiar life into which he carried the enchanted quality of the new. The trail to Natanhettin was still cool, he liked and enjoyed himself. There would be the action of rounding up a loose pony, the pleasure of feeling a neat-footed horse under one, chance meetings, talk, and trade.

Almost best of all was to sit on a knoll, smoking and watch the animals feed. One never sees a horse so at ease when he is grazed close by, intent upon the grass, oblivious of the man. Then one sees how he moves his ears, how he blows through his soft nostrils, how his casual movements are made. He moves from clump to clump, making his selections by standards of his own, never still, yet entirely free of the restlessness of a stalled horse. It is the essence of pastoral life. Cigaret smoke rises lazily in the hot air, the sun is comfortable upon one's bones, the gently moving animals make peace.

He did his thinking then, detached from his emotions, mildly introspective, reflective. He would weigh each thing and value it, go back, retrace, and balance. It was one thing to have made up his mind; another to know exactly where he was—the difference between setting out on a new trail and marking down all the landmarks of the discovered country. The horse shifted from clump to clump, making soft noises, hooves in sand, and crunching. Cigaret smoke wafted and turned with breezes too soft to feel, the movement of the heat in the air. Thoughts became pictures, changing slowly.

Defeated for reelection in 1926, the Wisconsin senator retired to private life, again taking up the practice of law. Two years after his return to private law practice, Mr. Lenroot through executive appointment was named to life post as judge of the United States court of custom and patent appeals.

It was during this campaign that Lenroot broke with LaFollette, a break which was never repaired and which reflected itself in many struggles. LaFollette had opposed the government's attitude toward the World War; Lenroot supported it in the senatorial campaign.

KNOW YOUR UNIVERSITY

Pershing Rifles, Organized at Nebraska in 1892, Now Has 15 National Companies

Pershing Rifles, national military fraternity for basic military students, was founded in 1892 by General John J. Pershing at the University of Nebraska. Pershing was then a first lieutenant and commandant of cadets at the Nebraska institution.

Originally the name was Varsity Rifles, but the society changed its name to honor the founder. For 31 years it was a local society, but with the organization of a second company at Ohio State university it began its expansion to national dimensions. Shortly after another chapter was established at the University of Tennessee.

In December, 1928, due to the interest evinced by students on this campus, permission to establish a company here was granted by the other companies already in existence.

In 1929 it became necessary to reorganize nationally along more military lines to insure handling the rapid expansion. Today there are 15 companies.

Pershing Rifles seeks to promote citizenship, to properly recognize proficiency in the cadets of the R.O.T.C. unit, and to preserve an adequate system of national defense. Personnel for the company here was selected by competitive means. All advance course students were eligible for holding one of the offices, while the basic cadets vied for membership. Charter officers were Boyd N. Liddle, J. D. Davenport, captain, Russell A. Enclmann, Lt. of What Cheer, first lieutenant, Harold S. Anderson, '30 of Iowa City, second lieutenant, and Thomas Harris, '30 of Davenport first sergeant.

Officers have since been elected by the company. For the year 1929-30 officers elected were Liddle, captain, Bernard F. Gibney, A. J. of Iowa City, first lieutenant, Ohio Knox, A. J. of Council Bluffs, second lieutenant, and William S. McCuley, A. J. of Omaha, Neb., first sergeant.

The present officers are Knox, captain, McCuley, first lieutenant, Howard V. Turner, A. J. of Des Moines, second lieutenant, and Robert L. Gorr, A. J. of Dubuque, first sergeant.

Since the inauguration of Company B, Second Regiment, here, an organization has been made of some of its members into a "crack squad," for presentation of spectacular gun drills.

Lampe Returns After Meetings of National Groups in Chicago

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion, returned from Chicago Sunday morning after conferring with the committee which is planning a national faculty and student convention. This will be held in Detroit Dec. 27 to Jan. 1, by the Christian association.

Fifteen hundred students and faculty members from all over the United States are expected to attend and will have their headquarters at the Book Cadillac hotel. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the relationship of religion and education in colleges and universities.

Professor Lampe predicts a minimum of three faculty members and three students to represent the University of Iowa.

Legge, Chairman of Farm Board, Says Prices Will Improve

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The opinion that prices for agricultural commodities had reached bottom and that they would gradually improve was expressed today by Chairman Legge of the farm board.

The chairman said the commodity markets "are doing better in showing an independence of the stock market to an extent which they haven't shown for some time."

He added that during the past week industrial stocks fell but agricultural price levels were maintained at about the same point.

"The feeling in the trade," Legge continued, "must be that the commodity markets are through liquidating."

He expressed belief that price levels for agricultural commodities would probably "hang around" the present prices for a time and then gradually improve.

Learbury Designers Never Experiment
..... They Find Out First

Don't look for the bizarre, the freakish style in a Learbury model . . . it is never to be found. The personal whims or ideas of designers are completely absent. Instead, Learbury goes right to the leading campuses of the country and assures correctness for its style by consulting college leaders and adopting their style preferences.

The success of this plan is proved by the fact that authentic college clothes mean "Learbury" wherever you go.
