Face to Face With Gandhi

Reporter Tells About
Following Mahatma
for One Year

(Editor's note:—This is the third article on "The Man Gandhi" by James A. Mills, staff correspondent of The Associated Press, who for a year has written about and studied the Indian leader, in India, London and on shipboard.

(Copyright 1932, By The Associated Press)

BOMBAY.—India's unlettered multitude worship Mahatma Gandhi as they would Rama, the Hindu god of gods.

They see in him not only a great political leader and patriot, who shall lead them out of the bondage of foreign rule, but they picture him literally as a saint and spiritual guide who shall redeem all their woes and sufferings.

Not a "Saint"

Gandhi, however, repudiates any suggestion that he is a "saint." He says he received no revelations from God, no inspired messages. He says he is made of the same corruptible flesh as common man, and is subject to all the frailties and emotions of humankind. Even the severest critics of his political doctrines pay tribute to the purity of his life, his unblemished character and his sterling honesty.

Money means nothing to this eastern ascetic. When an American newspaper editor asked Mr. Gandhi if he would go to the United States to lecture for $100,000, the Mahatma replied sharply, "I wouldn't go for $100,000,000."

There is a perceptible pause, then the little Indian idealist added, "But I would go for nothing."

Similarly, when American movie corporations, radio companies, publishers and others have tried to attract Gandhi with liberal offers of money, he turned them all down cold, with the statement that mere money would never move him to do anything.

Fights Narcotics

Gandhi never touches meat, alcohol, tobacco, tea or coffee. For years he has fought drink and narcotics in India. His main article in his diet is milk. But he begrudges himself ever this modest food, for he says it is wrong of man to take from the cow or goat that which belongs to the animal's young. He never touches eggs, because he says they contain life.

As I sat with him in his gypsy-tent on the steamer bound for Bombay, he offered to share with me dates and goat's milk with me, and jokingly called me a "monster" because I reproduce his activities and utterances in some 1,300 newspapers.

Establishes Retreat

At Ahmedabad, about 400 miles from Bombay, Gandhi has established a retreat which he calls his "Ashram." To this little settlement, on the banks of the sacred Sabarmati river, he invited all those, both native Indians and foreigners, who wish to come into "brotherly communion" and serve God and the poor. Inmates must take a vow of strict chastity.

Members of Gandhi's Ashram spin, pray and meditate. They arise at 4 a. m., and work on the farm or at the loom. The hum of the spinning-wheel and the rhythmic sound of the chaffing bow may be heard throughout the retreat.

Spinning Wheel a Sacrament

Gandhi regards the spinning wheel as a sacrament. "It is through the spinning wheel that I keep touch with the poorest of the poor," he said, "and through touch with God."

Mrs. Gandhi is a humble little woman of 55, who bears a striking resemblance, both physically and in her ideals and aims, to Madam Lenin, widow of the famous founder of Bolshevism.

But Mrs. Gandhi shares none of Madam Lenin's views on communism. She devotes herself to the poor. She lacks the education of her husband, but helps him in all his work. She, too, has recently been arrested.

Lives Apart from Wife

Although Gandhi prefers to live apart from his wife, so that he can devote all his time to his work and receive his disciples freely, he and Mrs. Gandhi are still greatly devoted to one another.

"My wife," says the Mahatma, "moves me as no other woman in this world can. Not that she has no faults. I dare say she has many more than I dare say myself. But the feeling of an indissoluble bond is there."

One Head Receives Honor

Scrubwoman Starts Last Lap of Journey

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29 (AP)—The flat-bottom boat of Miss Randi Leroh, the paddling scrubwoman of Superior, Wis., bore her southward tonight toward fulfillment of her ambition to hold a rendezvous with the mouth of the mighty Mississippi.

She left New Orleans today on the last 100 mile lap of the long journey from the river's upper reaches to the Gulf of Mexico. But she is no longer the chatty, neighborly woman who made friends of thousands who lined the banks to greet and cheer her at St. Louis, Cairo, Memphis and numerous hamlets enroute.

Man Breaks Neck

FT. DODGE (AP)—Albert J. Miller of Humboldt was in a hospital here suffering from a broken neck received in a coasting accident at Humboldt. He was thrown into a telephone pole when a runner of his sled collapsed.

Biting Winds Fasten Iowa in Zero Grip

Blizzard Reaches All
Sections of State;
Blocks Roads

DES MOINES, Jan. 29 (AP)—A biting wind from the northwest bore down upon Iowa today and sent thermometers suddenly down towards zero.

Highways in northwest Iowa were made impassable as the brunt of the blizzard struck the vicinity of Ft. Dodge at noon. Snow flurries and rapidly falling readings were reported from most sections of the state.

Pavements Slippery

Tonight the winds had reached southeast Iowa, at Keokuk a 22 mile wind caused the mercury to fall from 81 to lower than 20 degrees in less than 24 hours. A light snow fell in Cedar Rapids as a sharp wind caused temperatures to plunge downward.

Winter returned to Iowa City with a vengeance yesterday with a decided drop in temperature and with snow flurries throughout the day, accompanied by high winds.

At 7 a. m. the temperature was 27 degrees, dropping to 6 degrees above zero at 6 p. m. High temperature recorded during the day was 27 degrees. The lowest temperature Thursday was 27 degrees with 40 degrees being registered as high.

At midnight, officials at the Boeing Air Transport station at the airport, reported an unofficial reading of zero.

Pavements in many parts of the state were made treacherous as the freeze followed closely upon a late January thaw. One man was hurt near Waterloo when his automobile slipped off the ice-coated pavements.

All Iowa Sub-Zero

Shortly before noon Council Bluffs was in the grip of zero weather and there was no abatement during the afternoon.

Tonight Iowans prepared for even lower temperatures. The weather bureau men said northwest Iowa would have 15 degrees below zero before morning, northeast 10 below, southwest 10 below, and southeast zero.

Fair Weather Forecast

Fair weather, however, was forecast, except for snow in the western section. Saturday will continue to be cold.

Other low readings late today were: Davenport 21 above, Dubuque 19, Ottumwa 15.

Near Ft. Dodge a inch of snow had drifted onto highways and railroad tracks. Near Emmetsburg traffic was delayed and the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad suspended its Ft. Dodge-Spencer service. Snow plows were used but were ineffectual because of the winds.

Wintry Blasts Pierce
North Central States

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29 (AP)—A quick and savage thrust of winter, launched in western Canada, tonight fastened the rigors of sub-zero weather on the north central states and the Rocky mountain region, and threatened to extend the icy frontiers.

In drought-stricken northern Nebraska, where starving livestock was reported freezing, Red Cross workers battled the triple handicap of driving winds, snow-blocked roads and six below temperatures to succor desperate farmers.

Relief Group
Asks City to Furnish Jobs

Stressing the need for whole hearted cooperation of Iowa Citizens in giving employment to the 250 men and women who are out of work, the executive committee of the American Legion unemployment relief association issued an appeal last night for help.

Because of the temporary loss of funds in recent bank failures, the committee is without money with which to carry on work on civic enterprises and must rely upon the cooperation of Iowa City residents until more funds can be raised, Charles Kennett, chairman, explained.

Boy Scouts are canvassing the city, securing signatures of persons with work to be done and will continue until every home in the city has been solicited. Until contributions can be raised, the committee will act as an employment agency.

The committee announced that a large supply of canned foods which is on hand at the American Legion community building will be turned over to the Social Service league to be distributed to needy families. Members of the committee who were present at the meeting last night are: Charles Kennett, Glen Kenderline, Thomas E. Martin, and Mrs. W. H. Wagner.

CENTER OF CRITICAL INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM

New and grave problems growing out of the Sino-Japanese crisis have been thrust upon states of the western world by Japan's resort to drastic armed action in Chinese areas of the great oriental city of Shanghai. While Japanese have threatened to take over the international settlement, where British and American troops are guarding millions of dollars in foreign wealth and thousands of lives of foreigners, the Chinese have threatened to attack the settlement unless foreign powers intervene to drive the Japs from China. The flagship of Admiral M. M. Taylor (left inset) is already on the way to head the U. S. Asiatic fleet at Shanghai, while U. S. Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham (right inset), is keeping a close watch on the rights of American citizens there. Lower photo is a busy business corner of the English-American settlement at Shanghai.

Crowley Not Available for Coaching Job

Ike Armstrong, Utah
Mentor, Impressed
After Visit

The star of Jim Crowley, for long the brightest prospect in the Iowa grid coach horizon, faded out officially yesterday, and that of Ike Armstrong, University of Utah mentor, rose to greater heights as the latter visited Iowa City to talk over the vacant job with athletic board officials.

Armstrong's statement that he was favorably impressed with conditions at the University of Iowa and that he would be interested in the job here if it would improve his present condition, came a few hours before confirmation of reports that James Crowley, Michigan State coach, had withdrawn his name as a candidate for the Hawkeye post.

Iowa officials made the announcement last night when rumors persisted that the board's relations with Crowley had been severed.

Williams Issues Statement

The statement was issued by Dean C. C. Williams, chairman of the athletic board, and it explained that Crowley had wired shortly after his visit here that he no longer cared to be considered as a candidate for the Hawkeye coaching position.

Iowa officials replied by asking Crowley to keep an open mind on the question, and not to make a definite decision until the board had had time to make a selection. The Michigan State coach, however, insisted that he was no longer interested in the job here.

Content of Statement

Dean Williams' statement said: "Mr. Crowley notified the board a few days after his visit to Iowa City that he wished to withdraw his candidacy for the position at Iowa, stating that after further consideration he thought it best to continue his contract at Michigan State college."

"The Iowa board has kept in constant contact with Mr. Crowley since then, endeavoring to persuade him to remain open-minded in the matter until further interview. Mr. Crowley has wired, however, that he definitely decided to remain in his present position."

Outstanding Candidate

Crowley had been considered as the outstanding candidate, and as one who had the united support of Iowa's friends and alumni. Unofficial reports said that his reason for withdrawing from the field was that Michigan State is loath to relieve him from his contract.

Armstrong said yesterday that he was perfectly content at Utah, an institution with an enrollment of approximately 3,500 students. He said that salary would not be the only consideration if he were offered the Iowa job. He declared that the general atmosphere was more important, although he would not change schools if a decrease in salary were involved.

One Reason

He confessed that one reason for his trip here was that he believed he would be able to get a better salary at Iowa according to the usual Big Ten scale than that which he is now drawing at Utah.

He has two years left for his contract to run at the western institution, he said, adding that he did not know whether officials there would release him. His trip of investigation here had their approval, however, he indicated.

Armstrong spent the day looking

Jury Frees Former Senator of Attempted Bribery Charges

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 29 (AP)—A circuit court jury of 10 men and two women took about three hours' deliberation today to acquit former Assemblyman Paul H. Raible, Chippewa Falls, of charges of attempted bribery.

The charge was an outgrowth of a visit of Raible and former Assemblyman Ethan E. Minier, New Richmond, to the room of Senator P. J. Smith, Eau Claire, on the night of Feb. 4, 1931. Smith contended Raible tried to influence his vote on pending utility legislation by offering through subscription to raise his salary from $500 given holdover senators to $2,400 given newly elected senators.

Sun Sets on Exam
Week; Dusk Brings
Registration Grief

As the sun sets on examination week, registration for the second semester will be two-thirds completed, and students will be looking forward to a one-day respite, Monday, before taking up class work again. First class meetings will be Tuesday at 8 a. m. in the second semester, although the term actually begins one day earlier.

Examinations, in their final day, call for sessions from 8 to 10 this morning for classes meeting Monday at 3 p. m. Quizzes for classes meeting at 4 p. m. Tuesday will occupy the hours from 10 to 12 this morning.

Here are the initials that will be given preference as names are checked in the registration rolls today: forenoon, L to M, inclusive; afternoon, M to O, inclusive. Students having final initials from R to Z will be able to register Monday.

MOSCOW, Jan. 29 (AP)—Whether Russia will allow Japanese troops to be transported to Harbin over the Chinese Eastern railway—jointly owned by China and Russia—was, in effect, put up to China today.

This decision was communicated to Japanese Ambassador Hirota by Assistant Commissioner for Foreign Affairs Karakhan.

World Reaction to Sino-Jap Situation

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—America's security and commodity markets reflected a varied feeling over the Sino-Japanese developments in Shanghai—Nipponese bonds dropped $10 to $50 or more for $1,000 units while "war stocks" rallied.

There was a sudden renewal of moderate speculative buying in the early forenoon, and it whipped up a mild degree of interest based on the possibility of war—a possibility which leading Wall street executives described as remote.

The grain and cotton markets responded to better buying. The silk market, important to Japan because silk is one of that country's principal commodities, eased off. The Japanese yen also gave ground, piercing the year's former low point of 35 cents reached on Jan. 2 last.

BERLIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Re-estimation of Shanghai to Japanese invasion was applauded by Pei Sze Chen, son of former foreign Minister Eugene Chen of China.

He hailed it as "a signal for stiffened opposition of the nation to defeat the threat of Japanese enslavement under the heel of their colonizing army and navy."

PARIS, Jan. 29 (AP)—The foreign office said tonight it was looking to the League of Nations to handle the Sino-Japanese conflict at Shanghai and that there was no immediate reason to expect that the French policy would be changed for more direct action.

LONDON, Jan. 29 (AP)—The British government joined the United States today in making firm representations to Japan regarding the protection of foreign lives and property in beleaguered Shanghai.

Foreign Minister Sir John Simon was understood to have asked the Japanese government not to take action within the boundaries of the international settlement without first consulting powers with interests there. Her reply was awaited anxiously tonight.

GENEVA, Jan. 29 (AP)—Impressed by the extreme gravity of developments in the Far East, the League of Nations council today brushed aside Japan's technical objections and cleared the way for immediate organization of a neutral inquiry into the conflict at Shanghai.

It was an unexpected manifestation of firmness, explained in part by the knowledge that the United States views the disturbance with profound concern and appears ready to cooperate energetically in restoring peace in the Pacific.

MANILA, Jan. 30 (Saturday) (AP)—Eight American destroyers made ready today to leave on short notice to join four others which sailed yesterday to meet any emergency threatening American lives and property in China.

Stores for an extended voyage were put aboard in the last few days, although Shanghai, 1,340 miles, is but two days distant to fast destroyers under favorable conditions.

MOSCOW, Jan. 29 (AP)—Whether Russia will allow Japanese troops to be transported to Harbin over the Chinese Eastern railway—jointly owned by China and Russia—was, in effect, put up to China today.

This decision was communicated to Japanese Ambassador Hirota by Assistant Commissioner for Foreign Affairs Karakhan.

Stimson Skeptical of Pledge to Safeguard Foreign District in Shanghai; Battle Continues

Chinese Threaten Move
Against International
Settlement

TOKYO, Jan. 30—(Saturday)—A veiled threat of eventually withdrawing from the League of Nations if the League insists upon what Japan considers to be an unreasonable attitude in the Sino-Japanese controversy was advanced in official circles today.

An authoritative spokesman pointed out in this connection that such a move would be entirely in line with a resolution adopted at a general meeting of the Sino-Japanese controversy was advanced in official circles today.

At the same time it was authentically reported that the Japanese would take over the foreign area with the consent of British Consul General J. F. Brennan.

Made More Serious

The Chinese threat of action was made more serious by reports that the crack troops of Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek, former president of China has returned to a place of power in Nanking government, were arriving from Nanking and were taking up positions here.

The second day and night of Japanese occupation brought a series of dramatic developments. An attempt by civilian authorities to effect an armistice failed. Japanese marines, aided by air bombers, continued their advance in Shanghai in the face of stubborn resistance by Chinese soldiers.

Invasion American Mission

An American mission in the international settlement was invaded by the Japanese. The Shanghai wireless station was bombed out of commission. A shell fell in the settlement but no one was hurt. Bombs, machine guns, and rifles spread death and destruction through the native districts. Illumination and communication facilities were blotted out. Flames devoured what the battling soldiers left.

Many Casualties

The casualties were listed in the thousands. The quarters of the southern Methodist mission were entered by Japanese soldiers early this morning and the furniture was demolished. They excused themselves by saying they were searching for guns and anti-Japanese literature, but mission officials said they would file a claim for damages through the American consulate.

Chapel was a theater of war as the Japanese strove to consolidate positions already captured and extend their control over the entire area. Later in the morning huge flames flared up in Chabel.

Terror to Population

The hours brought terror to the civilian population as the great tongues of flames, started by Japanese bombs, licked at the ancient, ramshackle structures and filled the tortuous streets and alleys with smoke and firebrands. The people became the targets of the bullets of both sides in the confusion of battle.

A dozen Japanese airplanes wheeled and circled above the beleaguered area, dropping carriers of death that sent up enormous eruptions. Japanese marines stole through the streets in groups, picking off men spears with machine guns. The Chinese called on their knowledge of the city to harass the enemy at every step with small arms fire. Over all the conflagration snapped and crackled, threatening to wipe out the area.

Burn Station

During the holocaust the Shanghai-Nanking railway station, captured and lost by the Japanese, burned to the ground.

Chinese refugees streaming into the settlement reported that the casualties among the 200,000 people were enormous and that the dead and dying would reach into the thousands. Eye witnesses said sickening scenes were observed in first aid stations where the bodies of women, children and babies—riddled with bullets—were brought in.

Nor could anyone say that the end was in sight. In early hours of today small bands of Chinese were retreating foot by foot as the Japanese pressed on.

Commerce Stands Still

Commercial activity in the settlement and native cities came to a complete standstill. Banks and

Asiatic Fleet Flagship Stays to Join U.S. Ships in China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Mindful that the Japanese pledge against violating Shanghai's international settlement falls far short of removing the peril to foreigners in China as a whole, the American government stood poised tonight for any further action needed to protect its interests.

Teaming with it was Great Britain, whose ambassador—Sir Ronald Lindsay twice visited the state department during the day.

Promises Protection

After his first call and a discussion of the far eastern troubles at the cabinet meeting with President Hoover, Secretary Stimson announced the two countries had obtained a promise from Japan that its troops would not occupy the treaty-protected quarter of Shanghai "unless the municipal force became clearly inadequate to protect life and property."

Later the ambassador communicated to the secretary a confidential memorandum on the spreading troubles. This studied, and with the latest reports from American officials in the orient in hand, Stimson went into another conference with the president.

Skeptical of Attack

A skeptical reception was given at the state department to the threat by Chinese military authorities to attack the international settlement at Shanghai unless officials there sought to end the Japanese occupation.

Colonel Richard S. Hooker, commanding the marines at Shanghai, advised the navy that four bombs dropped in the international settlement today, killing one Chinese woman and causing slight property damage.

Flagship Cancels Repairs

With four more destroyers due at Shanghai probably Monday, it was revealed that the U. S. S. Houston—Admiral Taylor's flagship and the only cruiser in the Asiatic fleet—had been ordered to forego contemplated dry docking for repairs at Manila.

Considerable concern was evident in official circles at newspaper reports that the American Southern Methodist mission at Shanghai had been invaded by Japanese soldiers and the furnishings demolished.

Summarizes Consultation

Secretary Stimson in the first formal statement by the American government since the situation became acute summarized the Anglo-American consultations with the Japanese.

The British government deliberated three days before agreeing to move with the United States to insistence on maintaining its rights in the settlement.

The rights to which the United States and Great Britain have directed Japanese attention include:

The right of extraterritoriality; the right of favored nation treatment; the right established by treaty, of access to some 20 ports; the right to hire labor in China without interference from the Chinese government; the right to obtain proper accommodations, places of business, build hospitals, an establish emeries; the right to send warships in pursuit of pirates.

Archduke of Austria Faces Grief With 4-Point Future

ARCHDUKE LEOPOLD.

VIENNA, Austria.—To paraphrase a celebrated, defunct statesman, "Some are born great, some achieve greatness and some just grate upon one." Apparently into the last-named category comes Archduke Leopold of Austria, scion of the noble but crumbling House of Hapsburg.

Leopold is no stranger in the United States, having spent a very pleasant—well, maybe not so pleasant—sojourn in the Tombs Prison at New York when he was accused of the conjuring trick that resulted in the disappearance of a $400,000 necklace, the property of his aunt, the Archduchess Marie Theresa.

On that occasion he was released from bondage through the good offices of Mrs. Alicia Gibson Coburn, a wealthy American widow, who loaned the necessary bail and financed Leopold through his dual martyrdom. In return, the Archduke vowed eternal devotion and sailed from New York tentatively engaged to the wealthy widow.

His going was watched by many of his acquaintances in America with keen interest and a mental promise to observe carefully his future progress. And now it appears that they won't have much more time to conduct their observations; for Leopold's future is in extreme jeopardy. In fact, there isn't much of it left, if scheduled plans for his early demise are carried out.

It will be recalled that the Archduke celebrated his homecoming to the land over which his family once ruled by breaking off his engagement with the woman who had stood his only friend when he was in a mess of trouble in America. That act on his part made him—and to be harsh—unpopular in Vienna.

The jilting of Mrs. Coburn started such antagonism against the noble duke that even his own set gave him the well-known frigid shoulder, and many young bloods of Austrian aristocracy made it plain that they would welcome an excuse to show His Grace what they thought of his ungrateful conduct.

The opportunity came recently when the noble duke wandered into a Viennese night club dressed in hunting costume. Not that anybody cared very much how he dressed, but up on the breast of his coat blazed an array of medals and decorations for the honor of which men of the old empire had died upon a score of battlefields.

What was worse, some of them were wrongfully located upon the duke's person. For instance, one which should have been worn around his neck was fastened in the region of his belt buckle.

Smack, smack, smack and again smack! In less time than it takes to say "goodnight" to the recipient of no less than four challenges to combat upon the field of honor.

The challengers are three counts and a baron—Counts Arco-Zinneberg, Crassich and Rex and Baron Stuckhart. All were officers in the Austrian Imperial army, and resented such an insult to their traditions as that of which Leopold had been guilty. What is more to the point (no pun intended) they are all expert swordsmen, so the duke will have a keep time if he keeps the engagements to which he has been invited.

Duelling is still the favorite method of settling arguments in the upper stratum of Austrian society, so it is very doubtful if Leopold can wiggle out of his affairs of honor without being eternally disgraced in the eyes of the entire country.

However, the joke will be on his adversaries if Leopold insists upon wearing his decorations during his fencing bouts, as they constitute as fine a suit of armor as any knight of old would wish to have.

Judge Demands Large Bond for Defendants or Assurance of Cooperation During Trial

HONOLULU, Jan. 29 (AP)—Informed by the Associated Press that Secretary Adams at Washington had approved of Judge A. M. Cristy's demand that the defendants within the jurisdiction of the circuit court, Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., tonight said he would take immediate steps to have Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men released from jail on bond.

Pending communication with Secretary Adams in Washington regarding the judge's demands, the accused were temporarily turned over to the police.

Judge Cristy, tormented by the defense with having ordered coercion with the Honolulu grand jury to bring about indictment of the four on a second degree murder charge, said if proper assurances were forthcoming the bail might be fixed at $5,000 for Mrs. Fortescue and $2,500 each for the three men.

Under the arrangement the navy department would approve the appointment of a probation officer at Pearl Harbor to whom the four defendants, at liberty under the reduced bond, would report daily pending trial.

None of the prisoners entered pleas at the arraignment. Their pleas are to be heard Monday. Meanwhile two motions to quash the indictment were before the court for hearing this afternoon.

Broker Guilty of Intoxication

DES MOINES, Jan. 29 (AP)—Lewis F. Wheelock today was found guilty of driving while intoxicated when his auto collided with one occupied by the W. J. Telfer family of Prairie City, killing Mrs. Telfer and two children.

The jury returned its verdict after deliberating an hour and a half following a two hour recess for luncheon. Members of the panel said they had taken two ballots.

Wheelock, a Des Moines investment broker, faces a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a fine of $1,000. Judge Loy Ladd set the date of sentence as Feb. 27 and gave defense attorneys until that time to file exceptions to the court's instruction to the jury.

Telfer, who was driving when his wife and two children were killed, was seated behind the prosecution attorneys when the verdict was read. He displayed no emotion. Wheelock was not present, his father being the only member of the immediate family in the court room.

Divorce Santa

Though only 26 years old and a bachelor, Judge Antonio Del Rosal, of the Juarez, Mexico, civil court, has earned the reputation of being the "easiest divorce judge." Judge Rosal's generosity in the matter of handing out decrees has turned Juarez and the neighboring El Paso into divorce colonies that make Reno look like a rummage sale.

After more than 36 hours had passed since 3,000 Japanese marines landed from a battle fleet in the Whangpo river, the Japanese naval command clung tenaciously to their contention that the Chinese civil authorities must disband all anti-Japanese societies, terminate the boycott against Japanese goods and pay reparations for Japanese property destroyed.

Treasury Still Holds to Plan

Supports Tax Idea in Spite of House Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—The treasury still believes that new taxes now in the making should affect 1931 incomes, despite the opposite decision of the house ways and means committee.

Undersecretary Mills told Speaker Garner today the treasury had changed its attitude, adding that if the levies did not apply on incomes last year more revenue must be raised from miscellaneous sources to balance the budget in two years.

Speaks in Conference

At a conference in the speaker's office, Mills said the action of the committee in deciding not to make the bill retroactive would delay the collection of additional income taxes until March 15, 1933.

Garner said about $450,000,000 would be raised in excise taxes and that under the usual procedure these would become effective 30 days after the bill is enacted, or about April 15. This would go immediately toward reducing the prospective $2,200,000,000 deficit. He did not name articles affected.

Added Hardships

By not making the taxes retroactive, Garner said, the committee had prevented an added hardship on the people and business by saving them about $200,000,000.

Meanwhile, the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor sent a letter to Collier in which it opposed increased taxes on income in the lower brackets.

Navy to Sell Los Angeles

Hopes for Enlarging of Giant Ship Under Construction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Naval officials hope to sell the airplane carrier under construction, the ZRS-5 now under construction, and retain for the United States the distinction of having the largest and most efficient lighter-than-air craft in the world.

This was revealed today before the house naval committee, which is studying reported defects in the Akron, the recently completed sister ship of the ZRS-5.

At the Same Time

At the same time a naval subcommittee decided to make a personal inspection of the Akron to see if there are any hidden flaws that might cause her to break to pieces in mid-air.

Commander Garland Fulton of the navy's design division made known the plan to sell the seven-year-old Los Angeles while rebuffing criticisms of the Akron.

With the Increased Size

With the increased size, Moffett wrote, the ZRS-5 would be able to cruise nearly 13,600 land miles instead of about 10,000.

Jerome G. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation said later his company was "seriously considering" the proposition of taking the Los Angeles in payment for enlarging the ZRS-5.

Otis Spencer on Trial for Counterfeiting

WINONA, Minn., Jan. 29 (AP)—

The process of making counterfeit money by photograph and art work was sketched today in the United States district court here in the trial of Otis Spencer of Logan, Ia., by two former accomplices who have pleaded guilty to similar charges and are now testifying for the government.

They are Orlean Capretz of Pisgah, Ia., and Ira Gorham, Blencoe, Ia.

Counterfeit bills were passed at Sioux City, Ia., Capretz said, before the trio went to Austin, Minn., where they were apprehended. Five Austin residents testified today, telling of Gorham's activities in passing bills there.

Capretz and Gorham will be sentenced after Spencer's trial is completed.

District Court Issues February Bar Docket; 114 Cases Scheduled

Bar docket for the February term of district court was issued yesterday at the office of the clerk of the district court, Judge R. G. Popham of Marengo will be presiding judge for the term, which opens Monday morning.

Included in the 114 cases scheduled in the docket are 14 divorce actions, 45 foreclosures, five attachments, and six damage suits. The foreclosures suits total more for the coming term than for any preceding term over a number of years.

Old civil cases filed for preceding terms and not yet heard total 1,000. Several of these actions will be heard in the coming term of district court. The docket shows that there have been 43 trial notices filed for the new term.

Farmer Wins Trophy

WATERLOO (AP)—Henry C. Miller, Blackhawk township farmer, won the trophy awarded by the Waterloo Chamber of Commerce and the county Farm Bureau to the Black Hawk county farmer making the best record in soil improvement and corn yield again. His field showed a yield of 89.9 bushels to the acre against 59 bushels last year and 75 bushels in 1929.

Nine Die by Killer's Knife

Assassin Sets Fire to House; Hired Man Sought

ELMA, Man., Jan. 29 (AP)—In the darkness of night, an assassin crept into a farmer's home, stabbed to death nine members of the household and fled after firing the house.

The dead are Martin Sipar, 55, his wife, six of their nine children, and an unidentified boarder.

Three children survived the attack early today. One of these, 3 years old, however, was in a critical condition from knife wounds.

A hired man named Hildebrandt was hunted by police aided by neighbors.

Two little boys in the family escaped the assassin's knife. Aroused from sleep by screams, they fled to the home of their uncle, John Sipar, nearby.

The house was in flames when John Sipar arrived. But he carried out the 10 persons in it, seven of whom were dead. One of the two little children still living died this afternoon from burns suffered in the fire.

The man came to this country from Europe, and had worked for the Sipars about two months.

Wrigley's Will Leaves Son Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (AP)—An estate in Illinois of "at least $2,500,000" was left by William Wrigley, Jr., largely to his immediate family in a will filed for probate today. The Chicago National league baseball club went to his only son, Philip K. The fortune cemented together by chewing gum was probably the largest ever recorded here, attaches of the probate court said. However, it did not include the late manufacturer's palatial homes in Phoenix, Ariz., Pasadena, Cal., and Catalina Island, for which he once refused an offer of $19,000,000, his mining and hotel properties in the west, or his estate at Lake Geneva, Wis.

With his bequest of the Cubs went an unwritten desire to fulfill Wrigley's life-long wish for a world's championship team.

Charity, which received many thousands from Mr. Wrigley during his lifetime, was not mentioned in his will.

Judge Ponders Miners' Pleas

OTTUMWA, Jan. 29 (AP)—Judge R. W. Smith of the Wapello county court has decided to take under advisement two motions in the United Mine Workers' injunction suit against the Airline Coal company.

A motion by the operators asks dismissal of the suit which seeks to enforce a wage agreement and the other, by the union, asks a temporary injunction.

As arguments continued today before the court, J. F. Clarkson of Albia, attorney for the union, opposed the contention of operators that the union is a voluntary society and cannot enforce the wage agreement.

The court controversy was started after Wapello county mines posted a notice of a 20 per cent wage reduction.

Inspects Flying Tests

FINAL STAGE OF REGISTRATION
Second Semester 1931-1932
January 27, 1932

COLLEGES OF LIBERAL ARTS, EDUCATION, COMMERCE AND THE GRADUATE COLLEGE

1. REGISTRATION DAYS: Thursday p.m., Friday and Saturday, Jan. 29-30, inclusive; and Monday, Feb. 1, 1932.
2. PROCEDURE:
 - a. If your photograph has never yet been taken in connection with any of your earlier registrations in this university, go to old denistry building, room 303, to sit for your photograph.—no registration may proceed beyond this stage unless your photograph is taken.
 - b. Get fee-card, Registrar's office, University hall, SOUTHEAST ENTRANCE, down half flight.
 - c. Pay fees, secretary's office, room 2, north end of corridor.
 - d. Go to checker's counter, room 7 immediately opposite secretary's office; deposit registration-coupons, class-cards, receipted fee-cards, change-in-registration and department-permit cards (if any). Await return to you of coupon I. Leave this room by south exit; and leave the building by the southeast exit from first floor.

3. Be sure to have your registration fees ready within this four-day registration period.

N.B. Those who receive defer-registration cards should be sure to confer with the deans of men and women, respectively, before preparing their study-lists on upper faces of coupons 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. Such students have leave to arrange their study-lists and to pay fees without a "late" charge the first week of the second semester,—only within the dates shown on the defer-registration cards. Such students registering after the expiration of the period of time thus indicated on the defer-registration card will pay the late fee.

H. C. DORCAS, registrar

N.B. In order to equalize as much as possible the load upon the fee assessing and fee receiving stations and so to facilitate, for the students, to the utmost extent the accomplishment of this final stage in registration, students are requested to obtain their fee cards and pay their fees (so far as this is possible in harmony with their examination appointments) according to the following schedule. Those who, owing to examination appointments, are unable to complete their registrations within the half-day assigned for them are asked to do their best to accomplish their registrations within the next half day. Pledge for Hoover in New Jersey Doubtful TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 29 (AP)—The Republican state committee today appointed six of its members to advise it on Feb. 26 whether New Jersey's delegation should go to the national convention pledged to the renomination of President Hoover.

Indications were the special committee would recommend the state's delegation of 35 members not to be pledged to the president's renomination. E. Bertram Mott, state chairman, who appointed the special committee, has already publicly advocated an unpledged delegation.

HUMBOLDT (AP)—Fred Baessler, 78, Humboldt county resident for 50 years died suddenly.

DES MOINES, Jan. 29 (AP)—Webster K. Mason, 22, of Davenport, student at Iowa State college, was bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge J. E. Mershon today on charges of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and failure to give aid to the injured.

Mason was alleged to have driven the car which struck J. F. Swift, 47, crossing watchman, here Jan. 10. Swift, who suffered a fractured skull, is recovering at a local hospital. Two companions of Mason, also enrolled at Iowa State college and whose homes are in Burlington, were arrested but later released.

Britain Shows the Way

SOLID OLD England, her very name a symbol of political and social conservatism to the average American, has demonstrated again that the customs and forms of the ages mean nothing to her when a real emergency is at hand.

Britain's last national election, giving support to a prime minister of one party and seating a majority of another in parliament, was a clear demonstration of how that country cares less for politics and red tape, more for the common welfare.

Largely has Ramsay MacDonald been responsible for putting to shame America's boasted enterprise, alert action in a crisis. He has literally taken the situation by the horns, plunging ahead to attain his objectives quickly, speedily, and efficiently.

MacDonald's latest achievement was to force a tariff down the throats of a free trading cabinet and emerge triumphant with a firm grasp on the governmental reins.

It has been an iron clad rule, an unbreakable principle of English government, dating from the Georges, that when the prime minister could not agree with his cabinet, he must perforce resign. That system worked very well until last week when Scot Mac Donald was faced with the necessity of carrying out his tariff program in the face of opposition from four cabinet members.

Nothing loath, MacDonald simply went ahead and did what could not be done, he passed the measure to parliament, giving dissenting ministers the right to speak against the bill on the floor of the commons.

Therein lies the power of the English system of government, it keeps unbridled authority in check, but in times of real emergency it can be made elastic enough to ignore red tape and hampering conventions.

Mac Donald knows he has the support of parliament; his resignation would only result in confusion for the entire government. Thus he was able to make the machinery of government the servant, not the master of the people.

Government is man made. It should serve efficiently, should follow the dictates of the majority.

The United States congress, even now attempting to combat the same economic evils which are putting Great Britain to the test, might well remember that rules and regulations which delay just government may best be laid aside when quick action is necessary.

Machinery of government and politics must be the servants and not the tyrannical masters if society is to prosper.

President Herbert Hoover and congress might learn a few lessons from Premier MacDonald's courageous example.

Cold Weather Advantages

IT IS GRATIFYING to any native Iowan to see a little cold weather come at last. The kind of winter weather that has graced this part of the country for the last few months is like a sedative to the spirits and energies of the midwesterner, is a positive menace to his health.

And he is apt to lose all sense of time, all calculation of proper seasonal activity if he isn't permitted at least a modicum of winter sport, at least a few frozen noses and fingers. Nothing can be quite right in a winter like this when a large section of the country is pining for a little cold weather most of the time.

But the true value of a protracted cold spell would be the stimulus derived by seasonal industry. Clothing, coal, and other merchants who depend largely upon the universal need for protection against winter would be certain to see better times.

On the other hand, there would be few lines of business which can prosper any better during the winter months under mild climatic conditions.

War on Kidnapers

CONTRARY TO the desire of a wealthy South Bend, Ind., manufacturer who was released from kidnapers after a three day abduction, authorities are going to press investigations in an effort to bring the kidnaping ring under the arm of the law.

Howard Woolverton, victim, denies that the demanded ransom price of $50,000 was paid for his release, and he urges that the matter should be dropped. But Indiana officials are not going to let such a serious matter be erased from the books so hastily.

Owing to some of the complexities arising from Woolverton's account of his release, authorities are a bit suspicious about his smooth story.

Perhaps nobody except Woolverton and the kidnapers know whether the ransom price was paid or arranged for. But regardless of whether it was or not, the growing kidnaping menace in this country is becoming too serious a situation to be snubbed by officers of the law.

It is high time that the movements of these extortionists were checked. The crime has already become much too popular. Indiana officers cannot go too far in their investigation into the Woolverton affair.

It is only by a concentrated, nationwide drive on this latest type of American criminal that the common safety can be secured.

N. Y. U.'s Athletic Policy

(From the New York Herald-Tribune)

The decision of New York university to return to graduate coaching of its football teams is bound to have a profound effect on intercollegiate sports. For our part, we welcome the move as a refreshing change that has been long overdue.

Chancellor Brown and his administrators have taken a radical step, one requiring no small amount of moral courage. We understand that it was taken in full consciousness of all the questions involved, and, for that reason, we are enthusiastic in offering our congratulations and best wishes.

There could be no better time to repeat what we have said on many occasions, namely, success cannot be measured solely by the number of games won and lost, by the size of the gate receipts, by the number in the grandstands, by the amount of applause.

In sports, as in almost everything else in life, success is the measure of satisfaction one gets out of playing the game, whether it be football, golf, contract bridge or earning a living. He is a poor opponent who takes victory with no feeling of elation, who is wholly unmoved by defeat, who disregards competition. But the game is the thing.

We assume that the leaders of New York university have had these thoughts in mind in determining to follow a policy which will put sports on a new basis. It is a stimulating program to every one who has the best interests of the undergraduate at heart.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Followers of the Sino-Japanese situation may recall the strongly worded note that Secretary of State Stimson several weeks ago relayed to the Japanese, Chinese, and other signatories of the Kellogg-Briand treaty and the nine-power pact.

The effort of the United States to hold Japan to the treaty agreements went almost entirely unheeded by the Japs, who cabled back that they recalled the pacts and were only acting in self defense or something.

While copies of the note were forwarded to France, England, Italy, and others, none offered to lend support to a worldwide movement to keep Japan responsible under the existing agreements for the independent status of China.

To further support the theory that Japan doesn't give a hoot about the rest of the world is the evidence of U. S. correspondents in Mukden who discovered that Japanese soldiers who punched the face of U. S. Consul Culver Chamberlain were suffering no more severe punishment than confinement to barracks.

Even then, some two weeks ago, it was evident that Japan might attempt a blockade of Shanghai in retaliation to the increasingly effective anti-Japanese boycott. Yet no steps were taken to assure the Chinese that their integrity would be safeguarded, nor to the Japs that their violations would be heeded or punished.

And yet, exactly two weeks after the forecast, Japan blew all her regard for the rest of the powers to the Manchurian trade winds and established her troops well on Chinese soil, her bombs well under it.

If the Japanese, as seems apparent now, succeed in completely controlling Shanghai, greatest eastern port, fifth largest in the world, and the key to half the commerce of China, they will have control of a goodly portion of all eastern trade.

The most disconcerting news, at least to economists and Americans with interests in China, was contained in cables to Wall street last night that all Chinese banks in Shanghai had closed in protest to Japanese aggression and would remain that way until the latter either move or are chased out.

That the Japs will be forced to relinquish such an important post as they have established, aided by their warships, bombing planes, and troops, in Shanghai, will depend on their attitude toward the neutrality of the international settlement and its armed citizenry.

The official Chinese boycott seems to have started all the trouble in Shanghai, at least, and bides fair to ruin Japan quicker than any army. But Japan still has two other weapons besides those mentioned.

She can close the port of Shanghai to all Chinese merchant ships, and she can shut down the 12 mills of the Japanese Cotton Spinners' association in Shanghai and throw 70,000 Chinese out of work.

Meanwhile most of the Japanese and Chinese troops are marching to Shanghai and taking up positions there. Yesterday's early morning disturbances were ascribed to crack troops of General Chiang Kai-Shek, still a power in cherry blossom land.

Bombing from above and fire from within faced the entire native Chinese quarter of Shanghai yesterday. There are no cellars to dig into for escape from the air raids because diggers strike water three feet down.

Meanwhile, reports from Washington and London indicate that the only joint action of the U. S. and Britain, if any, will be solely directed toward safeguarding their citizens and subjects within the international settlement. Japan can shoot circles all around the area as long as none of her smoke rings penetrate the barb wired battlements. And there is no assurance that Japan will see that no "unfortunate accidents" happen.

Still Japan hurries on with her work, unheeding stepping on soviet boots, British and American toes. Few care to see Japan disappointed in her search for trouble, yet few seem to care about spilling the rod. It seems, however, that long-awaited developments have happened and gone, and all they have brought to the rest of the world is a great, big headache.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

First Semester 1931-1932 Saturday, January 23, 8:00 A.M. to Saturday Noon, January 30, 1932

The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D and E, as shown in the form below; and Speech 1, 01 and 3 as shown at "N.B." below).

The Program Committee directs the attention of both students, and instructors and professors, to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule, except as authorized by the Committee, on the student's written petition, filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned,—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

In the cases of conflicts (within the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D and E) the schedule itself, as presented below, provides a general method of making adjustments.

All classes whose first weekly meetings have occurred as indicated in the rectangles below, meet for examination during the periods noted at the tops of these three columns, and on the days noted in the rectangles directly opposite at the left of the double, vertical line.

Table with columns for Examination Period (8-10 A.M., 10-12 A.M., 2-4 P.M.), Date (Jan 23-30), and Special Group (A, B, C, D, E) with associated course numbers.

CONFLICTS: In case of conflicting examinations the student should report to the instructor in charge of the first of the two conflicting subjects as listed (Read by columns, and alphabetically) within the particular group, who will arrange a special examination. Report to him, or her, not later than regular class hour on January 18 and January 19.

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or, in the case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 21 meets for lectures T Th S at 8. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 8,—and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 25, 2-4, according to the tabular form above. Again, physics 125 meets twice each week, T F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Friday, January 29, 2-4.

N.B. All sections of freshman speech 1, 01, and 3 will meet in the buildings and rooms and on the days and at the periods designated below:

Table listing sections for Saturday, January 23, 8-10; Saturday, January 23, 2-4; Monday, January 25, 2-4; Tuesday, January 26, 2-4; Wednesday, January 27, 2-4; Thursday, January 28, 2-4; Friday, January 29, 10-12; Friday, January 29, 2-4.

"ODD" classes,—namely those whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays, or which meet "as arranged," will be assigned for examination, as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class, at one or another of the following periods:

- 1. From 4 to 6 on any day from January 23 to January 19, inclusive.
2. Any one of the examination periods assigned, as indicated above, for the examinations in the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D and E, since for such "odd" classes, these five examination periods will be found quite available.

In connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times,—if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to one clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester-examination program, "the instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

According to another faculty regulation, which is on record as adopted by the faculty, a student absent from the final examination should be reported "Abs"; unless the instructor recognizes that his work up to this examination has been a failure, in which case the final report should be "FL"—even though the student may have been absent from the final examination. No examination should be given, subsequently, to such a student until after the absence has been excused by the Committee on Admission and Classification, as shown by a partially filled special report card, signed by the Secretary of the Committee, as indicating that the absence has been excused and that the student is authorized, subject to the consent and at the convenience of the instructor concerned, to take the final examination.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.,—After weeks of seeking, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has found a partner for Jackie Cooper in "Limpy."

And for once they've had to go outside their own fold. The actor who gets the job, providing Hollywood red tape doesn't tangle the deal, is Chic Sale.

Chic, of course, is under contract to Warner Brothers, and their content has to be obtained. But as the part, that of a Civil war veteran, fits the actor perfectly, and as Chic's next Warner picture doesn't start until the middle of March, he is likely to go through.

For once the question of billing won't furnish a snag. When stars of Wallie Berry's caliber are willing to share credit with Jackie, Jack Warner can afford to make concessions.

"Limpy" is a story by William Johnston and will be directed by Harry Pollard. Eddie Mannix is supervising. If Chic plays the role, he'll return to Hollywood directly after his personal appearance engagement in the east. This should enable him to report for work by Feb. 6.

FENTON PLANNING TRIP

Three years ago, Leslie Fenton startled Hollywood by abandoning a flourishing career to go on a vagabond trip around the world. Now, with his career re-established, he again plans to take to the road. Before that, however, he will do a few pictures and get some money in the bank. One of these will be "The Lady," which, incidentally, is Leslie's fifth in a row at Warner's. The next time he leaves, Leslie wants to cross the Atlantic in a 48-foot sloop.

JOBS FOR THESE PLAYERS

The day brings news that Dorothy Revier will go into the cast of "Night Club" at Universal. This probably is the part Estelle Taylor would have had but for her unfortunate accident. Over at Warner's Darryl Zanuck has signed John Wray to play in Eddie Robson's new one, "Two Seconds." This part will portray the kaleidoscope of a condemned man's thoughts in the two seconds before he is hanged. Another bit of casting at Universal puts Earle Fox and Zasu Pitts in Tom Mix's picture, "Destry Rides Again."

New System Replaces Old in Laboratory

Croft Explains Scientific Performance of New Plan

Stereotyped methods of teaching in which routine exercises have been stressed will be cast aside in the metal techniques section of the University of Iowa's mechanical engineering laboratory.

Prof. Huber O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, Friday explained how the performance of scientific experiments by the students will realize their studies.

To Begin March 1
The metal techniques division will be the first to be moved into the new structure, he said. Installation of apparatus will be completed by March 1 and classes immediately will launch into experimentation.

Foundry classes, instead of making castings with emphasis upon craftsmanship, now will analyze the faults of others. From many sections of the state, faulty castings will be collected, and the students, using them as object lessons, will determine reasons for the defects.

They will delve into the science of die casting and plastic casting, the former a unique departure in a university laboratory and the latter an investigation of casting techniques of such substances as bakelite, Professor Croft revealed.

Heat Treating Studied
A similar abandonment of the routine characterizes the machine section. Here the men will scrutinize the scientific aspects of heat treating, from the standpoint of the machine designer not from that of the chemist. They also will experiment in the flow of metals under various conditions.

Work of the division will be benefited by the use of gas-fired equipment of the latest design, installed at the cost of about $2,000, said Professor Croft.

Law College Adds to Staff for Summer

State university law schools of Kansas, Missouri and Minnesota will contribute faculty members to the University of Iowa's summer session, Dean Eugene A. Gilmore has announced.

The visiting professors who will report June 13 are Francis W. Jacob of Kansas, James L. Parks of Missouri, and William L. Prosser of Minnesota.

Each man is regarded as an authority in his field. Professor Jacob will teach a course in quasi-contracts, Professor Parks in mortgages, and Professor Prosser in damages.

Dean Gilmore last week announced a full schedule of summer session courses, so integrated that students will be able to begin the study of the profession in continuous work of other periods. It is the most extensive program of any law school in the United States, he said.

Women Plan Fifth Course for Campers

Phys. Ed. Department Offers Summer Credit Work

Plans are being made for the fifth Camp Counselor's course to be given in the women's physical education department June 13 to 24.

Four units of work are offered, each unit giving one hour of credit toward a B.S. degree in physical education. A student can take only two units, as intensive work with outside reading and projects is required.

Camp Craft
Courses offered will be in camp craft, a survey of camping education, canoeing, and swimming. In the swimming course a well-rounded program is presented and actual practice teaching is done. Life saving is taken up, with opportunity to obtain or renew A.R.C. Examiners' certificates.

This gives an opportunity for examiners to comply with the Red Cross requirement that a swimming counselor in a summer camp take a theory course in teaching, as well as obtain the life saving certificate.

Last year students came from Massachusetts, New York, Kansas and Canada, as well as from Iowa and adjacent states, to take the course.

Evening Meetings
Classes will meet both morning and afternoon, and evening meetings will be held to discuss general topics of interest to all counselors. There will also be a week end camping trip.

According to Charles W. Elliot of Harvard university, the modern organized summer camp is "America's most significant contribution to education." More and more camp directors are realizing that the possibilities of individual all-round development, and of social adjustment in group living can be enlarged and greatly facilitated by trained counselors.

The university, in sponsoring this conference, is again assuming the leadership in a statewide educational project, and aims, through the training afforded teachers by the music department, bulletins and lists of materials distributed by the school, all-state summer session music organizations which demonstrate practical teaching methods, and further conferences and meetings such as this one, to bring about better music and appreciation of music in the state.

Requirements of a military band. Dr. O. E. Van Doren, director of the university band, will show where the freshmen's weaknesses lie.

At the after dinner program in the evening, university speakers will be Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the music department, and Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education, Mr. Mahan will preside at the dinner.

IOWA'S RADIO FACULTY

LAZELL SLOAN PLUM
CLAPP

Before classroom microphones, the four members of the University of Iowa's radio faculty Monday begin the second semester series of broadcasts. Prof. Harry G. Plum, veteran of 38 years' service at the university, lectures on "England and the British Empire" Mondays and Wednesdays at 11 a. m. Journalism's history and ethics is the contribution of Prof. Fred J. Lazell each Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p. m., and Prof. Sam B. Sloan's course on the English novel is on the air at 11 a. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. The fourth course is on modern music and includes lectures and demonstrations by Prof. Philip G. Clapp on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 2 p. m.

Iowa Anti-Saloon League Elects Des Moines Pastor

DES MOINES, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Rev. Levi P. Goodwin, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal church of Des Moines, was elected president of the Anti-saloon League of Iowa at the annual board meeting today. He succeeds Dr. John L. Hillman, president of Simpson college.

The board adopted resolutions calling "all devout men and women everywhere to a united conviction that alcohol, as a 'monstrous mildew,' must be perpetually removed from civilization," and urging all Iowa Christians to "energize the 'church in action,' through the Anti-saloon league, combating this economic and spiritual blight."

"We commend the composite editorial and reportorial columns of Iowa newspaper fraternity for their consistent support of the constitution of these United States," another resolution read.

B. E. Ewing, superintendent of the League in Iowa, said the new dry offensive in Iowa, consisting of the country-wide institute and enrollment drive has been staged in Ottumwa, Council Bluffs, Burlington and Sioux City.

Further hearings by the commission at that time will determine whether the schedule of programs will be allowed to continue as planned.

Official confirmation was received yesterday from Washington, D. C., by Bruce E. Mahan, chairman of the university radio board, to the effect that the university radio station, WSUI, will be allowed to continue its regularly scheduled programs at least until March 1.

An order of the United States radio commission recently limited the broadcasting of WSUI to one of four prescribed daily periods. The programs previously planned for next semester conformed to none of these periods, however, and a petition was filed with the radio commission to permit completion of the schedule until March 1, at which time the broadcasting license of WSUI will be subject to renewal.

Finish Survey of Legislature

J. A. Swisher Reviews Work of General Assembly

"The legislation of the forty-fourth general assembly of Iowa" has been reviewed by Jacob A. Swisher of the State Historical society in the January issue of the "Iowa Journal of History and Politics." A survey of the work of each general assembly is published by this quarterly every second year.

Tells of Changes
Mr. Swisher tells of the changes made in the laws by giving a brief background of the old laws and then an explanation of the new ones. During the session 1,045 measures were introduced—433 bills and 12 joint resolutions in the senate and 588 bills and 10 joint resolutions in the house. Of these, 340 measures, including eight joint resolutions, were passed by both houses and approved by the governor. Four measures, two originating in the house and two in the senate, were vetoed by Governor Dan W. Turner.

The actual time between the convening of the assembly and adjournment, from Jan. 13, 1931 to April 15, was 100 days. However, the legislature spent only 66 days in the actual formulating of legislation. On this basis members received approximately $13 a day for their services.

Different Types
Besides the routine legislation including taxation, the types of legislation dealt with were elections, state officers, courts, county and township government, municipal legislation, school, social problems, fish and game, conservation, agriculture and horticulture, public health, drainage, highways, motor vehicles, corporations, professions, banking, and criminal law.

The Gay Bandit of the Border

By TOM GILL

Copyright 1931, by International Magazine Co., Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Ted Radcliffe is called to Verdi, a small village on the Mexican border, by Bob Harkness, his late father's friend. Radcliffe Senior had lost a fortune in Mexico years before. At a party given by Major Blount of the U. S. Army, Ted meets Paco Morales, ruler of the Mexican border, and his beautiful niece, Avela. Morales tells how El Coyote, the mysterious bandit, killed a man about to reveal his hideaway. El Coyote steals from the rich, particularly Morales, and gives to the poor. Major Blount announces that the U. S. cavalry will join in the search for the bandit. A wounded Mexican, believed to be one of El Coyote's band, is captured. Ted is stunned to learn his father died penniless. Bob attributes the failure of Ted's father's Mexican irrigation project to Morales, whose reign would have ended with its success.

CHAPTER X

Ted made no answer. He looked again at the letter, and for a moment everything seemed swept from beneath his feet. His future plans, his hopes, had been dashed away. He was a pauper. The thought made him look up. "Two hours ago I thought I was a rich man. I could command wealth. I could do with my life just what I wanted. Now I'm a charity case of yours. Why, I haven't five hundred dollars to my name, and I can't stay here."

Bob shook his head. "You've got to stay here. Ted, if you go before we've had a chance to talk and plan, I'll think rather poorly of my old friend's son. We'll build again, you and I. For the next week we'll ride and talk and lay our campaign. I can do something, old man. You've got to let me."

Caught up by the earnestness in the man's voice, Ted laid both hands on Bob's shoulder. "Thank God you are here. It's all so unreal. And tonight I can't see much ahead."

A dying ember clattered noisily on the hearth. Bob walked toward the door and once more his voice had recovered its old matter-of-fact quality.

"There's rye and Scotch in that cabinet, Ted. You've been through a dark place in your life tonight and in a few hours it will be dawn. Let's think of it as a real dawn. Meanwhile, I've got something that has to be done before the sun rises so don't wait up."

Again Radcliffe's eyes watched the graying logs. He seemed to be talking to the fireplace. "Querer," he said, "I can't feel sorry for dad. I can't find pity for him. He was too fine for pity."

But the quiet voice only answered: "I think I know your father even better than you. And I know, too, something of the feeling that makes a gambler of a man, and makes him willing to stake everything, perhaps even the things he has no right to stake. And now, good night."

The footsteps of Don Bob died down the path. Within the house it had grown suddenly cold. A resinous branch of mesquite hissed noisily and still the man stood brooding before the hearth, with somber, unteasing eyes fixed on the flickering fire.

A chapter closed. The chapter of his first youth had closed. For the first time a sense of the great uncertainty of life came over him, a sense of the vast, unreasoning tyranny of fortune. At last, something like a sigh escaped him, and turning away he dropped his cigarette among the dying coals.

All life would be different now.

Doors were closing on him that had once been opened wide. He looked up. Well, one had to sleep. Even paupers. But at the door of the bedroom he looked back and raised his clenched hand toward the unheeding darkness outside.

"You got dad, damn you," he said slowly. "Now let's see if you can get me."

For Ted that night always remained a memory of racing, waking thoughts; a nightmare of fantastic dreams. His life, the life that had been forever taken away, passed before him in confusion: the days of poverty on the streets of Denver, the better days of college, the days of wealth. Like bright, brief pictures in the darkness the pages of his yesterdays passed.

He turned the hot pillow. At last, throwing back the covers, he went to the window and lighted a cigarette. So his father had trusted too much—trusted life, and people, and himself. Then life had let him down. Life—and Morales. Yet, strangely, the word evoked not the austere face of the Spaniard, but the ivory-pale features of the girl. Illusive and haunting, she seemed to smile—but with a smile not wholly gay. Adela Morales. That, too, was past. Past before it had begun.

He may have slept. Suddenly he found himself sitting bolt upright, looking on the first red shafts of light that crept over the desert. That ache of loneliness had gone, and the long fight of the night had left him with a new sense of mastery. The path ahead lay clear. He was to carry on—to face whatever the future might bring.

A breeze from the window fanned his cheeks, bringing the promise of spring and the faint fragrance of jasmine. He breathed deeply, knowing the black night had forever passed, and with it the blackness of his pain. All life lay before him, bidding him build again. He would look a hostile world in the face and carve a place for himself. And then—his lips tightened—he would come to grips with the forces that had meant his father's ruin. And in some unreasoned way he felt that this too was part of his father's plans.

A servant brought fruit and coffee, and a half-hour later Ted found Bob on the porch, listening in amused silence to a very wrathful major. The old soldier was embellishing his talk with the hand-picked profanity of ten army generations.

As Radcliffe approached Bob smiled up at him. "The major has news for us. Tell him, Blount."

"It's about that damned Mexican captive. He got away!"

"But the fellow was wounded," protested Radcliffe. "He couldn't have got away!"

"Of course he couldn't. Not alone. He had help. Someone was keeping watch. All right, someone must have kept watch—even while we were out there he may have had his eyes on us. Sweet piece of business, eh? The guard looked in at midnight and saw the greaser's boots sticking out beneath the blanket. He flashed on the light and the fellow lay there all quiet, with his eyes closed. Every two hours after that the guard looked in and the boots were still there. And this morning those damned boots were still there, but by the Lord, that Mexican wasn't. He had taken them off, stuck them neatly outside the blanket, and vanished. Somebody came for the smashed the lock, and carried him away." Again the old soldier called down eternal maledictions on his fortune. "He was our best bet, that peon—our only bet. And now he's gone. Vanished. And

My wife is already spreading the news over Verdi as gleefully as if she just had a set of twins."

A sudden recollection turned the major's reddened face a delicate purple. "On the way out I met Dr. Price and told him about it. Do you know what he said?"

Both men shook their heads. "He said, 'I thought someone would call for your captive.' Then why in hell didn't you say so last night?" I asked. "Oh, I never believe in interfering with military matters," he grinned back. That was the only answer I could get."

"It's uncanny," Blount burst out afresh. "That bandit has friends everywhere. We all know half the border people are in secret league with him. But here in Verdi—I never realized."

"My friend," Don Bob said solemnly, "you had better realize it if you ever expect to capture El Coyote. Your most secret plans are going to be known to him, your movements, your reports. He probably knows where you are at this moment. So, for you, major, I predict an interesting chase, but hardly predict success."

As if stung to instant action, the major rose and clattered down the steps to his horse. He climbed into the saddle and called back: "I'll lay you a dime that before I'm done I capture or kill this all-seeing bandit of yours."

"Taken," laughed Don Bob. For a time he watched the retreating figure of the old soldier. "You know," he turned toward Ted—"I sometimes envy that man. Never once in his long past has he been assailed by doubts, either of himself or of his destiny. How simple all that must make life."

Ted nodded. "I wonder if life ever can be simple. Just now I was wondering how one begins to add it up again—in your words—from the very beginning."

"It's not so hard. Your father did it twice. I've done it. When I was just about your age my whole world was knocked from beneath my feet. And I got over it, although," he smiled his quiet smile—"some scars do remain."

"I'm willing to face it—and the scars too. Only where do we begin? You know I'll never be willing just to live on you."

"Who wants you to? Perhaps I need you more than you need me. Yes, don't smile. Right now, Ted, I need a foreman, the kind of man I can make a partner of, that I can trust and bank on everlastingly. If you are your father's son, that man is you."

Radcliffe was looking out over the desert. For a moment his steady eyes softened. "I'm not going to try to thank you, Bob," he said at last. "But I wonder if I'd be a safe kind of foreman for anyone to take on just now. It came to me this morning that dad sent me out here as a test. I think he wants me to carry on the fight. I remember once he said, 'The greatest inheritance I could leave you would be a good scrap on your hands.' No, Bob, your new foreman sooner or later may clash with Morales."

"A fight with the power of Paco Morales should be big enough to suit anyone, but I think we could stand it. So let's call it settled. Work for me and it will give you your best chance to get around and dig things out. For above all things you've got to avoid suspicion. Remember, there's no sacred regard for life out here—especially across the border. You'll be a great deal safer as one of my cowpunchers, earning his day's wages."

Joe Kirkwood Bests Par for Lead in Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 29 (AP)—Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia golf professional, neglected his celebrated trick shots today long enough to shoot six birdies for a 34-70. The score was good enough to lead the $2,500 Texas open field at the end of the first 18 holes of the 72-hole trek.

Kirkwood started with a birdie three, finished the first nine with a birdie, shot two consecutive birdies on the first three holes of the back nine and walked in with a score one under par.

He was only one stroke ahead of the redoubtable Gene Sarazen, New York professional, who toured the Brackenridge park course in 34-71.

Harry Cooper of Chicago finished in a tie for third place with Ray Mangrum of Los Angeles and Clarence Clark of Bloomfield, N. J., with 72.

At the finish of the initial 18 holes, 59 out of the starting field shot 79 or better. Tomorrow the second 18 of the 72 holes will be played and the 64 low shooters, together with all ties, will play 36 holes Sunday for first prize money of $600 and 17 smaller money prizes.

Today's 18 hole scores included H. E. Frost, Omaha, 42-36-78, and George Holbrook, Clinton, Ia., 40-44-84.

Farm Heads Give Counsel

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 29 (AP)—The farmer was counseled today at the final session of the Illinois Agriculture association's annual meeting to vote wisely and cooperate well.

The speakers included Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Sam H. Thompson, farm board member. O'Neal referred to Charles G. Dawes, head of the two billion dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation, as a "true friend and leader of the farm relief movement."

The Farm Bureau head criticized official Washington for "thinking more about votes than anything else."

Clear and quick thinking was declared by Thompson to be the greatest need of agriculture. He called upon farmers to "get together in a solid front and march together."

In the closing hours of the meeting, the recent "harmony program" of the Grange, Farm Bureau and Farmers' Union was frequently recalled.

In introducing Thompson, Earl C. Smith, elected to the association's presidency for the seventh term, said: "We farmers admit the federal farm board has made mistakes, but you'll find the opposition to the board comes chiefly from the grain and livestock exchanges."

Sister to Play Part of Neutral Witness

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29 (AP)—Counsel for Miss Rose E. W. Allen, sister of H. B. Allen, charged with the killing of her friend, Francis A. Donaldson, III, said today that she would be a neutral witness in her brother's trial.

"I will not testify in favor of either side," she said through her attorney, Elmer A. Schroeder, "but will answer questions and tell the truth only."

Candidates Get Papers DES MOINES, (AP)—Three candidates for seats in the state legislature obtained nominating papers.

They were: J. F. Johnston of Chariton for state representative; George L. Bovard, Republican, for state senate; and W. A. Caldwell of Oskaloosa for state senate. Johnston and Caldwell did not give their party designations.

Business Men Discuss Bank for Iowa City

Present Plan for New Organization; Stock Shares $150

Members of the new bank committee of the Chamber of Commerce announced their plan of capital structure at a meeting yesterday noon at the Jefferson Hotel. This plan provides for a capitalization of $100,000 and a paid up surplus of $50,000. Shares of stock in the organization will sell for $150. Of this amount $100 will be taken as capital stock and the remaining $50 will be paid into surplus. The par value of the shares will be $100.

Immediate Action

In regard to the plans for a new bank the committee states: "Immediate action is necessary. The fulfillment of plans for a new bank rests no longer with the committee but with the entire community. The committee stands ready to further the plans if the necessary stock is subscribed."

Any persons interested in establishing of a new bank in Iowa City are asked to confer with any member of the committee. The committee indicated last night that they were desirous of providing this permanent bank for Iowa City within the next two months.

Petition Subscribers

Subscribers are asked to indicate at the time of the interview, the amount of capital stock which they will be willing to take. Lee Nagle, chairman of the committee, stated last night: "Subscriptions to date have been very satisfactory. The committee is definitely pledged to the establishment of a new bank and invite cooperation."

Mr. Nagle further said that the committee will be unable to solicit subscriptions personally because of the impossibility of interviewing all the persons interested, and the time which would have to be taken from ordinary business.

To Meet Specific Needs

The bank will be designed to meet the specific needs of the community. Members of the committee emphasized the fact that it should be organized at the earliest possible moment in order to alleviate the banking situation in Iowa City. They ask the support of all members of the community.

A conference with L. A. Andrew, superintendent of banking was held in Des Moines Tuesday and the plans were submitted for his approval. Banking authorities of the nation have been consulted in an effort to provide an ideal bank.

Type of Bank Undecided

No decision has been reached last night as to whether the new bank would be a state or national establishment. Mr. Nagle indicated that as soon as a cashier is appointed for the institution this decision can be better worked out.

When the institution is under consideration, the offices formerly occupied by the Johnson County Savings bank, the First National bank and the Iowa City Savings bank. The site will be announced as soon as negotiations with state and national banking officials are completed. No name for the new bank had been suggested last night.

To Present Decision

The decisions of the committee will be presented at a meeting of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce Monday noon. The meeting will be open to the public.

The committee is: Lee Nagle, Chester A. Phillips, Prof. Henry L. Rietz, Albert Sidwell, Henry G. Walker, Merritt C. Spindel, Willis W. Mercer and Arthur J. Cox.

Police Seek "3X" Link in Murder of Church Worker

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—With investigating authorities confessing themselves all at sea, the mystery surrounding the ghastly murder of Norman R. Bechtel, 31 year old Menonite Church worker, is no nearer a solution than when his mutilated body was found on a Germantown estate.

Revenge or mania are the only motives so far credited by police, but an examination of the slain man's diary, which he kept meticulously, reveals nothing to show that Bechtel had a secret enemy. That leaves only the mania theory, and recent developments seem to point to the return of the mysterious maniac known as "3X".

Many angles of the Bechtel murder are reminiscent of the crimes committed by the madman who terrorized Long Island in the summer of 1930. Not only that, but near the scene of the Germantown slaying police found a blood-stained rag, wrapped in a newspaper containing a copy of a letter recently sent by "3X" to Captain William E. Houghton of the local secret service. The rag had been used by the killer to wipe his hands.

Captain Houghton believes that the Long Island maniac is a grim reality, and not a myth as some people imagine. In fact, the captain said he was expecting a telephone call from the madman, who had promised in his letter that he would reveal some information about the recent communist bombings.

Bechtel's relatives also support the "3X" theory, declaring that Norman hadn't an enemy in the world and the murder must have been the work of a madman, especially since the victim's money was intact.

The mysterious "3X" killer first came into the limelight in June, 1930, when a New York newspaper received a letter, signed with the mystic symbol, as "a warning to Mozniski's friends."

That same morning, Joseph Mozniski, a College Point, L. I., grocer, was found shot through the head in a lonely spot in Queens, where he had a tryst with Catherine May, who saw him die.

The killer wrote several letters to the newspaper boasting of his crime and hundreds of police combed the Long Island woods in a futile hunt. Miss May, when she recovered from the hysterics into which terror had driven her, described the killer as being about 40 years old, a foreign type and about five feet six inches tall. The young woman said the killer was the coolest man she ever saw. His unblinking eyes, she said, terrified her. His face was lined and his cheeks sunken.

A few hours after the burial of the first "3X" victim, the body of Noel Sowley, of Bergen Beach, L. I., was found crumpled in a lonely lane in Creamore, Queens, with two bullets in his temple. In his pocket was a newspaper clipping describing the Mozniski killing and bearing the notation "Here's How!"

Sowley had also been keeping a tryst with his sweetheart, Miss Betty Ring, 20 year old daughter of a policeman, when he was slain. She could give no coherent account of the murder, nor could she or Miss May identify the killer from pictures in the rogues gallery.

The usual boasts letters to the newspaper, accompanied by threats of more killings to come. Rewards for information that would lead to the apprehension of the maniac were offered without result and the killer is still at large.

Police believe that the madman is afflicted with a religious mania that has as its object the elimination of sinners. The two authentic crimes he is known to have committed, out of a host of false alarms, have been in so-called "love lanes" where "neckers" have their rendezvous. And in each case the victim was keeping a love tryst.

It is fairly reasonable to suppose that "3X," with his twisted brain, might have mistaken Bechtel for one of those on whom he works his vengeance.

Grain Prices Up as Zero Weather Hits

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (AP)—Rapid onset of a sub-zero wave, with millions of acres of domestic winter wheat unprotected by snow, startled grain traders today, and prices jumped quickly.

Anxiety about hostilities in Shanghai did much also to hoist grain. Big buying on the part of houses with eastern connections was a feature of wheat trade at the last.

Wheat closed strong at the day's top level, 2-1/4 cents above yesterday's finish, corn 7-8 to 11-4 cents up, oats 2 to 3 advanced, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents down.

Until late in the day, a rising trend in wheat values which had shown itself from the outset was held more or less in check by weakness of the stock market. It was only after reports were received that temperatures were down to five below zero in northwestern Kansas, where wheat was without a snow blanket, that the wheat market went soaring in earnest. Then came advices that the frigid wave had over-spread most of the plains sections, was working eastward rapidly, and had penetrated as far south as Oklahoma.

Sellers who earlier had been aggressive on wheat price bulges, went into retirement during the final hour, and a pronounced scarcity of offerings made purchases more and more difficult.

Chances that livestock feeding would increase owing to low temperatures had a bullish effect on corn and oats. Furthermore, primary receipts of all grain continued much smaller than a year ago.

Provisions sympathized with downturns in hog values, but later were steadied by grain strength.

Closing indemics: wheat—May 69-59 1/2, 61-1/2 to 3; July 59 1/2 to 1-4, 62-62 1/2; Sept. 60 1/2, 63 1/2. Corn—May 40-2 to 7-8, 41 7-8 to 42; July 42-1/4, 43 1/4.

Discouraged Stock Market Closes Heavy

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—Although able to reduce its extreme losses, the stock market closed heavy today, doubtless discouraged by delays at the Chicago rail conference.

Far eastern affairs found their reflection in offerings of Japanese bonds, a sagging yen and finally, during the final hour, in a bidding up of copper and steel stocks, a move which could easily be attributed to speculative quarters which were anticipating a possible demand for such materials should the Chinese situation take a more serious turn. However, rails had a weak closing and the market generally was inclined to follow them. Net changes averaged into a decline of seven-tenths of a point. Transactions totaling 1,528,855 shares were considerably larger than yesterday's.

Losses In Steel

Fractional net losses prevailed in U. S. and Bethlehem steels, Allied Chemical, General Electric, National Biscuit, Case and Woolworth. American Telephone saw two thirds of a 3 point drop. Consolidated Gas lost one, while in the rails Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific were off about 1 to 2. Bethlehem preferred, American Sugar, Detroit Edison and Auburn softened several points.

Business trends during the first month of the year have failed to stimulate enthusiasm, but the financial community had been well prepared for negative results and so is probably not unduly disappointed. There have been some scattered gains, although these have mostly kept below seasonal standards.

No Definite Upturn

Bradstreet's, reviewing the current week, said business was not showing "any definite signs of an upturn," although the deep pessimism often noted in recent months was less apparent. Dun's pointed out that employment was improving slowly, that wage readjustments in several industries were being effected and that over-production of goods was "much less menacing" than during 1931.

OH! BOY! ARE THEY THE CATS?

Here are three aristocrats of the feline kingdom who add a new significance to the saying that a cat may look at royalty—they have only to look in the mirror. At the left, frowning portentously, is Rosedere Revelation Junior, the king of cats, who, despite his stern mien, is rather a lovable animal. His queen, Lady of the Moon of Rosedere, is at the right. They were adjudged monarchs of the mouse-bound world at the Atlantic Cat club show in New York. They are owned by Miss E. G. Hydon, of Bogota, N. J. Lower is Dresden Cotton Tom, owned by Elsie Bailey, who took the crown as the best kitten in the show. Our artist depicts the blue-blooded felices receiving homage from a humble alley "sister-under-the-skin."

Jiras Wins Judgment in Money Suit

Frank Jiras, Sr., was granted judgment of $12,455.20 from A. W. Kadera and Carrie Kadera on 10 promissory notes yesterday morning in district court by Judge Harold D. Evans. Interest on the sum at the rate of five per cent per annum from Dec. 2, 1923, was also granted Jiras.

Judge Evans heard the case Dec. 23, 1931, and took it under advisement. Jury was waived by agreement in open court.

The defendants, in answering the original petition, contended that the notes were issued on a Sunday. The judge ruled that the defendants, by their acts and conduct, had recognized the notes and ratified them.

The 10 notes had been delivered to Louis Karsten, an Oxford banker, by Mr. Jiras for safe keeping and collection of interest. Mr. Kadera later told Mr. Karsten that he could not pay the interest on the notes but would as soon as he was able, and that he suggested that Mr. Karsten purchase the notes. At the same time, the ruling showed, the defendants had made no mention of the notes' Sunday execution.

J. M. Otto and F. E. Messer were attorneys for the plaintiffs, and Dutcher, Walker, and Ries represented the defendants.

Stockholders Elect Ohio Man to Head Des Moines Bank

DES MOINES, Jan. 29 (AP)—Charles G. Grimes of Dayton, Ohio, was elected president of the Des Moines Joint Stock Land bank at the annual meeting today.

J. D. Deihl of Des Moines, former secretary and treasurer, was named vice president and secretary; M. L. Pawley of Des Moines was elected treasurer.

Among those elected to the board of directors were John J. Quall and R. G. Cundy of Davenport.

Woman Kills Step-Mother of Ten Days

OMAHA, Jan. 29 (AP)—Antagonism existing between Mrs. Mildred Helm, 36, and Mrs. E. L. Hoag, 47, who had been her step mother only 10 days, late today flared into an open quarrel which resulted in the elder woman's death.

Mrs. Helm, who refused to attend the wedding of her father and Mrs. Hoag Jan. 29, told police she killed her step mother during a quarrel over housekeeping.

Mrs. Anne Howard, sister of Mrs. Hoag, found the body with Mrs. Helm lying nearby, and called police.

Mrs. Helm is separated from her husband who lives in Des Moines with their daughter, Alice, 14. Hoag is superintendent of a postal sub-station here.

The younger woman attempted to end her life by inhaling monoxide poison.

Empress of Ice

As eye-pleasing as ever, beautiful Sonja Henie, Norse "Pavlova of the Ice" and world's champion figure skater, is shown on her arrival in New York, en route to Lake Placid, N. Y., where she will take part in the winter Olympics. The 20 year old blond girl, no stranger to New York, is expected to retain her five world's titles, won in various events on the ice.

Court Drops $35,000 Auto Damage Suit

Damage action of $35,000 of Zoe Edna Boyer, administratrix of the estate of Floyd O. Boyer vs. the Saunders System of Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, the Saunders Drive-It-Yourself company of Kansas City, Mo., C. C. Cretsenberg, and the Northwestern Bell Telephone company was dismissed in district court yesterday morning.

The plaintiff was suing as the result of an accident which occurred near Butler bridge on U. S. highway 6, in which Mr. Boyer was fatally injured. Mr. Cretsenberg, an employee of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company, was driver of a car that collided with a car in which Mr. Boyer was riding.

Nagle to Address C. of C. on Work of Bank Committee

Banking conditions will be explained to Chamber of Commerce members at a luncheon meeting Monday noon by the committee of local businessmen charged with providing Iowa City with new banking facilities.

Lee Nagle, chairman, will outline the work that has already been done and suggest the problems that remain to be solved.

As pointed out in a Chamber of Commerce bulletin issued yesterday, the organization of a new bank involves many questions, such as: the size and type of bank; the amount of capital stock and surplus; building arrangements; and the number of stockholders.

Evans Denies Plea of Kresge Concern for Second Trial

Motion of the S. S. Kresge company for a new trial was overruled yesterday morning in district court by Judge Harold D. Evans. The Kresge company were defendants in the action of O. E. and Bertilla Carroll vs. the S. S. Kresge company.

The defendants had asked for a new trial and exception to instructions and the arguments that had been submitted by both parties in the case. The judge had taken the motion under advisement before giving the ruling.

Plaintiffs, suing for damages done to their apartment during the reconstruction of the Kresge building at 121 E. Washington street, received $200 in a jury verdict, returned last term.

Building of Offices for Police Officials Almost Completed

Construction of the building which is to house the offices of Police Judge Charles L. Zager and Police Chief Frank L. Smith is nearing completion.

The building is located between the fire station and the police station and was utilized as a parking space for police cars. A back wall was all that was needed to inclose this space and a partition has been built to separate the offices. The rooms are to be heated from the central heating plant of the city hall.
