

Counter Inflation With Increase In Taxes, Says Federal Reserve Chief

Sen. Robinson Asserts 'Let's Go Slow' When Told of Plans

Creates a Stir Among Congressmen Who Had Foreseen No Growth in Taxes

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, proposed tonight that taxes on incomes and profits be increased if necessary to balance the budget promptly and prevent monetary inflation.

He made the proposal in a public statement pledging continuation of the board's "easy money" policy.

It created a stir among members of congress who previously had asserted there was a possibility of major tax legislation at this session.

"Go Slow"
"Let's go slow about increasing taxes," commented Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, when informed of Eccles' stand.

Representative Yanson (D-Ky.), a member of the house ways and means committee, which originates tax legislation, bluntly observed: "I think we have plenty of taxes now."

The Eccles statement recalled that treasury and congressional leaders predicted after a White House conference last August that taxes would not be increased.

Could Be Disastrous
Eccles said that an upward spiral carrying wages and prices to inflationary levels could be as disastrous as the downward spiral of deflation. But "light" money and higher interest rates are not the remedy, he said.

"Under present conditions of an accelerating recovery," he asserted, "a continued easy money policy to be successful in achieving and maintaining a balanced recovery must be accompanied by a prompt balancing of the federal budget and the subsequent retirement of public debt by the government in relation to the expansion of private credit."

"I have not been and I am not now in favor of balancing the budget at the expense of the destitute and the unemployed who are unable to find private employment, but I am in favor of increasing taxes on incomes and profits if necessary to sustain the volume of relief and at the same time bring the budget into balance and permit the paying down of public debt as private debt expands. Only by this process can monetary inflation be prevented."

Eccles said he issued the statement to correct erroneous interpretations of his position on credit and monetary policies.

Other officials recalled that federal reserve spokesmen had attributed a slump in government bonds, which began last Friday, to rumors circulated by market "speculators" that the board planned to tighten money.

"Tighter money conditions would have the general effect of depressing both commodity and security prices because, in effect, money would be scarcer and thus worth more in terms of commodities or securities."

Price Rises
Eccles declared that sharp price rises in certain basic commodities are the result primarily of non-monetary factors including foreign armament demands, strikes and "monopolistic practices by certain groups both in industry and organized labor."

2 Runaway Boys Picked Up Here
Two runaway boys, Robert Nelson, 17, and Richard Matheson, 16, both of Moline, Ill., were picked up in an Iowa City beer parlor last night by the local police. The boys had left their homes early yesterday.

Ernest Nelson, father of one of the boys, returned the two boys to their homes late last night.

Court Refuses To Review 8 Labor Cases

Causes New Discussion Of Attitude Toward Wagner Bill

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The supreme court, by refusing today to review eight new cases involving the Wagner labor relations act, caused a new flurry of discussion about the tribunal's views on the legislation.

The tribunal's refusal temporarily left in effect lower court rulings for the government in each of the eight cases. Supreme court attaches pointed out, however, that the action could not be interpreted as reflecting the attitude of the justices toward the Wagner measure.

It was said the court's opinion on five pending cases, which may be decided two weeks hence, may decide all the points at issue in the new disputes. It would thus be unnecessary to review.

After a brief session to read one opinion and announce orders, the court adjourned until March 23, during the next fortnight the justices will be free to devote their time to completing opinions on the Wagner act cases, on litigation involving the Washington law establishing minimum wages for women and on other controversies.

In the opinion today the court decided an employe of a municipal water works system does not have to pay a federal income tax on his salary. The litigation was brought by William Whitlock Brush, former chief engineer of the New York city bureau of water supply, but the United States conference of mayors estimated that the decision may affect 200,000 city employes throughout the country.

Plan Funeral For G. Robert Fisher Here Tomorrow
Funeral service for G. Robert Fisher, 63 of Iowa City, who ended his own life Saturday night, will be tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Hohenschulch funeral home.

Burial will be in Oakland cemetery. Fisher was born Oct. 26, 1916 in Cedar Rapids. He had lived in Iowa City since 1918. He attended the public schools here, and was a graduate of the 1934 class of Iowa city high school.

He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and a DeMolay. Survivors include his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Lewis, 14 E. Court street, with whom he made his home; a sister, Mrs. Donald P. Steinbaugh of Nashville, Tenn.; an aunt, Elizabeth Fisher, and an uncle, John W. Fisher, both of Washington, D. C.

5,000 Strikers Ordered From Auto Plants Of Chrysler Corp.

Sit-Downers Plan Vote On Whether To Leave By Deadline Set For 9 a.m. Tomorrow

By the Associated Press
"Sit down" strikers occupying Chrysler corporation automobile plants suffered a setback in the courts yesterday in an order directing 5,000 men to leave the property.

The squatters, encamped in eight Detroit plants planned to vote on whether they would leave by 9 a.m. tomorrow—the time limit set by Circuit Judge Allan Campbell. The jurist, contending "respect for law and order and the courts is menaced," issued an injunction providing a penalty of $10,000,000 for non-compliance and naming, among others, John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Another Court Order
Another labor dispute apparently headed for the tribunals. President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said the national labor relations board had assured him it would seek a court order to enforce the board's ruling that Remington-Rand, Inc. must reemploy 4,000 workers declared to have lost their jobs in a strike.

The company's legal department, indicating it would contest the issue, held the board's decision "cannot be sustained in the federal courts."

Simultaneously, the justice department announced agents had been assigned to the investigation of an A.F. of L. union's charge that Remington-Rand had transported strike breakers illegally from New York to its plant at Middletown, Conn. Green asserted the federation would "utilize all its resources" to compel the office equipment manufacturers to comply with the decree.

While 136,000 persons were out of employment in some 30 strikes, C.I.O. spokesmen sat at the conference tables of three huge corporations.

Representatives of the United Electrical and Radio Workers union, aiming at the organization of 1,000,000 in the electrical and manufacturing and communications lines, discussed collective bargaining with the General Electric company, employer of 60,000 and largest in its field.

Thumbs Up! University Campuses Join Drive Against Hitch-Hiking Bill
In protest of "anti-hitch-hiking" legislation, 500 or 600 students' names appeared on petitions at the University of Iowa overnight, in an effort to prohibit the legislature's passing such a bill.

The drive is in charge of Mark K. Baker, 21 of Burlington, who with the aid of four other students, is cooperating with a movement that originated at Iowa Wesleyan college in Mt. Pleasant, to prevent the prohibitory legislation against hitch-hiking.

Tom Bell, president of the Wesleyan student body and in charge of the movement there, has more than 800 signed petitions, which he will present with those circulating at the university to the Iowa legislature which has a regulatory motor vehicle bill before it.

Bell gave his reason for starting the measure when he said "hitch-hiking is a vested interest which all college students must preserve."

Lee Travis Appointed to Head S.U.I. Psychology Department

Frank Strong Resigns Post in University Law College

Appointment of Prof. Lee E. Travis as head of the psychology department, and the resignation of Frank R. Strong, assistant professor in the college of law, were announced last night by President Eugene A. Gilmore.

Both appointment and resignation, approved by the state board of education, are effective July 1. Professor Travis, director of the psychological and speech clinic, will succeed the acting head of the department, Dean Emeritus Carl E. Seashore, who will continue as research professor in psychology.

Seashore Acting Head
Dean Emeritus Seashore, for 28 years dean of the graduate college, resigned in December, 1935, and was named acting head of the psychology department and dean emeritus of the graduate college last September. He has been a member of the University of Iowa staff since 1897.

Born in Imperial, Neb. June 23, 1895, Professor Travis attended Graceland junior college at Lamoni from 1915-1917. He received three degrees at the University of Iowa, B. A. in 1922, M. A. in 1923, and Ph. D. in 1924.

Research Fellow
From 1924-1927, the new psychology head was a National Research Council fellow, and in 1927 he was appointed assistant professor of clinical psychology at the University of Iowa. Since 1928 he has served as professor of psychology and director of the psychological and speech clinic.

This fall Professor Travis announced his discovery of "brain fingerprinting," a method of identifying a person by his brain waves.

Author
Besides writing many articles for magazines and scientific journals, Professor Travis is the author of "Speech Pathology," was a contributor to the Handbook of Child Psychology in 1933, and editor of the 34th yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education.

He is a member of the American Psychological association, American Psychological society, Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine, National Association of Teachers of Speech, National Society for the Study of Education, Acoustical Society of America, American Speech Correction association, Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi fraternity.

Secret Police In Spain Drive To Eradicate Defeatist Idea

General Who Exchanged Trousers With Aide Gets Jail Sentence For 'Indiscretion'

PARIS. (By Mail from Spain) March 15 (AP)—Speak softly or the secret police may hear! That is the byword in Spain these days.

An incautious word, a light joke, a greeting is enough to cause arrest. For the Spanish government has ordered a determined drive to weed out defeatist thought, to "uncover espionage."

An associate of the war department recounted the tale of a general who stumbled into a puddle of water and thereupon exchanged trousers with an aide. The secret police charged "indiscretion." The narrator has been in jail more than three months.

Just a Greeting
An army officer greeted a member of a foreign legation. He was suspected of courting a friendship to assure himself diplomatic asylum.

A French jewelry salesman, resident of Spain for 20 years, was deported because he once sold former King Alfonso a ring.

A young woman was accompanied on three successive evenings by government airmen. She was arrested. A foreign correspondent was arrested seven times for alleged violation of a rule against obtaining military information.

Tread Cautiously
Both foreigners and Spaniards tread cautiously lest they be accused of treason. Espionage is a capital offense; expressed or implied doubt over the outcome of the war is counter-revolutionary and may mean prison, at least.

The secret police has been augmented to speed the drive against those suspected.

They appear everywhere, particularly in cafes and hotel lounges, where military men, diplomats and foreign correspondents are likely to congregate.

If one is a resident, the check has been on daily habits, associations; sometimes close-guarded secrets. A newcomer must make known quickly good reasons for being in Spain.

Mercy Hospital To Release R. Neice, Wife Here Today

Ralph Neice, 28, and his wife, Mildred, 26, victims of near asphyxiation in their home, 504 E. Burlington street, yesterday morning, will be released from Mercy hospital today, Dr. I. A. Rankin said last night.

Alton Smith, roomer at the Neice residence, will also be discharged from the hospital today. Smith injured his neck when he fell from the front porch after being partially overcome by gas.

Firemen worked for almost an hour with an inhalator to revive Mr. and Mrs. Neice, after they were discovered unconscious in a gas-filled bedroom about 7:30 a. m. yesterday by Mrs. Lucile Latino, 22, Mrs. Neice's sister.

Mrs. Viola Rouser, 28, another sister, who lives with Mrs. Latino in a room above that occupied by the Neices, was also overcome by gas but was soon revived. She was not taken to the hospital.

G. Thompson Withdraws His City Candidacy

No Candidate Selected To Take Place Of Ward Alderman

George Thompson, 806 E. College street, last night withdrew from the Municipal Ownership league ticket as its candidate for alderman of the fourth ward. No reason for Thompson's withdrawal was given.

The MOL leaders last night had found no candidate to take Thompson's place on the ticket. Today is the deadline for withdrawals and replacements as the ballots will be printed tomorrow.

Thompson, who was making his first venture into Iowa City politics, has been a member of the Iowa State Bank and Trust company since it was organized in October, 1934.

Otherwise the Municipal Ownership ticket remained intact last night, led by Alderman Henry F. Willenbrock, candidate for mayor, T. A. Foote, candidate for reelection as alderman of the first ward; Earl Kurtz, candidate for reelection as second ward alderman; J. A. Swisher, candidate for fifth ward alderman, and J. Van der Zee, MOL leader, and Dr. W. F. Bolter, both candidates for reelection as aldermen-at-large.

Othe than Thompson's withdrawal all was quiet on the Iowa City political front last night. Mrs. Robert Bitner, 532 Center street, and Gill Braverman, 1116 Muscatine avenue, candidates for aldermen-at-large on the democratic ticket, last night declared they are definitely "in the race."

All of the mayoralty candidates are still in the field and are expected to remain.

At an early hour this morning MOL officials said they had "not picked out a candidate to take Thompson's place yet." They said, however, they will "have a candidate in by this afternoon"—the deadline for withdrawals and filling.

United Air Lines Starts Daily Mail Service Thursday

Iowa City will have daily air mail service beginning Thursday, Postmaster Walter J. Barrow announced last night. United Air Lines previously has made no mail deliveries at the local airport on Sundays and holidays.

The air-mail schedule has been changed so that eastbound planes will leave Iowa City at 1:36 p. m. Instead of 12:05 p. m. The west-bound plane will leave at 5:05 a. m., as usual.

Due to the landing conditions at the Moline airport no mail planes are landing there at present, and Moline air mail deliveries are suspended pending improvement of the field.

Thousands At Mass Meeting Hear Attack Upon Dictator

Stalin Also Is Included In Lashing Verbal Assault By Former NRA Director

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, in a speech prepared for delivery before thousands in a Madison Square Garden demonstration against nazism, said tonight "Adolf Hitler and his immediate staff of naziphatics have become a sort of monster, threatening the peace of the world."

But, said the former NRA administrator, they menaced peace "only a little more than Stalin and his crew of primitives."

"There is," he added, "little that seems normal or human about either."

"There is no great difference," he went on, "between the totalitarian state of Hitler and the empire of the kaiser, except the cut of the mustache of supreme authority."

"This country," he said, "does not presume to tell other peoples how they should be governed, but we have a right to stand here on our shores and tell other peoples how we will not be governed."

Johnson attacked communism as kindred as fascism, saying: "Since the day the kaiser tore up the scrap of paper which was his solemn obligation to defend Belgium and not attack her, there is not one of these fascist or communist powers that has not repudiated its most solemn agreements under the plea of necessity."

Garden Filled
Vast Madison Square Garden was filled to its lofty balconies. The great crowd boomed mention of Hitler's name time and again as preliminary speakers poured out their denunciations of him.

Aloft in the Garden hung great blue banners proclaiming "Boycott Nazi Goods."

John L. Lewis, the labor leader, another speaker, said in his prepared address that Germany had "reverted to the middle ages," and its workers had been "degraded almost to serfdom."

Johnson asserted "a paid Nazi propaganda is in progress here. The whole mess of dirty intrigue and attempted seduction of American citizenship doesn't yet amount to anything. I mention it merely to show the intent, method and spirit of these hateful new forms of government—fascism and communism."

"It is a new thing in the world—this deliberate assault on the institutions of one country, by official attempts to bore within from another country."

Destruction, Fights Mark Mecca Week
Broken doors, shattered windows and splintered chairs in the engineering building marked last night's episode in the Mecca "celebration."

Eggs littered the halls, and blood was smeared on one wall as an aftermath of the glass-shattering fight. Pictures in the halls were torn loose from their frames and their glass was smashed. A 10 foot pipe used as a battering ram lay on the floor.

This damage resulted from an attempt to steal the engineers' green flag from the roof of the building. Although the flag was hidden by its defenders, law students captured the "Mecca" sign on the roof and demolished it.

In an attempt to take the flag earlier in the day, two law students were captured and paraded through the business district, wearing white formal and gunnysacks. After one law student had climbed to the roof of the engineering building and dropped the flag to his colleague below, the two were seized.

A Question Of Proportions

LOU GEHRIG and Dizzy Dean are staging, in their quiet ways, a bodacious beef because their respective employers won't pitch in and raise their salaries to $50,000 each. Now Gehrig is probably the best first baseman in baseball, and the dizzy one is a topnotcher on the pitching mound.

A few casual observers wonder if either is worth $50,000, much less $50,000. They base their skepticism on a sense of proportion. If two brawny athletes are worth $50,000 what, in the name of justice, is the worth of some other toilers in this world?

At this moment a bill is before the Iowa legislature that would provide salary increases for faculty members in this university. It goes without saying that professors, most of them, aren't half so well paid as the rookie underling who irons out bench ruffles in the baseball world. Imagine a professor in the English department staging a picket, or a right-handed history teacher claiming $50,000 for his slant! The net result of such tactics would be a one-way ticket to the minors.

A new library is also desired by the university. It would cost several times as much as Dizzy Dean wants for his services—and about one-half the amount he thinks he is worth. We shall not speak of the comparative values of a right-hand slant and a library.

It's not that we would mind seeing Dizzy or Lou get $50,000 salaries. It's just that we don't see the sense of paying a first-rate professor only one-tenth as much. With all due respects to the intelligence behind a zipping throw from the pitching mound and a home run over the right-field wall, we sense more value in the teachings of a professor. Just a little upset about proportions, that's all.

Inflation Is Feared

AN OLD enemy with the foreboding name of inflation will soon be with us, say experts in the field of finance. The surge in prices for raw material which was so pronounced last week is a definite indication that inflation is not far away.

Thus the buying by European powers speeding armament programs becomes the villain in the play, instead of the hero. European buying merely reflected a condition we have failed to observe in this country; reserves have been depleted in recent years and a shortage actually looms.

Disguised as providential recovery, this inflationary movement is edging in to re-enact its horrible drama that dumped the world into its present depression. Economists explain that within recent months we have changed from a buyers' market to open competition for reserve supplies. Before recent trends, manufacturers bought on a hand-to-mouth basis. Deliveries were made promptly. At present orders are being placed as far ahead as producers will permit.

This sets the stage for the operation of a logical process enacted many times in the past. Producers will see the folly of accepting orders far in advance that might impair their taking advantage of current high prices. Hence, the manufacturer will carry the inventory, rather than the producer.

What is likely to be the effect on wholesalers and retailers? In all probability, they will see the advantages of carrying large inventories. The consumer will ultimately seek to store supplies, anticipating even higher prices.

The effect of this hoarding will be to deplete the surplus of raw and manufactured materials. Gambling on the price of goods weeks in advance will lay the groundwork for another big smash. The gamblers will be caught with unsalable goods on their shelves. Presto, depression.

On Dangerous Intersections

ACTION TO mitigate existing dangers often comes only after the trying process of horrible experiences.

We have in mind, in this instance, the serious auto accident Sunday at the corner of Iowa avenue and Dodge street, long considered a dangerous intersection.

Owing to the fact that running north as it meets Iowa avenue, Dodge street is on a decline, drivers generally approach the crossing at a comparatively high rate of speed. Although the traffic is not as heavy at Governor street and Iowa avenue, the situation there is very similar. On Iowa avenue, the center parking results in a psychological quirk, inducing motorists to disregard caution when traveling on that street.

Stop signs at these dangerous intersections might well be a solution in lessening the chances of future accidents at these points.

A Test In The Coal Bill

IN MOVING to re-enact the Guffey law for federal control of the soft coal industry, congress wisely is paying some attention to the supreme court decision invalidating the original measure. It is not attempting to do once more what the court had declared could not be done under the constitution, that is, to set up federal regulation of wages, hours and the like in this particular industry. The principle governing that matter had been established not only in the Guffey act decision but in the unanimous decision on the NRA.

Nevertheless, congress is refusing to relinquish the idea of regulation for the soft coal business. The bill just passed by the house would establish price fixing for the industry once more, along with an elaborate marketing and trade practice system. The price fixing provision of the original act was not invalidated by the court, but the wisdom of it remains a question and a similar principle applies to the entire project. For example, it is not necessary for congress in the piece of legislation to make a declaration in favor of collective bargaining. That is provided for in the labor relations act, and if the legality of it as expressed there should not be sustained it probably would not be in the one instance of coal.

The senate still has the opportunity to deal with the revived Guffey bill both in the light of experience and court opinions. Its action might afford an index to the disposition of the present congress to legislate finally on a whole series of troublesome industrial and social problems.—Kansas City Star

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Federal works-relief is frazzling out rapidly, as anyone can see.

It frazzles faster than private industry is re-absorbing the unemployed.

Hence the increasing volume of the outcry that it must not be permitted to play out completely.

A distinction is to be drawn between genuine work-relief and plain relief—in other words, as to the latter, a slight disguised dole; charity.

A work relief plan contemplates the employment of employables in really worth-while tasks. Building a new postoffice where one is needed would so classify. Protection against floods would classify similarly on a larger scale.

Such employment is constructive, it is improving to communities, or to the country.

Work for relief's sake only is a different proposition. Digging a hole in the ground and then shoveling the dirt back in is work, but obviously it is valueless, uneconomic. It is "made-work," as the socialists express it. "Boondoggling" is the term we describe it by now. No "boondogglers" can be expected to feel any proper self-respect in his job. He cannot but realize that he is an object of charity.

Quick Action Work

"Boondoggling" has one thing to be said in its favor: In an emergency it furnishes quick action. Supplying a man with a rake or a spade does not take long or involve any considerable investment beyond his pay. And maybe he does not feel that he is the recipient of an outright dole.

But a new building or a flood control project requires skill, and financial appropriations—in advance.

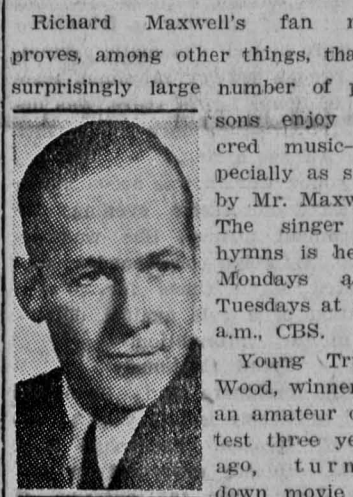

A big new federal building, illustratively, calls for the preparation of plans and the accumulation of material, but these demands are not immediate; they seep down. It is indirect.

Basic labor gets the benefit pretty soon; superficial labor only gradually.

How to Manage Child Who Has No Appetite

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PEDIATRICIANS, or children's specialists, are far less likely to be worried about the minor functional troubles of childhood than the parents. In general, it may be said that the doctor does not worry at all about what drives the parent crazy, and the patients do not worry at all about what drives the doctor crazy (such as neglecting small-pox and diphtheria vaccination).

One of my best friends used to tell with delight a story of his childhood. His father was an extremely philosophical and easy-going man. One day, for some reason, my friend and his brother decided to run away. They were in the back yard at the time, on a hot summer day, and as they came racing around the corner of the house their father was sitting on the porch. "Where are you going, boys?" he asked.

"We are running away," they said. "don't run," said the father, slowly, "walk. Nobody is going to chase you."

It took all the zest out of the adventure. They didn't even get as far as the sidewalk.

The baby or child soon learns the delights of being the center of attraction, and plays the delicate organ of the parents' susceptibilities with every step out.

Lack of Appetite

Lack of appetite is one of these things that parents are continually worrying about, and which mostly slow poke. That was one of the first stunts Mussolini's troops pulled in Ethiopia.

To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the Present Semester—June 7, 1937:

Every student who expects to receive a degree or a certificate at the University Convocation to be held Monday, June 7, 1937, should make his formal application on a card provided for the purpose at the Registrar's Office on or before Saturday, April 24, 1937.

It is of utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately, for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester.

Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, offering a compromise administration program in the battle for supreme court reorganization: "Certain amendments that have been proposed would undoubtedly be received by the public with favor. The latter is gaining ground steadily and I believe will be passed by both houses during the present session."

HOLLYWOOD—Actors who insist on helping the director are popular in directorial circles . . . Unless the actor, like Stan Laurel, is the actual director with another in nominal charge . . . Miriam Hopkins likes to take the ball out of her director's hands, but they do say she has some good ideas. . . I've seen directors yell her and then make the scene their way.

Nat Pendleton makes a lot of suggestions, to the annoyance of men who are attempting to direct him. . . Nat used to be a wrestler. . . He was in the 1920 Olympics, but he doesn't like to have the year mentioned. . . Dietrich, in her quiet way, tries to influence her directors. . . She next works for Labitsch, who likes to give "NO" for an answer.

Comedy Outmoded "24 Hours Leave" is an amusing comedy, but outmoded since Douglas MacLean starred in it because audiences have been educated to expect more plot. . . MacLean, former star, produced it for Grand National. . . James Ellison is pleasant, Terry Flavin is pretty and Morgan Hill (Pig D'Orsay's noos-ban) has possibilities. . . It is Hill's first picture. . . Hill, a Chicagoan and a medical graduate, was going to be a brain specialist, but decided it'd take too long to get into practice.

A New Yorker At Large

By JACK STINNETT NEW YORK—Things the history books don't mention about Manhattan: Ice cream was dished out in 178 in downtown New York by one Mr. Hall, who claimed to be its inventor. . . Mott street, in Chinatown, was named for Joseph Mott, a famous butcher . . . but there wasn't any Chinatown then.

The first movie for public consumption was shown on Broadway, but far below 42nd street. It was, if you care for dates, on May 23, 1895, and the flicker flickered for four minutes, showing Young Griffith and Battling Barnett doing mighty (mighty jerky, you would say today) battle in the prize ring.

Broadway was first called "Broad Way" but before that it was known as "The Great Highway."

There's no record of how many times Brooklyn bridge has been sold . . . but there is record that the city hall was sold at auction in 1858 . . . for $50,000. One Robert Lowbar, it seemed, had sold the city some land for $225,000 and had not been paid. He went to court and got a judgment. To satisfy the judgment the city hall was auctioned off. Mayor Tiemann bought it for $50,000, which was a'! Mr. Lowbar got. The city then bought the city hall back from Mayor Tiemann, Shenanigans.

In the last ten years, the record show, only about half the people who visited the New York public library read a book or magazine.

There's been many a fistfight exchanged at Cony Island, but the exchange that attracted the most attention was in 1859, when Fitzsimmons there lost the title to Jim Jeffries.

And while we are on the sports subject, we might point out that there never has been a fair ball knocked out of the Yankee stadium. It's time the rabbits turned the multiplication table over to the taskmasters. . . It's only been 20 years since the first that appeared on the streets of New York. Jacob Hayes, in 1802, was appointed New York's first (and it turned out to be only) high constable. So far as is known, he was the first policeman anywhere to use the plain degree, shadowy a suspect, or confront a murderer with the corpse of his victim in order to get a confession.

"The Feud," Engineers' Show, To End Mecca Week Festivity

Male Chorus Masters Intricate Steps; 2 Present Rhumba

The 28th Mecca week celebration of the college of engineering will end today with the presentation of the annual engineers' show at 8:30, 9 and 10 o'clock in the Engert theater. This year the show deals with a new theme and bears the title "The Feud."

The show hinges around the activity of a mountaineer who decides to go to college, and the ensuing troubles that he undergoes.

Supporting the show is the chorus of engineers who have laid aside their school equipment and donned feminine attire. The heavy of beauties has been drilled in several intricate steps under the supervision of Doris Jordan, A1 of Des Moines, who was in charge of the chorus last year.

Rhumba

Besides the play and the chorus, the engineering students have arranged a regular rhumba number to be done by Roberto Lopez, E3 of Panama, and Lester Sanger, E4 of Morse.

The feature picture that will be shown along with the stage attraction is taken from Maxwell Anderson's prize winner, "Winter set," and bears that name. The cast, with Burgess Meredith and Margo in the leads, is the same that appeared in the Broadway production last year.

The cast for the play includes the following students: Russell Lutz, E3 of Millersburg; William Anderson; James Taylor, E1 of Cedar Rapids; William Winkler, E2 of Rochester, N.Y.; Carl Potter, E3 of Iowa City; Clyde Herring, E4 of Iowa City; and Franklin Eddy, E2 of Marengo.

Chorus

The chorus consists of Maynard Pix, E3 of Cedar Falls; Henry Hardaway, E1 of Shepardsville, Ky.; Donald Irwin, E1 of Iowa City; Michael Egan, E1 of Buffalo, N.Y.; Norman Horst, E2 of Muscatine; and Richard Nelson, E1 of Rolfe.

Fay Bickel, E4 of Anamosa, is chairman of the show.

Plan Rites For Mrs. Benner

Funeral service for Mrs. C. A. Benner, 67, 309 E. Fairchild street, will be at 2:30 this afternoon at Zion Lutheran church. The Rev. A. C. Proehl will officiate. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Benner, who died at her home Sunday morning, had been ill only a short time. She is survived by two daughters, Laura and Mildred, of Iowa City; two brothers, Henry Nickling of Tacoma, Wash., and Ernest Nickling of Corona, Cal.; and a sister, Mrs. A. S. Bane of Iowa City.

Danger of Cancer Contagion Is Non-Existent, Say Experts

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles prepared by the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer as part of its educational war against cancer.)

Cancer is not a contagious disease. There is no danger in nursing or treating a patient, and no reason to believe the stories so often told of "cancer houses," "cancer villages" or "cancer belts."

The possibility of transferring cancer from one person to another by direct contact should be disregarded. In all the recorded operations for cancer, there is no report of a case acquired from a patient by any surgeon or nurse.

Not Inherited

Nor is cancer directly inherited. There is not much reason to worry because one member of a family has suffered from the disease. In a family, the members of which tend to be very long-lived, more cases of cancer will occur than in one in which the members die young. This is not because cancer is hereditary, but because it is a disease of middle and later life.

It is reassuring to remember that life insurance companies pay no attention to a history of "cancer in the family" in determining whether or not a person is a good risk. Indeed, exceptionally careful studies of life insurance records have shown that there is no ground for apprehension, even if both parents died of cancer.

Cause Still Mystery

Though medical men admittedly do not know the ultimate cause of cancer, they do know a great deal about it occurs and what is apt to precede it.

For instance, cancer frequently begins in moles or pigmented warts which are irritated by the clothes or

Dean Kay Will Preside Over Symposium

Authorities in five branches of science will consider North American chronology under the chairmanship of Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts at an international symposium on ancient man and the origin of the human race at Philadelphia this week.

The round table, one of three important ones at the symposium, will be participated in by geologists, paleontologists, botanists, archaeologists and anthropologists. Sponsor of the entire symposium is the Academy of National Sciences of Philadelphia in celebration of its 125th anniversary of foundation.

All Sessions

Dean Kay, former head of the geology department and state geologist, will attend all sessions of the symposium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and will conduct the round table Thursday afternoon.

The Iowa scientist was selected because of his international standing as an authority on the Pleistocene or glacial period in Iowa and adjacent states. He found that the giant ice sheets eroded down from the north at an estimated rate of one mile every 14 years and that their successive advances and retreats occupied a space of some 30,000 years.

Research

After many years of research, Dean Kay interpreted evidence to show that the glacial period has a minimum duration of about 700,000 years. He was the first to determine the length in years.

No human remains have been found in deposits of glacial age in Iowa but evidence indicates that man was living in Minnesota at the time of the retreat of the last glacier, Dean Kay said. If human beings were present in Minnesota, they undoubtedly were in Iowa also, which would carry man's history in this region back about 20,000 years.

It will be one of Dean Kay's tasks at the round table session to assist in correlating all pertinent information on the history of early man in North America.

Signal for Pandemonium

A device which shot off a cap at each table at the first of the banquet was the signal for pandemonium to reign. The noise of horns, firecrackers and shouts was overshadowed only by the innovation of hoos and hisses the faculty received from the students when they were presented.

Each speech was limited to two minutes and the signal for the end of each speech was given by a buzzer which could not easily be disregarded. However, C. B. Chase of Clinton, totally disregarded the buzzer and talked for five minutes on his experiences as a student in 1888 amongst the good natured hoos.

Banquet Starts With Bang

Mecca Celebration Continues at Fast Clip At Iowa Union

A banquet which started with a bang and continued at a fast tempo was attended by 250 engineering students, faculty members and alumni in the river room of Iowa Union last night as the second official Mecca week celebration.

The only serious mood was assumed in the closing minutes as Maxon Roller, E4 of Davenport, presented Franklin Eddy, E2 of Marengo, and Howard Kaseh, E2 of Davenport, with hand-books for the high scholastic averages made by the two during their freshman years.

Dawson Strikes Keynote

Dean Francis M. Dawson struck the keynote of the attitude of the engineers which has carried them through one of the most successful Mecca weeks the university has seen in years, when he said, "I pay tribute to the students of engineering for the way they got along without 'too' much trouble. Don't go too far—and Lord only knows how far that is—because if you get in trouble, I can not stand back of you."

The alumni introduced included: M. H. Dey, '87, of Iowa City, Mr. Chase, '90, of Clinton, H. J. Eckhardt, '06, of Chicago, R. C. Choate, '03, of Davenport and Prof. B. J. Lambert, '01, of Iowa City.

Completely at Ease

WELCOME HOME! That's what the comfort of railway travel really means nowadays. On the railroad—and on the railroad alone—you can fully enjoy yourself while traveling.

As you ride at high yet safe speeds, free from jolts and skids, you can eat, sleep, read, write, stretch, relax, listen to the radio, breathe cool, clean, sweet air and make yourself fully at home under the kindly ministrations of courteous attendants alert to your every need.

For these and other benefits, you must credit thorough air-conditioning, smart interior decoration, up-to-date car construction, improved roadbeds, heavier rails, adequate power and—most important of all—a personnel interested in service.

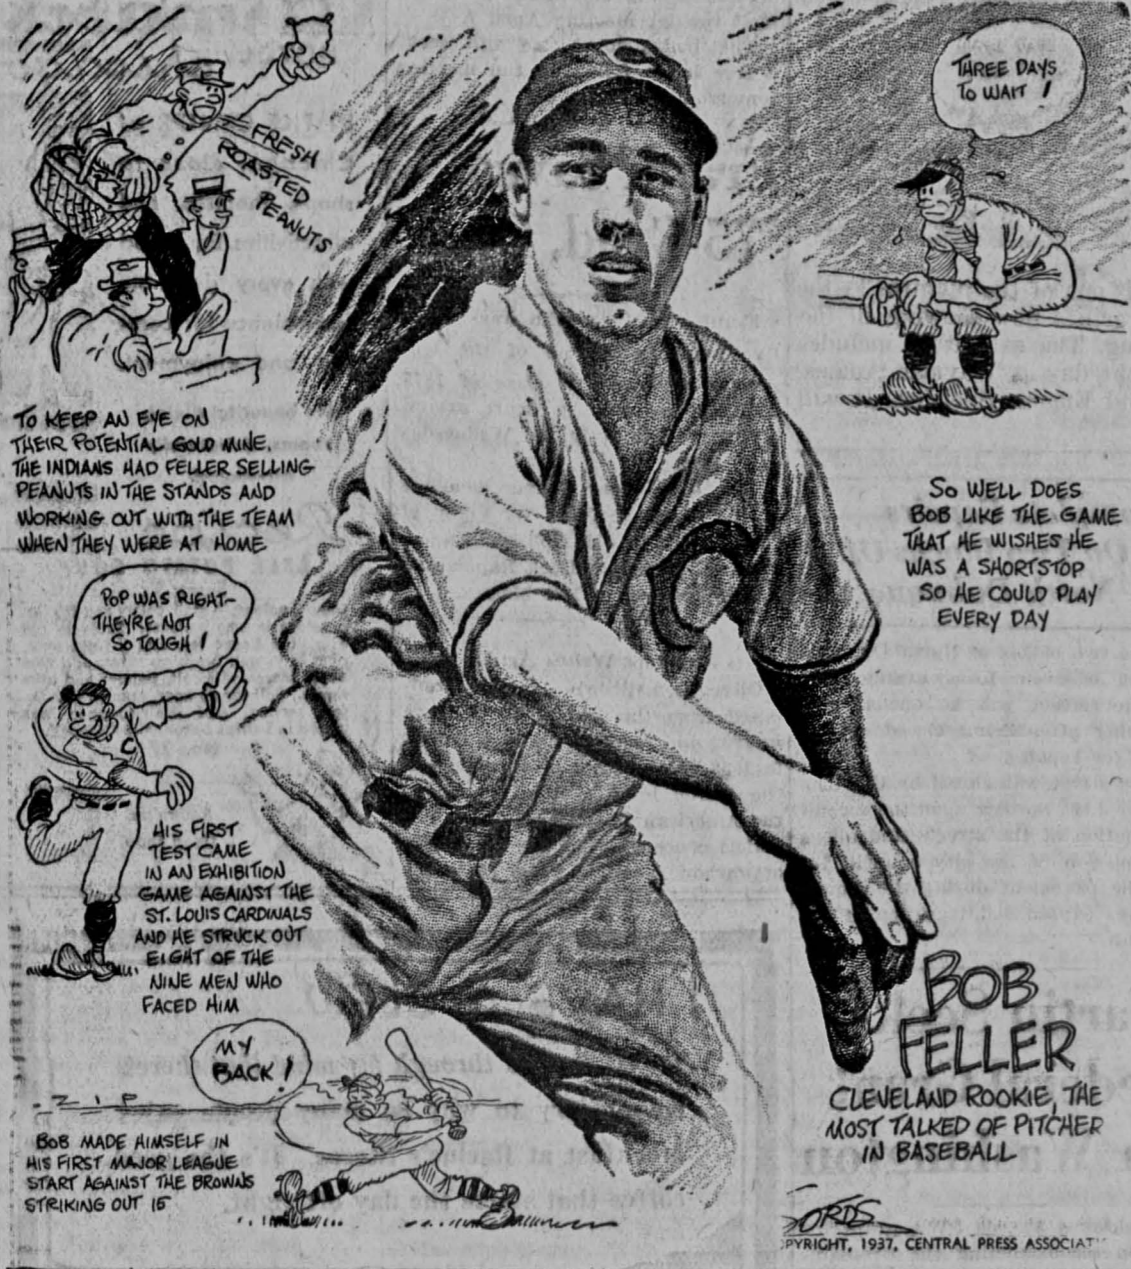

Typical of railway modernization for comfort is the fact that by the end of the year the Illinois Central will have in service 157 air-conditioned cars of its own, in addition to air-conditioned Pullman equipment. All the railroads and the Pullman Company together now have more than 8,000 such cars.

REMINDER . . .

Railway travel today is a thrilling experience, full of the spirit of youth. On your next trip learn how deservedly enjoyment, coupled with economy in price, has increased railway patronage in recent years.

Barnes feels that Hornsby is a drawing card and told him "the club would like to have you in the lineup as much as possible." Hornsby demurred at being the sole judge of his fitness to play so the "jury" was appointed to return a verdict at the end of the training season.

Golden Miller Picked to Win Steeplechase

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—Barring a training mishap or strong unexpected financial support for another horse, Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller will go to the post Friday again favored to win the 9th running of the grand national steeplechase at Aintree.

The 10-year-old gelding was favored in 1935 after winning the classic the year before and ruled the choice last year until supplanted by Avenger on the eve of the race. The odds on the Miller lengthened to 9 to 1 in today's callow at the Victoria club as the huge drum in Dublin gave out the names of the holders of the lucky tickets in the Irish sweepstakes.

If the "Miller" is ousted as the favorite before post time it probably will be by either Lloyd Thomas' Royal Mail, the choice until a few days ago, or Sir David Llewellyn's Ego. The pair were joint second choice at 100 to 9 in the callow.

Best liked among the six American-owned horses were Robert Lehman's Diodice and J. B. Snow's entry of Delachance and Delanage. Diodice was quoted at 100 to 7 along with Pucka Belle while the Snow entry was held at 100 to 6 and 25 to 1, respectively.

Citizens' Party Files Slate For Election at Coralville

Clarence E. Allwine Sole Aspirant For Mayoralty

Only one slate of candidates, that of the "new" Citizens party, headed by mayoralty aspirant, Clarence E. Allwine, has filed for the Coralville town election, March 29, Mayor Owen R. Morgan said last night.

A second group of candidates who attempted to file yesterday discovered the ticket was ineligible because it should have been entered by last Saturday under state law. This group was also known as the Citizens party when its candidates were elected to office two years ago.

Candidates on the new Citizens ticket besides Allwine are:

For town council, M. T. Ewalt, Harold Breese, Maurice Dever, Charles Pieseler and L. I. Conklin, for assessor, J. R. McGinnis, and for treasurer, Mrs. A. Crawford. The new ticket asks for strict economy in town government.

The only methods by which candidates of the former Citizens party—self-styled "progressives"—can be elected to office now is through a "write-in" vote. Party leaders had not decided last night whether to push a "write-in" campaign or not.

Poor Lighting Lowers Efficiency

Electrical Engineer Finds Study Lighting Bad At University

(Editor's Note)—Hundreds of students each year suffer from eye strain caused by improper and inadequate lighting in their rooms and in university buildings. This is the first in a series of several articles describing these conditions and means of correction. University officials are now studying the problem of lighting in several university buildings.

By RUTH L. BELSKY
Inadequate lighting for studying at the University of Iowa is straining the eyes and lowering the efficiency of students.

"Study lighting is bad," said L. G. Parks of the electrical engineering department after a recent survey in which he visited students' rooms in Currier hall, Eastlawn, the Quadrangle and cooperative houses. He worked under the direction of Prof. Richard R. Whipple, also of the electrical engineering department.

In an interview with Professor Whipple and Mr. Parks, both discussed the weaknesses of lighting used by students here and suggested possible remedies.

Fewer Glasses
Professor Whipple indicated that students would be less likely "to have to live with spectacles" if in many instances they would simply change the arrangement of their rooms and make the best of what lighting facilities they already had. He recommended the use of the IES indirect lamp, designed by the Illuminating Engineering society, and valuable for the elimination of glare.

It was glare which Mr. Parks found to be the worst feature in the arrangement of the rooms which he inspected—indirect glare reflected from the glazed pages of open books. Almost without exception, the common lighting fixture is the goose-neck lamp with a 40 or 60 watt bulb, both of which are too large for such a purpose.

Emphatic
He was emphatic in his dislike for this type of lamp which causes strain. The greatest trouble is that nearly always this single lamp is the only fixture burning, throwing intensified light over a very small area while the outer edges of the desk and the surrounding room remain dark. This gives very poor uniformity.

With only vertical illumination such as this, no light is shed anywhere but on the shiny page from which, unbroken, it strikes back at the eyes of the reader. As he shifts them from the spot of brilliance, he exposes his eyes to extremes—first the circle of light on the desk, then the dark walls of the room. With the rest of the room dark his eyes are constantly trying to adjust themselves to these radical changes. The result is eye strain.

Sally Eilers says:

"My voice and throat are grateful for Luckies"

"Making a picture is obviously a tax on my throat. And because my voice is my stock in trade, my throat is grateful for a light smoke, and by that I mean Luckies. Days are certainly long when shooting a picture, and I do plenty of smoking, so you see I want a light smoke which, at the end of the day, is comfortable to my throat. I certainly get a lot of relaxation and pleasure out of Luckies."

Miss Eilers verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies.
