Regent turns up heat on UI search Board members growing impatient with committee

Patricia Harris

The Daily Iowan

As the University of Northern Iowa announced six finalists for the position of UNI president Monday, at least one member of the Iowa state Board of Regents said the UI should be moving at a comparable rate.

UNI announced its list of six finalists to replace President Constantine Curris after completing off-campus interviews with 11 semifinalists last week. UNI began the UI began its search. The UI's list of candidates is up to 247. Regent Tom Dorr said although the two schools have different needs, there should not be such drastic dissimilarities between the two searches.

Rawlings: interviewing is 'grueling'

Forget the hoopla about a background in health sciences and diversity for the UI's top dog. UI President Hunter Rawlings said his replacement will have to play it cool during interviews, which means always saying the right thing and chowing on big, juicy

"They want to make sure you know how to use a knife and a fork," Rawlings said jokingly about the endless stream of power lunches involved in the interviewing process. "And in Iowa, they want to make sure that you order beef."

Rawlings, in his final interview with The Daily Iowan as UI president, talked about the rigors of getting through the 2 1/2-day interviewing process. He described what candidates will go through sometime this summer

Rawlings Speaks Out

On why his job is good:

"In general I think the University of Iowa is recognized as one of the leading research universities in the country. Secondly, it's in a state that values education, especially if you compare lowa with some other schools where education has been treated very harshly. The fact that it's a member of the Big Ten is another big plus. And it's a university seen as going up, not

If he considers himself a politician:

"Certainly, there's some similarities in that you're heading up a public institution. You can never forget that. It's the University of Iowa, not Hunter Rawlings' University, not the faculty's university, not even the students'. It belongs to the people of lowa, so in that sense, you're not too dissimilar from the governor.

"There's a major difference, and that is rather than having a job of always doing what the public wants, which is the way politicians do their job. I think it's your job to do what is academically appropriate as much as possible."

Man vowed to kill hostages unless students disrobed

MIAMI (AP) — A man abducted a woman and her child Monday and took them to a highschool classroom, where he threatened to shoot them unless female students took off their clothes, police said. One girl was sexually assaulted.

A janitor and a band director who walked into the room wrestled the man to the ground and held him for police, said investigators and officials at Miami Springs Senior High School.

"He threatened to kill the woman and child, pointing the gun at the child, unless the girls disrobed," said police spokesman Juan Del Castillo.

Some of the 12 girls — piano students - started to comply.

"The gun was actually a BB gun, and they didn't know that," Del Castillo said.

Del Castillo said police are questioning the man and the students and charges are pending.

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Deputies tracked down two more of the 14 inmates who broke out of jail together over the weekend, leaving just two on the run.

One of the men captured Monday had hitched a ride into the city — wearing only undershorts - by telling an unsuspecting motorist a story about being robbed and beaten, sheriff's spokesman Capt. Jeff Springs said.

FBI steps up search for witnesses

Sally Streff Buzbee Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY - The FBI released yet another sketch of the elusive John Doe No. 2 Monday as agents chased clues in Arizona, Oklahoma and a Kansas lake where the Oklahoma City bomb may have been mixed.

Outside the shaky ruins of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, officials acknowledged the inevitable: It is time to give up searching for signs of life and switch to heavy machinery to remove bodies.

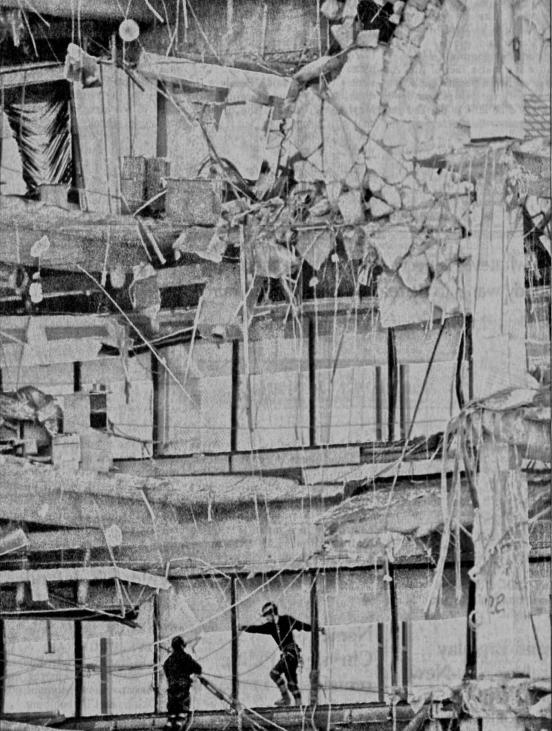

"I think they need to do whatever is necessary to ensure the safety of the rescue workers," said Jim Texter, whose wife, Victoria, is still missing. "Nobody wants to be responsible for more

The death toll reached 139, including 15 children. About 40 people are still missing.

FBI agents also sought as witnesses two men who in recent months stayed at a cheap Arizona motel near one used by bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh. The two men may also have spent the night of the bombing in a motel 180 miles away from Oklahoma at rally on Pentacrest

Kirsten Scharnberg The Daily Iowan

A man named Frog methodically rolled a joint in a $1 bill while about 150 people rallied on the downtown Pedestrian Mall for the legalization of marijuana, shouting, "Roll, roll, roll a joint. Twist it at the end. Take two puffs and pass it to a friend."

Zealous hemp enthusiasts first gathered Monday afternoon on the Pentacrest to voice their opinion that the government should make it legal for all Americans to smoke pot without fear of being fined or jailed.

One excited crowd member grabbed a portable microphone from a rally organizer and addressed the crowd about the merits of taking a hit once or twice a day.

"We need some spirit, man," he said. "Pot's not just for hippies. I've smoked with a lot of people from a lot of different socioeconomic classes. You're fooling yourself if you think a lot of people in power posi-tions don't kick back in front of

'Roseanne' and roast up. After several speakers gave their personal tributes of the joys of smoking marijuana, the group marched to the Pedestrian Mall, where one of the speakers promised a surprise was waiting.

While marching and carrying signs that proclaimed "Pot happens" and "End prohibition of Pot," marchers shouted in army fashion, "A rose is red; the sky blue; marijuana's good for you. Left. Left. Left, right, left."

One UI freshman said he saw the signs and fell into line with the 7th juror takes leave as testimony proceeds

Linda Deutsch Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - O.J. Simpson's judge failed Monday to stop the alarming exodus of jurors from the trial, releasing a 25-year-old black flight attendant who once tearfully told him, "I can't take it anymore!" Superior Court Judge Lance Ito tried to persuade Tracy Hampton to stay, reportedly dismissing three deputies who guard the jury in part because of her complaints. But Hampton appeared to grow unhappier by the day, sitting statue still in the jury box, her eyes downcast. She was replaced by a 28-yearold Hispanic woman who said on her jury questionnaire that Simpson was the only person with "a visible motive" for killing his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Hampton was the seventh juror dismissed, leaving just five alternates with months to go. The change shifted the ethnic configuration of the jury to seven blacks, three whites and two Hispanics.

After the new juror was selected by lot and took her seat, testimony resumed with police chemist Gregory Matheson offering explanaions why only small amounts of blood spilled at Brown Simpson's condominium were tested by the police crime lab.

In conjunction with the testimony, prosecutor Hank Goldberg flashed on a 7-foot courtroom screen one of the bloodiest photos seen so far in the trial. The defense objected to the photo as overly

Twister season turns eyes of wary weather watchers to skies

Michele Kueter The Daily Iowan

It was just another trip for UI senior Marcellina Lawson as she drove east on Interstate 88 in Illinois last August. Lawson was on her way from Iowa City to see her boyfriend in Chicago. She had heard storm warnings for several counties on the radio but wasn't sure which county she was in. As the sky grew darker, she drove on.

Then off to her left, north of the interstate, she saw a funnel cloud descend from the sky.

Similar sightings may become common now that Iowa's primary tornado season has arrived. May has 27 percent of the annual tornadoes and June has 28 percent, said Harry Hillaker, Iowa state climatologist.

Twisters are most likely to occur this time of year, mid- to late spring, because the two main ingredients for the funnel clouds - moisture and temperature contrast - are most likely to be present, Hillaker said.

to have a lot of moisture," he said. "If car rolling there is a lot of humidity, it is more "If there likely. The second ingredient you need is usually some kind of mechanism to create instability in the atmosphere."

This is where changing temperatures come into play. Very often, tornadoes are caused by a cold front that collides with a warm air mass coming from the Gulf of Mexico, Hillaker said. At the same time, water vapor in the atmosphere condenses to become the tornado's energy source.

Fortunately for Lawson, the funnel She kept driving because a man at an interstate tollbooth told her to keep on the road. All the other cars kept going,

"I thought I was going to die," Lawson said. "I was really scared. I wanted to be in a car with someone else."

Cars are not the ideal place to be during a tornado, Hillaker said. A weak tornado, between 70 mph and 80 mph, can overturn a car. A strong "The most important ingredient is tornado, around 200 mph, can keep a

There is no one thing a person can look for to predict a cyclone, Hillaker said. He said they can happen anytime of the day in any weather condition. However, 70 percent to 80 percent of tornadoes occur during late afternoon after the sun has heated the atmosphere all day, contributing to unstable temperatures.

Although there have been many cloud she saw never touched ground. tornadoes in Iowa during recent years, the last one causing fatalities was in 1986, Hillaker said.

"Iowa has been very lucky," he said. Several factors may contribute to this, Hillaker said. First, many towns now have a better warning system. Also, people's general knowledge about tornadoes has increased. And finally, even though there have been very large tornadoes in the state since 1986, they haven't touched down in large population centers, he said.

UI junior Matt Cimino - then a high-school junior in Shorewood, Ill., a town about four miles south of Plainfield - witnessed the destruction.

"Afterward, it was kind of amazing driving from my house to Plainfield because everything was demolished,"

Cimino was shopping with his mom when the sky began to darken and get a greenish cast to it. He said it was raining very hard when they left the store to return home, but the downpour was so strong they couldn't see and had to pull over and take shelter at another store.

The next day at Cimino's school, Joliet Catholic Academy, there was talk of classmates from Plainfield that were missing and speculation that maybe they were recovering from the damage. It turned out that two of the missing students had been killed during the tornado.

Although a new survey revealed that most prelaw students aren't in it for the money, future lawyers at the UI said promises of high salaries do play a part in their career choice.

National LSAT Director Bob Verini said the decision to attend law school is a complicated one.

"Most students see the legal profession as an ongoing source of income but react negatively when it is insinuated that money is their only motive," he said. "There is a sense of idealism with law students, and they are no longer in it for a windfall profit, looking for BMWs and yachts."

Attraction to the legal profession was the motivating force behind 38 percent of the respondents. Eight percent said they were attracted by financial rewards, and 2 percent said they were drawn by the prestige of the

Even though only 2 percent of the respondents admitted money was key, 62 percent of those surveyed pointed a finger at their peers, saying they were in it for the money

For most UI prelaw students, money is an important consideration when choosing a profession in the judicial field - but not the only incentive.

UI senior and prelaw major John Perkins said he's planning to attend law school next fall for several reasons, one being money

"The first reason is there is a history of lawyers in my family," he said. Perkins said another reason he is going to law school is because a career in law provides financial stability.

ZAGREB, Croatia - Two Croatian jet fighters attacked a Serbheld bridge Monday and tank battles broke out nearby, threatening to escalate into major fighting on a new front in the Balkan war.

The assault apparently caught the Serbs by surprise, but the jets failed to hit the bridge over the Sava River. The fighting threatened to merge with the 3-year-old war in neighboring Bosnia.

Many observers have been predicting just that since the failure of a four-month truce that expired in Bosnia Monday and the reduction in size of a U.N. peacekeeping mission in Croatia.

Monday's action was the heaviest violence reported in Croatia since 1991, when the Serbs captured a third of the country.

Economists predict embargo against Iran will hurt U.S.

Dirk Beveridge Associated Press

LONDON - The U.S. economic embargo of Iran will probably backfire, experts said Monday. The big losers will be American companies, the big winners will be their foreign competitors and Iran stands to gain plenty of anti-Western political mileage out of President Clinton's decision to sever U.S. economic ties to the Islamic

Iran will have no problem finding buyers for its top export - oil - in the world market and it might even temporarily get a better price if the embargo disrupts normal supply channels. European and Asian companies, meanwhile, will quickly move to sell more goods to Iran - filling a void left by U.S. companies that of dollars in sales.

There are two key problems: The United States came up with the embargo on its own - with no sanctions against companies from other countries who continue to trade with Iran - and the United States is not among Iran's key trading partners anyway.

"It's not going to work," said Edmund O'Sullivan, editor in chief of the weekly Middle East Economic Digest in London. "It would not only have to be a primary boycott, but also a secondary boycott and a tertiary boycott and quaternary boycott."

Economists who follow Middle Eastern Affairs say the U.S. action will have little impact on either total imports into Iran - which came to about $10 billion last year or Iran's exports, which came to stand to lose hundreds of millions $18 billion, mostly from oil sales.

HOMOSEXUALS WITH CHILDREN

Group capable as parents

Most men and women take it for granted that they will become parents. Pregnancy, adoption and artificial insemination are all avenues a couple can take when they decide the time is right, but there are couples who have to go to great lengths in order to have the family they desire. They are homosexual couples, who not only may encounter difficulty in having a family, but must also face the stigmas society has about gay and lesbian parents.

During the McCarthy era, homosexuals were thought of as easily susceptible to communism. Sexual conformity was essential to national security. Looking back at those Cold War years, the persecution of homosexuals seems ridiculous. Most Americans agree McCarthyism was paranoid and unjust and, hopefully, they will soon realize that discrimination against homosexual parents and their children is paranoid and unjust as well.

In a world where human beings seem to be becoming more dangerous and violent, a set of good, loving parents — regardless of sexual preference — should be greeted with open arms. Children must face violence in their schools, drugs and abuse at home. Each year, approximately 1 million American children experience some form of physical abuse. Homosexual parents are not exempt from abusing their children, of course. If they are abusive parents, though, it is not because of their sexuality. Parents are prone to be abusive if they were abused as a child or if they exhibit characteristics such as low self-esteem. Sexual preference has nothing to do

There are so many misconceptions about homosexuals which leave people ignorant and afraid. One of the biggest fears about gay men is that they are child molesters when, in fact, approximately 98 percent of sexual abuse, molestation and incest perpetrators are heterosexual males. Studies have shown that gay fathers are as effective as heterosexual fathers and tend to be more nurturing with their children and less traditional in their perceived role as the provider. Often, fathers have taken care of their children by providing food and clothing but have left the nurturing to the mother. In the 1990s, with so many varieties of families, men and women are mixing their roles as parents. As a society, we should not call a nurturing father dysfunctional just because he's gay.

Lesbian mothers - though they may experience an easier time having children - run into the same problems. One major concern is that the children of homosexual parents will themselves be homosexuals. If this misconception had any credibility, how does one explain homosexuals who grew up with heterosexual parents?

Currently, one-half to three-fourths of the public think homosexuality is immoral and unacceptable, but three-fourths oppose discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. Consequently, most Americans should agree that homosexual parents have the right to have families. A good home is the most important thing a child should have, and a homosexual parent can give this to a child as well as any heterosexual parent.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O.J. AND JORDAN

he three news items receiving the most prominent television coverage last week were the Oklahoma City bombing; the guilty plea entered by the accused murderer of Michael Jordan's father, James Jordan; and, of course, the O.J. Simpson trial. The massive network scrutiny surrounding these stories gives renewed vigor to the debate on capital punishment, and many Americans are jumping on the execution bandwagon. While those calling for the death penalty attempt to satiate their need for vengeance, perhaps it is time for an underground movement of sorts, one that advocates a death penalty easily falling under the scope of justifiable homicide. The rally cry for this campaign? Kill your television.

Obviously, this is not a novel concept. Even the most casual observer of bumper-sticker politics has probably seen this idea touted on either the back of an old Volkswagen van or a mid-1980s Saab adorned with a ski rack and driven by a wealthy collegiate pseudo-hippie. Some may call the slogan simple-minded, but when compared to testosterone-inspired fender philosophies like "My Kid Beat Up Your Honor Student" or "Rush is Right," the suggestion to bludgeon your boob tube emerges as a stroke of profound genius.

Ours is a nation transfixed by television. In a telling scene last week, the din of conversation in a packed airport eatery ceased when another edition of ABC's "Nightly News" was aired. Every member of this cross section of travelers fell silent, watching intently while the latest developments in the stories were reported.

This scene indicates a major problem in this country: Americans have developed a craving for tales of madness, and the networks oblige this hunger by serving us an unending diet of sensational stories - so much so that paranoia and distrust of one another now pervades our populace.

The Oklahoma City bombing and the murder cases involving James Jordan and O.J. Simpson are simply isolated instances of lunacy. On the whole, one must believe that the overwhelming majority of people in this country are kind and entirely incapable of such heinous acts. Yet such faith in humankind has been lost on the masses wrapped in the thrall of media sensationalism.

Thus, the time has come for a crusade to assassinate television. If enacted craftily, this plan might even garner support from three powerful political organizations or bigwigs. The National Rifle Association, for instance, could be enlisted to provide high-powered assault weapons, ensuring the total obliteration of televisions. Likewise, tobacco spittin', outback livin' militia members already given to paranoia - might also be convinced to wage war on the tube simply if told that television is the catalyst to the government conspiracy they so fear.

The telling blow could be delivered by our No. 1 civic instigator of fear and paranoia, Newt Gingrich himself. By slashing the budget afforded to the Public Broadcasting Co., Gingrich has already suffocated one of the few vital aspects of television. His support would thus provide fine irony in the quest to eliminate television.

In defense of misunderstood student activism er a student activist group makes some headway on this campus. I understand the arguments over differing political viewpoints but am surprised and somewhat perplexed at the level of animosity directed at the tactics used by student demonstra-

When I was involved in student activism, it seemed that everyone had something to say about our organizational tactics, yet we were rarely contacted by anyone who wished to really understand what we did. Many false assumptions were made, and I see them resurfacing in the wake of the recent protest against Joseph Gaylord, political coordinator for Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich. They include:

• Myth No. 1 — "They're only out there to get attention." (Variations include "They're just looking for a cause" and "What a bunch of lunatics.")

The most glaring misconception of student activists is not understanding their motives. In a highly individualistic society such as this one, few people invest energy in anything unless they are directly rewarded for their efforts. Therefore, outsiders tend to scrutinize protesters, attempting to discern what their real reasons are for demonstrating; certainly, the mere desire for social change could not be enough. Who are they working for? What are they getting out of staging these demonstrations? And if they're not getting anything, are they mentally balanced?

But there is no hidden motive. Student activists do not get paid for their time. They cannot put their experience on a résumé, and only in the rarest instance does activist work lead to a

I am always amused by the paid position in the future. Participating in stu-hostility that erupts whenev- dent protests is a liability more than anything else: All the time spent making posters, delivering fliers and organizing debates is time not spent making money, being with one's family and getting drunk. Activists can also expect to be harassed on a regular basis. It takes enormous commitment to stay involved in this sort of political work; lunatics and attention seekers burn out quite quickly.

• Myth No. 2 - "If they really want to change things, they should just vote (or write to their congressman or work for Greenpeace or become a social worker)."

No one claimed demonstrating is the only way to push for social transformation. Most activists do vote. Those who don't have consciously refused to choose between two extremely similar candidates. And most activists quietly work to help others in less-visible ways. In Iowa City, you will find several activists volunteering for the Rape Victim Advocacy Program and the Free Medical Clinic. One activist I knew worked as a midwife for Latino women without U.S. citizenship. Another worked for an organization that offered free legal advice to low-income people. Several others raised money for a relief agency in Central America.

However, the existence of these programs is precisely why political activism is so necessary. Activists do not just feed the poor, they ask why the poor are hungry.

• Myth No. 3 - "The protesters are Communists. Stalin was a Communist. Stalin was a tyrant. Therefore, the protesters are tyrants."

Believe it or not, I have actually heard this tortured logic used in an attempt to denounce left-wing demonstrators. Other equally tangled

Few student activists worship foreign leaders past or present - and even fewer are engaged in a conspiracy to overthrow the American government and install a Stalinist regime in the United States. (Yes, all those suspicions about President Clinton's activities at Oxford can now be laid to rest.) Student activist movements respond to the unique circumstances of American politics in the 1990s. End of story.

 Myth No. 4 — "It's always the same people I have often heard people comment that the. speaker at one demonstration is the same one they saw last month; therefore, they reason, the movement must be very small and hence irrele-

This is not the case. The distribution of work within organizations is dictated by the differing interests and talents of individuals in the group This often means that only one or two people are involved in public relations, a fact that does not outwardly reflect the diversity of the group. This s unfortunate and something I think the groups should address, but it is not reason enough to dismiss the activists' message

• Myth No. 5 - "They have no respect for authority.

OK, I guess that one's not a myth. Myth No. 6 — "No one listens to yelling and History shows this just isn't true. Civil disobedience was an integral part of the civil rights movement. Yelling and screaming helped women earn the right to vote, furthered the labor move ment and helped end the war in Vietnam. Usual-Iy those who say, "No one listens to yelling and screaming" know that, in fact, people do listen and this is exactly what they are afraid of.

Of course. There was no way you could be a Vic or a Nick or a Rick because you aren't wearing a gold chain. And you are too old to be a Kevin or a Shawn. Nor could you have been a Tyrone, a Leroy or a Jawon since you are of the honky persuasion.

"Yep," he said, as guys named Bill are inclined to do. "I'm just plain Bill."

There is a song by that name, you know. "Just Plain Bill." I believe it is the only song written about you Bills. "No, there is also, 'Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey,' in which a guilt-laden woman tries to reach out to the man she mistreated. But as wild guys do, Bill Bailey was kind of straight, since all his woman promised to do was wash the dishes and cook his meals. That's really all that we Bills need to live the good life." Yes, solid, reliable, unassuming. If every man

"I guess that's a compliment." Whatever. So I suppose you wanted to talk about how comforting it is to be a Bill, a handle nobody mocks or takes in vain.

"No," he said, becoming somber, as Bills will do whenever the opportunity arises. "Being a Bill isn't without its moments of pain. I think every Bill would tell you that if we weren't so darned unassuming, pardon my French."

I wasn't aware of that. "Oh, yes, because of my name, I have psychological wounds that go all the way back to my childhood."

Those are the worst kind.

"Yes, I was a mere lad when one day the mail came and I heard my mother shout, 'Bills, bills, nothing but lousy bills. I hate bills."

And you misunderstood?

"Of course. I was a stunned and heartbroken little tyke. And it got worse when my father said, 'Everybody hates bills, but we're stuck with them.' And then my mother said, 'I'd like to tear every bill to shreds.' Then I was not only stunned and heartbroken, but I was terrified." I can imagine. I hope you asked your parents why they hated you.

"No, being a Bill, I was too unassuming to do that. So I just grew morose until a teacher asked me why I wrote so many suicide notes as my English essays. And I told her that my parents hated me and wanted to tear me to shreds.

I hope that this led to understanding. "No, they sent a social worker to our house. And my parents agreed to take me to see a psy-

"No, as a matter of fact, at the first session, my parents admitted that I was their leastfavorite child. Too unassuming, they said. They liked my older brothers Lance and Brett much better. Lance is a ski instructor and Brett is a CIA agent, by the way."

Aren't they all? But I hope that you finally straightened out the misunderstanding.

Yes, I eventually underwent shock treatment and my parents joined a Family Anonymous group and I realized that they didn't want to tear me to shreds. At least not as much as I thought they did. And we now see each other for family dinner every Sunday, although I begin throwing up Saturday afternoons.'

Good. All's well that ends well.

"But I just thought you might want to tell people that they might give some thought before they talk negatively or venomously about bills. That kind of talk can cause pain and suffering for those of us named Bill and can even make us wince.

I can understand that and I'll pass your thoughts along. By the way, Bill, what do you do for a living?

Surgeon-general nominee Henry Foster looks on as President Clinton gestures Monday at the White House during a meeting with members of Foster's "I Have a Future" program.

Surgeon general pick set for Senate query

Nita Lelyveld Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Buffeted for months by abortion foes and other critics, President Clinton's surgeon general nominee declared himself primed to "define who Henry Foster is" at a Senate hearing scheduled for today. Administration officials conceded confirmation still looked difficult.

Brushing off questions about Foster's abortion record, Clinton called him a "pro-life, pro-choice doctor" Monday. And the president added, "If we can't confirm Henry Foster to be the surgeon general of the United States, what kind of person can we

But Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, who has said he may not call up the nomination for a vote even if it gets out of committee, said the White House had caused whatever problems there were.

"Am I intimidated? No. And I'm not being immodest; I'm not being cocky," the 61-year-old obstetriciangynecologist said. He said he looked forward to the hearing "because that is the place where I get the chance to define who Henry Foster is.

The search was prompted by witness reports of a Ryder truck at the site after April 17, the day McVeigh allegedly rented a Ryder truck, said a senior federal official in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity.

McVeigh is under arrest on charges of building the ammonium exploded April 19 in front of the federal building in the worst domestic terrorist attack in U.S. history.

Investigators found a receipt for 1 ton of ammonium nitrate in a search of Terry Nichols' house in Herington, Kan., the Washington official said. The receipt bore a fingerprint of McVeigh's, the official said.

The receipt could establish a link between the bombing and Nichols, a friend of McVeigh's now being held as a material witness

Meanwhile, the FBI hopes a third sketch of John Doe No. 2 - the man who was with McVeigh when he allegedly rented the truck - might bring new leads. In the new profile nitrate and fuel oil bomb that view, the suspect appears stocky and wears a baseball cap. He is very tan and muscular and may be a weight lifter, FBI agent Weldon Kennedy

Acting on information gathered around Kingman, Ariz., the FBI also searched for a 1981 white Thunderbird with the Arizona license plate JWK923, believed to be driven by Gary Land while accompanied by Robert Jacks.

"We are looking for a possible witness to the bombing," the federal official in Washington told the AP.

An FBI bulletin reported Land was last seen April 24-25 at a motel in Vinita, Okla., said Sgt. Dave Myers, spokesman for the Arizona Department of Public Safety.

The rally and march were organized by members of National Organization to Reform Marijuana laws. As they marched and hollered, people sitting on the Pedestrian Mall stopped and stared, joined the cluster of people clad mostly in flannel and grunge attire or rolled their eyes.

A man wearing a suit and tie sat on a bench on the Pedestrian Mall eating his lunch. He gave a thumbsup sign to the horde of marchers who were then shouting, "Let's get high."

When the bellowing group reached its stopping point near the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., NORML member and third-year UI law student Mike Hamm instructed the crowd to look for their surprise hanging from the roof of the Dubuque Street parking ramp. People were standing on top of the ramp waving an enormous white flag with a green marijuana leaf.

Moeller suspended after altercation with police

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) -Michigan coach Gary Moeller has been suspended with pay while university officials look into a weekend altercation he had in a restaurant and with police.

Meanwhile, Southfield police said Moeller had a dozen drinks at the Excalibur restaurant before they escorted him to the parking lot and called him a cab.

"He was singing, he was attempting to dance with a few patrons, he was monopolizing the time of the waitresses and overall being loud and obnoxious," Southfield police Detective Reginald Phillips told television station

Moeller was staggering and swaying in the parking lot before he pushed and punched an officer, Phillips said.

University president James Duderstadt announced Moeller's suspension Monday.

He said assistant coach Lloyd Carr would assume head coaching duties during Moeller's

Duderstadt said it was too soon to say whether Moeller might lose his job as football

"I think that's very speculative at this point," Duderstadt said. "We want to find what the real facts behind the incident are and the degree to which those have implications for the integrity of our programs and the integrity of the university.'

Duderstadt said Moeller was with athletic director Joe Roberson at a Big Ten meeting in Orlando, Fla., Moeller has declined comment, citing an attorney's advice.

"We want to give coach Moeller a fair hearing, a fair investigation," Duderstadt said. "I think it would be quite inappropriate to speculate what the outcome of that might be.

"At this stage, we know little more than what has been written in the press."

Moeller, 54, was released on bond after he was arrested on misdemeanor charges of disorder ly conduct and assault and battery about 10 p.m. Friday. Police were responding to a disturbance call at the restaurant, Southfield police officer Anthony Rodgers

After eight years at the helm of the Iowa women's tennis team, Micki Schillig decided to call it

"It's time to move my life in a different direction," Schillig said. "I'll miss the satisfaction that my players get when they tell me that something I showed them made it

During her tenure at Iowa, Schillig posted a 93-85 record. She had her most successful season in 1990, when Iowa posted 12 consecutive victories en route to a 17-6 record and a fourth-place finish in the Big Ten Conference.

Iowa women's athletic director Dr. Christine Grant was surprised by Schillig's sudden resignation, but said she understood the deci-

Grant said that recruiting, more than coaching, was starting to take its toll on Schillig.

Micki Schillig, Iowa women's tennis coach on her resignation Monday

"Iowa is not an easy place to recruit for sports like tennis and golf," Grant said. "It's hard to get tennis players or golfers to give up a Sun Belt opportunity for a Mid-

Schillig will stay on until June 30, but Grant said she would begin looking for a new coach immediate-ly. Grant said Schillig and current tennis team members would play an active role in the selection

During the 1994-95 campaign Schillig led Iowa to an 8-11 finish and a seventh-place performance in the Big Ten Championships.

"I'm sure she's disappointed," senior Laura Dvorak said. "Being the person that she is, she'd want to finish higher than seventh in the Big Ten like all of us. But I don't think that was the deciding factor in her decision to leave."

Grant said it would be hard to replace an outstanding coach like Schillig.

"She has all the characteristics of a top head coach," Grant said. "She's got a dedication that is characteristic of a strong coach and an intensity towards what she wants to achieve.

Junior Sasha Boros said Schillig's strength was her ability to relate to her players.

"She went through the college ranks herself and she knew where we were coming from," Boros said. "We all had a lot of respect for her

LOCKOUT ENDS Owners,

umpires settle dispute

Ronald Blum Associated Press

NEW YORK - Baseball owners, who still haven't settled with their players, agreed to a five-year deal with umpires Monday and ended their 120-day lockout.

The regular umpires will return to the field Wednesday.

The agreement means the end of picket lines outside stadiums and removes the prospect of a showdown May 9, when replacement umpires would no longer be allowed to work in Toronto.

"Their scab strategy was exposed for what it was - a fraud," umpires union head Richie Phillips said. "These people were incapable of officiating at a major league lev-

The regular umpires get raises this year ranging from 25 percent to 37.5 percent.

Because the contract is frontloaded and pay will remain the same during the length of the agreement, management calculated the increase at 16 percent over the five years. The deal was agreed to at 12:30 a.m. Monday and approved 9-0 by the umpires' board at about 6:30 a.m. Umpires union president Jerry Crawford said a majority of umpires already had said it would vote to ratify the deal. Replacement umpires will wind up having worked the first eight days of the season and - barring rainouts - the first 86 games.

The regular umpires will be paid 100 percent of their 1995 salaries by the owners.

A win today over visiting Illinois State would boost Iowa's overall record to 25-21. It would not, however, affect the Hawkeyes' 11-13 mark in the Big Ten, and that's the figure that means the most right now. Today's game begins at 3 p.m. on Iowa Field.

Last season, Iowa tied for third in the conference with a 13-15 Big Ten mark, but finished fifth thanks to tie breakers. Only the top four teams make the Big Ten tournament, and the Hawkeyes are on the outside looking in right now.

Jordan challenged by United Center

Associated Press

CHICAGO - Chicago Stadium is now just dirty beams, dangling wires and decades of memories.

Soon, it will be rubble. "Waste of a good building," Michael Jordan says.

Jordan and the Chicago Bulls don't play there anymore and can no longer can depend on Stadium rats, roaches and rowdies to intimidate opponents. They have to do it

And the Bulls don't seem to who'll be in town today and Thursday for the third and fourth games of a best-of-5 playoff series that's

"You've got to believe in yourself, and we believe we can get the job done," said Charlotte's Robert takes time to get used to it." Parish, who, like Jordan, is looking for his fourth NBA championship. "We're going up there to take two, not just one.

In Chicago, "up there" is now the United Center - a hulking, glistening, $175 million emporium of excess, with three levels of luxury in home-court advantage. suites and corporate advertising at Crowd noise, a constant factor at the Stadium, is lost in the vast expanses of the United Center, won 50 games, and to win 50 which sits across the street from what's left of the old building.

After enjoying one of the NBA's top home-court advantages - the Bulls won 38 of their final 44 playoff games at the Stadium - they'll be making their United Center postseason debut tonight.

Jordan hates the place. He recently suggested it be destroyed, and he offered to push the button on the detonator.

In his eight home games after coming out of retirement, Jordan shot 37 percent. So he wasn't celebrating the fact that the split in advantage over to the Bulls.

"I want to play as many games away from the United Center as possible," said Jordan, who after Monday's practice was presented with a 60-pound copy of the statue of himself that stands in front of the arena. "It's going to take me another year to really get comfortable in that place. But I think it is an advantage to the other guys, who are used to playing there.

After a 12-11 start at the United Center, the Bulls won 16 of their last 18 games there, including their final six.

"It should be a pretty good intimidate the Charlotte Hornets, advantage to us in any short series," Chicago's Steve Kerr said. "A lot of visiting players have complained about how tough it is to shoot there. We struggled with our shooting the first couple of months and Michael's still struggling. It

The Hornets, pumped up from Sunday's dominating 106-89 victory, aren't concerned.

'We could play outside on a blacktop court, for all I care," Kenny Gattison said. "It has nothing to do with the building. I don't believe

Said Charlotte coach Allan Bristow: "I know a lot of people think it's going to be a cakewalk to the next round for Chicago. But we games in an NBA season you can't be a lightweight. They (may) have enough championship rings to fill a jewelry box, but they have to earn it. Our approach is to get the series

Had Muggsy Bogues not missed a short jumper at the end of regulation in Game 1, the Hornets might own a 2-0 series lead.

Jordan has scored 80 points, 41 percent of Chicago's two-game total. Scottie Pippen and Toni Kukoc, the Bulls' other high-profile players, have been non-factors. And led by Alonzo Mourning and Charlotte turned home-court Larry Johnson, the Hornets have pounded the Bulls inside.

Michael Jordan soars past Charlotte Hornets guard their first-round playoff game at the Charlotte Coli-Hersey Hawkins for two of his 32 points during seum in Charlotte, N.C., Sunday.

was third with 13. Mutombo said he knew he had a shot at the award if he did a better job than last year of holding his tongue.

"I knew there was a possibility that I could win this year if I didn't talk too much. I just needed to go out and take care of business," Mutombo said.

The honor came as the Nuggets prepared for a home playoff game against the San Antonio Spurs today. San Antonio leads the best-of-five series,

"I'm very happy. It's something I've worked hard for," Mutombo said, but did not think it would affect how his playoff performance. "I just need to come out and play my game and help my team win the next game.'

Mutombo averaged 3.9 blocks a game. He also averaged 12.5 rebounds, second behind San Antonio's Dennis Rodman. He helped the Nuggets rank ninth in field goal defense (.456) and 11th in points allowed per game

Mutombo blocked as many or more shots than the opposing team 29 times this season. He had a season-high 11 blocks against Dallas on Nov. 8.

David Robinson of San Antonio finished fourth in the voting, and Rodman was fifth.

Mutombo is the first Denver player to get 1,000 career blocks, and ranks 28th on the NBA's alltime list after just four seasons.

The Hawkeyes, who have this upcoming weekend off, are currently eighth in the Big Ten, but stand just two games out of second place and one game out of third.

Iowa holds tie breakers over Minnesota (11-9) and Michigan State (10-10) and could pass Penn State (11-11) with a successful weekend.

For now, though, Iowa's attention must turn to Illinois State (20-22-1), which is no cupcake opponent.

"I'm sure everybody would like to play Penn State (today), but that's the way the schedule goes," Schley said of the importance of today's game. "It will still be valuable. Every time you play, you can work on getting better. Myself, when I'm up to bat, I don't care if it's Penn State or Grand View or whatever. The intensity may not be the same as it would be against Penn State, but to say there's no intensity at all is unfair.

Illinois, which won three of four games against Iowa earlier this year, lost to Illinois State 13-6 two

In that victory, the Redbirds rattled off 15 hits, with five batters collecting two or more.

Illinois State also defeated the Hawkeyes in Normal, Ill., last season 10-9, and holds a 2-1 lifetime advantage against Iowa.

"They should be better (than the usual midweek opponents)," Iowa senior Steve Fishman said. "We need to go out and just have fun. (Today) is just one more step in trying to get to our goal of making the tournament."

While this afternoon's matchup should provide the Hawkeyes with an opportunity to get back into the swing of things after a subpar weekend in Northwestern, Fishman said there wasn't anything in particular the team needs to address

"I don't really think there is anything else we can work on," he said. "We just need to play our game and play the way we want,

Baltimore fans, in an apparent forgiving mood in the wake of the baseball strike, filled the stadium for the 46th time in 47 home dates. During pre-game introductions they enthusiastically applauded the Orioles — who refused to field a replacement team during spring training — giving their loudest cheers for Cal Ripken, who was playing in his 2,015th consecutive game.

The 46,523 didn't have much to yell about after that, however, as Milwaukee had a 5-0 lead before Chris Hoiles got the first Baltimore hit in the fifth.

"It was a great crowd," Regan said. "I just wish we played a little better for them."

Bones wouldn't let them. In fact. the 26-year-old right-hander got a thrill out of playing in front of a sellout crowd - even on the road.

"It's always nice to play when it's a full stadium," he said. "All those people watching you, it's exciting. These are good fans in Baltimore. Angels 2, Blue Jays 0

TORONTO - Shawn Boskie (1--0) allowed four hits in eight innings, and Tim Salmon hit his third homer of the season. Lee Smith pitched the ninth for his third save.

A wild pitch by David Cone (1-1) in the first inning allowed Damion Easley to score from third, and Salmon hit a leadoff homer in the second.

"I want to play the game against power hitters," he said. "Power against power. That's what I want to try on the mound in a big-league game. I came here because I like the way of pitching of Roger Clemens.'

He will be the first Japanese player in the big leagues since Masanori Murakami played for the Giants in 1964-65. Murakami took the opposite route to Nomo, starting in the major leagues and then finishing his career in Japan.

Nomo, a member of the Japanese team that won the silver medal at the 1988 Seoul Olympics, retired from Japanese baseball so he could sign with the Dodgers.

Nomo said he was not influenced by Murakami, a lefty who was more of a finesse pitcher. Nomo, who has often had a stormy relationship with the Japanese media, even snubbed Murakami - now a TV commentator - this spring by refusing him an interview.

Piazza, who caught Nomo during spring training, has learned a little Japanese and says his vocabulary is now about equal to Nomo's command of English. That could make for some difficult mound conferences, but Piazza said that won't be a big problem.

"He's pretty intelligent," Piazza said. "He knows what he has to do. He's very well instructed on the style over here and it's just a matter of him learning.'

FILM COMES OFF AS AN UNORGANIZED JUMBLE

'Destiny Turns on the Radio' tries to be too much at once

Tasha Robinson

The Daily Iowan "Destiny Turns on the Radio"

has some lofty cinematic ambitions. It's apparently trying for the quirky nonchalance of a Hal Hartley movie; for the unpredictable, epic quality of "Wild at Heart"; for the cult flavor of "Repo Man"; and for the frantic humor of "Raising Arizona."

PERFORMANCES TONIGHT AND WEDNESDAY

Monk brings unique style to Hancher

Lesley Kennedy The Daily Iowan

Composer, singer, dancer, filmmaker, choreographer and director Meredith Monk will bring her multifaceted performance style to the Loft of Hancher Auditorium tonight and Wednesday for an intimate production of her "Volcano Songs."

The performance will include a combination of theater, music, movement, costumes, visual design and video and will begin with the viewing of a video installation at 7:15 p.m. in the Hancher lobby. Monk calls the video a "shrine installation," combining images of faces with scientific footage.

reviews from The Oregonian, which called her performance style natural and unaffected: "But she's anything but familiar. Her wordless songs really, a collection of melodic syllables - are surprising and beautiful and always evocative.

"Volcano Songs" is a work in which each song calls for a different body position.

"I view passing a crisis by going forward along the tracks I have marked," Monk said in an interview last year. "Time does the rest. Compared with others, I am lucky because I am flexible enough to adapt. For me, a candle is enough to create a performance.'

Monk, who recently turned 50, describes "Volcano Songs" as an exploration of aging.

"The pain of aging is not only her humaneness, her enormous and for people 17 and younger.

The imagery in "Volcano Songs" juxtaposes the power of nature and the mystery of human transformation. Monk changes ordinary objects and situations so that the familiar is viewed in a new way. The music, both live and prerecorded, is scored for voice; keyboards; and a mix of modern and historical instruments, including the Indian and Nepalese sarangi, the medieval bowed lation" video can be seen in the psaltery and the Renaissance viola

The 'Volcano Songs' have the expanse of the Great Plains, the taste of the Earth, the breath of the hilltop and the flow of a long tranquil river. Her singing despite its sophistication and its refine especially in the shaping of the bass lines - reserves a raw quality that passes directly from the singer's body to the audience," a reviewer for Liberation Marseille, a European magazine, wrote.

Monk has won a number of awards including 16 American Soci ety of Composers, Authors and Pub lishers awards for composition; a National Music Theater Award; a Rockefeller Fellowship for distinguished choreography; a Bessie Award for sustained creative achievement; two German "best of the year" recording awards; two Vil lager awards for composition; and three Obie awards for theater.
