tell on the inexperienced W. and L. line and Gilroy and McQuade made two more touchdowns. Then Silverstein returned to the fray and from that time until the final whistle the honors were again with W. and L.

The Generals were extremely unfortunate in the matter of penalties for it seemed that at every critical stage of the game the eagle eyes of an official perceived some fault and the White and Blue were set back. One time this was especially noticeable. Larkin, standing on the goal line, was in the act of receiving a long pass from Moss which would have meant a touchdown for the Generals, when a Georgetown player interfered. When the plucky end called the attention of an official to this, W. and L. was penalized for not complaining through their captain.

In spite of the fact that the Generals were beaten, they outfought Georgetown at nearly every stage of the game, and were always coming up for more punishment. On the first play of the game Bethel was hurt but remained through the rest of the

ASSEMBLY HELD FOR U. B. CLUB

Dr. Smith Talks on "Our Alma Mater" and Organizes Club For This Year

The November University Assembly held last Wednesday which resulted in the formation of the University Boosters' club for this year, was addressed by President Henry Louis Smith on the subject, "Our Alma Mater." The President referred to a speech he had made at the first assembly of this session in which he named the four qualities which should characterize the life of students at Washington and Lee as gravity, simplicity, economy, and loyalty. He stated that he proposed to talk on this occasion of the last named quality, loyalty,—loyalty to the country and to Alma Mater.

In order to show their loyalty to the Food Administration at the present time the president recommended that the students request boarding housekeepers in Lexington to observe the meatless and wheatless days every week, and the student body unanimously passed such a resolution.

"But the Allies are not the only ones hard pressed; your Alma Mater needs you now more than ever," said the President in mentioning the second way in which the students could prove their loyalty at the present time. He said that all the technical and military schools were filled to overflowing throughout the nation but that the cultural institutions were Although clearly outplaying their opponents in three quarters of the game, the Generals fell before the mighty Gilroy and McQuade last Saturday, and Washington and Lee lost to Georgetown in Roanoke by the score of 20 to 12. At the end of the first half the contest stood 12 to 6 in favor of W. and L., but in the third period with Silverstein and Patterson out of the game, Georgetown rallied and her great backs plunged through the White and Blue line for the two touchdowns that won the day.

The Washington and Lee eleven fought with an adro that astonished even the most loyal supporters of the Generals. When the score was eight points against them in the fourth quarter this bunch of fighters by the hardest efforts carried the ball fifty yards straight down the field only to lose it finally through a single failure to make downs. Even then the Generals did not lose heart, and until the final whistle blew fought like demons to bring victory to Washington and Lee.

At the beginning of the contest the Generals rushed their opponents off their feet. Pierotti kicked off and in just ten plays W. and L. had wrested the ball from their opponents and with the aid of a beautiful pass from Moss to Larkin had scored the first touchdown. But the wind was too much for Pierotti and he failed to kick the goal.

The next counter came shortly in a similar fashion, a pass from Moss to Fain. Again W. and L. failed to kick goal. During this period the honors were clearly with Pierotti and his clan.

In the second period Georgetown, aided by a wonderful pass from Gilroy to Whelan, placed the ball on the 2-yard line, whence Gilroy bucked it over.

But in the third quarter the weight of the Blue and Gray backs began to

HARD BASKETBALL SCHEDULE AHEAD

Manager Paxton Has Arranged Big Games for Generals' Quint This Year

The schedule for the coming basketball season is very nearly completed and Manager Paxton announces a notable tentative list of opponents. Following the wonderful season carried through by the Generals last year, games with representative teams throughout the country have been easily secured and the men representing the White and Blue this season will run up against some tough opposition. Both Princeton and Lehigh offered games with W. and L. in Lexington, but had to be left out as their only open dates were before Christmas, and the Generals do not open their season until after the holidays.

Of the teams already signed up, Trinity of N. C. and Lebanon Valley were the hardest opponents of the White and Blue last year. A. and E. of North Carolina, Tennessee, University of North Carolina, Kentucky State, and Georgia will be met and in them the Generals will have opportunity to rub up against the best representative teams of the South. Snappy games are anticipated with Hampden Sidney and Roanoke College. The season closes with the scrappy Presbyterians from Davidson.

Two trips will be undertaken this year: to Lynchburg, where the Generals will meet the Red and Black warriors from Athens, Ga., and to Danville, where the University of North Carolina will be played. The signal success of the Generals in Lynchburg last year against the Commodores gives hope for as great an game. Craig Patterson was early forced to retire following a blow in the head. Moss played the larger part of the game when the average man would have given up, for this plucky back had a badly strained tendon in his leg, and had once been forced to support the feet of a heavy Georgetown player who was standing on his stomach. Silverstein was knocked out by a blow in the head which came after the whistle had blown to end the play. But in the last period he could not be longer kept out of the game and returned to add strength to the fighting Generals. Verily did the team fight and when the final whistle blew the enemy knew that they had been in a battle.

The game was replete with features, and it is almost impossible to pick out the stellar events, for both teams played wonderful football. The most noticeable feature for Washington and Lee was the accurate passing of Moss, whose offerings were well nigh perfect. The Generals successfully completed fourteen forward passes, Larkin leading in the receiving line, and at all times they had Georgetown much worried by the strength of their aerial attack. The bucking of Raines and Silverstein, and the heady generalship of Fain at quarter all contributed in the fierce offensive launched by Raftery's charges. On the defensive for W. and L. the work of Pierotti, Silverstein, and Larkin showed up particularly. The huge W. and L. captain was all over the field and put up one of the best games of his career. Not content with outclassing the Georgetown centre, he set about to outdo the whole opposing team and very nearly accomplished his task. Silverstein played a great game and was instrumental in stopping Gilroy and McQuade more than any other member of the team. Larkin as dependable in stopping the runs of the Georgetown backs and his punts averaged six yards more than those of Dudack.

For Georgetown on the defensive, the work of McQuade, Whelan, and Cody was especially marked. The Blue and Gray offensive may be summed up in three words: Gilroy, McQuade, Whalen. The latter made his team's first counter after receiving a forward pass.

The Generals' Team

Washington and Lee has had many football teams of which she was justly proud, for a long line of fighting Generals have carved for her a secure niche in the athletic hall of fame. In her Valhalla we find the famous team of 1906 which defeated Virginia on Lambeth field. There is also the eleven which in 1911 held V. P. I. to a tie score and thus broke the long winning streak of our ancient foes from Blacksburg. Then in rapid succession came the teams of the Riley, Dowd, and Elcock regime which put W. and L. on the football map, and furnished the spectacle of a small institution battling with those of more than twice her size.

Naturally during this time there have been brilliant football stars and brilliant football coaches at Washington and Lee.

But never in her history has the University had a team and coach of which she has more reason to be proud, and to whom more honors are due, than to the men now training on Wilson field.

Last September, while the war cloud hung over the country, many of the colleges finding their football squads decimated by the call of the government abandoning football. Washington and Lee found herself with but three veterans from her wonderful 1916 aggregation, whereas she was expecting at least twelve, and also learned that the greater part of her schedule was made up of teams which had suffered not nearly so much from the war as she had. But true to her ancient traditions the Generals resolved to carry out their program, not to win a championship, but simply because they must play the game through.

To solve this problem Washington and Lee called on one of her own sons who has had a large share in her athletic development in years past, and William C. Raftery '15 became the Generals' head coach. And in the person of this fighting Irishman Washington and Lee has found a spirit which is well nigh marvelous.

Raftery and his assistant Tex Bryan have taken men who last year would have scarcely made the squad, and developed them to fill the shoes of Ignico, Johnson, Moore and the others of the 1916 aggregation. From this green material these men have developed a football team which for fight and aggressiveness has never been surpassed on Wilson field, and which has gone forth uncaunted to meet the strongest machines in the country. They have been defeated, and once by a large score, but as Raftery says, "they will never be whipped."

And they never will.

Four W. and L. Songs

When it comes to music, even the most casual observer must admit that Washington and Lee is "there." No less than four songs have been composed for her especial benefit, three by her own sons, and the fourth by an ardent admirer of the institution and of Robert E. Lee. Each fills a distinct and definite need: the "Swing," "Onward for Alma Mater," "Washington and Lee All Hail," and "The Generals' Fighting Song."

The "Swing" is the Generals' rallying song, and beyond a doubt one of the best of its kind in existence. "Onward for Alma Mater" gives an outlet for the spirit of W. and L., while "Washington and Lee All Hail," written last year by Henry Hanby Hay, is in truth the W. and L. hymn, setting forth the noblest of our traditions. And last is the newcomer, whose utility has not yet been definitely determined; but from first appearance "The Generals' Fighting Song" seems worthy to take a place beside the others belonging to Washington and Lee. The last two of these songs are not yet well known on the campus, but time should bring forth their merits. Our University is fortunate in having so many harmonious outlets for the spirit of her students, and we cannot help but feel that it is this Washington and Lee spirit which has made possible the conception of such songs in the hearts of her sons and admirers.

Resolutions of Sympathy

Whereas God in his infinite wisdom has deemed it fit to call from this earth the brother of our friend and classmate, R. L. Hurst,

Be it Resolved, that we the members of the Senior class of Washington and Lee University, extend to him and to his family our heartfelt sympathy in their hours of sorrow.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and also published in the Ring-tum Phi.

Y. M. C. A.

A fairly good sized crowd of men attended the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night to hear Dr. John A. Rice from St. Louis, Mo., speak on "College Men, Get Ready."

In beginning his address Dr. Rice showed what an appalling responsibility rests on the American college men of today, calling to memory that the hope of the entire world rests on them, since so many of the men from the colleges of England, Canada and all Europe have been killed in the war. "It is up to the American college men to do something NOW," said the speaker, "and unless they get the spirit of Christ enthroned in the heart of human society, all is hopeless."

Dr. Rice mentioned four ways in which college men must "get ready" to face the great issue squarely. First, he mentioned, that they must be ready to think clearly and quickly. The world wants men that can buckle down to work. They must bring sparks from their brain cells that will mean something to society.

College men must be ready to be "doers" and not thinkers only. A man's genius is like a candle fly unless it is the genius of hard work. You must burn the midnight oil of life to amount to anything.

Dr. Rice mentioned as a third essential, that a man must be a "lover." He must sacrifice his wolfish hunger after knowledge for love, and must not only love his Saviour but also his fellow man.

Lastly a man must be ready to serve and save his fellow men for Christ. Dr. Rice closed his address by asking all that would know the simple and unvarnished truth about Jesus to study carefully the fifth, sixth, and seventh chapters of Matthew's gospel.

"ON TO ROANOKE" RALLY IS HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

The Economics room last Friday night was the scene of another of those pep inspiring rallies that are the custom on the campus prior to every game. The pep was certainly not lacking and enthusiasm reigned supreme. At seven thirty the Freshmen met in front of the main building and marched up to the Lyric to the music of the band. This was to remind the students that it was their duty to be at the rally.

Duke Lombardi introduced the speakers who were J. L. McChord, Coach Raftery, Pierotti, Bailey, Moss, Silverstein, Fox, Raines, W. O. Burtner, Ruffner Campbell '12, H. A. Holt, E. D. Campbell, and J. A. Witt. The speeches were all good and enjoyed by those present. During the program a telegram from the Roanoke Theater was read, inviting W. and L. men to attend the show that night.

Dr. Stevens Addresses Chemical Society

Dr. W. LeConte Stevens was the speaker at the meeting of the Chemical Society last Thursday night, choosing as his topic, "The Compressibility of Gases and their Critical Temperature." The meeting was held in the Physics lecture room where the speaker made frequent use of the lantern. Dr. Stevens told of the development in the methods of compressing gases, and the most interesting part of the lecture was the actual demonstration of passing a substance from a liquid into a gaseous state. Sulphur dioxide was the compound used, and those present could see the three states of aggregation projected on the screen.

W. AND L. MEN HAVE A BIG DAY IN ROANOKE

272 Students Make Trip to See the Game and Look the Magic City Over

For Washington and Lee Saturday was a big day in Roanoke despite the fact that the Generals lost the big game to Georgetown. But the students felt that they had nothing to be ashamed of and were loud in their praises of the team and coach.

There were 272 students and many townspeople on the special train which left the station at eight o'clock Saturday morning. When the "W. and L. Special" pulled into Roanoke they formed a line under the direction of Cheer Leader Lombardi and his assistants and paraded through the streets of the Magic City.

Many alumni were present to see the Generals battle with their ancient enemy, among them being the following:

F. W. McWane '13, J. H. Miller '14, H. K. Smartt '10, E. P. Barrow '17, J. B. Peery ex-'18, W. V. Birchfield '17, R. M. Curtis '16, J. C. Brown '15, J. C. Engleby '17, T. Hassel ex-'17, C. E. Burks '12, H. J. Hanna '13, M. P. Coe '15, Ruffner Campbell '12, J. L. Campbell '09, J. R. Oaskie '05, S. H. Staples '08, W. R. Staples '09, H. B. Gregory '11, P. H. Dillard '14, J. S. Riley '16, H. M. Moomaw '07, L. J. Boxley '09.

After the game the Roanoke alumni gave a dance to the teams and the visiting students in the Masonic Hall. This was the center of attraction for many of the men, though a good many gravitated toward the Roanoke Theater where they gave Keith's vaudeville the "once over." And at eight-thirty the special train pulled out of the station at Roanoke and established a record by arriving in Lexington before midnight.

On Other Campuses

The Y. W. C. A. of the University of West Virginia is giving a show this year. If successful they may make it an annual event.

Amherst Seniors have voted unanimously to abandon the annual Senior Ball for this year in order to show that the attitude of the class is against unnecessary social activities in these serious times.

Men taking the course in navigation at Princeton will take a sea trip during the Christmas vacation to get opportunities for practical work. The trip will be made to either Nassau or Key West, and observations will be made from the steamer during the voyage.

The girls of Agnes Scott have started a knitting club and now everything in school is absorbed in the various methods of taking the stitch and other intricacies of that art. "The Agonistic" even devotes more than a column of its valuable space to instructions for making sweaters, scarfs, wristlets, and socks.

The faculty of the University of Arizona played a game of football with the University Club of Tucson. Much to the surprise of everybody the game was a very interesting one. It seems that the players of former years had not forgotten their knowledge of the game, and "came back" in great form. Some of the players of both sides had been stars in their college careers and showed up here in their old time form.

BAND IS WELL UP TO THE STANDARD

Under Arnold's Leadership is Making Good Progress—Appears on Many Public Occasions

The W. and L. band under the leadership of L. D. Arnold has been making excellent progress. Director Arnold states that he is very much pleased with the progress the band has made so far and says that the members of the band deserve a great deal of credit for the interest they have shown in it. Frequent practices are held and the members have been attending regularly.

New supplies have been obtained for the band and the old snare drum has been replaced by a new one. In addition new music has been ordered and will arrive shortly. At present the band has thirteen or fourteen different selections in its repertoire. As soon as music can be procured the band will learn the "Generals' Fighting Song" which has been recently composed by L. T. Brown.

In its public appearances the band has shown itself to be one of the best that W. and L. has had for a long time. At the football rally last Friday and the parade through the town that night the band led the way. At the Georgetown game in Roanoke the band was at the head of the parade and at the game it did much in putting the fighting spirit in the Generals. At the drill of the W. and L. P. T. B. the band has also shown its worth.

The men composing the band, as organized a present, are as follows:

Director: L. D. Arnold.
Cornets: H. F. Madison, Jr., J. W. Child, W. J. Leftwich, C. M. Shetlon, and W. N. Jones.
Altos: W. P. McTaggart, D. C. Storey.
Clarinet: H. P. Bruns.
Trombone: J. P. Hill.
Baritones: G. A. Fritchie, and G. G. Child.
Tuba: J. G. Foster.
Snare Drum: J. T. Griffith.
Bass Drum: E. F. Garber.

HAWAIIAN ENTERTAINMENT IN LEXINGTON NEXT SATURDAY

Next Saturday night, Nov. 24, at 8.30 o'clock, the curtain at the High School auditorium will rise on what will probably be the biggest musical attraction of the season. At that time Bell's famous Hawaiians, under the auspices of Miss Annie White, give their musical satire in two parts. The attraction is elaborately staged and costumed, and the company brings scenery from its native country to add a greater touch of realism. Each of the eleven members of the company represent an artist and those, who have not been fortunate enough to hear a real Hawaiian organization are sure of enjoying a real treat. Princess Lehua bears the distinction of coming from the royal family of the island and her native dances are bringing forth much favorable comment.

The company is on a world tour and has every night booked until next spring, when it leaves for South America. Miss White was unusually fortunate in obtaining them and it was due to a mistake in dates that they were able to come to Lexington. Miss White is given a percentage of the door receipts, but she has generously offered to give this to the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross. The seats will be from fifty cents to a dollar, and are now on sale at Boley's Book Store.

hard hit by the war because it is in these schools that the flames of patriotism burned brightest and which contributed more to the forces now in the actual war work. He explained the financial embarrassment of the University due to the decreased number of students, and then outlined his plan for the U. B. Club which every student would have a chance to join. Cards for membership were passed around, and every student was given the opportunity to put his loyalty into practice by promising to help the University in various ways.

Dr. Smith announced the appointment of committees to take charge of the work in every state and it is their duty to present all information possible to the President concerning students who will go to college in the next five years. More detailed information about the club will be found in another section of this issue.

MISS MARY LEE GIVES CURIOS TO UNIVERSITY

A case containing many curios has been placed in the library by Miss Mary Lee. Since the Civil war, Miss Lee has lived abroad, travelling chiefly in England, Egypt and India, as well as in the European countries. The mementos and curios contained in the case were largely secured on her travels. Included in the box, is a wonderful camp chest. It seems that this chest, which contains a complete set of knives, cups, and other utensils needed on camping trips, all fitting in the case of blue velvet lining, was sent to General Lee from England slightly before the war. In some way the chest was captured and found a resting place in the New York customs house where it lay for years undiscovered. It was after his death that the chest was unearthed and sent to the General's family.

This gift from Miss Lee is greatly appreciated by the University as it is a valuable addition to the collection of curios and of other mementos.

PRACTICALLY ALL JOIN U. B. CLUB

Students Sign Cards at University Assembly—115 Check Every Section

The results of the organization of the U. B. Club at the University Assembly Wednesday, as gleaned from statistics on the cards signed there were very encouraging. It was found that practically everyone present had joined the club, and an unusually large number of men checked all the sections.

There were two hundred and sixteen men who agreed to section one, reading, "I will have marked in my town phone book the names of parents having one or more boys who may within the next five years go to college, and will place the book in the hands of the President as soon as possible."

Those promising to place a list of the Seniors in their preparatory schools, with their home addresses, in the President's hands numbered two hundred and seventy-one.

Two hundred and seventy-three agreed as loyal members of their state teams, or any other sub-division of the U. B. Club to help carry out any work selected by their leaders.

The number who pledged themselves at all times to endeavor to promote the welfare, prosperity, and efficiency, not only of the student body, but of the University as a whole was three hundred and fourteen.

Three hundred declared they would at all times use their best endeavors to see that property and equipment of the University, including its grass, grounds, walks, buildings, and apparatus, should be kept in the best possible condition.

The students assaying to select and look after one of their schoolmates numbered a hundred and eighty one and those agreeing to place a copy of the membership card on the walls of their rooms was two hundred and eighty-three.

The number to check all of the sections was surprisingly large, being one hundred and fifteen. It was found that the students who checked six of the sections numbered one hundred; those to check five were seventy two; to check four, twenty-two; to check three, thirteen; to check two were two; and to check one, none. There were eleven who signed the cards, but failed to designate the branches of work they would carry out. Together with those who were absent, but who will undoubtedly join, the U. B. Club will probably include practically every student in the University.

Wilbur C. Hall, LL. B. '14 won a seat in the Virginia House of Delegates at the November election by an overwhelming majority. He will represent Loudoun and Fauquier counties.

EXTENDED ORDER DRILL CONTINUED BY BATTALION

Hikes and Field Problems form Order of the Day—Upperclassmen Ask for Credit

There has been no let up in the work of the battalion during the past two weeks. Although no new subject has been taken up the men have been kept busy with reviewing the close order drill and in becoming more thorough in extended order. Since Wilson field has proved too small for all three companies to drill at one time, they have been taking turn about in using the field while two have drilled in the lots back of the grand stand. Instead of the lecture which was to have been held each week it has been deemed advisable to use that time for hikes and so each Thursday the entire battalion has been marched out to the neighborhood of Liberty Hall and there given field problems in extended order. The Friday officers' drill has been of much the same nature as the Thursday battalion drill the officers being formed in a company and drilled in extended order out on Cave Hill.

Hitherto there has been no mark on the uniform to distinguish the officers from the privates, but the insignia of rank have now come and are being worn by most of the officers.

Owing to the fact that the military drill takes up so much time especially from the laboratory work and for the upper classmen, the Juniors and Seniors have presented a petition to the faculty asking that three points credit be given for the course. This matter came up before the faculty at their weekly meeting on Monday and was referred to a committee. Their report will probably be acted on in about two weeks.
