'I DIDN'T KILL KING,' RAY TELLS CONGRESS

Thousands Pay Homage to Elvis

Under Oath

Ray Denies He Murdered King

WASHINGTON (AP)—James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

Ray, in his first public accounting under oath of the events surrounding the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader, told the House assassinations committee: "My testimony is the same that I would have given to a Memphis trial court if I had had that opportunity."

The 50-year-old Ray, accompanied by a phalanx of U.S. marshals, was brought into the committee's chamber under severe security provisions. Spectators, including photographers, were cautioned they would be expelled if they so much as stood while Ray, wearing an ill-fitting sport coat and gray tie, entered the room.

After his attorney, long-time assassinations buff and writer Mark Lane, engaged acting chairman Richardson Preyer in battle over Ray's treatment by federal authorities, Ray launched into a long and rambling preliminary statement, his voice quick but halting.

Ray pleaded guilty in 1969 to King's killing but almost immediately recanted that confession after receiving a 99-year sentence in a Tennessee state prison.

"In respect to my guilty plea," he said, "it is not a difficult matter for an attorney to move his client to a guilty plea. I'm sure every member of this committee knows this."

Ray's attorney at the time of his sentencing was Percy Foreman, a nationally known trial lawyer.

Then Ray turned to what apparently will be the underlying theme of his claim to innocence: that he was a mere pawn in what he thought was a gun-running scheme by a mystery man named "Raoul" and may have been set up, moreover, by undercover operations of the FBI. The story is one which Ray has long aired via prison interviews.

Tribute Draws Faithful

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13½-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose (See ELVIS, Page A2)

Pair Freed Of Teen-age Sex Charges

Charges of crimes against children which led to the arrest of two local men earlier this month have been dropped in the Harbor Judicial District Court.

Christian Vart Sahagian, 21, a transient who police said frequents the Huntington Beach Pier and David Wooten, 43, of 3882 Claremont St., Irvine, were taken into custody by Newport Beach along with a 13-year-old girl.

Police alleged the child's sexual services had been involved in dealings between the two men.

However, those charges were dropped by court officials when the teen-age girl, a runaway from Chicago, was taken back to Illinois by her parents.

However, Wooten in his court appearance Tuesday was arraigned on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He is scheduled to return to the municipal court for a pre-trial conference on the misdemeanor charge on Sept. 11.

Nixons Become Grandparents in Clemente

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his grand-daughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Hundreds to Mourn Thompson

Hundreds of mourners are anticipated Friday at funeral services for star Fountain Valley High School quarterback Doug Thompson, who was fatally injured in a car crash Monday en route to college.

Spokesmen for the Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminster, where the 2:30 p.m. rites are scheduled, said chairs and a public address system are being set up outside.

The spacious chapel, large enough to accommodate most funeral services, will be filled well beyond overflowing, by present estimates.

"We've had many, many telephone calls asking about the time and I even got quite a few myself at home," said a mortuary spokesman.

Thompson, 17, an honor student and engineer of the Barons' 1977 Sunset League championship season, was killed instantly in a rollover accident 40 miles outside Blythe.

His teammate, halfback Willie Gittens, 18, also of Fountain Valley, suffered head injuries and has been transferred to a hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., for further observation.

Gittens was driving their sports car en route to pre-season training at Arizona State University at Tempe, where both had won Sun Devil football scholarships when the accident occurred.

California Highway Patrol investigators theorize Gittens, 1977 Large Schools Division Player of the Year, fell asleep at the wheel.

Rites honoring Thompson Friday are expected to draw classmates and players from rival schools.

"I think we can anticipate a tremendous outpouring of friendship," says Fountain Valley High School Activities Director Bob Ferguson.

The funeral chapel is on Bolsa Avenue just west of Beach Boulevard, and rites will be followed by interment at nearby Westminster Memorial Park.

Carter 'Concerned' Over Dollar Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter expressed "deep concern" today over the decline of the U.S. dollar abroad and called for recommendations for action from top financial advisors.

Carter, in a statement issued at the White House, said he had been discussing the matter with Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and with William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The sharp decline in the dollar and disorderly market conditions, at a time when the U.S. trade position is showing signs of real improvement, could threaten progress toward dealing with our inflation and achieving orderly growth at home and abroad," the statement said.

The dollar slipped back today on Europe's money markets but stayed above the record lows hit in trading Tuesday. It did somewhat better in Tokyo.

"It looks as if that one-day dollar recovery is now over," a London trader said.

The dollar's renewed weakness pushed up the price of gold, a traditional hedge for investors in times of monetary uncertainty, but it failed to reach the record high set Tuesday.

The metal was trading this morning at $215.50 an ounce in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, and $215.70 in London.

Tuesday was one of the worst days in recent memory for the battered dollar, which set record lows against the Japanese yen, Swiss franc and West German mark. But a reaction set in by afternoon, mostly due to profit-taking, dealers said, and the dollar pulled back.

Carter's statement was the first from the White House in weeks on the plight of the dollar, which the past year has lost more than 30 percent in value against the Japanese yen, 33 percent against the Swiss franc and 15 percent against the German mark.

The decline in the dollar has pushed up prices of imported goods from those countries, such as autos, steel and electronics equipment, which has worsened the nation's inflation rate at a time when the administration is trying to find ways to control rising prices.

It was not clear what kind of measures the administration could take to stop the fall in the dollar. One possibility would be to step up intervention in currency markets to buy dollars with foreign currencies to create demand and thus prop up the price.

breaking out of Missouri State Prison in 1967 and traveling in zig-zag fashion to St. Louis, the Chicago area, Indianapolis and ultimately to Canada, where he spent one night with a prostitute and robbed her pimp the next day — then met "Raoul" by chance on the Montreal docks.

In return for money and a never-fulfilled promise of travel documents, Ray said he carried items across the Canadian and Mexican borders for the Spanish-accented "Raoul," who had mysterious telephone numbers in New Orleans and no last name Ray could remember.

After smuggling the items, which Ray did not specifically identify, he said he went to Los Angeles, took a bartending course, tried unsuccessfully to go to work for the Internal Revenue Service, traveled to New Orleans to agree to the gun-running scheme with the mystery man — and ultimately returned to Los Angeles.

"I was taking a lock-picking — rather a locksmith course at this time," Ray told the committee.

At another point, he said: "I robbed the — I was robbed of a watch."

He told of trying to contact a girl who advertised herself in an underground Los Angeles newspaper "as a nymphomaniac." Apologetically, Ray added, "Of course, I had been in jail for about six years."

Without detailing any actual gun-running, Ray said he renewed the relationship with "Raoul" and purchased a rifle in Birmingham, Ala., purportedly for eventual shipment to Mexico. With that rifle, Ray said he drove to Memphis, Tenn., in a red Mustang, arriving in the city where King was staying April 3, 1968.

He and Raoul took a room, which, as it happened, was across from King's motel, and discussed returning to Birmingham to buy more guns," Ray said. He also shopped unsuccessfully for telescopic sights while in Memphis, he said.

Ray said that, at Raoul's suggestion on April 4, that he "take in a movie" he was out killing time, including getting his Mustang, allegedly paid for by Raoul, serviced several blocks from the rooming house when he saw rushing police cars and other emergency activity in the area.

former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their daughter Jennie because it sounds like Julie, but isn't.

"Julie didn't want to have another 'Julie,'" he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement into his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican Dennis Carpenter.

And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 6 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airporter Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972.

Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidential nomination.

Schmitz said he didn't change party affiliation until after his AIP presidential nomination.

In a paraphrase of the well-known Schmitz' remark about the first Nixon trip to Communist China, Cordova quipped, "I'm informed by my Republican friends they took no exception to John Schmitz leaving the Republican Party, only to his return."

But Schmitz pointed to his endorsement "by all Republican groups" and county GOP leaders to prove he has "mended fences" with the party.

Cordova wouldn't let up on his attack on Schmitz' political travels, however.

The Democratic assemblyman said that, unlike his foe, his political epitaph will not read, "Have campaign, will travel."

Schmitz retaliated to the barbs by recounting his 2½-year record as a congressman and 5½ years as a state senator.

Included in the record cited by him was support of efforts by Jarvis to reform the state's property tax laws, efforts that date back to the mid-1960s.

Schmitz also said he is probably the only congressman ever sent to Washington who saved the taxpayers more money than he cost.

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Murder-suicide

Parents' Battle Ends in Deaths

LA GRANGE HIGHLANDS, Ill. (AP) — A newly divorced couple apparently engaged in a final fight that left blood spattered from room to room in their home and ended in murder and suicide, police said.

An officer, called to investigate late Tuesday, said he looked into the front window of the home belonging to William and Suzanne Donnelly, and saw their 4-year-old daughter, Brandie, "standing in the blood in the living room trying to wake her mother."

Mrs. Donnelly, 28, had been stabbed 11 times in the abdomen, five times in the throat and once in the chest. A kitchen knife and three table forks were found next to the body, police said.

Donnelly, 33, was found in an adjacent garage, his head placed under the exhaust pipe of a car with the engine still running. Police said he had cuts on his wrists and had apparently tried to slash them.

Authorities said every room in the suburban home west of Chicago was covered with blood and that a partial barricade of furniture had been put up in the hallway. They speculated that the couple fought each other throughout the dwelling. The daughter was unharmed.

Neighbors said the Donnellys quarreled frequently and police recently had been called to the home to quiet a disturbance. They said after the divorce Donnelly stayed on until an apartment he had rented could be readied.

Deaths End Argument

Truck Drivers' Flap Kills 2, Injures 7

NEW HILL, N.C. (AP) — A tavern argument between two men over whose pickup truck was more powerful turned deadly early today when one of them drove his truck at high speed through the parking lot, killing two men and injuring at least seven, authorities said.

The driver was injured minutes later when he was chased off the highway by a witness in another vehicle and his truck exploded in flames.

The driver, identified as James Carl Adams Jr., 26, of Princeton, N.C., was pulled from the cab and underwent surgery at Wake-Medical Center for internal and facial injuries. His condition was not immediately known.

It was not immediately known if any charges had been filed. The dead men were Dale Logue, 22, and David Simpson, both construction workers at Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Shearon Harris nuclear plant site near here.

The state Highway Patrol said Adams and another man were arguing at Victor's Grill on old U.S. 1 over whose truck was the more powerful.

Witnesses said the two planned to chain their trucks together by their rear ends and stage a tug of war. But the contest didn't start evenly, and Adams' opponent's truck was damaged.

Life Support To Remain for Comatose Boy

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A judge ruled today that a comatose 12-year-old boy must remain connected to life-support equipment despite a petition from his father to unplug him.

Norfolk County Probate Court Judge Jeremiah Sullivan claimed that evidence was not conclusive that the brain of Louis Stone was dead. He had been in a coma since July 2 when struck in the heart by a BB accidentally shot by his father. The boy is at Goddard Memorial Hospital in Stoughton.

The father, Neville Stone, 49, said Monday he wanted the boy removed from devices keeping him breathing. He switched from testimony July 26 in which he pleaded with the judge to keep the boy on a respirator.

"A vegetable," Stone said, "I can't live with seeing him like that."

Myra Stone, Louis' mother, had said she wanted her son to remain on the equipment.

A fight reportedly ensued and Adams drove off.

"Everybody thought he was going home," said a witness, Elton McCall of Henderson. "But he done a three-point-turn up the road and came back running wide open."

"Everybody started yelling, 'He's coming back. He's coming back!'"

Bystanders tried to flee as the truck roared into the parking area.

"They just knocked them every which way," said Trooper R. W. Isley, a Highway Patrol investigator.

At least seven persons were being treated for fractures, cuts and internal injuries at Wake Medical Center.

CREATOR PAYNE INSPECTS SHATTERED 'CORN GOD' At Orange Coast College, a Costly Act of Vandalism

'God' Toppled $900 Vandalism at OCC

By JACKIE HYMAN Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange Coast College instructor William O. Payne estimates it may cost as much as $900 to restore a campus landmark that was vandalized last month.

IT WAS A replica of a Mayan maize god that stood in front of the OCC Art Gallery, greeting thousands of students since 1952.

"Students and faculty members alike had a lot of fun with our 'corn god,'" said William O. Payne, who created the six-foot ceramic, cement-backed piece with student Wallace Parker.

"One of his hands was cupped and extended," said Payne. "Mayans used to put offerings in that hand. I think in my 25 years here at OCC I collected $1.31 in pennies from that hand. I also flipped innumerable cigarette butts out of his mouth."

THE STATUE, valued at $3,000, was broken July 28 by a vandal who also pushed over a metal statue, which was not damaged.

A gardener and a professor captured a suspect, who was turned over to Costa Mesa police, Payne said.

Payne, a pre-Columbian pottery expert who has worked as a potter-archaeologist in Mexico, said it would take several months to restore the statue and would require creating several new panels.

PAYNE SAID the statue, created for the dedication of the college's Art Center complex, was an exact replica of a Mayan god found in Copan, Honduras which had been carved in limestone about 800 A.D.

The OCC statue included glyphs or raised carvings of Mayan dates. "We know the date system, but we don't know the writing system yet," explained Payne. "That's one of the mysteries of the world."

Paul R. Cox, chairman of OCC's Division of Fine Arts, is reportedly looking into ways of raising the $900 to fund the restoration.

"THE STATUE had really become a campus celebrity," a college spokesman quoted Cox as saying. "It was the first outdoor art piece to be placed on the campus. Following its destruction, many students and faculty members have expressed a real sense of loss."

The reason for the vandalism isn't known, Payne said.

Child-sex Charges Dropped by Court

Charges of crimes against children which led to the arrest of two local men earlier this month have been dropped in the Harbor Judicial District Court.

Christian Vart Sahagian, 21, a transient who police said frequents the Huntington Beach Pier and David Wooten, 43, of 3882 Claremont St., Irvine, were taken into custody by Newport Beach along with a 13-year-old girl.

Supermarkets Busy

Shoppers Stock Up as Strike Threatens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Results of the vote were to be known this afternoon, and a strike could begin anytime after 12:01 Saturday, 48 hours after the clerks' contract expires.

Mesa Nears Choice for New Homes

Costa Mesa City Council members are closing in on potential sites for about 50 moderately-priced housing units that would be built with the help of about $750,000 in federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds.

Two members of the city's Housing and Community Development Committee presented the City Council with a list of 16 possible sites Monday.

There was some disagreement among council members as to the best sites, but the council eventually directed the housing committee to get appraisals on three sites. They are:

— A 2.27-acre commercially-zoned parcel on Wilson Street. The strip of land is between the parking area of the Harbor Shopping Center and the Harbor Racquet Club.

— A 1.69 acre site in the 200 block of Victoria Street across the street from Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital.

— A 2.7-acre parcel on the south side of Paularino Avenue at Yellowstone Drive. The parcel currently is under a city-imposed building freeze because of an unsettled dispute over city plans to put a new road through the area.

The latter site was opposed by Councilwoman Arlene Schafer, who said the Wilson Street site is closer to existing parks, schools and shopping facilities.

The city housing committee will now appraise the sites and contact property owners to see if they are interested in making use of federal funding for lower cost housing.

If an agreement can be reached, the city would use a portion of its $750,000 in federal funds to help the developer with construction costs.

By reducing the construction cost of the project, the management would be able to keep rents at lower levels, city officials said.

The local housing committee will return to the council in September with preliminary reports on negotiations concerning the preferred sites

FANS OF ELVIS PRESLEY WEEP OPENLY AS THEY LEAVE GRAVESITE IN MEMPHIS On First Anniversary of the King's Death, 12,000 Expected at Cemetery

Thousands Mourn Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13 1/2-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MacChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Priscilla, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Also awaiting the fans in the 90-degree heat was a row of air conditioned souvenir shops and roving soda pop sellers.

Mesa Park Users To Pay Fees Soon

Harbor Area youth athletic teams that have been using lighted Costa Mesa playing fields free of charge may soon be paying for the privilege.

It's not only because of passage of Proposition 13, city leisure services Director Keith Van Holt told council members Monday afternoon, but because of "abusiveness" of the city's hospitality.

In the past, Costa Mesa, unlike some cities, hasn't charged groups like the American Youth Soccer Organization, Harbor Area Baseball or Junior All-American Football to practice or play under the lights.

As a result, the fields are sometimes being reserved and then utilized by out-of-towners to avoid fees charged in their own cities, Van Holt revealed.

The Newport-Mesa Unified School District used to pay for lights at TeWinkle School or the tennis courts at Estancia High, but those costs have been passed on to the city as a result of Proposition 13.

Van Holt estimated it costs the city between $2 and $3 an hour for electricity plus the manpower needed to keep an eye on the switches.

And sometimes, the teams leave early and the lights stay on for no reason.

Van Holt would like to avoid charging the youth groups, but City Manager Fred Sorsabal said he believes there should be no exceptions.

"Perhaps this year we don't need it," said Sorsabal, suggesting that user fees be considered in January or next July.

However, he said the council should discuss the fees at their first meeting in September to gear up for the expected protests.

Fountain Valley is now considering a $10 per hour per night fee for the use of lighted fields, said Sorsabal.

Irvine currently charges for the use of its playing fields, even for daytime use, he added.

Schmitz, Cordova Open Debate

By GARY GRANVILLE Of the Daily Pilot Staff

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement into his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican Dennis Carpenter.

And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 8 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airporter Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972.

Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidency. (See DEBATE, Page A2)

Colleges' Budgets Trimmed

Coast Community College District officials reported today that a total of $7.2 million has been shaved from the district's 1978-79 budget, which will now total about $69.5 million.

That represents a cut of 9.2 percent from last year's $76.5 million budget, a district spokesman said.

Correllan Thompson, the district's business affairs vice chancellor, said cuts have been made by reducing staff, replacing less equipment and supplies, and cutting contract services, maintenance and operations and capital outlay.

In addition, although basic education tuition remains free, Thompson said taxpayers will no longer underwrite free lectures, seminars, concerts, entertainment, athletic programs and non-academic courses to the tune of $1.3 million per year.

Instead, admissions fees will now be charged for such events.

In addition, District Chancellor Norman E. Watson has formed a fund-raising committee to investigate alternative sources of income. Trustees are currently discussing a fee schedule for public use of district facilities.

Some specific cost reductions have included leaving personnel vacancies unfilled, cutting conference and membership expenditures, reducing the number of hourly employees and charging more for transportation.

The budget is expected to be given final approval Sept. 7.

Mesan Charged In Holdup

A Costa Mesa woman who police allege used a knife to rob a gas station near the Costa Mesa-Newport Beach border Tuesday afternoon was arrested within minutes by plainclothes Newport Beach officers who spotted her walking along Irvine Avenue, Costa Mesa police said.

In custody today at Orange County Jail on an armed robbery charge is 24-year-old Mary Susan Rowan, 467 Costa Mesa St. She is being held in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Costa Mesa investigators allege the woman walked up to Arco service station attendant Salvatore Princeado at about 2:15 p.m. and asked for change for a quarter.

When Princeado, 55, opened the cash register, she allegedly revealed a knife and said "I want this money."

Police said he handed over about $25 but not before tearing one $10 bill in half. The woman left the service station at 490 E. 17th St. on foot, police said.

Shortly after a radio bulletin was issued, Miss Rowan was taken into custody by Newport Beach police officers Mike Hietala and Al Fischer, Costa Mesa investigators said.

They recovered a knife and cash, including a $10 bill that had been torn in half.

FORMER PRESIDENT AND MRS. NIXON AT HOSPITAL
Tricia Cox Also There to Greet Her New Niece

Daddy Eisenhower Elated by Jennie

By ANNE COOPER

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice: "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their daughter Jennie because it sounds like Julie, but isn't.

"Julie didn't want to have another 'Julie,'" he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time—we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be

even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

FOOD...

Employers Council said store officials were not optimistic about avoiding a walkout.

"The unions are threatening to strike, and we believe them," he said.

The 15 chains involved are Albertsons, Alpha Beta, Arden Mayfair, Boys, Certified Grocers, Hughes, A.M. Lewis, Lucky Stores, Market Basket, Ralphs, Safeway, Smiths Food King, Stater Bros., Thriftmart and Vons.

For several weeks, the markets have had signs in their windows advertising for clerks, with no experience necessary. By Tuesday, said Voigt, "between 15,000 and 20,000" persons had agreed to take jobs as soon as a strike begins, and some stores already were training them.

LAD REQUIRES MORE 'STUDY'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Child Guidance Clinic plans a little more counseling for a 10-year-old boy treated briefly for being a kleptomaniac.

While he was under study this week, police say, the youngster swiped $300 from the counselor's desk.

Airport Study Denied

By PHILIP ROSMARIN

The Federal Aviation Administration has, for the second time, refused an Irvine politician's request that it conduct a comprehensive investigation of air traffic safety at Orange County Airport.

The first time City Councilman Larry Agran asked for the study, he was a candidate for the municipal office.

Alarmed by 10 aircraft accidents in or near the airport in which 17 people died, he pleaded an obvious need to study the overall pattern of safety.

Agran claimed to get no response from the FAA, and instead learned it had turned him down only after reading press reports that the agency intended no action and was satisfied with its method of investigating individual crashes.

Actually, though the FAA investigates most non-fatal air accidents, the National Transportation Safety Board has the main responsibility for investigating all airplane accidents.

The FAA is charged with instituting accident prevention methods.

Since the councilman's initial request, several incidents prompted Agran to write again.

F.A. Allen, chief of the FAA flight standards district office in Long Beach, replied a few days ago.

As before, Allen indicated there is a continual review of accident statistics with accident prevention in mind.

But, said Allen, "In view of specific accident investigations previously conducted and the ongoing accident prevention activities, it does not appear that a comprehensive investigation or further review of Orange County Airport accidents would be productive at this time."

Allen said also, "As you know, Orange County Airport is one of the busiest airports in the nation."

"Numbers of aircraft and operations continue to rise, with a corresponding increase in accidents and fatalities."

For Agran, that explanation wasn't good enough. It is those very numbers of aircraft and their relation to accidents that he wants explored.

So for a third time, he has asked both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board "to undertake the kind of thorough investigation necessary to provide the maximum safety to those citizens who use the Orange County Airport and to those who live and work near it."

Agran has said he believes despite the toll in lives, the crash record at the airport has been a lucky one.

According to him, it is only a matter of time before an airplane crashes into an occupied school, industrial or commercial building.

Viejo Firm Fights Housing Proposal

By KATHY CLANCY

Mission Viejo Company officials told Orange County Planning Commissioners Tuesday they don't want to be singled out by the county to build so-called affordable housing.

Company Vice President David Celestin said he opposes a county proposal that would require his firm to build up to 2,500 of Mission Viejo's remaining 10,000 units in the low and moderate income ranges.

"The Mission Viejo Company does support the concept of affordable housing," Celestin said.

He also said the company would "go along with" whatever housing policies supervisors adopt early next year for all of the unincorporated area.

Newport Cop Trainee Dies After Crash

Newport Beach Police Department trainee Gordon Roberts, 27, died Tuesday afternoon at Fountain Valley Community Hospital of injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident Monday.

The Navy veteran, just a month short of graduation from the Los Angeles Police Department Academy, sustained multiple injuries when his personal motorcycle rammed a parked car.

Investigators said he was not wearing a protective helmet when he collided with the vehicle on Daisy Avenue, not far from the neighborhood where he lived in Fountain Valley.

Spokesmen at Pacific View Memorial Park in Corona del Mar said today funeral services are tentatively set for 10 a.m. Friday in their chapel.

Roberts was leaving a bachelor party for his best friend, Newport Beach Police Officer Tom Little, when the accident occurred.

The victim leaves his wife, who is expecting their second child, and a 5-year-old daughter.

'Didn't Kill King,' Ray Claims

Crowds To Mourn Athlete

Hundreds of mourners are anticipated Friday at funeral services for star Fountain Valley High School quarterback Doug Thompson, who was fatally injured in a car crash Monday en route to college.

Spokesmen for the Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminster, where the 2:30 p.m. rites are scheduled, said chairs and a public address system are being set up outside.

The spacious chapel, large enough to accommodate most funeral services, will be filled well beyond overflowing, by present estimates.

"We've had many, many telephone calls asking about the time and I even got quite a few myself at home," said a mortuary spokesman.

Thompson, 17, an honor student and engineer of the Barons' 1977 Sunset League championship season, was killed instantly in a rollover accident 40 miles outside Blythe.

His teammate, halfback Willie Gittens, 18, also of Fountain Valley, suffered head injuries and has been transferred to a hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., for further observation.

Gittens was driving their sports car en route to pre-season training at Arizona State University at Tempe, where both had won Sun Devil football scholarships.

California Highway Patrol investigators theorize Gittens, 1977 Large Schools Division Player of the Year, fell asleep at the wheel.

Rites honoring Thompson Friday are expected to draw classmates and players from rival schools.

"I think we can anticipate a tremendous outpouring of friendship," says Fountain Valley High School Activities Director Bob Ferguson.

The funeral chapel is on Bolsa Avenue just west of Beach Boulevard, and rites will be followed by interment at nearby Westminster Memorial Park.

Thompson, whose coaches say he was just beginning to blossom as a terrific athlete and possible professional football prospect, came from a close-knit family.

Agencies Get Funds, But Budgets Cut

Fifty-seven Orange County social service agencies were guaranteed at least one more month of county revenue sharing funds Tuesday.

But on a 4-1 vote the County Board of Supervisors also trimmed the agencies' combined $96,365-a-month budgets by 10 percent in preparation for cuts that may be needed later because of Proposition 13.

Supervisors also said the one-month extension doesn't guarantee that the agencies will receive any revenue sharing dollars from the county for the remainder of 1978-79.

The agencies provide such services as meals for senior citizens, child care and aid to the needy.

Supervisor Philip Anthony cast the lone vote against a 10 percent budget cut for the agencies saying each program should be weighed separately.

However, Supervisor Ralph Clark said county departments have been told to operate this year with at least 10 percent less funds and the community social services agencies should follow the same rules.

Burned Up Classic Car Destroyed

A South Laguna man with an aching heart stood by the roadside in Huntington Beach Tuesday night and watched his 90 percent-restored 1958 Mercedes-Benz luxury sedan burn.

The classic auto, today a charred shell, was valued at up to $20,000 due to the restoration investment, according to George Thomas of 6 Treasure Island.

Fire Department Inspector Gary Glenn said a friend was test-driving the luxury sedan southbound on Brookhurst Street near Pacific Coast Highway about 9:30 p.m. when fire erupted.

Glory Earned Dory Racers Also Got Blisters

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lifeguards from the Orange Coast covered themselves with glory; blisters and some other things during the annual Catalina to Long Beach dory race this past weekend.

THE GRUELING event pitted 11 teams of lifeguards against one another in a 28-mile rowing race from the Isthmus of Catalina to the Long Beach marina.

The winning performance was turned in by the team from the San Clemente City Lifeguard Department. Al Lavayen, 22, and Barney Voorhees, 31, crossed the finish line in five hours, 10 minutes, just eight minutes off the record set last year by Steve Helfer and Larry Moore of San Clemente.

Right behind them was the boat rowed by Tom Snyder and Scott Stuart from San Clemente State Beach.

STEVE WENGER and Eric Bauer from Newport's Marine Department had the dubious distinction of finishing dead last.

"Yeah, they even finished behind Laguna Beach," snickered organizer Bob Schroeder, a Los Angeles County lifeguard. Laguna's team consisted of the oldest entrant, Bruce Beard, 47, and 17-year-old Ingrid Loos, the only female in the race. Beard and Loos finished a respectable eighth.

Schroeder didn't mention where he and his teammate finished in the race. Voorhees said the LA County team gave his San Clemente boat a real race for about half the 28-mile distance. "Then they just broke, got sick and started throwing up," Voorhees said.

AFTER THAT IT was a fairly easy pull to the finish across glassy seas protected from the sun most of the time by high overcast.

Voorhees, who's been with the San Clemente Department for four seasons, said the race was his first — and his last. "A lot of people do it just to say they've done it and a lot of people do it to win. I've done both, so I can quit now."

It's not that the Laguna Beach resident didn't enjoy the race, although he admits that he was a little uncomfortable about six miles from the finish when the sun came out.

THE REAL PROBLEM occurred after the race was over. Voorhees and Lavayen had a little hand trouble. "It wasn't that we had blisters. We had pretty good calluses built up."

"It's just that our hands were really tired. We could barely move them to open a bottle," he explained.

The bottles, of course, were congratulatory beers the thirsty rowers were anxious to consume. Not to worry about the poor lifeguards. Race fans helped them open the bottles and even obligingly poured the contents into their parched mouths.

Tax Anticipation Note Sale Accepted

The sale of $20 million worth of property tax anticipation notes has been unanimously approved by Orange County Supervisors.

County Tax Collector-Treasurer Robert Citron reported that Bank of America offered the low bid of 4.71 percent for the notes.

The county borrows funds each year to carry government activities through the so-called dry period before property tax payments are received in the fall.

Citron compared the 4.71 percent bid to the bid of 4.95 percent received by San Diego County and 4.98 percent by Los Angeles County.

He attributed changing market conditions and the county's strong AAA credit rating from Moody's Investors Service for the lower interest rate.

"This is evidenced by the fact that last year Orange County government had the lowest tax rate of any county, not only in this state but for any large urban area, and yet was able to adequately provide all the services needed," he said.

Citron noted county government's 1977-78 tax rate was $1.33 per $100 assessed valuation compared to Los Angeles County's $4.50 tax rate.

He said interest on the $20 million in notes will cost $775,807.

But the funds will be reinvested for short terms at higher-yielding rates, he explained, so the county's interest charge and other expenses will be paid without cost to taxpayers.

Other bids received for the county notes were from Wells Fargo Bank, at 4.72 percent; Payne Weber, 4.745 percent; Security Pacific Bank, 4.758 percent and Chemical Bank, 4.96 percent.

Testifies Before Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

Ray, in his first public accounting under oath of the events surrounding the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader, told the House assassinations committee: "My testimony is the same that I would have given to a Memphis trial court if I had had that opportunity."

The 50-year-old Ray, accompanied by a phalanx of U.S. marshals, was brought into the committee's chamber under severe security provisions. Spectators, including photographers, were cautioned they would be expelled if they so much as stood while Ray, wearing an ill-fitting sport coat and gray tie, entered the room.

After his attorney, long-time assassinations buff and writer Mark Lane, engaged acting chairman Richardson Preyer in battle over Ray's treatment by federal authorities, Ray launched into a long and rambling preliminary statement, his voice quick but halting.

Ray pleaded guilty in 1969 to King's killing but almost immediately recanted that confession after receiving a 99-year sentence in a Tennessee state prison.

"In respect to my guilty plea," he said, "it is not a difficult matter for an attorney to move his client to a guilty plea. I'm sure every member of this committee knows this."

Ray's attorney at the time of his sentencing was Percy Foreman, a nationally known trial lawyer.

Then Ray turned to what apparently will be the underlying theme of his claim to innocence: that he was a mere pawn in what he thought was a gun-running scheme by a mystery man named "Raoul" and may have been set up, moreover, by undercover operations of the FBI. The story is one which Ray has long aired via prison interviews.

Ray told the committee about breaking out of Missouri State Prison in 1967 and traveling in zig-zag fashion to St. Louis, the Chicago area, Indianapolis and ultimately to Canada, where he spent one night with a prostitute and robbed her pimp the next day — then met "Raoul" by chance on the Montreal docks.

In return for money and a never-fulfilled promise of travel documents, Ray said he carried items across the Canadian and Mexican borders for the Spanish-accented "Raoul," who had mysterious telephone numbers in New Orleans and no last name Ray could remember.

After smuggling the items, which Ray did not specifically identify, he said he went to Los Angeles, took a bartending course, tried unsuccessfully to go to work for the Internal Revenue Service, traveled to New Orleans to agree to the gun-running scheme with the mystery man — and ultimately returned to Los Angeles.

Service Districts Split $12.4 Million

Orange County supervisors have managed to divide $12.4 million in state aid 60 ways to help special service districts cope with property tax lost because of Proposition 13.

As a result, county officials said today, the library, street sweeping, bug control and community service districts will get nearly 80 percent of the funds they lost because of the property tax limitation initiative.

Supervisors rejected a staff proposal that would have left 34 special districts without any of the so-called state bailout funds.

Instead, they trimmed the county structural fire district's $10.7 million budget request down to $6.9 million, leaving out a proposed $3.8 million operating reserve.

In addition, the board agreed to accept no state aid for the county flood control or harbors, beaches and park districts, agencies that have sufficient reserves to carry them through the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich said he expects the "Legislature to allocate an additional $125 million in aid to special districts statewide so supervisors can restore more funds later."

The ripple from Proposition 13 already may postpone construction of new libraries in San Clemente, San Juan Capistrano, Irvine and El Toro.

During Tuesday's hearing Supervisor Philip Anthony criticized staff proposals for dividing the money, saying they failed to show which districts really are in need of special help.

"We are into a situation where we just have been playing a game subject to arbitrary formulas," he complained.

Baby Dinosaur Bones Found

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Geologists have found 90-million-year-old skeletons of baby duckbill dinosaurs in Montana, Princeton University announced.

The team, led by Princeton research assistant John R. Horner, said that the formation, found in Teton County, Mont., dates from the late Cretaceous period, university spokesman George Eager said Tuesday.

He said Horner's team found skeletal remains of 15 to 17 individual duckbill dinosaurs, which died apparently just after hatching. About 100 yards away, the party found an adult dinosaur skull which could have been the dinosaurs' mother, but identification of those remains has not been confirmed, Eager said.

DIAMONDS AND BLACKS

and the African economy

Black Africa now supplies more than half of the world's diamonds. Zaire, alone, is the source of 35 percent of the global supply, producing 17 million metric carats annually. That's more than twice the output of South Africa, which has long been considered the world leader. Botswana produces about 2.5 million carats annually, followed by Ghana with 2.2 million carats; Namibia, 1.9 million, and Sierra Leone with 0.75 million. Other producers are Tanzania, Liberia, Angola, the Ivory Coast and the Central African Republic. Before civil war wrecked Angola, that country produced 2 million carats yearly, and is expected to return to a production level near that amount, now that conditions are again more settled there. The Central African Selling Organization, based in South Africa, handles most Black African diamond sales, despite the unfriendliness between that apartheid country and the rest of Africa. Diamonds obviously play a major role in the emergence of Black Africa. For example, 25 percent of the Central African Republic's foreign exchange earnings come from diamonds.

Hold That Freeway

NOW WE KNOW DEPT.—Some years back, the state of California decided to take this little country road through Costa Mesa and turn it into a freeway. It was a vision into the future of vast magnitude.

When the state highway brass decided to do that, there was a place alongside the road known as the Santa Ana Army Air Base. Nearby, the Army was flying P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighters out of what is now Orange County Airport.

There were a few fruit stands along the old rural road. People drove by slowly, trying to conserve the one set of tires they'd been allocated by the OPA. They were going easy on the 18-cent-per-gallon gasoline too, lest they run out of "A" ration coupons.

MEANWHILE ACROSS THE seas, a guy named Adolf Hitler was ranting around and trying to figure out how to stall off General Dwight D. Eisenhower from invading Fortress Europe with his Allied armies.

Back here in our home region, however, the state highway people were looking ahead to when World War II would be over and they could start building some superhighways.

One of the roads they selected was Route 55, that rural lane that is a major feeder from inland reaches to the shoreline at Newport Beach. Over the years, it has variously been known as Newport Boulevard, Newport Freeway, Route 55 and Costa Mesa Freeway.

OVER THE YEARS, there have been a lot of changes alongside that road. The Army Air Base went away and the land has been transformed into Orange Coast College, Southern California College (the Army chapel still stands) and the county fairgrounds. The P-38 fighters vanished and Air Cal now flies more peaceful missions out of the aerodrome to San Francisco.

Traffic has increased. Commerce has increased. Smog has leaped to terrifying levels. But the state highway brass, in their infinite wisdom, are still studying the road and trying to figure out what to do with it.

The Orange County Transportation Commission got into the act only this week, asking for further studies.

EMERGING FROM THESE deliberations, Bruce Mattern, Costa Mesa's traffic engineer, attempted to analyze for the City Council what was happening to the future fate of the old rural road that had been declared a freeway route almost four decades ago.

"I've got reason to believe we've got a delaying action going," he suggested.

By golly, that's it. A delaying action. Now we know.

If Hitler had been that good at delaying Eisenhower, we might still be fighting World War II.

Nixon No Longer Needs Public Fund

DETROIT (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon is in the money—or at least he has enough of it to feel that he no longer needs money from the public for legal help.

Lloyd Johnson, who succeeded Rabbi Baruch Korff as trustee of the "Nixon Trust Fund" last year, says new income that Nixon has received has made the fund unnecessary.

Tuesday's editions of the Detroit News quoted Johnson as saying Nixon had told him recently that his finances are much improved since he collected money for being interviewed by David Frost and began receiving royalties on his new book.

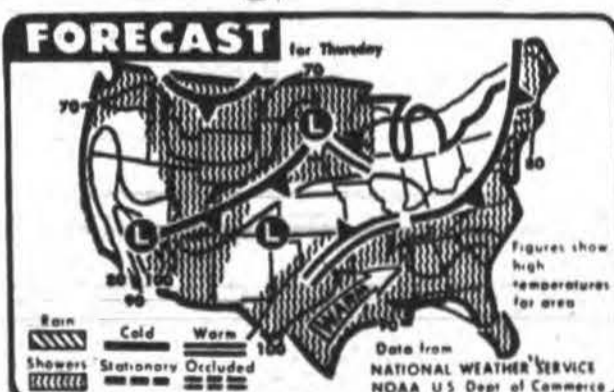

Johnson, an Ann Arbor nursing home owner, estimated that Nixon once owed more than $750,000 to lawyers defending his claim against public release of the tapes and other evidence used to prosecute the Watergate trials and support the House impeachment proceedings.

California

Pleasant, sunny afternoons with cooler mornings and evenings is the word from the National Weather Service for Southern Californians through Thursday.

Tuesday's high was 82. Thursday's high will be in the upper 70s, the Weather Service said.

Mountain and desert regions will also be sunny and cool. Thursday, Mountain resort highs will be in the mid 70s with lows ranging from 48 to 58.

Northern desert highs will be 82 to 92 and southern desert highs will be 90 to 100, the Weather Service said.

San Diego County will also be slightly cooler with coastal highs in the mid-70s and inland valley highs ranging from 82 to 90.

Coastal Weather

Low cloudiness night and morning hours, otherwise sunny through Thursday.

Light variable winds night and morning hours. Highs Thursday in the 70s at beaches to 80s inland.

Coastal temperatures will range between 65 and 71. Inland temperatures will range between 65 and 79. The water temperature will be 68.

Blackout, Looting

Memphis Reels From Strikes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A massive power failure blamed by the utility on sabotage blacked out Memphis early today, adding to the woes of a city already reeling from walkouts by police and firemen. Labor leaders threatened a general strike unless a settlement comes soon.

Scattered looting was reported across town before power was restored, and a baby had to be delivered by flashlight at one hospital before emergency power could be connected.

THE BLACKOUT also left some areas without water pressure because electric-powered pumps were out. Memphis International Airport had to shift to standby power.

County police said between 15 and 20 adults were arrested on minor charges stemming from the looting, which was concentrated at northside liquor and convenience shops. They said five juveniles were in custody on charges of burglary or attempted burglary. National Guard troops, already on duty for the strikes, were dispatched to the county jail to beef up security.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler had been able to maintain calm the previous nights by imposing a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Some pickets have been arrested each night when they refused to disband by the 8 p.m. deadline.

THE BLACKOUT came on the first anniversary of singer Elvis Presley's death. Thousands of his fans had come to this city of 650,000 to pay tribute at his grave at Graceland Mansion, but this was far fewer than had been expected before the strikes.

On Tuesday, Chandler modified his no-negotiations stance and offered to place the strikers' wage demands on a November ballot, giving voters a chance to pay for the settlement with a sales tax increase. The strikers rejected the idea and called for binding arbitration.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman said at a pre-dawn news conference that the blackout was "probably due to sabotage." The FBI was assisting investigators of the sabotage at the Memphis Light Gas & Water Division's Cordova substation.

UTILITY SPOKESWOMAN Paula Payne said someone entered the big plant and threw a series of switches—a complex procedure requiring knowledge of the system—which cut off a main electrical link with the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA's Allen Steam Plant on Presidents Island in the Mississippi River could not carry power demands alone and automatically shut down.

Troops had been on duty at the Cordova plant Monday but were replaced by private guards.

It took about 2½ hours to restore power to all of Shelby County.

Chapman said a non-striker was being questioned but was not considered a suspect. He said the man requested a lawyer.

THE BLACKOUT came at 12:32 a.m., about 12 hours after Gov. Ray Blanton stepped into the dispute, demanding payment for National Guard services back to 1968 and calling for a quick settlement.

Chandler, asked about the governor's remarks this morning on ABC television, said they suggested an attempt at "blackmail."

More than 1,000 National Guardsmen have been patrolling the city with about 100 non-striking police officers and 75 sheriff's deputies, while 200 Fire Department officials and non-striking firemen have kept 23 of the city's 48 fire stations open.

Senate OKs Carter Plan

WASHINGTON—The Senate today approved President Carter's plan to expand college grants and loans, making them available for the first time to middle-income students.

The 68-28 vote followed approval Tuesday night of a rival $500-per-student tuition tax credit that Carter opposes.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Rex Granum said the president's position "has not changed. He is strongly opposed to such."

But Granum did not say whether Carter would veto the bill.

The Carter program would provide aid to an additional 1.4 million students, with about 64 percent of the benefits going to students from families with incomes of $15,000 to $25,000 a year.

POLICE PROTECTION—Memphis police Lt. Louise Duna-vent is escorted to her car by striking policemen Jesse Noe, left, and Mack Hughes Tuesday night, after she attempted to arrest the two for violation of a citywide curfew. She was unable to arrest the sergeants she has worked with for 17 years and broke down crying. They were arrested by other officers later.

ERA Extension May Get Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said today he isn't certain the Senate will debate a proposed 39-month extension of the Equal Rights Amendment this year.

The House voted 233-189 Tuesday to extend the ERA ratification time limit to June 30, 1982 from its current deadline of March 22, 1979. However, the measure is threatened with a filibuster in the Senate.

ASKED ABOUT PROSPECTS for action on the extension in the Senate, Byrd said, "I don't know. As of now I just can't say."

The West Virginia Democrat said he hoped the Senate would have time to debate the measure, but noted, "We have so many things to get done in so short a time as Congress tries to adjourn for the year in October."

Supporters of the extension hope the momentum of an unexpectedly large House victory will hold up when the bill reaches the Senate.

REP. ELIZABETH HOLTZMAN, D-N.Y., principal sponsor of the extension, said the 44-vote margin was "larger than any of us anticipated."

"The size of the House vote will give tremendous momentum to the effort in the Senate," said Ms. Holtzman, who is scheduled to meet with pro-extension senators on Thursday.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader of the pro-extension forces, said, "We thought we were going to win by 25 or 30 votes."

Teacher Measure

Gays Launch Protest Move

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of gay rights, including some prominent liberal politicians, have opened the campaign against an anti-homosexual teacher measure on the November ballot by denouncing it as a threat to civil rights.

The initiative, Proposition 6 sponsored by Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, is aimed at firing homosexual teachers, though opponents say it goes much further.

ATTACKS ON HOMOSEXUAL TEACHERS could be extended to other minorities, whether sexual orientation or political views, and threaten to revive the McCarthy era of the 1950s, Assemblyman Majority Leader Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, said at a rally Tuesday.

"This heinous and outrageous initiative threatens the very structure of due process," Berman told about 200 persons outside the Capitol. He said he would tell his colleagues that the campaign is "worth taking a little bit of risk on."

Also speaking at the rally were gay activist Frank Vel, who is walking the length of California to drum up support for the campaign; Assemblyman Art Agnos, D-San Francisco; Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, and Sacramento Mayor Phil Isenberg.

GOV. EDMUND BROWN JR. OPPOSES the initiative but was not present.

It was the first Capitol demonstration related to Proposition 6, which is likely to be one of the most emotional issues on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Under the measure, school boards could fire, or refuse to hire, any teachers, administrators or counselors for publicly engaging in or advocating homosexual conduct.

BIGGS SAYS THE MEASURE WILL let schools dismiss teachers who would be poor role models. Opponents say that current laws requiring dismissal for sexual misconduct with children are adequate. They also say the initiative could be applied to defenders of gay rights.

I'm looking for some light summer reading. You know, an author who hasn't served time, or a biography by someone who hasn't lost all his friends.

Quake Area State Aid Granted

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has declared a state of emergency in Santa Barbara County, where damage estimates from last weekend's earthquake have climbed to more than $12 million.

Brown, acting on a request for state aid from the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday that "conditions of extreme peril" existed in the area. The county declared a local disaster area Monday.

Spending Limit

Economy Snagged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative drive to put a government spending limit on the November ballot could depend on a vote tonight in the state Senate.

The fate of the limit, a constitutional amendment by Sen. John Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, was left hanging Tuesday when a conference committee abruptly adjourned without finishing work on the measure.

That meant the amendment failed to meet a Tuesday midnight deadline for the November ballot. The deadline can be extended, but only if the Senate approves a bill that it rejected Monday.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, the Democratic-dominated, two-house committee tentatively approved a limit formula similar to one proposed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan and rejected by voters in 1973.

The Reagan limit was substituted for a more liberal formula tentatively adopted Monday night but then abandoned by the committee Tuesday.

The bill extending the ballot deadline, SB 2243 by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, gives lawmakers until Friday to put constitutional amendments before voters in November.

IT FELL EIGHT VOTES short of passage Monday, but Sieroty was given permission to bring it up again. That could happen tonight, when the Senate is scheduled to meet.

Riding on the bill is the fate of a number of constitutional amendments, including one by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy abolishing homeowner property taxes and boosting renter income tax credits. If Sieroty's bill fails to pass, the amendments couldn't go on the ballot until June 1980.

Garamendi blamed the delay in action on his measure on an attempt by McCarthy, D-San Francisco, to put more pressure on the Senate to extend the deadline.

GARAMENDI ADJOURNED the committee Tuesday afternoon after Assembly Democratic conferees said they could not take a final vote on the amendment until they met with their colleagues.

Approval by the committee would send the amendment to both houses for final action. In a bizarre move before Tuesday's adjournment, a version of the Reagan limit was proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown, a liberal San Francisco Democrat who originally opposed the Reagan proposal.

IT WOULD LIMIT STATE and local spending to a percentage of state personal income. That figure, currently just over 8 percent, would drop by one-tenth of 1 percent each year until it reached 7 percent.

The Legislature then could allow the limit to remain at that level. According to figures from the legislative analyst, state expenditures could grow to $21,503 billion in 1982-83 under the limit. That's $951 million less than the state is projected to spend.

'Rank Speculation'

Government Disputes Hearst Conflict Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Calling her allegations "rank speculation," the federal government is disputing Patricia Hearst's assertion that her former lawyer failed to provide adequate counsel at her 1976 bank robbery trial because he contracted to write a book about the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ed Davis Jr. made the statement in a response filed to Miss Hearst's earlier request to examine F. Lee Bailey's deal with the G.P. Putnam Co., a New York publishing house.

In that request, Miss Hearst, 24, charged that Bailey's $225,000 contract for a book about her actions during her captivity by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army constituted grounds to set aside or reduce her seven-year prison sentence.

STATE

Spill Examined

IMPERIAL BEACH (AP) — Coast Guard officials planned today to conduct a surface examination of a half-mile wide oil spill that washed ashore near the city pier.

Lt. Douglas Martin said a Coast Guard helicopter crew checked the spill after it washed ashore around dusk Tuesday and that the oil formed a circle extending about a quarter of a mile off the shore.

4,500 Acres Charred

TWENTYNINE PALMS (AP) — More than 500 firefighters trying to contain a massive brush fire in the Joshua Tree National Monument hoped for abatement today of the erratic desert winds that propelled flames through twisting canyons.

By Tuesday evening the fire had swept through some 4,500 acres in the park 20 miles northeast of Palm Springs and was spreading rapidly, the state forestry department reported. The blaze remained 60 percent contained, as it had been for a day.

Rape Bill Backed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A person who commits rape while carrying out any unrelated felony could get an extra three years in prison, under a bill on the Senate floor.

The bill, AB 2802 by Assemblyman Eugene Gualco, D-Sacramento, was approved Tuesday on a 5-1 vote of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Coin Proposal Killed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative committee has killed a black legislator's proposal to urge Californians not to buy gold South African Krugerrand coins.

The measure, ACR 99 by Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles, failed Tuesday to get past the Senate Rules Committee, despite earlier passage by the Assembly with little dissent.

Child Porno Suspect Claims Life Threatened

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man charged in connection with an international child pornography and prostitution ring says he broke his wrist in a jail incident involving unidentified persons who tried to kill him.

"They tried to kill me," Charles James Hughes of La Puente said Tuesday as he left a brief Superior Court bail hearing.

HUGHES, 35, apparently blamed his injury on other inmates. But his attorney, Howard Beckler, said his client accidentally broke the wrist when attempting to throw back a broom hurled by another inmate.

Judge Paul G. Breckenridge reduced Hughes' bail from $300,000 to $40,000 and ordered Hughes and other defendants in the case separated from the general prison population.

Hughes and another defendant, Joseph Francis Henry, 43, were ordered to return to court Sept. 6 for a pretrial conference. Henry, an amateur photographer from New York City, remained in custody in lieu of $300,000 bail.

Dental Hints

By Duane D. Christensen, D.D.S.

Most people worry more about denting and ways to lose weight, to stay thin or become more attractive, than they worry about dental needs. If you get right down to real attractions, attractiveness is what you want to put it that way — what could be less attractive (less romantic) than the dental care? This or heavy, a person like this turns-off people around him/herself. It is estimated that 90% of all Americans need some form of professional dental care, but only about 45% seek and ultimately complete their dental needs. Why? Two of the most often mentioned are fear; fear of the pain they may experience and fear that, when the dental care is completed, the dentist will present them with a skyhigh bill without prewarning, detail or explanation.

For example, a large number of should-be patients fear the injection of a local anesthetic into the gums, for extraction or extensive grilling procedures. Granted, injections anywhere in the body cannot be considered pleasant experiences, but consider how dental care was given in the early days and you may come to appreciate more fully the ease of living in today's world of progress.

Before the advent of effective dental anesthetics, drilling was usually done with little effort expended by the dentist to lessen the pain. Extractions were accomplished with instruments that would seem, by today's standards, to resemble equipment from a Dark Ages torture chamber. One of these was called "the turnkey."

Using this cumbersome device, and a twisting-turning process, a tooth was removed by exerting great power-of-pull, until there was no alternative but to come out. If the patient was lucky, he may have been given some kind of alcoholic beverage in sufficient quantity to take the edge off the pain, but all too often the work was done cold turkey! So, before putting off dental care you need, arm yourself with knowledge — "read-up" on it — and it will help you appreciate the relatively painless professional care of today.

As to fear of a surprisingly high bill, any dentist is happy to give you cost estimates before your work begins, in fact, he would rather tell you the cost than let you start. We'll also want to explain the danger-risks of putting-off work that may be classified as "urgent" in your case.

Bingo Games Call For Close Study

The Costa Mesa City Council has agreed to initiate a new study into the pros and cons of allowing bingo games for charitable purposes within city limits.

The renewed consideration comes after St. Joachim Church made a sincere request last week to use bingo games to bolster sagging parish revenues.

Last year, after California voters reinstated bingo, Costa Mesa became the first Orange Coast city to move towards legalizing the game locally. However, the city ordinance eventually was set aside.

This was a sound decision, one that gave the council an opportunity to analyze the effects in neighboring cities that permit bingo activity before going all the way locally.

The operations reportedly are running smoothly in Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley. Unfortunately the same can't be said for other Orange County cities where licenses have been revoked amid rumors of organized crime intervention.

A key to the council's September decision is a thorough look at ordinances in cities where bingo is doing well. The failures warrant even closer scrutiny.

Mardan: Good Citizen

Some decisions go beyond dollars and cents. There is often a question of public benefit and a way to say thanks to good neighbors.

The good neighbors in this case are the folks who run Costa Mesa's Mardan School for educationally disabled youngsters. Mardan took over the former site of Costa Mesa City Hall more than 10 years ago, leasing the building on 19th Street for about $24,000 a year.

Last week, Mardan officials said they would be willing to pay the appraised value of $359,000 to make their home permanent.

Councilman Dom Raciti protested vigorously, saying the property could fetch a far higher price in an open bidding war and benefit the city tax roles if the non-profit corporation couldn't keep up with the competition.

Raciti reasoned that the $359,000 price tag would amount to a "give away."

Fellow council members felt otherwise and voted to get a second appraisal on the property and then begin negotiations with Mardan.

A group that has served the community as well as Mardan deserves consideration beyond a few dollars that might be squeezed from the property. What possible occupant could do more in public service?

Not So Good a Deal

The Costa Mesa City Council's decision not to attempt to cut through the strings attached to so-called state "bail-out" to cities in the wake of Proposition 13 was commendable.

Not only does it serve as a reaffirmation of the city's staunch independence in the face of increased state control over local governments, it means city employees can still receive merit increases, estimated at $355,000 next fiscal year.

The pay agreement was reached last year and the city has kept its word.

The complexities involved in the state relief plan would also have cancelled the frugality that has led to a $4.2 million city reserve.

The city stood to receive a state hand-out of slightly more than $1 million. That sounded pretty good until the strings were unraveled and the penalties for excessive reserves were considered.

In the end, the $1 million gift to the city would have been slashed to a net city profit of less than $25,000.

Thanks, but no thanks.

Ford's Book Takes on Reagan

WASHINGTON — Intimates of Gerald Ford, fearful that publication of his memoirs early next year will crack Republican harmony wide open, are quietly trying to soften the former president's attack against Ronald Reagan.

No one directly connected with the book (now about half finished) will discuss the matter with outsiders. But insiders, in talks with Ford and his entourage, have learned Ford is using his book to blame his defeat by Jimmy Carter squarely on Reagan's challenge.

Publication of the book is scheduled for next May, just as presidential campaigns are getting under way. Reagan is a certain candidate. Ford's intention to use his book to "prove the case" that Reagan's challenge against an incumbent Republican president elected a Democrat will release political hobgoblins.

Cool heads inside the Republican party are trying to dissuade Ford. But considering what one intimate calls Ford's "hatred" for Reagan, success is questionable.

RAFSHOON RISES — The unmistakable rise of Gerald Rafshoon within the White House is coming not at the expense of his supposed rival, press secretary Jody Powell, but rather domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat.

The reason: Rafshoon, the advertising executive in charge of rehabilitating President

Carter's image, is now preparing the briefing papers for Carter interviews and other performances. That job previously had been done by Eizenstat.

The obvious change is one of style. Rafshoon insists on terse, easily handled formulae for the president on inflation, energy, tax reform/reduction and other questions. In contrast, Eizenstat used to give him long, detailed memoranda.

The change could become one of substance. Eizenstat's programmatic liberalism has been a major cause of the chain of "comprehensive" proposals streaming from the White House. The Rafshoon briefings are greatly diminishing this doctrinal tone.

A footnote: Rumors of a Rafshoon-Powell power clash are premature at the least, but there was one dispute between them on Mr. Carter's European tour. Powell urged a softer tone than Rafshoon in presidential reaction to the conviction of Soviet dissident Anatoly Sheharansky. The president took Powell's advice.

MANSFIELD WARNS — Ambassador Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader now representing the U.S. in Tokyo, is delivering somber warnings to visiting Carter administration officials about Japan's growing fear of the president's Far East policies.

For the first time, Mansfield says, Japanese politicians and military leaders are privately complaining about the relative decline of U.S. naval strength compared to the Soviet Union. Despite Mansfield's assurances to the Japanese government, concern is rising about the steadfastness and reliability of Mr. Carter's policies.

Such concerns have been publicly expressed by many Americans — including Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, forced into retirement because he questioned U.S. troop withdrawals from South Korea. But Mansfield, a leading Vietnam war dove, did not join the alarm-pointers until the Japanese themselves began conveying their fears to him.

Teachers: How Indispensable Are They?

To the Editor:

Your editorial of Aug. 8 which reports that Orange County teachers rallied to "complain with sour and disappointed words" about their plight in post-Jarvis California ends with the admonition "...for now at least, teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to the system."

What sort of free society can be sustained where teachers are not indispensable? What sort of future awaits us all if teachers are merely considered public functionaries no more important than building inspectors or CalTrans truck drivers?

The editorial drags out the old arguments about salaries, benefits and summer vacations. On a level that is the envy of many who pay taxes supporting those lifestyle improvements. Quite apart from the years of university training and teaching experience required to reach the top of any salary scale in the county, salary and benefits for teachers are modest compared to those performing such crucial tasks in the society as managing a fast food outlet or delivering Sparkletts Water. Further, long summer vacations are seldom if ever realized by teachers with families to support.

Bloated salaries of some administrators, great numbers of non-teaching positions, and expensive programs of doubtful value mandated by Sacramento and Washington all contribute heavily to the cost of education in this state. It is most disappointing that the Daily Pilot makes no clear distinctions in its statement.

Virtually all observers concede that it is the classroom where education takes place, with the teacher in the vital role. If education is of only nominal importance to the public of California, one wonders who will write the editorials of the next century, and who will read them.

Instead of saying "the public no longer believes teachers are indispensable," the editorial might better have said "some of the public" feels that way.

—Editor

"Difficult..."

To the Editor:

I find it difficult to believe that a newspaper in this area where the value of education is obvious in the prosperity surrounding us would make the statement your August 8 editorial makes "...teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to our system."

Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave at such a stupid statement. Our school system was founded on the notion that, as he said, "Only popular education can safeguard democracy." To expand on this idea, he said, "I look to the diffusion of light and education as the resource most to be relied on for ameliorating the condition, promoting the virtue, and advancing the happiness of man."

And where were our newspapermen inculcated with his idea that "A free press is the only safeguard of public liberty" if not in the schools.

Teachers are indispensable in a democracy, and a newspaper should be the last place to find a statement to the contrary. I, as an individual teacher, may be dispensable, but teachers as a whole certainly are not.

BETTY J. ORBACH

"Paternalistic"

To the Editor:

I must respond to your editorial of Aug. 8, "How Many Friends Do Teachers Have?" to point out that its apparent objectivity is really masking an attack on teachers and public employees in general. Your phraseology is condescending and ambiguous, and your argument clouds understanding the general public sentiment behind Prop. 13.

As an angry taxpayer myself, and as a subscriber to your newspaper, I want to reprove you in your failure in not directing attention to some of the areas of government spending where true waste and criminal misuse of tax money is taking place. You have in recent months exposed some of this prodigality in the county supervisor's office. Why stop there? Other local government operations will show equal and worse wrongs. Yes, including the administration of some of our local school districts.

But shame! To admonish teachers and public employees for their concern over their marginal material rewards by pulling on the bridle of public opinion in the way you do is deplorable. True, what appears on budget totals as salaries for government employees seems to be a lot of money, but that is the well-earned livelihood of thousands of people in the community.

Why focus on that? Why not focus on parts of the budget that are not so readily obvious, where error, folly and incompetence is hidden?

One of the functions of a responsible editorialist is to refine public opinion, to be the voice of a viewer that looks calmly beyond the surface of the daily news and public opinion to offer thoughtful insights on what is happening. Your editorial is paternalistic and misleading, and as a professional teacher and public employee, I resent it.

To the Editor:

I've been hearing an awful lot lately about this thing called the "Costa Mesa Concerned Citizens Committee." Seems to me that they are concerned about the wrong thing.

As is typical of the times, they are concerned much more with property values, and their own grasping clutch on physical things, rather than the possible transformation of another human being into a useful member of society.

In the first place, the theory that moving "these people" into the area will lower property values seems a little far fetched to me. In the second place, if these people are not allowed to live in a residential neighborhood, and are kept locked away in an institution somewhere, how will they ever learn to cope with the day-to-day problems that we take in stride? How will they ever become producing workers, with the skills and means to support themselves?

Now, let's look at things in another way. There is a group called Mensa, whose only requirement for membership is an IQ in the 98th percentile, or, on one test scale, an IQ of 148. Assuming that the members of the Costa Mesa CCC are of "normal" intelligence (IQ 100), they would be regarded as severely retarded if compared to the average member of Mensa. Maybe we should gather together a group of Mensans and allow them to pass judgment on the Costa Mesa CCC. Do you suppose that the Mensans would decide that the Costa Mesa CCC could only exist in an institution, and if allowed outside would send property values plunging to the rock bottom depths of financial ruin? Or maybe the Costa Mesa CCC feels that not only mentally handicapped people should be kept out of the neighborhood but mentally gifted people should be locked away as well.

Probably the best solution to the whole thing is to put all of the people with an IQ of 70 on one street and all of the people with an IQ of 80 on the next street and 90 on the next and so on and so forth. Thus, the people with 100 would act as a buffer between the people with 90 and the people with 110, and they would never have to meet. Of course, the highest IQs would live closest to the beach. That should solve the whole problem, even to the satisfaction of the Costa Mesa CCC.

Boy, all them letters. Reminds me of another organization that is highly intolerant of people who are a little different. What was that now? BBB? No. QQQ? No. Oh, yeah. KKK.

Bar Should Nominate New Judges

Thoughts at Large:

If judges are to be elected, and not appointed, they should first be nominated by the Bar, so that we no longer have a politically oriented judiciary made up largely of those lawyers who take a partisan interest in politics and are rewarded with a party nomination.

People who talk too much and people who talk too little both suffer from the same fear at bottom, that of being misunderstood — the loquacious person exhibiting this fear by overexplaining and the taciturn one by saying nothing.

Little has changed middle class smugness in the full century since Melville wrote: "Of all the preposterous assumptions of humanity over humanity, nothing exceeds most of the criticisms made on the habits of the poor by the well-housed, well-warmed, and well-fed."

What makes a classic is its ability to survive both those who are indifferent to it and those who adore it dumbly.

WE SEEK superiority only when we are denied equality: "black" would never have been proclaimed as especially beautiful if bigots had not at first denigrated it as ugly.

Most of the ferment in public education today springs from the fact that the schools are being asked not only to make up in a hurry for their own defects but also to compensate for the failures of society as a whole — and they can scarcely do the first job, much less the second.

President Carter seems to be following the unproductive tendency of his predecessors and paying too much attention to the polls and the "trends," when he should be attending to Winston Churchill's warning: "The nation will find it very hard to look up to leaders who are keeping their ears to the ground."

Nudity Ban Booed

F-16

"Don't stand here with me, Daddy. I can drive this one myself!"

SANTA ROSA — Anyone older than 10 caught sunbathing in the tuff along the Russian River can be socked for a $50 fine under an ordinance approved that bans nudity in the resort area.

A second offense means six months in jail and a $500 fine under the strict rules adopted 4-1 Tuesday by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors.

THE VOTE WAS greeted with heckles, boos and catcalls from a crowd of about 150, most of whom claimed they had enjoyed the sun au naturel in the past.

"The river belongs to no one!" they shouted. "It's our beach!"

Homeowners along the Russian River, about 50 miles north of San Francisco, have complained for some time that they were forced to witness nudity and public sex by sunbathers on the area's popular beaches.

MUCH OF THE property is owned by movie star Fred MacMurray, who was not pleased with the situation.

The two-page ordinance bans "nudity in public places and private places exposed to public view."

"Nudity is offensive to the senses of members of the public who wish to use public beaches, playgrounds and parks and who are unwillingly exposed to such conduct," the ordinance said. "It is offensive to the senses of persons residing in the vicinity of such places because it interferes with said residents' free use and comfortable enjoyment of their property."

THE ORDINANCE, WHICH took effect immediately, said it applied "even when such nudity is not sexually motivated or otherwise lewd."

Boy Shoplifter, 7, Convicted

WINONA, Minn. (AP) — A 7-year-old boy caught shoplifting a 29-cent plastic squirt gun was convicted in a formal trial before a judge who said: "We want to impress the child that this is not the way to go."

Winona County Judge S. A. Sawyer said Tuesday that court officials were preparing a "social history" of the boy to help him decide disposition of the case. He said the investigation would try to "find out what the situation is at the kid's home and what kind of guidance the young fellow needs to straighten himself out."

JAMES FORSYTHE, court-appointed defense counsel, estimated the 1½-hour juvenile court trial, held Aug. 3, cost $300 to $500 in terms of time spent by county officials.

An assistant county attorney prosecuted the case and a court reporter and court clerk were present for the trial. However, Minnesota law specifies that "a violation of a state or local law or ordinance by a child before becoming 18 years of age is not a crime," and that adjudication by a juvenile court does not deem a child to be a criminal.

County Attorney Julius Gernes said the boy was willing to go through with a trial because he had been in trouble previously and the county wanted jurisdiction so it could help him.

THE BOY WAS identified only as Joey because Minnesota law prohibits the identification of juveniles unless the defendant has been certified for court treatment as an adult.

The case began in April when Richard Stanchfield, security manager of a J.C. Penney store, called police to say he saw two boys steal squirt guns.

"The only way you can make them learn anything is turn them over to the police," Stanchfield said. "Anybody over the age of 5 — I arrest them. I feel they know better by then."

ONE BOY CONFESSED, but Joey told police older children with BB guns had threatened to kill him if he didn't steal the toy. The county charged him with theft, and they boy and his court-appointed attorney decided to ask for a trial.

Sawyer said the same rules of evidence and other procedures applied as in cases involving adults, but that there was no jury and the child could not be fined or sentenced to a penal institution.

At the trial, the second boy who had been arrested testified, answering "nope" to each of these questions: Did he know what the truth was? Did he know what a lie was? Did he understand the difference between the two?

THE JUDGE SAID he would consider the testimony "qualified" and give it the weight he deemed proper. The witness then knocked down the defendant's story, saying there were no "big kids with BB guns" and the two boys simply decided to steal the squirt guns.

"He duped me like hell," the defense counsel said later of his client. "I let him go to trial because he told me time and time again that he only did it because he was forced to do it. I believed it to the extent that I didn't talk him into copping a plea."

When the defendant testified, Forsythe added, "He panicked and juiced his story up and said it wasn't just the big kids but his friend who made him do it."

Longer Life Promoted By Aging Americans

SAN MARCOS (AP)—A group of aging Americans is banding together to promote a longer life. A spokesman says they see it coming.

But the secret, says the spokesman, isn't any panacea or living in some shangri-la. Instead, it's living in moderation.

THE RESEARCH BEING done by the newly formed Committee for an Extended Lifespan shows, says chairman A. Stuart Otto, that of 1,000 Americans who lived to 100 or older, "they do nothing to excess."

"Some are totally abstinent in drinking and smoking — others indulge, but in moderation... the few that smoke cigarettes do not inhale," Otto said in a newsletter.

In addition, they get up early in the morning, go to bed early, generally are "devout believers" in God, stay busy and try not to let things beyond their control bother them.

OTTO, A 63-YEAR-OLD semi-retired minister of an independent Christian church in San Marcos called Church of the Trinity, said his committee "believes that long life on this planet is part of God's plan."

Otto claims 300 members in the Committee for the Elimination of Death, which he formed in 1974, and says he already has 50 in his three-month-old expanded life group — all of them volunteers living throughout the United States.

The study of 100-year-olds was done by a San Francisco member who wants his identity private, Otto said in an interview. It concludes that the length of their parents' lives or their personal wealth were, in themselves, irrelevant.

THERE ARE FEWER deaths due to heart attacks and cancer as a result of less indulgence in food these days and fewer environmental toxins, Otto has told the members. He went on:

"Although high school smoking remains constant, there has been a big drop in college smoking in the last five years."

"The number of entrants in marathons has doubled in the last two years... a great many new studies have shown salt to be toxic in various disorders... recent progress has opened the way for the synthetic production of insulin."

AND THIS NOTE of warning to women:

"Males are increasing life expectancy with exercise, and females are decreasing theirs by entering the competitive society."

Fairview Director Advocates Public Empathy

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

To some people, placing mentally retarded persons out in the community is a welcome breakthrough in integrating them into society. To other people, it's a threat.

Dr. Theodore DiBuono, new chief of central development services and director of professional education at Fairview State Hospital in Costa Mesa, can see both sides.

But, more fundamentally, he believes the trend toward "mainstreaming" the retarded is a test of our society's values, values that also affect how we regard other special groups such as the physically handicapped and the elderly.

"WE TEND TO DISCOUNT anyone who doesn't come up to the standards we have," said Dr. DiBuono, who moved from Syracuse, N.Y., to take over his position at Fairview Aug. 1.

"It has very much to do with basic values that we have in society," he said, citing attractiveness, intelligence, strength and health as among the qualities our society cherishes.

"If you don't have those kinds of attributes, if you lack any one of them, you're in trouble," said Dr. DiBuono, who is also working on the UC Irvine Medical Center pediatrics staff.

HE NOTED THAT in earlier, more agriculturally oriented times, the developmentally disabled — retarded persons and those with neurological disorders — could more easily find roles to fill.

And it isn't that he himself doesn't value intelligence. "We just shouldn't exclude those who don't have it," Dr. DiBuono said.

He also pointed to the related struggles of the physically handicapped to prove that lack of bodily strength doesn't mean lack of ability.

"I THINK PEOPLE have to develop that empathy, putting themselves in another's shoes," Dr. DiBuono said. "Go in an elevator or a public building and see if you could make your way around if you were blind."

Treatment of the elderly and their segregation from most of society is also becoming an issue of values, he pointed out.

"Very little is being spent to help the elderly stay in society," Dr. DiBuono said. "We're all going to be elderly and yet we make these decisions as though it's not going to be true of us."

"TO ME, IT'S THE same kind of thing (as with the retarded). The things that we value, we support; the things that we devalue, we put aside."

Among his duties at Fairview, Dr. DiBuono said, is to supervise and coordinate the services and programs that are offered for the developmentally disabled, who are Fairview's patients or, as the hospital prefers to call them, clients.

Among his goals, Dr. DiBuono said, is "to be able to move out into the community all the people who are capable of it, with adequate security."

HE SAID EVEN profoundly retarded persons could live in the community, but they would require a variety of special services, from personal caretakers to daily programs, that aren't currently available outside of institutions.

However, borderline retarded persons and those with moderate retardation are often able to live comfortably in homes with supervision and to work.

The main problems they run into are people's unwillingness to take the time to listen to them, and myths that make some people regard them as a threat, Dr. DiBuono said.

ONE COMMON MYTH is that the retarded person will attack or abuse others. "It's the developmentally disabled person who's most likely to be abused or taken advantage of, not the other way around," Dr. DiBuono said.

Another common misconception, he said, "is that developmentally disabled people can't learn and grow, particularly adults. But people in the field have seen that these people can change dramatically."

Able-bodied persons can help the retarded person's adjustment by focusing and really listening when the person speaks.

"EVEN PEOPLE who are articulate may be in the company of people who talk circles around them," Dr. DiBuono said.

He suggested that able-bodied people who become impatient with retarded persons' attempts to communicate try to picture themselves in a foreign country, with unfamiliar money, language and customs.

"I recall being in a foreign city and I couldn't deal with the money myself," Dr. DiBuono said. "A salesperson would say, 'It's so many kroner,' and I would just hand them a bill because I couldn't figure out the coins. I ended up with a lot of change."

Aides Needed

Teenagers seeking job experience can volunteer for the Orange County Public Library's summer reading program.

Volunteers are sought to tell stories, play the guitar, perform puppet plays and work with art projects for children. Certificates are awarded that can serve as job references for future work in parks and camps.

Information can be obtained by calling Chris McSparren, 634-7800.

Volunteers Sought

The Red Cross Blood Center in Santa Ana is seeking youth volunteers to work Sundays from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and, beginning in September, on Monday evenings until 8 p.m.

Volunteers are needed to work as receptionists, typists, donor room aides and canteen aides.

Such experience can sometimes help youngsters get jobs later, Red Cross officials note. Information can be obtained by calling 835-5381, ext. 14.

Vegetarian Diet Needs Supplement

Chairman
Dr. Paul W. Meyer has been named to head social science division at Christ College, Irvine. He lives in El Toro.

By DR. STEINCROHN
Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our teenage daughter is a problem. We blame it on her friends at school. They've talked her into living on a vegetarian diet.
I suppose we should be thankful she doesn't smoke or drink. Neither is she into drugs. Although she looks beautiful and appears to be the picture of health, we keep worrying that if she keeps on with her vegetarian diet she will eventually suffer for it with malnutrition.

MOST OF THE arguments begin at the dinner table. We insist that she eat with us. But what a depressing sight to see her nibbling on nuts, and eating a salad or taking dry cereal while we dig into our steaks or hamburgers.

This has been going on for about three months. She has not lost any weight. Her studies are fine, she's an A student. But we keep wondering where it will all end. Do you have any suggestions that may help solve our problem? — Mrs. E.

Dear Mrs. E.: Lately, many youngsters have gone in for vegetarian diets. And like you, many parents are frustrated and anxious. The main danger is that they may later suffer from undernourishment. The reason for this is that they do not have nutrition knowledge that will supply all the necessary nutrients necessary for body growth and maintenance of good function.

FRIENDS OF MINE recently came to me seeking advice similar to yours. I talked to their 17-year-old daughter and found that she wasn't getting sufficient nourishment. I didn't try to talk her out of her vegetarianism, but convinced her to make an adjustment that not only would help her personally but would please her parents.

She agreed to add milk and eggs to her diet. In this way, I told her, she would be getting the necessary proteins, calcium, B vitamins. She would still be on a vegetarian diet but it would be lacto-ovo-vegetarian rather than the "pure" variety.

Now she is happy. Her parents are happy. All sit down to dinner, amiable and not conscience-stricken. She dabbles with her salad and sips her milk while her parents enjoy their steaks and roasts without meeting head-on in nightly feuds.

It Was Boo-dee Only for a Short While

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The chants that sounded like boos began as a supportive "Roo-dee! Roo-dee!" But by his third at-bat Tuesday night, Joe Rudi's cheers had turned to genuine boos.

Coming off a back injury, Rudi had struck out twice and stranded five runners on base.

Without his support, the Angels were nursing a 2-1 lead against the Boston Red Sox before a win-hungry, sellout crowd of 41,144 at Anaheim Stadium.

AS HE STRODE to the plate a fourth time in the seventh inning, Rudi once again saw a couple of potential RBI — Lyman Bostock on second and Don Baylor at first.

Rudi's Blast Wins It; Ryan Faces Tiant

And with one swing, Rudi put the game away. His towering, three-run homer to left field gave the Angels and Frank Tanana a 5-1 victory.

The win enabled California to keep pace with Kansas City, which won in Detroit, 4-2. The Angels trail the Royals by a half game in the American League West.

And it sets up another pitching duel tonight, as Nolan Ryan takes on Boston's man of many motions, Luis Tiant.

Tanana, who improved his record to 16-7, has never lost to Boston at Anaheim Stadium. His record is 5-0 with a 0.37 ERA against the Red Sox at the Big A.

"IT WAS A NATURAL high, knowing my good record against them here," Tanana said. "You almost know you're going to do a good job. The big crowd also made it fun."

In scattering six hits, Tanana surrendered a solo run knocked in by Jerry Remy's two-out triple in the fifth, and another lone tally in the ninth.

The Angels got two in the fifth when Baylor doubled down the left field line, driving home Bostock and Ken Landreaux.

RUDI SAID HE experienced no pain from the back muscle spasms which bothered him earlier in the week, and he felt no added pressure because he had failed to pick up runners in his first three trips to the plate.

"I was facing a good pitcher, that's all," Rudi said. "He got me the first three times, and I got him the fourth."

Overshadowed by Rudi's three-run blast was Bostock's three-for-four night at the plate, which lifted his average over .300 for the first time this season.

BOSTOCK ADMITS his .303 mark now is a long haul from April, when he struggled with an average under .150, but the right fielder says it's only a minor milestone.

"Me hitting over .300, that's my own thing," Bostock said. "I'm not concerned with that. What See ANGELS, Page B2

Says Lasorda

Pitching Will Decide Division

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers' Manager Tommy Lasorda said the tight National League West race will boil down to pitching.

Someone quickly suggested that would favor the San Francisco Giants with Vida Blue, John Montefusco, Ed Halicki, Bob Knepper and Jim Barr with Gary Lavelle and Randy Moffitt in the bullpen.

Lasorda then quickly tried to debunk that theory.

"WE STRUGGLED at the start," said the Dodgers' manager. "But would you believe we have passed them in pitching staff ERA?"

But it was hitting that pulled the Dodgers past Philadelphia 5-4 Tuesday night, and into a first place tie with San Francisco.

Los Angeles outfielder Reggie Smith hit his 26th home run against the Phillies, and drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning.

SMITH SAID he doesn't feel anybody would pull away in the tight NL West battle between the Dodgers, Giants and Cincinnati Reds. The Reds are just one game out of first.

"I think we have the psychological advantage to put us in first place to stay," Smith said.

The Dodgers built a 3-0 lead in the first three innings. Steve Garvey tripled with one out in the second. Lee Lacy beat out an infield hit. Garvey holding third. Rick Monday singled in one and Joe Ferguson another. Smith unloaded his homer in the third, but the Dodgers' defense betrayed starter Doug Rau in the fifth and the Phillies came up with four unearned runs to take the lead.

BOB BOONE reached first with one out on an error by third baseman Ron Cey. Ted Sizemore beat out a bunt toward third, and when Cey threw wild for his second error of the inning, Boone moved to third.

Ruthven forced Sizemore, Boone scoring. Rau then walked Jerry Martin and Larry Bowa loading the bases, and Jose Cardenal cleared them with a two out, 3-2 single.

But in the sixth, Monday hit his first home run since June 26, and the Dodgers won it in the seventh on a leadoff double by Lopes, a sacrifice bunt sending the runner to third and Reggie Smith's sacrifice fly.

Rookie Bob Welch, 4-0 for the Dodgers, pitches in the second game of the series tonight against the Phillies' Jim Kaat, 6-4.

THE ANGELS' JOE RUDI (RIGHT) IS GREETED BY TEAMMATES AFTER HITTING A THREE-RUN HOMER TUESDAY.

Daily Pilot Photos by Richard Koehler

Playoffs, Series?

Advance Planning Begins for Angels

The first major league baseball playoff game ever held in Orange County will be Oct. 3 at Anaheim Stadium — assuming the California Angels can win the American League West.

That's a big assumption, but it's one that the Angels' office staff must make now if they hope to be ready for the big day.

The importance of advance planning is increased by the fact that the Angels have never been serious challengers for a pennant so late in the season — well, almost never.

"WE HAD A DRY RUN at this sort of thing in 1970," says Angels' publications director Mel Franks. "When we were three games behind Minnesota on Sept. 4."

But that dream fizzled out a rather suddenly.

"The Twins came in here and swept a three-game series," Franks remembers. "That pretty well wrapped it up."

The Angels souvenir playoff program was nearly finished and tickets for the playoffs and World Series were already printed. They had to work that far in advance so everything would be ready in time.

And those suddenly-worthless tickets? Are they a prized collector's item for a few lucky Angels fans now?

"NO, ALL THOSE tickets were officially dumped for IRS purposes," Franks explains. "It has to do with the way accounting and taxes are handled."

Tickets and programs are just part of a myriad of arrangements the Angels have already started to make.

The list seems endless — a possible playoff for the divisional title, TV and radio logistics, conflicting dates for use of the stadium, allotment of tickets and priorities for season ticket holders, extra security staff, ushers, parking lot attendants, the increased media attention, auxiliary bleachers and much more.

"THE BIGGEST problem of all," says Franks, "will be trying to track down hotels for everybody. During that same time span there's going to be a national sporting goods convention in town, with 30 to 40,000 delegates, and they've already got their reservations."

One solution, says Franks, might be to lodge teams, media and visitors in outlying areas and bus them to the stadium.

Most of the other problems have been anticipated, and the Angels staff has made preliminary plans in cooperation with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office. Among them:

— IF THE ANGELS finish in a tie with Kansas City (or anyone else) a coin flip will decide the site of a one-game playoff.

— Season ticket holders will be allowed to purchase their same seats for the playoffs and World Series, at the increased prices of $8 to $17 per seat, as set by the commissioner's office. Season ticket holders may also buy a number of additional seats identical to the number of season tickets they own.

— Availability of tickets to the general public will be limited to about 10,000 per game. If season box holders buy their full allotment of tickets, an estimated 13,000 will be gone for each game. On top of that, for each contest, are 500 tickets to the visiting club, about 300 for the players, and varying amounts

Oranges Regroup For Another Try

Vitas Gerulaitis and Martina Navratilova were the best singles players during the recently concluded World Team Tennis season and Tuesday night they gave every indication that won't change in the playoffs.

Gerulaitis, in his first WTT season, started his singles match with the New York Apples holding a slim 17-14 lead, but it was no contest after that.

The 24-year-old native New Yorker was brilliant as he crushed Mark Cox 6-1 and then combined with Ray Ruffels to defeat Cox and Anaheim player-coach Cliff Drysdale by the same score as New York opened defense of its WTT title, blasting the Oranges 29-16 in the opening match of a first-round playoff series.

Anaheim's Francoise Durr and Anand Amritraj edged Billie Jean King and Ray Ruffels to give the Oranges a 7-5 lead. JoAnne Russell tied the match 11-11 with a 6-4 victory over Durr. She then teamed with King to defeat Nancy Richey and Kathy Harter 6-3 to give the Apples a lead they widened with Gerulaitis' performance. The second match is Thursday night at the Forum in Inglewood.

Navratilova was equally impressive as she also posted a pair of victories in Boston's 31-24 overtime win over New Orleans.

Services Set For Thompson

Funeral services for former Quarterback Doug Thompson, who was killed in an auto accident Monday near Blythe, will be held at Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home, located on Bolsa Avenue, just west of Beach Boulevard in Westminster.

Services will begin at 2:30 Friday with interment following at Westminster Memorial Park, which is adjacent to the funeral home.

While flower donations are welcome, the Thompson family has asked persons to consider donating to the Baron Gridiron Boosters toward a current scholarship program, to be renamed the Doug Thompson Scholarship Award.

Is LA Free of Liability?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — International Olympic Committee negotiators have agreed to free Los Angeles from financial liability for the 1984 Summer Games, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

The newspaper said that F. Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, and John C. Argue, leader of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, reported the breakthrough. However, contract language must be approved before the agreement is released publicly, the Times said.

The IOC has declined to comment on the report. In New York City, IOC attorney

Richard Greene said he had been instructed by the organization's president and executive director to make no statements on the negotiations.

The IOC executive board is to meet Aug. 29-31 in Lausanne, Switzerland, to discuss the Games.

Los Angeles and the IOC have been at odds for several months over whether the city must assume direct financial liability for the Games. The city has threatened to withdraw its bid to host the Olympics unless the IOC relaxes its rule on financial responsibility.

SWIMS ABORTED — Stella Taylor (left) was forced to abandon her effort to swim from Bimini to Florida because of strong tides Tuesday. And Diana Nyad tried unsuccessfully to swim from Cuba to Florida but gave up after 42 hours in the water earlier the same day.

They Have Common Fate: Each Challenged Sea, Lost

From AP Dispatches

MIAMI — The two swimmers seemed oceans apart — one a gabby extrovert who unabashedly hustled sponsor money and publicity, the other a devout woman who stepped into the surf with determination and a soft prayer.

But in the end, Diana Nyad and Stella Taylor shared a common fate. Each challenged the sea, and lost.

It was Nyad, 28, who first gave up — weeping, swollen and screaming at her trainers Tuesday as they insisted she abandon the 103-mile crossing from Cuba to the Florida Keys.

She had covered more than 70 miles in 41 hours, 49 minutes since Sunday afternoon, but was pushed off course by winds and had not made it halfway to her targeted landing.

Taylor, 46, had been swimming strongly since leaving Gun Cay in the Bahamas Monday morning.

She, too, was bothered by nausea and jellyfish stings, but had stroked smoothly to within 18 miles of the Florida coast by Tuesday afternoon. Then, just as victory seemed certain, the current began pulling her north. The land curved westward and the gap from her to the shore widened. She called it quits about 3 p.m.

Nyad had said frankly all along that she was swimming for money. She retained an agent, sold rights to news organizations and signed sponsorship deals with makers of toothpaste and bottled water.

Rams Reduce Roster to 60

Former Pro Bowl cornerback Robert Jones retired, reserve quarterback Carlos Brown was put on waivers, and backup center Rick Nuzum was traded to Green Bay as the Los Angeles Rams reduced their roster to 60 players Tuesday.

The rookies the Rams announced as placed on waivers were quarterback Mark Manges, a fourth round draft choice from Maryland, and offensive tackle Charles Peal of Indiana, a 10th round draft pick.

Former Buffalo Bills defensive back James, a Pro Bowl selection in 1972-73-74, was placed on the Rams' reserve list. He had been attempting a comeback after three years of knee problems.

Nuzum, who played in all Rams' games in 1977, mostly on special teams, was traded to the Packers for an undisclosed draft choice.

Rams had their last preseason practice at Cal State Fullerton this morning. The team moves to its regular season training quarters in Long Beach next week.

ANGEL NOTES — Although four key players came home from the road trip with injuries, the Angels' medical report from trainer Freddie Frederico doesn't appear grim. Outfielder Joe Raeli, bothered by back spasms, returned to the lineup Tuesday while first baseman Ron Jackson and relief pitcher Dyer Miller will come off the disabled list this week. Only pitcher Dave Frost's future appears uncertain. Frost is still in traction for treatment of lower back spasms. Jackson is scheduled to have a cast removed from his hand today, and Frederico says Jackson has recovered from the hairline fracture sufficiently to return to the lineup within a week. Miller, recovering from a bruise on his pitching arm, threw 20 minutes of batting practice Tuesday and said, "There was only a little soreness and no pain. In a couple of days I think I'll be ready to come back." . . . Angel relievers haven't allowed an earned run in their past 13 outings (21st inning) from July 25 . . . Lyman Bostock has hit safely in 10 of his last 12 games. . . Angelmania: Despite finishing the road trip with two straight losses, the Angels came home just 1/2 game out of first place and the big crowd Tuesday exhibited a sort of pennant fever rarely seen in Anaheim. A total of 16 banners were draped over the upper terrace railings, nearly all expressing support for the Angels. . . the

Bemis Sixth In Ski Race

Mike Bemis of Laguna Beach finished sixth overall in the Long Beach to Catalina water ski race over the weekend out of 96 competitors with a time of one hour and five minutes for the round-trip competition.

Bemis was fifth in the men's open division, his best-ever finish in the distance race. He was behind the boat of Scott Campbell of Newport Beach on a ski with bindings he made himself.

This Sunday Bemis will compete in the Endos International speed ski jamboree at Long Beach Marine Stadium beginning at noon. It is for both barefoot and ski competition.

Pitt Seeks Quarterback

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett is in Dallas, Matt Cavanaugh is in New England, and Gordon "Too Much" Jones is in line at the University of Pittsburgh.

"We have a real success story here. I'd like to write one more chapter," says the senior split end who set Pitt football records last season with 796 yards in receptions, nine touchdowns grabs, and innumerable slithers and slides.

He's six feet tall, 180 pounds, with two very large hands, and 36 inches in vertical jumping ability. Passes, punt returns, and kickoff returns will earn him headlines. But he also uncoils like a rattlesnake on downfield blocks.

"THE MOST gifted athlete on our squad," says Coach Jackie Sherrill.

"If he was a senior in 1977, he'd definitely have been a first-round draft pick," says Gil Brandt, personnel boss for Dallas.

Which means Pitt must find a quarterback.

Gone is Cavanaugh, who took his poise and arm to the Patriots. "You're talking about replacing a Tony Dorsett calibre player," said Sherrill.

YET SHERRILL, who followed the toughest act in college football last season when he replaced Johnny Majors, led Pitt to a 9-2-1 record and the eighth spot in the final ranking.

Look for him to find a quarterback from prospects that include sophomore Rick Trocano, who subbed when Cavanaugh was hurt last season, and Scott Jenner, a transfer from California's American River junior college. Receivers also include Steve Gaustad and Benji Pryor, a pair of tight ends who will battle for playing time.

for networks, sponsors, umpires, league officials and non-contending teams. All those tickets are sold. There are no freebies.

— MEDIA SEATING will be increased with auxiliary sections, including use of the football pressbox.

— Stadium renovation to accommodate the 1980 move of the Los Angeles Rams to Anaheim will not begin until after the World Series, so no conflict would be created.

— The Angels receive top priority on use of the stadium in the event of a conflict with a previously-arranged concert or event of any kind.

"One of the big problems will be the fans not being used to playoff and World Series procedures," Franks says. "Our staff has some experience, but the fans in Orange County, unless they've been to the Dodger playoffs and Series, won't be acquainted with the procedures."

ANGEL GENERAL manager Buzzie Bavasi is a veteran of six World Series when he was with the Dodgers, and public relations director Tom Seeberg was with Cincinnati in 1970 when the Reds opened a new stadium, staged an All-star game and played in the World Series.

"They also had an All-star Game here in Anaheim in 1967," Franks points out. "We'll use the same methods for handling the big crowds and media that they did then."

And if all else fails, the Angels have a guidebook provided by the commissioner's office which details everything that a playoff contender must do to prepare itself.

"I can't imagine anything of this magnitude going smoothly," Franks says. "But with all our guidelines and preparation, we should be able to handle it OK."

So now, the rest is up to the baseball team on the field.

John Wayne TC Wins Decade Title

The Dukes from the John Wayne Tennis Club of Newport Beach captured the Orange County championship of the Decade national amateur tennis playoffs recently by defeating the Five Mice and a Moose from Lake Forest, Huntington Beach and San Juan Capistrano in the finals, 22-9.

The Dukes leave Friday for the Western Regional competition at the San Francisco Tennis Club which will be played this weekend. The national finals involving four regional winners, will be held at Flushing Meadows, N.Y., Sept. 10.

Members of the Wayne team include John Lee, Rick Dow, Marilyn Moore, Phebe Stenton, Sunny Elliott and Ron Tomsic.

Wimbledon West on Top

Wimbledon West, the annual charity mixed doubles tournament sponsored by the Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce women's division, will be staged at five area clubs this weekend with the finals at the John Wayne TC August 26-27.

Featured opening matches on Saturday include: Danny Rogers and Ellen Bryant against Weller Evans, Jr. and Margi Lane (JWTC, 9); Tim Peralta and Susie Warfield vs. Tony Pause and Rodée Chasteen at Balboa Bay Club (10:30); and Jim Straw and Barbara Shelton against Mark Jones and Lori Schoettler (JWTC, 10:30).

Sunday's featured matches, both at JWTC, include: Jerry Van Linde and Gail Glasgow vs. Alex Pollard and Sue Arnet (3 p.m.); and Julie Hayward and Steve Simon against Robert Cunard and Carla Wittenberg (9 a.m.).

Van Linde and Glasgow are the open division defending champions and are seeded No. 1.

Gil Gerard, one of the celebrities participating, will be teamed with Jeanne Brownell in the competition.

There are 120 teams competing at JWTC, BBC, Irvine Racquet Club, Marriott Hotel and Palisades Tennis Club.

McDevitt Moves to BBC

Marie McDevitt is moving from the Wayne club to direct social activities for the Balboa Bay Club.

Members of JWTC are involved in a jogging program under the direction of Mike Amador and Jim Sizer.

Pro Tourney Nears

The Arco Tennis Open, formerly the Pacific Southwest championships, will be held at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion from Saturday, Sept. 16 through Monday, Sept. 25 with many of the top names on the pro circuit participating.

This is the only fund raising program for the SCTA which handles the junior tennis programs for Southern California.

The tournament has been moved from the Los Angeles Tennis Club this year. For ticket information, call (213) 467-5151.

Youth Program Moves Ahead

The Southern California Tennis Association under Jack Kramer is moving ahead with its future champions program with boys and girls, ages 9 through 14, receiving instructions from top teaching professionals.

There may not be any future Jimmy Connors or Chris Everts among the group but that doesn't stop those participating from moving ahead and taking advantage of the program.

With Proposition 13 causing some cities to trim budgets and staffs, and with some schools eliminating summer school, classes were filled quickly.

There are 1,000 youths receiving 18 hours of instruction in the 50 classes held weekly.

In addition to tennis instruction, the program is also focusing on sportsmanship with 100 of the participants who demonstrate this extra quality getting a chance to attend a special clinic at Big Bear Tennis Ranch Aug. 28.

Among the Orange Coast area clubs participating in the program are Lindborg Racquet Club of Huntington Beach and the Capistrano Racquet Club.

Vocke Sparks Stars Past El Paso

With reserves seeing much of the action, the Orange County Stars topped the El Paso-Juarez Sol with a tiebreaker victory, 12-6, 8-12, 12-14, 12-10, 6-4 Tuesday night at Fountain Valley High School before 1,724 fans.

Larry Vocke, filling in for injured Jon Roberts in the second game, had 33 kills in 57 attempts.

Roberts strained a back muscle just below the left shoulder blade late in the first game. He served once in the second, then sat out the balance of the match.

Melody Parker also saw considerable action and gave a strong performance. The backcourt player made only four service errors in 17 attempts and added four digs. Parker played in only her second match of the season.

"We're trying to get back to fundamentals until the playoffs," Coach Dodge Parker said. "But we also want to give some of our starters some rest."

The Stars meet the San Diego Breakers at Serra High in the Border City tonight and could clinch a playoff berth with a victory. The Breakers have lost nine straight matches and are last in the Western Division.

TV Ad Dollars Roll In

12 Percent Increase Expected for New Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big advertisers, despite prices of $60,000 for a 30-second spot on a prime-time network TV show and more than $100,000 for a blockbuster, so far have bought an estimated $1.3 billion in commercials for the upcoming season from ABC, NBC and CBS.

Network executives are predicting another strong year of advertising sales, but they've moderated their price hikes for commercials.

THAT HAS LED some analysts to forecast that the three networks will collect 12 percent more for prime-time commercials during the season, bringing the total spent on that powerful advertising medium to about $2.24 billion.

Anthony Hoffman, a media analyst for the Wall Street firm of Bache, Halsey, Stuart, Shields, said that reflects a more typical growth than either the projected 14 percent rise for the current 1977-78 season, which ends in September, or the 23 percent jump in the boom year of 1976-77.

Industry sources say the change has little to do with reaction to the network's lineup of new programming this fall, which one advertising executive described as "no better or worse than usual."

THEY ADDED THAT during the 1976-77 and 1977-78 seasons, the demand for TV time was so great that prices shot up.

"There were just two years of advertisers being burned to a crisp."

"I think in part what's happening now is that the price levels may just be returning to normal this year," said Dick Low, senior vice president for media sales at Young & Rubicam, one of the nation's largest advertising agencies.

Steady Beef Prices Due for Short Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government economists say retail beef prices may hold steady for a while because producers in major markets are not rebuilding herds for future supplies.

The Agriculture Department said cattle are being sent to feedlots in record numbers, which means more animals are being fattened for slaughter.

RETAIL PRICES, WHICH HAD risen more than 30 percent from last fall, peaked last month at more than $1.80 a pound before dropping slightly.

The department cautioned that retail prices will rise again when cattle ranchers stop sending heifers to feedlots and instead hold them back for breeding.

Once the rebuilding starts, the economists say, it will take 27 to 70 months before beef prices drop substantially as the supply on the hoof is increased.

BUT AFTER price hikes of 15 and 20 percent in high-demand spots for the past two seasons, Low said some advertisers are being squeezed out of the network market, especially for long-term "up front" advertising, an industry term used for 52-week season packages.

"Certainly from my perspective, the percent of sales is not as great as it was during this period last year."

"A fair amount got diverted to other media in large part because of two years of double-digit increases that advertisers experienced," said Low.

ALTHOUGH RATES vary widely by time, program and network, the average price for a prime time, 30-second spot runs about $60,000 and can easily exceed $100,000 for sports or specials, advertising industry estimates show.

But executives at the three networks say the "up-front" sales, almost completed for the upcoming season, show an increase both in dollars and time sold from last year.

They point to the relatively moderate price increases as one reason they expect strong sales in all categories of advertising this year.

"THE OVERALL performance is good for all three networks," said James Shaw, vice president of sales at ABC.

"Basically the advertisers' budgets are a little higher and so are the prices," he said.

Cal-Vet Bond Sale Related

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sale of $100 million in Cal-Vet bonds, delayed for six weeks by passage of Proposition 13, has been announced by state Treasurer Jesse Unruh.

The buyer was a syndicate headed by the Bank of America, whose interest bid of 5.4301 percent was low among three bids.

Unruh said the sale was postponed to allow bond rating agencies more time to evaluate the bonds after passage of Proposition 13.

"We are pleased to announce that these Cal-Vet bonds, the first general obligation bonds sold since the passage of Proposition 13, have again been granted a Triple A rating by both Moody's and Standard and Poors," Unruh said Tuesday.

Oil Talled

KUWAIT (AP) — Crude oil production by the 10 members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries averaged 19,897,000 barrels a day in 1977, compared with 19,128,000 in 1976.

The organization's annual report said the group's total refining capacity increased only 135,000 barrels a day, to 2,458,000 barrels.

Two Orange County residents have been named to new executive positions in Diversified Shopping Centers, Newport Beach.

Gary Clarke, Mission Viejo, has joined the organization as director of leasing and Walter G. Haag, El Toro, has been appointed controller. Clarke, whose 14-year career in the real estate industry spans leasing, development, construction and management responsibilities, assumes primary responsibility for leasing negotiations of the firm's new and existing shopping centers in five states.

Haag, a certified public accountant who also teaches intermediate accounting at Cal State Fullerton, will oversee financial activities with respect to accounting, banking and future growth through financial analysis and control.

Lawrence R. Holmes has joined American City Bank as vice president/manager of the new Newport Beach regional office in Corona del Mar.

His banking experience ranges from operations to commercial lending to managing an office for a major branch-banking institution.

Bonnie Handrich, Costa Mesa, has been appointed manager of the Villa Park office of Western Mutual Escrow Corp.

Before joining the company, she was manager for several title companies in the San Diego area.

Dr. Kameron W. Maxwell has been named director of research and Dr. Jacques J. Kestelyn vice president of corporate development at Newport Pharmaceuticals International, Inc., Newport Beach.

Dr. Lionel Simon, former director of research, has been named to the newly created post of director of new product development.

Maxwell is former director of research and development at the Hyland Diagnostics division of Baxter-Travenol. Kestelyn, in addition to his new appointment, is the company's director of medical affairs. He joined the company in 1975.

George W. Mefferd, Newport Beach, has been elected to the board of directors of the Independent Colleges of Southern California. The group conducts an annual campaign for operating funds for 15 independent colleges and universities.

Camilla Frost of Pasadena and Dr. Roger W. Heyns of Pasadena have been elected directors of the James Irvine Foundation.

The foundation, which has offices in Newport Beach and San Francisco, makes grants to charitable institutions in the fields of independent higher education, medical and health care, youth programs, community services and cultural activities.

Lear Siegler, Inc., Santa Monica, has announced the following personnel appointments:

Harry J. Fitzpatrick, Corona del Mar, has been named president of the company's energy products division, Santa Ana. He succeeds Richard C. Fuller, who has retired. He had been marketing vice president of the division since 1967.

Laurence A. Thompson, Costa Mesa, has been named a corporate vice president. He will be responsible for the company's fabricated products operations, headquartered at Troy, Michigan.

Barbara Steiner has been named a design associate at Interior Design Development, Inc., Newport Beach. She has experience in residential and commercial design.

The International Association of Business Communicators has presented Gold Quill Awards of Excellence to Jerome F. Collins, the Irvine Co.; Ellie Childers, Smith Tool; Mary Wolf, for photography for Transamerica Financial Corp.; and Doug Fritzsche, Fluor Corp. Wolf also was presented with an award of merit.

Stamps Can Lick Inflation Wound

While the stock market has been mostly a disaster for 10 years and stock values have lagged far behind inflation's erosion of the dollar, stamps have continued to climb as much as 20 percent a year. Often the upsurge in values has been even more spectacular, and no reversal is foreseen.

A new force behind the spiraling of stamp prices is the emergence of the big-money syndicate. Added to the approximately one million serious individual stamp collectors in this country, the big-money syndicates put high leverage on prices as well as provide a price floor. The stamp market has moved beyond the hobby of grade school and high school youngsters and into the area of major investments.

How do amateurs get into the philatelic market? What are the guidelines and the pitfalls to avoid?

— START AS A GENERAL COLLECTOR AND INVEST small sums. Then develop a specialty and study it. Get a good dealer and use the dealer for advice and counsel.

— Join a local stamp club. Attend auctions. Learn by reading and listening to experts.

— Avoid low-price stamps, which rarely show strong gains. Focus on the $50 to $500 range for starters. New issues, which include U.S. commemoratives, may be aesthetically pleasing, but they offer only minor prospects for appreciation.

— Don't waste money on cheap packets of stamps. Concentrate on higher-priced specimens.

— DON'T BUY WHOLE SHEETS OF ordinary new stamps, for devaluation of the currency can slash their value. The price of post-1943 U.S. stamps have not changed from their face values (or have even declined below face values). Their sole use is as postage.

— Beware of improbable "bargains" of any sort. A "stamp doctor" can manufacture apparently valuable errors and varieties and "improve" a stamp's quality to fleece the gullible. On any "bargain" offer, get the advice of a dealer or a reputable committee of stamp experts, usually found in large philatelic societies.

— Be on guard against counterfeiting. Ask dealers for written "statements of quality," that includes the promise of a refund if stamps turn out to be bogus. The American Philatelic Society, State College, Pa., and the Philatelic Foundation in New York have authentication services available for a fee.

— PEOPLE WHO WANT TO SELL old collections should have them appraised by reputable dealers or auctioneers and compare the estimates. Stamps attached to original letters may have high value.

Market Discounts Hint of Rate Hikes

NEW YORK (AP) — Indications that the Federal Reserve was taking steps to raise interest rates as a means of stabilizing the falling dollar failed to cut into a stock market rally today which was spurred on by an expression of concern for the dollar by President Carter.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, closed up 7.45 points to 894.58.

Advances continued to hold a 2 1/2 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Money market observers said it appeared that the Fed was raising short-term interest rates, a common device to cut down on the money supply and control inflation.

New Data Unveiled In Rosenberg Case

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public television, using newly disclosed files to take another look at the Rosenberg atomic spying case, raises some questions about the actions of two judges in the case tonight at 6 on KOCE, Channel 50.

A repeat with new material of "The Unquiet Death of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg" questions specifically the conduct of Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosenberg to death and is now senior judge of the 2nd U.S. Court of Appeals in New York City.

Television producer Alvin H. Goldstein and others connected with the program told a news conference they have made repeated efforts to contact Kaufman for comment without success. A dozen members of the House have suggested an inquiry into the possibility of starting impeachment proceedings.

"DOCUMENTS FROM THE recently released FBI files give evidence of two telephone calls to the FBI initiated by Judge Kaufman that seem to contradict his claim of detachment," the script says.

"On Feb. 17, 1953, the Court of Appeals granted the Rosenbergs a stay of execution pending an appeal. Two days later . . . an FBI agent recorded the following conversation with Judge Kaufman: 'I would like to see the Department of Justice take a firm stand on this matter and appeal directly to the Supreme Court for an immediate decision'."

The Rosenbergs, convicted of passing the secret of the atomic bomb to Russia, were executed at Sing Sing Prison on June 19, 1953. The documentary will be shown Monday night by the Public Broadcasting Service. Demonstrations are planned in New York and other cities.

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS' of the Supreme Court had issued a stay of execution which would not normally have been acted on by the court until the new term starting in October. But the late Chief Justice Fred Vinson called the court back into special session, and it overturned Douglas' stay by a vote of 6-3. "According to an FBI memo, Supreme Court Justice Vinson and Atty. Gen. Hubert Bronwell had already decided on a strategy to block Justice Douglas' stay," the program says. "Clearly, according to the FBI memo, Justice Vinson had violated Canon 17 of the judicial code of ethics in his promise to help vacate the stay."

An appeal to President Dwight D. Eisenhower to stay the execution was denied.

Also convicted with the Rosenbergs on a charge of conspiracy was Morton Sobell. He was sentenced to 30 years and served 18 1/2, 5 1/2 of them in Alcatraz.

Fighting to clear their parents' names are the Rosenbergs' two sons, Michael, 35, and Robert, 31, who have adopted the last name of Meeropol, their foster parents. Michael was 10 and Robert 6 when their parents were executed.

'One Day' Tops

But ABC Still Rules Roost

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "One Day at a Time" was the week's top-rated TV program for the third time in four weeks, but ABC continued its domination in the networks' battle for the prime time viewer, figures from the A. C. Nielsen Company show.

CBS, in fact, listed three of the four most-watched shows for the week ending Aug. 13, including No. 3 "Alice" and fourth-ranked "M-A-S-H." But ABC had runner-up "Three's Company" and three others in the top 10.

It was ABC's third week in a row in first place, with a rating for the most recent period of 15. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 15 percent of the homes in the country with TV were watching ABC.

CBS' RATING for the week was 14.6, NBC's 13.4.

ABC claimed the No. 1 program nearly every week during the fall and winter, but CBS shows have been top-rated eight of the 11 weeks since the end of May.

EIGHTEEN OF the week's 20 most-watched shows were reruns. The exceptions were an ABC Sunday night movie, "Newman's Law," tied for 12th, and "Switch" on CBS, tied for No. 17.

CBS and NBC each had two programs among the bottom five. ABC's "Hardy Boys Mystery" was No. 59, followed by "Just for Laughs" on NBC, "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Baby, I'm Back," on CBS, and "Black Sheep Squadron" on NBC.

Here are the week's top 10 programs:

"ONE DAY AT a Time," with a rating of 22.4 representing 16.3 million homes, CBS; "Three's Company," 21.3 or 15.5 million, ABC; "Alice," 21 or 15.3, CBS; "M-A-S-H," CBS, and "Fantasy Island," ABC, both 20.9 or 15.2 million; NBC Monday Movie, "Colombo," 19.7 or 14.4 million; "Barnaby Jones," CBS, and "Love Boat," ABC, both 19.2 or 14 million, and "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Carter Country," ABC, both 19.1 or 13.9 million.

The next 10 shows: "Laverne and Shirley," ABC; "Hawaii Five-O," CBS, ABC Sunday Movie, "Newman's Law," and "All in the Family," CBS, tie; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC; "Eight is Enough," ABC; "Happy Days," ABC, and "Switch," CBS, tie; and "Good Times" and "The Jeffersons," both CBS.

TV Newscasts Assailed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A former president of CBS News says local television news shows are spotty and often cover relatively insignificant and easy to get stories.

"There's tendency to get what's easy to follow, to follow the police calls, to do the visual stories," said Sig Mickelson, 65, "and most of these aren't very significant."

Mickelson is here as a distinguished visiting professor in telecommunications at San Diego State University. This fall, he will teach two undergraduate classes, a graduate-level course.

MICKELSON, WHO ran CBS News until 1961, predicts most network news shows will eventually expand from one-half hour to an hour. And he forecasts doom for the television documentary.

"There'll be some floundering around at first," Mickelson said. "But there are enough good stories in most places to fill a 60-minute show. And television is building up a cadre of better-trained, better-educated people who can handle these kinds of stories."

Coming to San Diego after three years in Washington, D.C., where he presided over the merger of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, Mickelson views the budding taxpayers' revolt as a positive force on television news because, he says, it forces assignment editors and their staff to seek out vital issues over visual thrills.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED the success of TV "magazine" shows like "60 Minutes," which offers three mini-documentary segments weekly within a one-hour format, along with viewer response and commentary.

"I think it'll hold for a while and then slump," Mickelson said.

Bowl Fans Get a Kick Out of Ethel

Ageless Ethel Merman is just a few flicks of the calendar away from achieving the dreaded title of septuagenarian but it's a safe bet that she'll greet the dawning of her 70th birthday with a yawn and a few bars from an Irving Berlin number.

For Ethel, bless her, showed us at the Hollywood Bowl last weekend that all the old magic is still there in abundance and that she can belt out a salty ballad with the best of them.

SHE TOLD US AT THE outset that she was prepared to sing all night if that's what we wanted and she obliged a delighted audience with encore after encore, most of them from a Merman song book that contains some of the greatest songs ever written.

MERMAN

Backed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic

Orchestra. Ethel pranced around the stage with at least 90 percent of the fire and fervor that was packing them in at concert halls 30 years ago.

George Gershwin, Irving Berlin and Cole Porter were among her favored composers and she gave us memorable renditions of such classics as "Blow Gabriel, Blow," "I Get A Kick Out Of You" and many of the golden oldies from "Annie Get Your Gun."

IT WAS AN EXHAUSTING repertoire — or at least it should have been — but it appeared to have little effect on Ethel who pranced off the stage in as sprightly a fashion as she skipped onto it.

She remembered to remind us as she went into her Irving Berlin medley that the grand old man of American music is now 90 and still tinkling away at his keyboard.

She didn't remind us that she is now 69, pushing 70, and bringing audiences to their feet at a time when many entertainers of her age and accomplishments are putting their feet up and looking back on the past with satisfaction.

NOT ETHEL MERMAN. SHE'LL be back at the Bowl next year, exercising those fantastic vocal chords and hitting us with that high stepping energy that some of us half her age just don't have.

Great stuff. Ethel. God bless you, love. You are one of America's greatest entertainers.

Cheryl Ladd: Finally She's Singing

By JAY SHARBUTT HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cheryl Ladd came here in 1971 to sing. Two flop records later, she tried acting. Last season, she got her big break in ABC's "Charlie's Angels" after Farrah Fawcett-Majors left it.

Last week, Billboard magazine's "Top 100" pop music chart said one tune, "Think It Over," was 48th in ranking and headed for greater popularity. The singer: Cheryl Ladd.

At 27, the pretty, blonde-haired Huron, S.D., native finally is succeeding in her original goal. She began singing while a tyke, then, after high school, toured in a band before coming here.

Miss Ladd, lurching on fish in her trailer behind the 20th Century-Fox sound stage where her series is made, said the record companies "weren't breaking down my door."

"WHEN I FIRST CAME to LA, the music was all hard acid-rock groups or Joan Baez-Joni Mitchell."

She smiled and said she is of neither musical persuasion. Her bag simply is "pop," which in the case of her debut album for Capitol Records, "Cheryl Ladd," is of a melodic, gently rocking nature.

Those who don't know she began as a singer usually dismiss her as just another pretty TV star out posing as a vocalist, she concedes.

"When you tell people you've been involved in the music industry eight years and they've never heard of you, it's like saying you're an actor, an actress, to someone when you're not in a series.

"THEY SAY, 'WHAT HAVE you done?'" However, Capitol executives knew her work. She said, from the early Hollywood days when she cut a single record for them (the other single that flopped was for another label).

The "Charlie's Angels" exposure didn't hurt, either.

"If I were just coming to them off the streets, it would be a much different situation," she said. Not only would the interest be less, so would be her freedom in choosing material.

ON THIS GO-ROUND, though, she said, they let her pick three tunes for her album, including "Think It Over," and her producer the rest.

"They really trusted that it (a hit) would be in the grooves because of the tapes they had of me, because of the seriousness with which I wanted to be a recording artist," she said.

She frowned when told her visitor, while interviewing Ben Vereen last year, expressed disbelief when Vereen said the newest of Charlie's Angels would duet with him in a coming ABC music special.

"SO DID EVERYONE ELSE," she said of such advance reactions to her work in the special, aired last March.

But she lit up when told Vereen, who doesn't praise singers lightly, said of her: "She'll surprise you. She's good."

"Oh," beamed the singing Angel. "It's wonderful to hear that. He's not too good, just one of the greatest performers around."

Out of Shadow

Hank Williams Jr. Back to 'Life'

By SCOTT SHEPARD
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Some are born great. Some achieve greatness. And some, like Hank Williams Jr., have greatness thrust upon them.

The namesake of a country music legend, Williams since 1957 has filled the void left when his hard-living father, at age 29, died in the back seat of a new 1952 Cadillac.

But now, after nearly 21 years, Hank Williams Jr. says he's through "living for more than one man."

Williams was only 8 when he was thrust onto the stage, "packaged as the ghost of Hank Williams." And the country music establishment conspired to keep it that way, he says.

ALL NASHVILLE wanted me to do was sing Daddy's songs, dress like him and act like him," he says. "That was fine for them, but it wasn't all right for me."

Initially Williams "thought being Hank's boy was the greatest thing in the world." An idol by proxy, he was a success as long as he "kept doing Daddy."

It didn't take long, though, for the schizophrenic career to take its toll. As a teen-ager, Williams says he drank heavily. In 1973 he turned to pills. Like his father had done 20 years before, he began inching closer to ruin.

DIVORCED FROM his first wife, Williams remarried shortly after returning to Cullman, Ala. His new wife, Becky, is described by friends as the "good hearted woman" of so many country ballads.

"It was the whole country-music syndrome," he explains. "I woke up drunk, went to sleep drunk. No hangovers. Booze, sleeplessness, pills, depression. It just got to be too much."

A faltering marriage and the loneliness, music and alcohol that were his legacy "ganged up" on him. "So I tried the check-out route," he says.

His suicide attempt was aborted by friends, but it led him to a Nashville psychiatrist who advised him to leave Music City.

"MY PSYCHIATRIST told me that Nashville had almost succeeded in making me Hank Williams . . . just like he is — dead," says Williams.

The quiet, picturesque community of Cullman — located between Nashville, where his father's legend thrived, and Montgomery, where his father is buried — offered a perfect sanctuary for Williams.

So in 1974 he moved to Cullman, setting up household in a modest but spacious A-frame home overlooking a lake — a place where he could nurture his own musical concepts. Those concepts blossomed the next year when he recorded a landmark country-rock album, "Hank Williams Jr. and Friends." His days of singing "crying-in-your-beer" songs were over.

NOT LIVING FOR DAD

THEN TRAGEDY struck. While climbing a Montana mountain in August, 1975, Williams was swept 500 feet down the ragged side of a mountain.

"There was a boulder sticking straight up," he recalls, and I just hit it straight on, head first. It just literally split my face in half."

His condition was critical for three days. Fifteen days passed and his weight dropped from 205 pounds to 160 pounds. At one point, "I resolved myself that music was over," he says.

Once he was moved from intensive care to the rehabilitation unit, however, doctors brought him a guitar. And with Johnny Cash singing at his bedside, Williams joined in, slowly at first, but eventually "rolling along."

BY OCTOBER, Williams was back in Cullman, driving his pickup truck, shooting his guns, making "home-grown music" and "feeling good." But five operations were necessary to rebuild his face.

"It was a difficult time," he says of the months of recuperation. But those months taught him "how to relax, to enjoy life," something "Daddy never learned to do."

He realized, too, that his father "doesn't need me to keep his music alive." He says, "I can stay home and Daddy's royalties will roll in every few months whether I'm out there singing his songs or not."

STILL, WILLIAMS' act includes some of his father's hits — "Your Cheating Heart," "Hey, Good Lookin'," "Jambalaya." Williams says, "I'll never leave them out."

One song missing from the act, however, is "Lovesick Blues," which established his father as the greatest draw the Grand Ole Opry ever had.

"I sang 'Lovesick Blues' for 20 years," says Williams, recalling those years spent as his father's "ghost." "I figure I've put in my time. Let somebody else sing the blues."

Repair Promised Promptly

DEAR PAT: My granddaughter sent a watch to me from another state. When it needed repairs, I sent it to Regency Time Ltd. in New York City with my warranty and $4.50 for service. The watch was returned to me, but it's not running and won't even wind. I wrote two letters inquiring what I should do next, but I haven't received any response. I don't want to return it again if the repairs aren't going to be made.

I.S., Costa Mesa

Regency Time Ltd. advises you to mail the watch for repair at no charge. Include an explanatory note and a copy of your canceled check. Insure the package and address it to the attention of Miss P. Gunzberg. Also put a "Rerepair" notation on the envelope. Gunzberg told AYS that Regency doesn't answer correspondence because it "receives hundreds of letters, and it would take at least two fulltime employees to answer the mail." If your watch is not properly repaired this time, let AYS know.

Flies Flee Farm Formula

DEAR PAT: When I was a little girl my great-aunt used some homemade concoction to repel flies. If I recall correctly, she used a little cream and some other common household ingredients and left the mixture on a plate. The flies just didn't come around. I'd really like to know what this mixture contained so I can see if it really works.

G.K., Mission Viejo

The only fly repellent recipe AYS could locate that uses cream is one from an 1888 farm encyclopedia. It promises flies will say goodbye if you combine one-half teaspoon of powdered black pepper with one teaspoon each of brown sugar and cream, and spread the mixture on a plate. It may not work, but it's worth a try.

Homemaker Skills Valuable

DEAR PAT: How much would it cost to hire someone to do the jobs done by a fulltime homemaker?

O.L., Corona del Mar

A lot! The American Council of Life Insurance estimates it would cost more than $17,000 a year to hire outside help to do the cooking, cleaning and numerous other jobs done by a homemaker.

Haven't Seen Eye Care Book

DEAR PAT: I ordered an eyesight improvement book from Instant Improvement Inc. on March 9. My check has been cashed, but I never got the book. Will you see if you can get it for me? I'd rather have it than a refund.

E.W., Newport Beach

Instant Improvement's Southern California distributor was contacted by AYS, and your long overdue book is in the mail.

The volume you ordered, "Born Again Vision," includes information about the Bates System of eye exercises. Educators at the Southern California College of Optometry told AYS they do not encourage persons with eye problems to rely on precepts advocated in the Bates System — first proposed more than 40 years ago. It was advised that you seek the services of a licensed optometrist by asking for references from the Orange County branch of the American Optometric Association (556-3821). Ophthalmologists (M.D.) are listed in page 444 if ige Yellow Pages.

Summer Sparkle

Juicy nectarines and peaches provide the delightful basics for salad and dessert.

Juicy-fresh California nectarines provide a bright contrast to the tang of citrus and array of spices which combine to make this delightful Spicy Nectarine Salad. Fresh rosy-skinned nectarines are gently simmered in a blend of ginger and lemon juice; placed on a bed of shredded lettuce, and then topped with a savory dressing of fruit syrup, salad oil and a sprinkling of chopped green onion. Spicy nectarines Salad makes a perfect light lunch when served with toasted English muffins. Spicy nectarines are also a good accompaniment to cold or barbecued meats.

SPICY NECTARINE SALAD

¾ cup water
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
2 strips (2-inch) orange peel
1 tablespoon slivered preserved stem ginger
1 teaspoon syrup from ginger
6 peppercorns

4 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon whole allspice
¼ teaspoon cardamom seeds
4 medium-size fresh California nectarines, cut into halves
3 tablespoons salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped green onion
1 quart shredded western iceberg lettuce
Combine water, lemon juice, sugar, orange peel, ginger and syrup, and spices in small sauce pan; simmer for 5 minutes. Place nectarine halves, cut side down, in syrup, cover and cook for 1 minute. Turn fruit carefully, cover again, and cook 1 to 2 minutes, just until fruit is barely tender. Remove nectarines with slotted spoon and cool. Boil syrup down to ¼ cup. Strain out spices. Cool syrup and add oil, salt and green onion; blend well. Arrange nectarines on a bed of shredded lettuce. Pour dressing over fruit and lettuce, or pass separately. Makes 4 servings.

Peach yogurt freeze with plum ripple.

Peachy Plum Freeze

Although frozen desserts have been around since the time of Emperor Nero, frozen yogurt is a new sensation from coast to coast. Peach Yogurt Freeze with Plum Ripple blends the tanginess of yogurt with the natural sweet flavor of fresh California peaches, then further tantalizes your taste buds with a ripple of fresh plum puree. It's a super summer refresher that's easy to make in an electric, or hand-crank, ice cream maker.

PEACH YOGURT FREEZE WITH PLUM RIPPLE

2 large eggs
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
1½ pounds freestone peaches (4 medium or 3 large)
1 container (8 ounces) plain yogurt (1 cup)
½ pound plums (3 small or 2 medium)
2 tablespoons sugar for plums
Beat eggs with ¾ cups sugar and salt. Turn milk into small saucepan; bring just to boiling.

Gradually stir into egg mixture.

Return to saucepan; cook over very low heat, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Do not allow to boil after adding eggs. Remove from heat and cool. Peel peaches, and dice to measure about 2½ cups. Turn into blender jar and blend smooth to measure 2 cups puree. Combine with cooled custard and yogurt. Pour boiling water over plums and let stand 20 to 30 seconds to loosen skins. Slip off skins and dice to measure ¼ cup.

Blend to a smooth puree, as with peaches. Stir in remaining 2 tablespoons sugar, and chill while peach mixture freezes. Turn peach mixture into freezer can, and freeze in hand-turned or electric ice cream freezer, using 3 parts crushed ice to 1 part rock salt.

Freeze until it becomes difficult to turn (or electric freezer appears to slow). Remove dasher. Spoon chilled plum mixture over peach freeze, and stir in lightly just to ripple. Drain water from freezer tub, and repack with 4 parts ice to 1 part salt. Makes about 1½ quarts.

Pastry:
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening
1 egg
1 teaspoon water
½ teaspoon vanilla

In large bowl mix together flour, sugar and salt. Rub in butter and shortening with fingers until mixture resembles coarse oatmeal flakes. In another bowl beat egg with water and vanilla and pour all at once over flour mixture; mix lightly with fork. Form into ball and chill at least 1 hour, or when firm enough to handle. Roll out into 10-inch circle and place in 9 or 9½-inch tart pan, pressing dough over side and bottom of pan. Chill, then bake in 375 degree oven 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling:
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt

1½ cups milk
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon brandy

In medium saucepan, mix together sugar, cornstarch, flour and salt. Gradually stir in milk. Place over low heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens, about 20 minutes. Remove from heat and stir a little of the hot mixture into egg yolks, pour yolks back into sauce pan and cook 2 minutes, stirring. Remove from heat and stir in butter, vanilla and brandy. Chill 2 hours.

Peaches and glaze:

3 tablespoons currant jelly
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon brandy
5 large peaches, peeled and sliced
In small saucepan, melt currant jelly, add lemon juice and brandy; stir until smooth. Cool slightly. Spread cooled filling over baked tart shell. Dip peach slices in currant glaze and arrange in spiral over custard. Pour remaining glaze over peaches and chill at least 1 hour. Makes 8 servings.

Melba Pie

PEACH MELBA GLACE PIE

2½ to 3 pounds fresh California peaches
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup sugar
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup water
½ to ¾ cup raspberry jam
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Peel, slice and whirl in blender enough peaches to make 1 cup puree. In saucepan, combine puree with sugar, cornstarch and water. Cook over medium heat until mixture thickens. Cool; chill 30 minutes. Meanwhile, coat pie shell with half the raspberry jam. Peel and slice remaining peaches to make 4½-5 cups sliced peaches; pour into pie shell. Spread cooled peach glaze over peaches. Chill at least 2 hours or overnight. Just before serving, swirl remaining jam on top. Makes 6 servings.

To peel peaches, dip into boiling water for about 30 seconds; transfer with slotted spoon to cold and slip off skins.

Baked Salad

Discovering new ways to make left-over chicken or turkey into a refreshing summer salad can be a challenge. Here's a delightfully different salad that's actually baked! Baked Nectarine Salad combines the summer sparkle and flavor of fresh nectarines from California with a delicious poultry salad. And baking highlights the tart-sweet taste and rich gold-red color of the fruit, providing a refreshing contrast to the overall delicate flavor of the salad.

This wonderful baked salad is served just like any other — on a bed of crisp lettuce or in individual serving dishes. Light, homemade biscuits would be a fine accompaniment to this unusual dish.

BAKED NECTARINE SALAD

¾ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons shredded Parmesan cheese

1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 large fresh California nectarines
2 cups cooked chicken or turkey pieces
1 cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup sliced green onion
1 can (3 ounces) chow mein noodles
Crisp lettuce leaves

Mix together mayonnaise, cheese, lemon juice, onion powder and salt. Cut nectarines into large pieces to measure 2 cups. Combine with all remaining ingredients except lettuce. Add mayonnaise mixture and toss gently. Spoon into shallow 5-cup baking dish. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Serve on salad plates or individual serving dishes lined with crisp lettuce leaves. Makes 6 servings.

Salad features baked nectarines and turkey.

Glistening fruited gelatin salad.

Spicy Mold

SPICED FRUIT RING onto a platter. Serve with cream mixture with meats or salads.

SPICED LEMON FRUIT

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
Water
3 1/2 cups canned pineapple juice
2 tablespoons mixed pickling spice
Sugar
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks, well drained
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup dairy sour cream

Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup of cold water. Place pineapple juice and pickling spice in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 3 minutes; strain out and discard spices. Pour over softened gelatin; stir to dissolve. Mix 1/2 cup sugar and lemon juice. Refrigerate until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in strawberries and pineapple; pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Meanwhile, mix 1 teaspoon sugar with ginger, mayonnaise and sour cream; chill until serving time. Just before serving, unmold gelatin

1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 teaspoon whole allspice
2 cinnamon sticks (3-inch long)
Water
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 cups sliced fruit (such as bananas, apples, pears, grapes, strawberries; do not use fresh pineapple)
Tie cloves, allspice and cinnamon sticks in a piece of cheesecloth. Place along with 1 3/4 cups water in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes; discard spices. Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Pour hot spiced mixture over softened gelatin; stir to dissolve. Mix in sugar and lemon juice. Refrigerate until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in fruit; pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Just before serving unmold gelatin onto a platter. Serve with meats, salads, or as a dessert.

Mosaic Fruit Tart is Ideal Dessert

In the manner of a French masterpiece, here's a dessert tart with California character. Juicy, fresh California summer fruits are stars of this luscious tart and are arranged in beautiful jewel-like mosaic layers. With the bounty of California fruit in the market, you can create your own glamorous tarts, the French way.

Start with a lacey-edged pastry shell and a layer of fresh California plum filling. Then arrange more poached plum slices with other summer fruits — fresh California peaches, seedless grapes, nectarines and Bartlett pears — in a mosaic pattern and brush all with a shimmering current jelly glaze. It's beautiful and delicious.

MOSAIC FRUIT TART

Crust:
1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/2 cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons cold milk

Filling:
2 cups quartered fresh California plums (about 3/4 pound)
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup water
Dash salt
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 drops almond extract or 1 teaspoon lemon juice

lemon juice:
1 1/2 cups California seedless grapes
1 1/2 cups sliced fresh California peaches
1 1/2 cups sliced fresh California nectarines
2 fresh California Bartlett pears, quartered and cored
1/2 cup currant jelly

CRUST: Sift flour, salt and sugar into mixing bowl. Add lemon peel. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Gradually add cold milk, tossing to distribute evenly. Shape mixture into ball. Press dough onto bottom and sides of 9 or 10 inch pie plate. Prick with fork. Bake in 425 degree oven 25 to 30 minutes, or until golden. Cool.

Filling: While crust bakes, prepare filling. Combine plums, sugar, water and salt in saucepan. Bring to boil; simmer, uncovered, 3 to 5 minutes or until plums are just barely tender. (Plums should not lose their shape.) Drain and measure juice, reserving plums. Add enough water to juice to make 1 1/4 cups. Measure cornstarch into saucepan. Gradually add plum juice, stirring constantly with wire whisk. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture thickens. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in almond extract or lemon juice. Cool slightly; pour into bottom of pie shell. Sprinkle grapes over filling. Toss peaches, nectarines and pears in an ascorbic acid mixture; arrange in a ring over and around grapes. Lastly arrange poached plums in center of pie. Melt current jelly; drizzle over entire surface of fruits. Chill pie 2 hours. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mosaic fruit tart is elegant combination of fruit.

No-bake peanut butter cheesecake pie.

Cheesy Peanut Pie

When is a cake not a cake?

Answer: When it's a cheesecake poured into a pie shell.

The top of the finished pie may be garnished with additional peanuts. This delicious dessert should be prepared ahead of time so it can be well chilled.

Individually, cheesecake and peanut butter are popular foods. Combined in this recipe, they make an exceptional dessert.

PEANUT BUTTER CHEESECAKE PIE
1 envelope unflavored gelatin Grated rind and juice of 1 large orange

1/2 cup peanut butter
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 can (14 ounces) sweetened condensed milk

1 cup (1/2 pint) heavy cream, whipped
1/4 cup quick cooking oatmeal
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2/3 cup finely chopped peanuts
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

Additional salted peanuts
In a small saucepan, mix gelatin and orange rind and juice. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved and mixture becomes very hot. In a bowl, mix peanut butter, cream cheese and condensed milk until smooth. Gradually beat in orange juice mixture. Chill until mixture becomes thickened. Fold in whipped cream.

Place oatmeal into a skillet and stir over medium heat until flakes are toasted. Stir in brown sugar, peanuts and butter. Press mixture firmly and evenly into an ungreased 9 inch pie pan, lining the bottom and sides of the pan. Chill. Pile peanut butter mixture into pan.

Chill until firm. Serve garnished with salted peanuts. Yield: 1 9-inch pie.

Food Allergy Problem

There is a widespread belief among doctors who practice an orthomolecular approach to medicine that chronic mood swings may be caused by a silent food allergy. This type of sensitivity, sometimes called a cerebral allergy or neuro-allergy, does not cause rashes, hives, or asthma. Instead, it is believed, it may be the cause of unexplained emotional depression.

Many times, the food turns out to be a common part of the patient's menu, such as milk, eggs, wheat, corn, or rice. Sometimes it is a combination of several of these foods.

These allergic reactions do not show up on the usual scratch tests for food sensitivities, but do show reaction to sublingual (under the tongue) or intradermal (under the skin) tests. There are some doctors who prefer to use an elimination method of testing one food at a time after a few days' fast to clear the system.

It is worth trying to detect these sensitivities if you suspect that it may be the cause of unexplained mental depression of someone in your household. Instead of treating the effect of the mood swings with pills, doctors who believe in this theory are trying to get at the biochemical cause. If it is found to be a food or combination of foods, the course of action is to eliminate the culprit from the patient's diet.

When the foods are staple ingredients the problem of providing food free of these substances can be very challenging. Labels on food products have to be read with great care, to be sure that the offending food is not a hidden part of the product. Often it is better to change to a natural foods diet, to have better control over everything on the patient's menu.

Freedom from depression and freedom from dependency on pills may be just the incentive needed to find out whether a possible silent food sensitivity is the cause of trouble for someone you care about.

Here are some ways to bake with substitute ingredients when the allergy is to wheat.

Food Industry Jumping on 'Lite' Bandwagon

With 60 percent of Americans consciously cautious about calories, the food industry is rushing to join the "Lite" Brigade, spurred on by the stunning success of "Lite" beers. Implying good taste for fewer calories, the word "lite" (or "light") is about to replace "natural" as the big buzzword for food adwriters and package designers.

That is good news for calorie-counters. The growing insistence on less fattening fare encourages all segments of the food industry to edit the unneeded calories out of popular products.

However, just as all "natural" foods aren't necessarily healthy, neither are all "light" foods low in calories. Some food manufacturers are using the word lightly to gull waistline watchers into thinking ordinary products are less fattening than their competitors'. (Caution: look for calorie counts on the label. "Light" can mean anything: color, texture, weight or whatever!)

FLAT-GUTTED BEER DRINKERS — Credit for launching the "Lite" revolution goes to Miller Brewing Co. for succeeding at the supposedly impossible task of selling a less fattening brew.

Miller's "Lite" beer was launched in 1972 with a brilliant ad campaign: "Everything you always wanted in a beer and less" (one-third less: under 100 calories instead of 150). Miller's won in the marketplace but lost in the courts: a legal bid to keep the word "Lite" for itself failed. Now, any product can call itself "lite." Or "light."

Today, there are some 20 decalorized brews on the market, ranging from a lightweight 70 or so calories a can (Gablinger Extra Light, Pabst Extra Light, Players, Olympia Golden Light and Carling Highlight from Canada) all the way up to a not-so-light 137 calories for Michelob "Light." Other me-too brews with "lite" or "light" on the label include Schmidt's, Schlitz, Coors, Iron City, Texas Pride, Peter Hand, Rheingold, Lucky 96, Rainier and Canada's Labatt's Special Lite. Research shows that "light" beer drinkers are younger, better educated and make more money!

NAME YOUR DRINK, for wine drinkers there's Manischewitz "light" red, white and rose wines, 85 calories for 3-and-one-half-ounce instead of 150. "Pepsi Light" is a sugar-reduced cola partly sweetened with sugar substitute (47 calories for 8 ounces).

LIGHTWEIGHT BREADSPREADS — ordinary jams and jellies are 16 calories a teaspoon but "Polaner Lite" is Polaner's sugar-reduced fruit spread with more fruit than sugar. Smucker has a similar product without the word "light" on the label. Flavors include grape, strawberry, apple, apricot, blackberry, boysenberry and orange marmalade — all 8 calories per teaspoon.

Fleischmann is test-marketing a new "light" margarine made from corn oil. At 75 calories a tablespoon, it's hardly a lightweight; diet margarine is only 50 calories per tablespoon. In Indianapolis a new table spread based on yogurt is being tested. Named "Yogo-Light," it's 66 calories a tablespoon.

'LIGHT AND LUSCIOUS' frozen cakes and pies "that nobody doesn't like" are the big winners for Sara Lee. Sweetened with fruit sugar and very low in fat, the cakes weigh in at 120 calories for a one-eighth portion. Cakes include chocolate or vanilla with chocolate frosting, and banana with banana icing. Also 120 calories a slice are the new Sarah Lee frozen yogurt chiflon pies with strawberry, cherry or blueberry topping.

the other hand, are the so-called frozen "Light Pies" from Mrs. Smith's bakery — no calorie counts or nutrition data on the label. These tiny pies are only seven inches across, weigh 14 ounces, cost $1.80 each, and taste like colored Cool-Whip. We called the company for the calorie count. The chocolate pie — supposed to serve six — is 1,500 calories, or 250 per serving, about the same as regular chocolate cream pie. Banana is 1,320 and coconut is 1,380.

HOMEMADE 'LIGHT' LAYER CAKES from a mix may soon be possible — saving about 100 calories. Both Pillsbury and Betty Crocker are test-marketing mixes with "Lite" frosting, at 100 calories a one-twelfth serving. Most frosted layer cakes from a mix are about 350 calories per serving. "Batter Lite" is the trademark of another "light" cake mix for the diabetic and dietetic market — 100 calories a one-eighth slice, sweetened with sorbitol.

OTHER LITE COMERS INCLUDE McCormick's

"Lite" gravy mix at 10 calories a serving (brown gravy and chicken gravy mixes). Pizza lovers in Wisconsin and Illinois can try "Diet Lite" frozen pizza, 25 percent lower in calories. And then, there's Pringle's "Light" potato-like chips (the pseudo-chips in the tennis ball can). But the "light" refers to taste and color, not calories.

 "Flounder Stuffed with Crabmeat" is an elegant entree that's perennially popular on seafood restaurant menus. Our secret ingredient — both in the filling and the coating — is low-fat, low-calorie mayonnaise. We use it as a binder for the crabmeat stuffing and to help the crumb topping adhere to the (See SLIM, Page C5)

NOT SO LIGHT, on

Refrigerator Dessert

LIGHT AND LUSCIOUS VANILLA CHEESE CAKE
 2 packages un-flavored gelatin
 1 cup sugar, divided
 1/16 teaspoon salt
 2 eggs, separated
 1 cup milk
 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Graham Cracker Crumb Crust
 2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
 1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
 1 cup fresh strawberries
 In top portion of double boiler mix gelatin, 3/4 cup of the sugar and salt. In a small mixing bowl beat egg yolks and milk. Add to the gelatin mixture; blend well.

 Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes.
 Remove from heat; stir in vanilla extract, lemon juice and peel. Chill until mixture is as thick as unbeaten egg white. Meanwhile, in large mixing bowl beat cream cheese and butter until light and smooth. Stir in thickened gelatin mixture; beat well.

 In another bowl, beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in remaining 1/4 cup sugar. Fold into gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon mixture into crumb-lined pan. Chill.

Dessert looks baked but it's done in the refrigerator.

fish. Here's how:
QUICK CRABMEAT STUFFED FLOUNDER
 1 pound flounder (or sole) fillets, thin, fresh, or defrosted
 Crabmeat spread (recipe given)
 3 tablespoons low-fat mayonnaise
 3 tablespoons unseasoned bread crumbs
 Lemon juice
 Salt or seasoned salt
 Pepper and paprika
 Fillets should be thin. Cut into eight pieces, of more or less equal size.

Liberally spray four individual oven-proof oval gratin dishes (or a shallow non-stick baking pan) with cooking spray for no-fat baking. Put one fillet in the bottom of each dish (or in a single layer on the baking pan). Top each fillet with a mound of crab filling, divided evenly among the four fillets. Dip each of the remaining fillets in mayonnaise (top side only), then in bread crumbs, and arrange on top of the crab, crumb-side up. Sprinkle with lemon juice, salt, pepper and paprika. Place in a preheated 450-degree oven and bake, uncovered, 20 minutes. (Garnish with lemon and parsley, if desired.) Makes four servings, 175 calories each.

QUICK CRABMEAT SPREAD
 1 can crabmeat (5 and 1/2 or 6 ounces)
 1 and 1/2 tablespoons Low-fat mayonnaise
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 2 teaspoons onion, instant - dried, minced
 Salt (or seasoned salt) and pepper, to taste

Stir together and chill. Use as sandwich filling or cracker spread, or as stuffing for baked seafood (see recipe, given). Makes about one cup, 15 calories per tablespoon.

CRABMEAT SALAD
 1 can crabmeat (5 and 1/2 or 6 ounces)
 1 small rib celery, minced fine
 1 tablespoon onion, chopped (or 1 teaspoon dried onion flakes)
 1 tablespoon dill pickle relish
 2 tablespoons low-calorie mayonnaise
 1 tablespoon yogurt, plain, low-fat
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1 egg, hard-cooked, chopped
 Salt, or seasoned salt
 Pepper and paprika to taste
 Lemon wedges, lettuce, parsley
 Combine crab, celery, onion, relish, mayonnaise, yogurt, lemon juice and egg, tossing lightly. Season to taste. Arrange on beds of lettuce, garnished with lemon wedges and parsley. Makes three servings, 120 calories each.

Dinner With Rosy Glow

Ah-h-h... There's nothing like the aroma of barbecued chicken sizzling over red hot charcoal embers. For variety, why not try Ruby Glazed Chicken instead of the typical tomato barbecue sauce with chicken.

This delightful Ruby Glaze is prepared quite simply from currant jelly, Worcestershire sauce, and lemon juice, creating a subtly sweet flavor with a bit of a tang. It adds a rosy glow to the chicken while enhancing the mild chicken flavor.

Since this recipe may become a real cook-out favorite, you'll be particularly pleased to know that it can also be prepared in the oven for year round enjoyment. Garnish with fresh or canned fruits on short wooden picks for a colorful and tasty main dish.

However, if beef is more to your liking, Athenian Kabobs will add interest to your meal. Chunks of sirloin alternated on skewers with tomato and green peppers are complemented with a marinade combining an envelope of au jus gravy mix, lemon juice, and oregano for a Greek style dish.

RUBY GLAZED CHICKEN

1 frying chicken, cut up
Salt and pepper
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup currant or apple jelly
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Grill chicken 30 minutes, turning occasionally; season with salt and pepper. Heat together in small saucepan butter and jelly until melted; stir in Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Brush glaze over chicken. Continue to grill 15 to 20 minutes longer, turning frequently and brushing with remaining glaze. 4 to 5 servings.

Oven Method: Arrange chicken in single layer in shallow pan. Bake in 400 degrees oven 30 minutes. Brush chicken with glaze and broil 4 inches from heat 15 to 20 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with remaining glaze.

ATHENIAN KABOBS
1 envelope (1/4-oz.) au jus gravy mix
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup oil
1/4 teaspoon leaf oregano
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1 1/2 to 2 pounds sirloin steak, cut in 1-inch cubes

Cherry tomatoes and green pepper squares

Stir together contents of gravy mix envelope, water, lemon juice, oil, oregano, and sugar; pour over steak cubes and let stand 30 minutes. Alternate steak cubes with tomatoes and pepper on 6 skewers. Grill or broil 10 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with marinade. 6 servings.

Ruby glazed chicken has a rosy glow and subtle flavor.

Kiwi-Top Trifle

In a way, the word "trifle" seems a misnomer for the dessert of English origin that goes by that name. Made with lady fingers or sponge cake, sometimes soaked in sherry or other wine, spread with jam, covered with custard and topped with whipped cream it is hardly a trifle in the culinary sense. It's rich beyond belief but so good that even serious calorie-counters forget their figures when it appears on the table.

Here is a new version of the classic trifle. Vanilla pudding substitutes for the custard sauce and is subtly flavored by the addition of lemon-flavored iced tea mix. This is layered with thin slices of brilliant green kiwi — that unusual fruit that comes to us from New Zealand. The tart-sweet taste of the kiwifruit contrasts with the smooth richness of the pudding and the whipped cream to make a dessert that is well-nigh irresistible.

KIWI TEA TRIFLE

2 tablespoons lemon-flavored iced tea mix
1 (3 1/4-oz.) package vanilla pudding mix
2 cups milk
1 (3-oz.) package ladyfingers
3 ripe kiwifruit
1 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Combine iced tea mix, pudding and milk; cook according to pudding package directions. Cover with plastic wrap; chill thoroughly.

Line sides and bottom of 1 quart glass bowl with split ladyfingers. Peel and slice kiwis; reserve a third of the slices for garnish. Place a third of the kiwi slices over ladyfingers in bottom of dish. Cover with half of the chilled pudding. Whip cream; gradually beat in confectioners' sugar. Spoon half of the cream over pudding. Repeat kiwi and pudding layers. Top with mound of whipped cream and garnish with kiwi slices. Chill at least 1 hour.

Capered salmon steak.

Salmon Main Dish Features Capers

Capers are a classic accompaniment to seafood dishes and a variety of salads. They can be used as a garnish directly from the jar or added to sauces, such as this creamy sauce, to give it an added dimension of flavor. The tanginess of the capers contrasts with the subtleness of the white sauce in an interesting blend that augments the flavor of a salmon steak or any other poached or broiled fish.

This creamy caper sauce rates as a first class accompaniment to the ever-popular salmon steak it garnishes.

CAPERED SALMON STEAK

Salmon Steak:

- 2 salmon steaks, 3/4" thick
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 measuring table-spoon tarragon
- Creamy Caper Sauce:
- 3 measuring table-spoons butter
- 3 measuring table-spoons flour
- 1/2 measuring teaspoon salt
- 1/4 measuring teaspoon cracked pepper
- 1 cup milk
- 2 measuring table-spoons lemon juice
- 1 measuring table spoon capers, drained

Garnish:

- Lemon wedges
- Dill sprigs

Salmon Steak:

Preheat oven to 350°F. Arrange salmon steaks in shallow 2-qt. baking dish. In small saucepan, melt 1/4 cup butter; remove from heat and add 1/4 cup lemon juice and tarragon. Pour lemon-butter mixture over salmon; cover with aluminum foil. Bake at 350° for 40 minutes.

Creamy Caper Sauce: In small saucepan, melt 3 tablespoons butter. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk gradually, cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; blend in 2 tablespoons lemon juice and capers. Serve warm over salmon. Garnish with lemon wedges and dill sprigs, if desired.

Sandwich With Flair

If you have milk and yogurt on hand, you have the basic ingredients for any number of quick refreshing snacks.

- COTTAGE CHEESE FILLED PITA
- 1 cup small curd cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt
- 1/2 cup pitted ripe olives, cut into wedges
- 1/4 cup whole natural almonds, chopped
- 3 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Alfalfa sprouts
- 2 pita breads, halved
- 4 tomato slices, halved

Combine cottage cheese, yogurt, olives, almonds, parsley, rosemary and salt. Place some alfalfa sprouts in pita bread halves. Spoon cottage cheese mixture into pita bread. Add tomato slices. Makes 4 servings.

- YOGURT PINEAPPLE SHAKE
- 1 cup milk
- 1/4 cup plain yogurt
- 1 tablespoon flaked coconut
- 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 (8-ounce) can chunk pineapple in juice

Combine all ingredients in electric blender. Whirl until smooth and frothy. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

- YOGURT PEACH SMOOTHIE
- 1 (8 3/4 ounce) can cling peach slices
- 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar (packed)

Combine all ingredients in electric blender. Whirl until smooth and creamy. Makes about 3 cups.

COTTAGE CHEESE VARIATION: Substitute 1/2 cup cottage cheese for yogurt. Reduce sugar to 2 tablespoons.

Cottage cheese filled pita bread.

Rice and vegetable pilaf.

Dressed-Up Rice

Like the simple, basic dress that fashionable ladies dress up or down for many occasions, rice is a basic cereal that appears on dining tables around the world in hundreds of different ways. In China it accompanies meat and vegetable dishes, unseasoned and un-garnished. The Chinese say that its neutral flavor cleanses the palate, making it more sensitive to the individual flavors and textures of other dishes served with it. Many ecipures agree.

One of the popular uses of rice in Japan is in sushi. Cooked rice is mixed with a vinegar dressing, and arranged into a kind of sandwich with slices of fresh, raw fish. Indian cooks like to use ghee (clarified butter) highly seasoned with garlic, cardamon, tumeric, cinnamon stick, coriander and cayenne. The seasonings cook in the ghee to meld flavors, then rice and vegetables are added. The result: a richly seasoned cereal that is delicious served with a yogurt and cucumber relish called raita.

The Middle East is famous for pilaf of which there is infinite variety. With the addition of sugar, nutmeg, raisins and nuts, rice becomes an exotic dessert. Seasoned with herbs such as sage, thyme, rosemary, and parsley and cooked with vegetables in season, pilaf is an appropriate accompaniment for chicken, beef, pork, lamb and fish.

The accompanying recipe for Rice and Vegetable Pilaf may use corn oil margarine instead of butter which makes it eligible for persons on low saturated fat diets. Served with shish kebabs, a leafy green salad and fruit for dessert, the menu is relatively low in calories yet generous in nutrients for persons on low cholesterol and low saturated fat diets.

RICE AND VEGETABLE PILAF
1/4 cup (1/2 stick)

- margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup long grain rice
- 2 cups water
- 1 package (10oz.) frozen string beans, thawed
- 2 medium carrots, cut into julienne strips
- 1 medium green pepper, coarsely diced
- 1/2 teaspoon sage
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In a very large saucepan or Dutch oven melt corn oil margarine over medium heat. Add onion and salt; saute onions until golden. Add rice and water; mix thoroughly. Bring to a boil over high heat. Stir in beans, carrots, pepper, sage and thyme.

Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 10-15 minutes until all water is absorbed and vegetables are tender. Transfer the rice into a serving bowl and garnish with finely chopped parsley, if desired.

Mouth-Watering Recipes for Summer Fruits

Summer's best fruit deserves the best possible treatment — recipes rich with the flavor of honest-to-goodness fresh creamery butter. Now is the time to enjoy all the mouth-watering concoctions that make summer a festival of good things to eat.

The great American favorite from 'way back has to be butter-rich shortcake, filled with slices of ripe, fresh fruit, topped with luscious whipped cream. For hundreds of Californians, fresh peach time is also Old Fashioned Shortcake time — summer wouldn't be summer without it.

Fresh from the oven, warm and melting-good, a Fresh Plum Kuchen with its distinctly German flavor is a treat for the whole family. Its special claim to goodness — a topping of dairy sour cream for contrast with the sweet, juicy plum cake.

Grand finale to a summer-best company dinner — Fresh Raspberry Cake Roll. The cake is a light, buttery roll surrounding fresh raspberries and whipped cream. Serve slices topped with another splurge of whipped cream and sprinkling of more raspberries. A complimentary-gathering choice for an afternoon bridge luncheon, too.

OLD FASHIONED SHORTCAKE
2 1/2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 1/2 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon sugar
Sweetened sliced peaches
Whipping cream

Lightly butter and flour an 8-inch round cake pan. Preheat oven to 425°. Sift flour, baking powder, the 1/2 cup sugar and salt into a bowl. Cut in butter. Make a well in center. Add egg and cream; stir with a fork just until combined. Pat the mixture lightly into the prepared pan; sprinkle top with the 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden. Partially cool in pan. Cut warm shortcake in wedges, split horizontally, and fill with peach slices. Top with whipped cream and additional peaches. Makes 6 servings.

BLUEBERRY BUTTERMILK PANCAKES
2 cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon each salt and soda
2 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 1/2 cups buttermilk
2 tablespoons butter melted

1 basket (about 1 1/2 cups) fresh blueberries
Confectioners' sugar
Whipped Orange Butter
Sift together dry ingredients. Add eggs, buttermilk and butter; stir just until moistened. Add 1 cup of the berries. Bake pancakes on a hot, lightly greased griddle, using a scant 1/4 cup batter for each. Turn once. Arrange pancakes on warm plates; sift confectioners' sugar over. Serve with the Orange Butter and remaining blueberries. Makes 6 servings, 4 packages each.

Whipped Orange Butter: Cream 1 cup sweet butter with 1 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar until the mixture is fluffy. Stir in thoroughly the grated rind of 1 orange.

PEACH PLUM PIE

Filling:
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks, beaten

2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 drops yellow food coloring
Baked 9-inch Butter Crust

Pastry (recipe follows)

Topping:
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
1 cup diced red plums

1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
2 fresh peaches, peeled and sliced

To prepare filling: In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan combine sugar, flour and salt. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 minutes longer. Blend a small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks; return all to pan. Cook 1 minute (do not boil). Stir in butter, vanilla and food coloring. Cool slightly. Pour into cooled pie shell. Chill.

Butter Crust Pastry: To prepare Topping: In a small saucepan combine sugar, water and plums. Cook until plums are tender, about 10 minutes. Stir in lemon juice; sieve and cool. Just before serving, arrange sliced peaches on top of filling. Spoon on plum mixture. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Butter Crust Pastry: Into a large mixing bowl sift together 1 cup unbleached regular all-purpose flour and 1/4 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons lard until mixture resembles small peas. Sprinkle 3 tablespoons milk over flour mixture, 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly with a fork after each addition. Shape dough into a ball. Roll out on a floured board to a circle about 10 inches in diameter. Ease into a 9-inch pie pan. Trim and flute edge. Prick bottom and sides well with a fork. Bake at 450° for about 10 minutes until lightly browned.

FRESH PLUM KUCHEN

Filling:
1 1/2 pounds fresh red plums (about 16 small)

Summer Cooler Time

Stay cool and refreshed this summer with a thirst-quenching sipper, or a sumptuous summer salad. The key ingredients in the recipes featured here are broths — beef and chicken. Try these recipe ideas as complements to sensational summer fare.

combines the subtle flavor of condensed chicken broth and fresh vegetables.

GARDEN SALAD
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1/2 cup cold water
2 cans (10 3/4 ounces each) condensed chicken broth

1 teaspoon vinegar
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
2 cups chopped fresh tomatoes
1 cup chopped zucchini squash
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup finely chopped green onions

In saucepan, sprinkle gelatine on cold water. Place over low heat, stirring until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat; add broth and seasonings. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 6-cup mold. Chill 6 hours or until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Serve with mayonnaise. Makes about 6 cups, 6 servings.

This crisp, cool salad

...Berry

(From Page C8)

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
Crust:
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
1 cup sugar
1 1/4 cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup dairy sour cream

Halve and pit plums. Mix lightly with sugar and tapioca. Let stand for 15 minutes or longer while preparing crust. In a mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Sift together flour, salt, cinnamon and baking powder; gradually add to creamed mixture (will be crumbly). Set aside 1/2 cup. Press remainder to cover bottom and extend 1 inch up sides of a 9-inch springform or removable bottom round cake pan, or an 8-inch square baking pan.

Arrange plums, cut sides down, in shell. Sprinkle with any sugar-tapioca mixture not absorbed by the plums, then with 1/2 cup crumbly butter-flour mixture. Bake in a preheated 400° oven for 45 minutes, until topping is browned and plums are tender. Serve warm with sour cream whipped in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters until doubled in volume (about 5 minutes with electric mixer at highest speed). Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RASPBERRY SPONGE ROLL
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
Confectioners' sugar
Preheated 325° oven

Filling:
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups fresh raspberries

Line a buttered shallow baking pan (10 by 15 by 1 inch) with waxed paper, then butter the paper. In a 1-quart saucepan heat milk; add butter. Cool. In a mixing bowl beat eggs until very thick and lemon colored. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until smooth. Add the 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt; gradually add to egg mixture and mix only until blended. Add milk, stirring quickly only until batter is smooth (will be thin). Pour into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 325° oven for 18 to 20 minutes until cake springs back when touched lightly. Loosen cake from sides of pan and turn out on a clean towel that has been dusted with confectioners' sugar. Peel off waxed paper and trim crisp edges of cake. Starting with the narrow end of the cake, roll towel and cake together; cool on a rack.

To make the filling, beat 1/2 cup of the cream with confectioners' sugar and vanilla until stiff. When the cake is cool, carefully unroll it, removing the towel. Spread the filling over the cake and top with 1 cup of the berries. Carefully roll the cake and dust the top with confectioners' sugar. Chill for 1 to 2 hours. Serve sliced with remaining 1/2 cream whipped until stiff, and additional 1 cup berries sweetened to taste. Makes 8 servings.

Underwear Theory

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is a dear person, now in her late 70s. She raised five daughters and I'd say she did a fairly good job of it considering she worked a 10-hour day in a dry goods store.

Mother formed our concepts about a great many things but my strongest recollection was her preoccupation with the condition of our underwear.

Almost every day for years Mama would remind us that we must always wear clean underwear — no pins or rips. Heaven forbid! She said, "A girl never knows when she will be in an accident, and nothing is more humiliating than being taken to the hospital in shabby or soiled underwear." According to Mama, the nurses and doctors talk of nothing else.

Have you heard from other readers who worried about such trivia? My sisters and I have laughed about it for years and now I've decided to write and inquire on behalf of the —

DEAR FIVE: Your mother has lots of company. Many women are haunted by the same fear.

A very funny book by Liz Smith called "The Mother Book" (Publisher, Doubleday, $10.95) relates that HER mother was hung-up on underwear. One day the dear woman actually broke her neck in a car accident. The dutiful daughter rushed to the hospital and the first thing Liz's mother said was, "I had on my Christmas underwear, thank heavens!"

The book is hilarious. A perfect gift for anyone in a hospital no matter what the condition of her (or his) underwear when brought there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tomorrow night I won't be going to a family reunion because I can't open my right eye. My boyfriend hit me. It was over nothing at all. Actually, I couldn't remember his friend's name and he insisted I "forgot on purpose."

I must say he was awfully nice about it right after. He took me to a swell steak place and bought me two T-bones — one to eat and one for my eye.

I am 19. He is really a neat guy except for this one fault. He has hit me a couple of times before but never where it showed. Now I'm afraid if my folks guess what happened they will make me stop seeing Mike.

I don't want to stop. He's got lots of good qualities that make up for this bad one. I need your advice.

HAYWARD READER DEAR HAY: What kind of advice? You've already told me what a "neat guy" Mike is and that you don't want to stop seeing him. You've also told me he has hit you before. So now I will tell YOU that he will undoubtedly hit you again.

Don't be surprised if one day he clobbers you over something really important and puts you in the hospital.

DEAR ANN: I'm sure lots of lonely people write to you. Since you are against lonely hearts clubs and computer dating, why not interview high-class prospects in your home? You could change a lot of lives. — ROGERS, ARK.

DEAR ARK: I could change lives all right — especially mine. All I need is to run a dating service — from my home yet, I want no part of playing Cupid. Everyone should find his own mate. He can then either thank himself or kick himself.

Ann Landers

Horoscope

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Family member is responsible for pleasant surprise. Accent on social event, celebration, wish fulfillment, friendship transformed in serious relationship.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Accent on goal, career, authority, civic duty, making room for yourself at top. Define terms. Avoid self-deception. Get behind scenes. The floating lady is being held up by "something." Enjoy the illusion. But don't take literally everything you see.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, education, publication, communication, long-distance message. Capricorn, Aquarius, Cancer persons figure in your personal scenario. What seemed an impossible dream may be closer at hand than imagined.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You get to bottom of mystery. You learn lessons which could be the beginning of a fascinating hobby — or profession. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Accent on finances affecting partner or mate. Interest in the occult is sparked.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You're offered "new deal" or revised agreement. Key is to accept creative challenge. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could be in picture. Emphasis on cooperative effort, hearing views of others without burying your own beliefs. Questions concerning partnership, marriage arise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Moon position spotlights employment, basic services, general welfare, health. Expectations are great — and that is good — if you avoid losing patience. Steady pace wins. Skipping essentials for sake of short cut carries steep price. The choice is your own.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on creative endeavors, significant changes, love. Social life accelerates — you communicate, publish, travel, imprint style and individuality. Luck runs high in games of chance — but don't go overboard. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in exciting scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be meticulous — check and doublecheck fine print, details. Be aware of basic material — and your own needs. Protect valuables. Get home, property appraisal. Parent or authority figure could seek your approval.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Yes, the move is good and necessary, where feeling of betrayal is concerned. The number is 5. Written material, once evaluated, will prove to be of advantage. Study Scorpio message. A Gemini could play key role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on money and how to get more of it. Element of timing is on your side. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently. Finances and domestic situation combine — diplomacy now could be greatest ally in talking money with family.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lead the way, make personal appearances, stress originality, independence, pioneering spirit. Define terms, refuse to take back seat to one who attempts to intimidate you. Cycle is high and you will emerge victorious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): What was a "confidential report" becomes available. Put foot down — draw line, live up to responsibility. Some may chide, but they actually are envious. Weight of authority is on your side. Member of opposite sex is intrigued and hardly makes a secret of it.

Cloud of Sail

The Coast Guard training barque Eagle is shown under full sail as she cruises down the coast from San Francisco to the Port of Long Beach where she will lead a parade of sail around the harbor starting at 2 p.m. Saturday. The Eagle and several other boats in the American Sail Training Association race are expected to arrive in Long Beach Thursday night.

Ondine in Front Kialoa 15 Miles Behind in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — The 79-foot sloop Ondine managed to slip 15 miles ahead of the 79-foot ketch Kialoa Tuesday as they fell into the light winds on the lee side of Hawaii Island in the around-the-state yacht race.

The race is the final event in the five-race Pan Am Clipper Cup Yacht Series.

AT TUESDAY'S afternoon roll call, Ondine was 45 miles from South Point on Hawaii Island, making only 50 miles in the previous eight hours.

After they get around South Point, the boats should once again be in the tradewinds for the beating leg back up the east side of the chain and through the Molokai Channel for the Diamond Head finish.

BEHIND THE TWO United States boats, in order, were Australia's Big Schott, followed by Sorcery of the United States and Australia's Ragamuffin.

Then in a pack came Checkmate of the United States, Hawaii's Carrie

Ann V. Bravura of the United States, Country Boy of New Zealand and Australia's Nyamba

Character Boat Date Selected Silver Wins Third Catamaran Crown

Aug. 20 has been set as the date for the annual Character Boat Parade, sponsored by the Commodore Club of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce.

The event this year will be without a theme and entrants are being told to decorate as they please. Judging will be based on divisions which include schooners, classic yachts, tugs and work boats, monterays and boats of unusual design or character.

Entry blanks are available through the chamber offices, 1407 Jamboree Road, or from local yacht clubs.

Balboa Team Wins Regatta

The team of Ty Beach and Heidi Crasel, of the Balboa Yacht Club was the winner in Lido Isle Yacht Club's Stewart Memorial Regatta, a Yacht Racing Union-sanctioned event for boy-girl teams between the ages of 16 and 19. The races are sailed in Lido-14s.

Second was Steve Custer-Carol Chase, Mission Bay Yacht Club; third was Jack Franco-Suzanne Oelke, LYC; fourth was Randy and Debby Gallman, MBYC, and fifth was Matt Madruga-Jerelyn Wright, San Diego Yacht Club.

Silver Wins Third Catamaran Crown

Jeff Silver of Huntington Beach won his third straight national championship in the Pacific Catamarans (P-Cat) Class last Sunday in a six race series sailed out of Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club.

There were 17 entries in Class A and nine in Class B. Second in Class A was Owen Minney of Newport Beach and third was Craig Greaves, Mission Bay Yacht Club, San Diego.

Winner in Class B was Steve Young of the West Coast Yacht Club and second was Mark Auchamel, Newport Beach.

The P-Cat is a 20-foot catamaran produced in Newport Beach by Westport Marine. It is one of the few catamaran classes that flies a spinnaker.

The national championship was sailed over Olympic courses.

European Crown Taken by Greek

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — George Andreadis of Greece won the European Lightning sailing championship with Christoph Luthy of Switzerland taking second place.

In the sixth and final race in the Athens leg of the European sailing championship, Mando De Amicis of Italy was first, followed by George Andreadis and Claude Lambelet of Switzerland.

The final standings had Andreadis first with 10 penalty points, followed by Claude Luthy with 20 points and American John Schneider with 24.

Nacra Wins

Bob Osmer's Cat Big Nacra, won a decisive victory over George Hamilton's Crooked Sky in a series of match races around the oil islands off Long Beach Sunday.

The event was sailed for the Queen's Cup with the start and finish viewed by spectators aboard the Queen Mary. Big Nacra won two straight races in the best two of three series.

San Francisco Event

Star Title Races Set

The world championship of the International Star Class will be held in San Francisco this year starting Oct. 8 for the first of six races.

Twenty-seven countries are expected to be represented when the title event for the world's oldest one-design sailing class gets under way. The Regatta will be co-hosted by St. Francis Yacht Club and the West San Francisco Bay Star Fleet.

AFTER BEING excluded for several years, the Star has been reinstated as an Olympic Class. Since its reinstatement the class has experienced a tremendous burst of competitive energy.

The Star Class Association is seeking financial support for the "world's." Tax deductible donations range from benefactor, $1,000; sponsor, $250; sustaining, $100; contributing, $50; supporting, $25, and associate, $10.

CHECKS SHOULD be made payable to the San Francisco Bay Sailing Association, 2214 Quesada Ave., San Francisco, 84124.

The association is also preparing a souvenir-quality program which will be on sale during the St. Francis Yacht Club's Perpetual Trophy Regatta starting Sept. 16.

Starting a New Business

According to California Business and Professions Code (Sec. 17900 to 17930) all persons doing business under a fictitious name must file a statement with the County Clerk and have it published four times in a newspaper serving the area in which the business is located.

The statement is required by law and is necessary in protecting your business name. Most banks require proof of filing to open commercial accounts.

The DAILY PILOT provides both filing and publication services. We have all the necessary forms and maintain a daily service to the O.R.A.N.G.E. County Courthouse. Either stop by one of our convenient offices or phone the LEGAL DEPARTMENT 642-4321. Ext. 332 for more information and forms.

Hundreds Mourn Valley Football Star

Hundreds of mourners are anticipated Friday at funeral services for star Fountain Valley High School quarterback Doug Thompson, who was fatally injured in a car crash Monday on route to college.

Spokesmen for the Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminster, where the 2:30 p.m. rites are scheduled, said chairs and a public address system are being set up outside. The spacious chapel, large enough to accommodate most funeral services, will be filled well beyond overflowing, by present estimates.

"We've had many, many telephone calls asking about the time and I even got quite a few myself at home," said a mortuary spokesman. Thompson, 17, an honor student and engineer of the Barons' 1977 Sunset League championship season, was killed instantly in a rollover accident 40 miles outside Blythe.

His teammate, halfback Willie Gittens, 18, also of Fountain Valley, suffered head injuries and has been transferred to a hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., for further observation. Gittens was driving their sports car en route to pre-season training at Arizona State University at Tempe, where both had won Sun Devil football scholarships.

California Highway Patrol investigators theorize Gittens, 1977 Large Schools Division Player of the Year, fell asleep at the wheel. Rites honoring Thompson Friday are expected to draw classmates and players from rival schools.

"I think we can anticipate a tremendous outpouring of friendship," says Fountain Valley High School Activities Director Bob Ferguson. The funeral chapel is on Bolsa Avenue just west of Beach Boulevard, and rites will be followed by interment at nearby Westminster Memorial Park.

Shoppers Stock Up On Food

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Daddy Eisenhower Elated by Jennie

PROUD PAPA INTERVIEWED
David Eisenhower

By ANNE COOPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their daughter Jennie because it sounds like Julie, but isn't. "Julie didn't want to have another 'Julie,'" he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30." Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out (See JENNIE, Page A2)

Teacher Issue Boils District Chief Stands By Charges

Fountain Valley School District Deputy Superintendent Glenn Hardy said today he will stand by statements he made in June that teacher group leaders now claim are criminal violations.

Fountain Valley Education Association teachers Tuesday filed criminal charges against Hardy and the school board for "verbal abuse and perjury" for his remarks stemming from a May 31 to June 1 teacher protest in the school district headquarters.

The teachers were protesting layoff of 96 instructors and a wave of program cutbacks.

Teacher leader Yale Wishnick filed the verbal abuse charges with Fountain Valley Police Department officials who sent the complaint to the Orange County District Attorney.

Wishnick made the charges under Section 44812 of the California Education Code that says verbal abuse of a teacher is a misdemeanor.

Teachers also charged Hardy with perjury in connection with his statements about the two-night protest in the district offices.

Hardy said the protest was "disruptive and destructive."

Teachers have denied any wrongdoing.

School board President Pro Tem Betty Mignaneli also said she stands by the trustees' actions but declined to comment further until she has a chance to examine the charges.

A spokesman for the District Attorney's Office said the teachers charges have not been received.

FV Colonia Park Fee Plan Backed

By RAYMOND ESTRADA JR.
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fountain Valley City Council members gave initial approval Tuesday to a plan to charge Colonia Juarez area property owners $550 in park site fees.

Calling the move a compromise, council members voted 3 to 1 to lower the fees from the originally proposed $1,000. The plan is expected to come up for a final vote Sept. 5.

The fees would be collected from the owners of 76 lots when the owners decide to split their 50 by 300-foot properties and build on the newly formed subdivisions.

But three Colonia property owners insisted the council should drop the park fee entirely.

Colonia community group leader Patricia Bitters of 17249 Ward St. told the council the fees are "terribly wrong."

Colonia property owner David Hernandez, now a Santa Ana resident, said the fees are "a darn shame" and "take advantage of the people."

Aurelia Luna, of 10442 Avenida Cinco de Mayo who has lived in the Colonia since 1932, asked the council to drop the fees.

"I don't think it's fair for you to charge us these fees because our taxes are so high," she told the council.

Councilman Bernie Svalstad said the fees would, in effect, pay for the land the city bought eight years ago to provide the Colonia with a neighborhood park at a cost of $41,143.

But Mrs. Bitters said the Colonia Park "is a farce." The park, at the corner of Calles Independencia and Zaragoza, is about one square acre in size and includes a city water well and county-operated preschool.

Councilman Ben Nielsen and Svalstad said the fees are necessary to be "fair" to other Fountain Valley residents who paid them through developer costs included in the price of their

LAD REQUIRES MORE 'STUDY'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Child Guidance Clinic plans a little more counseling for a 10-year-old boy treated briefly for being a kleptomaniac.

While he was under study this week, police say, the youngster swiped $300 from the counselor's desk.

Newport Cop Trainee Dies After Crash

Newport Beach Police Department trainee Gordon Roberts, 27, died Tuesday afternoon at Fountain Valley Community Hospital of injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident Monday.

The Navy veteran, just a month short of graduation from the Los Angeles Police Department Academy, sustained multiple injuries when his personal motorcycle rammed a parked car.

Investigators said he was not wearing a protective helmet when he collided with the vehicle on Daisy Avenue, not far from the neighborhood where he lived.

Spokesmen at Pacific View Memorial Park in Corona del Mar said today funeral services are tentatively set for 10 a.m. Friday in their chapel.

Roberts was leaving a bachelor party for his best friend, Newport Beach Police Officer Tom Little, when the accident occurred.

The victim leaves his wife, who is expecting their second child, and a 5-year-old daughter.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Bolstered by U.S. backing, landowner-businessman Antonio Guzman becomes president of the Dominican Republic today in the island country's first peaceful transfer of power to an opposition party.

Burned Up Classic Car Destroyed

A South Laguna man with an aching heart stood by the roadside in Huntington Beach Tuesday night and watched his 90 percent-restored 1958 Mercedes-Benz luxury sedan burn.

The classic auto, today a charred shell, was valued at up to $20,000 due to the restoration investment, according to George Thomas of 6 Treasure Island.

Fire Department Inspector Gary Glenn said a friend was test-driving the luxury sedan southbound on Brookhurst Street near Pacific Coast Highway about 9:30 p.m. when fire erupted.

Thomas, riding as a passenger, and his unidentified companion swerved to a halt and bailed out as flames erupted into the car's interior.

"A couple of guys stopped and tried to put it out with fire extinguishers, but it was too late," said Inspector Glenn.

He added that while the Bushard Street Fire Station is not too far distant, the car fire occurred in an area where no telephones are close by to summon emergency aid.

Flames had engulfed the classic four-door sedan when firemen were able to reach the scene.

Thousands In Homage To Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13½-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Priscilla, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Also awaiting the fans in the 90-degree heat was a row of air conditioned souvenir shops and roving soda-pop sellers.

Hearing Slated For Coast Man On Theft Rap

A Huntington Beach man accused of receiving stolen property in the theft of a safe containing $8,000 in cash faces a preliminary hearing in the Harbor Judicial District Court Monday.

Richard "Rooster" Hopkins, 27, of 426 8th St. was arrested by Newport Beach Detective Doug Thomas in connection with the safe theft from the Eastbluff Cleaners last month.

Hopkins, who remained in custody today at Orange County Jail, has been arrested twice in connection with the case.

He was originally picked up on Aug. 3 after an anonymous informant told police Hopkins had the missing safe.

He was released from county jail five days later in a technical error, but was picked up the same day when he returned to the Newport Beach police station to pick up the $1.46 taken from him when he was booked.

Police re-arrested Hopkins using a warrant they'd obtained from Municipal Judge Donald Dungan when they were notified of their suspect's release.

Bail on the court warrant is $10,000.

North State Gets Showers

By The Associated Press

A weak cold front slipped into Northern California, causing light rain showers to fall over the northern mountains, and those clouds may not clear up today.

The National Weather Service said today that temperatures will cool down throughout the state, except for the deserts and the central valley which will remain hot. Clouds and fog will hang over the coast, while the inland can expect fair weather.

The high temperatures in Northern California ranged from 97 in Stockton to 63 in San Francisco.

Schmitz, Cordova Open Campaign

One Embraces Jarvis; Other Shuns Government

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement into his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican

Dennis Carpenter. And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 6 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airporter Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972. Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidential nomination.

Schmitz said he didn't change party affiliation until after his AIP presidential nomination.

In a paraphrase of the well-known Schmitz' remark about the first Nixon trip to Communist China, Cordova quipped, "I'm informed by my Republican friends they took no exception to John Schmitz leaving the Republican Party, only to his return."

But Schmitz pointed to his endorsement "by all Republican groups" and county GOP leaders to prove he has "mended fences" with the party.

Cordova wouldn't let up on his attack on Schmitz' political travels, however.

The Democratic assemblyman said that, unlike his foe, his political epitaph will not read, "Have campaign, will travel."

Schmitz retaliated to the barbs by recounting his 2½-year record as a congressman and 5½ years as a state senator.

Included in the record cited by him was support of efforts by Jarvis to reform the state's property tax laws, efforts that date back to the mid-1960s.

Schmitz also said he is probably the only congressman ever sent to Washington who saved the taxpayers more money than he cost.

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Both candidates also decried expanded government spending and "growth of government."

Both said they support extending capital punishment to cover more crimes.

Disagreement came on the so-called Briggs initiative, prohibiting homosexuals from teaching in public schools.

Schmitz said he supports the measure. Cordova said he does not.

And while Cordova said he is not certain how he will vote in the gubernatorial race, Schmitz emphasized that he is an Evelle Younger supporter.

When it came time for them to ask each other one question, Cordova asked Schmitz what he had done as a state legislator to advance the cause of property tax reform.

Schmitz pointed to his support of Jarvis in the 1960's and a plaque he received in 1967 from United Taxpayers, the Jarvis support organization.

In turn, Schmitz asked Cordova to show his "conversion to conservatism to be other than political."

Cordova said his record as a deputy district attorney who never lost a felony case shows him to be something far less than liberal.

Besides, Cordova said, his record as a legislator, not political rhetoric, should serve as the example of his conservatism.

Meanwhile, David Bergland, who hopes to make the November ballot as the Libertarian Party candidate in the 36th, waited in a hallway.

Bergland said he was miffed because the debate sponsor, the Building Industry Association, didn't invite him.

Association spokesman Jim Beam said Bergland would have been invited were he a bona fide candidate.

Bergland insisted he will be when Libertarian workers collect the signatures needed to add his name to the ballot.

Cable Car

Theft Probed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A district attorney's team of investigators has been assigned to determine if cable car conductors are pocketing fares.

The investigation, by the same group of lawyers who probed the city's parking meter scandal, was prompted by the release Tuesday of a critical report on the accounting practices of the Municipal Railway.

The audit, prepared by the firm of Deloitte, Haskins and Sells for the Public Utilities Commission, offered no estimate of how much money, if any, was being lost.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

Nine Summoned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is seeking to extradite from England two of the 11 members of the Church of Scientology who have been charged with breaking into government offices, planting bugging devices and stealing official documents. The other nine have been issued summonses to appear before a federal magistrate here on Thursday for a bail hearing.

Some specific cost reductions have included leaving personnel vacancies unfilled, cutting conference and membership expenditures, reducing the number of hourly employees and charging more for transportation.

The budget is expected to be given final approval Sept. 7.

Correllan Thompson, the district's business affairs vice chancellor, said cuts have been made by reducing staff, replacing less equipment and supplies, and cutting contract services, maintenance and operations and capital outlay.

In addition, although basic education tuition remains free, Thompson said taxpayers will no longer underwrite free lectures, seminars, concerts, enter-

Parents' Fight Ends In Deaths

LA GRANGE HIGHLANDS, Ill. (AP) — A newly divorced couple apparently engaged in a final fight that left blood spattered from room to room in their home and ended in murder and suicide, police said.

An officer, called to investigate late Tuesday, said he looked into the front window of the home belonging to William and Suzanne Donnelly, and saw their 4-year-old daughter, Brandie, "standing in the blood in the living room trying to wake her mother."

Mrs. Donnelly, 28, had been stabbed 11 times in the abdomen, five times in the throat and once in the chest. A kitchen knife and three table forks were found next to the body, police said.

Donnelly, 33, was found in an adjacent garage, his head placed under the exhaust pipe of a car with the engine still running. Police said he had cuts on his wrists and had apparently tried to slash them.

Authorities said every room in the suburban home west of Chicago was covered with blood and that a partial barricade of furniture had been put up in the hallway. They speculated that the couple fought each other throughout the dwelling. The daughter was unharmed.

homes. Mayor Pro Tem Roger Stanton, who cast the only dissenting vote, said the fees should not be reduced.

"This sets a dangerous precedent," said Stanton who felt the Colonia property owners should pay the full $1,000 fee.

Colonia property owners argued that their neighborhood is not like the numerous housing tracts built by large developers in Fountain Valley.

The Colonia, located between Warner and Slater avenues just west of Ward Street, is the only Fountain Valley residential area that has not previously been charged park fees.

The lot-splitting fees became an issue when the city unveiled plans to build three new cul-de-sac streets where dirt alleys now exist in the Colonia. Federal funds are to be used for the project.

Colonia leader Mrs. Bitters said she is unsure if more residents will fight the $550 fee.

Mary Ruvalcava, 72, who has lived in the Colonia since it formed 55 years ago, simply said, "Well, $550 is better than $1,000."

Gary Davis, city parks director, said the $41,800 to be collected from the Colonia fees will be absorbed into the city's general park fund.

Fido's Fat?

There's a Spa in His Future

MUNDELEIN, Ill. (AP) — Bernie Brown says. "Send me your dog for 10 days and I'll make a new man of him."

Brown is opening a fat farm for Fido in September, a $500,000 facility northwest of Chicago to be named The Countryside Animal Spa.

He says there will be a "complete health revitalization program" — whirlpool baths, therapeutic massages, oil baths, deep heat treatments with sun lamps, strict weight-control diets, coat conditioning.

The spa also will offer boarding facilities, spacious suites in decorator colors. The pet will sleep on a heated fiberglass resting bench that pulls from the wall, going sleepy by soothing FM music that will be piped in.

The cost per dog for all this luxury has not been announced.

Under Oath

'Didn't Kill King,' Ray Says at Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

Ray, in his first public accounting under oath of the events surrounding the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader, told the House assassinations committee: "My testimony is the same that I would have given to a Memphis trial court if I had had that opportunity."

The 50-year-old Ray, accompanied by a phalanx of U.S. marshals, was brought into the committee's chamber under severe security provisions. Spectators, including photographers, were cautioned they would be expelled if they so much as stood while Ray, wearing an ill-fitting sport coat and gray tie, entered the room.

known this afternoon, and a strike could begin anytime after 12:01 Saturday, 48 hours after the clerks' contract expires.

Bob Voigt of the Food Employers Council said store officials were not optimistic about avoiding a walkout.

"The unions are threatening to strike, and we believe them," he said.

The 15 chains involved are Albertsons, Alpha Beta, Arden-Mayfair, Boys, Certified Grocers, Hughes, A.M. Lewis, Lucky Stores, Market Basket, Ralphs, Safeway, Smiths Food King, Stater Bros., Thriftmart and Vons.

For several weeks, the markets have had signs in their windows advertising for clerks, with no experience necessary. By Tuesday, said Voigt, "between 15,000 and 20,000" persons had agreed to take jobs as soon as a strike begins, and some stores already were training them.

Effectiveness of the strike will depend on whether Teamster warehousemen and drivers continue to make deliveries from supply centers to the markets, or whether they honor clerks' picket lines.

In Northern California, where the Teamsters are engaged in a strike-lockout with four market chains — Safeway, Lucky, Alpha Beta and Ralphs — clerks have not uniformly honored Teamster picket lines.

battle over Ray's treatment by federal authorities, Ray launched into a long and rambling preliminary statement, his voice quick but halting.

Ray pleaded guilty in 1969 to King's killing but almost immediately recanted that confession after receiving a 99-year sentence in a Tennessee state prison.

"In respect to my guilty plea," he said, "it is not a difficult matter for an attorney to move his client to a guilty plea. I'm sure every member of this committee knows this."

Ray's attorney at the time of his sentencing was Percy Foreman, a nationally known trial lawyer.

Then Ray turned to what apparently will be the underlying theme of his claim to innocence: that he was a mere pawn in what he thought was a gun-running scheme by a mystery man named "Raoul" and may have been set up, moreover, by undercover operations of the FBI. The story is one which Ray has long aired via prison interviews.

Ray told the committee about breaking out of Missouri State Prison in 1967 and traveling in zig-zag fashion to St. Louis, the Chicago area, Indianapolis and ultimately to Canada, where he spent one night with a prostitute and robbed her pimp the next day — then met "Raoul" by chance on the Montreal docks.

In return for money and a never-fulfilled promise of travel documents, Ray said he carried items across the Canadian and Mexican borders for the Spanish-accented "Raoul," who had mysterious telephone numbers in New Orleans and no last name Ray could remember.

After smuggling the items, which Ray did not specifically identify, he said he went to Los Angeles, took a bartending course, tried unsuccessfully to go to work for the Internal Revenue Service, traveled to New Orleans to agree to the gun-running scheme with the mystery man — and ultimately returned to Los Angeles.

"I was taking a lock-picking — rather a locksmith course at this time," Ray told the committee.

At another point, he said: "I robbed the — I was robbed of a watch."

He told of trying to contact a girl who advertised herself in an underground Los Angeles newspaper "as a nymphomaniac." Apologetically, Ray added, "Of course, I had been in jail for about six years."

"A vegetable," Stone said. "I can't live with seeing him like that."

Myra Stone, Louis' mother, had said she wanted her son to remain on the equipment.

Life Support To Remain for Comatose Boy

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A judge ruled today that a comatose 12-year-old boy must remain connected to life-support equipment despite a petition from his father to unplug him.

Norfolk County Probate Court Judge Jeremiah Sullivan claimed that evidence was not conclusive that the brain of Louis Stone was dead. He had been in a coma since July 2 when struck in the heart by a BB accidentally shot by his father. The boy is at Goddard Memorial Hospital in Stoughton.

The father, Neville Stone, 49, said Monday he wanted the boy removed from devices keeping him breathing. He switched from testimony July 26 in which he pleaded with the judge to keep the boy on a respirator.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important, these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

Correllan Thompson, the district's business affairs vice chancellor, said cuts have been made by reducing staff, replacing less equipment and supplies, and cutting contract services, maintenance and operations and capital outlay.

In addition, although basic education tuition remains free, Thompson said taxpayers will no longer underwrite free lectures, seminars, concerts, entertainment, athletic programs and non-academic courses to the tune of $1.3 million per year.

Instead, admissions fees will now be charged for such events.

In addition, District Chancellor Norman E. Watson has formed a fund-raising committee to investigate alternative sources of income. Trustees are currently discussing a fee schedule for public use of district facilities.

Teacher Measure

Gays Launch Protest Move

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of gay rights, including some prominent liberal politicians, have opened the campaign against an anti-homosexual teacher measure on the November ballot by denouncing it as a threat to civil rights.

The initiative, Proposition 6 sponsored by Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, is aimed at firing homosexual teachers, though opponents say it goes much further.

ATTACKS ON HOMOSEXUAL TEACHERS "could be extended to other minorities, whether sexual orientation or political views," and threaten to revive the McCarthy era of the 1950s, Assemblyman Majority Leader Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, said at a rally Tuesday.

"This heinous and outrageous initiative threatens the very structure of due process," Berman told about 200 persons outside the Capitol. He said he would tell his colleagues that the campaign is "worth taking a little bit of risk on."

Also speaking at the rally were gay activist Frank Vel, who is walking the length of California to drum up support for the campaign; Assemblyman Art Agnos, D-San Francisco, Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, and Sacramento Mayor Phil Isenberg.

GOV. EDMUND BROWN JR. OPPOSES the initiative but was not present.

It was the first Capitol demonstration related to Proposition 6, which is likely to be one of the most emotional issues on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Under the measure, school boards could fire, or refuse to hire, any teachers, administrators or counselors for publicly engaging in or advocating homosexual conduct.

BRIGGS SAYS THE MEASURE WILL let schools dismiss teachers who would be poor role models. Opponents say that current laws requiring dismissal for sexual misconduct with children are adequate. They also say the initiative could be applied to defenders of gay rights.

Spending Limit

Economy Snagged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative drive to put a government spending limit on the November ballot could depend on a vote tonight in the state Senate.

The fate of the limit, a constitutional amendment by Sen. John Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, was left hanging Tuesday when a conference committee abruptly adjourned without finishing work on the measure.

That meant the amendment failed to meet a Tuesday midnight deadline for the November ballot. The deadline can be extended, but only if the Senate approves a bill that it rejected Monday.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, the Democratic-dominated, two-house committee tentatively approved a limit formula similar to one proposed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan and rejected by voters in 1973.

The Reagan limit was substituted for a more liberal formula tentatively adopted Monday night but then abandoned by the committee Tuesday.

The bill extending the ballot deadline, SB 2243 by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, gives lawmakers until Friday to put constitutional amendments before voters in November.

IT FELL EIGHT VOTES short of passage Monday, but Sieroty was given permission to bring it up again. That could happen tonight, when the Senate is scheduled to meet.

Riding on the bill is the fate of a number of constitutional amendments, including one by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy abolishing homeowner property taxes and boosting renter income tax credits. If Sieroty's bill fails to pass, the amendments couldn't go on the ballot until June 1980.

Garamendi blamed the delay in action on his measure on an attempt by McCarthy, D-San Francisco, to put more pressure on the Senate to extend the deadline.

GARAMENDI ADJOURNED the committee Tuesday afternoon after Assembly Democratic conferees said they could not take a final vote on the amendment until they met with their colleagues.

Approval by the committee would send the amendment to both houses for final action.

In a bizarre move before Tuesday's adjournment, a version of the Reagan limit was proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown, a liberal San Francisco Democrat who originally opposed the Reagan proposal.

IT WOULD LIMIT STATE and local spending to a percentage of state personal income. That figure, currently just over 8 percent, would drop by one-tenth of 1 percent each year until it reached 7 percent.

The Legislature then could allow the limit to remain at that level.

According to figures from the legislative analyst, state expenditures could grow to $21.503 billion in 1982-83 under the limit. That's $951 million less than the state is projected to spend.

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has declared a state of emergency in Santa Barbara County, where damage estimates from last weekend's earthquake have climbed to more than $12 million.

Brown, acting on a request for state aid from the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday that "conditions of extreme peril" existed in the area. The county declared a local disaster area Monday.

Government Disputes Hearst Conflict Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Calling her allegations "rank speculation," the federal government is disputing Patricia Hearst's assertion that her former lawyer failed to provide adequate counsel at her 1976 bank robbery trial because he contracted to write a book about the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ed Davis Jr. made the statement in a response filed to Miss Hearst's earlier request to examine F. Lee Bailey's deal with the G.P. Putnam Co., a New York publishing house.

In that request, Miss Hearst, 24, charged that Bailey's $225,000 contract for a book about her actions during her captivity by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army constituted grounds to set aside or reduce her seven-year prison sentence.

Dental Hints

By Duane D. Christensen, D.D.S.

Most people worry more about dieting and ways to lose weight, than they worry about dental care. If you get right down to real values — attractiveness if you want to put it that way — what could be less attractive (less romantic) than a person who cannot smile... or one who does smile displaying teeth badly in need of dental care? This is heavy, a person like this turns off people around him/her!

It is estimated that 95% of all Americans need some form of professional dental care, but only about 45% seek and ultimately complete their dental needs. Why? Two of the most often mentioned are fear: fear of the pain they may experience and fear that, when the dental care is completed, the dentist will present them with a skyhigh bill without forewarning, detail or explanation.

For example, a large number of should-be patients fear most the injection of a local anesthetic into the gums, for extraction or extensive drilling procedures. Granted, the injection of anesthetic into the body cannot be considered pleasant experiences, but consider how dental care was given in the early days and you may come to appreciate more fully the ease of living in today's world of progress.

Before the advent of effective dental anesthetics, drilling was usually done with little effort expended by the dentist to lessen the pain. Extractions were accomplished with instruments that would seem, by today's standards, to resemble equipment from a Dark Ages torture chamber. One of these was called "the turnkey." Using this cumbersome device, and a twisting-turning process, a tooth was removed by exerting great power-of-pull, until there was no alternative but to come out. If the patient was lucky, he may have been given some kind of alcoholic beverage in sufficient amount to numb the edge of the pain, but all too often the work was done cold turkey! So, before getting off dental care you need, arm yourself with knowledge — "read-up" on it — and it will help you appreciate the relatively painless professional care of today.

As to fear of a surprisingly high bill, any dentist is happy to give you cost estimates before your work starts. In fact, he would rather, he will want you to thoroughly understand your need, and the reasons, before you ever start. He'll also want to explain the danger-risks of putting-off work that may be classified as "urgent" in your case.

If It Is Illegal, Prove the Point

Huntington Beach police believe a local health spa should be closed because of alleged immoral and illegal activities that go on there.

But three Huntington Beach City Council members have refused to revoke the Golden West Health Spa's business license.

Police have pointed out that since 1976 five arrests for solicitation of prostitution have occurred at the spa. The establishment is near a preschool and an elementary school.

None of the arrests has actually led to a conviction of prostitution solicitation.

Some council members believe the undercover police officers were actually the ones who did the soliciting.

The City Council is not in a position to determine whether or not criminal solicitation took place at the spa. That is the determination of the courts.

It is the duty of the police to monitor suspected criminal activity at any business and report it to the courts.

When a conviction for illegal acts is proved, it may then be the city fathers' duty to revoke a business license if the activities pose a threat to the public welfare.

We're not at all sure the spa belongs there. But we are certain that until someone produces hard-and-fast legal evidence to the contrary, its owners are entitled to equal treatment with any other business.

The council will reconsider the business license revocation next week. We trust they will do so calmly and with full respect for the law.

Check the Guest List

Fountain Valley city hall workers claim the city's personnel director crashed one of their meetings.

But the personnel director claims she was invited because she found an announcement on her desk.

According to the rank and file workers, the meeting was under way for about 10 minutes when the administrator walked in and sat down.

One worker had been discussing the formation of a department head committee to study low morale in city hall.

It is hardly surprising that the discussion was all but stifled by the personnel director's presence.

It's almost certain that some of the workers suddenly felt they should have held the gripe session at the nearest pizza parlor or at least a bit farther from city hall.

The employees apparently believed the personnel director would report all to the city manager.

At any rate, it wasn't much of a social — or a business — occasion. Someone forgot to check the guest list.

They Made the Point

A recent demonstration against nuclear weapons systems and chemical warfare devices allegedly stockpiled on the heavily populated Orange Coast at the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station demonstrated something else.

Civil dissenters and police who must observe and control exercises in the people's right to assemble and express opinion can cooperate quite well for the good of peace, safety and public order.

Seal Beach Police Chief Edward Cibbarelli's 45-man force would, of course, prefer things stay typically simple in normally sleepy Seal Beach.

Happily, the protest staged by the Southern California Alliance for Survival had none of the overtones that usually mar such gatherings.

The coalition is comprised of 50 varied groups opposed to the idea of nuclear arms storage here. They showed that a protest movement needn't be un-American or unruly to prove a point.

They may have a good point. If nuclear weapons and chemical warfare material are indeed present at Seal Beach, it might be time now to relocate them.

Ford's Book Takes on Reagan

WASHINGTON — Intimates of Gerald Ford, fearful that publication of his memoirs early next year will crack Republican harmony wide open, are quietly trying to soften the former president's attack against Ronald Reagan.

No one directly connected with the book (now about half finished) will discuss the matter with outsiders. But insiders, in talks with Ford and his entourage, have learned Ford is using his book to blame his defeat by Jimmy Carter squarely on Reagan's challenge.

Publication of the book is scheduled for next May, just as presidential campaigns are getting under way. Reagan is a certain candidate. Ford a possible one. Ford's intention to use his book to "prove the case" that Reagan's challenge against an incumbent Republican president elected a Democrat will release political hobgoblins.

Cool heads inside the Republican party are trying to dissuade Ford. But considering what one intimate calls Ford's "hatred" for Reagan, success is questionable.

RAFSHOON RISES — The unmistakable rise of Gerald Rafshoon within the White House is coming not at the expense of his supposed rival, press secretary Jody Powell, but rather domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat.

The reason: Rafshoon, the advertising executive in charge of rehabilitating President

Carter's image, is now preparing the briefing papers for Carter interviews and other performances. That job previously had been done by Eizenstat.

The obvious change is one of style. Rafshoon insists on terse, easily handled formulae for the president on inflation, energy, tax reform/reduction and other questions. In contrast, Eizenstat used to give him long, detailed memoranda.

The change could become one of substance. Eizenstat's programmatic liberalism has been a major cause of the chain of "comprehensive" proposals streaming from the White House. The Rafshoon briefings are greatly diminishing this doctrinal tone.

A footnote: Rumors of a Rafshoon-Powell power clash are premature at the least, but there was one dispute between them on Mr. Carter's European tour. Powell urged a softer tone than Rafshoon in presidential reaction to the conviction of Soviet dissident Anatoly Shecharansky. The president took Powell's advice.

MANSFIELD WARNS — Ambassador Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader now representing the U.S. in Tokyo, is delivering somber warnings to visiting Carter administration officials about Japan's growing fear of the president's Far East policies.

For the first time, Mansfield says, Japanese politicians and military leaders are privately complaining about the relative decline of U.S. naval strength compared to the Soviet Union. Despite Mansfield's assurances to the Japanese government, concern is rising about the steadfastness and reliability of Mr. Carter's policies.

Such concerns have been publicly expressed by many Americans — including Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, forced into retirement because he questioned U.S. troop withdrawals from South Korea. But Mansfield, a leading Vietnam war dove, did not join the alarm-prompters until the Japanese themselves began conveying their fear to him.

Teachers: How Indispensable Are They?

To the Editor: Your editorial of Aug. 8 which reports that Orange County teachers rallied to "complain with sour and disappointed words" about their plight in post-Jarvis California ends with the admonition "...for now at least, teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to the system."

What sort of free society can be sustained where teachers are not indispensable? What sort of future awaits us all if teachers are merely considered public functionaries no more important than building inspectors or CalTrans truck drivers?

The editorial drags out the old arguments about salaries, benefits and summer vacations... on a level that is the envy of many who pay taxes supporting those lifestyle improvements. Quite apart from the years of university training and teaching experience required to reach the top of any salary scale in the county, salary and benefits for teachers are modest compared to those performing such crucial tasks in the society as managing a fast food outlet or delivering Sparkletts water. Further, long summer vacations are seldom if ever realized by teachers with families to support.

Bloated salaries of some administrators, great numbers of non-teaching positions, and expensive programs of doubtful value mandated by Sacramento and Washington all contribute heavily to the cost of education in this state. It is most disappointing that the Daily Pilot makes no clear distinctions in its statement.

Virtually all observers concede that it is the classroom where education takes place, with the teacher in the vital role. If education is of only nominal importance to the public of California, one wonders who will write the editorials of the next century, and who will read them.

Instead of saying "the public no longer believes teachers are indispensable," the editorial might better have said "some of the public" feels that way.
—Editor

"Difficult..."

To the Editor: I find it difficult to believe that a newspaper in this area where the value of education is obvious in the prosperity surrounding us would make the statement your August 8 editorial makes "...teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to our system." Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave at such a stupid statement. Our school system was founded on the notion that, as he said, "Only popular education can safeguard democracy." To expand on this idea, he said, "I look to the diffusion of light and education as the resource most to be relied on for ameliorating the condition, promoting the virtue, and advancing the happiness of man."

And where were our newspapermen inculcated with his idea that "A free press is the only safeguard of public liberty" if not in the schools.

Teachers are indispensable in a democracy, and a newspaper should be the last place to find a statement to the contrary. I, as an individual teacher, may be dispensable, but teachers as a whole certainly are not.

BETTY J. ORBACH

'Paternalistic'

To the Editor: I must respond to your editorial of Aug. 8, "How Many Friends Do Teachers Have?" to point out that its apparent objectivity is really masking an attack on teachers and public employees in general. Your phraseology is condescending and ambiguous, and your argument clouds understanding the general public sentiment behind Prop. 13.

As an angry taxpayer myself, and as a subscriber to your newspaper, I want to reprove you in your failure in not directing attention to some of the areas of government spending where true waste and criminal misuse of tax money is taking place. You have in recent months exposed some of this prodigality in the county supervisor's office. Why stop there? Other local government operations will show equal and worse wrongs. Yes, including the administration of some of our local school districts.

But shame! To admonish teachers and public employees for their concern over their marginal material rewards by pulling on the bridle of public opinion in the way you do is deplorable. True, what appears on budget totals as salaries for government employees seems to be a lot of money, but that is the well-earned livelihood of thousands of people in the community.

Why focus on that? Why not focus on parts of the budget that are not so readily obvious, where error, folly and incompetence is hidden?

One of the functions of a responsible editorialist is to refine public opinion, to be the voice of a viewer that looks calmly beyond the surface of the daily news and public opinion to offer thoughtful insights on what is happening. Your editorial is paternalistic and misleading, and as a professional teacher and public employee, I resent it.

R. BRYTAN

Public Danger

To the Editor: As a person living within one-half mile of the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station and as a worker in the Alliance for Survival's campaign to remove nuclear weapons from that facility, I would like to have the opportunity to elucidate a few points which I believe were not made clear in your coverage of the demonstration which took place in Seal Beach Aug. 5.

A research project completed in July, 1975, by the Government Accounting Office called for the relocation of the weapons station because of the inadequacy of the facility and the resultant necessity to overload docks and to violate other safety regulations. The GOA report went on to say that a severe impact explosive hazard zone extends over approximately 98 acres of developed property in the surrounding community when the station is handling 250,000 pounds of conventional explosives on the wharf (as it does approximately seven times yearly in order to meet fleet scheduling requirements).

Such a hazard exists independently of the threat posed by nuclear and chemical warfare weapons stored and transported in close proximity.

(A note of interest: According to the Los Angeles Times, August 7, 1978, just two days after the Seal Beach demonstration 63 tons of bombs accidentally exploded at Herlong, California. The cause of the explosion is unknown.)

Four feasibility studies have been made by the Department of the Navy to determine the costs of relocation. According to a Navy study from 1970, the cost of relocation would vary according to the site from $98 million to $169 million for the most expensive relocation to San Clemente Island (which is already owned by the navy). Surely our Department of Defense can absorb this expense from its grotesquely large $127 billion budget.

The Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station jeopardizes public health and safety by its proximity to elementary schools, public beaches, residential areas and business centers.

It exposes children and other residents to the hazards of nuclear storage and transportation, residents who may be unaware or unwillingly exposed to such hazards. The base represents an unacceptable and avoidable danger.

Bar Should Nominate New Judges

Thoughts at Large:

* If judges are to be elected, and not appointed, they should first be nominated by the Bar, so that we no longer have a politically oriented judiciary made up largely of those lawyers who take a partisan interest in politics and are rewarded with a party nomination.

* People who talk too much and people who talk too little both suffer from the same fear at bottom, that of being misunderstood — the loquacious person exhibiting this fear by overexplaining and the taciturn one by saying nothing.

* Little has changed middle-class smugness in the full century since Melville wrote: "Of all the preposterous assumptions of humanity over humanity, nothing exceeds most of the criticisms made on the habits of the poor by the well-housed, well-warmed, and well-fed."

* What makes a classic is its ability to survive both those who are indifferent to it and those who adore it dumbly.

* WE SEEK superiority only when we are denied equality: "black" would never have been proclaimed as especially beautiful if bigots had not at first denigrated it as ugly.

* Most of the ferment in public education today springs from the fact that the schools are being asked not only to make up in a hurry for their own defects but also to compensate for the failures of society as a whole — and they can scarcely do the first job, much less the second.

* President Carter seems to be following the unproductive tendency of his predecessors and paying too much attention to the polls and the "trends." When he should be attending to Winston Churchill's warning: "The nation will find it very hard to look up to leaders who are keeping their ears to the ground."

Schmitz, Cordova Open Campaign

'One Embraces Jarvis; Other Shuns Governor

By GARY GRANVILLE Of the Daily Pilot Staff

HE'S A JARVIS MAN Republican Schmitz

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement into his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican

Dennis Carpenter.

And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 6 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airport Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972.

Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidential nomination.

Schmitz said he didn't change party affiliation until after his AIP presidential nomination.

In a paraphrase of the well-known Schmitz' remark about the first Nixon trip to Communist China, Cordova quipped, "I'm informed by my Republican friends they took no exception to John Schmitz leaving the Republican Party, only to his return."

But Schmitz pointed to his endorsement "by all Republican groups" and county GOP leaders to prove he has "mended fences" with the party.

Cordova wouldn't let up on his attack on Schmitz' political travels, however.

The Democratic assemblyman said that, unlike his foe, his political epitaph will not read, "Have campaign, will travel."

Schmitz retaliated to the barbs by recounting his 2 1/2-year record as a congressman and 5 1/2 years as a state senator.

Included in the record cited by him was support of efforts by Jarvis to reform the state's property tax laws, efforts that date back to the mid-1960s.

Schmitz also said he is probably the only congressman ever sent to Washington who saved the taxpayers more money than he cost.

Shoppers Stock Up On Food

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Results of the vote were to be known this afternoon, and a strike could begin anytime after 12:01 Saturday, 48 hours after the clerks' contract expires.

Bob Voight of the Food Employers Council said store officials were not optimistic about avoiding a walkout.

"The unions are threatening to strike, and we believe them," he said.

The 15 chains involved are Albertsons, Alpha Beta, Arden-Mayfair, Boys, Certified Grocers, Hughes, A.M. Lewis, Lucky Stores, Market Basket, Ralphs, Safeway, Smiths Food King, Stater Bros., Thriftmart and Vons.

For several weeks, the markets have had signs in their windows advertising for clerks, with no experience necessary. By Tuesday, said Voigt, "between 15,000 and 20,000" persons had agreed to take jobs as soon as a strike begins, and some stores already were training them.

FORMER PRESIDENT AND MRS. NIXON AT HOSPITAL Tricia Cox Also There to Greet Her New Niece

Daddy Eisenhower Elated by Jennie

By ANNE COOPER Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

The natural childbirth delivery left his wife "feeling fine, really fine," Eisenhower commented.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their daughter Jennie, because it sounds like Julie, but isn't.

Irvine Plea

FAA Refuses Bid On Airport Probe

By PHILIP ROSMARIN Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Federal Aviation Administration has, for the second time, refused an Irvine politician's request that it conduct a comprehensive investigation of air traffic safety at Orange County Airport.

The first time City Councilman Larry Agran asked for the study, he was a candidate for the municipal office.

Alarmed by 10 aircraft accidents in or near the airport in which 17 people died, he pleaded an obvious need to study the overall pattern of safety.

Agran claimed to get no response from the FAA, and instead learned it had turned him down only after reading press reports that the agency intended no action and was satisfied with its method of investigating individual crashes.

Actually, though the FAA investigates most non-fatal air accidents, the National Transportation Safety Board has the main responsibility for investigating all airplane accidents.

The FAA is charged with instituting accident prevention methods.

Since the councilman's initial request, several incidents prompted Agran to write again.

F.A. Allen, chief of the FAA flight standards district office in Long Beach, replied a few days ago.

As before, Allen indicated there is a continual review of accident statistics with accident prevention in mind.

But, said Allen, "In view of specific accident investigations previously conducted and the ongoing accident prevention activities, it does not appear that a comprehensive investigation or further review of Orange County Airport accidents would be productive at this time."

Allen said also, "As you know, Orange County Airport is one of the busiest airports in the nation."

Viejo Firm Fights Housing Proposal

By KATHY CLANCY Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Mission Viejo Company officials told Orange County Planning Commissioners Tuesday they don't want to be singled out by the county to build so-called affordable housing.

Company Vice President David Celestin said he opposes a county proposal that would require his firm to build up to 2,500 of Mission Viejo's remaining 10,000 units in the low and moderate income ranges.

"The Mission Viejo Company does support the concept of affordable housing," Celestin said.

He also said the company would "go along with" whatever housing policies supervisors adopt early next year for all of the unincorporated area.

"We don't feel it is appropriate at this time to place it exclusively on the Mission Viejo community," he explained.

Celestin's remarks came as commissioners reviewed the first comprehensive revision of the 10,324-acre Mission Viejo community plan.

The commission will hold at least one more hearing Sept. 11 before making a recommendation to county supervisors.

County planners had suggested that the community plan revision require that one-fourth of the remaining 10,000 homes to be built in Mission Viejo be within the price ranges of families earning 80 to 120 percent of the county's median income. The county's median income now is $16,200.

Commissioners, however, suggested that planners abandon that provision and draft new wording that would make Mission Viejo subject to whatever housing policy is adopted later by supervisors.

Supervisors by January are to adopt a set of policies aimed at providing less-expensive housing.

The Mission Viejo Company's proposal also calls for adding 478 additional acres to the planned community.

About 400 acres would be in the north part of the community along El Toro Road and Oso Creek. It would remain at

"Numbers of aircraft and operations continue to rise, with a corresponding increase in accidents and fatalities."

For Agran, that explanation wasn't good enough. It is those very numbers of aircraft and their relation to accidents that he wants explored.

So for a third time, he has (See AIRPORT, Page A2) agricultural land until later, planners said.

The remainder would be along the San Diego Freeway in the southern part of the community and would be designated for industrial development.

Bill Olson, a county planning manager, said the revision also was designed to give the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) a greater role in community planning.

"One of the keys in the entire process was involving the MAC in advising the planning commission," he said.

However, commissioners were told that state laws restrict the council's role to advisory only.

MAC member Gary Stoney said the council realizes it is an advisory body only. He asked that the community revision set forth the group's precise role.

"We feel we do speak for the community of Mission Viejo," he said of MAC's elected members.

Candidates For Board Examined

Three of the eight candidates for Saddleback Community College trustee Donna Berry's seat are scheduled for interviews today beginning at 4 p.m.

The deadline for application to replace Mrs. Berry, who has resigned to move to Northern California with her family, was Aug. 15. College officials said, however, they will still accept any applications bearing the Tuesday postmark.

The board also has scheduled interviews for Thursday beginning at 4 p.m. Trustees plan to question each candidate for an hour and the meetings are open to the public.

Mrs. Berry represented one of the largest areas of the Saddleback District.

The area includes Mission Viejo, half of El Toro, Trabuco canyon areas, and parts of San Juan Capistrano and Laguna Niguel.

Candidates scheduled for interviews today are: Mildred Windolph of Laguna Niguel, a former teacher; Harold F. McGrath of Laguna Niguel, vice president of administration for Jos and Naugles Inc.; and R. Richard Bruno of Trabuco Canyon, manager of sales administration for Hyland Laboratories.

The other five candidates are: Bruce W. Tunell of Mission Viejo, assistant manager of Security National Bank in Laguna Niguel; Della F. Janis of Mission Viejo, secretary and treasurer of the Kenneth M. Janis, M.D. professional corporation; John C. Connolly of Mission Viejo, operations manager and assistant general manager of the May Company in The City in Orange; Glenn A. Cable Car Theft Probed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A district attorney's team of investigators has been assigned to determine if cable car conductors are pocketing fares.

The investigation, by the same group of lawyers who probed the city's parking meter scandal, was prompted by the release Tuesday of a critical report on the accounting practices of the Municipal Railway.

The audit, prepared by the firm of Deloitte, Haskins and Sells for the Public Utilities Commission, offered no estimate of how much money, if any, was being lost.

College FM Radio Plan OK

Saddleback Community College trustees Monday night allocated $150,000 from a tight budget so the college's long-planned 3,000 watt FM radio station can become a reality.

All technical details in preparation for the larger student-operated station KSBR are now complete. Superintendent Robert A. Lombardi told trustees. The present station is only 10 watts.

The board must now allocate the money to show the federal government that trustees want the bigger radio station located at the college, Lombardi said, or pass by the chance forever.

Part of the allocation will match part of a $129,000 Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) grant now pending. Warren Deacon, KSBR's program manager, said.

The HEW grant is the final step of a long, arduous procedure college officials have gone through to win the new broadcasting frequency from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Deacon said he expects HEW to make the grant award announcement sometime in mid-September.

If HEW comes through for Saddleback, Deacon said, construction of a 1,200 foot transmitter on O'Neill Ranch near Ortega Highway will begin immediately.

KSBR's operators hope to be on the air by Dec. 1.

Programming will stress news and public affairs coverage, Deacon said. Music programs will feature jazz and soft rock, tailored principally for listeners between ages 25 and 45.

The station will broadcast 19 hours, seven days a week. The broadcast signal will reach about 500,000 people from Tustin to San Clemente.

DEBATE...

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Both candidates also decried expanded government spending and "growth of government."

Both said they support extending capital punishment to cover more crimes.

Disagreement came on the so-called Briggs initiative, prohibiting homosexuals from teaching in public schools.

Schmitz said he supports the measure. Cordova said he does not.

And while Cordova said he is not certain how he will vote in the gubernatorial race, Schmitz emphasized that he is an Evelle Younger supporter.

When it came time for them to ask each other one question, Cordova asked Schmitz what he had done as a state legislator to advance the cause of property tax reform.

Schmitz pointed to his support of Jarvis in the 1960's and a plaque he received in 1967 from United Taxpayers, the Jarvis support organization.

In turn, Schmitz asked Cordova to show his "conversion to conservatism to be other than political."

Cordova said his record as a deputy district attorney who never lost a felony case shows him to be something far less than liberal.

Besides, Cordova said, his record as a legislator, not political rhetoric, should serve as the example of his conservatism.

Meanwhile, David Bergland, who hopes to make the November ballot as the Libertarian Party candidate in the 36th, waited in a hallway.

Bergland said he was miffed because the debate sponsor, the Building Industry Association, didn't invite him.

another 'Julie,' he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

Life Support To Remain for Comatose Boy

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A judge ruled today that a comatose 12-year-old boy must remain connected to life-support equipment despite a petition from his father to unplug him.

Norfolk County Probate Court Judge Jeremiah Sullivan claimed that evidence was not conclusive that the brain of Louis Stone was dead. He had been in a coma since July 2 when struck in the heart by a BB accidentally shot by his father. The boy is at Goddard Memorial Hospital in Stoughton.

The father, Neville Stone, 49, said Monday he wanted the boy removed from devices keeping him breathing. He switched from testimony July 26 in which he pleaded with the judge to keep the boy on a respirator.

"A vegetable," Stone said, "I can't live with seeing him like that."

Myra Stone, Louis' mother, had said she wanted her son to remain on the equipment.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13 1/2-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Priscilla, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Also awaiting the fans in the 90-degree heat was a row of air conditioned souvenir shops and roving soda pop sellers.

Other Bill Shaky

Solons' Raise Halt Faces Senate Vote

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A proposal to halt a scheduled 10 percent pay raise for legislators is going to the Senate floor, but the fate of a related bill determines whether it makes the November ballot.

The Senate Rules Committee approved a proposed constitutional amendment and an accompanying bill Tuesday that would keep the lawmakers' pay at $23,332, blocking a raise to $25,555 that is scheduled for December.

The approved measure, SCA 71 by Sen. John Dunlap, D-Napa, cannot be placed on the ballot unless the related bill is passed, extending the deadline for November ballot measures from June 29 to Aug. 18. That bill, SB 2243, has been rejected once by the Senate but is scheduled for another vote tonight.

While approving the Dunlap measures, the committee also — citing constitutional problems — killed an Assembly-passed bill that would have blocked the raise without a ballot vote.

Committee members approved Dunlap's measures rather than the Assembly-passed bill, AB 2606 by Assemblyman Dennis Mangers, D-Huntington Beach, because the ballot approach is "far more acceptable," said Sen. John Stull, R-Escondido.

Legislative Counsel Bion Gregory, the Legislature's legal adviser, said last week that Mangers' bill violates a constitutional provision against changing state salaries by an "urgency" statute, one that takes effect immediately.

Mangers' bill was drafted as an urgency measure because otherwise it could not have taken effect until Jan. 1, after the pay raise will have gone into effect.

Dunlap's SCA 71 would change the Constitution and authorize the lawmakers to alter their salaries, as provided in his SB 2244.

Unless SCA 71 reaches the ballot and wins voter approval, the 120 lawmakers will get their raises, provided by legislation passed in 1977.

The raises would be their first in two years, under a constitutional provision allowing 5 percent annual increases.

Legislators also are getting such fringe benefits as $40 for daily expenses when in session and free use of a car.

Mangers' bill would have delayed the raises until next July 1. It passed the Assembly 79-0 in June.

AIRPORT PLEA...

asked both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board "to undertake the kind of thorough investigation necessary to provide the maximum safety to those citizens who use the Orange County Airport and to those who live and work near it."

Agran has said he believes despite the toll in lives, the crash record at the airport has been a lucky one.

According to him, it is only a matter of time before an airplane crashes into an occupied school, industrial or commercial building.

To the FAA's Allen, he wrote that the accident prevention actions taken by the agency "fail, I believe, to address the fundamental question of whether the nature and volume of air traffic at Orange County Airport is compatible with citizen safety."

He characterized air traffic as "a volatile mix of large commercial jet airplanes and small, numerous hobby aircraft."

Dip Concerns Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter expressed "deep concern" today over the decline of the U.S. dollar abroad and called for recommendations for action from top financial advisers.

Carter, in a statement issued at the White House, said he had been discussing the matter with Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and with William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The sharp decline in the dollar and disorderly market conditions, at a time when the U.S. trade position is showing signs of real improvement, could threaten progress toward dealing with our inflation and achieving orderly growth at home and abroad," the statement said.

The dollar slipped back today on Europe's money markets but stayed above the record lows hit in trading Tuesday. It did somewhat better in Tokyo.

"It looks as if that one-day dollar recovery is now over," a London trader said.

The dollar's renewed weakness pushed up the price of gold, a traditional hedge for investors in times of monetary uncertainty, but it failed to reach the record highest Tuesday.

The metal was trading this morning at $215.50 an ounce in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, and $215.70 in London.

Tuesday was one of the worst days in recent memory for the battered dollar, which set record lows against the Japanese yen, Swiss franc and West German mark. But a reaction set in by afternoon, mostly due to profit-taking, dealers said, and the dollar pulled back.

Carter's statement was the first from the White House in weeks on the plight of the dollar, which the past year has lost more than 30 percent in value against the Japanese yen, 33 percent against the Swiss franc and 15 percent against the German mark.

The decline in the dollar has pushed up prices of imported goods from those countries, such as autos, steel and electronics equipment, which has worsened the nation's inflation rate at a time when the administration is trying to find ways to control rising prices.

It was not clear what kind of measures the administration could take to stop the fall in the dollar. One possibility would be to step up intervention in currency markets to buy dollars with foreign currencies to create demand and thus prop up the price.

By GARY GRANVILLE Of the Daily Pilot Staff State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

LB Cable Decision Delayed

After hearing charges that the cable television company serving Laguna Beach, "doesn't deserve a penny, let alone a big increase, councilmen decided Tuesday to delay action on a proposed rate increase until a public hearing is held next month.

Storer Cable TV Company is seeking a 21 percent increase in rates to Art Colony television viewers. Councilmen heard a recommendation from their own cable television committee for a lower rate increase Tuesday.

Customers now pay $6.75 per month for the service in Laguna Beach, where the hills block television reception. The cable TV committee is recommending an increase to $7.75 for basic service — instead of the company's suggested $8.60 request.

Laguna Beach attorney Stuart Katz was critical of a notice sent out with cable television bills, which said the council would hear the rate hike request, but did not indicate when.

"The public will bear the 11 percent cost of this increase," he told councilmen. "Yet no one has informed the public why the increases are needed.

"I've been to other cities where the television reception is better with cable, and I think we're getting ripped off in Laguna Beach," he continued.

Laguna Maggie Meggs was equally vocal in her opposition to the rate increase.

"Storer TV thinks of Laguna Beach as a little village of half-witted people," she said. "The service is lousy and if there's any rate change, it should be to lower the cost."

But Councilman Howard Dawson, who is a member of the four-member cable TV committee, defended his committee's recommendation. (See CABLE, Page A2)

FORMER PRESIDENT AND MRS. NIXON AT HOSPITAL Tricia Cox Also There to Greet Her New Niece

Nixons Welcome Jennie

By ANNE COOPER Of the Daily Pilot Staff An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

The natural childbirth delivery left his wife "feeling fine, really fine," Eisenhower commented.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their (See JENNIE, Page A2)

PROUD PAPA INTERVIEWED David Eisenhower

Laguna Police Skeptical

By STEVE MITCHELL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A suggestion that contractors hire full-time security guards in Laguna Beach to protect homes under construction in the arson-plagued Arch Beach Heights community was met with skepticism by police Tuesday night.

The hillside community has been the target of 10 arsons in the past three and one half months, and nearly all of the homes torched or partially burned were in the framing stage of construction.

Laura Wantz, who lives in Arch Beach Heights, asked city councilmen Tuesday night what the city is doing to prevent future arsons in the area.

Homes in Arch Beach Heights are on long, narrow lots, and the distance between dwellings is often less than five feet.

Neighbors fear another arson might result in a death, or damage to already existing homes.

The woman suggested full-time security guards be hired by the builders of 28 homes in the community as a safeguard against further arson attempts.

But Police Lt. Al Olson said today he sees problems with the woman's suggestion.

"The concept is good," the police officer said, "but there are problems with hiring security guards. If you're going to make 28 builders hire guards up there, they're just going to go walking around with weapons spooking each other. Someone might get hurt."

Olson said he will meet with an informal neighborhood group Tuesday to discuss possible protection measures that could be instituted. (See ARSONS, Page A2)

Gladys Adams Dies At 70 in Laguna

Gladys Adams, who ran the reservation service for the Laguna Beach Hotel-Motel Association for many years before operating it independently in recent times, is dead at the age of 70.

Mrs. Adams was a 33-year resident of Laguna Beach, and at one time operated the Mar Vista Apartments with her husband, John.

When the couple sold that business, the active woman became the reservations operator for the city's hotel motels business, later operating it as Gladys Adams Reservations until last January when she discovered she had cancer.

She was a member of the Business and Professional Woman's organization, a member of the Chamber of Commerce and attended the Neighborhood Congregational Church in Laguna Beach.

She died Monday night at South Coast Community Hospital.

Mrs. Adams took care of shut-ins for many years and never missed a Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting in more than 10 years, according to a close friend.

She is survived by husband John, of the family home at 769 Manzanita Drive; sisters Evelyn Cross, Laguna Beach; Mrs. Miriam Errant, Chicago and Mrs. Barbara Fuschheim of Grand Haven, Mich.

Mrs. Adams was graduated from graduate Drake University, receiving a degree in music.

Burned Up Classic Car Destroyed

A South Laguna man with an aching heart stood by the roadside in Huntington Beach Tuesday night and watched his 90 percent-restored 1958 Mercedes-Benz luxury sedan burn.

The classic auto, today a charred shell, was valued at up to $20,000 due to the restoration investment, according to George Thomas of 6 Treasure Island.

Fire Department Inspector Gary Glenn said a friend was test-driving the luxury sedan southbound on Brookhurst Street near Pacific Coast Highway about 9:30 p.m. when fire erupted.

Thomas, riding as a passenger, and his unidentified companion swerved to a halt and bailed out as flames erupted into the car's interior.

"A couple of guys stopped and tried to put it out with fire extinguishers, but it was too late," said Inspector Glenn.

He added that while the Bushard Street Fire Station is not too far distant, the car fire occurred in an area where no telephones are close by to summon emergency aid.

Flames had engulfed the classic four-door sedan when firemen were able to reach the scene.

Supermarkets Busy; Strike Fears Spread

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Ranch Land Talk Due In San Juan

San Juan Capistrano city councilmen are to discuss an agreement tonight that could lead to annexation of 88 acres of Bear Brand Ranch land to the city by the end of this year.

They are expected to talk about access to the hillside parcel west of the city through Calle Ricardo, Calle Aspero and Crumrine Road and consider zoning proposals before authorizing an agreement with Bear Brand Ranch Company, Inc. nailing down annexation details, a city spokesman said.

About 40 single-family residences are planned on the property.

Approval of the agreement during tonight's council session could enable annexation proposals to move before the county's Local Agency Formation Commission for consideration within the next three months, the spokesman said.

Access to the parcel through city-owned streets has been fought for months by city residents who believe the project would increase traffic in their neighborhoods.

Other items on the council agenda for tonight include a continued public hearing on a general plan amendment for Window Hill, McCracken Hill and Forster Canyon and a proposed 82-cent general fund property tax rate and seven-cent sewer bond tax rate.

ARSON...

"What we really need up there is more eyes and ears," the lieutenant said, hinting at a neighborhood watch approach.

He said lighting in the area is also important, noting that most of the arsons were set in the pre-dawn hours.

"We'll encourage people who live next to a construction project to aim their floodlights next door," he said.

Olson said he has also assigned a full-time investigator to the arson probe, and said he is looking into extra patrols for the tightly-packed community.

The arsons are also being investigated by the state Fire Marshal's Arson and Bomb Investigation Unit in Sacramento, which oversees all intentionally set blazes in California.

He told councilmen that the department received some information Tuesday on the state probe, but would not elaborate "for obvious reasons."

Low-cost Limits Assailed

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Mission Viejo Company officials told Orange County Planning Commissioners Tuesday they don't want to be singled out by the county to build so-called affordable housing.

Company Vice President David Celestin said he opposes a county proposal that would require his firm to build up to 2,500 of Mission Viejo's remaining 10,000 units in the low and moderate income ranges.

"The Mission Viejo Company does support the concept of affordable housing," Celestin said.

He also said the company would "go along with" whatever housing policies supervisors adopt early next year for all of the unincorporated area.

"We don't feel it is appropriate at this time to place it exclusively on the Mission Viejo community," he explained.

Celestin's remarks came as commissioners reviewed the first comprehensive revision of the 10,324-acre Mission Viejo community plan.

The commission will hold at least one more hearing Sept. 11 before making a recommendation to county supervisors.

County planners had suggested that the community plan revision require that one-fourth of the remaining 10,000 homes to be built in Mission Viejo be within the price ranges of families earning 80 to 120 percent of the county's median income.

The county's median income now is $16,200.

Commissioners, however, suggested that planners abandon that provision and draft new wording that would make Mission Viejo subject to whatever housing policy is adopted later by supervisors.

Supervisors by January are to adopt a set of policies aimed at providing less-expensive housing.

The Mission Viejo Company's proposal also calls for adding 478 additional acres to the planned community.

About 400 acres would be in the north part of the community along El Toro Road and Oso Creek. It would remain agricultural land until later, planners said.

The remainder would be along the San Diego Freeway in the southern part of the community and would be designated for industrial development.

Poster Sale In Laguna To Aid Arts

Laguna Beach artist Craig Kauffman will sign original posters for visitors to the Laguna Beach Museum of Art Aug. 23 as part of a fund-raising project to promote the visual arts in Orange County.

Sponsored by the visual Arts Committee of the Orange County Arts Alliance, the non-profit group is hosting a series of poster signings.

A limited edition of 500 of Kauffman's posters will be for sale at the museum, and the award-winning painter and sculptor will sign 100 of the posters, which sell for $25 each. Unsigned posters are $10.

Kauffman is a lecturer at UC Berkeley and an associate professor at UC Irvine, specializing in painting and sculpture.

He will be at the museum beginning at 1 p.m.

JENNIE...

daughter Jennie because it sounds like Julie, but isn't.

"Julie didn't want to have another 'Julie,'" he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

Niguel Sewage Plant

Saddleback Agency Softens Objections

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Saddleback Area Coordinating Council has softened its stand against a $15 million sewage treatment plant planned near Laguna Niguel Regional Park.

Caught between opposing views of two homeowner groups executive board members voted, 8-1, to back away from a four-point objection filed with the county Board of Supervisors by the Laguna Niguel Community Association.

Only the Laguna Niguel representative to the executive board, a liaison agency between south county residents and county government, voted against the softer stand.

The board voted to object only to plant access through Crown Valley Parkway.

Laguna Niguel residents oppose the Aliso Water Management Agency plant on charges of inadequate environmental documentation, its proximity to two parks and several housing developments, trucking of sludge to the plant via Crown Valley Parkway and the agency's alleged failure to notify the Laguna Niguel Community Association of plans to build the facility at the site.

FANS OF ELVIS PRESLEY WEEP OPENLY AS THEY LEAVE GRAVESITE IN MEMPHIS On First Anniversary of the King's Death, 12,000 Expected at Cemetery

Thousands Gather For Elvis Tribute

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13 1/2-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Priscilla, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Also awaiting the fans in the 90-degree heat was a row of air conditioned souvenir shops and roving soda pop sellers.

Clemente to Weigh Sewer Bond Issue

San Clemente city councilmen will be asked tonight to put a $4.2 million sewer bond issue which was defeated by 185 votes in March on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Tonight's City Council meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at city hall, 100 Ave. Presidio.

A successful bond election would allow the city to lower monthly service charges from $9.25 to $7.70, said Rod Coloma, city finance director.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board has required that San Clemente make sewer improvements to meet the Board's discharge standards. Failure to comply with the Board's requirements could result in fines to the city as high as $6,000 a day, Coloma said.

Meeting Board standards will require rehabilitation of the city's sewage treatment plant and construction of a connection line from the treatment plant to a regional outfall currently under construction in Dana Point.

A successful bond election would also finance construction of a water reclamation plant, which would increase the city's water supply for irrigation purposes, Coloma said.

Voter passage of the $4.2 million bond issue would entitle San Clemente to $11.9 million in state and federal grants. Total cost for the proposed improvements is $15.4 million.

Also on tonight's City Council agenda is a recommendation from Stephen Burrell, assistant to the city manager, that the city hire BMC Landscape, Inc., to take over city parks maintenance at a monthly cost of $12,000.

Burrell estimated that the city will save $103,555 this year by hiring the maintenance contractor, low bidder among four for the job. Ten city park maintenance employees have been shifted to open city jobs, after the City Council voted in June to discontinue city staffed park upkeep.

The move was made to cut city costs, bringing the 1978-79 budget into line with property tax revenue reduced by passage of Proposition 13.

Before Congress

Ray Denies Killing King

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

Ray, in his first public accounting under oath of the events surrounding the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader, told the House assassinations committee: "My testimony is the same that I would have given to a Memphis trial court if I had had that opportunity."

The 50-year-old Ray, accompanied by a phalanx of U.S. marshals, was brought into the committee's chamber under severe security provisions. Spectators, including photographers, were cautioned they would be expelled if they so much as stood while Ray, wearing an ill-fitting sport coat and gray tie, entered the room.

After his attorney, long-time assassinations buff and writer Mark Lane, engaged acting chairman Richardson Preyer in battle over Ray's treatment by federal authorities, Ray launched into a long and rambling preliminary statement, his voice quick but halting.

Ray pleaded guilty in 1969 to King's killing but almost immediately recanted that confession after receiving a 99-year sentence in a Tennessee state prison.

"In respect to my 'guilty plea,'" he said, "it is not a difficult matter for an attorney to move his client to a guilty plea. I'm sure every member of this committee knows this."

Ray's attorney at the time of his sentencing was Percy Foreman, a nationally known trial lawyer.

Then Ray turned to what apparently will be the underlying theme of his claim to innocence: that he was a mere pawn in what he thought was a gun-running scheme by a mystery man named "Raoul" and may have been set up, moreover, by undercover operations of the FBI. The story is one which Ray has long aired via prison interviews.

Ray told the committee about breaking out of Missouri State Prison in 1967 and traveling in zig-zag fashion to St. Louis, the Chicago area, Indianapolis and ultimately to Canada, where he spent one night with a prostitute and robbed her pimp the next day — then met "Raoul" by chance on the Montreal docks.

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Both candidates also decried expanded government spending and "growth of government."

Both said they support extending capital punishment to cover more crimes.

Disagreement came on the so-called Briggs initiative, prohibiting homosexuals from teaching in public schools.

"All of the communities around us pay $7.50 or more," he argued. "And the complaints of bad service in this area is no greater than other areas such as San Juan Capistrano, San Clemente or Newport Beach."

"Storer may not be the ultimate in systems, but it is certainly equal to the others."

But councilmen decided to hold the rate hike issue over until its Sept. 5 meeting at which time the public may comment on the proposed hike.

Councilmen did approve a $2.50 charge to customers who want a mid-band converter attached to their sets that will allow subscribers to receive an additional eight channels.

Burglars Hit Laguna Homes

Burglars broke into two Laguna Beach homes Monday, taking camera equipment from one and a television and stereo equipment from the second.

Douglas Howard Smith, of 310 Dartmoor St., told police someone climbed through a bedroom window to gain access to his home, where camera equipment valued at $1,800 was taken.

In the second burglary, thieves forced open a sliding glass door at the home of Thelma Roy, ransacking the house and taking $200 in television and stereo equipment.

never-fulfilled promise of travel documents, Ray said he carried items across the Canadian and Mexican borders for the Spanish-accented "Raoul," who had mysterious telephone numbers in New Orleans and no last name Ray could remember.

After smuggling the items, which Ray did not specifically identify, he said he went to Los Angeles, took a bartending course, tried unsuccessfully to go to work for the Internal Revenue Service, traveled to New Orleans to agree to the gun-running scheme with the mystery man — and ultimately returned to Los Angeles.

"I was taking a lock-picking — rather a locksmith course at this time," Ray told the committee.

At another point, he said: "I robbed the — I was robbed of a watch."

He told of trying to contact a girl who advertised herself in an underground Los Angeles newspaper "as a nymphomaniac." Apologetically, Ray added, "Of course, I had been in jail for about six years."

Hold That Freeway

NOW WE KNOW DEPT.—Some years back, the state of California decided to take this little country road through Costa Mesa and turn it into a freeway. It was a vision into the future of vast magnitude.

When the state highway brass decided to do that, there was a place alongside the road known as the Santa Ana Army Air Base. Nearby, the Army was flying P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighters out of what is now Orange County Airport.

There were a few fruit stands along the old rural road. People drove by slowly, trying to conserve the one set of tires they'd been allocated by the OPA. They were going easy on the 18-cent-per-gallon gasoline too, lest they run out of "A" ration coupons.

MEANWHILE ACROSS THE seas, a guy named Adolf Hitler was ranting around and trying to figure out how to stall off General Dwight D. Eisenhower from invading Fortress Europe with his Allied armies.

Back here in our home region, however, the state highway people were looking ahead to when World War II would be over and they could start building some superhighways.

One of the roads they selected was Route 55, that rural lane that is a major feeder from inland reaches to the shoreline at Newport Beach. Over the years, it has variously been known as Newport Boulevard, Newport Freeway, Route 55 and Costa Mesa Freeway.

OVER THE YEARS, there have been a lot of changes alongside that road. The Army Air Base went away and the land has been transformed into Orange Coast College, Southern California College (the Army chapel still stands) and the county fairgrounds. The P-38 fighters vanished and Air Cal now flies more peaceful missions out of the aerodrome to San Francisco.

Traffic has increased. Commerce has increased. Smog has leaped to terrifying levels. But the state highway brass, in their infinite wisdom, are still studying the road and trying to figure out what to do with it.

The Orange County Transportation Commission got into the act only this week, asking for further studies.

EMERGING FROM THESE deliberations, Bruce Matern, Costa Mesa's traffic engineer, attempted to analyze for the City Council what was happening to the future fate of the old rural road that had been declared a freeway route almost four decades ago.

"I've got reason to believe we've got a delaying action going," he suggested.

By golly, that's it. A delaying action. Now we know. If Hitler had been that good at delaying Eisenhower, we might still be fighting World War II.

Nixon No Longer Needs Public Fund

DETROIT (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon is in the money—or at least he has enough of it to feel that he no longer needs money from the public for legal help.

Lloyd Johnson, who succeeded Rabbi Baruch Korff as trustee of the "Nixon Trust Fund" last year, says new income that Nixon has received has made the fund unnecessary.

Tuesday's editions of the Detroit News quoted Johnson as saying Nixon had told him recently that his finances are much improved since he collected money for being interviewed by David Frost and began receiving royalties on his new book.

Johnson, an Ann Arbor nursing home owner, estimated that Nixon once owed more than $750,000 to lawyers defending his claim against public release of the tapes and other evidence used to prosecute the Watergate trials and support the House impeachment proceedings.

FORECAST for Thursday

California

Pleasant, sunny afternoons with cooler mornings and evenings is the word from the National Weather Service for Southern Californians through Thursday.

Tuesday's high was 82. Thursday's high will be in the upper 70s, the Weather Service said.

Mountain and desert regions will also be sunny and cooler Thursday. Mountain resort highs will be in the mid 70s with lows ranging from 48 to 58.

Northern desert highs will be 82 to 92 and southern desert highs will be 98 to 105, the Weather Service said.

San Diego County will also be slightly cooler with coastal highs in the mid-70s and inland valley highs ranging from 82 to 90.

Coastal Weather

Low cloudiness night and morning hours, otherwise sunny through Thursday.

Light variable winds night and morning hours. Highs Thursday in the 70s at beaches to 80s inland.

Coastal temperatures will range between 65 and 71. Inland temperatures will range between 65 and 75. The water temperature will be 64.

U.S. Summary

A cold front moved across the middle of the nation during the night, producing intense thunderstorms from the Great Lakes region into Texas.

A tornado late Tuesday touched down 10 miles southwest of Shelby in western Michigan, destroying four homes and causing some injuries.

Another twister destroyed a barn near Crystal Lake in northeastern Illinois. Other twisters were reported southwest of Oshkosh, Wis., near Rapid City, Mich., and near Ralls, Texas.

Strong thunderstorms continued to move across the Great Lakes region early today.

Elsewhere, a few thunderstorms over parts of Florida dissipated during the night and showers spread from Washington and Oregon into Idaho and western Montana.

Blackout, Looting

Memphis Reels From Strikes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A massive power failure blamed by the utility on sabotage blacked out Memphis early today, adding to the woes of a city already reeling from walkouts by police and firemen. Labor leaders threatened a general strike unless a settlement comes soon.

Scattered looting was reported across town before power was restored, and a baby had to be delivered by flashlight at one hospital before emergency power could be connected.

THE BLACKOUT also left some areas without water pressure because electric-powered pumps were out. Memphis International Airport had to shift to standby power.

County police said between 15 and 20 adults were arrested on minor charges stemming from the looting, which was concentrated at northside liquor and convenience shops. They said five juveniles were in custody on charges of burglary or attempted burglary. National Guard troops, already on duty for the strikes, were dispatched to the county jail to beef up security.

Mayor W. W. Chandler had been able to maintain calm the previous nights by imposing a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Some pickets have been arrested each night when they refused to disband by the 8 p.m. deadline.

THE BLACKOUT came on the first anniversary of singer Elvis Presley's death. Thousands of his fans had come to this city of 650,000 to pay tribute at his grave at Graceland Mansion, but this was far fewer than had been expected before the strikes.

On Tuesday, Chandler modified his no-negotiations stance and offered to place the strikers' wage demands on a November ballot, giving voters a chance to pay for the settlement with a sales tax increase. The strikers rejected the idea and called for binding arbitration.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman said at a pre-dawn news conference that the blackout was "probably due to sabotage." The FBI was assisting investigators of the sabotage at the Memphis Light Gas & Water Division's Cordova substation.

UTILITY SPOKESWOMAN Paula Payne said someone entered the big plant and threw a series of switches—a complex procedure requiring knowledge of the system—which cut off a main electrical link with the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA's Allen Steam Plant on President Island in the Mississippi River could not carry power demands alone and automatically shut down.

Troops had been on duty at the Cordova plant Monday but were replaced by private guards.

It took about 2½ hours to restore power to all of Shelby County.

Chapman said a non-striker was being questioned but was not considered a suspect. He said the man requested a lawyer.

THE BLACKOUT came at 12:32 a.m. about 12 hours after Gov. Ray Blanton stepped into the dispute, demanding payment for National Guard services back to 1968 and calling for a quick settlement.

Chandler, asked about the governor's remarks this morning on ABC television, said they suggested an attempt at "blackmail."

More than 1,000 National Guardsmen have been patrolling the city with about 100 non-striking police officers and 75 sheriff's deputies, while 200 Fire Department officials and non-striking firemen have kept 23 of the city's 48 fire stations open.

Senate OKs Carter Plan

WASHINGTON—The Senate today approved President Carter's plan to expand college grants and loans, making them available for the first time to middle-income students.

The 68-28 vote followed approval Tuesday night of a rival $500-per-student tuition tax credit that Carter opposes.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Rex Granum said the president's position "has not changed. He is strongly opposed to such."

But Granum did not say whether Carter would veto the bill.

The Carter program would provide aid to an additional 1.4 million students, with about 64 percent of the benefits going to students from families with incomes of $15,000 to $25,000 a year.

POLICE PROTECTION—Memphis police Lt. Louise Dunaway is escorted to her car by striking policemen Jesse Noe, left, and Mack Hughes Tuesday night, after she attempted to arrest the two for violation of a citywide curfew. She was unable to arrest the sergeants she has worked with for 17 years and broke down crying. They were arrested by other officers later.

ERA Extension May Get Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said today he isn't certain the Senate will debate a proposed 39-month extension of the Equal Rights Amendment this year.

The House voted 233-189 Tuesday to extend the ERA ratification time limit to June 30, 1982 from its current deadline of March 22, 1979. However, the measure is threatened with a filibuster in the Senate.

ASKED ABOUT PROSPECTS for action on the extension in the Senate, Byrd said, "I don't know. As of now I just can't say."

The West Virginia Democrat said he hoped the Senate would have time to debate the measure, but noted, "We have so many things to get done in so short a time as Congress tries to adjourn for the year in October."

Supporters of the extension hope the momentum of an unexpectedly large House victory will hold up when the bill reaches the Senate.

REP. ELIZABETH HOLTZMAN, D-N.Y., principal sponsor of the extension, said the 44-vote margin was "larger than any of us anticipated."

"The size of the House vote will give tremendous momentum to the effort in the Senate," said Ms. Holtzman, who is scheduled to meet with pro-extension senators on Thursday.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader of the pro-extension forces, said, "We thought we were going to win by 25 or 30 votes."

Glory Earned

Dory Racers Also Got Blisters

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lifeguards from the Orange Coast covered themselves with glory, blisters and some other things during the annual Catalina to Long Beach dory race this past weekend.

THE GRUELING event pitted 11 teams of lifeguards against one another in a 28-mile rowing race from the Isthmus of Catalina to the Long Beach marina.

The winning performance was turned in by the team from the San Clemente City Lifeguard Department. Al Lavayen, 22, and Barney Voorhees, 31, crossed the finish line in five hours, 10 minutes, just eight minutes off the record set last year by Steve Helfer and Larry Moore of San Clemente.

Right behind them was the boat rowed by Tom Snyder and Scott Stuart from San Clemente State Beach.

STEVE WENGER AND Eric Bauer from Newport's Marine Department had the dubious distinction of finishing dead last.

"Yeah, they even finished behind Laguna Beach," snickered organizer Bob Schroeder, a Los Angeles County lifeguard. Laguna's team consisted of the oldest entrant, Bruce Beard, 47, and 17-year-old Ingrid Loos, the only female in the race. Beard and Loos finished a respectable eighth.

Schroeder didn't mention where he and his teammate finished in the race. Voorhees said the LA County team gave his San Clemente boat a real race for about half the 28-mile distance. "Then they just broke, got sick and started throwing up," Voorhees said.

AFTER THAT IT was a fairly easy pull to the finish across glassy seas protected from the sun most of the time by high overcast.

Voorhees, who's been with the San Clemente Department for four seasons, said the race was his first — and his last. "A lot of people do it just to say they've done it and a lot of people do it to win. I've done both, so I can quit now."

It's not that the Laguna Beach resident didn't enjoy the race, although he admits that he was a little uncomfortable about six miles from the finish when the sun came out.

THE REAL PROBLEM occurred after the race was over. Voorhees and Lavayen had a little hand trouble. "It wasn't that we had blisters. We had pretty good calluses built up."

"It's just that our hands were really tired. We could barely move them to open a bottle," he explained.

The bottles, of course, were congratulatory beers the thirsty rowers were anxious to consume. Not to worry about the poor lifeguards. Race fans helped them open the bottles and even obligingly poured the contents into their parched mouths.

Coroner's Report

Transient's Death Due to Aspirin

A San Diego County transient whose body was found on the San Diego Freeway in Mission Viejo July 6 died as the result of ingested acetaminophen, an aspirin substitute.

County sheriff's investigators said Tuesday the cause of death was determined by a coroner's pathologist following toxicological and microscopic tissue studies.

An investigator said his department still does not know whether the large dose of non-restricted drug was voluntary or forced, so the death classification is still listed as "undetermined."

Acetaminophen attacks the liver when taken in large amounts, he said.

Keith Arthur Klingbeil, 23, was found by motorists in the fast, northbound lanes of the San Diego Freeway near La Paz Road.

He wore no shirt and a nipple had been burned from his chest, apparently with a vehicle cigarette lighter. Klingbeil apparently had been dumped from a moving vehicle and was pronounced dead on arrival at a Mission Viejo Hospital.

He was the second victim found on public roads in the Saddleback Valley area this year.

A nude body later identified as Camp Pendleton Marine Richard Aloen Keith, 20, was found early June 19 along a secluded section of Moulton Parkway in Laguna Hills.

Keith died of suffocation, a coroner's report stated. No leads have been developed in that case, either, an investigator said.

The deaths are not believed to be related, he added.

Man Attacks

Three Nurses

LA MESA (AP) — The husband of a woman patient attacked three nurses at Grossmont Hospital with his feet during a visit, authorities say.

The trio included Florence Biesigl, who was hospitalized with a black eye, bloody nose and cheek injury.

Edwin F. Warms, 45, was booked in San Diego County jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

Tax Note Sales Approved

The sale of $20 million worth of property tax anticipation notes has been unanimously approved by Orange County Supervisors.

County Tax Collector-Treasurer Robert Citron reported that Bank of America offered the low bid of 4.71 percent for the notes.

The county borrows funds each year to carry government activities through the so-called dry period before property tax payments are received in the fall.

Citron compared the 4.71 percent bid to the bid of 4.95 percent received by San Diego County and 4.98 percent by Los Angeles County.

He attributed changing market conditions and the county's strong AAA credit rating from Moody's Investors Service for the lower interest rate.

"This is evidenced by the fact that last year Orange County government had the lowest tax rate of any county, not only in this state but for any large urban area, and yet was able to adequately provide all the services needed," he said.

Citron noted county government's 1977-78 tax rate was $1.33 per $100 assessed valuation compared to Los Angeles County's $4.50 tax rate.

He said interest on the $20 million in notes will cost $775,807.

But the funds will be reinvested for short terms at higher-yielding rates, he explained, so the county's interest charge and other expenses will be paid without cost to taxpayers.

Other bids received for the county notes were from Wells Fargo Bank, at 4.72 percent; Payne Weber, 4.745 percent; Security Pacific Bank, 4.758 percent and Chemical Bank, 4.96 percent.

Viejo Terminal Wins Support Of Supervisors

The Mission Viejo Company's proposal for a $1.4 million combination bus terminal and train depot won the unanimous endorsement of Orange County supervisors Tuesday.

The board agreed to seek $850,000 in state funds to build the terminal adjacent to the railroad tracks and Interstate 5 near Cabot Road in Mission Viejo.

Orange County Transit District (OCTD) directors last week voted to ask for $750,000 in state funds for a bus terminal about three miles up the freeway at Laguna Hills Mall.

An OCTD spokesman said there would be some overlapping of service area between the two terminals. However, both are shown on OCTD plans and they could be built to complement one another, the spokesman said.

State officials have $8.7 million available to help finance transportation centers throughout the state. Allocations aren't expected before 1980.

OCTD officials said applications for terminals also have been prepared by the cities of San Juan Capistrano, Irvine, Santa Ana and Anaheim.

Beer Theft Told By Laguna Store

Owners of Cove Liquor in Laguna Beach told police Tuesday someone sneaked past a clerk during working hours last week and stole 20 cases of beer and a bottle of scotch.

Police said the foreign beer and the liquor was stolen from a storage room at the rear of the store, located at 1045 North Coast Highway last Thursday.

Disabled Students' Needs to Be Studied

Trustees from six West Orange County school districts have scheduled a joint meeting tonight in Fountain Valley to discuss special education programs for handicapped students.

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the Fountain Valley High School cafeteria, 17816 Bushard St.

Local school officials believe the season will mark the first time all 30 west county school board members have held a joint meeting.

Federal and state mandates require Huntington Beach Union High School District officials to cooperate with the five west county school boards in forming handicapped student programs by 1980.

High school district trustees plan to meet tonight with school board members from Fountain Valley, Ocean View, Huntington Beach City, Seal Beach and Westminster elementary school districts.

Officials from the six school districts formed a West Orange County Special Education Consortium last year to meet the federal and state mandates.

The laws require that the regional consortium provide equal education for all area students who have physical or mental disabilities.

YOU CAN ALMOST FEEL THE SPRAY OF THE OCEAN IN VIVIAN CALDWELL'S PAINTING 'They Come in Here to Look at the Waves, and That's a Good Feeling'

Artist Translates Ocean to Canvas

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"I must go down to the sea again,
For the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call
That may not be denied."

"Sea Fever" by John Masefield

Her interpretations of translucent waves and turbulent waters draw surfers into Vivian Caldwell's Laguna Beach gallery.

The kids set down their towels and surfboards and gaze at the power in her oil-based waves, crashing onto rocks or welling up into peaks.

"They aren't thinking about money, or covering their living room walls, or wondering if the painting matches a particular sofa," the nine-year Art-A-Fair exhibitor says.

"They come in here to look at the waves, and that's a good feeling."

The people who do pay from between $400 and $4,200 for her unique style of art do so because they too are captured by the power she transplants onto canvas.

And for a woman who is terrified of the ocean, that's quite a trick.

The Phoenix import says she has nearly drowned twice, and her nearest encounter to the ocean these days is knee-deep with a large lens camera.

"Don't let any artist tell you it's wrong to take pictures of your subject," the 41-year-old woman advises. "God never makes the right composition anyway," she laughs.

Vivian takes hundreds of still photos back to her Laguna Beach gallery where she displays them on a screen and then paints what she sees.

She used to paint on location, in various areas in the Art Colony, "but the wind would come up and knock my easel face down in the sand."

Or beachwalkers would come up and watch her work, something with which she cannot contend.

"I have to be alone. Even my family knows better than to bother me when I'm working," she says. The Lake Forest resident shares a studio in Laguna Beach with three other artists.

She also hates to have people call her work seascapes.

"Artists have painted the sea for years, but they use it as a vehicle for man and boat. Or they're painting foam against rocks, or for atmosphere."

"But nobody paints the sea as moving, liquid, translucent water."

That's what Vivian Caldwell captures. She calls her work sea portraits.

"I'm doing a small portion of the water, rather than a large expanse of ocean."

The award-winning artist captures movement in her waves.

And how does she transform that wave action onto the canvas?

"You're not going to believe this but I put on some soft rock and dance while I paint," she laughs.

"The faster the song, the more movement in the water."

Festival-goers are immediately struck by the vivid colors and action in her exhibit, located in the second half of the Art-A-Fair grounds out Laguna Canyon Road.

"I don't know anybody who isn't moved in one way or the other by the sea," she says. "It makes some people restless, and is a calming factor to others."

"And," she adds, "the ocean makes some people sick to their stomachs."

"Maybe, I'm a masochist to paint something that I fear so much," the former model and singer says.

But that's a feeling, too, and Vivian Caldwell knows how to use emotion to artistic advantage.

DIAMONDS AND BLACKS
and the African economy

Black Africa now supplies more than half of the world's diamonds. Zaire, alone, is the source of 35 percent of the global supply, producing 17 million metric carats annually. That's more than twice the output of South Africa, which has long been considered the world leader. Botswana produces about 2.5 million carats annually, followed by Ghana with 2.2 million carats; Namibia, 1.9 million, and Sierra Leone with 0.75 million. Other producers are Tanzania, Liberia, Angola, the Ivory Coast and the Central African Republic. Before civil war wracked Angola, that country produced 2 million carats yearly, and is expected to return to a production level near that amount, now that conditions are again more settled there. The Central African Selling Organization, based in South Africa, handles most Black African diamond sales, despite the unfriendliness between that apartheid country and the rest of Africa. Diamonds obviously play a major role in the emergence of Black Africa. For example, 25 percent of the Central African Republic's foreign exchange earnings come from diamonds.

Public Passing Up Chance to Speak

Judging from poor attendance at recent public forums on San Clemente's Local Coastal Program (LCP), the citizenry has apparently passed up an opportunity to influence the future of the city's canyons, bluffs and beaches.

Impressive efforts have been made by the regional staff of the California Coastal Commission, which is drafting San Clemente's state-mandated LCP, to solicit opinion from city residents on best use of San Clemente's coastline.

Two meetings last week offered the public an opportunity to respond to results of the opinion sampling. A total of 30 people attended the two meetings — some of them from out of town.

At stake in the drafting of the LCP are such matters as whether San Clemente will continue to have affordable coastal housing, whether the public has adequate access to San Clemente beaches (called "the best and largest in Southern Orange County" in a commission report) and whether city canyons are adequately protected.

On these and other important coastal issues we are sure San Clemente residents have some concerns. Information on the LCP and on future public meetings where the plan will be discussed is available from the South Coast Regional Commission, 666 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach 90801.

San Clemente citizens can have a voice in the city's coastal planning. They should exercise it.

Great for Lagunans

Laguna Beach has an opportunity to acquire an island of beauty just outside the city limits, and the chance should not be lost to fears of maintenance costs.

Hortense Miller, a former teacher who has maintained the Hortense Miller gardens behind Boat Canyon, has already given her 2.5 acre land, complete with 1,500 varieties of plants and trees, to the city upon her death.

The gift is a generous one. Her only stipulation is that the city maintain the grounds and open it to the public.

Laguna Beach had a similar opportunity many years ago to acquire a large garden spot within the city. But the City Council at that time turned down an offer for the lush 11-acre Smith estate near Emerald Bay.

That was a decision that city officials have lived to regret.

If the land is accepted and annexed to the city, the cost for maintenance would be less than $10,000 a year. And the garden gift comes complete with a 50-member Friends of the Hortense Miller Garden volunteer group, which has vowed to help maintain the gardens and conduct tours.

If their group's help can be assured, the city should accept the offer and go ahead with plans for annexation.

They Made the Point

A recent demonstration against nuclear weapons systems and chemical warfare devices allegedly stockpiled on the heavily populated Orange Coast at the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station demonstrated something else.

Civil dissenters and police who must observe and control exercises in the people's right to assemble and express opinion can cooperate quite well for the good of peace, safety and public order.

Seal Beach Police Chief Edward Cibbarelli's 45-man force would, of course, prefer things stay typically simple in normally sleepy Seal Beach.

Happily, the protest staged by the Southern California Alliance for Survival had none of the overtones that usually mar such gatherings.

The coalition is comprised of 50 varied groups opposed to the idea of nuclear arms storage here. They showed that a protest movement needn't be un-American or unruly to prove a point.

They may have a good point. If nuclear weapons and chemical warfare materiel are indeed present at Seal Beach, it might be time now to relocate them.

Ford's Book Takes on Reagan

WASHINGTON — Intimates of Gerald Ford, fearful that publication of his memoirs early next year will crack Republican harmony wide open, are quietly trying to soften the former president's attack against Ronald Reagan.

No one directly connected with the book (now about half finished) will discuss the matter with outsiders. But insiders, in talks with Ford and his entourage, have learned Ford is using his book to blame his defeat by Jimmy Carter squarely on Reagan's challenge.

Publication of the book is scheduled for next May, just as presidential campaigns are getting under way. Reagan is a certain candidate, Ford a possible one. Ford's intention to use his book to "prove the case" that Reagan's challenge against an incumbent Republican president elected a Democrat will release political hobgoblins.

Cool heads inside the Republican party are trying to dissuade Ford. But considering what one intimate calls Ford's "hatred" for Reagan, success is questionable.

RAFSHOON RISES — The unmistakable rise of Gerald Rafshoon within the White House is coming not at the expense of his supposed rival, press secretary Jody Powell, but rather domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat.

The reason: Rafshoon, the advertising executive in charge of rehabilitating President

Carter's image, is now preparing the briefing papers for Carter interviews and other performances. That job previously had been done by Eizenstat.

The obvious change is one of style. Rafshoon insists on terse, easily handled formulae for the president on inflation, energy, tax reform/reduction and other questions. In contrast, Eizenstat used to give him long, detailed memoranda.

The change could become one of substance. Eizenstat's programmatic liberalism has been a major cause of the chain of "comprehensive" proposals streaming from the White House. The Rafshoon briefings are greatly diminishing this doctrinal tone.

A footnote: Rumors of a Rafshoon-Powell power clash are premature at the least, but there was one dispute between them on Mr. Carter's European tour. Powell urged a softer tone than Rafshoon in presidential reaction to the conviction of Soviet dissident Anatoly Shecharansky. The president took Powell's advice.

MANSFIELD WARNS — Ambassador Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader now representing the U.S. in Tokyo, is delivering somber warnings to visiting Carter administration officials about Japan's growing fear of the president's Far East policies.

For the first time, Mansfield says, Japanese politicians and military leaders are privately complaining about the relative decline of U.S. naval strength compared to the Soviet Union. Despite Mansfield's assurances to the Japanese government, concern is rising about the steadfastness and reliability of Mr. Carter's policies.

Such concerns have been publicly expressed by many Americans — including Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, forced into retirement because he questioned U.S. troop withdrawals from South Korea. But Mansfield, a leading Vietnam war dove, did not join the alarm-pioneers until the Japanese themselves began conveying their fears to him.

Teachers: How Indispensable Are They?

To the Editor:
Your editorial of Aug. 8 which reports that Orange County teachers rallied to "complain with sour and disappointed words" about their plight in post-Jarvis California ends with the admonition "...for now at least, teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to the system."

What sort of free society can be sustained where teachers are not indispensable? What sort of future awaits us all if teachers are merely considered public functionaries no more important than building inspectors or CalTrans truck drivers?

The editorial drags out the old arguments about salaries, benefits and summer vacations... on a level that is the envy of many who pay taxes supporting those lifestyle improvements. Quite apart from the years of university training and teaching experience required to reach the top of any salary scale in the county, salary and benefits for teachers are modest compared to those performing such crucial tasks in the society as managing a fast food outlet or delivering Sparkletts Water. Further, long summer vacations are seldom if ever realized by teachers with families to support.

Bloated salaries of some administrators, great numbers of non-teaching positions, and expensive programs of doubtful value mandated by Sacramento and Washington all contribute heavily to the cost of education in this state. It is most disappointing that the Daily Pilot makes no clear distinctions in its statement.

Virtually all observers concede that it is the classroom where education takes place, with the teacher in the vital role. If education is of only nominal importance to the public of California, one wonders who will write the editorials of the next century, and who will read them.

Instead of saying "the public no longer believes teachers are indispensable," the editorial might better have said "some of the public" feels that way.
—Editor

"Difficult..."

To the Editor:
I find it difficult to believe that a newspaper in this area where the value of education is obvious in the prosperity surrounding us would make the statement your August 8 editorial makes "...teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to our system."

Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave at such a stupid statement. Our school system was founded on the notion that, as he said, "Only popular education can safeguard democracy." To expand on this idea, he said, "I look to the diffusion of light and education as the resource most to be relied on for ameliorating the condition, promoting the virtue, and advancing the happiness of man."

And where were our newspapermen inculcated with his idea that "A free press is the only safeguard of public liberty" if not in the schools.

Teachers are indispensable in a democracy, and a newspaper should be the last place to find a statement to the contrary. I, as an individual teacher, may be dispensable, but teachers as a whole certainly are not.
BETTY J. ORBACH

"Paternalistic"

To the Editor:
I must respond to your editorial of Aug. 8, "How Many Friends Do Teachers Have?" to point out that its apparent objectivity is really masking an attack on teachers and public employees in general. Your phraseology is condescending and ambiguous, and your argument clouds understanding the general public sentiment behind Prop. 13.

As an angry taxpayer myself, and as a subscriber to your newspaper, I want to reprove you in your failure in not directing attention to some of the areas of government spending where true waste and criminal misuse of tax money is taking place. You have in recent months exposed some of this profligidity in the county supervisor's office. Why stop there? Other local government operations will show equal and worse wrongs. Yes, including the administration of some of our local school districts.

But shame! To admonish teachers and public employees for their concern over their marginal material rewards by pulling on the bridle of public opinion in the way you do is deplorable. True, what appears on budget totals as salaries for government employees seems to be a lot of money, but that is the well-earned livelihood of thousands of people in the community.

Why focus on that? Why not focus on parts of the budget that are not so readily obvious, where error, folly and incompetence is hidden?

One of the functions of a responsible editorialist is to refine public opinion, to be the voice of a viewer that looks calmly beyond the surface of the daily news and public opinion to offer thoughtful insights on what is happening. Your editorial is paternalistic and misleading, and as a professional teacher and public employee, I resent it.

Public Danger

To the Editor:
As a person living within one-half mile of the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station and as a worker in the Alliance for Survival's campaign to remove nuclear weapons from that facility, I would like to have the opportunity to elucidate a few points which I believe were not made clear in your coverage of the demonstration which took place in Seal Beach Aug. 5.

A research project completed in July, 1975, by the Government Accounting Office called for the relocation of the weapons station because of the inadequacy of the facility and the resultant necessity to overload docks and to violate other safety regulations. The GOA report went on to say that a severe impact explosive hazard zone, extends over approximately 98 acres of developed property in the surrounding community when the station is handling 250,000 pounds of conventional explosives on the wharf (as it does approximately seven times yearly in order to meet fleet scheduling requirements).

Such a hazard exists independently of the threat posed by nuclear and chemical warfare weapons stored and transported in close proximity.

(A note of interest: According to the Los Angeles Times, August 7, 1978, just two days after the Seal Beach demonstration 63 tons of bombs accidentally exploded at the Sierra Army depot at Herlong, California. The cause of the explosion is unknown.)

Four feasibility studies have been made by the Department of the Navy to determine the costs of relocation. According to a Navy study from 1970, the cost of relocation would vary according to the site from $98 million to $169 million for the most expensive relocation to San Clemente Island (which is already owned by the navy). Surely our Department of Defense can absorb this expense from its grotesquely large $127 billion budget.

The Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station jeopardizes public health and safety by its proximity to elementary schools, public beaches, residential areas and business centers.

It exposes children and other residents to the hazards of nuclear storage and transportation, residents who may be unaware of unwillingly exposed to such hazards. The base represents an unacceptable and avoidable danger.

Bar Should Nominate New Judges

Thoughts at Large:

* If judges are to be elected, and not appointed, they should first be nominated by the Bar, so that we no longer have a politically oriented judiciary made up largely of those lawyers who take a partisan interest in politics and are rewarded with a party nomination.

* People who talk too much and people who talk too little both suffer from the same fear at bottom, that of being misunderstood — the loquacious person exhibiting this fear by overexplaining and the taciturn one by saying nothing.

* Little has changed middle-class smugness in the full century since Melville wrote: "Of all the preposterous assumptions of humanity over humanity, nothing exceeds most of the criticisms made on the habits of the poor by the well-housed, well-warmed, and well-fed."

* What makes a classic is its ability to survive both those who are indifferent to it and those who adore it dumbly.

* WE SEEK superiority only when we are denied equality; "black" would never have been proclaimed as especially beautiful if bigots had not at first denigrated it as ugly.

* Most of the ferment in public education today springs from the fact that the schools are being asked not only to make up in a hurry for their own defects but also to compensate for the failures of society as a whole — and they can scarcely do the first job, much less the second.

* President Carter seems to be following the unproductive tendency of his predecessors and paying too much attention to the polls and the "trends," when he should be attending to Winston Churchill's warning: "The nation will find it very hard to look up to leaders who are keeping their ears to the ground."

Teacher Measure

Gays Launch Protest Move

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of gay rights, including some prominent liberal politicians, have opened the campaign against an anti-homosexual teacher measure on the November ballot by denouncing it as a threat to civil rights.

The initiative, Proposition 6 sponsored by Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, is aimed at firing homosexual teachers, though opponents say it goes much further.

ATTACKS ON HOMOSEXUAL TEACHERS "could be extended to other minorities, whether sexual orientation or political views," and threaten to revive the McCarthy era of the 1950s. Assemblyman Majority Leader Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, said at a rally Tuesday.

"This heinous and outrageous initiative threatens the very structure of due process," Berman told about 200 persons outside the Capitol. He said he would tell his colleagues that the campaign is "worth taking a little bit of risk on."

Also speaking at the rally were gay activist Frank Vel, who is walking the length of California to drum up support for the campaign; Assemblyman Art Agnos, D-San Francisco, Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, and Sacramento Mayor Philisenberg.

GOV. EDMUND BROWN JR. OPPOSES the initiative but was not present.

It was the first Capitol demonstration related to Proposition 6, which is likely to be one of the most emotional issues on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Under the measure, school boards could fire, or refuse to hire, any teachers, administrators or counselors for publicly engaging in or advocating homosexual conduct.

BRIGGS SAYS THE MEASURE WILL let schools dismiss teachers who would be poor role models. Opponents say that current laws requiring dismissal for sexual misconduct with children are adequate. They also say the initiative could be applied to defenders of gay rights.

Quake Area State Aid Granted

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has declared a state of emergency in Santa Barbara County, where damage estimates from last weekend's earthquake have climbed to more than $12 million.

Brown, acting on a request for state aid from the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday that "conditions of extreme peril" existed in the area. The county declared a local disaster area Monday.

Spending Limit

Economy Snagged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative drive to put a government spending limit on the November ballot could depend on a vote tonight in the state Senate.

The fate of the limit, a constitutional amendment by Sen. John Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, was left hanging Tuesday when a conference committee abruptly adjourned without finishing work on the measure.

That meant the amendment failed to meet a Tuesday midnight deadline for the November ballot. The deadline can be extended, but only if the Senate approves a bill that it rejected Monday.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, the Democratic-dominated, two-house committee tentatively approved a limit formula similar to one proposed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan and rejected by voters in 1973.

The Reagan limit was substituted for a more liberal formula tentatively adopted Monday night but then abandoned by the committee Tuesday.

The bill extending the ballot deadline, SB 2243 by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, gives lawmakers until Friday to put constitutional amendments before voters in November.

IT FELL EIGHT VOTES short of passage Monday, but Sieroty was given permission to bring it up again. That could happen tonight, when the Senate is scheduled to meet.

Riding on the bill is the fate of a number of constitutional amendments, including one by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy abolishing homeowner property taxes and boosting renter income tax credits. If Sieroty's bill fails to pass, the amendments couldn't go on the ballot until June 1980.

Garamendi blamed the delay in action on his measure on an attempt by McCarthy, D-San Francisco, to put more pressure on the Senate to extend the deadline.

GARAMENDI ADJOURNED the committee Tuesday afternoon after Assembly Democratic conferees said they could not take a final vote on the amendment until they met with their colleagues.

Approval by the committee would send the amendment to both houses for final action.

In a bizarre move before Tuesday's adjournment, a version of the Reagan limit was proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown, a liberal San Francisco Democrat who originally opposed the Reagan proposal.

IT WOULD LIMIT STATE and local spending to a percentage of state personal income. That figure, currently just over 8 percent, would drop by one-tenth of 1 percent each year until it reached 7 percent.

The Legislature then could allow the limit to remain at that level.

According to figures from the legislative analyst, state expenditures could grow to $21.503 billion in 1982-83 under the limit. That's $951 million less than the state is projected to spend.

'Rank Speculation'

Government Disputes Hearst Conflict Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Calling her allegations "rank speculation," the federal government is disputing Patricia Hearst's assertion that her former lawyer failed to provide adequate counsel at her 1976 bank robbery trial because he contracted to write a book about the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ed Davis Jr. made the statement in a response filed to Miss Hearst's earlier request to examine F. Lee Bailey's deal with the G.P. Putnam Co., a New York publishing house.

In that request, Miss Hearst, 24, charged that Bailey's $225,000 contract for a book about her actions during her captivity by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army constituted grounds to set aside or reduce her seven-year prison sentence.

Child Porno Suspect Claims Life Threatened

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man charged in connection with an international child pornography and prostitution ring says he broke his wrist in a jail incident involving unidentified persons who tried to kill him.

"They tried to kill me," Charles James Hughes of La Puente said Tuesday as he left a brief Superior Court bail hearing.

HUGHES, 35, apparently blamed his injury on other inmates. But his attorney, Howard Beckler, said his client accidentally broke the wrist when attempting to throw back a broom hurled by another inmate.

Judge Paul G. Breckenridge reduced Hughes' bail from $300,000 to $40,000 and ordered Hughes and other defendants in the case separated from the general prison population.

Hughes and another defendant, Joseph Francis Henry, 43, were ordered to return to court Sept. 6 for a pretrial conference. Henry, an amateur photographer from New York City, remained in custody in lieu of $300,000 bail.

Spill Examined

IMPERIAL BEACH (AP) — Coast Guard officials planned today to conduct a surface examination of a half-mile wide oil spill that washed ashore near the city pier.

Lt. Douglas Martin said a Coast Guard helicopter crew checked the spill after it washed ashore around dusk Tuesday and that the oil formed a circle extending about a quarter of a mile off the shore.

4,500 Acres Charred

TWENTYNINE PALMS (AP) — More than 500 firefighters trying to contain a massive brush fire in the Joshua Tree National Monument hoped for abatement today of the erratic desert winds that propelled flames through twisting canyons.

By Tuesday evening the fire had swept through some 4,500 acres in the park 20 miles northeast of Palm Springs and was spreading rapidly, the state forestry department reported. The blaze remained 60 percent contained, as it had been for a day.

Rape Bill Backed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A person who commits rape while carrying out any unrelated felony could get an extra three years in prison, under a bill on the Senate floor.

The bill, AB 2802 by Assemblyman Eugene Gualco, D-Sacramento, was approved Tuesday on a 5-1 vote of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Coin Proposal Killed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative committee has killed a black legislator's proposal to urge Californians not to buy gold South African Krugerrand coins.

The measure, ACR 99 by Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles, failed Tuesday to get past the Senate Rules Committee, despite earlier passage by the Assembly with little dissent.

Dental Hints

By Duane D. Christensen, D.D.S.

Most people worry more about getting and ways to lose weight, to stay thin or become more active, than they worry about dental care. If you get right down to real values — attractiveness if you want to put it that way — what could be less attractive (less romantic) than a person who cannot smile... or one who does smile displaying tooth decay in need of dental care? Thin or heavy, a person like this turns-off people around him/her!

It is estimated that 70% of all Americans need some form of professional dental care, but only about 45% seek and ultimately complete their dental needs. Why? True of the most often mentioned are fear: fear of the pain they may experience and fear that, when the dental care is completed, the dentist will convert them with a skyhigh bill without forewarning, detail or explanation.

For example, a large number of should-be patients fear most the injection of a local anesthetic into the gum for extraction or extensive drilling procedures. Granted, injections anywhere in the body cannot be considered pleasing experiences, but consider how dental care was given in the early days and you may come to appreciate more fully the ease of living in today's world of progress.

Before the advent of effective dental anesthetics, drilling was usually done with little effort accompanied by the dentist to lessen the pain. Extractions were accomplished with instruments that would seem, by today's standards, to resemble equipment from a Dark Ages torture chamber. One of these was called "the turnkey."

Using this cumbersome device, and a twisting-turning process, a tooth was removed by exerting great power-of-pull, until there was no alternative but to come out. If the patient was lucky, he may have given some kind of alcoholic beverage in sufficient amount to take the edge off the pain, but all too often the work was done cold turkey! So, before putting off dental care you need, arm yourself with knowledge — "read-up" on it — and it will help you appreciate the relatively painless professional care of today.

As to fear of a surprisingly high bill, any dentist is happy to give you an estimate before your work begins, in fact, he would rather. He will want you to be fully understood your needs, and the reasons, before you ever start. He'll also want to explain the danger-risks of putting-off work that may be classified as "urgent" in your case.

Schmitz, Cordova Open Campaign

One Embraces Jarvis; Other Shuns Governor

By GARY GRANVILLE

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement into his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican

Dennis Carpenter. And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 6 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airport Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972. Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidential nomination.

Schmitz said he didn't change party affiliation until after his AIP presidential nomination.

In a paraphrase of the well-known Schmitz' remark about the first Nixon trip to Communist China, Cordova quipped, "I'm informed by my Republican friends they took no exception to John Schmitz leaving the Republican Party, only to his return."

But Schmitz pointed to his endorsement "by all Republican groups" and county GOP leaders to prove he has "mended fences" with the party.

Cordova wouldn't let up on his attack on Schmitz' political travels, however.

The Democratic assemblyman said that, unlike his foe, his political epitaph will not read, "Have campaign, will travel."

Schmitz retaliated to the barbs by recounting his 2½-year record as a congressman and 5½ years as a state senator.

Included in the record cited by him was support of efforts by Jarvis to reform the state's property tax laws, efforts that date back to the mid-1960s.

Schmitz also said he is probably the only congressman ever sent to Washington who saved the taxpayers more money than he cost.

Shoppers Stock Up On Food

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Results of the vote were to be known this afternoon, and a strike could begin anytime after 12:01 Saturday, 48 hours after the clerks' contract expires.

The 15 chains involved are Albertsons, Alpha Beta, Arden-Mayfair, Boys, Certified Grocers, Hughes, A.M. Lewis, Lucky Stores, Market Basket, Ralphs, Safeway, Smiths Food King, Stater Bros., Thriftmart and Vons.

For several weeks, the markets have had signs in their windows advertising for clerks, with no experience necessary.

Pair Freed Of Teen-age Sex Charges

Charges of crimes against children which led to the arrest of two local men earlier this month have been dropped in the Harbor Judicial District Court.

Christian Vart Sahagian, 21, a transient who police said frequents the Huntington Beach Pier and David Wooten, 43, of 3882 Claremont St., Irvine, were taken into custody by Newport Beach along with a 13-year-old girl.

Police alleged the child's sexual services had been involved in dealings between the two men. However, those charges were dropped by court officials when the teen-age girl, a runaway from Chicago, was taken back to Illinois by her parents.

However, Wooten in his court appearance Tuesday was arraigned on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He is scheduled to return to the municipal court for a pre-trial conference on the misdemeanor charge on Sept. 11.

FORMER PRESIDENT AND MRS. NIXON AT HOSPITAL Tricia Cox Also There to Greet Her New Niece

Daddy Eisenhower Elated by Jennie

By ANNE COOPER

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday. The natural childbirth delivery left his wife "feeling fine, really fine," Eisenhower commented.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight

Dollar 'Improves' Carter 'Concerned' Over Slump

LONDON (AP) — President Carter's statement today in Washington expressing "deep concern" over the decline of the dollar came too late to affect trading on world money markets and the U.S. currency came under renewed pressure.

However, the dollar's performance was improvement on the record lows it reached around the world Monday and Tuesday.

The exception was Frankfurt where the dollar slipped further against the West German mark, closing at a postwar low of 1.9370 marks.

Gold prices, which have soared as the dollar declined, were higher.

Carter, in a statement issued at the White House, said he had been discussing the dollar's troubles with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and they are examining measures to alter the dollar's downward course.

The dollar has lost more than 30 percent of its value against the Japanese yen, 33 percent against the Swiss franc, and 15 percent against the German mark the past year.

Informed sources in Paris said today that deputy finance ministers from the world's 10 leading industrial nations will meet there Sept. 8 to discuss the slide of the dollar. Countries involved are the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Belgium, Canada and Sweden.

In London, the pound sterling was worth $1.9770 compared with $1.9843 late Tuesday. The dollar gained about half a cent in late trading after Carter's statement.

The gold market was buoyed by the price obtained by the U.S. Treasury on Tuesday at its latest sale of gold bullion. An average price of $213.53 dollars an ounce, the highest ever paid at a U.S. gold auction, was paid for about 10 tons of the precious metal.

Gold closed in Zurich, Europe's busiest bullion mart, at $215.875 an ounce, up from $213.625 at Tuesday's close. The London closing price was $214.75, up from $213.

Irvine Request

Air Traffic Study At Airport Nixed

By PHILIP ROSMARIN

The Federal Aviation Administration has, for the second time, refused an Irvine politician's request that it conduct a comprehensive investigation of air traffic safety at Orange County Airport.

The first time City Councilman Larry Agran asked for the study, he was a candidate for the municipal office.

Alarmed by 10 aircraft accidents in or near the airport in which 17 people died, he pleaded an obvious need to study the overall pattern of safety.

Agran claimed to get no response from the FAA, and instead learned it had turned him down only after reading press reports that the agency intended no action and was satisfied with its method of investigating individual crashes.

Actually, though the FAA investigates most non-fatal air accidents, the National Transportation Safety Board has the main responsibility for investigating all airplane accidents.

The FAA is charged with instituting accident prevention methods.

Since the councilman's initial request, several incidents prompted Agran to write again.

F. A. Allen, chief of the FAA flight standards district office in Long Beach, replied a few days ago.

As before, Allen indicated there is a continual review of accident statistics with accident prevention in mind.

But, said Allen, "In view of specific accident investigations previously conducted and the ongoing accident prevention act" (See AIRPORT, Page A2)

Newport Cop Trainee Dies After Crash

Newport Beach Police Department trainee Gordon Roberts, 27, died Tuesday afternoon at Fountain Valley Community Hospital of injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident Monday.

The Navy veteran, just a month short of graduation from the Los Angeles Police Department Academy, sustained multiple injuries when his personal motorcycle rammed a parked car.

Investigators said he was not wearing a protective helmet when he collided with the vehicle on Daisy Avenue, not far from the neighborhood where he lived.

Spokesmen at Pacific View Memorial Park in Corona del Mar said today funeral services are tentatively set for 10 a.m. Friday in their chapel.

Roberts was leaving a bachelor party for his best friend, Newport Beach Police Officer Tom Little, when the accident occurred.

The victim leaves his wife, who is expecting their second child, and a 5-year-old daughter.

Free Movie At Library

The Friends of the Newport Beach Public Library will sponsor a free film Aug. 22 for all area children as the grand finale of the summer reading program at the library.

Screened beginning at 10 a.m. will be "The Time Machine," a 1960 version of the H.G. Wells classic featuring Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux.

Doors will open at 9:45 a.m. and parents are asked to pick up their children by noon. The screening will be at Edwards Newport Cinema in Fashion Island.

41,114 FANS AT ANAHEIM STADIUM GET THE MESSAGE A Salute From Old Friend Gene Autry on the Big Day

Hearing Slated For Coast Man On Theft Rap

A Huntington Beach man accused of receiving stolen property in the theft of a safe containing $8,000 in cash faces a preliminary hearing in the Harbor Judicial District Court Monday. Richard "Rooster" Hopkins, 27, of 426 8th St. was arrested by Newport Beach Detective Doug Thomas in connection with the safe theft from the Eastbluff Cleaners last month. Hopkins, who remained in custody today at Orange County Jail, has been arrested twice in connection with the case. He was originally picked up on Aug. 3 after an anonymous informant told police Hopkins had the missing safe. He was released from county jail five days later in a technical error, but was picked up the same day when he returned to the Newport Beach police station to pick up the $146 taken from him when he was booked. Police re-arrested Hopkins using a warrant they'd obtained from Municipal Judge Donald Dungan when they were notified of their suspect's release. Bail on the court warrant is $10,000.

AIRPORT...

Activities, it does not appear that a comprehensive investigation or further review of Orange County Airport accidents would be productive at this time. Allen said also. "As you know, Orange County Airport is one of the busiest airports in the nation. Numbers of aircraft and operations continue to rise, with a corresponding increase in accidents and fatalities." For Agran, that explanation wasn't good enough. It is those very numbers of aircraft and their relation to accidents that he wants explored. So for a third time, he has asked both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board "to undertake the kind of thorough investigation necessary to provide the maximum safety to those citizens who use the Orange County Airport and to those who live and work near it."

Agran has said he believes despite the toll in lives, the crash record at the airport has been a lucky one.

According to him, it is only a matter of time before an airplane crashes into an occupied school, industrial or commercial building.

Colleges' Budget Trimmed

Coast Community College District officials reported today that a total of $7.2 million has been shaved from the district's 1978-79 budget, which will now total about $69.5 million.

That represents a cut of 9.2 percent from last year's $76.5 million budget, a district spokesman said.

Correllan Thompson, the district's business affairs vice chancellor, said cuts have been made by reducing staff, replacing less equipment and supplies, and cutting contract services, maintenance and operations and capital outlay.

In addition, although basic education tuition remains free, Thompson said taxpayers will no longer underwrite free lectures, seminars, concerts, entertainment, athletic programs and non-academic courses to the tune of $1.3 million per year.

Instead, admissions fees will now be charged for such events.

In addition, District Chancellor Norman E. Watson has formed a fund-raising committee to investigate alternative sources of income. Trustees are currently discussing a fee schedule for public use of district facilities.

Some specific cost reductions have included leaving personnel vacancies unfilled, cutting conference and membership expenditures, reducing the number of hourly employees and charging more for transportation.

The budget is expected to be given final approval Sept. 7.

Streets Due For Closing In Newport

A number of Newport Beach streets will be closed briefly while they are resurfaced with slurry seal between Aug. 21 and Aug. 31.

A city spokesman said most streets will be closed for only three to four hours, and none longer than one day.

Included are many Newport Heights streets in the area bounded by Newport Boulevard, West Coast Highway, Irvine Avenue and 15th Street.

So are streets in the Harbor View area bounded by MacArthur Boulevard, Crown Drive, Crown Drive North and San Joaquin Hills Road.

Also to be resurfaced are several small streets off San Joaquin Hills Road between Spyglass Hill Road and Reef View Circle, including Ocean Birch Drive.

Author Plans Talk on Book

Leland Cooley, author of "The Art Colony," will discuss his new book, "The Dancer," Sept. 19 at a luncheon meeting of the Friends of the Newport Beach Library.

The meeting, coordinated by Mrs. Gilbert Ferguson, will be held at 11:30 a.m. at St. Michael and All Angels Church Recreation Room, 3233 Pacific View Drive, Corona del Mar.

Advance reservations are necessary. Donations of $4.50 per person, payable to Newport Beach Friends of the Library, can be sent to Mrs. Joseph Johnson, 1053 Dover Drive, Newport Beach 92660, or she can be contacted at 645-3322. Deadline for reservations is Sept. 15.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

JENNIE...

another 'Julie,' he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

CREATOR PAYNE INSPECTS SHATTERED 'CORN GOD' At Orange Coast College, a Costly Act of Vandalism

'God' Toppled $900 Vandalism at OCC

By JACKIE HYMAN Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange Coast College instructor William O. Payne estimates it may cost as much as $900 to restore a campus landmark that was vandalized last month.

IT WAS A replica of a Mayan maize god that stood in front of the OCC Art Gallery, greeting thousands of students since 1952.

"Students and faculty members alike had a lot of fun with our 'corn god,'" said William O. Payne, who created the six-foot ceramic, cement-backed piece with student Wallace Parker.

"One of his hands was cupped and extended," said Payne. "Mayans used to put offerings in that hand. I think in my 25 years here at OCC I collected $1.31 in pennies from that hand. I also flipped innumerable cigarette butts out of his mouth."

THE STATUE, valued at $3,000, was broken July 28 by a vandal who also pushed over a metal statue, which was not damaged.

A gardener and a professor captured a suspect, who was turned over to Costa Mesa police, Payne said.

Payne, a pre-Columbian pottery expert who has worked as a potter-archaeologist in Mexico, said it would take several months to restore the statue and would require creating several new panels.

PAYNE SAID the statue, created for the dedication of the college's Art Center complex, was an exact replica of a Mayan god found in Copan, Honduras which had been carved in limestone about 800 A.D.

The OCC statue included glyphs or raised carvings of Mayan dates. "We know the date system, but we don't know the writing system yet," explained Payne. "That's one of the mysteries of the world."

Paul R. Cox, chairman of OCC's Division of Fine Arts, is reportedly looking into ways of raising the $900 to fund the restoration.

"THE STATUE had really become a campus celebrity," a college spokesman quoted Cox as saying. "It was the first outdoor art piece to be placed on the campus. Following its destruction, many students and faculty members have expressed a real sense of loss."

The reason for the vandalism isn't known, Payne said.

Viejo Firm Fights Housing Proposal

By KATHY CLANCY Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Mission Viejo Company officials told Orange County Planning Commissioners Tuesday they don't want to be singled out by the county to build so-called affordable housing.

Company Vice President David Celestin said he opposes a county proposal that would require his firm to build up to 2,500 of Mission Viejo's remaining 10,000 units in the low and moderate income ranges.

"The Mission Viejo Company does support the concept of affordable housing," Celestin said.

He also said the company would "go along with" whatever housing policies supervisors adopt early next year for all of the unincorporated area.

"We don't feel it is appropriate at this time to place it exclusively on the Mission Viejo community," he explained.

Celestin's remarks came as commissioners reviewed the first comprehensive revision of the 10,324-acre Mission Viejo community plan.

The commission will hold at least one more hearing Sept. 11 before making a recommendation to county supervisors.

County planners had suggested that the community plan revision require that one-fourth of the remaining 10,000 homes to be built in Mission Viejo be within the price ranges of families earning 80 to 120 percent of the county's median income.

The county's median income now is $16,200.

DEBATE...

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Both candidates also decried expanded government spending and "growth of government."

Both said they support extending capital punishment to cover more crimes.

Disagreement came on the so-called Briggs initiative, prohibiting homosexuals from teaching in public schools.

Schmitz said he supports the measure. Cordova said he does not.

And while Cordova said he is not certain how he will vote in the gubernatorial race, Schmitz emphasized that he is an Evelle Younger supporter.

When it came time for them to ask each other one question, Cordova asked Schmitz what he had done as a state legislator to advance the cause of property tax reform.

Schmitz pointed to his support of Jarvis in the 1960's and a plaque he received in 1967 from United Taxpayers, the Jarvis support organization.

In turn, Schmitz asked Cordova to show his "conversion to conservatism to be other than political."

Cordova said his record as a deputy district attorney who never lost a felony case shows him to be something far less than liberal.

Besides, Cordova said, his record as a legislator, not political rhetoric, should serve as the example of his conservatism.

Meanwhile, David Bergland, who hopes to make the November ballot as the Libertarian Party candidate in the 36th, waited in a hallway.

Bergland said he was miffed because the debate sponsor, the Building Industry Association, didn't invite him.

Mesa Woman Charged in Armed Heist

A Costa Mesa woman who police allege used a knife to rob a gas station near the Costa Mesa-Newport Beach border Tuesday afternoon was arrested within minutes by plainclothes Newport Beach officers who spotted her walking along Irvine Avenue, Costa Mesa police said.

In custody today at Orange County Jail on an armed robbery charge is 24-year-old Mary Susan Rowan, 467 Costa Mesa St. She is being held in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Costa Mesa investigators allege the woman walked up to Arco service station attendant Salvatore Princeado at about 2:15 p.m. and asked for change for a quarter.

When Princeado, 55, opened the cash register, she allegedly revealed a knife and said "I want this money."

Police said he handed over about $25 but not before tearing one $10 bill in half. The woman left the service station at 490 E. 17th St. on foot, police said.

Shortly after a radio bulletin was issued, Miss Rowan was taken into custody by Newport Beach police officers Mike Hietala and Al Fischer, Costa Mesa investigators said.

They recovered a knife and cash, including a $10 bill that had been torn in half.

Thousands Visit Elvis' Grave

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13 1/2-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at 8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Prisella, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Also awaiting the fans in the 90-degree heat was a row of air-conditioned souvenir shops and roving soda pop sellers.

HE'S A JARVIS MAN
Republican Schmitz

State Senate candidates John Schmitz and Ron Cordova began a series of campaign debates Tuesday with Republican Schmitz clinging ever so tightly to Howard Jarvis.

Simultaneously, Democrat Cordova was putting distance between himself and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Cordova said he will wait to see "which Jerry Brown" is running against Evelle Younger before deciding who he will vote for in the gubernatorial race.

Schmitz made it clear he is a Howard Jarvis man.

Six times during the 50-minute debate he mentioned that he carries the Jarvis endorsement in his battle with Cordova for the state Senate seat being vacated by Newport Beach Republican Dennis Carpenter.

And even though the Jarvis debate was settled by the voters June 6 when they approved Proposition 13, Schmitz insisted it is "the" issue in his November election confrontation with Cordova.

The Cordova-Schmitz verbal duel at the Airporter Inn in Newport Beach attracted more than 100 people who paid $8 a lunch to see and hear the two candidates.

As expected, the exchanges by the two men while answering questions put to them by a panel of newsmen were crisp and frequently pointed.

If Cordova was on the defensive when speaking of his opposition to Proposition 13, so was Schmitz as he defended his membership in the John Birch Society and his bolt from the Republican Party in 1972.

Schmitz called the society "a very fine patriotic organization."

And he split hairs when he said he was still a member of the Republican Party in 1972 when he accepted the American Independent Party's presidential nomination.

Schmitz said he didn't change party affiliation until after his AIP presidential nomination.

In a paraphrase of the well-known Schmitz' remark about the first Nixon trip to Communist China, Cordova quipped, "I'm informed by my Republican friends they took no exception to John Schmitz leaving the Republican Party, only to his return."

But Schmitz pointed to his endorsement "by all Republican groups" and county GOP leaders to prove he has "mended fences" with the party.

Cordova wouldn't let up on his attack on Schmitz' political travels, however.

The Democratic assemblyman said that, unlike his foe, his political epitaph will not read, "Have campaign, will travel."

Schmitz retaliated to the barbs by recounting his 2½-year record as a congressman and 5½ years as a state senator.

Included in the record cited by him was support of efforts by Jarvis to reform the state's property tax laws, efforts that date back to the mid-1960s.

Schmitz also said he is probably the only congressman ever sent to Washington who saved the taxpayers more money than he cost.

Shoppers Stock Up On Food

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While consumers jammed supermarket checkout lines to stock up on foodstuffs, stores from San Luis Obispo to San Diego braced for a possible walkout by 70,000 clerks that could be less than two days away.

"At this moment, we are very, very busy," said Marlene Crites, a worker at a Lucky market in Culver City. "I think people heard the news about the strike and they're out to stock up."

While stores in some cities reported business as usual, managers of others said buying was brisk.

"If the clerks vote to strike, we're expecting a lot more customers," said Jim Willard, night manager of an Albertson market in Bakersfield. "We've already stocked up" to meet the increased demand.

However, he said, his store, which normally operates 24 hours a day, will cut back to nine hours in the event of a strike.

Members of nine Southern California locals of the Retail Clerks Union voted Monday and Tuesday on whether to accept the stores' latest offer or authorize a strike. Union leaders recommended rejection of the management proposal, which called for a $1.40-an-hour wage hike over three years.

Results of the vote were to be known this afternoon, and a strike could begin anytime after 12:01 Saturday, 48 hours after the clerks' contract expires.

Bob Voight of the Food Employers Council said store officials were not optimistic about avoiding a walkout.

Nixons Welcome Jennie

By ANNE COOPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An elated David Eisenhower described the birth of his daughter Tuesday as "just a wonderful experience."

The new father, flanked by the baby's grandfather, former president Richard Nixon, met with reporters outside San Clemente General Hospital where his daughter, Jennie, had been born a few hours earlier.

Eisenhower said he and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, prepared for the arrival of the baby by attending childbirth classes at the hospital. He assisted in the delivery of the nine-pound, four-ounce girl born at 1:32 p.m. Tuesday.

The natural childbirth delivery left his wife "feeling fine, really fine," Eisenhower commented.

"I called the Nixons and my mother and my grandmother all within three minutes of the delivery," he said. "The Nixons came right to the hospital, and everybody is thrilled, just thrilled."

Nixon, who said he was pleased that his first grandchild is a girl, told reporters Tuesday evening after visiting his daughter that he looks forward to baby sitting.

The former president said he won't try to influence his granddaughter's career choice. "Jennie will do whatever she wants to do," he said.

"She is the first child born in the United States with relatives on both sides who were presidents," he said. "With that heritage, she may be attracted Church Lease Due In Industrial Park?

Church services may be conducted in Mission Viejo's industrial park as soon as October if Orange County planning commissioners approve a recommendation by Municipal Advisory Council members.

MAC members have recommended approval of a conditional use permit for the First Church of Christ Scientist to lease space at 23854 Via Fabricante.

The permit would allow the church to locate temporarily in an area not normally used by churches.

If county planning commissioners approve the permit, it would set a precedent — at least temporarily — for churches to locate in low rent, industrial space in Mission Viejo.

Church Board Chairman Robert Sheets told council members his congregation began looking for new space after school officials raised the rent on Cordillera Elementary School.

"We had been renting the space for $240 a month, then it was raised to $540 the first of the year," Sheets said. "After Proposition 13 passed they raised it to $988, but have since lowered it to $750 a month."

Sheets said the congregation had met at Cordillera School for five years.

"We intend to use this (the industrial park space) as a church, bible school and reading room," Sheets said. "We plan no social activities there and our services are Sunday and Wednesday evening."

Does MAC Govern All Mission Viejo?

Mission Viejo's Municipal Advisory Council, which has been making recommendations to county officials on community matters for four years, may not have the authority to represent a large portion of the community.

Some officials in the county's Environmental Management Agency believe the council was restricted to the borders of Mission Viejo as they existed in 1974.

"There seems to be a consensus floating around that everything east of Marguerite Parkway is not under the Municipal Advisory Council," Chairman Ted Keene told council members.

He said the county counsel's office is investigating the advisory agency's formation documents, including a Board of Supervisors resolution stating that the council's area of

Agencies Get Funds, But Budgets Cut

Fifty-seven Orange County social service agencies were guaranteed at least one more month of county revenue sharing funds Tuesday.

But on a 4-1 vote the County Board of Supervisors also trimmed the agencies' combined $96,365-a-month budgets by 10 percent in preparation for cuts that may be needed later because of Proposition 13.

Supervisors also said the one-month extension doesn't guarantee that the agencies will receive any revenue sharing dollars from the county for the remainder of 1978-79.

The agencies provide such services as meals for senior citizens, child care and aid to the needy.

Supervisor Philip Anthony cast the lone vote against a 10 percent budget cut for the agencies saying each program should be weighed separately.

However, Supervisor Ralph Clark said county departments have been told to operate this year with at least 10 percent less funds and the community social services agencies should follow the same rules.

Sharing Burden Asked

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Mission Viejo Company officials told Orange County Planning Commissioners Tuesday they don't want to be singled out by the county to build so-called affordable housing.

Company Vice President David Celestin said he opposes a county proposal that would require his firm to build up to 2,500 of Mission Viejo's remaining 10,000 units in the low and moderate income ranges.

"The Mission Viejo Company does support the concept of affordable housing," Celestin said.

He also said the company would "go along with" whatever housing policies supervisors adopt early next year for all of the unincorporated area.

"We don't feel it is appropriate at this time to place it exclusively on the Mission Viejo community," he explained.

Celestin's remarks came as commissioners reviewed the first comprehensive revision of the 10,324-acre Mission Viejo community plan.

The commission will hold at least one more hearing Sept. 11 before making a recommendation to county supervisors.

County planners had suggested that the community plan revision require that one-fourth of the remaining 10,000 homes to be built in Mission Viejo be within the price ranges of families earning 80 to 120 percent of the county's median income.

The county's median income now is $16,200.

Commissioners, however, suggested that planners abandon that provision and draft new wording that would make Mission Viejo subject to whatever housing policy is adopted later by supervisors.

Supervisors by January are to adopt a set of policies aimed at providing less-expensive housing.

The Mission Viejo Company's proposal also calls for adding 478 additional acres to the Sewage Plant Opposition Diminishes

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Saddleback Area Coordinating Council has softened its stand against a $15 million sewage treatment plant planned near Laguna Niguel Regional Park.

Caught between opposing views of two homeowner groups, executive board members voted, 8-1, to back away from a four-point objection filed with the county Board of Supervisors by the Laguna Niguel Community Association.

Only the Laguna Niguel representative to the executive board, a liaison agency between south county residents and county government, voted against the softer stand.

The board voted to object only to plant access through Crown Valley Parkway.

Laguna Niguel residents oppose the Aliso Water Management Agency plant on charges of inadequate environmental documentation, its proximity to two parks and several housing developments, trucking of sludge to the plant via Crown

Valley Parkway and the agency's alleged failure to notify the Laguna Niguel Community Association of plans to build the facility at the site.

The proposed plant is part of a $45 million wastewater system planned to serve a 55-square-mile area in southeast Orange County, including El Toro, South Laguna, Laguna Niguel and Laguna Hills, which includes Leisure World.

Approved by the county Planning Commission, the facility's construction was appealed to the county Board of Supervisors in a July 30 letter signed by Laguna Niguel planning chairman William Dennison.

But the Leisure World planning committee, representing Leisure World's 20,000 residents, filed a letter Aug. 7 urging the county Board of Supervisors to deny the Laguna Niguel association's appeal.

The Leisure Worlders said the facility is an "integral and vital element" in the water and sewage agency's treatment system.

The letter noted the project meets state and federal pollution control demands, will conserve energy and will cost an estimated $150,000 more for every month it is delayed.

Saddleback Area Coordinating Council President Bill Tellman, a Laguna Niguel resident and member of Laguna Niguel Community Association, warned that the coordinating council would look bad no matter what action it took Monday.

"A reverse decision would be knifing Laguna Niguel in the back, and the county will decide we can't make up our minds," he said.

Most board members indicated they believe the plant should and will be built in Laguna Niguel and that the coordinating council should then do what it can to make living conditions better in the surrounding area.

The coordinating council executive board was criticized earlier by its review committee for fully supporting the Laguna Niguel association's four-point stand.

DEBATE...

Cordova called such claims "war stories" and said he could tell some of his own. He did.

In substance, there was more agreement than disagreement between the two candidates.

Both, for example, said they will work to strengthen local government and against centralization in Sacramento.

Both candidates also decried expanded government spending and "growth of government."

Both said they support extending capital punishment to cover more crimes.

Disagreement came on the so-called Briggs initiative, prohibiting homosexuals from teaching in public schools.

Schmitz said he supports the measure. Cordova said he does not.

And while Cordova said he is not certain how he will vote in the gubernatorial race, Schmitz emphasized that he is an Evelle Younger supporter.

When it came time for them to ask each other one question, Cordova asked Schmitz what he had done as a state legislator to advance the cause of property tax reform.

Schmitz pointed to his support of Jarvis in the 1960's and a plaque he received in 1967 from United Taxpayers, the Jarvis support organization.

In turn, Schmitz asked Cordova to show his "conversion to conservatism to be other than political."

Cordova said his record as a deputy district attorney who never lost a felony case shows him to be something far less than liberal.

Besides, Cordova said, his record as a legislator, not political rhetoric, should serve as the example of his conservatism.

Meanwhile, David Bergland, who hopes to make the November ballot as the Libertarian Party candidate in the 36th, waited in a hallway.

Bergland said he was miffed because the debate sponsor, the Building Industry Association, didn't invite him.

Twins' Moms Show Photos

"Photo Brag Night" is the theme of Saddleback Mothers of Twins Club meeting this evening (8-16) at 7:30 in the home of Charlene Delgado, 941 Lansing Ave., Costa Mesa.

Publicity agent Jean Stewart said members can bring pictures of themselves and their children. Prizes are to be awarded to those who correctly identify and match the most photographs.

At 7 p.m. Thursday, fathers of twins are to join the mothers at a polynesian style progressive dinner at the home of Erica and Don Marrin in Mission Viejo.

JAMES EARL RAY WALKS TO THE WITNESS STAND
Convicted Slayer Denies Shooting Dr. King

'Didn't Kill King,' Ray Says at Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

Ray, in his first public accounting under oath of the events surrounding the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader, told the House assassinations committee: "My testimony is the same that I would have given to a Memphis trial court if I had had that opportunity."

The 50-year-old Ray, accompanied by a phalanx of U.S. marshals, was brought into the committee's chamber under severe security provisions. Spectators, including photographers, were cautioned they would be expelled if they so much as stood while Ray, wearing an ill-fitting sport coat and gray tie, entered the room.

After his attorney, long-time assassinations buff and writer Mark Lane, engaged acting chairman Richardson Preyer in battle over Ray's treatment by federal authorities, Ray launched into a long and rambling preliminary statement, his voice quick but halting.

Ray pleaded guilty in 1969 to King's killing but almost immediately recanted that confession after receiving a 99-year sentence in a Tennessee state prison.

"In respect to my guilty plea," he said, "it is not a difficult matter for an attorney to move his client to a guilty plea. I'm sure every member of this committee knows this."

Ray's attorney at the time of his sentencing was Percy Foreman, a nationally known trial lawyer.

Then Ray turned to what apparently will be the underlying theme of his claim to innocence: that he was a mere pawn in what he thought was a gun-running scheme by a mystery man named "Raoul" and may have been set up, moreover, by undercover operations of the FBI. The story is one which Ray has long aired via prison interviews.

to politics. But if she chooses a music career or something else, that will be fine too."

Jennie Eisenhower, as well as being Nixon's granddaughter, is the great-granddaughter of former president Dwight Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and his wife agreed to name their daughter Jennie because it sounds like Julie, but isn't.

"Julie didn't want to have another 'Julie,'" he said. "Besides 'Jennie' can't be shortened to a nickname."

Asked how he felt about having his first child, Eisenhower said, "It was time — we're 30."

Nixon said his daughter, who will be returning home with Jennie in three days, "is doing great."

"I was amazed," he said. "She looks as if she's been out for a swim in the cold Pacific. She's come through in fine style."

The baby, described as having dark hair and eyes, may look like a Nixon or may look like an Eisenhower, the former president said, adding that perhaps the two families bear a certain resemblance.

"All babies are beautiful," he said, "but I must say girl babies are special."

The new father arrived for his evening visit driving his own car to a rear entrance of the hospital, where a spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower is in a private room in the maternity ward.

While newspaper and television reporters quizzed Eisenhower at the rear door, the Nixons and their elder daughter, Tricia Cox, were driven to the hospital's main entrance by Secret Service agents.

Forty minutes later the former president emerged from his visit, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Cox, and paused at the hospital entrance to answer reporters' questions.

The former president looked tanned and vigorous and very happy.

"Being a grandfather may be even greater than being a father," he said. "Your experience with your own children is so immediate that perhaps you lack the necessary distance to evaluate and appreciate the relationship to the fullest extent."

Saying he has learned from his relationship with his two daughters "never to indicate what my choice is" when they have decisions to make, Nixon said allowing children to make up their own minds may be more important these days for girls than for boys.

"Julie is an independent thinker, and so is Tricia," he said of his daughters, adding that he expects his granddaughter to be independent as well.

"I'm not going to try to influence her," he said.

Then, appearing to have had an afterthought, he laughed and said, "But she is going to be an Angels fan."

Interviews Set For 3 Trustee Applicants

Three of the eight candidates for Saddleback Community College trustee Donna Berry's seat are scheduled for interviews today beginning at 4 p.m.

The deadline for application to replace Mrs. Berry, who has resigned to move to Northern California with her family, was Aug. 15. College officials said, however, they will still accept any applications bearing the Tuesday postmark.

The board also has scheduled interviews for Thursday beginning at 4 p.m. Trustees plan to question each candidate for an hour and the meetings are open to the public.

Mrs. Berry represented one of the largest areas of the Saddleback District.

The area includes Mission Viejo, half of El Toro, Trabuco Canyon areas, and parts of San Juan Capistrano and Laguna Niguel.

Candidates scheduled for interviews today are: Mildred Windolph of Laguna Niguel, a former teacher; Harold F. McGrath of Laguna Niguel, vice president of administration for JoJos and Naugles Inc.; and R. Richard Bruno of Trabuco Canyon, manager of sales administration for Hyland Laboratories.

Recall Try Fails

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An election aimed at recalling City Councilman Robert C. Farrell in his South Central Los Angeles District failed Tuesday by a nearly 2-1 margin.

Thousands Visit Elvis' Grave

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fair skies, long lines and a six-foot-tall flower-covered angel greeted the Elvis Presley faithful today as they came to pay homage to the king of rock 'n' roll on the first anniversary of his death.

Dick Grob, chief of security for the 13 1/2-acre estate, said more than 150 people spent the night on the Graceland grounds gathered in a huddle just behind its wrought iron gates.

Several thousand were on hand when the gates opened at planned community.

About 400 acres would be in the north part of the community along El Toro Road and Oso Creek. It would remain at agricultural land until later, planners said.

The remainder would be along the San Diego Freeway in the southern part of the community and would be designated for industrial development.

8:25 a.m. At least 12,000 were expected to file by the graves of Presley and his mother before the gates closed this afternoon. Scores of flower arrangements lined the winding quarter-mile driveway to Graceland Mansion and more were crowded into the graveyard garden to the south.

Among the arrangements was the angel — a Styrofoam form covered with white chrysanthemums, its hands and wings painted gold.

"A young woman from Ontario, Canada, Barbara McClean, came in and ordered the angel," said MaChrie Cox, an employee of Burke's Flowers, which for years handled flower arrangements for Presley's mother's grave.

Manager Aneta Watkins said she had been averaging 100 orders a week for such designs as guitars, broken hearts, crowns, crosses and the emblem TCB — Taking Care of Business, Presley's motto.

Mrs. Cox said she had also received an order for a red rose arrangement from Priscilla, Elvis' former wife, and their daughter, Lisa Marie.

Services In County To Get Aid

Orange County supervisors have managed to divide $12.4 million in state aid 60 ways to help special service districts cope with property tax loss because of Proposition 13.

As a result, county officials said today, the library, street sweeping, bug control and community service districts will get nearly 80 percent of the funds they lost because of the property tax limitation initiative.

Supervisors rejected a staff proposal that would have left 34 special districts without any of the so-called state bailout funds. Instead, they trimmed the county structural fire district's $10.7 million budget request down to $6.9 million, leaving out a proposed $3.8 million operating reserve.

In addition, the board agreed to accept no state aid for the county flood control or harbors, beaches and park districts, agencies that have sufficient reserves to carry them through the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich said he expects the Legislature to allocate an additional $125 million in aid to special districts statewide so supervisors can restore more funds later.

The ripple from Proposition 13 already may postpone construction of new libraries in San Clemente, San Juan Capistrano, Irvine and El Toro.

County officials said they also will review curtailing street sweeping, recreation programs and landscape maintenance in the unincorporated Saddleback Valley and other south county communities.

Glory Earned Dory Racers Also Got Blisters

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lifeguards from the Orange Coast covered themselves with glory, blisters and some other things during the annual Catalina to Long Beach dory race this past weekend.

THE GRUELING event pitted 11 teams of lifeguards against one another in a 28-mile rowing race from the Isthmus of Catalina to the Long Beach marina.

The winning performance was turned in by the team from the San Clemente City Lifeguard Department. Al Lavayen, 22, and Barney Voorhees, 31, crossed the finish line in five hours, 10 minutes, just eight minutes off the record set last year by Steve Helfer and Larry Moore of San Clemente.

Right behind them was the boat rowed by Tom Snyder and Scott Stuart from San Clemente State Beach.

STEVE WENGER AND Eric Bauer from Newport's Marine Department had the dubious distinction of finishing dead last.

"Yeah, they even finished behind Laguna Beach," snickered organizer Bob Schroeder, a Los Angeles County lifeguard. Laguna's team consisted of the oldest entrant, Bruce Beard, 47, and 17-year-old Ingrid Loos, the only female in the race. Beard and Loos finished a respectable eighth.

Schroeder didn't mention where he and his teammate finished in the race. Voorhees said the LA County team gave his San Clemente boat a real race for about half the 28-mile distance. "Then they just broke, got sick and started throwing up," Voorhees said.

AFTER THAT IT was a fairly easy pull to the finish across glassy seas protected from the sun most of the time by high overcast.

Voorhees, who's been with the San Clemente Department for four seasons, said the race was his first — and his last. "A lot of people do it just to say they've done it and a lot of people do it to win. I've done both, so I can quit now."

It's not that the Laguna Beach resident didn't enjoy the race, although he admits that he was a little uncomfortable about six miles from the finish when the sun came out.

THE REAL PROBLEM occurred after the race was over. Voorhees and Lavayen had a little hand trouble. "It wasn't that we had blisters. We had pretty good calluses built up."

"It's just that our hands were really tired. We could barely move them to open a bottle," he explained.

The bottles, of course, were congratulatory beers the thirsty rowers were anxious to consume. Not to worry about the poor lifeguards. Race fans helped them open the bottles and even obligingly poured the contents into their parched mouths.

Tax Note Sales Approved

The sale of $20 million worth of property tax anticipation notes has been unanimously approved by Orange County Supervisors.

County Tax Collector-Treasurer Robert Citron reported that Bank of America offered the low bid of 4.71 percent for the notes.

The county borrows funds each year to carry government activities through the so-called dry period before property tax payments are received in the fall.

Citron compared the 4.71 percent bid to the bid of 4.95 percent received by San Diego County and 4.98 percent by Los Angeles County.

He attributed changing market conditions and the county's strong AAA credit rating from Moody's Investors Service for the lower interest rate.

"This is evidenced by the fact that last year Orange County government had the lowest tax rate of any county, not only in this state but for any large urban area, and yet was able to adequately provide all the services needed," he said.

Citron noted county government's 1977-78 tax rate was $1.33 per $100 assessed valuation compared to Los Angeles County's $4.50 tax rate.

He said interest on the $20 million in notes will cost $775,807.

But the funds will be reinvested for short terms at higher-yielding rates, he explained, so the county's interest charge and other expenses will be paid without cost to taxpayers.

Other bids received for the county notes were from Wells Fargo Bank, at 4.72 percent; Payne Weber, 4.745 percent; Security Pacific Bank, 4.758 percent and Chemical Bank, 4.96 percent.

Viejo Terminal Wins Support Of Supervisors

The Mission Viejo Company's proposal for a $1.4 million combination bus terminal and train depot won the unanimous endorsement of Orange County supervisors Tuesday.

The board agreed to seek $850,000 in state funds to build the terminal adjacent to the railroad tracks and Interstate 5 near Cabot Road in Mission Viejo.

Orange County Transit District (OCTD) directors last week voted to ask for $750,000 in state funds for a bus terminal about three miles up the freeway at Laguna Hills Mall. An OCTD spokesman said there would be some overlapping of service area between the two terminals. However, both are shown on OCTD plans and they could be built to complement one another, the spokesman said.

State officials have $8.7 million available to help finance transportation centers throughout the state. Allocations aren't expected before 1980.

OCTD officials said applications for terminals also have been prepared by the cities of San Juan Capistrano, Irvine, Santa Ana and Anaheim.

Beer Theft Told By Laguna Store

Owners of Cove Liquor in Laguna Beach told police Tuesday someone sneaked past a clerk during working hours last week and stole 20 cases of beer and a bottle of scotch.

Police said the foreign beer and the liquor was stolen from a storage room at the rear of the store, located at 1045 North Coast Highway last Thursday.

Disabled Students' Needs to Be Studied

Trustees from six West Orange County school districts have scheduled a joint meeting tonight in Fountain Valley to discuss special education programs for handicapped students.

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the Fountain Valley High School cafeteria, 17816 Bushard St.

Local school officials believe the season will mark the first time all 30 west county school board members have held a joint meeting.

Federal and state mandates require Huntington Beach Union High School District officials to cooperate with the five west county school boards in forming handicapped student programs by 1980.

High school district trustees plan to meet tonight with school board members from Fountain Valley, Ocean View, Huntington Beach City, Seal Beach and Westminster elementary school districts.

Officials from the six school districts formed a West Orange County Special Education Consortium last year to meet the federal and state mandates.

The laws require that the regional consortium provide equal education for all area students who have physical or mental disabilities.

YOU CAN ALMOST FEEL THE SPRAY OF THE OCEAN IN VIVIAN CALDWELL'S PAINTING
'They Come in Here to Look at the Waves, and That's a Good Feeling'

Artist Translates Ocean to Canvas

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"I must go down to the sea again,
For the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call
That may not be denied."

"Sea Fever" by John Masefield

Her interpretations of translucent waves and turbulent waters draw surfers into Vivian Caldwell's Laguna Beach gallery.

The kids set down their towels and surfboards and gaze at the power in her oil-based waves, crashing onto rocks or welling up into peaks.

"They aren't thinking about money, or covering their living room walls, or wondering if the painting matches a particular sofa," the nine-year Art-A-Fair exhibitor says.

"They come in here to look at the waves, and that's a good feeling."

The people who do pay for between $400 and $4,200 for her unique style of art do so because they too are captured by the power she transplants onto canvas.

And for a woman who is terrified of the ocean, that's quite a trick.

The Phoenix import says she has nearly drowned twice, and her nearest encounter to the ocean these days is knee-deep with a large lens camera.

"Don't let any artist tell you it's wrong to take pictures of your subject," the 41-year-old woman advises. "God never makes the right composition anyway," she laughs.

Vivian takes hundreds of still photos back to her Laguna Beach gallery where she displays them on a screen and then paints what she sees.

She used to paint on location, in various areas in the Art Colony, "but the wind would come up and knock my easel face down in the sand."

Or beachwalkers would come up and watch her work, something with which she cannot contend.

"I have to be alone. Even my family knows better than to bother me when I'm working," she says. The Lake Forest resident shares a studio in Laguna Beach with three other artists.

She also hates to have people call her work seascapes.

"Artists have painted the sea for years, but they use it as a vehicle for man and boat. Or they're painting foam against rocks, or for atmosphere."

"But nobody paints the sea as moving, liquid, translucent water."

That's what Vivian Caldwell captures. She calls her work sea portraits.

"I'm doing a small portion of the water, rather than a large expanse of ocean."

The award-winning artist captures movement in her waves.

And how does she transform that wave action onto the canvas?

"You're not going to believe this but I put on some soft rock and dance while I paint," she laughs.

"The faster the song, the more movement in the water."

Festival-goers are immediately struck by the vivid colors and action in her exhibit, located in the second half of the Art-A-Fair grounds out Laguna Canyon Road.

"I don't know anybody who isn't moved in one way or the other by the sea," she says. "It makes some people restless, and is a calming factor to others."

"And," she adds, "the ocean makes some people sick to their stomachs."

"Maybe, I'm a masochist to paint something that I fear so much," the former model and singer says.

But that's a feeling, too, and Vivian Caldwell knows how to use emotion to artistic advantage.

OCEANSIDE (AP) — A ditch digger and a fireman were burned Tuesday when natural gas from a broken pipeline in the middle of Oceanside Boulevard was apparently ignited by a spark from a trenching machine, police say.

Saddleback FM Radio Plan OK'd

Saddleback Community College trustees Monday night allocated $150,000 from a tight budget so the college's long-planned 3,000 watt FM radio station can become a reality.

All technical details in preparation for the larger student-operated station KSBR are now complete. Superintendent Robert A. Lombardi told trustees. The present station is only 10 watts.

The board must now allocate the money to show the federal government that trustees want the bigger radio station located at the college, Lombardi said, or pass by the chance forever.

Part of the allocation will match part of a $129,000 Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) grant now pending. Warren Deacon, KSBR's program manager, said.

The HEW grant is the final step of a long, arduous procedure college officials have gone through to win the new broadcasting frequency from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Deacon said he expects HEW to make the grant award announcement sometime in mid-September.

If HEW comes through for Saddleback, Deacon said, construction of a 1,200 feet transmitter on O'Neill Ranch near Ortega Highway will begin immediately.

KSBR's operators hope to be on the air by Dec. 1.

Programming will stress news and public affairs coverage. Deacon said. Music programs will feature jazz and soft rock, tailored principally for listeners between ages 25 and 45.

The station will broadcast 19 hours, seven days a week. The broadcast signal will reach about 500,000 people from Tustin to San Clemente.

Coroner's Report

Transient's Death Due to Aspirin

A San Diego County transient whose body was found on the San Diego Freeway in Mission Viejo July 6 died as the result of ingested acetaminophen, an aspirin substitute.

County sheriff's investigators said Tuesday the cause of death was determined by a coroner's pathologist following toxicological and microscopic tissue studies.

An investigator said his department still does not know whether the large dose of non-restricted drug was voluntary or forced, so the death classification is still listed as "undetermined."

Acetaminophen attacks the liver when taken in large amounts, he said.

Keith Arthur Klingbeil, 23, was found by motorists in the fast, northbound lanes of the San Diego Freeway near La Paz Road.

He wore no shirt and a nipple had been burned from his chest, apparently with a cigarette lighter. Klingbeil apparently had been dumped from a moving vehicle and was pronounced dead on arrival at a Mission Viejo Hospital.

He was the second victim found on public roads in the Saddleback Valley area this year.

A nude body later identified as Camp Pendleton Marine Richard Aloen Keith, 20, was found early June 19 along a secluded section of Moulton Parkway in Laguna Hills.

Keith died of suffocation, a coroner's report stated. No leads have been developed in that case, either, an investigator said.

The deaths are not believed to be related, he added.

Man Attacks Three Nurses

LA MESA (AP) — The husband of a woman patient attacked three nurses at Grossmont Hospital with his feet during a visit, authorities say.

The trio included Florence Biesigl, who was hospitalized with a black eye, bloody nose and cheek injury.

Edwin F. Warms, 45, was booked in San Diego County jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

DIAMONDS AND BLACKS and the African economy

Black Africa now supplies more than half of the world's diamonds. Zaire, alone, is the source of 35 percent of the global supply, producing 17 million metric carats annually. That's more than twice the output of South Africa, which has long been considered the world leader. Botswana produces about 2.5 million carats annually, followed by Ghana with 2.2 million carats; Namibia, 1.9 million, and Sierra Leone with 0.75 million. Other producers are Tanzania, Liberia, Angola, the Ivory Coast and the Central African Republic. Before civil war wracked Angola, that country produced 2 million carats yearly, and is expected to return to a production level near that amount, now that conditions are again more settled there. The Central African Selling Organization, based in South Africa, handles most Black African diamond sales, despite the unfriendliness between that apartheid country and the rest of Africa. Diamonds obviously play a major role in the emergence of Black Africa. For example, 25 percent of the Central African Republic's foreign exchange earnings come from diamonds.

Hold That Freeway

NOW WE KNOW DEPT.—Some years back, the state of California decided to take this little country road through Costa Mesa and turn it into a freeway. It was a vision into the future of vast magnitude.

When the state highway brass decided to do that, there was a place alongside the road known as the Santa Ana Army Air Base. Nearby, the Army was flying P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighters out of what is now Orange County Airport.

There were a few fruit stands along the old rural road. People drove by slowly, trying to conserve the one set of tires they'd been allocated by the OPA. They were going easy on the 18-cent-per-gallon gasoline too, lest they run out of "A" ration coupons.

MEANWHILE ACROSS THE seas, a guy named Adolf Hitler was ranting around and trying to figure out how to stall off General Dwight D. Eisenhower from invading Fortress Europe with his Allied armies.

Back here in our home region, however, the state highway people were looking ahead to when World War II would be over and they could start building some superhighways.

One of the roads they selected was Route 55, that rural lane that is a major feeder from inland reaches to the shoreline at Newport Beach. Over the years, it has variously been known as Newport Boulevard, Newport Freeway, Route 55 and Costa Mesa Freeway.

OVER THE YEARS, there have been a lot of changes alongside that road. The Army Air Base went away and the land has been transformed into Orange Coast College, Southern California College (the Army chapel still stands) and the county fairgrounds. The P-38 fighters vanished and Air Cal now flies more peaceful missions out of the aerodrome to San Francisco.

Traffic has increased. Commerce has increased. Smog has leaped to terrifying levels. But the state highway brass, in their infinite wisdom, are still studying the road and trying to figure out what to do with it.

The Orange County Transportation Commission got into the act only this week, asking for further studies.

EMERGING FROM THESE deliberations, Bruce Matern, Costa Mesa's traffic engineer, attempted to analyze for the City Council what was happening to the future fate of the old rural road that had been declared a freeway route almost four decades ago.

"I've got reason to believe we've got a delaying action going," he suggested.

By golly, that's it. A delaying action. Now we know. If Hitler had been that good at delaying Eisenhower, we might still be fighting World War II.

Blackout, Looting

Memphis Reels From Strikes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A massive power failure blamed by the utility on sabotage blacked out Memphis early today, adding to the woes of a city already reeling from walkouts by police and firemen. Labor leaders threatened a general strike unless a settlement comes soon.

Scattered looting was reported across town before power was restored, and a baby had to be delivered by flashlight at one hospital before emergency power could be connected.

THE BLACKOUT also left some areas without water pressure because electric-powered pumps were out. Memphis International Airport had to shift to standby power.

County police said between 15 and 20 adults were arrested on minor charges stemming from the looting, which was concentrated at northside liquor and convenience shops. They said five juveniles were in custody on charges of burglary or attempted burglary. National Guard troops, already on duty for the strikes, were dispatched to the county jail to beef up security.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler had been able to maintain calm the previous nights by imposing a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Some pickets have been arrested each night when they refused to disband by the 8 p.m. deadline.

THE BLACKOUT came on the first anniversary of singer Elvis Presley's death. Thousands of his fans had come to this city of 650,000 to pay tribute at his grave at Graceland Mansion, but this was far fewer than had been expected before the strikes.

On Tuesday, Chandler modified his no-negotiations stance and offered to place the strikers' wage demands on a November ballot, giving voters a chance to pay for the settlement with a sales tax increase. The strikers rejected the idea and called for binding arbitration.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman said at a pre-dawn news conference that the blackout was "probably due to sabotage." The FBI was assisting investigators of the sabotage at the Memphis Light Gas & Water Division's Cordova substation.

UTILITY SPOKESWOMAN Paula Payne said someone entered the big plant and threw a series of switches—a complex procedure requiring knowledge of the system—which cut off a main electrical link with the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA's Allen Steam Plant on Presidents Island in the Mississippi River could not carry power demands alone and automatically shut down.

Troops had been on duty at the Cordova plant Monday but were replaced by private guards.

It took about 2½ hours to restore power to all of Shelby County.

Chapman said a non-striker was being questioned but was not considered a suspect. He said the man requested a lawyer.

THE BLACKOUT came at 12:32 a.m., about 12 hours after Gov. Ray Blanton stepped into the dispute, demanding payment for National Guard services back to 1968 and calling for a quick settlement.

Chandler, asked about the governor's remarks this morning on ABC television, said they suggested an attempt at "blackmail."

More than 1,000 National Guardsmen have been patrolling the city with about 100 non-striking police officers and 75 sheriff's deputies, while 200 Fire Department officials and non-striking firemen have kept 23 of the city's 48 fire stations open.

Senate OKs Carter Plan

WASHINGTON—The Senate today approved President Carter's plan to expand college grants and loans, making them available for the first time to middle-income students.

The 68-28 vote followed approval Tuesday night of a rival $500-per-student tuition tax credit that Carter opposes.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Rex Granum said the president's position "has not changed. He is strongly opposed to such."

But Granum would not say whether Carter would veto the bill.

The Carter program would provide aid to an additional 1.4 million students, with about 64 percent of the benefits going to students from families with incomes of $15,000 to $25,000 a year.

POLICE PROTECTION—Memphis police Lt. Louise Dunavent is escorted to her car by striking policemen Jesse Noe, left, and Mack Hughes Tuesday night, after she attempted to arrest the two for violation of a citywide curfew. She was unable to arrest the sergeants she has worked with for 17 years and broke down crying. They were arrested by other officers later.

ERA Extension May Get Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said today he isn't certain the Senate will debate a proposed 39-month extension of the Equal Rights Amendment this year.

The House voted 233-189 Tuesday to extend the ERA ratification time limit to June 30, 1982 from its current deadline of March 22, 1979. However, the measure is threatened with a filibuster in the Senate.

ASKED ABOUT PROSPECTS for action on the extension in the Senate, Byrd said, "I don't know. As of now I just can't say."

The West Virginia Democrat said he hoped the Senate would have time to debate the measure, but noted, "We have so many things to get done in so short a time as Congress tries to adjourn for the year in October."

Supporters of the extension hope the momentum of an unexpectedly large House victory will hold up when the bill reaches the Senate.

REP. ELIZABETH HOLTZMAN, D-N.Y., principal sponsor of the extension, said the 44-vote margin was "larger than any of us anticipated."

"The size of the House vote will give tremendous momentum to the effort in the Senate," said Ms. Holtzman, who is scheduled to meet with pro-extension senators on Thursday.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader of the pro-extension forces, said, "We thought we were going to win by 25 or 30 votes."

Nixon No Longer Needs Public Fund

DETROIT (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon is in the money—or at least he has enough of it to feel that he no longer needs money from the public for legal help.

Lloyd Johnson, who succeeded Rabbi Baruch Korff as trustee of the "Nixon Trust Fund" last year, says new income that Nixon has received has made the fund unnecessary.

Tuesday's editions of the Detroit News quoted Johnson as saying Nixon had told him recently that his finances are much improved since he collected money for being interviewed by David Frost and began receiving royalties on his new book.

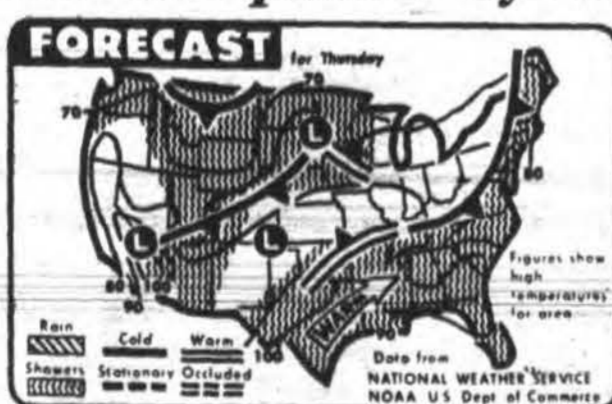

Johnson, an Ann Arbor nursing home owner, estimated that Nixon once owed more than $750,000 to lawyers defending his claim against public release of the tapes and other evidence used to prosecute the Watergate trials and support the House impeachment proceedings.

California

Pleasant, sunny afternoons with cooler mornings and evenings is the word from the National Weather Service for Southern Californians through Thursday.

Tuesday's high was 82. Thursday's high will be in the upper 70s, the Weather Service said.

Mountain and desert regions will also be sunny and cooler Thursday. Mountain resort highs will be in the mid-70s with lows ranging from 46 to 56.

Northern desert highs will be 82 to 92 and southern desert highs will be 86 to 105, the Weather Service said. San Diego County will also be slightly cooler with coastal highs in the mid-70s and inland valley highs ranging from 82 to 90.

Coastal Weather

Low cloudiness night and morning hours, otherwise sunny through Thursday.

Light variable winds night and morning hours. Highs Thursday in the 70s at beaches to 80s inland.

U.S. Summary

A cold front moved across the middle of the nation during the night, producing intense thunderstorms from the Great Lakes region into Texas.

A tornado late Tuesday touched down 10 miles southwest of Shelby in western Michigan, destroying four homes and causing some injuries.

Another twister destroyed a barn near Crystal Lake in northeastern Illinois. Other twisters were reported southwest of Oshkosh, Wis., near Rapid City, Mich., and near Rais, Texas.

Strong thunderstorms continued to move across the Great Lakes region early today.

Elsewhere, a few thunderstorms over parts of Florida dissipated during the night and showers spread from Washington and Oregon into Idaho and western Montana.

Teacher Measure

Gays Launch Protest Move

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of gay rights, including some prominent liberal politicians, have opened the campaign against an anti-homosexual teacher measure on the November ballot by denouncing it as a threat to civil rights.

The initiative, Proposition 6 sponsored by Sen. John Briggs, R-Fullerton, is aimed at firing homosexual teachers, though opponents say it goes much further.

ATTACKS ON HOMOSEXUAL TEACHERS "could be extended to other minorities, whether sexual orientation or political views," and threaten to revive the McCarthy era of the 1950s, Assemblyman Majority Leader Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, said at a rally Tuesday.

"This heinous and outrageous initiative threatens the very structure of due process," Berman told about 200 persons outside the Capitol. He said he would tell his colleagues that the campaign is "worth taking a little bit of risk on."

Also speaking at the rally were gay activist Frank Vel, who is walking the length of California to drum up support for the campaign; Assemblyman Art Agnos, D-San Francisco, Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, and Sacramento Mayor Phil Isenberg.

GOV. EDMUND BROWN JR. OPPOSES the initiative but was not present.

It was the first Capitol demonstration related to Proposition 6, which is likely to be one of the most emotional issues on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Under the measure, school boards could fire, or refuse to hire, any teachers, administrators or counselors for publicly engaging in or advocating homosexual conduct.

BRIGGS SAYS THE MEASURE WILL let schools dismiss teachers who would be poor role models. Opponents say that current laws requiring dismissal for sexual misconduct with children are adequate. They also say the initiative could be applied to defenders of gay rights.

Quake Area State Aid Granted

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has declared a state of emergency in Santa Barbara County, where damage estimates from last weekend's earthquake have climbed to more than $12 million.

Brown, acting on a request for state aid from the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday that "conditions of extreme peril" existed in the area. The county declared a local disaster area Monday.

Spending Limit

Economy Snagged

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative drive to put a government spending limit on the November ballot could depend on a vote tonight in the state Senate.

The fate of the limit, a constitutional amendment by Sen. John Garamendi, D-Mokelumne Hill, was left hanging Tuesday when a conference committee abruptly adjourned without finishing work on the measure.

That meant the amendment failed to meet a Tuesday midnight deadline for the November ballot. The deadline can be extended, but only if the Senate approves a bill that it rejected Monday.

BEFORE ADJOURNING, the Democratic-dominated, two-house committee tentatively approved a limit formula similar to one proposed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan and rejected by voters in 1973.

The Reagan limit was substituted for a more liberal formula tentatively adopted Monday night but then abandoned by the committee Tuesday.

The bill extending the ballot deadline, SB 2243 by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, gives lawmakers until Friday to put constitutional amendments before voters in November.

IT FELL EIGHT VOTES short of passage Monday, but Sieroty was given permission to bring it up again. That could happen tonight, when the Senate is scheduled to meet.

Riding on the bill is the fate of a number of constitutional amendments, including one by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy abolishing homeowner property taxes and boosting renter income tax credits. If Sieroty's bill fails to pass, the amendments couldn't go on the ballot until June 1980.

Garamendi blamed the delay in action on his measure on an attempt by McCarthy, D-San Francisco, to put more pressure on the Senate to extend the deadline.

GARAMENDI ADJOURNED the committee Tuesday afternoon after Assembly Democratic conferees said they could not take a final vote on the amendment until they met with their colleagues.

Approval by the committee would send the amendment to both houses for final action.

In a bizarre move before Tuesday's adjournment, a version of the Reagan limit was proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown, a liberal San Francisco Democrat who originally opposed the Reagan proposal.

IT WOULD LIMIT STATE and local spending to a percentage of state personal income. That figure, currently just over 8 percent, would drop by one-tenth of 1 percent each year until it reached 7 percent.

The Legislature then could allow the limit to remain at that level.

According to figures from the legislative analyst, state expenditures could grow to $21.503 billion in 1982-83 under the limit. That's $951 million less than the state is projected to spend.

'Rank Speculation'

Government Disputes Hearst Conflict Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Calling her allegations "rank speculation," the federal government is disputing Patricia Hearst's assertion that her former lawyer failed to provide adequate counsel at her 1976 bank robbery trial because he contracted to write a book about the case.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ed Davis Jr. made the statement in a response filed to Miss Hearst's earlier request to examine F. Lee Bailey's deal with the G.P. Putnam Co., a New York publishing house.

In that request, Miss Hearst, 24, charged that Bailey's $225,000 contract for a book about her actions during her captivity by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army constituted grounds to set aside or reduce her seven-year prison sentence.

STATE

Spill Examined

IMPERIAL BEACH (AP) — Coast Guard officials planned today to conduct a surface examination of a half-mile wide oil spill that washed ashore near the city pier.

Lt. Douglas Martin said a Coast Guard helicopter crew checked the spill after it washed ashore around dusk Tuesday and that the oil formed a circle extending about a quarter of a mile off the shore.

4,500 Acres Charred

TWENTYNINE PALMS (AP) — More than 500 firefighters trying to contain a massive brush fire in the Joshua Tree National Monument hoped for abatement today of the erratic desert winds that propelled flames through twisting canyons.

By Tuesday evening the fire had swept through some 4,500 acres in the park 20 miles northeast of Palm Springs and was spreading rapidly, the state forestry department reported. The blaze remained 60 percent contained, as it had been for a day.

Rape Bill Backed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A person who commits rape while carrying out any unrelated felony could get an extra three years in prison, under a bill on the Senate floor.

The bill, AB 2802 by Assemblyman Eugene Gualco, D-Sacramento, was approved Tuesday on a 5-1 vote of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Coin Proposal Killed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A legislative committee has killed a black legislator's proposal to urge Californians not to buy gold South African Kruggerand coins.

The measure, ACR 99 by Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles, failed Tuesday to get past the Senate Rules Committee, despite earlier passage by the Assembly with little dissent.

Dental Hints

By Duane D. Christensen, D.D.S.

Most people worry more about drilling and ways to lose weight, to stay thin or become more attractive, than they worry about dental needs. If you get right down to it, it's not so scary. If you want to put it that way — what could be less attractive (less romantic) than a person who cannot smile... or one who does smile displaying teeth badly in need of dental care? Thin or heavy, a person like this turns off people around him/her!

It is estimated that 98% of all Americans need some form of professional dental care, but only about 45% seek and ultimately complete their dental needs. Why? Two of the most often mentioned are fear: fear of the pain they may experience and fear that when the dental care is completed, the dentist will present them with a sky-high bill without forewarning, detail or explanation.

For example, a large number of should-be patients fear most the injection of a local anesthetic into the gums, for extraction or extensive drilling procedures. Granted, injections anywhere in the body cannot be considered pleasant experiences, but consider how dental care was given in the early days and you may come to appreciate more fully the ease of living in today's world of progress.

Before the advent of effective dental anesthetics, drilling was usually done with little effort expended by the dentist to lessen the pain. Extractions were accomplished with instruments that would seem, by today's standards, to resemble equipment from a Dark Ages torture chamber. One of these was called "the turnkey."

Using this cumbersome device, and a twisting-turning process, a tooth was removed by exerting great power-of-pull until there was no alternative but to come out. If the patient was lucky, he may have been given some kind of alcoholic beverage in sufficient amount to take the edge off the pain, but all too often the work was done cold turkey! So, before putting off dental care you need, arm yourself with knowledge — "read-up" on it — and it will help you appreciate the relatively painless professional care of today.

As to fear of a surprisingly high bill, any dentist is happy to give you cost estimates before your work begins. In fact, he would rather. He will want you to thoroughly understand your needs, and the reasons, before you ever start. He'll also want to explain the danger-risks of putting off work that may be classified as "urgent" in your case.

Player Selection Should Be Broad

Lansing Eberling, for nine years president of the board of directors of the Irvine Ranch Water District, said upon his resignation from the board July 31, it is time for some new players.

Indeed it is. Though Eberling perhaps was as hard-working and conscientious a director as the people might find, neither he nor four others of the recently expanded seven-member board was chosen by the people. They were appointed by a single company.

The IRWD has since its inception been under the control of the primary landowner, the Irvine Company. That was not improper when that part of the county was open farmland and ranchland.

But the rapid development of the city of Irvine did not include concomitant release of power from the landowner to the increasing numbers of people whose lives are affected by district decisions.

With Eberling's resignation, the board has the chance now to appoint in his place the next-highest vote-getter in last November's election of the board's two public members.

By so doing the board not only would demonstrate good faith with the people it serves, but might lessen the pressure of a city lawsuit which seeks to force public control of the IRWD.

Concern Is Genuine

Irvine Councilman Arthur Anthony has been the object of some unfair criticism for his questioning of a nonprofit cultural organization's proposal to convert a warehouse into a fine arts rehearsal hall.

Irvine Cultural Center Inc. certainly has in mind the best interests of its potential dance, music, drama and gymnastics students in seeking a hall large enough to suit their specific needs.

But the group hasn't taken into account all of their interests. That's what Anthony apparently is attempting to do.

The warehouse is located near enough to Orange County Airport to lie within a high-noise zone.

The zone already has been judged too noisy, under city ordinance, for instructional activities.

Anthony's appeal of the planning commission approval simply will permit the City Council to do what the commission did not: Determine whether the warehouse can effectively screen out the noise from the students, at least to acceptable levels.

The arts group should have applied for its building sooner. That way the appeals process (of which any citizen may avail himself) would not have come so near the program's proposed September start.

At any rate, Anthony shouldn't be made the heavy for his genuine concern over the students' comfort.

A Cheer for the CofC

A bright, new publication should give Saddleback Valley residents a handy resource for reaching neighbors and citizen services in the area.

The Saddleback Valley Chamber of Commerce-sponsored community directory includes maps, lists of schools, zip code information and other important information for local residents.

The directory is the first such publication backed by the chamber and is the first booklet to include phone listings for all of the area in one directory.

Previously directories were published for separate community areas such as El Toro, Lake Forest and Mission Viejo.

In addition to the convenience of looking at one directory as opposed to fumbling through two or three, the chamber-sponsored booklet promotes a community spirit.

That's something usually lacking in a gathering of individual communities in an unincorporated county area.

Ford's Book Takes on Reagan

WASHINGTON — Intimates of Gerald Ford, fearful that publication of his memoirs early next year will crack Republican harmony wide open, are quietly trying to soften the former president's attack against Ronald Reagan.

No one directly connected with the book (now about half finished) will discuss the matter with outsiders. But insiders, in talks with Ford and his entourage, have learned Ford is using his book to blame his defeat by Jimmy Carter squarely on Reagan's challenge.

Publication of the book is scheduled for next May, just as presidential campaigns are getting under way. Reagan is a certain candidate, Ford a possible one. Ford's intention to use his book to "prove the case" that Reagan's challenge against an incumbent Republican president elected a Democrat will release political hobgoblins.

Cool heads inside the Republican party are trying to dissuade Ford. But considering what one intimate calls Ford's "hatred" for Reagan, success is questionable.

RAFSHOON RISES — The unmistakable rise of Gerald Rafshoon within the White House is coming not at the expense of his supposed rival, press secretary Jody Powell, but rather domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat.

The reason: Rafshoon, the advertising executive in charge of rehabilitating President

Carter's image, is now preparing the briefing papers for Carter interviews and other performances. That job previously had been done by Eizenstat.

The obvious change is one of style. Rafshoon insists on terse, easily handled formulae for the president on inflation, energy, tax reform/reduction and other questions. In contrast, Eizenstat used to give him long, detailed memoranda.

The change could become one of substance. Eizenstat's programmatic liberalism has been a major cause of the chain of "comprehensive" proposals streaming from the White House. The Rafshoon briefings are greatly diminishing this doctrinal tone.

A footnote: Rumors of a Rafshoon-Powell power clash are premature at the least, but there was one dispute between them on Mr. Carter's European tour. Powell urged a softer tone than Rafshoon in presidential reaction to the conviction of Soviet dissident Anatoly Shecharansky. The president took Powell's advice.

MANSFIELD WARNS — Ambassador Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader now representing the U.S. in Tokyo, is delivering somber warnings to visiting Carter administration officials about Japan's growing fear of the president's Far East policies.

For the first time, Mansfield says, Japanese politicians and military leaders are privately complaining about the relative decline of U.S. naval strength compared to the Soviet Union. Despite Mansfield's assurances to the Japanese government, concern is rising about the steadfastness and reliability of Mr. Carter's policies.

Such concerns have been publicly expressed by many Americans — including Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, forced into retirement because he questioned U.S. troop withdrawals from South Korea. But Mansfield, a leading Vietnam war dove, did not join the alarm-poiners until the Japanese themselves began conveying their fears to him.

Teachers: How Indispensable Are They?

To the Editor:

Your editorial of Aug. 8 which reports that Orange County teachers rallied to "complain with sour and disappointed words" about their plight in post-Jarvis California ends with the admonition "...for now at least, teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to the system."

What sort of free society can be sustained where teachers are not indispensable? What sort of future awaits us all if teachers are merely considered public functionaries no more important than building inspectors or CalTrans truck drivers?

The editorial drags out the old arguments about salaries, benefits and summer vacations... on a level that is the envy of many who pay taxes supporting those lifestyle improvements. Quite apart from the years of university training and teaching experience required to reach the top of any salary scale in the county, salary and benefits for teachers are modest compared to those performing such crucial tasks in the society as managing a fast food outlet or delivering Sparklets Water. Further, long summer vacations are seldom if ever realized by teachers with families to support.

Bloated salaries of some administrators, great numbers of non-teaching positions, and expensive programs of doubtful value mandated by Sacramento and Washington all contribute heavily to the cost of education in this state. It is most disappointing that the Daily Pilot makes no clear distinctions in its statement.

Virtually all observers concede that it is the classroom where education takes place, with the teacher in the vital role. If education is of only nominal importance to the public of California, one wonders who will write the editorials of the next century, and who will read them.

Instead of saying "the public no longer believes teachers are indispensable," the editorial might better have said "some of the public" feels that way.

—Editor

No. 1 Priority

To the Editor:

I surely hope that the teachers of my three children will have read your editorial of Aug. 8 or, if they did, will totally ignore its demoralizing tone.

Perhaps for those people who do not have children in school, teachers have become dispensable. But for those of us with school age children, the only real indispensable aspects in a school system are children and teachers. How can you have education without teachers?

My three children have attended schools in this area for 14 years from kindergarten through high school. All three have learned to read, write and compute here in the valley. We have had some smooth times and we have had some rough times but they have learned, thanks to many a patient teacher.

I want the teachers of my children to know that there are parents who do not share the views of some local reporters or editors. I want these teachers to know that there are parents who want lower taxes but who want the cuts made in the proper priorities. But most of all, I want them to know that, as a parent, teachers are a number one priority because my kids are my number one priority.

GLORY NARDOZZA

"Difficult..."

To the Editor:

I find it difficult to believe that a newspaper in this area where the value of education is obvious in the prosperity surrounding us would make the statement your August 8 editorial makes "...teachers had better be prepared to accept the notion that the public no longer considers them indispensable to our system."

Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave at such a stupid statement. Our school system was founded on the notion that, as he said, "Only popular education can safeguard democracy." To expand on this idea, he said, "I look to the diffusion of light and education as the resource most to be relied on for ameliorating the condition, promoting the virtue, and advancing the happiness of man."

And where were our newspapermen inculcated with his idea that "A free press is the only safeguard of public liberty" if not in the schools.

Teachers are indispensable in a democracy, and a newspaper should be the last place to find a statement to the contrary. I, as an individual teacher, may be dispensable, but teachers as a whole certainly are not.

BETTY J. ORBACH

"Paternalistic"

To the Editor:

I must respond to your editorial of Aug. 8, "How Many Friends Do Teachers Have?" to point out that its apparent objectivity is really masking an attack on teachers and public employees in general. Your phraseology is condescending and ambiguous, and your argument clouds understanding the general public sentiment behind Prop. 13.

As an angry taxpayer myself, and as a subscriber to your newspaper, I want to reprove you in your failure in not directing attention to some of the areas of government spending where true waste and criminal misuse of tax money is taking place. You have in recent months exposed some of this prodigality in the county supervisor's office. Why stop there? Other local government operations will show equal and worse wrongs. Yes, including the administration of some of our local school districts.

But shame! To admonish teachers and public employees for their concern over their marginal material rewards by pulling on the bridle of public opinion in the way you do is deplorable. True, what appears on budget totals as salaries for government employees seems to be a lot of money, but that is the well-earned livelihood of thousands of people in the community.

Why focus on that? Why not focus on parts of the budget that are not so readily obvious, where error, folly and incompetence is hidden?

One of the functions of a responsible editorialist is to refine public opinion, to be the voice of a viewer that looks calmly beyond the surface of the daily news and public opinion to offer thoughtful insights on what is happening. Your editorial is paternalistic and misleading, and as a professional teacher and public employee, I resent it.

R. BRYTAN

Four Into Six

To the Editor:

In a recent editorial on the widening of Irvine Center Drive, your newspaper claims that the Irvine City Council majority action was misleading and that the majority "perhaps unconsciously" have presented a plan for a six-lane road "dressed in the new clothes of a four lane road."

Might I suggest that your editorial writer is doing the misleading and was apparently "unconsciously" at the Council meeting. Members of the majority made it quite clear what the road was — six lanes of pavement striped as a four lane road until such time as six lanes might be required, which is a real possibility. They further stated their concerns not only as to Irvine's own transportation requirements but as to Irvine's relationship to county planning.

What the citizens of Irvine need from your newspaper is to be responsibly informed of the significant arguments, pro and con, on major issues confronting them. If your newspaper then takes an editorial stand on such an issue, it should be derived from a demonstrated knowledge and understanding of the facts and arguments.

Bar Should Nominate New Judges

Thoughts of Large:

* If judges are to be elected, and not appointed, they should first be nominated by the Bar, so that we no longer have a politically oriented judiciary made up largely of those lawyers who take a partisan interest in politics and are rewarded with a party nomination.

* People who talk too much and people who talk too little both suffer from the same fear at bottom, that of being misunderstood — the loquacious person exhibiting this fear by overexplaining and the taciturn one by saying nothing.

* Little has changed middle-class smugness in the full century since Melville wrote: "Of all the preposterous assumptions of humanity over humanity, nothing exceeds most of the criticisms made on the habits of the poor by the well-housed, well-warmed, and well-fed."

* What makes a classic is its ability to survive both those who are indifferent to it and those who adore it dumbly.

* WE SEEK superiority only when we are denied equality: "black" would never have been proclaimed as especially beautiful if bigots had not at first denigrated it as ugly.

* Most of the ferment in public education today springs from the fact that the schools are being asked not only to make up in a hurry for their own defects but also to compensate for the failures of society as a whole — and they can scarcely do the first job, much less the second.

* President Carter seems to be following the unproductive tendency of his predecessors and paying too much attention to the polls and the "trends," when he should be attending to Winston Churchill's warning: "The nation will lead it very hard to look up to leaders who are keeping their ears to the ground."

Values Rise Stamps Can Lick Inflation Wound

By SLYVIA PORTER While the stock market has been mostly a disaster for 10 years and stock values have lagged far behind inflation's erosion of the dollar, stamps have continued to climb as much as 20 percent a year. Often the upsurge in values has been even more spectacular, and no reversal is foreseen.

A new force behind the spiraling of stamp prices is the emergence of the big-money syndicate. Added to the approximately one million serious individual stamp collectors in this country, the big-money syndicates put high leverage on prices as well as provide a price floor. The stamp market has moved beyond the hobby of grade school and high school youngsters and into the area of major investments.

How do amateurs get into the philatelic market? What are the guidelines and the pitfalls to avoid?

— START AS A GENERAL COLLECTOR AND invest small sums. Then develop a specialty and study it. Get a good dealer and use the dealer for advice and counsel.

— Join a local stamp club. Attend auctions. Learn by reading and listening to experts.

— Avoid low-price stamps, which rarely show strong gains. Focus on the $50 to $500 range for starters. New issues, which include U.S. commemoratives, may be aesthetically pleasing, but they offer only minor prospects for appreciation.

— Don't waste money on cheap packets of stamps. Concentrate on higher-priced specimens.

— DON'T BUY WHOLE SHEETS OF ordinary new stamps, for devaluation of the currency can slash their value. The prices of post-1943 U.S. stamps have not changed from their face values (or have even declined below face values). Their sole use is as postage.

— Beware of improbable "bargains" of any sort. A "stamp doctor" can manufacture apparently valuable errors and varieties and "improve" a stamp's quality to fleece the gullible. On any "bargain" offer, get the advice of a dealer or a reputable committee of stamp experts, usually found in large philatelic societies.

— Be on guard against counterfeiting. Ask dealers for written "statements of quality," that includes the promise of a refund if stamps turn out to be bogus. The American Philatelic Society, State College, Pa., and the Philatelic Foundation in New York have authentication services available for a fee.

— PEOPLE WHO WANT TO SELL old collections should have them appraised by reputable dealers or auctioneers and compare the estimates. Stamps attached to original letters may have high value.

A stamp professional may charge for an assessment of a collection, if it is not sold to him. An auctioneer may charge a commission of 20 percent of the collection for auctioning it, or less if the collection turns out to be extremely valuable.

Altec Corp. Reports Nine-month Gain

Altec Corp., Anaheim, has reported that sales for the nine months were $27,117,000, compared with sales of $25,689,000 for the like period of the prior fiscal year. Net income for the nine months was $246,000, compared with $38,000 for the like period in 1977. Results for the quarter were sales of $9,630,000 and net income of $236,000, compared with sales of $8,314,000 and net income of $149,000 in the third quarter of fiscal 1977. Altec develops, manufactures and sells sound and communication equipment including industrial/professional sound equipment, home high fidelity speakers, musical sound equipment and intercommunications systems.

Anaheim Firm to Move

SAN DIEGO (AP) — General Automation Inc. plans to move its corporate headquarters to San Diego from Anaheim. The firm expects to report $100 million in sales this year, said president-chairman Lawrence Goshorn. It turns out medium-size computers with plants in Anaheim; Santa Ana; Burlington, Mass.; Princeton, N.J.; Britain and West Germany. Goshorn said a plant may also be built in San Diego, where 400 employees would occupy the new headquarters in the La Jolla Business and Science Park by 1982.

New Data Unveiled In Rosenberg Case

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public television, using newly disclosed files to take another look at the Rosenberg atomic spying case, raises some questions about the actions of two judges in the case tonight at 6 on KOCE, Channel 50.

A repeat with new material of "The Unquiet Death of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg" questions specifically the conduct of Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosenberg to death and is now senior judge of the 2nd U.S. Court of Appeals in New York City.

Television producer Alvin H. Goldstein and others connected with the program told a news conference they have made repeated efforts to contact Kaufman for comment without success. A dozen members of the House have suggested an inquiry into the possibility of starting impeachment proceedings.

"DOCUMENTS FROM THE recently released FBI files give evidence that two telephone calls to the FBI initiated by Judge Kaufman that seem to contradict his claim of detachment," the script says.

"On Feb. 17, 1953, the Court of Appeals granted the Rosenbergs a stay of execution pending an appeal. Two days later . . . an FBI agent recorded the following conversation with Judge Kaufman: 'I would like to see the Department of Justice take a firm stand on this matter and appeal directly to the Supreme Court for an immediate decision.'"

The Rosenbergs, convicted of passing the secret of the atomic bomb to Russia, were executed at Sing Sing Prison on June 19, 1953. The documentary will be shown Monday night by the Public Broadcasting Service. Demonstrations are planned in New York and other cities.

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS of the Supreme Court had issued a stay of execution which would not normally have been acted on by the court until the new term starting in October. But the late Chief Justice Fred Vinson called the court back into special session, and it overturned Douglas' stay by a vote of 6-3. "According to an FBI memo, Supreme Court Justice Vinson and Atty. Gen. Hubert Bronwell had already decided on a strategy to block Justice Douglas' stay," the program says. "Clearly, according to the FBI memo, Justice Vinson had violated Canon 17 of the judicial code of ethics in his promise to help vacate the stay."

An appeal to President Dwight D. Eisenhower to stay the execution was denied.

Also convicted with the Rosenbergs on a charge of conspiracy was Morton Sobell. He was sentenced to 30 years and served 18½, 5½ of them in Alcatraz.

Fighting to clear their parents' names are the Rosenbergs' two sons, Michael, 35, and Robert, 31, who have adopted the last name of Meeropol, their foster parents. Michael was 10 and Robert 6 when their parents were executed.

TV Newscasts Assailed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A former president of CBS News says local television news shows are spotty and often cover relatively insignificant and easy to get stories.

"There's tendency to get what's easy to follow, to follow the police calls, to do the visual stories," said Sig Mickelson, 65, "and most of these aren't very significant."

Mickelson is here as a distinguished visiting professor in telecommunications at San Diego State University. This fall, he will teach two undergraduate classes, a graduate-level course.

MICKELSON, WHO ran CBS News until 1961, predicts most network news shows will eventually expand from one-half hour to an hour. And he forecasts doom for the television documentary.

"There'll be some floundering around at first," Mickelson said. "But there are enough good stories in most places to fill a 60-minute show. And television is building up a cadre of better-trained, better-educated people who can handle these kinds of stories."

Coming to San Diego after three years in Washington, D.C., where he presided over the merger of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, Mickelson views the budding taxpayers' revolt as a positive force on television news because, he says, it forces assignment editors and their staff to seek out vital issues over visual thrills.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED the success of TV "magazine" shows like "60 Minutes," which offers three mini-documentary segments weekly within a one-hour format, along with viewer response and commentary. "I think it'll hold for a while and then slump," Mickelson said.

'One Day' Tops But ABC Still Rules Roost

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "One Day at a Time" was the week's top-rated TV program for the third time in four weeks, but ABC continued its domination in the networks' battle for the prime time viewer, figures from the A. C. Nielsen Company show.

CBS, in fact, listed three of the four most-watched shows for the week ending Aug. 13, including No. 3 "Alice" and fourth-ranked "M-A-S-H." But ABC had runner-up "Three's Company" and three others in the top 10.

It was ABC's third week in a row in first place, with a rating for the most recent period of 15. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 15 percent of the homes in the country with TV were watching ABC.

CBS' RATING for the week was 14.6, NBC's 13.4.

ABC claimed the No. 1 program nearly every week during the fall and winter, but CBS shows have been top-rated eight of the 11 weeks since the end of May.

EIGHTEEN OF the week's 20 most-watched shows were reruns. The exceptions were an ABC Sunday night movie, "Newman's Law," tied for 12th, and "Switch" on CBS, tied for No. 17.

CBS and NBC each had two programs among the bottom five. ABC's "Hardy Boys Mystery" was No. 59, followed by "Just for Laughs" on NBC. "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Baby, I'm Back," on CBS, and "Black Sheep Squadron" on NBC.

Here are the week's top 10 programs:

"ONE DAY at a Time," with a rating of 22.4 representing 16.3 million homes, CBS; "Three's Company," 21.3 or 15.5 million, ABC; "Alice," 21 or 15.3, CBS; "M-A-S-H," CBS, both 20.9 or 15.2 million; NBC Monday Movie, "Colombo," 19.7 or 14.4 million; "Barnaby Jones," CBS, and "Love Boat," ABC, both 19.2 or 14 million, and "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Carter Country," ABC, both 19.1 or 13.9 million.

The next 10 shows: "Laverne and Shirley," ABC; "Hawaii Five-O," CBS, ABC Sunday Movie, "Newman's Law," and "All in the Family," CBS, tie; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC; "Eight is Enough," ABC; "Happy Days," ABC, and "Switch," CBS, tie, and "Good Times" and "The Jeffersons," both CBS.
