HONOLULU, FEB. 11, 1873. The steamer Nevada, which sailed for San Francisco on the 7th ult., returned on the 8th inst., on account of poor fuel and bad condition of her boilers; having taken in a larger and better lot of coals left on the 7th, and it is to be hoped will reach her destination in fair time, when she will be thoroughly overhauled.

The Moses Taylor has been thoroughly repaired and takes the place of the Nevada for the time, and is now due at this port to load and return with the Dakota's cargo.

The ship Sumatra, from San Francisco for Hongkong, touched at this port and left some papers, bringing us San Francisco dates to the 20th ult. We notice that Sugar had met a further decline, and may be quoted at 70c, perhaps 74 to 76c, for very choice, but such as pay duty. The sugar prospects are by no means bright, to say the least.

Some efforts are being made to revive the idea of a treaty of reciprocity with the United States, and strong hopes are entertained by many that this is a favorable time to bring the matter again before the Washington Government. That such a treaty is desirable there can be no question so far as this country is concerned, and would be doubtless favorably entertained on the Pacific coast, at least.

At the present time a large portion of our sugar crop that would otherwise go to California is being sent to New Zealand, Australia and British Columbia, and is breaking up our trade with San Francisco.

The Dakota arrived last evening, 19 days from New Zealand, bringing considerable cargo, chiefly wool, and some 70 passengers. She will return to New Zealand on the arrival of the California mail.

The bark Delaware is nearly loaded, and will sail for Victoria in all this week, with a full cargo of sugar.

Our arrivals from Australia are up to the 10th ult. Sugars are quoted at 230 to 240 lbs per ton; some dark sugar shipped from here net 44c, such as have been sold lately in San Francisco at 60c, netting something like 2c. The medium grades have also done much better in Australia than in San Francisco, but the choice have not done so well.

We understand that there is a large number of ships at Newcastle waiting for coal cargoes, but owing to the strike amongst the miners it was impossible to load them; and very little coal was to be had at New Zealand ports.
