FROM THE MAYOR A look back can always lead to a look forward in Mesquite

By Al LItman

t's January and a new year has begun. I hope everyone had a good holiday season. Well, it's back to work. I'll be preparing for the annual State of the City address, but before that,

I'll be giving a preview at Sun City, later this month.

In thinking about what I want to say, I looked back at some of the articles I wrote in 2023.

In the January 2023 issue of this newspaper, I wrote an article regarding the desire by some here to break up the Clark County School District. It didn't happen.

Ĥopefully, when it's tried again ,there will be a more organized plan. I would like to see it happen, but it will be very difficult. In the meantime, the district moves ahead with no plan for success, and Nevada education just seems to be stagnate. It won't be money that will solve their problems. During the past year, I spent considerable time dealing with issues like old worn out buildings causing blight in Mesquite.

We finally got rid of one, but there are several more that either need complete renovation or need to come down.

I can't understand property owners with no pride in what they own. A coat of paint and a little clean-up is not expensive.

Another issue that came up during the year was where you could ride a bicycle.

We need to, carefully, evaluate this before coming up with an ordinance with a one size fits all policy.

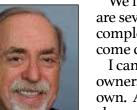

I understand we have electric bikes that can travel at nearly forty miles per hour. How do you classify these?

As the year was coming to an end, several other issues came up. One was the perceived need by some residents that we need to increase the size of the city recreation center.

Yes, there are several classes that are packed with students. But does that justify spending millions of dollars to expand for a few? I know there are less expensive solutions,

Mohave County Search & Rescue aims to save lives one by one in the area

By Breven Honda

For nearly a decade, the Mohave County Search & Rescue Strip Unit has been helping others in Northwest Arizona.

Under the direction of the Mohave County Sheriff's Department, volunteers have stepped up to help those in need, whether they are lost, need to be rescued - in water or through the air – or need medical attention.

Rod Gorder, who has been the Strip Commander for the last six years, said this group was formed as a resource to help those in need.

"The (Sheriff's Department) didn't have people up here to go find people that were lost, so they formed a group, and it was mostly EMS people," said Gorder, who has been affiliated with the Strip Unit for eight years. "Generally, we do intensive training and we're training all the time to get better and better at what we do."

As a strip commander, Gorder oversees the volunteers to put them in the best position to successfully complete rescues, whether it is through the drills or in a real-life situation.

"I'm the commander of the whole area and when we get a 911 call, they call the sheriff, and we have two commanders," Gorder said. "I direct my people to where I think we need to look through all our trainings. We help them figure out where to be in directing my people, so they stay safe and know what to look for."

The Search and Rescue Strip Unit will also reach out when help is needed to surrounding areas outside Mohave County to Southern Nevada and Southern Utah.

Mohave County, which is the second largest county in Arizona and the fifth largest county in the United States at 13,470 square miles, makes it that much more of challenge for > See RESCUE, Page 10 search and rescue operations.

However, there are four units to cover the entire county and each unit has non-profit status.

Located in the southern portion of the county is the Havasu unit in Lake Havasu City. In the central portion of the county, the Kingman Unit resides, and the Bullhead unit is located on the west side of the county, 65 miles north of Lake Havasu.

The fourth and final unit is the AZ Strip unit, located in the northwest portion of the county, in Mesquite.

Although the strip unit in Mesquite is located outside of Arizona. Gorder said units are unafraid to assist other areas, even outside Mohave County.

"All the counties around here help each other when needed," Gorder said. "But we basically take care of our own county. If another county needs us, then we respond to it. As directed by the sheriff's, they'll decide if we should go help them or not."

In total, there are more than 100 volunteers across the four units who specialize in certain things for each commander, like Gorder. Some are more proficient in swift water or EMS, while others may be more skilled in air rescues or man tracking searches.

As a result, getting as many volunteers as possible with different backgrounds is vital to success in finding those who get lost or are trapped.

To become a volunteer, the prerequisites include being 21 years or older, own a 4x4 vehicle, own a smartphone and pass a background check.

After a person fills out the application, they bring the application to the next meeting to the unit of their choice or are closest to. Once they are accepted, the training begins.

"It's 32 hours of training that we do on different subjects to give them a general knowledge of what all of our searches are and our procedures and SOPs," Gorder said. "It's rules that we follow and safety procedures."

Once the training is complete, a searcher.

Gorder said there are not many challenges to the training, but it is understanding each of different rescue operations.

"I wouldn't say it's difficult. It's just learning the different techniques and stuff to stay safe," Gorder said. "We have rope rescues; we have swift water rescues and not everybody wants to do all of those. So, we have tests that we do and training for the people that want to do that certain thing. So, that's what we go by for whatever the individual wants to excel in and what kind of shape they're in and stuff to do different things."

When it comes to completing rescues. Gorder said each one is unique because of the different terrains throughout the county.

From the cold weather atop peaks to hot weather in the deserts as well as precipitation that effects the beginnings to flash floods and growing streams, it prompts each unit to be prepared for any scenario.

The training also includes ways to stay safe and tips to quicken the process of being found.

Some of those life-saving tips more training is needed to become include what to do before your trip if you get lost and how to survive. They all play a part for each strip unit to do their best in finding those in need.

The volunteers that help, whether it is through training or in real-life scenarios, increase the camaraderie when the strip units come together.

"We're a close knit with Search and Rescue. If we have a search that we need more help on, they come up and help us, other units do and we do the same thing," Gorder said. "We do trainings together and we try to keep our equipment the same on each unit. So, if we go help somebody else, we know what the equipment is like, so we can use it and know how to use it.

"It's a real close-knit family."

MSG caps off 2023 with bowling event; prepares for new year

By Breven Honda

The final event of the year for the Mesquite Senior Games was the Bowling 9-Pin No-Tap event on Dec. 9 at Virgin River Lanes.

The theme for the event was Christmas at the Beach with an ode to the Beach Boys and singersongwriter Jimmy Buffett, who passed away in September.

Mesquite Senior Games President Sandy Tudor said everyone who participated enjoyed themselves and cannot wait for the next event in a dozen months.

"They love it. We have people who have already talked to us about when we're going to have it next fall," Tudor said. "This event is probably the one that fills up fastest. People start registering the day we open. We've done quite well in promoting our games and in having repeat participants."

Overall, there were 92 bowlers and some of them have competed in previous bowling events, either from the spring or winter bowling tournaments.

The highest score in the men's high handicap series was 909, who also recorded a 777 in the scratch to lead the way. On the women's side, the high handicap was 987 and in scratch, the high score was 711.

All players played three games in singles format among the divisions and the handicap was based on 100% of 240 while being split up in the usual five-year age divisions.

In addition to the competition in the lanes, there was also a costume contest that correlated to the theme as well as a raffle. In fitting Jimmy Buffet style, there were drinks, especially margaritas, for the bowlers to partake in.

Tudor said this event, which was once again led by Toni Gans, was run smoothly as preparation began about six prior to the event date.

"Oh my god, she's awesome. She does bowl at Virgin River, so she's familiar with all of the people there," Tudor said of Gans. "She worked with them on getting the drink specials, getting them to have the music playing and letting us do the things we normally do there.

"She contacts all the bowlers, sends out a flyer to let them know that it's coming, what the theme is going to be so everybody has the opportunity to participate in the theme of the Bowling Tournament. She follows up with everybody's handicap and make sure that everybody is bowling with the correct handicap and in the right age group."

One of the challenges in the organization of the event came during the registration process but Gans ensured everything was correct before the date of the tournament.

"Even though Fusesport is a really slick registration platform, occasionally things go awry, and birth dates are wrong," Tudor said. "If your birth date is wrong, it's likely to put you in the wrong age group. Even though our age groups are all a five-year age group, if you're date of birth is wrong, it can throw your age group, so she verifies all of those."

With that, the bowling event caps off a fall slate of four events, which is an increase compared to previous years.

Tudor said having more tournaments is a testament to the help and support but understands it can be overdone.

"It just that we've got more board members, we have more ability to run additional events and people want additional events," she said. "A lot of people were very disappointed that we weren't able to have our gun sports this fall. But we didn't have a venue.

"We also know when it's time to stop. We have people, participants who want every event to run both spring and fall and we're smart enough to know we can't do that. We've got to say, 'No, we're done.""

In 2023, Tudor and the board of directors welcomed five new members to their cabinet. She said all the volunteers, including the board members, played a big role in the club's accomplishments.

"Everybody pitches in and does everything they can to make these events successful," Tudor said. "Krista Kilpatrick and March Mon-

And then there are the dog parks, an amenity of the city that caused an uproar over their condition.

We are addressing the parks with the best solutions we can. Will it please everyone, probably not.

It was even suggested that we turn the Sports and Events complex into some kind of dog park. Really? Did you eve try and clean dog waste up from artificial turf?

It's also too hot for doggy paws in the summer. Never mind that it cost over a million dollars to replace the old turf.

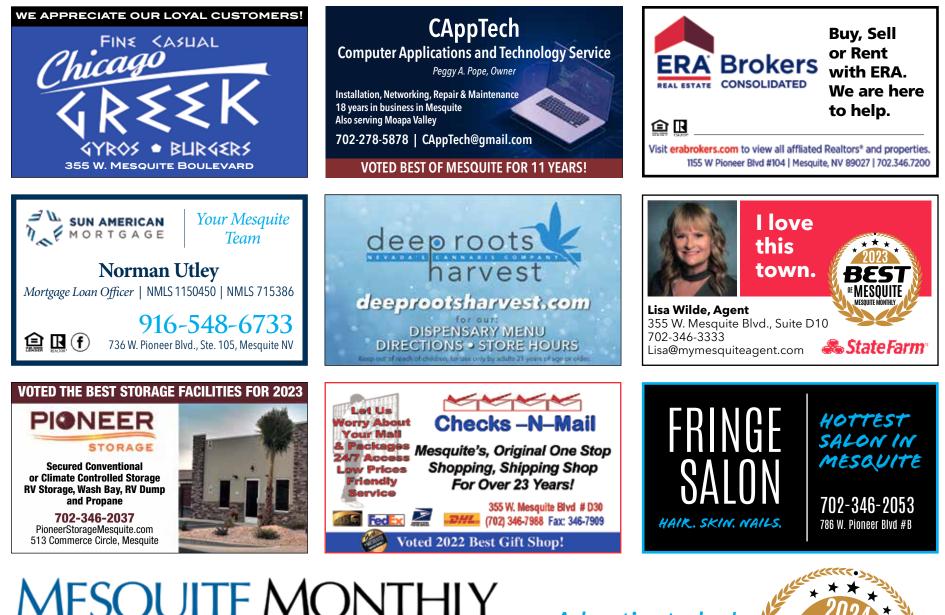

So as we enter 2024, I expect some of the same issues, and probably more to arise.

I'm optimistic that the issues and challenges we face will be solvable without spending large sums of taxpayer money, which we don't have, to satisfy the desires of a few.

We need to satisfy the majority of our residents first. That's just good government.

The Dec. 21 book signing event at Juniper Outpost marked the successful release of "All Around Mesquite" by Dustin Berg, a comprehensive guide to Mesquite and its tri-state regional surroundings. Celebrated with a #1 bestseller spot in Nevada Tour Guides on Amazon, the event highlighted the book's significance as a new resource for history enthusiasts and UTV fans in the area. "I greatly appreciate the support I've received from the local public on this project; it has been a big inspiration and played a role in why I decided to even do this. We have a dedicated and caring community here, and I am blessed to be a part of it and to help tell some of its fascinating local lore." (Juniper's Outpost Facebook)

Unlocking the power of trusts in advanced planning

By Jeffrey Bird

When considering advanced financial planning, one of the cornerstone strategies that often stands out is the establishment of trusts. These legal entities have proven to invaluable be tools in secur-

Preserving Wealth and Assets

Trusts serve as effective mechanisms to safeguard wealth and assets. They provide a structured framework for managing and distributing property, allowing individuals to specify how their assets will be utilized both during their lifetime and after their passing. This proactive approach to asset management offers control and protection, ensuring that assets are directed according to the grantor's wishes.

Mitigating Taxes and Probate

Another critical aspect of trusts in advanced planning is their ability to mitigate tax implications and bypass the probate process. Certain types of trusts, such as irrevocable trusts, enable assets to be transferred outside the probate estate, thereby avoiding the lengthy and often public probate proceedings. Additionally, trusts can be designed to minimize estate taxes, preserving a larger portion of the estate for intended beneficiaries.

Control and Customization

Trusts provide a high degree of control and customization. Through trust documents, individuals can dictate specific terms, conditions, and timelines for the distribution of be reached at 702 - 346-1335.

assets. This level of customization allows for tailoring the distribution to the unique needs and circumstances of beneficiaries, ensuring that assets are managed responsibly and according to the grantor's vision.

Protection and Privacy

Privacy is a significant advantage of utilizing trusts in advanced planning. Unlike wills, which become public documents upon probate, trusts offer a greater degree of confidentiality. They operate outside the public probate process, maintaining the confidentiality of asset distribution and minimizing exposure to public scrutiny.

Facilitating Special Needs and Charitable Goals

Trusts also serve as invaluable tools for supporting special needs beneficiaries and facilitating charitable intentions. Specialized trusts, such as special needs trusts, enable individuals to provide ongoing care and support for loved ones with disabilities while preserving their eligibility for government benefits. Moreover, charitable trusts allow individuals to contribute to philanthropic causes, leaving a lasting impact on society.

In the realm of advanced financial planning, trusts stand as pillars of security, control, and foresight. Their ability to preserve wealth, mitigate taxes, provide control, and facilitate various personal objectives makes them indispensable tools in the pursuit of comprehensive estate planning. Consulting with a qualified financial advisor or estate planning attorney can help individuals navigate the complexities of trusts and harness their potential in crafting a robust and effective advanced planning strategy. Many people have many different views of Christ; some view Him as nothing more than a wonderful teacher. Others still see Him as a powerful leader who attempted to lead a rebellion against the Roempire. man The truth of the matter is that, as C.S. Lewis posited

in his response to those who would say, "I'm ready to accept Jesus as a great moral teacher, but I don't accept His claim to be God."

"That is the one thing we must not say. A man who was merely a man and said the sort of things Jesus said would not be a great moral teacher. He would either be a lunatic—on a level with the man who says he is a poached egg-or else he would be the Devil of Hell. You can shut Him up for a fool, you can spit at Him and kill Him as a demon, or you can fall at His feet and call Him Lord and God. But let us not come with any patronizing nonsense about His being a great human teacher. He has not left that open to us. He did not intend to." (C.S Lewis, Mere Christianity)

As far as I can tell, one could hardly dispute the reality that Jesus clearly stated Himself as God, presuming they are trying to be honest. Let's take a sampling of some of His clearest statements of attestation to this fact:

John 8:58 "Jesus said to them, 'Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was. I am.'"

John 14:6 "Jesus said to him, 'I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me.' "

John 10:30 "I and the Father are one.' "

And lest you be fooled into thinking that, "He didn't say He was God. He just said, 'I am.' " Let's take a look at the Jews of the day response to Him in the following verses of John 10.

John 10:31-33 "The Jews picked up stones again to stone him. Jesus answered them, 'I have shown you many good works from the Father; for which of them are you going to stone me?' The Jews answered him, 'It is not for a good work that we are going to stone you but for blasphemy, because you, being a man, make vourself God.' "

The reality is that Jesus did claim to be God. As one reads through the Gospels, as the historical accounts that they are, it seems apparent to me that no one has ever said what He said, has done what He did, or in general lived as He lived. Jesus was a unique, singular being. The reason: He was God in the flesh. Trust Him!
