ZR-1 TAKES ST. LOUIS FLIGHT

Plainly Seen from Riverton Crossing Delaware Early Monday Morning

The ZR-1 passed over Riverton and Palmyra Monday morning shortly after eight o'clock. She was on her way to St. Louis, the longest trip yet attempted by the new navy dirigible. On account of head winds the airship was flying very slowly.

Many local people have seen the ZR-1 at the naval aircraft hangar and field at Lakehurst, N. J., which is easily reached by automobile via Mt. Holly, Pemberton and Brown's Mills, and from thence direct to Lakehurst. Hundreds of acres of level pine lands were cleared for the hangar and landing field.

Few realize the immense size of the hangar, which is 962 feet long, 348 feet wide, with doors which open 258 feet in the clear. These immense doors are moved on tracks, and with gears similar to the huge locks on the Panama Canal. The hangar cost approximately $3,000,000 to build.

In the landing field is a tall steel mast similar to that used on ships, and it is used for mooring the airship, the nose of the ship being fastened to the top of the mast. From the mast the ship may be fueled, watered and gassed, and inside is an elevator to convey the personnel to the aircraft when moored.

The ZR-1 was built at Lakehurst and the Naval Aircraft Factory, Philadelphia, by the U. S. Navy. It is 680 feet long, 78 feet in diameter, 96 feet high (including cars), has a gas capacity of 2,500,000 cubic feet, weighs 75,000 pounds, and has a speed of 70 miles per hour. It has six 300-horsepower (total 1800) specially-built motors, a fuel capacity of 5000 gallons and a cruising radius of over 4000 miles.

The metal work is of duralumin composed of aluminum, copper and manganese, which is as strong as mild steel and costs fifty times as much. When in the hangar the ship is 85% full of gas and is anchored at stream points, but floating so that the cars are about ten feet of the ground. The supporting gas is helium, on which the United States has practically a world monopoly, it being found in quantities of from 1 to 3% in natural gases in the Texas and Kansas oil fields, from which it is shipped to Lakehurst in high pressure steel cylinders.

The gas is enclosed in twenty gas cells in the ship, and is not, as is the general belief, contained solely under the outer covering, the only purpose of which is to give the ship stream lines, to reduce the effect of the sun's rays on the interior gas cells, and to keep out rain or snow.

The outside cars which hang down a few feet from the main body of the ship contain the six engines. The forward car is the control car, and in addition to containing its engine, is to the airship as the bridge is to the battleship. It has the lift and steering controls, engine telegraphs, radio, gyroscopic and magnetic compasses, etc., and it is the point from which the ship is steered, piloted and navigated in the air.

The ship is graceful and symmetrical in shape, is painted a sort of aluminum color, with rudder and elevating controls tipped with red, white and blue. The National colors also appear in the air service emblem, with the star which was used in the great war and which is painted on the ship near the stern. In the center of the ship are the words "U. S. Navy," in bronze black paint, and in the same color at the bow is its name, "ZR-1."

Her flight two weeks ago created international interest. She made a 600-mile trip in eleven and a half hours, visiting a dozen cities. She climbed to a height of 6000 feet safely, consumed but 500 gallons of gasoline. She is the largest airship in the world and is an effective arm for national defense and an eye for the navy. As a war machine she is capable of carrying five tons of explosives.

According to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, U. S. Navy Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Washington, D. C., the ship will make a flight to the North Pole this fall or next spring, which voyage would require about five days.

The ZR-3 being built in Germany for the United States Navy (under the reparations aid down by the Treaty of Peace) is expected to be completed this fall and on arrival in the United States will be placed in the Lakehurst hangar alongside the ZR-1.

The naval air station at Lakehurst welcomes visitors every day, including Sundays, and says on a circular distributed at the office "visitors are welcome and we are glad to have had you."

The only regulations are that visitors park their automobile as directed by the Marine orderly, register at the office and do not smoke.

DRAWN FOR JURIES
Attorney Joseph L. Thomas and Wife of Cinnaminson Both to Serve
Jurors for the autumn term of the Burlington County Court, which will begin Tuesday, October 9, were drawn by Jury Commissioner Charles B. Ballinger, of Mount Holly, and Sheriff Edward H. Flag before Judge Harold B. Wells last Thursday.

Diemand Hardware Store Damaged by Fire at Midnight Saturday

Fire started from unexplained causes in the Diemand hardware store next to the firehouse on West Broad street shortly after midnight last Saturday. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars.

The flames apparently started in the rear of the store, where paints and varnishes were stored and also where Mr. Diemand kept his desk and papers. Most of his business records were destroyed.

The fire was just breaking through the roof when discovered by William Reagle, who lives nearby on Delaware avenue. The Palmyra fire siren resounded to blow, so Chief Beck was roused from his sleep at his home on Highland avenue. He hastened down to Rutschman's garage where the fire apparatus is being kept during the remodeling of the firehouse.

Chief Beck had to break in the door of the garage to get the fire truck out. Meantime the Riverton Company was notified and its siren was blown. The Riverton signals are different from Palmyra's, and the fire blasts, several times repeated, caused Palmyra folks to think a riot call was being sounded.

Little difficulty was experienced extinguishing the fire when the various apparatuses arrived. The store had been tightly closed so that little air got to the flames. This caused the heat to be confined and it became so intense that articles in the front of the store were scorched, though considerable distance from the fire itself.

Mr. Diemand had been preparing to move his stock to another location and had just started a removal sale. It was regarded as fortunate that the fire occurred as early as it did, since it would have gained more headway later at night and might have destroyed all three stores in the building and endangered the lives of the Freeman family, who live in the residence part.

The Palmyra siren was taken down and examined the next day. It was found that certain parts had rusted and also that swallows had built nests in it and these things are supposed to have prevented the alarm from working.

On the afternoon of Saturday, the 30th of September, Mrs. Henry S. Stockwell, who is chairman of Girl's Work of the Burlington County YWCA, held a meeting of club leaders at her home in Moorestown. A good majority of these women from the 42 clubs of the county were present, so that the discussions of the informal meeting were representative of club problems throughout the county. The Association feels that it is fortunate to have such fine women leading its clubs, because the YWCA is "in service for the girls of the county" and it is through the clubs that the girls may most easily be reached.

A cordial invitation has been extended to all members of the YWCA to attend a fellowship meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry H. Albertson on Oxmead Road, Burlington, on Saturday, the 20th of October. It is hoped that many interested friends of the work will come to that meeting and bring basket suppers.

A J. Gregg, YMCA Boys' Work expert of the international committee, New York City, said at a dinner conference of YMCA leaders from all sections of Burlington County at St. Andrew's parish house, Mount Holly, Saturday evening, September 29th, that this verse constituted the basis for a fine program of Christian Citizenship, "Jesus increased in wisdom, and stature, and in favor with God and man."

He further explained that the Christian citizenship program is a way by which a boy in companionship with his fellows in a group may grow naturally into the full stature of manhood as the total round of activity of a boy's life is used in the test material.

Roy Kersey, famous athlete of Palmyra high school, will again have the leadership of a YMCA group in his community. This year the YMCA building of Palmyra will be available for group work.

Lawrence H. Nolte, a junior at the University of Pennsylvania, will again this year assume the leadership of a junior YMCA group at Riverside, which meets in the Moravian Church.

A Stereopticon Lecture on Japan Fellow Citizens: Inasmuch that our neighbors across the Pacific have, through a convulsion of nature, suffered unspeakable agony and hundreds of thousands of them rendered homeless and in dire distress; let us be to them "good Samaritans" in this hour of urgent need, by doing something to alleviate their pitiable condition.

I am therefore under the auspices of the local Red Cross, giving a stereopticon lecture illustrative and descriptive of Japan, Tuesday evening, October 16th, at 8 o'clock, in P. O. S. of A. Hall.

It is to be hoped that it will be a success-worthy of the cause and a credit to our town. As a matter of fact, Japan is one of the most beautiful and interesting countries of the world and I feel that you will not be disappointed in attending this lecture.

PALMYRA FOLKS SHARE IN MRS. OTT'S ESTATE

Conrad Anthony and Mrs. Ida Bertron Each Inherit $20,000

An estate of $150,000 is being distributed among sixteen relatives and friends of the late Mrs. Mary Anthony Ott, of Merchantville, who died September 8.

Among the beneficiaries are Conrad Ott Anthony, of Broad and Garfield avenues, Palmyra, a nephew who receives $20,000 and some personal effects which are being distributed according to a memorandum attached to the will. Mrs. Anthony will be remembered as Miss Edna Hires, daughter of Mrs. William E. Hires, with whom the young couple now make their home. Mr. Anthony received as a present from his aunt a beautiful electric car just prior to her death.

Mrs. Ida Bertron, a former resident of Palmyra, who for the last few years has been making her home with her sister, the late Mrs. Ott, received a bequest of $20,000 and some personal effects which are stipulated by the will. It was from being a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Bertron that Mrs. Ott became so well known in Palmyra. Mrs. Bertron plans to again take up her residence here as soon as matters can be settled in Merchantville.

Only two other bequests of $20,000 were made. One goes to the late Mr. Ott's sister, Mrs. Ida Field, of Bordentown, and her daughter, Miss Hazel R. Field, who served as confidential secretary for the law firm of S. C. Ott & Joseph W. Carr. Mr. Carr took over the entire business at the time of Mr. Ott's death.

Mrs. Ott's death is partly attributed to the shock received at the time of her husband's death, which occurred a few months previously. They were an ideal couple and the loss of her husband as well as her continued illness seemed more than Mrs. Ott could withstand.

Mr. Anthony and Miss Fields are named as executors. Mr. Ott will be remembered as a former president of the Camden County Bar Association and referee in bankruptcy.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Ettris Tells of Fire Loss Caused by Carelessness

This is Fire Prevention Week. It will be 52 years on October ninth that Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern that caused the great Chicago fire. The anniversary of this catastrophic has been set aside by the National Fire Protection Association as Fire Prevention Day and the week ending on the ninth is known as Fire Prevention Week.

The information appended, which is of great interest to everyone, was furnished by John H. Ettris, of the Winchester store:

The loss by fire in 1922 was $1,000,000, or $500,000 a day and besides this 1,500 persons were burned to death.

It has been conclusively proven that a great proportion of the fire waste is preventable. According to some statistics as high as 90% is preventable by common fire departments, etc., making the fire cost of a billion dollars a year.

The fire prevention movement was begun in New England and in 1895 The National Fire Protection Association was formed to combat the fire evil. The movement was slow in growth until the last decade when the public began to wake up to the situation and October 9 was set aside as Fire Prevention Day. In 1920 President Wilson recognized the day by proclamation, and so did President Harding in 1921. In 1922 the National Fire Protection Association changed Fire Prevention Day to Fire Prevention Week, and requested every one to continue the lessons learned to the other 51 weeks.

Anyone passing Justice of Peace William L. Fichter's office last Friday evening would have thought there was a murder trial on instead of nine youngsters being tried for stealing eight quarts of ice cream. It is doubtful, however, whether these boys will ever be brought in court again on this charge, for they found it is much cheaper to buy ice cream than steal it.

Last Thursday night the P. O. of A. was giving a farewell party in honor of Mrs. Frederick Blackburn, who plans to leave for Florida in the near future, and the refreshments, in the form of brick ice cream had been delivered just outside of Society Hall, where the meeting was being held. The boys spied it and decided that they, too, were to be in on the party. They were successful so far as getting the cream went, but had not thought that bystanders might notice them and make a report when the loss was discovered.

Chief of Police C. Morris Beck had the names of two of the boys before the evening was over, and did not find it a difficult task to get the names of the remaining seven when he found the two offenders the following day. Friday night found them before Mr. Fichter, who fined them seven dollars each. No doubt the youngsters feel that sixty-three dollars is rather a steep price to pay for eight quarts of cream. The boys ranged from ten to sixteen years of age.

On Strike. "Uxtree! Pipy! Pipy! Uxter!" yelled the lad. "Bandits all go out on a strike! Uxtree!" "Bandits strike—what for?" asked the gent from Jimson Junction. "They don't want the wages of sin reduced. Uxtree! Pipy! Uxtree!" Kansas City Star.

REPUBLICAN "DRYS" STRONG

"The New Order of Things" Firmly Established. Stout Re-elected County Chairman

The reform dry forces in the New Jersey Republican party won sweeping victories in the county and State conventions held this week. The leaders standing for "The New Order of Things" are now firmly in the saddle.

Credit for the success of the reform movement is given without question to the power of women in politics and it was the women leaders standing steadfast for their ideals that sent the wet members of the "old gang" down to defeat.

The Republican State convention at Trenton Tuesday was marked by the defeat of former Governor Stokes, backed by the Edge wet faction, for State chairman. Senator William A. Stevens, of Monmouth, was elected by 57 to 50.

The Democrats, in convention at the same time, voted for a modification of the Volstead Act, but supported the Hobart State enforcement act.

The Republican county committee meeting at Mount Holly, Monday, was harmonious throughout. Several leaders of the old machine were absent and those present acquiesced in the program of the new progressive organization headed by Charles R. Stout and other leaders.

The committee passed a resolution that they would stand back of Congress on the Volstead Law. Stout was re-elected county chairman without opposition.

Others re-elected were: Mrs. Nellie Woolston Russell, Burlington township, first vice chairman; Miss Theresa Lord, Mount Holly, second vice chairman; William H. Heisler, Pemberton, secretary; George N. Wimer, Palmyra, treasurer.

The executive committee is divided between men and women. The men are: J. H. Matlack, Burlington; J. Lloyd Wright, Medford; Carleton T. Haines, Tabernacle; Andrew Nelson, Jobstown; Louis A. Flanagan, Riverton; John Hancock, Riverton; Frank Herr, Moorestown; Sherman Borden, Willingboro; Charles Stevenson, Beverly; Harvey VanSeiver, Beverly township; Joseph B. Fleetwood, Mt. Holly.

The women members are: Dr. E. Weeks Metzger, Riverside; Mrs. Ella V. Decker, Burlington; Mrs. Margaret Fish, Beverly; Mrs. M. J. Hines, Pemberton; Brown's Mills; Miss Nettie Worrell, Mount Holly; Mrs. Marion Coles Roberts, Mount Laurel; Mrs. Caroline H. West, Beverly; Mrs. Pearl Bridgman, Hainesport; Mrs. Anna Darnell, Moorestown; Mrs. Susan Spencer, Moorestown; Mrs. Walter L. Bowen, Riverton.

Final County Figures

The following are final official count for the four leading candidates in last week's primary election: For Freeholder, Wright 7621, Flagg 5924. For Sheriff, Fleetwood 7786, Stone 6533.

An Explanation

In order to correct the erroneous impression among many residents of the third district, occasioned by the few votes to my credit at the last election, as published in the returns in last week's paper, I desire to state that I was not a candidate for County Committee, having refused to stand when asked to do so several months ago and again more recently. I was as surprised as anyone when I read of the seven votes in my favor. HELEN C. WARREN. (Mrs. S. L.)

Appreciation

Will the many friends who signed my petition and voted for me for the office of assessor accept my sincere thanks and appreciation. ROBINET COLE.

Annual Meeting of Riverton Branch of American Red Cross

Riverton met her quota for the Japanese relief because the Red Cross organization was intact. Except for Riverton's organization, contributions might have gone through Philadelphia thereby giving Pennsylvania the credit.

The annual meeting of the Riverton branch of the American Red Cross for the election of officers will be held at the Porch Club on Tuesday, October 9th, at 3 p. m. An urgent appeal is made for every member to be present at this meeting.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens Harding, of Riverton, New Jersey, to announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice, to Mr. Carl Gunnar Lindholm, on Monday, the first of October, 1923.

A new broom sweeps clean, but will continue to do so longer if, when bought, the strands are tied together and soaked for two hours in hot water.

URGE HIGHER ASSESSMENTS
County Board Demands Revision Upwards

Higher assessments on certain properties were urged at a meeting of the Burlington County Board of Assessors, held at the Court House, Mount Holly, Monday.

All of the members of the county tax board, Joseph L. Thomas, Riverton; Walter VanSeiver, Beverly; Frank Braddock, Medford; John B. Tilton, secretary, Mount Holly, were present. Local tax boards from all over the county were included in the gathering.

It was declared that many houses are being assessed for much less than the price asked for them by their owners, and the local boards were instructed that they must readjust their figures so that they will be more in keeping with the sale value of the property. For instance, there are quite a number of houses assessed at two thousand dollars for which the owners are asking five thousand dollars.

Heretofore there has been no tax placed on a house under construction. In the future the house will be taxed according to the extent of the work that has been done on it. This rule became operative Monday.

Owners of gasoline tanks will be required to pay a tax of one hundred and fifty dollars on each tank. Gasoline tanks are becoming as thick as electric poles, not only in the cities, but also along the country roads, and a large revenue will be repaid.

No Bids Received for Sewer

An adjourned meeting of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Riverton was held in the Council chamber of the Riverton fire house on Monday evening, to receive bids for work to be done on the sewer at Elm avenue. For the second consecutive time no bids were received and a resolution was put through authorizing the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Riverton to make an appropriation and to give out this contract as they see fit. The matter was given into the hands of the Sewer Committee, composed of H. H. Murray, William B. Lynch, and Ralph L. Flower.

The resignation of Ogden H. Mattis, as assessor, was received, accompanied by a certificate from his physician, stating that due to his illness he was unable to perform the duties of his office. The Mayor, therefore appointed Robinet Cole as Borough Assessor, to fill the vacant term of Mr. Mattis.

A petition was received from residents on Linden avenue, petitioning the Borough to lay a sidewalk on Harrison avenue. This matter was referred to the Highway Committee.

The important deeds for the right of way for the sewer along Elm avenue have been signed and it is hoped that work will commence on this important matter.

Football

This Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the Riverton football team will play their first game on the new field at Seventh and Fulton streets. Their opponents will be the West Phillips, which is one of the best semi-professional teams in Philadelphia. A good hard game is anticipated.

If arrangements can be made, the Riverton Reserves will play a game at Seventh and Fulton, starting at 2:15 the same afternoon.

Ogden H. Mattis
Ogden H. Mattis, one of Riverton's oldest residents, passed away at his home after an illness of six years, on Monday, October 1st, at the age of sixty-five.
Mr. Mattis, who was born in Bordentown, N. J., on July 13th, 1858, came to Riverton in the age of twenty years (in 1863) with his parents, Charles and Dorothy Mattis. At his father's death he succeeded him as ticket agent here. He has been secretary of the Masonic Lodge of Palmyra since its institution in 1888. He was a Shriner, a member of Lulu Temple since 1877. He was a member of Riverton council and also served as a member of the Board of Education for several terms, and a member of the Riverton Fire Company since its organization. He was postmaster for eight years.
He deceased is survived by his widow, Susan T. Mattis, and four children, Ross E. Mattis, of Riverton, Mrs. G. H. Wheeler, of New Brunswick; William N. Mattis and Mrs. Thomas R. Braddock, and a brother, William N. Mattis, also of Riverton. Funeral services will be held this (Thursday) afternoon, at his late residence, 1017 Seventh street, at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Arthur H. Lewis officiating. Interment will be made in Odd Fellows cemetery, Burlington.

Ice In Autumn
Don't make the mistake that so many do, of discontinuing your ice the first cool day. There will be many warm days before cold weather sets in and one such day without proper refrigeration may cost you more in food than a supply of ice for a whole month, to say nothing of the danger to your family, if the food is kept in a high temperature.
Keep the ice card in the window.

LOOK FOR HOARD OF BANDIT
Exploring Party Believes It is on the Right Path to Robber's Treasure House.
Psychic messages from St. Nicholas are said by an archeologist in charge of excavations in the Balkans to have led to the discovery of the subterranean stronghold of All Pasha, a famous bandit who terrorized the Balkans a century ago.
According to the London Express the skeletons of 25 men were found, believed to have been killed because they discovered the secrets of All Pasha's treasure house and its labyrinthine passages. The principal one is about 1,100 yards long, intersected by tunnels leading into darkness, or returning by devious routes to their main corridor.
All Pasha's father was murdered by neighboring chieftains, and his mother urged him to take revenge. His fierceness and indomitable courage brought terror to the Balkans. In avenging the death of his father he grew rich on the spoils of war.
All Pasha assisted the Turks in their war with Russia in 1878, and was laden with honors. He became the ruling power in Albania, and helped Napoleon, with the ambition of establishing his kingdom as a separate nation in the Balkans, to fight against Great Britain in the name of the Ottoman government. On emerging from the grand vizier's tent he was treacherously murdered.
The exploring party hopes soon to reach the crypt where the treasures are believed to lie. These riches are said to embrace money, jewels, tapestries and a collection of golden Byzantine chalices, stolen from churches.

REALLY NOT IN ANY HURRY
Not Hard to Believe Naive Statement Made by Men Condemned to Be Hanged.
Augustus Thomas has a story to relate of his early days which illustrates the very telling effect to be achieved by just a few words, the New York Herald says. Thomas was then an advance agent, working the territory ahead of a famous mind reader of a generation ago, and generally working it for all it was worth. In Minnesota he managed to land his thought-diviner on the front pages of the newspapers by asking for a reprieve for two brothers, due to be executed for murder, until his psychic wizard could arrive on the spot, read the minds of the condemned men and determine whether the jury were good guessers in finding them guilty.
The following day, in order to get a good second-day story, Thomas decided to work up further interest in a delay of execution—and incidentally in his mind-reading—by visiting the jail and having the two prisoners sign an important statement to go to the governor.
"They were men of limited intelligence," says Thomas, "rather illiterate, and so I thought it best to confine their statement to one simple sentence. I merely had them say: 'We're willing to wait.'"

GOOD WILL

It's not what we have done for our customers, but it's the way we have done it, that has secured their good will.

It's not attending to the routine banking functions which we're obliged to perform, but it's the going out of our way voluntarily to be helpful to all, that has made people speak well of us.

Helpfulness, or courtesy in action, is not selective in this bank. We never hesitate before rendering a service, nor discriminate between customers—all are valued friends.

We cordially invite everyone to use this service which our depositors have found so helpful, and which has given to us our biggest asset—their good will.

COURT MODIFIES P. S. FARE ORDER

Judge Reilstab of the Federal Court Allows Change to Conform With New Rates.

RURAL SCHOOLS UP-TO-DATE

Country School Child Has City Advantages—Modern, Centralized Building Takes Place of Old One-Room Shack, Deerfield School Shows.

Trenton.—Federal Judge Reilstab modified a Federal Court order of October 20, 1921, which granted the Public Service Company an eight-cent fare. The modification specifies that the company may charge a five-cent rate within the city limits in larger cities of the state and a 10-cent fare, without transfer for rides beyond the limits of the cities.

This action by Judge Reilstab was at the suggestion of counsel for the Public Service Company and in accordance with the company's acceptance of the proposal of the Public Utility Commission embracing the new rates. The new schedule will be given a four months' trial.

At the hearing before Judge Reilstab there on the recommendation of Special Master Thomas G. Haight the Public Service Railway was granted an eight-cent fare, L. Edward Herrmann, counsel for the Public Utilities Commission, charged that former State Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, one of the counsel for the railway company, had tried to prejudice the court. Mr. Herrmann called Judge Reilstab's attention to the remark Mr. Wakelee made to the effect that the Public Utilities Commission, in refusing to grant the railway a higher rate of fare, was depriving it of revenue it was entitled to.

"Do you suppose I would be influenced by such a remark?" asked Judge Reilstab of Mr. Herrmann.

"Just the same," replied Mr. Herrmann, "the remark was made in an attempt to prejudice you."

Fight Still On
While President McCarter of the Public Service Railway Company was withdrawing in Newark the second application he had presented to the Public Utility Commissioners for a trolley fare of ten cents counsel for the company the commission and for Jersey City and Newark continued arguments before U. S. District Court Judge Reilstab on the company's first application for the dime rate.

Judge Reilstab has indicated that the court will not attempt to fix an exact valuation on the company's property, considering that element only in so far as it may be necessary to determine whether the 7 cent base rate fixed by the Public Utility Commission and subsequently enjoined by the court was confiscatory.

The court has also practically eliminated from the controversy much of the argument relating to the method followed by Thomas G. Haight as special master in fixing a valuation of $110,000,000 upon the company's property.

One of the important developments during the hearing was a statement by Edmund W. Wakelee of counsel for the company in response to a question of Judge Reilstab. The latter asked whether, in view of intense competition, any rate charged by the company would yield a return of 7 per cent on the Haight valuation. Mr. Wakelee said the company believed a 10 cent fare would give such a return, estimated at $7,700,000. Mr. McCarter has estimated the return on a 10 cent fare would approximate $8,300,000.

In the proceedings in the federal court, however, lawyers on both sides have apparently modified views given expression elsewhere because of the peculiarly intricate nature of the case presented in the litigation, narrowed down by Judge Reilstab to a mere decision as to whether the 7 cent fare order was confiscatory.

The company is making every effort to have a decision from the federal tribunal fixing a valuation on the company's property as a guide for the future, while the Public Utilities Commission and inter-pleading municipalities are willing to have the valuation feature eliminated.

Up-to-Date Rural Schools
For the last decade the swing in educational circles in south Jersey, as well as in other parts of the country, has been towards the consolidated school, in town or city. Now there seems to be a tendency to swing back to the country school, modern in all respects like the city school, but built in the country for country pupils.

A striking illustration of the modern country school is found in the recently dedicated $100,000 schoolhouse in Deerfield township, Cumberland county. Other smaller types of country schools have also been built during the year in other parts of south Jersey, and one of these, a four room school at Bunker Hill, Washington township, Gloucester county, has been opened and will be formally dedicated in October.

Leading educators declare that the "little red schoolhouse," with all of the sentiment attached to it, has gone for good, and they place the emphasis on the "good." Farmers have accepted the argument of these educators that country boys and girls cannot receive the same advantages in education in a one or two room schoolhouse as do the city children in their large, centralized schools. But if the little red schoolhouse is to be forever banished why not the big red schoolhouse built out in the country instead of in the town to take its place, asks the farmers.

A joint committee of the State Grange and the New Jersey Federation of County Boards of Agriculture has been making a study of rural school conditions for many months. While it seems impossible for country districts to have their own high schools at the present time, the committee has gone on record as recommending that pupils up to the eighth grade get educated in country schools.

Rubber Tires Revolutionize
Automobiles and motor buses, with their easy transportation from country to town, have been the principal factor in sweeping away the little red schoolhouses which a generation ago dotted the rural landscape in almost every direction. The farmers themselves now use the automobile more extensively than any other class, and it has leveled lots of other rural customs besides the little red schoolhouse.

Transportation for children of all ages and grades from country to town has long brought forth protests from the farmers.

The joint investigation committee enumerated these objections in its report made some time ago: Small children do not feel at home in town schools.

In the higher grades the country children are weaned away from the farm life by town and city schools.

The country is losing a community center with the abolishing of its own schoolhouse.

Country people lose interest in school and teacher when they have none of their own.

Now that the ebb tide has set in, the country people are urging that as town schools become overcrowded with pupils transported from the rural districts new schools be erected where necessary in the country rather than in the towns.

The farmers further approve of consolidating country schools where it is necessary to obtain the most benefits for the pupils, but they want these consolidated schools wherever possible erected in the country instead of in the towns and cities.

What has really handicapped the rural districts in modernizing their schools, the farmers point out, is the fact that there is at present an unequal distribution of state school money, whereby the thickly populated districts and the cities and towns get proportionately more to spend per pupil than do the poorer country districts.

A bill will be presented at the next session of the legislature providing for more equitable distribution of state school money. Such measures have been tried before, but have always met the opposition of the richer and more powerful north Jersey counties, which get a big slice of the state funds.

Model for Rural Schools
In the meantime some of the rural districts of south Jersey are working out their own school problems. Such a condition is found in Deerfield township, whose school is now pointed to as a model for consolidated rural schools in this part of the state.

It was necessary to literally split the old township in half before advocates of the new school were finally able to get their building, which is in the half that retained the township's original name.

Erected upon a large site, on a knoll with a great sweep of lawn in front of it, the new Deerfield school is well set off to catch the attention of thousands of motorists who pass Route 6 of the state highway system. It is built right out in the country, a good distance from the village of Deerfield.

The building itself is most modern in every detail. It has two stories, with basement, and is built of red brick, with white limestone trim. There are four classrooms and a large auditorium, seating about 800 persons, on the first floor and five classrooms on the second. In the basement is a large room suitable for gymnasium and also space for other school purposes.

The building is entirely fire proof, has modern heating and ventilating systems and all the sanitary conveniences of a city or town school.

The building at Bunker Hill represents a modern rural school of the smaller type. It is located almost in the center of Washington township, Gloucester county, and also built out in the country, well apart from town or village.

Fight Over Hot Water
Adoption of a State policy for conservation of potable water sources will be an important issue at the next session of the Legislature.

The Court of Errors and Appeals set aside the action of the State Board of Conservation and Development in awarding to Bayonne the right to develop the Hudson Valley watershed and take 50,000,000 gallons of water daily for potable purposes. The Supreme Court previously had sustained Bayonne's application. The highest State court said the grant was illegal because the municipality had not obtained the approval of the North Jersey District Water Supply Commission, and neglected to properly advertise the pending application, and that a majority of the members of the conservation board did not attend the public hearings at which testimony on the grant was taken.

In the last legislature bills sponsored by Speaker William W. Evans of Paterson to require Bayonne to secure approval of the north Jersey District Water Supply Commission, in addition to sanction of the state board, failed of passage.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 7

ABRAHAM, A BLESSING TO THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—Gen. 12:1-3; 18:1-15; 22:1-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—"In Thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 12:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being a Blessing to Others.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Became a Blessing to the World.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Abraham, a Religious Pioneer.

I. Abraham's Ancestors (Josh. 24:2, 16).

Abraham's people were idolaters. Very likely as a young man, he himself worshiped idols. Tradition furnishes us with some interesting stories touching his struggle against idolatry. At any rate, his experience was such as to well qualify him to be the head of a people whose God was the Lord. He knew how hopelessly disastrous idolatry was to the morals of the people, and, therefore, would be able to lead them back to God.

II. Abraham's Call (Gen. 12:1, cf. Acts 7:2-3).

God came to him in Ur of the Chaldees and said unto him:
1. "Get thee out of thy country."
One is tied to his country with a strong bond. Abraham had lived long enough to have formed strong attachments to his country.

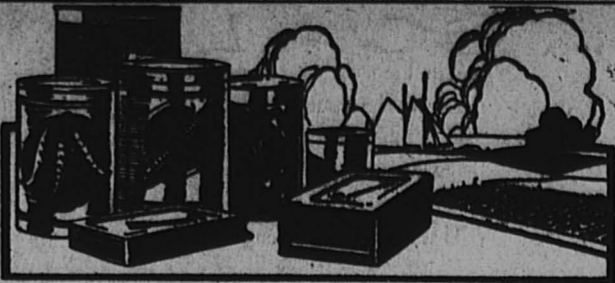

2. "Get thee out from thy kindred." Abraham was not only to leave behind him his native land, but his relatives as well, even his father's house. Since his kindred were idolaters, he must leave them. Abraham was to become a pilgrim, to be without a home. Even in Canaan, the only land he ever owned, was a burial place.

3. "Into the land that I will show thee." He was not told what or where the land was. He went out not knowing whether he went (Heb. 11:8). While he dwelt in tents during his earthly sojourn, yet "he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 11:10). And thus he was a typical believer called out from his family and country, and renouncing idolatry, he walked by faith, testifying to his and succeeding generations to the faithfulness of God. It costs to obey God, but there is an abundant recompense.

4. "God's Promise to Abraham (Gen. 12:2-3; 18:17-18).
1. The Father of a Great Posterity (v. 2). This has been literally fulfilled. He was not to go out primarily for what he could get, but for what he could do. The minister and missionary forget their own personal blessings in the supreme joy of their converts who are the fruits of their labor. No name in all history equals that of Abraham in its honorable influence. He is the name of honor among Jews, Mohammedans and Christians. They all acknowledge him as father.

2. A Blessing to Others (vv. 2, 3). He was not only to become great and to share God's blessings, but to be a blessing to others. He has become a blessing to countless multitudes. This is the prevailing law of the spiritual life—being blessed to be a blessing. Those who respond to this law become the very touchstone of God, so precious that God will bless them who bless them, and curse those who curse them. God makes common cause with His people. So vitally is He one with them that it is a serious thing to mistreat them. To mistreat God's children is to lift the hand against God. No one who goes against Him can prosper. Not only is this so with reference to willful acts against His children, but neglect or refusal to do good to them. Christ regards all acts for or against them as for or against Him.

3. God Testing Abraham (Gen. 22:1-18).
Abraham's faith was shown in that he obeyed the call of God and left his land and kindred, but his faith reached its highest point in offering Isaac. For many years, he had waited for the fulfillment of God's promise as to his heir. At last that promise was a reality. Abraham's hope was not the ordinary hope which fills the heart of every father, that his name and work may be perpetuated through his son. A new nation and the world's Savior were to spring up from Abraham through this son. Through this great ordeal, his faith responded enabling him to believe that God would give Isaac back from the dead (Heb. 11:17-19). God tries all His children. The more important, the more severe the trial.

GOALS

It isn't so much what a man has done,
As what he has tried to do;
It isn't the victories that he has won,
But the storms he has weathered through.
With courage and faith and a cheery smile,
That make him a person as well worth while.

The man who has fallen has had his dream,
And maybe he saw a star
So high and so bright that his mortal scheme
Fell short of the gleam afar;
But if he has climbed 'til his strength is spent,
Then give him full credit for his intent.

It isn't the goal that a man may win
That counts the most in the score;
But the blows that have proven the worth of him,
In a million tests and more;
For it isn't always the man who leads
Who possesses the strength that the old world needs.

Our English neighbor, the celebrated novelist Arnold Bennett, considers Theodore Dreiser a leading representative American novelist. Mr. Dreiser's work is known in other countries; his books have been translated into both French and German.

There is perhaps no author in the United States about whom such curiosity is expressed as Theodore Dreiser. His first book, "Water Carriage," began when he was reporting on a western newspaper, brought forth the kind of success and discussion that have become continuous with his succeeding novels.

It dealt with life in arresting terms. It pictured people in a never-to-be-forgotten manner, and this is the quality you find in his later work. For work it is, Mr. Dreiser says: "I'm not a hermit. Nor mysterious. But you know there are a lot of people that regard writing as a sort of picnic. They flock. Want to know how you do it. Want to see you at it. It all takes up time. It leads nowhere. Let people get wind of you and it means invitations. Society is a business in itself. I can't manage it and do my work, too."

With all his transcriptions from the terrible things of life, Theodore Dreiser is an idealist. His insight is amazing. His vision far-reaching. The story which follows, written for the Star Author Series of Matrimonial Adventures, gives new and appealing pictures of "Marriage for One."

MARY STEWART CUTTING, JR.

Whenever I think of love and marriage I think of Wray. That clerical figure. That clerical mind. He was among those I met during my first years in New York. Like so many of the millions seeking to make their way, he was busy about his affairs, and, fortunately with the limitations of the average man he had the ambitions of the average man. He was connected with one of those commercial agencies which inquire into the standing of business men and report their findings, for a price, to other business men. He was interested in his work and seemed satisfied that in time he was certain to achieve what was perhaps a fair enough ambition: management of some branch of the great concern he was connected with, and which might have paid him so much as five or six thousand a year. The thing about him that interested me, apart from a genial and pleasing disposition, was that with all this wealth of opportunity before him for studying the human mind, its resources and resourcefulness, its inhibitions and liberations, its humor, tragedy and general shiftness and changeableness, he concerned himself chiefly with the bare facts of the different enterprises whose character he was supposed to investigate. Were they solvent? Could and did they pay their bills? What was their capital stock? How much cash did they have on hand? . . . Such was the nature of the data he needed, and to this, largely, he confined himself.

Nevertheless, he was at times amused or astonished or made angry or self-righteous by the tricks, the subtleties, the errors and downright meanness of spirit of so many he came in contact with. As for himself, he had the feeling that he was a person of no little character, that he was honest, straightforward, not as limited or worthless as some of these others. On this score, as on some others, he was convinced that he would succeed. If a man did as he should do, if he were industrious, and honest and courteous and a few more of those many things we all know we ought to be, he was bound to get along better than those who did not. What! an honest, industrious, careful, courteous man not do better than those who are none of those things? What nonsense. It must be so. Of course there were accidents and sickness.

and men here and there stole from one another, as he saw well illustrated in his own labors; and banks failed. And there were trusts and combinations being formed even then which did not seem to be entirely in tune with the interests of the average man. But even so—all things considered—if the average man followed the above rules he was sure to fare better than the other fellow. There was such a thing as approximate justice. Good did prevail, in the main, and the wicked were punished.

As for love and marriage, he held definite views about these also. Not that he was unduly narrow or inclined to censure those whose lives had not worked out as well as he hoped his own would, but there was a fine line of fact somewhere in this matter of marriage which led to success also, quite as the qualities outlined above led, or should lead, to success in matters more material or practical. One had to understand a little something about women. One had to be sure that when one went a-courting one selected a woman of sense as well as charm, one who came of good stock and hence would be possessed of good taste and good principles. She need not be rich; she might even be poor. So many women were designing, or at least light and flighty; they could not help a serious man to succeed if they would. Everywhere, of course, was the worthy girl whom it was an honor to marry, and it was one of these he was going to choose. But even with one such it was necessary to exercise care; she might be too narrow and conventional.

In the course of time, having become secretary to a certain somebody, he encountered in his own office a girl who seemed to embody nearly all of the virtues and qualities which he thought necessary. She was the daughter of very modestly circumstanced parents who dwelt in the nearby suburb of —, and a very capable stenographer. She was really pretty but not very well informed, a girl who appeared to be practical and sensible, but still in leash to the tenets and instructions of her home, her church and her family circle, three worlds which were as fixed and definite and worthy as the most enthusiastic of those who seek to maintain the order and virtue of the world could have wished. For instance, she was opposed to the theater, dancing, night riding or visiting in the city, as well as anything that in her religious world might be construed as desecration of the Sabbath. I recall him describing her narrow "as yet" but he hoped to make her more liberal in time. He told me that he had been unable to win her to so simple an outing on the Sabbath as rowing on the little river near her home, that never would she stay downtown to dinner. As for the theater—it could not even be mentioned. She could not and would not dance, and looked upon such inclinations in him as not only worldly but loose and sinful. Although he prided himself on being liberal and even a radical, to her he pretended a profound indifference to such departures from conventions. He thought her too fine and intelligent a girl to stick to such notions, and was doing his best to influence and enlighten her. By slow degrees (he was about the business of courting her two or three years) he was able to bring her to the place where she would stay downtown for dinner on a weekday, and occasionally would attend a sacred or musical concert on a Sunday night. Also, which he considered a great triumph, he induced her to read certain books, especially bits of history and philosophy which he thought liberal and which no doubt generated some thin wisps of doubt in her own mind.

With their marriage came a new form of life for both of them, but more especially for her. They took a small apartment in New York, and it was not long before she joined a literary club that was being formed in their vicinity, where she met two restless, pushing, seeking women for whom he did not care—a Mrs. Drake and a Mrs. Munshaw, both of whom he flattered could be of no value to anyone. But Beesie liked them and spent a great deal of time with them. I visited them at their small apartment about this time, and found that she was proving a very apt pupil in the realm to which he had introduced her. It was plain that she had been emancipated from her old notions as to the sinfulness of the stage, as well as reading and living in general. Wray had proved to be the Prince Charming who had entered the secret garden and waked the sleeping princess to a world such as she had never dreamed of.

Whenever he met me after this he would confide the growing nature of his doubts and perplexities. Beesie was no more like the girl he had met in his office than he was like the boy he had been at ten years of age. She was becoming more aggressive, more inquisitive, more self-centered, more argumentative all the time, more this, more that. She did not like the same plays he liked; she wanted a play that was light and amusing, and she wanted one with some serious moral or intellectual twist to it. She read only serious books now and was interested in lectures, whereas he, as he now confessed, was more or less bored by serious books. She liked music, or was pretending that she did, grand opera, recitals and that sort of thing, whereas grand opera bored him. And yet if he would not accompany her she would go with one or both of those women he was beginning to detest. They seemed to have no household duties and could come and go as they chose. It was they who were aiding and abetting her in all these things and stirring her up to go and do and be. What was he to do? No good could come if things went on as they were now going. That was becoming to quarrel, and more than once lately she had threatened to leave him and do for herself, as he well knew she could.

In about two months after this Wray came to see me, and in a very distraught state of mind. After vainly attempting to discuss casual things casually he confessed that Beesie had left him. She had taken a room somewhere, had gone back to work, and would not accept any money from him. Although he met her occasionally in the subway she would have nothing to do with him. And would I believe it? She was accusing him of being narrow and ignorant and stubborn! And only three or four years before she had thought he was all wrong because he wanted to go rowing on Sunday! Could such things be? And still he loved her; he couldn't help it. He recalled how sweet and innocent and strange she had been when he first met her, how much she respected her parents' wishes, and how she, "I wish to God," he would occasionally say, "that I hadn't been in such a hurry to change her. She was all right then, if I had only known it. She wasn't interested in these d-d new-fangled things, and I wasn't satisfied until she was. And now see! She leaves me and says I'm narrow and trying to hold her back intellectually."

I shook my head. Of what value was advice in the face of such a situation as this, especially from one who was satisfied that the mysteries of temperament were not to be unraveled or adjusted save by nature? Nevertheless, being appealed to, I ventured a silly suggestion, borrowed from another. He had said that if he could only win her back he would be willing to modify the pointless opposition and contention that had driven her away. She might go her intellectual way as she chose, if she would only come back. . . . Seeing him so tractable and so very wishful, I suggested a thing another had done in a related situation. He was to win her back by offering her such terms as she would accept, and then, in order to bind her to him, he was to induce her to have a child. That would capture her sympathy and at the same time insinuate an image of himself into her affectionate consideration. Those who had children rarely separated—or so I said.

The thought interested him at once. It satisfied his practical and clerical soul. He left me hopefully and I saw nothing more of him for several months, when he came to report that all was well with him once more. In order to seal the new pact he had taken a large apartment in a more engaging part of the city. Beesie was going on with her club life, and he was not opposing her. And then within the year came a child and for the next two years all those simple, homey and seemingly binding and restraining things which go with the rearing and protection of a young life.

But, as I was soon to learn, even during that period all was not as smooth as might be. One day in Wray's absence Beesie remarked that, delightful as it was to have a child of her own, she could see herself as a little more than milk-cow with a calf, bound to its service until it would be able to look after itself. She spoke of what a chain and a weight a child was to one who had ambitions beyond those of motherhood. But Wray, clerical soul that he was, was all but lost in rapture. There was a small park nearby, and here he was to be found trundling this infant in a handsome baby carriage whenever his duties would permit. He lived his speculative life, the life of a speculator, the white face, the flash of haunted eyeballs. "Once I followed her to a restaurant when she said she was going to visit a friend, and she met a man. I followed them when they came out, and when they were getting into a cab I told them both what I thought of them. I threatened to kill them, and then he went away when she told him to go. When we got home I couldn't do anything with her. All she would say was that if I didn't like the way she was doing I could let her go. She wanted me to give her a divorce. And I couldn't let her go, even if I had wanted to. I loved her too much. Why, she would sit and read and ignore me for days—days, without ever a word."

"Yes," I said, "but the folly of it all. The uselessness, the hopelessness."

"Oh, I know, but I couldn't help it. I was crazy about her. The more she disliked me, the more I loved her. I have walked the streets for hours, whole days at a time, because I couldn't eat or sleep. And all I could do was think, think, think. And that is about all I do now, really. I have never been myself since she left. It's almost as bad right now as it was two years ago. I live in the old apartment, yes. But why? Because I think she might come back to me. I wait and wait. I know it's foolish, but still I wait. Why? God only knows. Oh," he sighed, "it's three years now—three years."

He paused and gazed at me, and I at him, shaken by a fact that was without solution by anyone. I wondered where she was, whether she was grappled by him. Once he said to me: "Do you know of a writer of the name of Pierre Loti?"

"Yes," I replied. "I know his works. What about it?"

"What do you think of him?"

"Why, I respect him very much. What about him?"

"Oh, I know, from an intellectual point of view, as a fine writer, maybe. But what do you think of his views of life—of his books as books to be read by the mother of a little girl?"

"Wray," I said, "I can't enter upon a discussion of any man's works upon purely moral grounds. He might be good for some mothers and evil for others. That is as you will. Those who are to be injured, and those who are to be benefited will be benefited. I can't discuss either books or life in that way. See how books are treated, representations of life in some form, nothing more. And it would be unfair to anyone who stood in intellectual need to be restrained from that which might prove of advantage to him. I speak only for myself, however."

It was not long after that, six months or less, that I heard there had been a new quarrel which resulted in Beesie's leaving him once more, and with her, which perhaps was illegal or unfair, she had taken the child of which he was so fond. Not hearing directly from him as to this, I called upon him after a time and found him living in the same large apartment they had taken. Apart from a solemnity and a reserve which sprang from a wounded and disgruntled spirit, he pretended an indifference to all that had happened with his state which did not square with his past love for her. She had gone, yes, and with another man. He was sure of that, although he did not know who the man was. It was all due to one of those two women about whom he had told me before, that Mrs. Drake. She had interested Beesie in things which did not and could not interest him. They were all alike, those people—gay and artful and insincere. After a time he added that he had been to see her parents. I could not guess why, unless it was because he was lonely and still very much in love and thought they might help him to understand the troublesome problem that was before him.

There was no other word from him for much over a year, during which time he continued to live in the apartment they had occupied together. He had retained his position with the agency and was now manager of a department. One rainy November night he came to see me, and seated himself before my fire. He looked well enough, quite the careful person who takes care of his clothes, but thinner, more tense and restless. He said he was doing very well and was thinking of taking a long vacation to visit some friends in the West. (He had heard that Beesie had gone to California.) Then of a sudden, noting that I studied him and wondered, he grew restless and finally got up to look at a shelf of books. Suddenly he wheeled and faced me, exclaiming: "I can't stand it. That's what's the matter. I've tried and tried. I thought that the child would make things work out all right, but it didn't. She didn't want children and never forgave me for having her. I've tried Marie. And that literary craze—but that was my fault. I was the one that encouraged her to read and go to the theaters. I used to tell her she wasn't up-to-date, that she ought to wake up and find out what was going on in the world, that she ought to get out with intelligent people."

But it wasn't that, either. If she had been the right sort of woman she couldn't have done as she has done."

He paused and clenched his hands nervously, as though he were denouncing her to her face instead of to me.

"Now, Wray," I interposed, "how useless to say that. Which of us is as he ought to be? Why will you talk so?"

"But let me tell you what she did," he went on fiercely. "You haven't an idea of what I've been through, not an idea. She tried to poison me once—"

And here followed a sad recital of the twists and turns and desperation of one who wished to be free. "And she was in love with another man, only I could never find out who he was." And he gave me details of certain mysterious goings to and fro, of secret pursuits on his part, of actions and evidences and moods and quarrels which pointed all too plainly to a breach that could never be healed.

"And what is more, she tortured me. You'll never know—you couldn't. But I loved her. And I love her now. Once more the tensely gazed fingers, the white face, the flash of haunted eyeballs. "Once I followed her to a restaurant when she said she was going to visit a friend, and she met a man. I followed them when they came out, and when they were getting into a cab I told them both what I thought of them. I threatened to kill them, and then he went away when she told him to go. When we got home I couldn't do anything with her. All she would say was that if I didn't like the way she was doing I could let her go. She wanted me to give her a divorce. And I couldn't let her go, even if I had wanted to. I loved her too much. Why, she would sit and read and ignore me for days—days, without ever a word."

"You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders."

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

NOT AS BAD AS IT SOUNDED

Woman Was Unduly Alarmed at Gruesome Story Which She Overheard in the Street Car.

A Columbus woman in a trip on an interurban car recently sat behind two women who were holding an animated conversation, the Indianapolis News relates. She paid no attention to the talk until a part of a sentence reached her ear, through the noise of the car—"In an awful fix, with both legs disjointed." The woman was impressed with this tale of suffering and while she was considering it another bit of the conversation was wafted to her ears over the roar of the wheels—"and one foot nearly off."

This was positively distressing, and the woman moved uneasily in her seat, stretching both feet to assure herself they were in proper condition. Buz, buz, went the voices, and then—"a hand all mashed." By this time the woman was having horrified visions of a mangled body. "A wreek," she said to herself, and to add to her horror the train made a sudden terrible jolt which sent her heart to her mouth, figuratively speaking. A smooth place in the road enabled her to hear the last of the gruesome tale: "It would cost as much to send it to a doll hospital as it would to get a new one, so I'm just going to buy her a new one."

Pretty Utility Blouses

Severity in tailored things has apparently made its exit. Even in blouses, soft and lustrous crepes, touches of embroidery and lace, and easy, gracious lines, make the utility garment a bit frivolous and distinctly feminine. The model shown here is an example with its little lace chemise, its plings, girle and simulated pockets of brown satin—the last touched up with silk and tinsel embroidery.

Crepe Again for Children

Wool crepe and silk crepe, too, are popular fabrics for little girls' dresses. And sometimes the two are combined as in the little frock illustrated, where a light-colored bodice is set on a darker skirt. Little buttons, placed in groups and a braided sash finish it.

TWO IN A PLOT

By A. W. PEACH

HAYES came abruptly into the room and examined himself carefully in the mirror, while his roommate, Allen Bowman, looked on with amusement.

As Hayes saw himself revealed he announced, "Al, I am about five times uglier than I was before!" Ignoring the surprise of his life today, I went into the gift shop to get some trinket for Hattie, and while I was at the counter, she came in, stood beside me, looked me over with some interest by the way, and never recognized me! I started to speak to her, then thought I'd see how long it would be before she caught on!

"Now that's a pretty note! Stand right beside the girl I am to marry in a few months and she doesn't know me. But I don't look like the old specimen she knew!"

When at the appointed hour, Hayes was introduced to the fair rose and silver girl, whose friendly, merry eyes were lifted to his with welcome, he almost "spilled the beans," as Allen said later, by a near approach to gathering her in his arms; but he shifted his action to a warm and admiring greeting.

The dinner went along famously. In response to questions Hayes described himself with glowing terms, while Allen labored to suppress an appreciative grin. Hattie's dark eyes were sincere and earnest when "Van Rea," as Allen had introduced him, told some of the dangers that Hayes was meeting in the Americas.

When the time came for parting later in the evening Hattie's eyes told a story of their interest in the tall, distinguished engineer from the tropics, and her interest gave Hayes a queer thrill.

The two men talked it over in their rooms. Allen was gleeful. "For once she stumbled, old man. You certainly made a handsome picture across the table—and the bluff you put up, why, it was immense!"

Hayes laughed. "I used to think I might make an actor."

The next morning Allen came from the telephone with his familiar grin extended. "Say, Hattie wants me to get up a party for a drive along the shore and supper afterward. Are you on? Who'd she be in love with?"

"Sure," Hayes agreed. "We might as well square accounts with her now as any time."

So the drive came about—a long glide in a great car along the beautiful coast to a hidden inn, then dinner, music, dancing, and the hushed sweep through the moonlight home.

Tucked in beside him, Hayes had all he could do to keep himself from drawing her firm, slight body close to him and kissing the fragrant lips that chattered with him. As the miles went by he was startled to find she was snuggling a bit nearer him, and her gloved hand touched his hesitatingly. It might have been all perfectly natural and possible, but—

"By George, Al, I'm afraid this game is going too far! I almost believe she's falling in love with me!" he said, once more in their rooms.

Allen stared, then chuckled. "I thought she looked kind-a mooney at you. Man, you make a handsome picture beside that leather-faced Yankee, Hayes, down in Brazil!"

Hayes did not rise to the comment. "But, man, it might be a serious thing—a girl falling in love with the chap she's already in love with!"

Allen "haw-hawed" in a manner always irritating to Hayes' nerves. "You're right! She might like Van Rea more than she likes Bill Hayes—that would be a mess! Har-har!"

"I think the time's ripe to call this off! The joke is on her good and proper—what's that! the telephone?"

It was Hayes answered. He heard the sweet voice of the girl he loved as he had heard it in dreams many times in the night watches of his exile, but this time beneath its music there was something else. She said:

"That you, dear Van Rea. Please shove off that head—I will NOT be kissed by a man with a beard; and come tomorrow, alone, Will, I can't wait any longer to have you—just you." The wistful, tender accent vanished. "I didn't know you in the shop, but you better bring two gifts, don't you think? And tell Allen I want to speak to him. Good night—"

If her last words had not died in his heart as softly as the strains of distant music, he would have said something, but under some spell, he simply turned and went to Allen's bedroom. "Call for you, Al."

When Allen had returned, his grin had vanished save for a faint ripple.

The two men looked at each other. "She asked me how much the drive down the bay cost?" Allen held up his hands in surrender. "And she put me up to it, knowing all the time! By all my lures and penates, or whatever those heathen gods were, I shall never enter a plot with another clump to fool a woman, least of all Mrs. Billy Hayes to be! I thought it was dumb funny she wanted to hire that big car when she's got one of her own that she might have invited us to go in!"

"There were lots of things about that funny about it when you come to think it over!" Hayes agreed, driving a pair of shears through the graceful point of his Van Dyke. "One thing is the idea I had that I was a whole of an actor!"

women's clubs.

These club programs include clothing, food, poultry, gardening, home management, and household decoration. Under food the clubs include the study of the Family Diet, the hot school lunch, a poultry food budget, meal preparation and planning, etc. Clothing work embraces the making of the paper dress form, the use and modification of patterns, the drafting of patterns, infants' and children's clothing, remodeling, trimmings and accessories, house dresses and aprons. Home methods of cleaning and dyeing, directions and patterns for housemade toys, and other Christmas suggestions, and millinery. Poultry culling, diseases, housing, the care of baby chicks and turkey raising are all part of the poultry work that is being done.

Pictures and Appetites.
Christiania, Norway, has a restaurant where the "feast of reason and flow of soul" is nightly associated with crowded tables. A Norwegian painter of repute was engaged to decorate the walls of the dining saloon. When he had completed the work, he could not obtain payment, and took the proprietor to court.

The owner declared the pictures were inartistic and drove customers away. He wanted the artist to pay for erasing the paintings, and also to pay for another to decorate the walls in a more attractive manner. Several critics bore testimony to the excellence of the work. While the court is considering the question, the restaurant is crowded nightly with guests more critical of its pictures than of its viands.

Merchants and Farmers build and own Railroads

The Hall Mark of Service

Samuel Harden Church, President of the Carnegie Institute, in a recent statement, says:

"The railroads were not built by railroad men, and they are not owned by railroad men. They were built by the merchants and farmers of the United States, and they are now owned indirectly by all of the people of the United States.

"The whole splendid system of railroads as it exists today was built with capital, energy and brains furnished by American business men and American farmers with the high purpose of developing the commercial and agricultural interests of the country.

"Every one knows that as soon as the iron horse drew his shadow across the land the farms which the Government could scarcely give away suddenly jumped in value to fifty or a hundred dollars an acre, because the railroads had supplied them with the means of development, production and distribution.

"When the railroads are making plenty of money every shop is humming a song of happiness and every farm is growing rich."

THE RAILROADS OWNED BY ALL THE PEOPLE
merit the support, friendship and cooperative interest of the people—Hostility to your own property, either by legislation or individual act, does not accord with self-interest or the good judgment and common sense, so characteristic of American citizenship.

BOWLING AT COUNTRY CLUB

Latest Improved Pin Spotting Device Has Been Installed, Which Should Result in Better Scores

Preparations are now well under way for the fall bowling tournament at the Riverton Country Club. During the summer the club installed in each alley the latest improved pin spotting device at considerable expense.

In a recent communication addressed to the bowling members, an expression was solicited as to the most convenient time in the evening to start games, with the following result:

17 preferred 7:30 p. m. 15 preferred 7:45 p. m. 29 preferred 8:00 p. m.

Prizes as usual will be awarded to each member of the winning team, the best individual score and high individual average.

Owing to the popularity of these tournaments it has been necessary to organize a new team, under the leadership of a captain whose name will be announced at a later date.

The lineup of the teams and the schedule for the first tournament follows:

Table with columns for Bowling Teams 1923, listing names of team members and their respective roles (Capt., Vice-Capt., etc.) for teams 1 through 14.

Bowling Schedule 1923

Table showing bowling schedules for various teams (Oct. 17-21, Nov. 1-5, Dec. 1-5) across different alleys (1 & 2, 3 & 4, etc.)

KIWANIS TO CONVENE

Bill Bottger Will Take Delegation to Newark

The fifth annual convention of the New Jersey Kiwanis district will be held at Newark on October 12 and 13.

Kiwanian Bill Bottger, of the local Bell Telephone Co., is chairman of the local convention committee, and is arranging to take over a large delegation from South Jersey.

Arrangements have been made with the Pennsylvania Railroad to furnish a special train of parlor cars, leaving Atlantic City at 7 a. m. and Camden at 8:40 a. m.

A very elaborate program of entertainment has been prepared for the ladies attending the convention, and Kiwanis "Bill" has a surprise in store on train trip.

The Kiwanis district golf championship will be held October 11, 1923. Palmyra is represented by Kiwanian Frank A. Mathews, Jr., and George W. Dold.

Thursday, October 25th, is donation day at Aged Women's Home at Burlington. Jars have been placed in several stores for contributions.

Anyone wishing to donate groceries, canned goods, or anything useful in the Home, if they will telephone Riverton 254 it will be called for by Mrs. Thomas Murphy, a member of Board of Managers.

Asbury

Prayer meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Giberson, Union Landing, on Tuesday evening.

Isaiah Ward, Mrs. Aaron Ward and daughter, May, Miss Ada Southwick, of Asbury, Levi Abramowitz and son, Charles, of Fairview, motored to the Trenton Fair on Wednesday.

The display of flowers, fruits and vegetables were one of the prettiest attractions of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sievers and family, of Philadelphia, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Southwick.

Mrs. George Moore visited her grandmother, Mrs. Mary L. Foster, of Asbury, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Giberson and son, Franklin, of Union Landing, attended the Trenton Fair on Thursday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dudley, of Riverside, and daughter, Mrs. Mary Heck, of Fairview, spent the Friday with Mrs. Thornton Southwick.

Cinnaminson

Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfshmidt, of Riverton, and Mrs. John Coles, of Cinnaminson, attended the Trenton Fair on Wednesday.

One of the marvelous features of the day was the Ciminjotti's Horses—nine horses taking part. Eight of these were cream with white main and tails, and some were snow-white.

The leader was a jet black stallion. This horse led about twenty feet ahead of the others, who came in marching eight abreast.

They saluted by kneeling down. They also went through a drill, while the band played "Marching through Georgia." They also saluted the flag while music was being played.

Raymond Coles, of Cinnaminson, and another young man were severely burnt on their hands and legs one day last week when some chemical which they were using caught fire, while working for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Coles has been able to work since the accident. The burns had to be treated by a doctor, and are now doing nicely.

Nigerian Products

A Nigerian trade review shows that goatskins used in making the finest boots, go mainly to the American market.

Palm kernels from the south, especially Yorubaland, are extracted from the shells by hand. Before the war most of the kernels went to Germany, whence in consequence Great Britain had to import a large proportion of the oil required for making margarine.

The export of palm kernels is over 200,000 tons, while that of palm oil is over 100,000 tons. The oil supplies work for men, as the kernels for women. It enters into the manufacture of soap and candles.

The value of the tin ore production is between one and two millions sterling. The distance of the tin fields from the coast is a handicap to the trade. Railway expansion has made things easier, the light railway to Bakura, built for the purpose, having proved most successful.

Old Man's Marital Philosophy

A ninety-year-old bridegroom started his sixth honeymoon walking part way from Wisconsin, Wis., to Ohio, said, Ohio, with his twenty-six-year-old bride, as an example for other young married couples.

"Ninety is a lot more sensible age to get married at than nineteen, like a lot of them young saps do," he said. "When a man is ninety he has good sense, so he don't make mistakes. I started marrying when I was twenty-three. I'm sorta getting used to it by now. When you haven't had more than one wife, you don't know anything." Mary Jane, his wife, said it was love at first sight.

"He met and married me in an hour," she said. "He wanted some one to do housework and I said I would take the job. Then he asked me if I wouldn't marry him."

Poison Cure for Rheumatism

Forty-seven rattlesnakes captured at Black's creek, about twelve miles from Boise, Idaho, have been sent by Robert Lambert to the Dutch government for experimental work.

The Dutch government is perfecting a serum which, when combined with the poison from rattlesnakes and injected into the muscles will, it is claimed, cure rheumatism. Lambert said. It took less than an hour and a quarter to bag the reptiles. They were found in a space 50 feet square.

Lambert stated that the removal of the fangs does not, as commonly believed, render snakes harmless, for other fangs will grow in about three weeks.

Market Demand for Cotton Cloth

The cotton cloth used in the manufacture of bags for the cement trade last year would make a strip thirty inches wide and 17,000 miles long, or one that would reach two-thirds around the earth at the equator.

Monday

Through storm and shine your head is lifted high. Above the farms and fields, against the sky.

You smile in morning sun and evening light. And hold your watch alone, through all the night, Monday.

To you December's blast or June's soft air. That whispers through the trees, in evening fair. Are all the same. Your patient, silent face.

Remains the same, for Heaven gives you grace, Monday. What is your secret, what the hidden tale?

That hides in legend old from which we fall. To learn the lesson, and to learn we ought. For you shall be instructor, we the taught, Monday.

"Ages have passed, but it becomes my name. Steadfast, alone, to stand, always the same. The sun and moon and stars are true to me. Because I'm true to them—shall ever be" Monday.

Thanks, many thanks, good friend of years, so true. Standing above the clouds, in heavenly blue. So strong and silent, and, alone, you show. That character transcends all things below, Monday.

A. G. MORSE.

MISS RUPPERT STARS

Palmyra Girl Wins 50-yard Dash Championship at Big National Meet Held at Newark

Palmyra's famous track star, Miss Frances J. V. Ruppert, again shone very brightly last Saturday.

It was in the big national meet held at Newark, and it was at this time that the fair sprinter realized her ambition to meet the renowned Marion McCarty, of New York.

They met in two events. Miss McCarty came out the winner in one and in the other Frances turned the tables on her rival.

The New Yorker is said to have won the fifty-yard dash event by six inches. It was rather doubtful to many witnesses that she was even victorious in this event, but after consulting for some time the judges announced Miss McCarty the winner by less than a foot.

The time of this thrilling final was 6-5-3 sec. Miss Ruppert, however, took the measure of the City Bank of New York star in the 100-yard dash event. Her time was 12 seconds flat and she crossed the tape over a foot ahead of the New York competitor.

These two events were the main features of this big national meet for women in which over two hundred of America's best girl athletes were entered.

The Palmyra girl is now recognized as the American woman 100-yard dash champion. She is the Middle Atlantic 50-yard dash champ and a member of the Meadowbrook girls' relay team which is the best in the country.

Our young Miss Ruppert is certainly well supplied with titles. Saturday's meet also made it possible to add to her already exceptionally large and well-filled trophy case. By winning the century she received a large gold medal and the second place in the 100-yard dash.

She also wins a prize for the membership of the track team which equaled its mark established a few weeks ago.

Epworth Church News

The rally day service in the Sunday School was very well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The program of the afternoon follows: piano solo by Miss Mary Kershner; singing by school; short prayers by department superintendents and pastor; singing by school; reading of the Scripture by Associate Superintendent C. H. Westcott; solo, "Remember Thy Creator in the Days of Thy Youth," by Alfred Van Osten, school chorister; graduating exercises by the senior, intermediate, junior, primary, business, and adult departments; adjustment of class books; address by the Rev. Fred B. Morley; singing; announcements and doxology.

Two hundred and thirteen pupils were promoted at the graduating exercises, the largest number in the school's history. The Rev. Mr. Morley substituted for Dr. Francis Green, headmaster of Riverton school, as the speaker of the afternoon.

October will be observed as Go-to-Church Month. The pastor, the Rev. Fred B. Morley, is striving to have every member present at church service during the month. Next Sunday at the morning service which starts at 10:30 there will be reception of members and Holy Communion.

Epworth League Sunday evening at 7 o'clock with "The Naturalness of Prayer" as the topic. Earl R. VanLuen, the newly-elected president of the league, will be the leader. At the evening worship, which starts at 7:45, the pastor will have "Go Forward" as the subject of his sermon.

Sunday School at 2:30 p. m. Next Wednesday, October 10th, "Christian Fellowship" will be the study subject at prayer meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ushers' Association will be held in the church Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Alfred S. VanOsten, the Sunday School chorister, will be in charge of the choir rehearsals during the month of October. The rehearsals will be held in the church every Friday evening, starting promptly at 8 o'clock. Any former members of the choir or anyone having any vocal ability are invited to join at this time.

Defining the Sex

Little Evelyn was in the grocery store with her baby brother Billy the other day. A man went by and spoke to Billy. The baby did not answer, whereupon the gentleman said to Evelyn, "She won't speak to me today."

Evelyn proudly answered, "She says a bar; he's a him."

Too Firm

A dispatch records that the money market in the metropolis is very firm—a statement with which we are in perfect accord. In fact, so far as we personally are concerned, the money market is firm to the point of obstinacy.

Impetuous Things

What is needed is the realization that order and cleanliness, care and appreciation are absolutely essential to the city beautiful, whether it exists in fact or is still the dream of seafaring chrysalis.

P. E. S.

The receipts of the cake sale held by members of the hockey team at Buohl's corner last Saturday afternoon and evening amounted to more than a hundred dollars.

This goes over the mark set by the football team the Saturday before. A beautiful booth was erected on the corner and it was from this the girls sold their cakes and candy.

Forty-five members of the football squad attended the Penn-Franklin and Marshall game at Franklin field last Saturday afternoon as the guests of the University of Pennsylvania.

The entire squad has received an invitation to attend the Penn-Maryland game at Franklin Field this Saturday afternoon.

Coach Ivory has been putting the squad through some exceptionally stiff workouts during the past week in preparation for the first game of the season, which is to be played with Moorestown at Moorestown this Friday afternoon.

A number of the boys were over to Moorestown last Friday when their rivals played their first game against Collingswood.

The Moorestown lads lost but by a very small score. The local students who witnessed this game predict a victory for Palmyra but also say it will not be without a hard battle.

Carl Lutz reports everything in readiness for the big A. A. dance to be held in the P. O. S. of A. Hall this Saturday evening. A lively jazz orchestra, known as the "Wanderers of Trenton" has been engaged for the occasion. The hall will be beautifully decorated with maroon and white, the school colors.

Preparations are being made for a football hop to be held the latter part of November.

The school board has ordered that hazing must positively be abandoned in the high school. This order does not meet with the approval of some of the present freshmen for they had already planned to get some sweet revenge on next year's crop of freshmen. This ban was necessitated as the result of some painful injuries being received when some of the boys were duly initiated into high school life this year.

Five games will be played at home by the eleven this year and four are scheduled for away. The schedule is as follows:

Oct. 5—Moorestown, away. Oct. 12—Trenton School for Deaf, home.

Oct. 19—Haddonfield, away. Oct. 26—BURLINGTON, home. Oct. 30—Princeton, home.

Nov. 2—Pemberton, home. Nov. 9—Haddon Heights, home. Nov. 16—BURLINGTON, away. Nov. 23—Cape May, away.

Newest Set-in-Sleeve, Full Under-Arm Line

This model illustrates the smart use of stripes. The semi-sports tailleur presents the new set-in sleeve, a full under-arm line and beautifully embroidered pockets.

Imported Fall Hats

Display Gay Colors Judging from the summary of colors made by the style reporters of the Retail Millinery Association of America from the early imports of French hats for fall, the season will be almost as colorful as the current one.

This is what the association's bulletin has to say about it: "The entire brown family will score again. Amethyst is suggested by the leading modistes. Some bright yellow is seen, but it is an open question as to whether it will remain very long. Bottle green is seen a good deal, and bright Egyptian blue tones up the autumn range. Indigo and navy are in the forefront of the blues."

"The current red vogue promises to be toned down to wine shades for the next season, with coral and geranium. Dark seal and Titian brown promise very well. So does gray, but beige is doubtful. In the metallic colors silver has the call. A feature of the incoming hats is the exploitation of color in the facings of mushroom and cloche shapes."

"In the materials metal brocades show up very strongly, and the combination of pinks, velvets and felt is seen. Some use of leopard-hat plush is noted. Wide ribbons of satin and velvet are used to make entire hats. In hand effects hatters' plush and Lyons velvet combine, but velvet of this type is easily the peerless fabric for fall."

Furnishings of Homes

Civilization's Register When you step into a tasteful, modern furnished room, do you realize, even in a small degree, what a factor the furnishing of your home is in the whole scheme of modern civilization?

Plain Tailor-Mades for Fall and Winter Wear

The fall and winter seasons of 1923-4 will witness a gain in production and distribution of plain and simple dress goods.

With the heads, backs and busts of women everywhere decorated with embroidery, it seems to be a logical conclusion that the smart set will be driven to the other extreme, viz., plain tailor-mades, if they wish to appear as being distinctively dressed.

In the exclusive New York shopping district one notes coat dresses made from navy blue westered tulle and bearing all the earmarks of a skilled ladies' tailor.—Dry Goods Economist.

Modern Cabinets

The modern cabinets are so attractive in their proportions and dash, and possess a certain mysterious interest suggested by their closed doors, that they are considered almost indispensable for the living room made to live in.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Discourtesy Reproved. "Not long ago," writes J. E. "I witnessed the following incident: A young woman entered a crowded street car and a man arose and offered her his seat, which she accepted in a haughty manner and without a word of thanks. A white-haired, kindly-faced elderly woman who sat opposite looked surprised, and pained. She rose, and with a bow and a smile, said to the man, 'For the reputation of our sex, sir, I must thank you for your courtesy.' The haughty young woman flushed at the deserved reproof and got off at the next station.

Secret of Success. The surest road to inspiration is preparation. The more valuable you are naturally the harder you ought to labor. A natural gift is a fatal snare for the indolent. I have seen many brilliant men caught and arrested by their own talents. I have seen many men of undoubted courage and capacity fall for lack of industry. On the other hand, I have seen many a clumsy but persevering tortoise waddle successfully to the goal.—Rt. Hon. D. Lloyd George.

Drawing a Fine Line. Many Indianapolis needy people go to a certain charity worker for advice as well as for aid. The other day a colored woman came with a lacerated face. She told her story in plain language. Her husband had beat her whenever he wanted exercise. She wanted the charity woman to tell her how to cure him of the "fault."

The charity worker looked at her a few minutes. Then she said: "A man who beats a woman needs pretty severe treatment. Have you a rolling pin?"

For a minute the colored woman stared at her. Then she caught at what the other woman was suggesting. "No, I ain't got no rollin' pin," she returned, "but, lady, I has got a razor."—Indianapolis News.

GIRLS LOSE AT HOCKEY

Woodbury Defeats Palmyra High by Four Goals to None

The girls' hockey team of Palmyra High School lost its initial contest of the season when it met the strong Woodbury aggregation at Woodbury last Wednesday afternoon. When the final whistle blew it found the score standing 4 to 0 in favor of Woodbury.

Miss Hillman, of Woodbury, who was one of the stars of the game, made the first goal a few minutes after the starting of the first period. This hardly met with the approval of our local masses, but it seemed to make their opponents play much better, for they succeeded in running up three more points during the course of the game and the maiden of P.H.S. were blanked.

The lineup: Positions Woodbury

LOUGHLIN JAILED AGAIN

Farmer Sentenced for Being Drunk and Disorderly

William Loughlin, a farmer who lives on Public road, was arrested by Chief of Police C. Morris Beck on the charge of being drunk and disorderly Sunday. He was also charged with assault and battery, having beaten his son-in-law, George Pierce, who lives with the Loughlin family, a few minutes prior to his arrest.

Loughlin was taken before Justice of the Peace William L. Fichter Monday morning. A fine of $30 and costs, which Loughlin was unable to pay, was imposed. He was then sentenced to 60 days at the county jail. This was Loughlin's third offense. Early in August he was arrested on assault and battery charges preferred by his wife, but was released after being severely reprimanded. A few days later he was again taken in custody on same charges with drunkenness and disorderly added. This time he was sentenced to the county jail for 30 days but was released after serving about half of the term.

Fellowship Meeting

A cordial invitation has been extended to all members of the Y.W.C.A. in Burlington county to bring their friends and come to a basket supper which will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry H. Albertson on Oxmead road, in Burlington, on Saturday, the 20th of October, at 2 o'clock. It is to be in the nature of a "get together" party so that the county may become acquainted with the services of the Association and with those who are working in its interests.

Supper on lawn is to be preceded by a program which will be in the charge of the delegates to the Y.W.C.A. conferences this summer. Each group is planning some stunt or activity to represent the life and inspiration of Conferences—because summertime has come to mean conference time to so many of the clubs of the county.

Miss Lillian Hoffman, of Burlington, who was the leader of the group which went to the girl reserve conference at Altamont, is planning the supper for that group.

The colored industrial conference group from Cheney, Pa., will be represented by Mrs. Gertrude Williams, of Moorestown, who was its leader. Miss Ruth King, of Palmyra, and Miss Helen Jones, of Burlington, will have charge of plans for the Silver Bay Conference at which this was the largest county group present.

With such an interesting program and the well-known hospitality of Mrs. Albertson, Saturday the 20th, promises to be an exceptional afternoon for Y.W.C.A. members in Burlington county.

Burr-Kirby

A very pretty autumn wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, in the Methodist Church, Palmyra, when Miss Kathryn E. Kirby, daughter of Joseph M. Kirby, became the bride of Mr. Burr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Burr.

The bride, who wore a dress of dark blue Roshanara crepe, embroidered in gray, with hat to match, was attended by Miss Gertrude Karns, of Montclair, as maid of honor. She wore a frock of brown Roshanara crepe embroidered with chenille, with hat to match. Mrs. Albert Major, sister of the bride, wore a dress of honor. She wore a frock of brown Roshanara crepe, brocaded, with hat to match. The bride's bouquet was lilies-of-the-valley and orchids, and the maid of honor carried bouquets of yellow tea roses.

Mr. Burr was attended by his brother, Marvin Burr, and the ushers were Lloyd Jackson and Albert Major.

A reception at the church to about a hundred guests followed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. F. E. Morley. Mr. and Mrs. Burr left immediately on their wedding trip, and upon their return will reside with their parents at 402 Linden avenue, Riverton.

County Sunday School Convention and Younger Workers Banquet

J. Cresswell Stuart, Beverly, chairman of the Young People's division of the County Sunday School organization, announces that a young people's banquet will be held in St. Andrew's parish house, Mount Holly, Wednesday evening, October 17th, at 6:30 o'clock. This is the evening previous to the county Sunday School convention scheduled for Thursday, October 18th, in the Methodist Church, Mount-Holly, with sectional conferences for various phases of Sunday School work, scheduled for the afternoon session, which will be held simultaneously in the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches.

Miss Edna Lloyd will assist in the conference of the children's division.

Hallow-e'en Party

The committee having charge of the celebration on Hallow-e'en report that the town people are entering enthusiastically into the celebration. There will be a number of money prizes offered for the best costumes, fancy and comic for men, women and children.

The judges selected to make the awards are Mayor James T. Weart, Prof. A. S. Griffith, William T. J. Parnell, Frank E. Chambers, and A. S. King.

State Forester Calls Attention to Toll of First Six Months of 1923

In connection with National Fire Prevention Day proclaimed by the President for October 9, State Forester C. J. Wilber calls attention to the toll New Jersey's forests paid last spring to the fire enemy. From January 1 to July 1, 1923, there were 109,000 acres burned by 961 fires. The actual money loss because of these fires was frightful, the cost of fighting them alone ran over $36,000. Mr. Wilber points out that, while forest fires are only one part of the appalling fire problem in America, yet forest fires probably touches personally a greater number of people than those of any other class.

P. H. S.

The Athletic Association of the High School held a dance in P. O. S. of A. Hall, Saturday evening, the 6th, which was a huge success. A miniature stage was erected on the present stage and was built of colored crepe paper. The school banner was placed in back of this and was illuminated by a spot light, giving a beautiful effect. The hall was decorated with the colors of red and white.

The football eleven tackles the Trenton School for Deaf this Friday afternoon. The game starts at 3:30 and will be played at The Field Club track. A large crowd is expected, due to the splendid showing the team made against Moorestown last Friday when it won by a score of 12-0.

The game proved to the many Palmyra rooters that this year Palmyra has a fighting team on both the defense and offense. The local bunch outplayed their rivals in every stage of the game. The ball was in Moorestown's territory during practically the entire game. When it came to open field running Calvin Boal, of Palmyra, rivaled the performances of Flies, the U. of P. star at Franklin Field. Boal, time after time, ran around the ends for long gains. He also featured on the defensive end of the game by getting some brilliant tackles.

"B" Stackhouse, who made his debut as a football player in this game, played wonderfully. It was he who repeatedly tore into the Moorestown line, for long gains. He was the young gentleman who scored Palmyra's first touchdown of the season, which was also the first of the game. The half back positions were filled by Wood and Kersey. Both played good football. Wood continually hit the line or made end runs for good gains. Kersey had an off day. Roy didn't seem to be able to hold the ball at first and made three fumbles. He did hold onto the ball over the line for Palmyra's second and final touchdown.

The line deserves considerable credit for the boys opened holes in the Moorestown line large enough to drive a team of horses through.

The rooting of the fans was great. The team had a large delegation with it and the local people filled the air with yells throughout the entire game. Support of the home town people is what the team needs and apparently is going to get this season. Palmyra's rooters out-numbered the Moorestown crowd by a large percentage although the game was played at Moorestown.

Many Towns to Compete in Better Milk Show

"How good is the milk served in our town?"

Residents of numerous New Jersey towns will get an answer to this vital question, next January, when local health authorities enter samples of the community's milk supply in the market milk contest of the New Jersey Farm Products Show. This big show will be staged, as in previous years, at the Trenton Armory, under auspices of the State Department of Agriculture. Three classes of milk to be judged will permit practically every community to enter the contest. These classes include certified milk, raw milk from tuberculin tested cattle and pasteurized milk. Samples will be collected from milk wagons, on the street, without preliminary notice to dealers, by local agents. These samples, carefully packed and preserved, will be forwarded to Trenton, where they will be analyzed by competent judges. Awards will be made on a basis of butter fat, quality, purity and cleanliness.

Women's clubs throughout the State are interesting themselves in the campaign for a better milk supply and many of these clubs are urging local health boards to have samples of their community's milk supply entered for the big contest. Montclair at present holds State honors for the best milk, having captured the highest awards for two years. Instructions and forms for entering milk samples in the coming competition are being prepared by the State Department of Agriculture.

Always in Order. Ever since there have been old folks there have always been people to wonder what the young folks are thinking of.

Thought for the Day. Some men spend more money trying to be a "good fellow" than they do trying to be a good husband or father.

JUDGE WELLS SPEAKER

Stresses Importance of Getting Every Voter Out. Mingen Explains Duties of Election Officers

Duties of election officers and other officials having to do with the coming election were explained in excellent addresses made by Judge Harold B. Wells, of Bordentown, and Lawrence C. Mingen, of Medford, at a meeting of the Burlington County Republican committee held in the Court House, Mount Holly, last Monday night. The meeting, which was presided over by Charles R. Stout, of Florence, the county chairman, was well attended and full of interest.

Mr. Mingen was called on to explain the duties of election officers, the duties of members of the County Committee, and the duties of the challengers.

Following Mr. Mingen, Judge Wells gave a talk to the members of the County Committee in which he outlined their work and said that an organization was necessary to get out the vote on election day. Judge Wells put stress on the importance of having every possible voter go to the polls. Other matters in connection with County Committee and the coming election were covered by the judge in an appealing manner.

Other addresses were made by Clifford R. Powell, of Mount Holly, candidate for assembly; Joseph B. Fleetwood, of Mount Holly, candidate for sheriff; J. Lloyd Wright, candidate for boardman; candidate for coroner, and Henry I. Worrell, of Mount Holly, candidate for auditor.

Alfonzo Adams, of Florence, clerk of the Burlington County Board of Freeholders, has been made assistant secretary of the County Committee. William H. Heisler, of Pemberton, is the secretary.

A question box was installed in connection with the meeting. Some fifty questions were dropped in the box and answered at the session.

It is significant of the spirit of the present county committee that meetings are frequently called to discuss matters of party concern, that these meetings are always largely attended, that every member present is urged to express his or her opinion. These meetings are attended by men and women members, and the strength of the Republican party in Burlington county today lies in the fact that it is in the hands of the Republican voters, whose opinions can be heard in the party councils through their representatives—the members of the county committee elected from each district.

Applied Psychology Classes

The Emma A. Price School of Music announces the opening of applied psychology classes, conducted by Carol N. Stine: Inspiration, Conversation, Dramatic Characterization, Salesmanship, Public Speaking, Interpretation of Literature, Poetic Expression.

The mind functions and is of value to a man, according to his mental digestion in mind in the same manner as good food makes the body strong and useful when it is perfectly assimilated.

Are we taking into our minds the right kind of food? Are we turning that same material food into red-blooded ideas thru proper reflection in order that we may grow efficient magnetic personalities?

Each individual is but a mirror reflecting his own thoughts.

Expression is the result of impression.

We are limited in expression to the degree in which we absorb that which we take into our minds.

It is not how much we take in but how much is expressing itself in original work that counts toward man's success.

The man who is doing things is the man who is needed—and to do things we must keep the mind happily engaged in its work, viz: Observation, Imagination, Memory, Recollection, Will Power, Emotion.

Mrs. Stine will personally conduct classes once each week. Course opens Monday afternoon, October 15th, at 3 p. m., 416 Lippincott avenue, Riverton. First lesson will be an open meeting. Work for season will be mapped out. All persons interested are invited to investigate. Mrs. Stine will be glad to answer questions. Children's classes Monday, October 15th at 4:30 p. m. Private lessons by appointment. —Advertisement

Riverton Football

Last Saturday the Riverton football team played for the first time on the new athletic field at Seventh street and Cedar avenue, and managed to defeat the strong West Phillies team 12 to 0 in an interesting hard fought game, which was witnessed by large crowd of enthusiastic rooters. Both teams deserve credit for the clean sportsmanship they displayed, neither of them having a penalty called on them, during the whole game, or disputing any discussions of the officials.

The features of the game were the line plunging by Hollingshead, the defensive work of the Riverton ends, especially that of William Faunce, the forward pass thrown by Hylton to Bowers that scored the last touchdown and the West Phillies certainly showed a fine aerial attack in the third and fourth period where they threatened to score on a couple of occasions.

Three Robberies at East Riverton

Three homes in East Riverton were broken into on Friday night. At the home of Mrs. John Kern, Union Landing Road, entrance was gained by boring a hole in the door. Nothing was taken but an automobile key. Miss Reba Kern notified the police department at three o'clock Saturday morning, and Officer Miller and Officer Quigley immediately started an investigation. She and her mother were awakened by a noise downstairs and they shot a revolver out of the window, which frightened away the intruder.

Detective Parker was called and he, with the officers, continued their investigation on Saturday. They found where he had slept the night before, in a corn field on the Kerns farm. The other homes entered were Mrs. Ida Grant, where they took about $16 worth of "cats," including a ham and a cake, and William Watkins, where nothing was missed.

Asbury

Mrs. Lillie Ward entertained Mrs. George McCann, of Camden, on Wednesday, and Mrs. Frank Coles, Jr., and daughter, Helen, Misses Laura and Edna Coles, of Cinnaminson, and Mrs. Alfred Giberson on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Silas Boyer, of Camden, visited her aunt, Mrs. Mary L. Foster, on Friday.

Rev. Fred E. Tansley and wife motored to Trenton on Monday, to attend a church meeting. A bishop from the New England States was one of the speakers.

Cinnaminson

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clois Shivers and child, of Cinnaminson, No. 2, motored to Atlantic City on Sunday, September 30.

Mr. Dunkley, who was working for Dr. Dorrance on Campbell's farm No. 1, resigned his position and went back to his home in Ohio.

THE NEWS

By MOLLIE MATHER

JOHN GAIL

JOHN GAIL, walked uneasily the length of the veranda, then came to stand before Linnette, with her bright quick glance and wistful smile. Linnette was a wistful, small person altogether. Perhaps it was her soft, shy appeal, which had caught Gerald Spaulding's exacting attention. John looked upon the girl with a certain authority for the fact—the girl happens to be a particular friend of my mother.

There was no bright answering glance this time from Linnette—no smile. John continued: "I know he has been taking you around a lot, and I know he is fascinating to women. Heaven knows why—some mysterious feminine illusion. And down in Georgia, where he spent last winter, one charming pretty creature broke her heart over him. Forgotten to mention this engagement of long standing while he courted the winter months away. Nearer home there's another fine girl who believes herself engaged to him. Linnette, has Spaulding been protesting love to you?"

"Friend," he began, "I want you to tell me the truth. Has Jerry Spaulding been making love to you? Because if he has—" John went on hastily, ignoring the flush of indignation which colored her cheek—"I must warn you, Linnette, that he is engaged to a girl in his own home city. Very best authority for the fact—the girl happens to be a particular friend of my mother."

"I know he has been taking you around a lot, and I know he is fascinating to women. Heaven knows why—some mysterious feminine illusion. GOOD WILL

It's not what we have done for our customers, but it's the way we have done it, that has secured their good will.

It's not attending to the routine banking functions which we're obliged to perform, but it's the going out of our way voluntarily to be helpful to all, that has made people speak well of us.

Helpfulness, or courtesy in action, is not selective in this bank. We never hesitate before rendering a service, nor discriminate between customers—all are valued friends.

We cordially invite everyone to use this service which our depositors have found so helpful, and which has given to us our biggest asset—their good will.

TROLLEY PLAN IS BEING WATCHED

Utility Board Chairman Says Inequalities Will Be Adjusted If New Rate Is Practicable.

NO FIGURES ARE AVAILABLE

State Police Head Says Troopers Are on Highways to Help Motorists Make Repairs, Change Tires and Bring Gas to Dry Car.

Trenton.—Inequalities in the present trolley fare schedule will be adjusted in the future if the 5 cent base rate is found to be generally practicable, Harry V. Osborne, chairman of the Public Utility Commission, declared.

The experimental plan which was inaugurated "has not gone far enough to justify any deductions as to its ultimate success or failure," he added. "While some people, of course, pay a slightly increased fare, as is inevitable where the fare has some relation to the length of ride, a great many more people pay less."

"While there is some criticism of the plan, it comes from those who are obliged to pay the higher fare. But, generally speaking, the plan seems to have public approval."

Adjustments May Be Made "The adoption of municipal lines as an arbitrary limit of the 5 cent fare and the elimination of all transfers and continuations may have in some cases brought about inequalities which may have to be adjusted in the future."

"But it would not seem to be advisable to interfere with the working of the plan by attempting to adjust these situations until it can be determined by experience whether the plan will be successful or not, as such attempts may otherwise only tend to confuse the question at this time."

No Figures Available

Public Service railway officials expressed opinions similar to that of Commissioner Osborne on the present situation in the trolley of the present plan of trolley fares. They would make no definite statement involving figures, declaring that the board has not been sufficient time to make worth while computations for the purpose of ascertaining whether there were inequalities in the fare rates of various zones that should be changed or whether the riding in the 5 cent areas has increased in sufficient volume to overcome the loss in income from what would have been received during the same period from a higher fare.

Continued pleasant weather of an unprecedented nature is held to have much to do with inability to accurately judge conditions or to say definitely whether the present plan will be a success. Many persons who got into the walking habit during the trolleyless days are still walking.

Others who got into the jitney habit during the strike period are in a measure continuing to ride in jitneys. A spell of rain or other weather different from that of the last three months will be necessary before the tale can be told.

Troopers to Help Motorists That a better understanding between motorists and the officers chosen to enforce the motor vehicle and traffic laws would result in a general improvement of the conditions which are now irritating automobile owners, was the opinion which came out of the conference between a committee from the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club and Colonel H. Norman Swarskopf, superintendent of the state police.

Colonel Swarskopf, whose home is in Newark, came on from Trenton at the request of the Motor Club officials and met Dr. L. G. Morgan, vice president of the club; Wilkes McClave, a member of the club's trustees and president of the Motor Truck Club of New Jersey; and Joseph H. Gunn, secretary of the Motor Club. The conference ran nearly two hours and practically every phrase of the situation was discussed.

The motorists got across the point to Colonel Swarskopf that the operators of motor cars are of the opinion that they are being harassed by police officers, in some cases the state police and in other cases the police of various municipalities below the city class, over the right of the motorists to use a motor vehicle going in the same direction. They also made it clear to him that they believe a motorist is virtually convicted upon either his arrest or his receipt of a summons, as the magistrates before whom the motorists are arraigned simply take the officer's word and inflict the penalty. The testimony of the motor car owner is never given any credence, it was said, and it is the general rule of these magistrates, it is claimed, not to allow other witnesses in the car at the time of the arrest to testify.

Further, the Auto Club representatives said they believed that the majority of the magistrates sought the conviction of motorists as a business proposition. When there is a conviction there is always court costs, and it is in this respect that the magistrate makes money, they said.

Colonel Swarskopf agreed with the motorists that there should be no persecutions, and he asserted that his troopers are cautioned not to practice any. He asserted, though, that there were many instances in which the motorist was not a careful driver and that he endangered the lives of other motor car travelers. He cited the conditions at Morgan station, where 16 people were injured in motor mishaps one Sunday this season before his troopers went into service there, while on the following 13 Sundays when they were on duty not a single motor accident happened.

That the state trooper is not a harsh officer, Colonel Swarskopf said, was shown by the fact that since July they showed a record of 7,868 warnings to motorists without arrests against only 1,146 arrests. And in each case of a warning, Colonel Swarskopf said, the offense was sufficient for an arrest, but the trooper thought the warning would serve the purpose. In a number of cases where arrests occur the motorists, he said, persisted in arguing with the trooper and often in not too polite language. It is a good tip not to argue the case with a trooper, even should the motorist feel that he is absolutely right, the officials found.

The trooper is on the road, Colonel Swarskopf said, to aid the motorist and not to hamper him. He will help to make emergency repairs to the motorist's machine; he will change a tire or help to do so; he will bring gasoline when a car has run dry, and he will aid in injuries. Such help has been given in 2,147 cases, while first aid to persons injured in auto accidents was given in 173 cases. In the same period eighteen stolen automobiles were recovered by the troopers, the value of which was $10,580.

State Institution Farms During the year just past the several State Institutional Farms produced over one half million dollars' worth of crops. A part of this production, such as hay and grain, was fed to live stock, but the major portion, which was worth over $300,000, represented the value of human food grown and fed to the wards of the State. This was chiefly composed of vegetables, fruit, milk, pork and eggs.

Whenever the doctors and teachers recommended, the inmates and patients helped with the farm work. All of these farms are profitable, that is, their value of production greatly exceeds its cost.

In order to show the public what is being done along this line, twelve of the institutions bring some of their products to the Inter-State Fair each year. The exhibits are arranged by the farm managers under the direction of Donald E. Rice, State Farm supervisor.

This year products were exhibited in two ways: In a bookcase extending the length of the Horticultural Building each farm had a space about seven feet wide, in which were displayed vegetables, fruit, grains and canned goods in tin and glass. Credit was given for the educational value and attractiveness of the exhibit, based upon utility in institution feeding. Luxuries were barred, the desire being for simple products. The story of the live stock and poultry, the number of acres of the different crops and the institutions' population was brought out by charts and photographs on the wall which was the background of the display.

This year's winners for the best display in booth were: First, Girls' Home, Trenton, 14 points; second, State Home for Boys, Jamesburg, 11 points; third, State Colony at New Lebanon; fourth, State Hospital, Morris Plains. Competition was extremely close and the four judges spent considerable time before a decision could be made.

There are certain standard varieties of the vegetables and other crops that have proven themselves to be best for institution growing conditions and use. In order to encourage the institutions to specialize on these the farm supervisor made up a catalogue listing these classes, about 130 altogether, of all crops and canned goods, and in these articles competition was held in each class for blue, red and yellow ribbons. All of these competitive entries were placed together on tables separate from the booths and this year the classes filled tables the length of the building.

The judging, which was done by experts from the New Jersey Experiment Station, was a source of great education to the growers who, in this manner, learned what constitutes proper type and true variety in the different crops they are raising.

The State Home for Girls is second with eight blue ribbons, 17 red ribbons and 13 yellow ribbons.

The Reformatory Farm at Rahway is third with seven firsts, 17 seconds and seven thirds.

The fourth place was taken by the Reformatory Farm at Annandale with 14 firsts, seven seconds and six thirds. The Trenton Hospital took the fifth place with 11 firsts, eight seconds and seven thirds.

Nomination by State Commissioner Enright of E. A. Reuther for appointment as school superintendent of Somerset county was rejected by the State Board, Mrs. Bertha Shippen Irving, of Haddonville, alone voting in favor of confirmation. At the last meeting of the board's advisory committee declined to submit a report on Reuther's nomination, which was to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry C. Krebs. This action was considered by the board as being equivalent to rejection, but Commissioner Enright insisted that it merely represented the views of the advisory committee and not of the State Board. The board accordingly, concurred in the negative report of the advisory committee.

Assistant Commissioner Strahan, who has been acting as Somerset superintendent without extra compensation, will continue to serve until the State Commissioner submits a nominee who is satisfactory to the board.

Map Made of Silver. There has been lent to the Royal Geological society for exhibition an interesting relic of Sir Francis Drake's voyage around the world from 1577 to 1580. Known as the "Silver Map of the World," it is a thin, circular silver plate about three inches in diameter, engraved on one side with the eastern hemisphere, and on the other with the western. The work has been attributed to the famous Dutch engraver, Hondius.

Rain Like God. On Sunday, November 9, 1610, a dense black cloud descended on Mont-real, according to Doctor Atherton's history. The cloud deposited a substance that looked and tasted like soot. On the following Tuesday, after a dark morning of gloom, with the sun clouds at times greenish black, pitch black, gray orange and blood red, so that some thought Montreal was going to be another Pompeii, and that Mount Royal would erupt. At three in the afternoon rain fell again of the same sooty character, amid fearful thunder and lightning. At four the summit of the steeple of Notre Dame church was struck by lightning. Before the fire was extinguished the cross fell in pieces. As the sooty substance flowed along the gutters it carried a dense foam like soapuds.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 14

ISRAEL, A MISSIONARY NATION

LESSON TEXT—Exod. 19:1-6; Isa. 43:9-11; Isa. 41:10-12. GOLDEN TEXT—"Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation."—Exod. 19:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Kindness to His People. JUNIOR TOPIC—Why God Chose Israel. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Mission of the Chosen People. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Israel's Missionary Call.

1. Israel's Exalted Position (Exod. 19:1-6). The descendants of Abraham had now become a multitude and the time had come to organize them into a nation. In order to enable them to see what a wonderful privilege was theirs, God displayed His majesty on Mount Sinai. In His message to them, He gave them a look backward and forward.

1. A Review of Their Past History (v. 4). He reminds them of what He had done to the Egyptians when He brought them out of "their" cruel bondage, and that His divine care over them had been as that of an eagle over her young. He had not merely brought them out of Egyptian bondage, but unto Himself. God's salvation is not merely deliverance from sin, but a union with Himself.

2. Promises of Future Greatness (vv. 5, 6). On condition of obedience to His voice, and faithfulness to their covenant obligations, He promised them a peculiar relationship to Him. This relationship is three-fold: (1) The Lord's Peculiar Treasure Above All People. This is the treasure of Matt. 13:44. If this is recognized, the parable is quite clear. Failure to allow Scripture to interpret Scripture results in confusion.

(2) A Kingdom of Priests. "A Kingdom whose citizens are all priests living wholly in God's service and ever enjoying the right of access to Him." In this kingdom there is united sacerdotal privilege and royal dignity. (3) A Holy Nation. A nation set apart for the work of God. Realizing this, they would be impelled to a standard of living which would be worthy of their high calling. Separation from sin and a positive stand for the right would always be demanded. The failure of this chosen nation is largely the explanation of the world's distress. Had Israel shown the nations the way to go, they would not have gone so far into sin.

11. Israel's Pressing Obligation (Isa. 43:9-11). 1. God's Challenge to the Heathen Nations (v. 9). They were asked to assemble their witnesses to see if they were able to make known the future as God had done through the prophets of Israel. They are either to make good their predictions or to acknowledge the truth as declared by God's prophets, namely, that God is the only God.

2. Israel, God's Witness (v. 10). This nation had been brought so clearly into touch with God, had so many times experienced His mighty hand to deliver, that they were competent witnesses. Not only the nation was a witness, but the prophets from that nation had so many times witnessed and their predictions were so completely fulfilled that the whole world knew that God was the one and only God and Savior. The only way the world can know that God is a forgiving God through the witnessing of His redeemed people. How sorely this testimony is needed! How miserable has been Israel's failure!

111. Israel's Message (Isa. 45:20-22). The message which Israel was to give was that God was the Savior of all nations. Israel misinterpreted and misapplied this message. They claimed Him as their God and denied Him to the heathen. Though they have thus failed and the world is in darkness because of it, one day they shall go to the ends of the earth with it, and the result will be the ushering in of the Golden Age of which men of all ages have dreamed.

1. The Idolatrous Nations Are Invited to Draw In. 2. They Are Challenged to Bring Their Reasons for Worshipping Idols to the Light of the Fact That God the Savior Was the Only God. 3. They Are Given an Invitation to Look Unto God. They were not asked to do something to be saved, but to look to the Savior. Sinners today need only to look to Christ. What a wonderful day when Israel shall declare this message to all nations in the power of the Holy Spirit!

Matrimonial Adventures

The Perfect Husband

BY Charles G. Norris

There was a sullen silence across the breakfast table. Lucy Valentine bent her head, and unseeing poked at her food.

Lucy sat on, thinking. A look of hopelessness, almost of despair settled upon her face. That was Tom—that was the way Tom acted; they were in for another dreary spell of his surlyness!

Mr. Gray was an interior decorator; he was often away for several days at a time when he went to supervise the work on some rich man's country home.

Lucy, considering her own lot and the happy circumstances that were Mrs. Gray's on this particular morning, said to herself with considerable bitterness that while she was in no danger of coveting her neighbor's husband, she did long with all her soul for some degree of contentment with her own.

Alonso had telephoned, she explained, that he was obliged to go to Boston; he would have to be away for several days, and he wanted his wife to accompany him.

that had proved the spark to his anger.

For Tom hated the Grays, hated everything about them. The suite of rooms they occupied was on the same floor as the Valentines'; an air-well separated the two establishments, and upon this source of light and ventilation a bedroom window of each apartment gave vent.

Lucy loved the way in which the Grays spoke to each other. It was so different from that to which she was accustomed. The man had extraordinary nuances in his voice; it was beautifully modulated, and when he happened to address his wife as "my dear," it was like a caress.

Lucy had had her misgivings as to the decency of listening to her friend's confidential murmurings with her husband, but she assured herself that her motive was not unworthy curiosity.

She had come to be more or less intimately acquainted with Mrs. Gray since that lady had moved next door. The two women visited one another, made frequent shopping trips together, and sometimes lunched in each other's kitchens.

Mr. Gray was an interior decorator; he was often away for several days at a time when he went to supervise the work on some rich man's country home.

That had seemed to Lucy the apotheosis of conjugal devotion. Her own husband had never brought her home unexpectedly a present in all his life.

Lucy, considering her own lot and the happy circumstances that were Mrs. Gray's on this particular morning, said to herself with considerable bitterness that while she was in no danger of coveting her neighbor's husband, she did long with all her soul for some degree of contentment with her own.

Alonso had telephoned, she explained, that he was obliged to go to Boston; he would have to be away for several days, and he wanted his wife to accompany him.

felt the injustice of Alice Gray's having so much and herself so little. And the bitter feelings of the early morning were forgotten, as she hastily piled the unwashed dishes in the sink to soak, gave an indifferent glance at the unmade beds, thrust head and arms into her trim yellow skirt, and reached for the smart little yellow straw hat which she had only been able to wear once since she bought it, a month before.

Later, seated beside her radiant friend on the top of a Fifth avenue bus, the spring sunshine flooding the city, the street gay with fashionably dressed women, she caught something of Alice Gray's exhilaration.

The two women threaded the aisles of department stores, priced and exclaimed over the novelties. Alice Gray bought a charming hat, the veil, and a neat little handbag with nickel clasps, and Lucy indulged herself in a much-needed electric iron.

In buoyant spirits they made a leisurely progress at a late luncheon hour to one of the smart, new French restaurants on Park avenue.

And almost in the entrance way, about to pass through the revolving glass doors to the street, absorbed and gaily chatting together, they encountered Alonso Gray and a handsomely dressed woman. A happy exclamation burst from Lucy and she started forward with a delighted greeting.

"Why, it's your husband—it's Mr. Gray."

But her words died on her lips. Alice Gray's fingers closed like a vise upon her arm, and she had drained her aside. Something ugly and unpleasant flashed into Lucy's mind. There was a whirling silence, a dizzying moment while her pulses raced, and her breath was still. Then, unconscious and still chatting amiably, Alonso Gray and his companion passed into the street.

"Two, please—and in the corner. I like those upholstery-covered seats," Alice Gray composedly addressed herself to the head waiter, and serenely followed him into the cool and flower-scented restaurant.

"Come, Lucy!" Lucy, shaken, bewildered, the significance of what had occurred still half-guessed, mechanically obeyed. Mechanically she unglazed her eyes, mechanically she pushed stray locks of hair up under her hat, mechanically she ordered. But when the obsequious head waiter had murmured: "Bien, madame," and had departed, she could only keep her eyes on her plate, and sit tongue-tied, fearful of any comment she might hazard, miserably conscious of what must be her friend's humiliation and discomfort.

That unquestionably had been Alonso Gray, and the woman who had been with him, Lucy knew with unmistakable intuition, that the woman was not of her world, or of the world of decent women. Alice had seen it all; she had understood, and had saved Lucy from precipitating a frightfully embarrassing encounter!

"My dear—my dear—" Alice Gray laid her hand on Lucy's arm. "You mustn't feel so badly. I understand what's passing in your mind—but, my dear, you mustn't concern yourself on my account. . . . I know; I know all about it."

Lucy met her friend's unruffled gaze with widening eyes and parted lips. Mrs. Gray smiled at her, a wry, twisted little smile.

"Oh, yes. I know all about it, and—and I don't care! Alonso is all that I need in a husband; he is considerate, attentive, deferential; he likes to be with me, and to have me with him, and he loves me. Oh, yes, he does; he loves me truly. There have always been women in Alonso's life! This one happens to be a clever artist. Alonso employs her as a decorator. I even know her name. She's Flora Balsanzani. You know Balsanzani, the opera singer? She's his divorced wife, and is quite promiscuous. Alonso has been—well, attentive to her for more than a year. Of course, he has no idea I know anything about it, and I wouldn't have him suspect I've learned for anything in the world. You see, he wouldn't want to hurt me, and he would think that if I knew, I would be offended. But I have no more feeling of jealousy for this passing fancy of his than I would have for a good cigar he enjoys after dinner. . . . Oh, I know my views are anything but conventional. I am a shrewd, you'll say. I interrupted myself, smiling a rather hard, cold little smile. "I would shock most women. But I believe altogether too much emphasis is placed upon fidelity in marriage. As long as my husband in no way jeopardizes my rights as his lawful wife, why should I concern myself with what he does outside his home? Frankly, I would rather have him unfaithful to me in an occasional way, as he is, than have him drink himself into besottedness, as many a man does, and bring home to me a throbbing head, a nasty temper, and a rancid breath. Alonso satisfies me; he more than adequately fulfills his part of life's companion with me. I am thoroughly content; what else matters?"

Her own apartment smelled close to Lucy, when, later the same day, she closed the door behind her. It seemed cheerless, empty, desolate. The mood with which Alice Gray had infected her all day, dropped from her like a cloak suddenly falling to the floor.

She put away her things and set about getting dinner, washing the dishes, whipping the unmade beds together, setting the table. After all, her husband was probably no worse than any other woman's. She made him a pan of hot biscuits, of which she knew he was particularly fond.

At six o'clock, she heard him come in. She heard his creaking steps to the closet where he always hung his hat and coat; she heard him creak his way back to the front room where she knew he had thrown himself down on the sofa, and was reading the evening paper with feet cocked over one hard, upholstered arm. He had no word of greeting for her; he would have none; a dark and sullen silence would envelop him for days to come.

her face in her hands, forcing the fingers deep into her eyeballs. Then she began to sob, brokenly, passionately, all the grief pent up in her bursting out in an agony of weeping. In 18 years, Tom Valentine had never seen his wife cry. He was startled now—alarmed and shocked. He watched her in pained uneasiness for some minutes, groping about in his mind for some way to check the flood of sobbing that beat upon his ears. It had been a long, long time since he had laid a hand upon her in affection, yet now he was moved by the violence of her grief, and the unfamiliar impulse came to him. He laid down his knife and fork and stared at her stolidly, frowning deeply. He thought of getting up and patting her shoulder; he tried to think of something to say, and in his perplexity began to falk at random. He did not know how to be gentle; he had forgotten how to be tender. The iron bones of habit were too well forged about him. He had always treated his wife with contempt, and now when he strove to reach her troubled spirit with gentle words, he found himself only mousing a justification of his actions that morning. Lucy could not suspect that behind the harsh voice, and slow, clumsy words, there stirred within him the first concern for her he had known in years. Only the dogged retortation of the facts about the cream reached her consciousness. Her sobbing fell silent, but she still pressed her palms to her cheeks, her fingers to her eyes. Presently she was aware he had forsaken the topic of the cream; now it was of his virtues he discoursed. " . . . I let you live your own life; you go and come as you please; you have your own friends. I never ask you how or why you spend the money every month, and I never let the first go by without depositing your check in the bank! I never question what you do with yourself all day; all I ask of you is to run the house and keep things nice. . . . I don't see how you've got such fault to find with me. I don't drink or gamble or smoke; I don't go out nights, and I've never looked at another woman in all my life! Now, some men . . . Lucy listened until she could stand no more. With wet tears staining her cheeks, her face convulsed, she suddenly straightened herself and faced him, her lip trembling, her hands held outstretched to him across the table. "Oh, Tom, Tom," she cried, "I don't care how moral you are. I don't care anything about other women. I don't care whether you go to a bar or not. Seek them, kiss them, have them—do anything you like! Gamble, smoke and drink! Deny yourself nothing on my account. I don't care how wicked you are. All I want you to do is to be kind to me, Tom—be kind, be kind! Don't be so ugly and mean to me. And sometimes—just now and then—try to love me a little!"

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost. Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

WHY Historians Are Interested in Egyptian Excavations

An eminent British archeologist has expressed the hope that legends in the inner chamber of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb may throw a new light on the origin of the narrative of the Flood.

The destruction of the world because of the wickedness of man, as told in Genesis, also is read in Babylonian records and is suggested in certain tomb inscriptions in ancient Egypt. It is believed the account originated in Egypt.

Historians and archeologists will have the keenest possible interest in the papyrus that may be found in the tomb, hoping something will be discovered to give the Egyptian version of the Egyptian's relations with the Jew.

So far no reference has been found in all the early records of Egypt to the sojourn of the Jews in that country, to the seven years of famine and the seven years of plenty, to the seven plagues, or to the destruction of the army which Pharaoh sent to recall the Jews after permitting them to depart from Egypt.

One of the leading objects of searches for papyrus in recent years has been to find corroboration from Egyptian sources of the stay in Egypt and the exodus, but these events which make so large a figure in Jewish history are a blank in the Egyptian records.

—Egyptian history, tradition and literature were never consolidated and preserved.

The Jews are believed to have been a comparatively small tribe at the time Egypt was a highly populous country, so the Jewish contact with Egypt has been represented by some historians as a thing of slight consequence to the Egyptians. They would regard the Exodus as the deportation or withdrawal of a handful of aliens.

Why Candles on Birthday Cakes.

The custom of placing candles on a birthday cake—one for each year—comes from Germany. The Germans placed a thick one in the center, called Lebenslicht, the light of life.

Only he or she who declares his or her birthday may put out the light of life; it is unlucky if done by any other member of the family.

The lights are symbols of life and its portions the years. For persons advanced in years one candle must do duty as, otherwise, too many would be required.

At Last.

Two sisters—apparently all in all to each other—had lived together for many years. Then, when the one was ninety-eight and the other ninety-six, the elder died. The relative who undertook the task of breaking the painful news to the survivor feared the shock would be fatal to her. But the old lady bore up wonderfully. "Ah, well," she replied, "now I suppose I shall be able to have my tea made as I like it."—Royal Magazine (London).

CHICAGO'S MAIL TERMINAL BUILDING

To speed up the handling, distribution, and dispatch of all paper, catalog, and parcel-post mail originating in Chicago or passing through Chicago destined to Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, South Dakota, Tennessee, and Wisconsin, there has been recently placed in service in Chicago a monster mail terminal building which is without a parallel—anywhere.

This building is of brick and steel, approximately 800 feet long, 75 feet wide, and six stories and basement tall. On one side are tracks which have a capacity for 61 railway mail cars—one track running the full length of the building inside. On the other side is a 30-foot driveway bordering on which is unloading space sufficient to accommodate 60 mail wagons at one time.

The entire first floor is given over to the receipt, dispatch, and storage of mail; another floor is devoted to the distribution of parcel-post mail; another floor is used for the handling of paper mail, and so on. One floor is necessarily an operating or service floor—for the proper maintenance of the plant, and contains the office of the superintendent and his force, machine shop, carpenter shop, stock room, cafeteria, first-aid, study, and rest rooms.

About 970 persons are employed in the work of handling mail matter, while about 80 additional employees and 25 clerks and officials are required to look after and operate the building and its machinery.

Four stairways, three passenger and fourteen freight elevators facilitate movement between floors. The mail-handling equipment includes about 1,800 trucks of various kinds and sizes, several hundred sorting tables, sack racks without end, and a small fleet of electric tractors. Most of the work of distribution is done by means of some eight miles of mechanical belt conveyors which function with an amazing rapidity and an uncanny sureness. These conveyors, some of which are 44 inches wide and 650 feet long, carry mail between divisions, between floors, and dump it on distributing tables from which they also carry it to chutes which drop it to dispatching platforms.

This terminal ultimately will handle an average of 26,000 sacks of parcel post and 18,000 sacks of paper mail every 24 hours—or 1,838 sacks per hour. According to an official of the railway mail service, through this one building will pass more mail than originates in the entire Dominion of Canada.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

HOW TO RECOGNIZE JEALOUSY BEFORE IT HURTS YOU

Jealousy is not a faculty that can in itself be located on the head. It is a "by-product" of selfishness and appropriateness, and is seen in various centers of the entire body.

Extreme jealousy is first recognized by a projection of the muscle under the lower lip.

A heek very large at the base of the brain—amplitude—is its side partner. Entirely in harmony with the projecting muscle of the lower lip is an ear, the bottom of which is much larger than the top. The mouth is closely shut, though the lips may be thick, yet the red part does not show very much.

A thickness of the nose just above the little wings, and a tendency of the nose to turn down are also indications of selfishness. In keeping with these signs is a heavy, coarse lower jaw.

A closely shut, thick-lidded eye, with its upper lid pressing down so that it makes a nearly horizontal line across the ball, also means secretiveness and selfishness.

The head that is very broad from ear to ear, full at the base, built on the principle of the cat's head, carries with it many selfish tendencies of the feline sphinx.

Why Helium Cannot Be Used.

Official statements in connection with the bureau of mines reinforce the view that helium gas is beyond reach for the inflation of noninflammable passenger airships. Four years' work by several official plants in the United States has produced 2,400,000 cubic feet of gas, which is the amount required (including reserve supply) for one big airship. The cost remains prohibitive, for the lowest figure hoped for it in the near future is 10 cents per cubic foot, and the heavy expectation that ultimately the cost will be reduced to 2 or 3 cents per cubic foot does not alter the facts.—Scientific American

How to Switch to Use Vacuum Tube

Plan Which Will Afford Information for Radiophans.

The amateur after experimenting with a crystal receiver likes to embark on a longer trip by switching over from the crystal detector to what is called the audion or vacuum tube.

The following article aims to describe a detector unit that can be hooked up in place of a crystal detector in most any type of set. All the parts and materials necessary, with the exception of the A battery, can be bought for less than $10.

Secure a piece of well-seasoned wood about 5 by 8 inches for the base. The other parts include a detector tube, a grid leak and grid condenser, a rheostat, a B battery of 22½ volts, an A battery of 6 volts, and 12 binding posts.

Give the base several coats of shellac for a finish and also to afford better insulating qualities. The position for mounting the various instruments is clearly shown in the drawing. Be sure and solder all joints, or else unwelcome noises will be heard when the set is in operation. Neatness in wiring is very important in radio work, as loose and straggling wires cause losses and set up induction noises and capacity effects. Make square corners and cross wires at right angles. Also be careful about the battery connections. Remember that the positive side of the B battery is always connected to the plate of the tube.

The two binding posts on the upper left-hand corner of the base are for use in a regenerative circuit in connection with a "tickler." If a "straight" hook-up is used, that is, non-regenerative, these two posts should be connected together with a piece of wire. The lower diagram shows the unit connected to a loose coupler outfit.

The A battery should be of six volts and preferably of the storage type. Four dry cells will operate the tube but in the end they will prove far more expensive and less satisfactory than a storage battery.

Connect your other pieces of apparatus to the binding posts on the unit base as indicated.

Before putting your tube in its socket be sure that all the resistance of your rheostat is in the circuit, for by jumping the full current on all at once you shorten the life of the tube. Now turn the rheostat pointer until the filament assumes a bright glow. (For coated filament tubes a dull red glow is all that is necessary.)

Tune your set in the usual way. A steady hissing noise in the phones indicates that the bulb is burning too brightly.

With this assembly of apparatus and with but a small outlay you can increase the range of your set many-fold.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they, become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly headache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

The Pleading Voice.
Most of us dislike noise. We do not buy property for pleasure close to the railway track, and we try to cure our dogs of unnecessary barking, but we seldom give a thought to the most objectionable of all noises, the piercing human voice. Quietness and moderation in all things are the hall marks of good taste, and the loud voice and rough uncontrolled laugh show a lamentable lack of breeding. Talking is a fairly continuous process; we state our needs, answer questions, relate anecdotes, mostly about our own troubles; another ill advised habit; and if the voice is unpleasantly loud or nasal it is irritating to the listener. The pleasure of conversation is enhanced if the voices are pleasant and musical.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles' Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Two of a Mind

By CORA REMINGTON

forever and ever, amen."

As the last words of the minister were spoken the solemnly bowed heads came up with a sudden alertness and a slight rustle passed over the congregation as men stooped for their hats and women greeted their neighbors in quiet undertones.

"Sunday!" John Walters unconsciously whispered the word under his breath as he hesitated a moment on the top step of the church.

Something intangible, but nevertheless there, he could see it; the roads, the trees, the very sunshine itself was not quite the same, and so strongly did he feel this difference that he believed that if in some manner he could lose all track of the days of the week he would know when Sunday came.

He walked slowly down the street, breathing in the fresh clean air. What a contrast to the ten years he had spent in the city trying to make a name for himself—working, working day and night with just one idea in mind.

After all, was it worth while? He had missed so much, he had had no time for friends or recreation. Now as he glanced about at the passing couples a feeling of loneliness swept over him.

He had motored out to Newton several times before and attended church because somehow it took him back to his boyhood days and he felt that there was more sincere religion in a little country congregation than in a dozen fashionable city churches.

Perhaps he was right, perhaps not, but a strange peace and comfort seemed to come over him when listening to the simple sermon of some earnest young minister.

As he walked back toward the boarding house where he expected to have dinner he dimly noticed the slender figure of a girl in front of him and there was something vaguely familiar about her that teased him every time he glanced in her direction.

"Margaret Cole, as sure as I live!" he exclaimed as he came abreast of her.

"John Walters, as sure as I live!" laughed the girl, extending her hand.

"How you have changed," he said admiringly as he took in the dancing eyes and flushed cheeks. "You're— you're positively—"

"A girl's apt to change a little between the ages of twelve and eighteen," she smiled, breaking in on him.

"But what are you doing here?" he asked.

"Oh, we moved out here two years ago. Father's teaching at the girls' seminary."

"Soon they were laughing and talking of old times—of the days when they were next door neighbors in the West."

"I fell quite in love with you that first time I went back home," he laughed. "I watched you playing with your dolls one day and you were the happiest, motherliest little kid."

"You're a flatterer," she told him.

"Not a bit of it. May I walk home with you?"

"Oh, you're coming to our house to dinner, of course. I didn't even think that it was necessary to mention it."

"Thanks so much. I hoped you would ask me. I shall enjoy seeing your parents again."

Never was youth more fascinating, he thought, as he glanced at his companion—the lithe figure, the quick step, the parted lips, the radiant face that seemed to be expecting some thrilling thing to happen every second.

It was a gay dinner they had that Sunday. Everybody laughed and joked a great deal, and John Walters felt really happy for the first time in years.

"You'll come back next week, won't you?" Professor Cole asked warmly as he took his guest's hand.

"And the next and the next and the next, if you'll let me," laughed Walters.

"You'll always find a warm welcome," the professor assured him.

Before the summer was over it had become a regular habit for Walters to motor down to Newton on Sunday, take Margaret to church and have dinner at her home afterward, and by the time the trees were turning he knew that he had at last found the girl, but Margaret showed no signs of a similar feeling.

When he said anything to indicate his feeling she laughed at him and called him a perfectly dreadful flirt. What was the use of proposing to a girl in that mood anyway? Yet he must know where he stood. He could bear the suspense no longer.

"I have something to show you after dinner," he told her one day.

"Oh, good," she answered in an undertone. "I love to see things. How can I ever wait?"

A little later in the afternoon, when they were again seated on the porch, she brought up the subject again.

"What was it you were going to show me?" she asked eagerly.

"Oh, yes." He slipped a hand into his pocket and brought forth two birthday cards addressed in a childish scrawl to himself.

"I've kept them all these years," he said, handing them to her, "because— because I loved you even then. Now do you still think I'm flirting?"

"Oh, John," she said softly. "What a dear you are! I'm afraid I've been too flippant. Really, I didn't know you cared that much. I was afraid it was only at best some passing fancy. But —but I'm awfully glad. No, wait a minute. Sit down. For a penny I'd show you something because I've been so horrid to you, but I guess I'll spoil you forever. I'll do it anyway. You stay right here and I'll be back in a minute."

She sat through the doorway and returned a moment later with one hand behind her back.

"Shut your eyes tight," she said. "—now look."

And there in front of him were three birthday cards addressed to her in a handwriting that he had little difficulty in recognizing.

"I kept these because—" she stammered, but got no further for John had taken her into his arms.

"You little fraud," he laughed happily. "You're the flirt and all the time I thought you didn't care. What a dance you've led me!"

MASTERPIECE OF GREEK ART

Bronze Mirror Made Centuries Before Christ Added to Collection in British Museum.

A Grecian bronze mirror, 2,400 years old, has been added to the British museum's collection of Greek antiquities. Its age has been deduced from a comparison with other early Greek bronzes found in the Acropolis excavations.

It measures seven inches in diameter across the disk, which is plain except for an engraved molding and beading around the delicately-worked edge. Marvellously well preserved, it bears witness to the greatness of the ancient Greek metal workers, as indeed to the enduring qualities of the material in which they wrought.

The disk rests on a base forming an arc of a circle, with a voluted palmette in the center supporting it. Below are the figures of a winged youth and winged maiden, springing apart, one on either side, as though for flight from a central lotus flower. Under the flower is a spike which was probably fixed originally in some kind of a pedestal, as the whole work seems too large and heavy to have been used as a hand-mirror.

The figures themselves are molded in the round, but the rest of the group is in flat relief. The girl, whose figure is draped, is shown holding a fold of her skirt, while the boy, who is nude, carries a wreath. It is believed that they represent Agon (Contest) and Nike (Victory).

The earlier bronzes found in the Acropolis excavations allowed less freedom to the forms. The new statue is, in fact, a later modification of the "kneeling" run" pose, as the feet of the figures are brought closer together than had been the former custom of the bronze metal workers.

Age of Giants

In these pages I praised the publishers of Augustus Thomas' autobiography for making it a light book, easy to hold. Just after reading my complimentary review a German folio Bible printed in 1672, weighing twenty-five pounds, and the title page bore this comforting legend, which I translate: "Now, however, through the grace of God, we have for the first time printed this book in comfortable and readable shape." The old Bible readers were a hardy race.—Scribner's Magazine.

Odd Names

Odd names appear occasionally in American newspapers, as for instance one in an obituary notice in recent New York dailies, in which the name Gardner is printed thus, with an apostrophe; but this is outclassed by the following, brought to light by an accidental turning of the leaves of the English "Who's Who": Sir Rustomjee Oowajjee Ooreetjee Jamsatjee Jejeebhoy of Manipal castle, Bombay; and Sen. Roger Pina Coffin of Berhampstead, Herts.—Outlook.

Two Purposes Served

The operation was a great success and the lady spoke of it with enthusiasm around the circle of her female friends, which included the doctor's wife. But when a bill was sent in for $200 she protested that it was too much. The medical man was kind but firm.

"The bill, madam," said he, "is very reasonable. That operation has provided you with health for a long time to come and with conversation for the rest of your life."

Took Him Literally

Plain people do not always understand sarcasm. An old country-judge summing up against a burglar recently referred sarcastically to the fact that the defendant was extremely considerate in the way he attempted the burglary. Realizing that there was a sick woman in the house, he removed his boots before setting about his task, obviously in order not to disturb the patient! The jury, failing to note the sarcasm, acquitted the defendant!

Pot and Kettle

A prisoner in a certain Lancashire prison, having been sentenced on several occasions, was asked by the chaplain on leaving to reform, as he was costing the country a lot of money by his behavior. The prisoner replied, "I don't know about me costing it a lot. I think you cost it more. You're always here when I come and I always leave you here.—London Weekly Telegraph.

More to the Point

An enterprising Montana coal dealer carries on his stationery the slogan: "We are in black business, but we treat you white." A customer who had just received a statement for his winter supply of coal, at the trifling price of $22 per ton, sent a check in payment, accompanied by the suggestion that the slogan be changed to: We are in a dirty business, but we clean you good.—Fortbes Magazine.

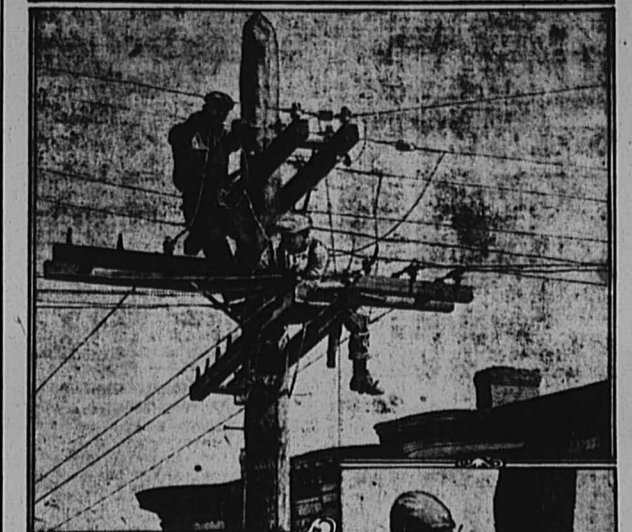

South Africa's Wealth

The output of minerals in South Africa since gold and diamonds were first produced is $2,585 millions, gold representing $740 millions and diamonds $1,110 millions. The balance is in coal, silver and other minerals.

So One No One Would Take

Another little fault of our times is a lack of detour signs just this side of trouble.

Rubber Gloves Play Important Part In the Work of Electric Linemen

EVERY day linemen in the employ of electric, telegraph and telephone companies go forth to perform their duties on wires and poles—to erect them, to replace them, to maintain them in as nearly perfect order as possible so that the consumers of electricity may experience no interruption in service, and the patrons of the telegraph and telephone companies may file and receive communications without delay.

In the case of the electric company men, there is more or less risk involved, and it is the practice of all linemen to look upon every wire as a live or "hot" wire until it has been proven otherwise. The consequence is, that these workers go out prepared against accidents. They equip themselves with every known safety device, and are thoroughly versed in the codes of safe practices which every company has prepared for their benefit, and insisted that they be instructed in.

The electric lineman's equipment consists of belts, safety straps and spurs, in addition to rubber gloves, rubber blankets, line hose, rubber boots and a safety line. Of these the rubber gloves are highly essential, and it may be interesting to know something of their manufacture and the care taken to make each pair safe before being issued to the user.

Similar to Canning Gloves

Modern electrical gloves are similar to those used by the housewife at canning. Each glove is filled with water to within about one inch of the cuff, and suspended in a container also filled with water. High voltage is applied by connecting the water within the glove to one terminal of a testing circuit, and the water surrounding the glove to the other terminal. The usual testing voltage is 10,000 volts, applied continuously for three minutes.

Sample gloves are frequently selected from a shipment and tested. Samples are cut and subjected to stretching tests and often to "aging tests" in an electrically heated oven. These tests are made to insure a high quality rubber compound.

The last step is to measure and sort for size, stamp with a serial number for identification, and finally to pack each pair in an individual paper box, sealed, dated and numbered, after which they are ready for shipment.

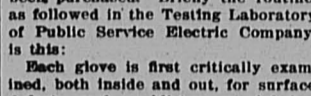

Care Aids Safety

When in use gloves are at all times liable to injury. They may be torn by nails, jagged ends of wires or cut by tools. However, if the user, realizing that his life may at any time depend on the condition of his glove, will give them proper attention, he should always be safe when wearing tested gloves.

A simple inspection, which can be made by the glove user, will usually tell whether the gloves are fit for further service. They should first be thoroughly washed with soap and water and examined for cuts or tears. If such are found the gloves should be discarded. Punctures and pinholes may be located by rolling up the cuff, compressing the air within. The presence of a pinhole, if discovered by the hissing of the escaping air, or made visible by escaping air bubbles, if the glove is immersed while still inflated in a pail of water. Gloves which have lost their elasticity, as determined by pulling and stretching, should not be used.

Each glove is first critically examined, both inside and out, for surface defects, such as blisters or pinholes, or for imbedded foreign matter. Many gloves are ruined for electrical use by these defects, notwithstanding the care taken by the manufacturer.

Royal Sword of Scotland. The great two-handed sword which Robert the Bruce fought at Bannockburn has been handed down from generation to generation of the Bruce family who possessed Clackmannan tower. The last survivor of this branch was Mrs. Catherine Bruce, a lady of remarkable character and strong Jacobite convictions, who was convinced that her possession of the Royal Sword of Scotland gave her the prerogative of conferring the honor of knighthood. She thus honored many visitors to Clackmannan tower, among them Bobbie Burns, who visited when she was a nonagenarian. As Burns rose to his feet he gallantly kissed the old lady's hand. "What all these at my lips, Robin?" the ancient dame is said to have asked.

Handling Eggplants With Gloves. So sensitive is an eggplant that the mere warmth of bare fingers pressing upon the surface ever so lightly, bruising the tender tissues underneath the skin the tiniest bit, will cause it to decay. This slight bruising of the tissues takes place in any event, but if they do not come directly in contact with warm hands it does not have any harmful effect on the eggplants. For this reason professional packers of the vegetable wear canvas gloves.

N. J. INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

Prosperity Breeds Content. Where Industries provide Steady Employment and Maintain Equitable Working Conditions, Radicalism Can Gain No Foothold.

East Orange—$228,000 site purchased for establishment of new Upsala college.

Stockton—Construction of new river bridge under consideration.

Fort Lee—Plans being made for building new highway from this point to Edgewater ferry.

Stockton—New fire apparatus purchased.

Lambertville—$9,300 spent for new fire engine.

Lambertville—Plans considered for erection of $20,000 canal bridge.

Westwood—New school building completed.

Vineland—Construction of Masonic temple completed.

Irvington—Philadelphia syndicate buys 39½ acre tract for building purposes.

Trenton—Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey to establish 5-cent zone fare for experimental period of four months.

Newark—Million dollar endowment fund campaign launched for Stevens Institute of Technology.

Hackensack—Construction of $900,000 hospital completed.

Kearny—Contracts aggregating $1,000,000 placed for manufacturing machinery and equipment for cable and switchboard works being erected here by Western Electric Company. When works are completed 30,000 men will be employed.

Laurel Springs—Construction of $70,000 St. Lawrence school making rapid progress.

Trenton—Construction of new $1,000,000 Pennsylvania station under way.

Newark—Intercoastal Lumber Company leases 40-acre tract at Port Newark for lumber terminal expected to be largest in world.

Salem—1554 carloads of potatoes shipped out of district for present season.

Most important to the maintenance of prosperity is a fair day's work.

Statistics show that 26,000,000 Americans, nearly one-fourth of the Nation's population, have savings accounts in State and National banks.

Palmyra High Plays Trenton. Wins by score of 19-0

Local football enthusiasts had their opportunity to see Palmyra High's gridiron warriors in action on the home field last Friday afternoon when they had as their opponents the Trenton School for Deaf and Dumb. Everyone seemed to be perfectly satisfied with the team's showing and apparently it will have the support of our many fans during the season. Palmyra ran up a total of 19 points, while the opposition was blanked.

Calvin Boal, the peppy quarter, was far the individual star of the game. His end runs, netting gains of twenty and thirty yards, were frequent. The defensive end of the battle found him playing in the same outstanding manner. Stackhouse, who made his debut last week, but plays like a veteran, was in the fray at all times and looked exceptionally good, especially for one with so little experience. He stars in the full-back position with heavy line plunges and brilliant tackles.

The ball was carried over the line for the first and third touchdowns by Kersey. Each time the oval had been brought within striking distance with spectacular runs by Boal.

The second touchdown came when Boal pulled a rather wild pass from the air and made a beautiful run of over twenty-five yards.

Burns, left end, to whom falls the kickoff honors, gets some real distance with his boots. He is also a conspicuous figure in the defense. Harry, however, failed at two attempts for extra points, but did drop kicks after the first two touchdowns.

"Russ" Davis, who features at right end, was taken back after the third and made good with his kick. Long punts came from the toes of Richmond and Wagner.

Captain "Gil" Palphreyman, right guard, was knocked out for the first time in the four years he has been playing with the F. H. S. eleven. He is spunky and was only on his back a few moments when he sprang up ready to continue with the "fuss."

Practically all of the substitutes were given a chance during the last few minutes of the contest. All of them looked good and would probably be able to fill their respective positions on the first team should any of the varsity men be out of the game. Richard Graham, who replaced Boal at quarter, made long gains both times he ran the ball. Much credit is given the holding qualities of the varsity line. It also played a fine offensive game.

The boys who are unable to converse with us in the usual manner have a strong eleven, but do not have a large variety of plays. The only one with which they gain any ground is their line plunges. They attempted an aerial attack in the first half of the game, but it did not work so well, so was dropped for regular old-fashioned football tactics.

Apparently Palmyra's chances for the South Jersey title is very good. With this strong and hard-fighting bunch there is no doubt that it will bring many honors to its home town during the present season. Palmyra will play LaSalle Prep on The Field Club grounds this Friday afternoon. The Prep boys have a very strong aggregation with a big reputation, but Palmyra is expected to be the winner. That is according to the students of P. H. S.

Carl Lutz, with eyes that we are afraid magnify considerably, estimated the crowd that attended last Friday to be at least two thousand people. Although it was not quite that big, it was very large for a school game.

Lead Pencil is Old. A manuscript of Theophilus, attributed to the Thirteenth century, shows evidence of having been ruled with something that might have been a black lead pencil.

Riverton 14, Wissinoming 6

Last Saturday Riverton played the Wissinoming Steeljackets on Riverton's field and after a most interesting game emerged victors by the score of Riverton 14, Wissinoming 6.

During the first half of the game the locals had the visitors on the defensive most of the time, repeatedly advancing the ball into their territory until on one occasion Harry Stack got loose from the crowd and made a spectacular 25 yard run, where Hollingshead then tore off about 15 more yards, putting the ball into a position where Anderson tore through the line for Riverton's first score. The next came a few minutes later when Volz blocked one of the visitor's kicks, recovered the ball and ran it over for another touchdown.

All through the game the visitors certainly played a fine brand of football and in the second half they worked some very pretty shift plays on one of which Schnitzler, their full-back made a forty-five yard run for their only score, and they had managed to work the ball well down in Riverton territory and were threatening another score when the game ended.

Time of periods—12 minutes.
Touchdowns—Anderson 1, Volz 1, Snitchler 1.
Points from touchdown—Anderson 1, Hollingshead 1.
Referee—L. Keating.
Umpire—J. Stack.
Head linesman—O. Faunce.
Timekeepers—J. Durgan and F. Gibson.

Riverton had the following men also in the game—J. Hylton, Wallace, Morgan, Clifton, Matlack, Faunce and Atlee.

This Saturday, the 20th, Riverton football team will play the Melrose C. C. of Frankford on Riverton's grounds, game starting at 3.30 p.m. Considering that Melrose played Greater Collingwood last Saturday to a scoreless tie, it looks as if the Riverton team will certainly have to play some football to come out on the long end of the score this week.

Riverton Reserve will play a preliminary game on Riverton grounds this Saturday. Their opponents will be the Rexall team of Riverside. Kickoff at 2 p.m.

The management of the Riverton football team would like to suggest to the people that attend the game from the river side of the railroad, that it would be appreciated if they would try and get to and from the field via Main street and Seventh street, thereby using the protected railroad crossing at Main street, and not the dangerous crossing at Cedar avenue.

Wild Fowl Season to Open in New Jersey October 16th

Coastal bays and their tributaries black with flocks of early arriving ducks promises an auspicious opening for the wild fowl season in New Jersey, October 16th.

Hunting will be permitted during the season for all kinds of wild ducks (excepting wood duck) and for wild geese, brant, coot, gallinules and Wilson or Jack snipe. A season, already open on black-bellied and golden plover and greater and lesser yellow-legs, as well as rail birds, sora and marsh or mud hens, will continue to November 30. Red bird season will close October 30.

State and Federal laws permit shooting of migratory game birds from a half-hour before sunrise to sunset, each week day of the open season. Poachers who attempt night-hunting will be heavily penalized and many gunning clubs have promised their cooperation with game authorities in preventing infractions of the law.

Social Evening at Christ Church Parish House

Judging by the response to the invitation of the vestry to spend Tuesday evening at the parish house of Christ Church, Riverton, the event was a great success. With one exception, the program only provided the opportunity to mix to dance, or, in the case of the men, to have a sociable smoke.

The exception was a solo by Mrs. Collin, "My Heart at the Sound of Thy Sweet Voice." Mrs. Collin sang superbly and an encore was demanded which was the "Rosary." This again was so well appreciated that Mrs. Collin obligingly granted a request number "Your Smile," by Foster. Mrs. Bell accompanied Mrs. Collin on the piano in which her ability was no less notable.

The same wealth of palms, autumn leaves and scores of green cedars transformed the parish house hall into a veritable bower. In this setting the stage was a gem. Giant dahlias were massed before the footlight, with their variegated colors tastefully arranged. Between this riot of colors and the deep background of tall cedars, was Irwin Casper's orchestra, which furnished music as colorful as their surroundings. The competent skill of Messrs. Hall and Willis in decorating was quite evident and much credit is due them.

The refreshments, served by capable young ladies of the parish, marked a period of intermission in the social evening. All in all the evening was everything that had been hoped for as a social event in the activities of the parish. The committee appointed by the vestry consisted of S. L. Warren, J. G. Seckel, and G. W. Smith, Jr.

Forester Offers Trees for Forest Planting

State Forester C. P. Wilber, of the State Department of Conservation and Development, has announced that his office has again arranged to distribute young trees for forest planting to owners of New Jersey land requiring reforestation. This policy was established last year and met with great success.

"We have arranged for several hundred thousand pine and spruce seedlings from reliable nurseries in New England," said Mr. Wilber, "and have thus been able to obtain the lowest possible prices, ranging from $5.10 to $7.50 per thousand. These trees will be offered to New Jersey forest planters."

"Orders for not less than 1,000 trees will be accepted for spring delivery as long as the supply lasts."

Democracy Didn't Have to Spend Anything for Nomination

The expense accounts of the Republican candidates in the recent primaries have been filed. The Democrats, having no candidates, naturally did not spend any money.

In the fight for the nomination for sheriff the winning candidate, Joseph B. Flectwood, spent $358.56, while his opponent, Colonel Edward B. Stone, spent $140.

For freeholder, J. Lloyd Wright, the winner, spent $536; Sheriff Edward H. Flagg, his opponent, $348.79; Howard Cobb, $15.80. For coroner, Clark B. Rogers, nothing; Sydney G. Snelson, $3.50. Assemblyman Clifford R. Powell, with no opposition, spent $21.70. Henry I. Worrrell, for auditor, nothing.

Treasury Savings Certificates

More than a billion dollars is lost in this country each year through heedless speculation and failures, according to George E. Lloyd, Savings Director for the Third Federal Reserve District. This amounts to about $10 loss for each person, or about $45 on the average for each family.

Much of this enormous loss is made up of the savings of small investors: the farmers, the wage-earners, the salaried people and others both in the city and country districts who are lured to invest in securities of which they know nothing.

"Our people are too quick and too careless in their response to the glib tongues of the bucket shop and wild-cat stock tooters," states Director Lloyd.

The United States Treasury Department provides an unusual opportunity to help you save savings of every one of moderate income by means of investment in Treasury Savings Certificate obligations, which are direct Government obligations, and are absolutely safe.

Dollars so invested may not be so spectacular as those invested in some oil scheme that promises to pay 100% interest, but they are sure to turn $20.50 into $25 in five years; $82 into $100 in five years; and $820 into $1000 in five years time.

All information, as well as the Certificates, may be obtained from local postmaster or Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

"Our people are too quick and too careless in their response to the glib tongues of the bucket shop and wild-cat stock tooters," states Director Lloyd.

The United States Treasury Department provides an unusual opportunity to help you save savings of every one of moderate income by means of investment in Treasury Savings Certificate obligations, which are direct Government obligations, and are absolutely safe.

Dollars so invested may not be so spectacular as those invested in some oil scheme that promises to pay 100% interest, but they are sure to turn $20.50 into $25 in five years; $82 into $100 in five years; and $820 into $1000 in five years time.

All information, as well as the Certificates, may be obtained from local postmaster or Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Forester Offers Trees for Forest Planting

State Forester C. P. Wilber, of the State Department of Conservation and Development, has announced that his office has again arranged to distribute young trees for forest planting to owners of New Jersey land requiring reforestation. This policy was established last year and met with great success.

"We have arranged for several hundred thousand pine and spruce seedlings from reliable nurseries in New England," said Mr. Wilber, "and have thus been able to obtain the lowest possible prices, ranging from $5.10 to $7.50 per thousand. These trees will be offered to New Jersey forest planters."

"Orders for not less than 1,000 trees will be accepted for spring delivery as long as the supply lasts."

Collision Near Seventh and Thomas Saturday Night

On Saturday night about ten-thirty a Ford coupe, driven by Dr. Watkins, of Merion Pa., owner of the car, ran into a machine at Seventh and Thomas avenue, which was standing. The coupe upset and tore the back wheel and the fender off of the other car. The occupants of the car, beside the driver were Lloyd Sawyer, of Merion, and George Fritz, of Edgewater Park, and three girls whose names were not learned. The party was taken to the Riverton firehouse, but later let out on bail, and given a hearing before Recorder S. Howard Troth Monday evening. They were fined $35 and costs, total amount $42.00. They were also obliged to pay for repairing the car which they damaged. No one was seriously hurt.

Burglars Active in Riverton

Sunday morning about three o'clock Keating's hotel, at East Riverton, was entered by a burglar, and it is thought that it is the same one who entered the Kern residence and several other homes in that vicinity a few weeks ago. He got away with $30, a suit of clothes and a dress. Jack Keating, who came in about that time and discovered the theft, immediately communicated with Officer Quigley, and in a short time, he, together with Officers Wallace, Beck and Rogers and four of Detective Parker's men, were on the scene, but the man had escaped. About an hour later the home of Joseph McDermott on Cedar street, was entered, probably by the same person. Nothing was missed there but a pair of gold rimmed glasses and a pair of working shoes. Sunday evening Remine's boarding house, on Main street, was entered, but the thief was frightened off before he had time to collect any loot.

St. Joseph's Council Has a Rousing Good Time

St. Joseph's Council, K. of C., held a rousing meeting Tuesday night. The new officers occupied their chairs and functioned like "old timers." Brother Robert Woods, in behalf of the Council, presented a handsome traveling bag to the retiring Grand Knight, M. J. McDermott. Mr. Woods in presenting the gift referred to the good work done by the retiring G. K. Mr. McDermott very feelingly thanked the brothers, and after his emotion subsided, delivered a rattling talk.

Lecturer Pfaff then took hold of the exercises. Ice cream, cakes and cigars were passed around. The musical features were furnished by the juvenile quartette: Bradshaw, Braun and the Malone boys, coached by Miss Anna Braun. Brother William Hyland followed with his melodious tenor voice. Jim Elliott, as a black face comedian, made a hit. Charles Galloway, as the Jew comedian, was roundly enjoyed. Joe Braun brought down the house with a kettle drum solo, and Will Ormsby, of Merchantville, wound up the entertainment with a fancy dance. All in all the boys had a real party. Publicity Committee.

Anti-Catholic Imposter
Reports that the Knights of Columbus organized to break up a recent anti-Catholic meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall, in Kent Washington, are unfounded. A fake ex-nun began her address with the declaration: "Catholic priests teach all Catholics to hate all Protestants." J. V. Pozzi, a member of the American Legion, but not a Knight of Columbus, asked "Sister Angel" to recite the Apostles Creed. Unable to do so the impostor was denounced by the crowd and asked to leave the hall by Mayor Leonard, who had a few moments before introduced her.—The Sentinel, Portland, Oregon.

CITIZENSHIP CONFERENCE

A. G. Morse, of Riverton, Attends as Baraca Class Delegate

A. G. Morse, of Riverton, attended the conference on Good Citizenship held in Washington, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Following is a very condensed report. Mr. Morse will speak at a meeting in the Baptist Church next Wednesday evening on this subject.

Open accusations of disrespect for the American Constitution were made against two public officials—James M. Beck, solicitor general of the United States, and Representative John Philip Hill, of Maryland, in addresses last Saturday night at the Citizenship conference in Washington to promote law observance.

"Although I am not interested in the personal views or private tastes of the solicitor general of the United States," Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Synagogue of New York, declared, "I call it not only most unbecoming of him, but indecent to plead for lawlessness as to speak of the eighteenth amendment as the evasion of the personal rights of the American people."

"In order that I may not be misunderstood," Dr. Wise continued, "I question the fitness of the solicitor general in volunteering an opinion as to the desirability of a constitutional amendment which stands, and by so much giving countenance to certain groups of big gamesters, there are no hemispheres in law enforcement. Either a law is or it is not enforced."

In his address, in the course of which he twice brought his audience to its feet in applause, Dr. Wise declared that the eighteenth amendment is here to stay, and urged the most effective measures for enforcement.

Dr. Wise declared his slogan is "Either repeal or enforce."

"The enemies of law and order have neither the courage to undertake to repeal nor the decency to undertake to enforce the prohibition act," he declared. "Repeal if you can. I would reject if the whole problem would be put before the American people again. It would win by a far greater majority than it did before. The grows that are rumbling from the liquor centers of America are not to be judged the voice or the conscience of America. I would like to take some of these New York folk and Pennsylvania folk and New Jersey folk and District of Columbia folk out to the West and introduce them to America."

Dr. Wise declared he believes President Coolidge may be trusted to enforce the laws of the United States although he said this is not the President's job to enforce.

"It is the business of all peoples to cooperate with the President and the judiciary in enforcement of the law and not in conniving or tolerating violation."

Senator Glass condemned conditions in Pennsylvania, where more than a thousand saloons are said to have been running "wide open." There is not a saloon in the State of Virginia.

"Candidates for the next presidential election must declare frankly how they stand on the prohibition question," Bishop McDowell declared. "The friends of prohibition have no the slightest intention of yielding now the victory they have won, he said."

"We have many laws that we do not all or always like," he said, "but we have no classes that are privileged to choose whether they will regulate their obedience by their tastes or their skill in defiance. Liberty under law is matched by the fundamental principle of equality before the law."

Sunday Dr. Abernethy preached on "Law Enforcement" at 10.30. At 3.00 p. m. Governor Pinchot and Assistant Attorney General, Mrs. Mabel Wilbrandt, addressed the convention. At 8 in the evening, W. J. Bryan and ex-Governor Henry Allen, of Kansas, were the speakers, at the First Congressional Church. The services were attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge.

When Governor Pinchot made the speech on Sunday afternoon that has caused such a flurry in the political world, fully half of the audience applauded because they wanted to have somebody do something more than is being done. Others, supporters of the President, sat still and some shook their heads. That contingent found voice in ex-Governor Allen "and there was a division among them."

Bryan and Upshaw, Mr. Marshall of New York, and Senator Borah, all spoke for the Congress, the constitution, and whatever laws under it sanctioned by the Supreme Court must be obeyed by all, citizen and alien alike. The conference from first to last was harmonious on this proposition, but the means by which it should be accomplished called out a good deal of discussion. The government at Washington has not been successful in firing men who could be relied upon, for all its officers, and much graft has been unearthed.

A report of the work of the conference will soon be issued, together with its findings. The constructive coming activities will scarcely be disclosed yet, as it is not the purpose to put the guns in the hands of the foe.

GOOD WILL

It's not what we have done for our customers, but it's the way we have done it, that has secured their good will.

It's not attending to the routine banking functions which we're obliged to perform, but it's the going out of our way voluntarily to be helpful to all, that has made people speak well of us.

Helpfulness, or courtesy in action, is not selective in this bank. We never hesitate before rendering a service, nor discriminate between customers—all are valued friends.

We cordially invite everyone to use this service which our depositors have found so helpful, and which has given to us our biggest asset—their good will.

Have Coupler for Inductance Coils

Variation Easily Obtained by Turning Knurled Adjusting Knob.

Difficulty is often experienced in providing a suitable holder and coupling arrangement for honeycomb or dual-lateral coils. The problem is still more complicated if the coils are to be mounted in the rear of the instrument panel.

A unique coupler for this purpose which, under actual operating conditions, works very well, consists essentially of a compass with the inductance coils affixed to each arm. Coupling variation is obtained by turning the knurled adjusting knob, which moves back and forth on the threaded rod. For the benefit of readers who desire to construct a similar mounting the construction is given in detail.

A compass, obtainable in any stationery store, is drilled and counter-sunk at the four points, X, in the diagram, to pass 6-32 flat-headed machine screws. Two small stiff brass strips are cut to size and drilled for 6-32 machine screws. It would be well to nickel these strips if neat appearance is desired. Location of the holes will have to be computed after all material is at hand. The fixed coil and brass strip, A, are securely held to one arm by the two machine screws. Similarly, the upper or movable coil is attached to the other arm. It is necessary to drill a rather large hole in the panel to allow free movement of the shaft. The entire unit is then mounted as securely as possible to the rear of the instrument board. To obtain a good grip on the controlling knob it is necessary to fasten a suitable sized rubber or bakelite knob, D, to the knurled adjusting nut, B. The action is self-explanatory and an extremely smooth control is possible. Carrying out this idea of utilizing a compass as coupler, it is possible to construct variable (book-type) condensers quite easily. Nor is the coupler limited to honeycomb coils; it can be used with equal success in conjunction with spiderweb coils and single layer inductances. With a bit of thought an efficient detector stand could be designed.

The only drawback to this coupler is that only one set of coils can be used, but by tapping the coils this disadvantage can be eliminated.

Easy Way to Construct an Open Circuit Jack

The accompanying illustration will show how to make an open circuit jack, with a small piece of wood, some brass screws and a piece of spring brass about 3/8-inch wide, a short piece of brass tubing to fit the stem of a standard plug, which is threaded full length and is long enough to pass through the panel and have two thin nuts on both sides (unless the tubing can be strongly threaded into the panel itself, in which case the nuts may be eliminated).

The drawing is almost self-explanatory but it might be a good idea to put a thin coating of a good strong glue on the end of the wood block next to the panel, after the block has been fitted and ready for the long brass screw inserted and tightened. This will prevent the wood block from turning.—O. W. Pomeroy, St. Louis, Mo.

Antennae for Local and Long Distance

It is often advisable to erect two antennae when both local and long distance reception is desired. One of these antennae designed for obtaining a high degree of selectivity, in differentiating between local signals, may be a single-wire outdoor antenna approximately 30 feet in length and about 20 feet in height, or an indoor antenna using about the same length of lamp cord placed behind picture molding. For long distance reception a longer antenna is necessary; for this purpose a single wire about 150 feet in length stretched as high as possible will give satisfactory results. The use of two antennae provides a flexible arrangement for avoiding interference between local stations operating on nearly the same wave length, particularly when a regenerative receiver is used with the small antenna and, in addition, provides a larger antenna for use in long distance reception after the local stations have ceased operation.

Lived Thousands of Years Ago. Traces of a settlement estimated to be from 7,000 to 8,000 years old have been discovered in the bay of Hellingaard, about six miles from Noested in southern Zealand. The remains, consisting principally of arms and tools, were found by post-cutters at a depth of several feet and resting on the stratum which dates from an early glacial epoch. Forty flint axes, with other axes and harpoons made of bone from the antlers of animals, have been found. Bones of royal stags, elk, wild boars, beavers, foxes and dogs have also been brought to light and carefully preserved by experts from the national museum.

EVEN THE AUTO

By IDA M. TUPPER

“BUT, father, you are so unreasonable! It's just because you have lived on a farm all your life, and are prejudiced against city people. Your ideas are so old-fashioned. Why, father, people in the city simply couldn't exist without automobiles, and as for Vaughn Norwood—Well, I'm sorry to displease you, father, but I have no intention of ending my friendship with him.”

After delivering this declaration, Jane Witherspoon, with a defiant toss of her curly head, returned to the cookies she was skillfully cutting for the baking pan. She had recently graduated from college, where according to her father (rated the wealthiest man in the valley) she had acquired “notions.”

The deacon's strong aversion for these “new-fangled” city things was demonstrated by his emphatic refusal to buy a car. The faithful man, Roxy, whom the deacon had raised from a colt, he declared to be plenty fast enough for him, as he had no intention of endangering his life in one of “them thar road wreckers.”

Jane's outburst was due to her father's command that she never step foot inside Vaughn Norwood's car, and further, he didn't want the young “whippersnapper” to “set foot on his land.” Jane had never defied her parent before, although she had many times been exceedingly annoyed by his exacting prejudices. But this was more than even she could tolerate.

That night as Jane lay dreaming of a wonderful motor trip with Vaughn, crossing the country by gleaming lakes and snow-capped mountains, her father's grating, “Jane, Jane, come quick—mother—,” shattered the dream into grim reality.

The girl was accustomed to such calls, as Nancy Witherspoon, a delicate, flowerlike little woman, had an unruly heart. After a glance at her mother, a brief test of the pulse, Jane ran for the strychnine. Her brain reeled momentarily when she saw the empty bottle. No strychnine and mother—

“Jane, Jane, come quick—mother—,” shattered the dream into grim reality.

Grasping the telephone, she called the bearer of her father's animosity. “Vaughn, Jane speaking. Rush with strychnine—your car—mother.” Her faltering voice told the story, and he needed no further explanation.

Her father, suffering intensely, as his wife was the idol of his heart, groaned in dismay when Jane disclosed the empty phial.

“Oh, Jane, what can we do? There wouldn't be time with old Roxy!” Jane shook her head in negation.

“I've telephoned Vaughn, father, to rush out in his car. He ought to make it in ten minutes if he can get the medicine.”

The man first glared at her, then nodded his head in submission.

As he patted Nancy's ice-cold hand he crooned, “Just hold on a few minutes more, dear, just a few minutes.” She smiled at them wily and Jane worked over her almost frantically. Would he never come? Nancy grew paler and paler, her breath came in fluttering gasps.

The whirr of an engine, the door opened and Vaughn handed Jane the medicine. She quickly administered to her mother. All enmity was forgotten between Vaughn and Witherspoon in their united efforts to revive Nancy.

After several hours, when life had been restored and his wife was tranquilly sleeping, the old man extended his hand to the departing Norwood.

“Vaughn, I've been an obdurate old codger. Boy, I can't thank you—” Tears of gratitude trickled down the old man's wrinkled cheeks as he continued: “You've helped me keep the dearest thing in life to me, and just to get even with you I'll buy one of your ding-busted road-wreckers.”

When the Deacon drove out in his new car and announced that Jane was soon to become Mrs. Norwood, the sewing circle held two meetings in one week to fathom out how it ever happened.

But the Deacon knew that “a friend in need is a friend indeed”—even the auto.

Tame Deer in British Columbia. An interesting story comes from British Columbia by the roundabout way of the Yorkshire (England) Post, as follows: A settler took up his abode on a small rocky island. After he had been there a few days, a solitary deer paid him a visit. He put down some cornstalks for it, and, later, it brought a second. Food was provided regularly, and by the end of the year thirty were in the habit of coming, swimming, as he learned, from the mainland. The animals soon lost all fear, and clustered round the dwelling as cattle might, some of the more daring knocking at the door to announce their presence.

Quite Disappointed. She reached Newquay after dark and was met by friends who motored her to their country home on a hill-side.

The next morning she walked into the garden, quite prepared to be astounded by the grandeur of Cornwall. Down an avenue of tall trees she caught a glimpse of sky-blue water.

“What is that water?” she asked. “That,” replied her hostess, proudly, “is the Atlantic ocean.”

“Oh, I had an idea it was larger.”

Attend Concerts to Digest Dinner. An English critic, W. J. Turner, has written that most audiences “go to the concert hall or the theater more or less fuddled with food and drink.” He points out that every athlete knows it is impossible to do good work after a heavy meal, and that people can scarcely expect to be able to listen well with music if they are not fit to grapple with what is set before them. Large numbers of patrons of symphonies, he avers, sit through them in a state of blissful stupor, not really listening to music, but digesting their dinners to orchestral accompaniment.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 21

ISRAEL IN THE MIDST OF THE NATIONS

LESSON TEXT—Josh. 1:1-4; Isa. 51:4; Isa. 19:23-25; Ezek. 5:5.
GOLDEN TEXT—“Look unto me and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth.”—Isa. 45:22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Beautiful Land of Israel.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Land God Chose for His People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Israel in the Midst of the Nations.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Strategic Position of Palestine.

1. Israel's Geographical Position (Josh. 1:1-4; cf. Ezek. 5:5).
Israel, God's chosen and most favored nation, the nation to whom He came nearest and gave most in order that it might pass on His goodness to the other nations of the world, was given a most strategic position in the earth. “Palestine was adapted as no other country for God's great purpose of preparing a pure religion and sending it to all the world. To this end a single nation was selected, trained and placed in the center of the world, so that when the time came to publish the true religion all lands could be reached. Palestine was central and isolated, yet accessible, for when the time came for the apostles to go from Palestine by the Mediterranean sea to the lands round about it, and from there to other lands, their way was open.”

1. Their Leader (Josh. 1:1). Joshua was Moses' assistant. He led the Israelites to victory over the Amalekites soon after their escape from Egypt. He was with Moses in the Mount when the law was given. He was one of the spies sent into the land of Canaan. When Moses knew that his time of departure was high he appointed Joshua his successor.

2. Condition of the Possession of the Land (v. 8). The land was theirs by God's promise, but it became theirs only as their feet advanced to take possession of it. Because of their lack of faith, courage and obedience they never enjoyed the full possession of it. Christians today lack the riches of the Heavenly Father's blessings because of their want of faith and courage.

3. Its Boundaries (v. 4). On the north it was bounded by the rugged mountains of Lebanon; on the east by the Euphrates river; on the south by the “great and terrible” desert, a barren region through which the children of Israel had wandered for forty years; and on the west by the Mediterranean sea. It included all of Mesopotamia. Israel's lack of faith prevented them from possessing fully this land.

11. Israel's Spiritual and National Position (Isa. 2:2-4; 19:23-25).
This pictures the place of influence which shall be exercised by Israel in a future time.

1. When It Shall Be (v. 2)—“in the last days.” By “the days” is usually meant in Scripture the time of the Messiah, for this is the primary subject of all prophecy.

2. What It Shall Be (v. 2). The restoration of the kingdom of Judah to the place of pre-eminence among the nations of the world. “Mountain” in Scripture symbolizes kingdom (see Dan. 2:35; Rev. 18:1, 17:9-11). This vision of Zion's glory refers to the millennial age, at which time other nations of the world will learn of the true God through the chosen nation.

3. The Result of (v. 2-4). The return of God's favor to this chosen people shall be “life from the dead.” To the nations of the earth (Rom. 11:15).
(1) Nations shall flow unto it (v. 2).
“This pictures the masses of the people moving toward Jerusalem like streams from all parts of the earth.” (2) Nations encouraging each other (v. 3). All jealousies are now taken from nations, and with good will to each other they are moving to Jerusalem, the world's capital. They are going there to be taught of God the right ways to walk. They go to be instructed out of His holy Word. There is but one way to peace in the world, that is, back to God through His holy Scriptures.

(3) Peace in the earth (v. 4). When Israel shall be in her God-appointed place with Jesus Christ as king, then war will be over. The implements of war will then be destroyed. (4) Friendly communication (Isa. 19:23-25). As soon as wickedness is taken from men's hearts they will establish means of friendly communication.

Good Tidings. How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings.—Isa. 52:7.

Bernetta Bratton. Miss Bernetta Bratton, Telford, Pa., was 16 years of age when she enrolled for the Secretarial Course at Haverly's Business College.

Miss Bratton graduated at Strayer's Business College as a secretary on July 2nd, and the College promptly placed her in the position she now holds, where she earns more than $100 a month.

This illustrates what Strayer's Business College is doing for hundreds of boys and girls.

Call, write or phone for particulars, or bring your daughter to Strayer's to enroll now.

Boys' and Girls' Corner

We are glad to welcome back to our Boys' and Girls' Corner the reports and compositions written by the children of the Riverton public school. The articles published this week were sent in too late to use in our last issue.

This corner is especially for the children and we hope they will send in whatever is of interest to them.

Reports from Riverton Public School

September 21st a Civic Club was organized by the eighth grade. The officers elected were: president, Edward Hutchins; vice president, Harold Foulke; secretary, Virginia Good; treasurer, James Reeves.

The seventh grade have formed a club, and also elected officers. Both clubs have made several rules for the president to execute, and a few aims. Meetings are held every Friday.

An athletic committee that had already been formed by the seventh grade was adopted by the other club. The committee consists of: eighth grade (boys) Herbert Schneider, Harold Foulke, James Reeves; (girls) Virginia Good, chairman, Jane Schmidt, Dorothy Cole; seventh grade (boys) Charles Knight, chairman; Samuel Herbert, Edson Hicks; (girls) Maxine Meitzner, chairman, Katherine Burr, Lenore Merrill.

Wednesday, October 3rd, was a holiday for the children of Riverton public school. Teachers' Institute was held in Palmyra.

School and Grade Work

The primary grades worked on some special "safety first" work last week.

The sixth grade had a play for Monday but had to postpone it because of the absence of one of the principal characters in it.

This week is fire prevention week and all of the rooms are having some sort of work on account of it. We also had a fire drill this morning that was gone through very well.

Instead of having assembly Friday morning we will have it Thursday morning on account of Columbus Day. JACK CARPENTER.

On Monday, October 1, the third grade gave a recitation entitled "Good Advice for Boys." Besides that Miss Chew gave a lecture on "Good Attendance." After that we had our regular closing exercises and came to our rooms.

Friday morning, October 5, assembly was made exceptionally interesting when the eighth grade gave stereoscopic views about Japan and a few pictures of different cities in the United States. The views illustrated showed us the customs of the Japanese people and the progressiveness of the country. I am sure the whole school enjoyed seeing pictures of the country we are now hearing so much about. B. B. and C. K.

The Autobiography of a Bear Cub I was born in the Yellowstone National Park. I had one brother. He was a little black fat cub and I guess I looked like him.

One day we followed mother to the river. Mother went right in but as we went our feet wet, we turned and ran back because the water was cold. Mother coaxed us, but the water was too cold so we tried to run away. Mother caught us and coaxed some more. We got our feet wet again but then turned and ran full speed toward the woods. This time mother caught up with me and cuffed me so hard that I rolled over and over on the sand. My brother came back looking half frightened to death. We found no way out of it so we dug our claws into her hips and she towed us across the river.

That was last week. Now we go in swimming every day and like it. We eat berries and fish which we catch with our paws. Once in a while we find some honey, and sometimes the bees sting us for stealing it. We rub mud on our stings.

Soon it will be winter and then we will eat a lot so we won't grow thin during our long winter's sleep in our cave until spring awakens us.

JOHN SULLIVAN, Seventh Grade. Concord, Massachusetts, April 19, 1923.

My dear Amelia: You are certainly fortunate not to have been here in this part of the country last night. We have had much excitement here.

But first, have you ever been in our home? It is a typical farm-house built of brick, with a great paneled front door of oak. There is a library in which are all the family treasures, and many are from foreign countries. Then a sitting room, with a great open fireplace that can hold logs four feet long. On the other side is the music and dining room. A long portico separates the kitchen from the rest of the house. Adjoining this is a wing, in which Deborah, Sarah and Susan live. Out there is the spinning room and coach house.

Upstairs there are six bedrooms. But I fear I have dwelt too long on this subject. I must tell of that excitement.

There is a certain gentleman by the name of Paul Revere, who lives here. General Gage (British) had sent soldiers from Boston to Concord to get some of our supplies, and to arrest John Hancock and Samuel Adams. This Mr. Revere aroused the country by shouting "The British are coming! The British are coming!"

Alarm bells were rung, signal guns were fired, and the minute men came together. The British troops found about fifty minute men drawn upon Lexington Green. "Disperse, ye rebels!" shouts Pitcairn, the British captain.

"Don't fire unless fired upon!" cries Captain Parker, of the minute men. "But if they mean to have a war, let it begin here!"

Our men stood their ground. Eight were killed. Eight were wounded. At the Concord Bridge some Americans attacked them, and when the British started back for Boston, they found the country-side alive with riflemen, who from behind tree and house, haystack, fence and mound, poured in a deadly line of fire.

The British lost two hundred and seventy men, while we lost only ninety-three.

We hope there will be no war, because brother Jack insists on joining the army.

Now I must close, dear Amelia, with love to you, Your affectionate friend, PRUDENCE EMERSON, HELEN LANDERS, Eighth Grade.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

THE BEAUTIFUL FACULTY—BENEVOLENCE

It is easy to recognize the sympathetic and helpful soul. He or she will have benevolence well developed in face, head and mannerisms.

One or more long, deep, regular, straight, unbroken lines running horizontally across the forehead when the eyes are raised, are the strongest indications of benevolence. The lips will be full and generous, especially the upper lip.

When the benevolent individual talks to anyone he looks straight forward and leans his head toward the one he is talking to. He even bends his body slightly toward the object of sympathy. His upper forehead is large. He has great tolerance for the weakness and wickedness, faults and defects of other people.

Benevolence is the most Christlike of the faculties, and when with it a strong will is seen at the top of the head above the ear, its possessor will be a fighter for the unprotected and needy. He devotes himself to all sorts of plans and charitable movements, and unless he holds a check on himself he may go into partnership too quickly for his own good. He often neglects himself for other people, and in his first ardor gives them sometimes too much help for their own good. (©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Why Accuracy is Greatest Asset. The shorthand speed record is broken again, this time by Nathan Behrin, New York court stenographer. In the pencil sprint he takes down 350 words a minute with only two errors.

Few people can read that fast, or even think at a speed of 350 words a minute.

Best to go slower and avoid the two errors, in everyday life. Accuracy is a greater asset than speed. A small error upsets the whole thing, just as one chain is stronger than its weakest link. A platitude? Yes. All truths are platitudes.

Now I must close, dear Amelia, with love to you, Your affectionate friend, PRUDENCE EMERSON, HELEN LANDERS, Eighth Grade.

PLAN TO MAKE SUNDAES AT HOME

Crushed Peach Ice Cream and Chocolate Sundae.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Far from the soda fountain—out in the country, at shore or mountain resort—the children may enjoy chocolate sundae and fruit ice cream of many kinds if ice is procurable and if they are willing to furnish the labor when it comes to turning the freezer. The small boy who is not willing to help out in exchange for the privilege of licking the dasher would be hard to find.

Plain Vanilla Ice Cream.
1 qt. market cream (usually 16 to 18 per cent fat).
1 pint whole or evaporated milk.
1/2 pint sugar (1/2 pound).
1/2 teaspoonful vanilla.

This recipe is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. It can be served with a hot or cold chocolate syrup as chocolate sundae; it is good with maple syrup poured over it and a few chopped walnut meats; with crushed fruit in syrup it may be some other kind of sundae—either strawberry, peach, raspberry, pineapple (the pineapple should be cooked or canned), apricot, or any other preferred fruit according to the season.

The recipe can also be varied by introducing different flavors into the mixture before freezing it. A cupful of sweetened fruit pulp is the right amount for the quantity of cream and other ingredients in the recipe. Half a pint of sweetened peach pulp (made from three peaches and one-fourth

HOW VARIOUS FOODS MEET NEED OF BODY

Recent Bulletin of Much Interest to Housekeepers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A new and graphic method of showing the composition of 50 common foods has been followed in Department Bulletin No. 975, Food Values: How Foods Meet Body Needs, by Emma A. Winslow, which has just been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The bulletin is of interest both to dietitians and to housekeepers. A chart for each food shows, by lines of different lengths, what percentage of the total necessary fuel and protein and also of three of the important minerals—lime, iron, and phosphorus—is contained in a pound of that food, thus making it possible to compare foods with respect to any of their nutrients.

The charts do not show whether or not the foods graphically illustrated are sources of vitamins, but certain paragraphs discuss this important phase of nutrition in detail. The comparison made by the charts is helpful in combining food materials so as to make a complete ration, for it shows not only what a given food supplies but also what it lacks.

A glance at the milk diagram, for example, shows that a pound (16 oz.) of milk supplies over eight-tenths of the calcium (lime) a man needs per day, and less than one-tenth of the iron. The other foods of the diet should therefore include some in which iron predominates, and turning over the pages of the bulletin it is possible to find many such very easily.

Vegetables and fruits, it is seen from the charts, are useful in supplying mineral substances and bulk in the diet without unduly increasing the protein and fuel. Milk, eggs, cheese, fish, meats, and almost all the foods depended upon to supply efficient protein, are, with a few exceptions, of animal origin. Peanuts and soy beans, however, differ from other legumes such as dried beans, peas, and lentils, in containing efficient or adequate protein. Milk is one of the best foods for young and old and cannot be satisfactorily replaced in the diet of growing children. Some of the protein foods are rich in mineral substances. Meat and egg yolks supply iron, milk furnishes calcium, and peanuts phosphorus. Many of these protein foods, especially milk and egg yolks, are valuable sources of vitamins A and B.

Cereal foods provide protein and energy in about the proportion needed by the body. Their protein is, however, of such kind that it needs to be supplemented by milk, eggs, cheese, and flesh foods. When made from the whole grain, cereal foods also supply some mineral substances and vitamins, but a diet containing large proportions of refined cereals, food must be supplemented by plenty of dairy products, vegetables, and fruits. The various kinds of cereals differ little in value. Rice, wheat flour, and corn meal, for example, all yield about 1,000 calories to the pound.

Sugar and energy foods are valuable for fuel. A few sweet foods such as maple syrup, jelly, and preserved fruits also contain small amounts of protein and mineral substances. Sweets in proper amounts are an important part of the diet, when served at the right time.

Fats and fat foods as a class have a higher fuel value than those of any other group. They add flavor and richness to the diet, but should not be used to excess. Milk fat is a particularly rich source of vitamins A, B, and C, and cream, therefore, far more important than most other fats in the diet of growing children. Chocolate and nuts, which are fat foods, also contain generous proportions of protein and minerals.

In estimating the value of a "made" dish containing materials from several different groups it has been convenient to chart these in the form in which they are eaten.

The bulletin, "How Foods Meet Body Needs" is available free on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

WAYS FOR COOKING CHICKEN
Steam Pressure Method Saves Time, Fuel, Labor, Heat and Much of Food Value.

Chicken cooked under steam pressure is delicious, states the United States Department of Agriculture. This method saves time, fuel, labor, heat and food value. Smothered chicken can be prepared as for frying, dredged with flour and browned in hot fat in the bottom of the pressure cooker. It is then seasoned with salt and pepper and transferred to the rack of the cooker, with one-half cupful of water below. When the cooker is closed it is brought up to 15 pounds pressure and maintained there 40 to 60 minutes, depending on the age of the fowl. The stock should be thickened and served with the chicken.

Roast chicken with dressing and chicken fricassee can also be prepared in the pressure cooker. A lower pressure and longer cooking is preferred when the fowl is left whole.

Pilot Fish of the Tropics.

The pilot fish is a little fish well known to sailors from its peculiar habit of keeping company with ships and large fishes, especially sharks, an exchange says. It occurs in all tropical and subtropical seas, and is common in the Mediterranean, but becomes scarcer in higher latitudes. Ancient seamen of the Mediterranean regarded it as a sacred fish. They described it as a fish which pointed out the way to dubious or embarrassed sailors, and by its sudden disappearance indicated to them the vicinity of land. The coloration of the pilot renders it conspicuous at a distance. On a bluish ground color from five to seven dark blue or violet crossbands traverse the body from the back to the belly.

Originator of School Flag Salute.

The flag salute used in schools is said to date back to 1898 and its original author was James R. Upham, a member of the firm that published the Youth's Companion. Other members of the firm and members of the editorial staff of that journal assisted him. He conceived the idea, in 1888, of fostering patriotism by putting the flag over every schoolhouse in this country. This work was taken up by the National Educational Association, at whose invitation congress declared October 21, 1898, a school holiday on which the four hundredth anniversary of Columbus' landing was celebrated by suitable exercises. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was then first officially adopted.

Seeing the Silver Lining.

It is always a pleasant moment for us when some new optimist swims into our ken and we can tell our readers about him. Here is the latest specimen of the genre. He had purchased a new home in the suburbs and within a week after he and his wife had moved in they received nifty evidence that to the west of them lay a glue factory, to the south a gas works, and to the east a highly odoriferous pigery. To his complaining spouse said the optimist soothingly: "Of course, dear, it is a little unpleasant at times, but you must admit our location is not without its advantages. At least, we don't have to buy a weather vane to tell which way the wind is blowing."—Boston Transcript.

Wants to Know What Kills Her.

There had been an unusually severe thunder-storm during the night, and old Mrs. Jarvie, for the first time in her life, slept through it. As a rule, she rose, lit her candle, dressed herself and sat in a chair on a rubber mat. Rather than being thankful that she was not aware of the storm, the old lady waxed warm with wrath the following morning when she heard of it. "Mercy me! I should think I was in a boarding-house 'stead of living among my own folks in my own home. We'd there one of my children or but you must admit our location is not without its advantages. At least, we don't have to buy a weather vane to tell which way the wind is blowing."—Boston Transcript.

His Dreams Come True.

Jules Verne wrote over eighty novels. A story by Edgar Allan Poe may have inspired his first romance, "Five Weeks in a Balloon," and an advertisement of Cook's tours perhaps gave him the idea for "Round the World in Eighty Days." Verne was a Breton and therefore naturally a sea-lover. He spent his summers cruising in his boat, the St. Michael, with two sailors as companions. Something would give him an idea for a story and he would work hard to get it out correct in every detail. Early in his career he contracted to furnish two books yearly and did it. Will mankind ever realize his dream of a voyage to the moon, as it made real his submarine.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more yawning, sniffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

Cello Dog Saved Youngster.

A shepherd's collie found a boy of two and a half years of age who had been lost in the hills on the Scottish border for four days. The boy was the son of a shepherd. He had been taken by his mother on a peat cutting expedition about a quarter of a mile from their cottage home at Kerrhead, on the Solway firth. While the mother worked at the peat the child lay down and fell asleep. But when she had finished her task the boy had disappeared. A three days' search failed to find him. On the fourth day, a shepherd from the neighboring farm of Chaihouse steads, was recovering some sheep which had strayed when his dog ran off. The collie replied to his master's whistle, and, looking up at him, again went off in the direction from which he had come. The shepherd, realizing that there was something to account for the dog's behavior, followed. He found the missing boy asleep in a bunch of rushes.

It was discovered early Saturday evening on Coles town road near Moorestown, where it had been abandoned earlier in the day. The car was immediately brought to Palmyra by Herman Bating, a member of the county detective squad, and two State police, and returned to its owner. -Two automobiles collided at Charles street and Garfield avenue last Thursday evening. One car was going down Garfield avenue and the other out Charles street. Both were traveling at a good clip and neither driver saw the other car until just before they hit, making it impossible to avoid the accident. One was a Philadelphia car, and the other was driven by Tony Attonne. The driver of the Pennsylvania car refused to give his name to bystanders, and there were no officers present, so he escaped without being identified. He was first forced to make some repairs before he could leave town, his front wheel having been taken down in the collision. -Palmyra's top baseball player, Russell "Lena" Blackburne, has had a wonderful season, one of the best in his career. He has been starring in both the second and third base positions on the Kansas City team, the "Blacky" team won the American Association pennant, but not until the last day of the season when they defeated the Toledo aggregation in a double header, the first game of which was the deciding factor in one of the closest races in the history of baseball. The Kansas bunch is now engaged in a nine-game series with the Baltimore Orioles, who are the international League champs, for the minor league championship or what is known as the junior world series. Kansas City won two of the first three games which were played on its home lot. "Blacky" batting average for the season was .296.

Palmyra Council Receives Report on Amount Due Former Township Solicitor Beckenbach

At the meeting of Palmyra Borough Council Tuesday evening, a decision was made on the claims of former Township Solicitor Beckenbach regarding the sum still owed to him for legal work on the sewer system. Auditor Williams reported that he and Mr. Beckenbach had gone over the records and that Mr. Beckenbach was entitled to receive $333.50 of his bill. Mr. Beckenbach had originally presented a bill for a balance of $953.50 and had planned to sue for this amount. Mr. Williams said the former solicitor offered to settle for the $333.50 plus costs and interest, a total of $375. Mayor Wear took the stand that the delay in payment had been due to Mr. Beckenbach's mistake in the amount, and not to any fault of the Borough Council, holding therefore for any interest or costs. A motion was made that Solicitor Low be authorized to settle the bill for $353.50. An ordinance was introduced by Mr. Beckenbach compelling owners of vacant lots to keep them clear of rubbish and weeds. This will be considered further at the next meeting.

Hallowe'en Party To the People of Palmyra

You are invited to participate in a Hallowe'en party to be held on Broad street, Palmyra, on Wednesday evening, October 31st. This invitation is extended to all our people, rich and poor, high and low, good looking and homely. All that we insist on is that you wear a smile and join in the merry-making. We would request that you wear a different face from that which you usually wear. Cash prizes will be given for the handsomest and most comic costumes for men, women and children. Competition open to all. If you would like to meet the Hallowe'en spirit, you are invited to this year it will be your own fault. WILLIAM E. JENKINS CHARLES HAHN THOMAS SCHWINK EDGAR A. Odd Fellows, What! They are at it again. Who?

Cinnaminson Lodge No. 201, I. O. O. F. On Tuesday evening, October 9th, a delegation of members journeyed to Bridgeboro, opening the season of indoor quill games betwixt Bridgeboro Lodge and this lodge. The initial meeting was not very auspicious for the visitors, who finished on the short end of the score, but we hope to have our revenge on Friday evening, October 19th, when we entertain Bridgeboro Lodge, on our home floor. A remark was made the other day about the many homes in the twin cities in which can be seen a light late at night and even into the "wee sma" hours of the morning. Suspicious? No. The answer is simple. Radio bugs at it. And in this class can properly be placed the Radio Club of Cinnaminson Lodge No. 201, I. O. O. F., in whose lodge room the same vigil has been kept into the morning hours on several occasions. Splendid results have been obtained by the members whose radio sets were made to do overtime duty at these seances. Enthusiasm is running high and with the coming radio season big things are expected in the radio work of this lodge.

Mrs. Elizabeth Matsinger

Mrs. Elizabeth Matsinger, aged 60 years, of 512 West Sixth street, died in the New Lisbon hospital Friday, October 12th. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Snover funeral home, with the Rev. Harry L. Saul, pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Palmyra and Riverton officiating. Interment was made in the Methodist cemetery. Mrs. Matsinger was the wife of F. R. Matsinger, of Camden, who is a former resident of Palmyra.

Many Good Suggestions for Parents Are Discussed

A very interesting meeting of the Palmyra Parent-Teacher Association was held in the Palmyra Grammar school auditorium Tuesday evening. Clippings were read from the Child Welfare magazine by some of the members and proved not only to be interesting but very helpful, as they are filled with many good suggestions. Mrs. Frank Johnson, in a talk, mentioned that many of the present meetings should be held in the homes, and be enlightening on the subject of child-raising, are among those who only attend on very rare occasions, or not at all. Cumberland County Council Chairman, Mrs. Luther Davis, gave a short but inspiring address. The musical program consisted of a piano duet by the Misses Ruth Abdlil and Florence Harvey, violin solo by Miss Ed. Yerkes and a reading by Miss Rae Green.

Next Sunday will be "Go to Church Sunday"

We hope to have a big day. Special music is being prepared by the choir. The subject of the sermon by the pastor will be "The Lordship of Jesus and Our Stewardship." In the evening there will be given the first of a series of sermons by the preachers of the Gospel. This week a sermon by Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon, entitled "Three Precious Things" will be presented. Next Wednesday at eight o'clock the Baraca Class will have charge of a meeting on Good Citizenship. Mr. A. G. Morse will tell of Gov. Pinchot's challenge, reporting the great conference at Washington, D. C., last week, which he attended. Everybody is invited to this service. Next week, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Ninety-fourth Annual Convention of the New Jersey Baptists will be held in the First Baptist Church, Asbury Park, N. J. The pastor will attend this convention.

Lutheran News

Sunday, October 21, is our second anniversary. There will be a fitting celebration of it on Sunday evening, with special music by the choir, and the soprano soloist from Dr. Dager's church, Broad and Venango streets, Philadelphia, Mrs. Caroline Wall. The pastor will preach both morning and evening, the subject in the morning being "Our Enemy," and in the evening, "The Purpose of the Church." The Luther League is growing rapidly, under the guidance of Dr. E. H. Grafton. The subject for this Sunday evening is "The Ministry of Sunday," the leader Harry Ridgway. The Ladies' Aid Society is having special meetings every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Ladies of the church should watch the growth and work for the poor, the guiding the mass of work being done. Several Hallowe'en parties are in progress of formation. Come out on Sunday and hear where you should be to celebrate the occasion.

YMCA

All YMCA members and others interested in the work please reserve Thursday, October 25th, for a big fall get-together in the YMCA building at Broad and Garfield avenues. If you have not been around lately come out and get acquainted. A good speaker, singing and eats. This will be held under the direction of the Palmyra YMCA Board, which has lately come to life. THE TAX QUESTION

Would Have Tax Valuation Done by State and Not by Municipalities Uniformity of Tax Valuations Uniformity of tax valuations throughout the state is emphasized in a report submitted to the State Board of Education by Dr. John C. Van Dyke of Rutgers College, one of the eight members. The report was prepared in connection with a study of taxation for school purposes. Dr. Van Dyke has been engaged in the study for several years. Until the valuation of property is equalized, says Dr. Van Dyke, no change should be made in the present rate of the state school tax, the maximum of which is 27.5 cents on each $100 of valuation. As a matter of justice to the large municipalities which do not suffer from inequitable taxation, Dr. Van Dyke is opposed to an income tax. Such an additional levy, he points out, would only add to the existing inequities.

Against County Assessments

The report by Dr. Van Dyke is to be sent to each member of the State Board of Education, which may take action on it at the November meeting. In the report Dr. Van Dyke said, in part: "The levying and collecting of school taxes by the state is a necessity, otherwise sufficient school money will not be raised and distributed. There is a necessity for uniform assessment of taxable property throughout the school districts of the state. Such assessment should be made by the State Board of Taxes and Assessments in order to insure equality and fairness. Assessments should be by school districts, not by counties. All property should be valued on the same percentage basis. It is generally understood that the State Board of Taxes and Assessments already has in its possession sufficient data to any fair percentage of value any school district in the state is assessed. If that value in any given case should be only 30, 40 or 60 per cent of the real value it should not be an impossible or difficult matter to fix the value at 100 per cent. No increase Under Present Condition It is not desirable to raise the value to 100 per cent throughout the state or the mileage tax could be lowered, but the percentage of either assessment or mileage should be the same in each and every school district in the state. There should be no increase in the present mileage tax until assessments are uniform and a proper system of distribution is established. The bill introduced in the state legislature last winter which suggested a repeal of the present 2 1/2 mill tax and its place a levying of a state income tax at a minimum of 8 mills should not become a law. Such a change would merely duplicate to a certain extent the Federal income tax and would result in the few rich districts paying practically all the school tax and the poor rural districts paying practically nothing. Realty as Tax Base There is no great injustice in reality being the basis of school taxation. The burden falls on city property as well as farm property. City real estate is often quite as unprofitable as farming property, but it is not, should not be, exempt from taxation on that account. The real injustice at the present time is that some real estate is assessed as high as 100 per cent and some as low as 40 per cent. What the valuations for tax purposes are uniform throughout all the school districts there will be more revenue and less injustice to those from whom it is collected. It is a matter of millions in taxes from real and personal property to income is a violent experiment and besides does not really solve the question. It is not so much the raising as the distribution of the tax that is perplexing. Direct Distribution "Ninety or perhaps 100 per cent of the school tax raised should be returned to the districts by rates as raised. The state handling of this tax merely insures its being raised and applied to school purposes. Under the proposed plan no 10 per cent reserve should be necessary. All the state school moneys aside from that raised by the school districts—that is, the railroad tax, the income of the state school fund and the appropriation by the legislature—should be distributed directly to the 600-odd school districts of the state. The state should deal directly with the district as a unit and not with the county as a unit. Cities and Country "In previous distributions the large cities have fared better than the rural districts. The reason is not far to seek. The basis of distribution heretofore has been teachers and attendance. The cities have better attendance than the country districts, whereby they profit, and they also have more teachers to a given number of children than the country districts, whereby they again profit. "If the State Board of Taxes and Assessment should establish the true value for the purposes of taxation of the property of District A and District B we could then ascertain the value of property per capita per pupil in each district. That would give the ability to pay of each district. "The cost per capita per pupil per year in each district could be ascertained and would show what each district has been paying per capita per pupil. Needs Less in Country "The need of each district is the third factor to be established—that is, the educational need to give each pupil in the district a schooling first class of its kind. This implies, of course, a money need also, which must be considered. "It is perhaps generally true that it costs less to educate a pupil in a country district than in a city district, because land, buildings, teachers, janitors and general overhead charges are greater in the city than in the country. But this is not to be taken as meaning that thirty pupils in a city need three teachers and thirty pupils in the country need one. "The country children are entitled to as efficient teaching as those in the city. But there may be extravagance in both the examples cited. Three teachers may be too many and one teacher not enough for thirty pupils."

Finally Fulfilled Its Purpose.

Woman's International League for Peace—New Jersey Branch

Although the northern section of the State has been organized for two years, the southern did not get together until last April, the Philadelphia organization having been so handy. But we now have 114 members.

North Jersey, learning of our work, asked us to meet with them in a joint session at Trenton, October 17, at which time, after full discussion, it was voted we would take steps to join forces, to go into effect at the spring meeting.

In the meantime, we would work toward Congressional districting and have similar programs, but use discretion as to the means, the southern section, feeling the best and quickest results could be obtained through Parent-Teacher Associations.

The National secretary, Miss Wood, gave us a very interesting talk about European interest in the peace movement which she acquired in her first hand and showing that a little more effort now will give the cause a momentum which will quicken the world to a "racial soul" and peace mind.

The National society is working for a study of the World Court as advocated by the late President Harding, its strength lying in the clause of covenant relating to manner in which the judges shall form their opinions. They will also look for outgrowth of war and a World Court week to be held on anniversary of Armistice.

Let us all help to start the peace spirit. G. B. S.

Mrs. Joseph Foster and son, John, of Audubon, visited her mother, Mrs. M. L. Foster, on Friday.

Charles Hunter and family, of Bridgeboro, were visitors at the home of Thomas Hunter and attended the rally day service at the Asbury M. E. Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Underhill and son, Melvin, of Belmar, N. J., spent Sunday with Mrs. Underhill's mother, Mrs. Albert Giberson, of Union Landing.

Miss Louisa Southwick, while keeping an appointment with Dr. M. A. Schurter, of Riverside, on Monday evening, met Dr. J. W. Brice, who is quarantine doctor at Hammacco, Porto Rico. He had just returned that day after spending twenty years in Porto Rico. He expects to spend two weeks with Dr. Schurter at his residence, 8 Morton avenue, during which time he will take the State examinations, so that he can practice medicine and surgery in New Jersey.

TO BUILD TWENTY GARAGES

Palmyra Motor to Provide Individual Storage for Patrons

The Palmyra Motor Company, local Ford-Fordson and Lincoln dealers, have plans and specifications for the building of a row of twenty individual automobile garages.

Each garage will be placed in a row starting at the rear of the present shop and along the East property line to Fifth street.

Each garage will be private and will have steam heat, electric light, water and air.

Fred W. Seeber, manager of the Palmyra Motor Co. says that increased live storage business has necessitated this operation and feels sure the garages will be welcomed by their patrons. Occupancy about November 15, 1923.

Films Aid in School Study of Wild Life

Moving pictures will promote the study of natural history this winter in the public schools of many New Jersey towns. Where the printed or illustrated page heretofore has carried the story of animals and fish native of New Jersey, arrangements have been made by the State Fish and Game Commission to loan interesting films of native wild life to all schools as supplements to the text books.

The plan also has been adopted by Philadelphia high schools, which are using the New Jersey films this month for educational exhibits. The films show wild game animals, both in their native environment and under artificial methods of rearing on the State game farms and preserves. Other films of fish culture are equally interesting and instructive.

PERFECTION IN CLOSED CARS

Lincolns Satisfy the Most Exacting Tastes

While exceptional performance and rugged character are generally recognized features of Lincoln Motor Cars, the enclosed body types, designed to satisfy the most exacting tastes and to provide the utmost in motoring comfort and luxury, have their greatest charm in the extreme niceties of detail.

Individual preference is given a wide play in the five standard enclosed types and the six custom-built bodies, with selections ranging from the smart two-passenger coupe to the aristocratic limousine, the exclusive town car or the imposing cabriolet. And tastes are further satisfied by the options available in the choice of finish, colors and upholstery.

The deeply cushioned seats gently impel a restful posture and accessories are so placed as to be just where they are most convenient. Indeed, every thing possible which will even in the slightest degree contribute to the ease and comfort of the occupants has been carefully thought out and incorporated.

The unique spring suspension in connection with the 136-inch wheel-base chassis of the Lincoln, together with hydraulic shock absorbers, now standard equipment on all Lincoln cars, insures the utmost in riding comfort.

Young Man With Pigskin Bag

By H. IRVING KING

Constance Gillman was walking slowly down Sixth avenue. It was just turning dusk and the sidewalks were crowded. She always enjoyed this little walk from the mall order house where she was employed, down to Twenty-third street, where a cross-town car took her to the ferry on her way to her home in the confines of Hudson county.

She liked the feeling of surging, hurrying life around her and built up little romances for those of the passing through whose faces caught her attention.

A young man came walking rapidly toward her. In his hand he carried a small pigskin traveling bag. Constance was just about to start building a romance for him when, as he passed her, she felt the handle of the traveling bag slipped into her hand and her fingers closed over it with a gentle pressure.

With a gasp of astonishment she turned to see the young man's back disappearing in the crowd. Realizing, instinctively, that she could not stand there gaping idiotically and obstructing the traffic, she walked on, still holding the bag, her mind in a daze. She looked down at the mysterious article, it appeared nearly new.

Could it be that the nice looking young man had "snatched" it from some one in the throng and, imagining that he had been detected in the act, had thrust the stolen property on her to get rid of its incriminating possession? Impossible—with such an open, attractive face as he had.

But even if he had, thought Constance, and if her involuntary acquiescence in his act of transference had saved him from arrest, she was glad of it. It was wrong to feel so, she knew, but she was glad of it.

Then suddenly another thought—suppose the bag contained an infernal machine!

Oh, horrors! What would she do? If she dropped the bag, and there was an infernal machine inside it would surely explode.

Where was a policeman? She had reached Twenty-third street now and as, with blanched face, she looked around there was the young man himself, apparently waiting for her.

He reached out with one hand and took the bag and lifted his hat with the other. "Thanks," said he, with a captivating smile and hurried away up the steps of the elevated station.

Constance, as has been intimated, was a commuter. She dwelt with her widowed mother in a neat cottage within the confines of Hudson county and went to and from the great city every day except Sundays.

That her soul was troubled because of the attractive young man and the pigskin traveling bag goes without saying. Here was mystery with a capital M. What did it all mean? Whatever it meant, she was prepared to declare the attractive young man not guilty. Not guilty of what? Well—of anything dishonorable. He could not be, with that face.

Constance scanned the papers eagerly the next morning, hoping against hope that she might light upon something which would furnish a clue to the strange adventure. She read all the police items word by word. Nothing there!

Ah, here it was! A personal: "If the young lady who so obligingly carried a gentleman's traveling bag from Twenty-fifth street to Twenty-third street on Sixth avenue yesterday afternoon will kindly communicate with X. Y., at the office of the Forsythe Chemical company (such a street number), the gentleman will be glad to explain his unconventional proceedings."

For a moment Constance hesitated; but only for a moment. Then she dispatched a little unsigned note to the address given, simply stating that: "If the gentleman of the pigskin bag desired to explain his extraordinary conduct, he would have an opportunity to do so at the place where he had resumed possession of his property if he would be there at five o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

No sooner had she mailed the note than she regretted it. Had she not done an unmaidenly thing in thus making an appointment with an unknown man? But, then, the whole affair was so against all rule and precedent. And he had such an honest, frank face! She wondered what his name was. She hoped it was Robert; she liked the name of Robert.

Constance wore her best dress on the day of the meeting, a neat tanned, tailor-made suit. She was on time at the rendezvous, and the attractive young man was waiting for her. He introduced himself, Mr. John R. Stoned. Constance was sure the R stood for Robert; later on she found she was right.

He was the very embodiment of deferential courtesy, more agreeable even than Constance had imagined him; she felt that she could trust him implicitly.

The explanation took place in a tea room to which John piloted her over on Fifth avenue.

He was a chemist in the employ of the Forsythe company and had been on his way to his factory in Westchester with a bag in which were important and secret formulas; when near the elevated station at Twenty-third street he recognized two men the agents of a rival chemical company which claimed an interest in the formulas, which interest, having vainly tried to establish by law, they had made one or two attempts to obtain by force.

A traitor in the Forsythe company office must have tipped them off. John had seen the plan at once. They would locate him in the throng, start an altercation; a crowd would surge about them; before a policeman could interfere the bag would be ripped open with a sharp knife, the papers extracted and the purloiner would sink away and escape.

"I turned up Sixth avenue," he said, "and they followed me. I saw you coming and knew by your face that I could trust you. You know what I did then. It was an inspiration. When the men overtook me I was without the bag. They were astonished and paused, paused a moment at the next corner watching me perplexedly, and then gave it up and went toward Broadway."

"I passed rapidly to the other side of the avenue, walked down, crossed over, met you and resumed the bag at Twenty-third street. How can I thank you for the great service you did me? May I not hope that you will forgive my seeming rudeness?"

"How delightful!" cried Constance. "A real adventure! How glad I am that I was able to be of service to you."

That is how the courtship began. Its progress was as rapid as its beginning had been unconventional. They were married three months later. John—Robert, as Constance always calls him—is now chief chemist for the Forsythe company.

SINGERS WHO DRANK HEAVILY

Great Prima Donna, It is Said, Could "Get Away" With Quart of Champagne Easily.

It was said of the late Mme. Tietjens, for many years the leading prima donna at Her Majesty's theater in London, and who later, though not in her prime, came to this country and scored a success, that after the great act in "The Huguenots," she could drain a large silver cup in which there was a quart of champagne.

On the other hand, some of the greatest artists we have known have been particularly abstemious, especially on the day they had to give a performance. Of this a distinguished instance was Adeline Patti, who never drank more than half a glassful of wine and sometimes added water to that.

It is told of a great basso that in order to produce his lowest tones he had to be full of beer. I often thought when I heard him that it sounded like beer.

Another very abstemious person with regard to intoxicants was the late Enrico Caruso. He might take a little wine, but never before a performance. It was always afterward when the work was done and he was enjoying the best meal of the day—his supper—with friends and boon companions. Tomaso Scotti is another abstemious singer.—Mephisto in Musical America.

Don't Judge.

You never can tell! In London, England, collectors of the public subscriptions for the Bethlehem hospital arrived at the door of a mean house, and when it was opened heard the man rattling his saw-logs for throwing away a match without having used both ends. From such a man the collectors expected nothing, and would not have been surprised if they had got it. But he asked them inside, produced a bag of gold, counted out from it 400 guineas, and shoved the money toward them with his open hands. Naturally they could not disguise their amazement. "Gentlemen," said he, "I keep house and save and spend money in my own way. The one furnished the collectors expected nothing, and would not have been surprised if they had got it. ## BIG COUNTY MEETING

Delegates Representing 3000 Women Meet at Moorestown to Discuss Parent-Teacher Problems

Two hundred and twenty-five delegates, representing forty local associations, with a total of 3000, attended the fall meeting of the Burlington County Council of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, held in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Moorestown, on Wednesday, October 17. Mrs. Edwin C. Grice, of Philadelphia, State President of New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations from 1900 to 1904, was among the speakers. Mrs. Grice said she had expected to call her remarks "greetings from across the span of years since the time of her presidency," but that when she saw the large gathering, and heard of the many activities in the State and County, she realized there had been no gap, and felt like calling up to the heights on which the women of today are working. As an illustration of the great progress that has been made, Mrs. Grice compared the attitude of the Boards of Education in the early days of Parent-Teacher work when Parent-Teacher Associations were sometimes refused permission to hold their meetings in school houses, with the welcome which is now accorded them almost everywhere by Boards of Education and teachers alike, who realize the benefits of cooperation. Mrs. Grice said that the mothers had another golden opportunity for service in concentrating their efforts for universal peace and freedom.

Mrs. Alexander Marcy, Jr., of Riverton, State President from 1904 to 1908, gave a brief greeting, saying how nice it was to look into the faces of many friends who had been in the work from the beginning. She said that the large attendance of interested and enthusiastic women spoke eloquently of the growth of the work. In the early days such an attendance at a State convention would be considered a "big" meeting. Mrs. Drury W. Cooper, State President of the National Congress, told how the work had grown in the State, twenty of the twenty-one counties now being organized, with a membership of over 30,000, representing 500 associations, of which belong to Burlington county, with a membership of 3000. Mrs. Cooper also spoke of the State convention to be held at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, November 1 and 2, inviting all who could to attend.

Burlington county was particularly favored at this meeting. Besides having the State president and the two past State presidents there, Mrs. G. J. Cameron, of Whiting's, and the past chairman of Ocean county, and Mrs. Luther S. Davis, of Shiloh, the new chairman of Cumberland county, were present and gave a few words of greeting.

Louis J. Kaser, county superintendent, made a few remarks, urging all present to join the State Association for the Equal Distribution of School Funds. He spoke of the progress that had been made in the past fifteen years and said that the efforts to secure suitable legislation would be renewed this year. A fair and equal distribution of State school funds will mean an increase of about $175,000 yearly to Burlington county.

Miss Hulda Hewitt, one of the Visiting Teachers of Burlington county, told about the Health Contest now being organized in three rural schools, Bridgeboro, Jobstown and Lumberton. This contest is being supervised by the Burlington County Council in cooperation with Miss Caroline Liconney, Miss Alice Shreve and Miss Hulda Hewitt, the three Visiting Teachers in the county, and Miss Reba Troxell, county attendance officer, Miss Margaret S. Haines, executive secretary of the Burlington County Tuberculosis League, and Miss Dulis, the Health Nurse at Pemberton. The contest will include the physical and mental development of the child, the condition of the school buildings, including light, heat, ventilation, water and general sanitary conditions. One branch of this contest will be a nutrition class.

Lila Duy, of Newark, nutrition leader of the tuberculous League, came to talk to the delegates, showing charts of children who had attended these classes and how their weight had improved after a short period. There are five chief fundamental causes of underweight of children—physical defects, lack of home control, over-fatigue, faulty food habits, and faulty health habits. Miss Duy pointed out how the children in these classes are and are anxious to secure a star for gain in weight.

Miss Fox, teacher of the fourth grade, under the supervision of Miss Martha Savar, principal of No. 9 building, Moorestown public school, conducted a very interesting class of her pupils in a reading lesson. There were seventeen children in the class and it was hard to tell which showed the greater interest—the pupils or the audience.

Mrs. Walter L. Bowen, county chairman, presided at the meeting. The church was most attractively decorated, with dahlias, fall flowers and autumn leaves in profusion. Each delegate was given a pink carnation on their arrival.

The meeting opened with prayer by Rev. John R. Mason, pastor of the church. Mrs. Walter Gardner welcomed the guests on behalf of the Home and School Association of the Central School. Professor George C. Baker, supervisor of the Moorestown Schools, welcomed the county on behalf of the teachers in the school system. Mrs. George T. Reid, of Lumberton, responded to these very hearty greetings for the county.

The high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Irma R. O'Neill, opened the afternoon session, with several numbers, which were very well rendered. The Central Home and School Association, of Moorestown, hosts of the day, were assisted in entertaining the 225 registered delegates and serving the luncheon by the Mothers' Club, the Stanwick Home and School, and the Lenola Home and School. The Lenola Association served on the reception committee, the Mothers' Club registered the delegates, the Stanwick Association had charge of the decorations and moving the piano.

At the three meetings last year voluntary offerings were taken for the assistance of school children in the county who needed medical attention. At this meeting a resolution was passed that this offering become a regular feature of the Council work, and that the delegates be given an opportunity to contribute at every meeting. The collection this time amounted to nearly $33, the largest sum yet given at any one meeting.

SEWER DISPOSAL PLANT

State Board of Health Wants to Know Why Riverton Does Not Start It?

An adjourned meeting of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Riverton was held last Thursday evening in the Council Chamber of the firehouse. Mayor Killam E. Bennett read a letter received from the State Board of Health, asking why the Borough of Riverton had not seen fit to go ahead with the sewage disposal plant, as outlined back in 1916. The Mayor, in answering this communication, asked that the officials appoint a day upon which he and president of council, H. H. Murray, could go to Trenton and talk matters over.

The following resolution was passed: Resolved, that the committee on sewer disposal plant be hereby instructed to further carry on their work with completion plans for disposal plant as per plans made in 1916.

Councilman Lynch reported all deeds signed for the right of way for the Elm avenue sewer. The following bills were ordered paid: Sewer Department—Robert H. ## Grand Jury Assists Woman Until Husband Can Be Located

The grand jury recently applied two lines of action, for and against, in dealing with the case in which Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Savinar, of East Riverton, were the principals, the former as the accused and the latter as the accuser. Some time ago Savinar left his wife and six children to go to themselves and Mrs. Savinar became tired of depending on faith for sustenance for herself and the children, so she took the grand jury route in an effort to bring the fugitive in from his marital and family obligations back to a supporting basis. Her story about the desertion so impressed the jurors that they found an indictment against Savinar and felt so sorry for the lonely woman that they took up a collection and gave her $54 to assist in keeping the wolf from the door until Savinar is located and can be made to pay something toward keeping his family alive.

FOR LIGHTER CARS

Ford Sales Show Continued Gains for 1923

Detroit, Mich., October 24—How rapidly the trend of sentiment is swinging toward the use of lighter motor car equipment, in order to meet more satisfactorily present day traffic conditions, is emphasized in the tremendous increase in sales of the Ford Motor Company for the first three-quarters of the present year.

An analysis of these sales shows that the sentiment is not alone among passenger car buyers but extends to commercial car purchasers who are finding that the smaller motor haulage unit effects more efficiency, speedy and economical delivery service.

Sales of Ford cars and trucks in the United States for the first nine months of the year totalled 1,354,020, it is just announced. This is an increase of 466,433 over the same months of 1922.

Two pairs of shoes worn on alternate days will wear considerably more than twice as long as one pair sweated out by continuous wear.

WILL PLAY OLD-TIME RIVALS

Palmyra Won from LaSalle Last Friday. Will Play Burlington this Week on Field Club Grounds

Palmyra High's strong football eleven continues its winning streak. Last Friday afternoon it defeated LaSalle Prep 24-0. Palmyra has played three games this season and has been victorious on each occasion. Only once has Palmyra's line been crossed. That was in the first game of the season when Moorestown made one touchdown. Fifty-five points have been amassed against their opponents' total of six. This means that Palmyra has averaged three falls a game. The only apparent trouble with Coach Harry Ivory's proteges is that they are minus a good kicker for placement goals. Out of the nine touchdowns there has been only one kick. This came from the toe of Russ Davis in the Trenton School for Deaf contest.

The game last Friday afternoon was hardly played under favorable conditions. It was raining throughout entire contest. One touchdown was made in each quarter. Boal, the flashy quarter, was the only varsity man to score. He made his in the first period. Calvin played his regular brand of ball, which is exceptionally brilliant due to his end runs, hitting the line and fine defensive work. Stackhouse continues to be the talk of the school with his sterling work at the fullback position. "Bus" hits the opponent's line with a terrific force.

Wood and Kersey, the halfbacks, are playing a wonderful game. The two new men, Graham and Burr, also display wonderful form when given a chance. Both Graham and Burr made touchdowns. Richman accounted for the last tally. Although Horace does not start in the games, due to poor condition early in the season, he is gradually rounding into form and will soon be playing his usual type of football.

Captain Palphreyman and Ehrlich were the outstanding stars on the defensive. Burns and Davis are two of the best end Palmyra has had in some time.

This Friday the local aggregation tackles Burlington High at the Field Club grounds. This is one of the big games of the season, for P. H. S. and Burlington are old-time rivals. When these two teams meet one can be sure of seeing every man at his best, for everyone of them goes in the game with the intention of winning at any odds. This is what makes football what it is today. For when two school elevens go on the field determined to win, with all the players working their hardest, not for money, but for the honor of their school, a good game with lots of fight can usually be guaranteed.

Coach Ivory will have every player in the pink of condition for this battle. With three games under their belt and good stiff workouts during the past week, there is no doubt that many will have reached the position where they will be playing the best there is in them.

Secretary John Volgarino, of the Advancing Pioneers Group, Mount Holly, upon instruction from this group, has written the YMCA group at the Children's Home, Mount Holly, known as the Dobbins Group, this letter: "Dear Brothers: The YMCA Advancing Pioneers Group of Mount Holly congratulate and hope that the YMCA Dobbins group will become a success. We will donate the sum of $5 so that work will begin with some strength. We hope that you will all keep the YMCA spirit. (Signed) John Volgarino." A Thomas Atkinson is the leader of the Advancing Pioneers Group. County Secretary Hendry meets the Dobbins Group every Saturday afternoon at the home.

Father and Son Banquets

From his knowledge of preparations for the holding of Father and Son banquets all over the county, Secretary Hendry says that he doesn't know a year the Father and Son banquet idea has so splendidly prevailed. Among some of the exceptionally fine speakers who will be heard in various sections of the county at such banquets this year are: Charles A. Green, general secretary of the YMCA of Trenton, at Jobstown, November 14; Rev. John Stapleton, pastor, West Chester, Congregational Church, White Plains, New York, at Crosswicks, November 16; Cameron Beck, personnel director, New York Stock Exchange, at Bordentown, November 20.

Other communities where Father and Son committees are at work are: Palmyra, Riverton, Florence, Burlington, Moorestown, Marlton, Lenola and Beverly.

The Effect of Alcohol Upon Longevity

WITH all the commotion about whether or not the prohibition laws CAN be enforced, it might be well to consider whether or not it SHOULD be enforced, for it is a well established fact that the American people CAN do anything they really WANT to.

In its issue of September 12 "The Outlook" said:

In a recent study of certain life insurance statistics, Dr. Oscar H. Rogers, Chief Medical Director for the New York Life Insurance Company, reviews the findings of the so-called Medico-Actuarial Mortality Investigation for the five-year period 1909-14, which was participated in by the principal life companies of the United States and Canada. These companies numbered forty-three and carried during that period more than ninety per cent of the total old-line insurance in force in those countries. In addition, Dr. Rogers' examination included the statistics of a number of the leading British life companies. Altogether, not far from six million lives were subject to analysis in this investigation, and the facts determined may be accepted as absolute and final.

To begin with it must be borne in mind that insurance companies insure no habitual drunkards. Neither do they take risks on hard drinkers. So their figures are concerned only with those who are moderate drinkers or who, at most, commit excesses but seldom. The figures are the more astonishing.

The first question determined in this investigation was this: "What is the difference in the mortality rate between total abstainers and persons who drink alcoholic beverages, always in moderation?" To answer this question statistics are presented as follows:

Mortality Rate Among Abstainers and Non-Abstainers	Abst.	Non-Abst.
Per Cent.	Per Cent.	Per Cent.
United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution	100	133
The Australian Temperance and General	100	162
The Scottish Life	100	151
The Scottish Temperance	100	139
The Security Mutual	100	147
The Mutual Life	100	123
The Northwestern Mutual	100	127
All combined	100	132

These figures are of course based on mortality tables which show the expectancy of life at any given age. Long experience has shown the insurance companies how long, on the average, human life may be expected to be. These percentages refer to this expectancy of life. They show that whereas abstainers, with a mortality of 100 per cent, reach this expectancy, non-abstainers, with a higher mortality, fall far short of the general expectancy of life. If we take the average mortality of all these companies combined, we find that non-abstainers suffer a mortality rate one-third greater than that of abstainers. Or, put otherwise, insurance experience shows that on the average non-abstainers cut their lives short 32 per cent, by imbibing alcohol.

Examining his data upon the basis of relative mortality among teetotalers, temperate users, and heavier drinkers, Dr. Rogers presents these figures:

Total abstainers	Per Cent.
Moderate—(that is, occasional users)	100
Daily users of beer	119
Daily users of spirits	133

Riverton Parent-Teachers Association Hold Annual Reception on Thursday, October 18th

The Riverton Parent-Teachers Association held their annual reception for the parents and teachers of the public school in the school auditorium, Thursday evening, October 18th. More than a hundred and fifty persons attended.

The auditorium was decorated with cedar trees and a profusion of autumn leaves.

Mrs. George W. Smith, Jr., president of the Association, extended a welcome to the guests and Miss Hannah H. Chew, supervising principal of the school, made a short address. Miss Chew called the attention of the parents to the importance of an equal distribution of school money so that Burlington county children may have advantages equal to those enjoyed by other children in the State.

The following program was rendered: overture, Palmyra High School orchestra; piano solo, Mrs. George M. Becker; reading, Miss Ruth Lutz; vocal solo, Mrs. Leon Guest, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Bell.

A pleasant social hour followed during which refreshments were served and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Richards, played several selections.

Miss Philbrook Gives Health Talk at Westfield Public School

Tuesday, the 23rd, under the auspices of the Cinnaminson Home and School Association, the pupils of both of the public schools at Westfield were assembled in the new auditorium to hear an illustrated talk on health by Miss Philbrook of the Interstate Dairy Association.

Delia Johnson, Becker, of New York, and his aids in attaining the ability to make a home run at a critical time for his baseball team, were quickly sketched by Miss Philbrook as she talked, and the general interest was maintained, showed the interest excited.

After the pupils filed out, tea was served, and a business meeting of the Home and School Association was held.

Mrs. Sperling then gave a most pleasing account of the County Council held at Moorestown on the 17th. Owing to the very inclement weather the attendance was small.

Porch Club News

On next Tuesday, October 30th, at 2:30 p. m., a particularly worthwhile program will be enjoyed—subject, "What we want in American Drama and what we are getting," by Mrs. May Lambertson Becker, of New York.

This is indeed a rare opportunity and it is hoped that a large group will take advantage of the privilege of hearing Mrs. Becker, a recognized literary critic prominent in New York and North Jersey, and who is editor of the Readers' Guide in the Literary Review of the New York Evening Post.

AS TO WOMEN'S HIGH HEELS

Biologist Predicts Ultimate Loss of All Toes but One if Their Use Continues.

A London biologist is quoted as making the prediction that if women keep on wearing high-heels they will find themselves eventually with only one toe, says the New York Herald.

With the high heels now worn, he says, three toes are sufficient for walking; and as nature always gets rid of superfluous organs it seems likely that in the course of time women's toes will be reduced to three, and perhaps later to two, or even one.

The biologist is not mentioned by name but apparently he accepts a theory that most evolutionists have abandoned. The present view of orthodox biologists is that acquired characteristics are not inherited.

Even Bernard Shaw, who, venturing into this controversy in "Back to Methuselah," argues with his usual energy against the orthodox view, admits that many generations of Chinese women have bound their feet "without producing the slightest tendency on their part to be born with abnormally small feet."

He also, descending the scale, concludes that the clipped ears and docked tails which fanciers have inflicted on generations of dogs have not affected the ears and tails of the dogs' puppies. And descending still further, he recalls the experiments of the biologist Weismann, who cut off the tails of a colony of mice, and the tails of the children of the mice, and the tails of the children of the children of the mice, without finding that the tails of the descendants were any shorter than those of their ancestors.

So the toes of coming generations are probably safe regardless of the fashion in women's footwear.

QUEER FACTS ABOUT DRESS

Cut and Make of Some of Our Common Articles of Apparel Explained.

We still have buttons, but no buttonholes, on the cuffs of coats. They were originally introduced in the Seventeenth century, when coat cuffs were intended to turn back.

The stripes down the sides of some trousers are a survival from the time when breeches were made so close in fitting that they had to be buttoned on. The buttons are forgotten, the stripes alone remain, says Pearson's Weekly.

The swallow-tail coat is the descendant of that which was buttoned back to save the lining from getting dirty by rubbing against the hide of a horse. Side pockets on coats were the outcome of the slash made to permit the projection of the sword hilt.

The original reason for cutting away the coat in front was to display fine linen—the wearing of which was a sign of wealth.

Stockings were once made from a straight piece of material. The clocks down the sides are the survival of the seam that made a fit possible.

The leggings worn today are "direct descendants" of the leather stockings once worn by our ancestors.

Buttons were at one time regarded as ornaments, and many people, because of this, refused to wear any buttons but those which were absolutely necessary to keep their clothes together.

Moorestown Offered $100,000 by an Unnamed Friend for Providing a Community House

An unnamed benefactor has offered the sum of $100,000 for the purpose of providing a home for the various charitable and philanthropic activities in Moorestown. The only provision attached to this very generous gift is the stipulation that a working fund of $50,000 shall be raised by the people before June 1, 1924, which sum would be used for the maintenance of such a building.

A gift such as this has never before been presented to any community of this size and it is expected that the people of Moorestown will grasp with pleasure this golden opportunity. In addition to this sum, an additional amount has been offered for a suitable site, provided such can be purchased with the amount set aside for the purpose. An option has already been taken on the premises of Mrs. Mary R. Sumner, 16 East Main street, although there are other sites under consideration.

Doctors say that the house cat and dog carry scarlet fever, mumps, chicken pox, diphtheria and other diseases from other places to the home, and that little children catch these diseases by handling the animals and then putting their hands into their mouths.

Burglars Make Several Attempts to Enter Home of George Steedle

Residents of Cinnaminson street were awakened early Saturday morning by a shot, followed by the screech of voices. Upon investigation it was learned that for several nights before a prowler had been seen around the home of George D. Steedle. The previous night his telephone wires had been cut and the dogs doped, so Mr. Steedle was on the lookout. On Friday he rigged up a bell in the back yard, which was attached to a concealed rope, but over which the intruder would have to pass, causing the bell to ring.

About quarter after four, Saturday morning, Mrs. Steedle was awakened by the sound of the bell ringing. Mr. Steedle immediately looked out of the side window and spied the form of a man creeping along the side of the house. He took aim and fired, but the gun stuck, and by the time he was able to shoot again, the man was out of reach, but he could see him making his get-away through the back door. Mr. Steedle followed him to the street. Officers Miller and Quigley, who were down on Front street, heard the shot and immediately came on the scene and made an investigation, but the numerous robbers in Riverton still remain as much of a mystery as ever.

Mrs. Sperling then gave a most pleasing account of the County Council held at Moorestown on the 17th. Owing to the very inclement weather the attendance was small.

On next Tuesday, October 30th, at 2:30 p. m., a particularly worthwhile program will be enjoyed—subject, "What we want in American Drama and what we are getting," by Mrs. May Lambertson Becker, of New York.

This is indeed a rare opportunity and it is hoped that a large group will take advantage of the privilege of hearing Mrs. Becker, a recognized literary critic prominent in New York and North Jersey, and who is editor of the Readers' Guide in the Literary Review of the New York Evening Post.

AS TO WOMEN'S HIGH HEELS

Biologist Predicts Ultimate Loss of All Toes but One if Their Use Continues.

A London biologist is quoted as making the prediction that if women keep on wearing high-heels they will find themselves eventually with only one toe, says the New York Herald.

With the high heels now worn, he says, three toes are sufficient for walking; and as nature always gets rid of superfluous organs it seems likely that in the course of time women's toes will be reduced to three, and perhaps later to two, or even one.

The biologist is not mentioned by name but apparently he accepts a theory that most evolutionists have abandoned. The present view of orthodox biologists is that acquired characteristics are not inherited.

Even Bernard Shaw, who, venturing into this controversy in "Back to Methuselah," argues with his usual energy against the orthodox view, admits that many generations of Chinese women have bound their feet "without producing the slightest tendency on their part to be born with abnormally small feet."

He also, descending the scale, concludes that the clipped ears and docked tails which fanciers have inflicted on generations of dogs have not affected the ears and tails of the dogs' puppies. And descending still further, he recalls the experiments of the biologist Weismann, who cut off the tails of a colony of mice, and the tails of the children of the mice, and the tails of the children of the children of the mice, without finding that the tails of the descendants were any shorter than those of their ancestors.

So the toes of coming generations are probably safe regardless of the fashion in women's footwear.

QUEER FACTS ABOUT DRESS

Cut and Make of Some of Our Common Articles of Apparel Explained.

We still have buttons, but no buttonholes, on the cuffs of coats. They were originally introduced in the Seventeenth century, when coat cuffs were intended to turn back.

The stripes down the sides of some trousers are a survival from the time when breeches were made so close in fitting that they had to be buttoned on. The buttons are forgotten, the stripes alone remain, says Pearson's Weekly.

The swallow-tail coat is the descendant of that which was buttoned back to save the lining from getting dirty by rubbing against the hide of a horse. Side pockets on coats were the outcome of the slash made to permit the projection of the sword hilt.

The original reason for cutting away the coat in front was to display fine linen—the wearing of which was a sign of wealth.

Stockings were once made from a straight piece of material. The clocks down the sides are the survival of the seam that made a fit possible.

The leggings worn today are "direct descendants" of the leather stockings once worn by our ancestors.

Buttons were at one time regarded as ornaments, and many people, because of this, refused to wear any buttons but those which were absolutely necessary to keep their clothes together.

GOOD WILL

It's not what we have done for our customers, but it's the way we have done it, that has secured their good will.

It's not attending to the routine banking functions which we're obliged to perform, but it's the going out of our way voluntarily to be helpful to all, that has made people speak well of us.

Helpfulness, or courtesy in action, is not selective in this bank. We never hesitate before rendering a service, nor discriminate between customers—all are valued friends.

We cordially invite everyone to use this service which our depositors have found so helpful, and which has given to us our biggest asset—their good will.

Prohibition and a Few Facts

Was prohibition "put over" while our soldiers were in France?

No. Before the passage of the 18th Amendment thirty-three states had adopted prohibition by popular vote, most of them before the United States went into the war.

Is the 18th Amendment likely to be repealed?

No. A resolution to repeal it would have to be passed by a two-thirds vote of Congress, and ratified by three-fourths of the State Legislatures. If thirteen States refused to ratify, no change could be made.

Would an amendment of the Volstead Act to allow the manufacture of three per cent. beer remedy what some of our leading "wets" call "this intolerable situation"?

No. The boot-leggers are not dealing in beer, and the drinkers of whiskey and other "hard liquor" would be no better off than they are now.

Why do the liquor people really want three per cent. beer made legal?

So as to bring back the saloons. If it was legal to sell beer, it would be legal to maintain places in which to sell it, and it would be almost impossible to prevent the sale of other kinds of liquor in such places.

What effect would a memorial to Congress asking for the change of the Volstead Act have?

None upon the present Congress which in spite of a few wet members from New Jersey is drier than any previous Congress.

What is the remedy for the present condition of things?

More LAW OBSERVANCE and less foolish talk for political purposes by men who ought to know better. The appointment of honest men to enforce the law, and honest effort on the part of all decent citizens to help them perform the duties of their office.—The New Jersey Republican.

COMMUNITY EFFORT REAPS REWARD

Members of Canning Club at Work.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
Fruits, vegetables and meats preserved, pork sausage and hard made in a community cannery at Atrisco, Bernalillo county, New Mexico, last year, represented a total value of about $25,000. There were also 1,212 pounds of fruits dried, 1,320 pounds of vegetables, and 8,400 quarts of vegetables were bottled, as a result of extension teaching in the county through which the idea of having a community cannery was formed.
Families Clubbed Together.
The cannery cost about $400. Twenty families clubbed together about a year and a half ago to build it. The women all belong to the Housekeepers' club, and all use it. The kitchen is well equipped with built-in cupboards, tables, handy pump, drain and a large pressure cooker. A kitchen range is used for heating, which was found more satisfactory than a gas-line burner.
A report received by the United States Department of Agriculture states that after the establishment of the cannery it was decided to build a community room adjoining it. This was intended also as a rest room and a place for all kinds of entertainments. The building material and equipment for a clubroom 80 by 22 feet with hardwood floors and composition walls came to $500, which was raised by home cooking, food sales, entertainments, and contributions. The men agreed to do all the work of building, hauling material and finishing the grounds.
Community Celebration.
As the work progressed somewhat slowly some of the women offered to assist. Twelve of the Housekeepers' club members appeared with well-filled baskets for the midday lunch. They nailed on the siding while the men placed frames for windows and doors. A community celebration was held when the building was completed.

MARRIAGE EASY IN RUSSIA

And It Is Said Divorce Is Even Quicker of Attainment Than Is Wedlock.

The separation of church and state in Russia has exercised a strong influence on marriage, as well as on its corollary, divorce. It has been pointed out that marriage by the church has no legal value. To be married and divorced in a half hour is an actual legal possibility in soviet Russia, unless, of course, the queues in front of the respective registrar's tables happen to be too long. Or, if the couple are of a sentimental turn of mind, they may revert to wedlock in the specified time, if the officials are not too busy.
Ease of marriage and even greater ease of divorce is one of the Communist government's answers to three of the world's greatest social problems—matrimony, morality and illegitimate children.

The simple act of both persons appearing before a magistrate and signing a marriage contract constitutes the only marriage ceremony recognized by present law in Russia. There is not even the formality of the spoken vows. Both applicants, however, must present themselves.

Divorce is still easier. In that the desire of only one of the two parties affected is sufficient. Either husband or wife may obtain abrogation of their marriage by appearing at the registrar's office and indicating that continuation of conjugal relations is no longer craved. There is no trial, no appeal. The dissatisfied husband simply signs a paper and walks out a free man. If there are children, however, he does not escape responsibility for support. This latter point, as well as several other correlated legal phases of the divorce question, are still a bit vague, owing to the fact that Russia has no written code of statutes. The only law that exists consists of a few decrees promulgated by the Kromlin and the common sense and conscience of the official. Stripping it of all the sentiment and religious background surrounding marriage in the legal system of the West, the Communist approaches the institution of wedlock as a purely civil procedure, just like any other contract between two persons. The church ceremony has no legal value in Russia, although most people still go through the gesture, as in France, where a similar situation prevails.—Edwin W. Hallinger in Current History.

What Dining Tables Mean.
The dining table in your home may or may not mean much to you but students of history affirm that the beginning of the decline of the Byzantine, the Egyptian, the Grecian and the Roman national each dated from the introduction of the custom of the people to partake of their meals while reclining. Consequently you can measure the responsibility resting upon the makers of the American dining table.

MY DOG

The beautiful movie queen was obdurate.
"I will not jump off that cliff."
Her press agent attempted to reason with her.
"Why, you have risked your complexion a thousand times in worse jumps than that."
"But this director is a brute," she explained.

"He wants me to jump with my dog in my arms."

Trouble.
"Oh, my! Isn't it awful!"
The worried woman rubbed her head frantically.
"What's trouble?" asked her friend.
"Oh, I've saved up just enough money to get a divorce, but it'll take at least six months to get it, and then I'll need a fur coat!"

A Sufficient Task.

EVIDENTLY LOTS OF HISTORY

Subject That Took Eight Teachers to Handle More Than Old Farmer Could Comprehend.

John W. Oliver, director of the historical commission, went back to his rural home town once after a prolonged absence, during which he had been wrestling with the problem of getting an education and laying the foundation for his chosen future work. One of his old-time farmer friends, interested and inquisitive, with a view to learning what the boy had been doing for himself, said:

"Well, John, what you been up to since I saw you last?"
"I've been going to school. I'm teaching now."
"Where you been going to school?"
"Wisconsin university."
"Uh hu! Purty big school, I reckon. How many scholars they got?"
"Oh, several thousand."
(Incredulous whistle from the interrogator.) "Must have several teachers?"
"Yes—about 400."
"(Whistle.) "And you're one of 'em, you say? What d'ye teach?"
"I teach history."
"D'ye teach all there is?"
"Oh, no! There are about eight history teachers."
"Eight! Landsakes, I didn't know there was so much history!"—Indianapolis News.

He Brooks No Loss

By Grace E. Hall

If this be all, what wanton waste
Of wares and worth and wage
Has been the price of this poor show
Upon life's changing stage?
If this, the play, be for a day,
And then the curtain fall,
What grotesque jokes the jester, Hoax,
Has played upon us all!

The scene is laid, and Birth and Death
March hand in hand always;
A fee is asked of Man and Maid,
While Pay, the piper, plays;
The aged go; the lights burn low,
There is no curtain call;
And in the aisle without a smile,
They pass the usher, Pall.

If this be all, what farce the plot,
The price, the pain, the play?
Why such a plan for mortal man
For just a single day?
Oh, list ye well: God brooks no loss
In his eternal scheme:
He'll lose no note of what He wrote
In life's majestic theme.

Birth Stones

BY George Kibbe Turner

"Memories of a Doctor,"
"The Last Christian," "Hagar's Hoard," "White Shoulders," etc.

Copyright by United Feature Syndicate

GEORGE KIBBE TURNER

George Kibbe Turner started his literary career when he first came out of college. He joined the staff of the Springfield Republican at a very modest salary. His next step was to the Black Cat, in that day a thin little magazine which printed surprisingly interesting stories. Then one day, as the phrase is, he quite different in fact. Mr. Turner wrote a novel for McClure's Magazine. It had a New England setting, and a political angle, and it received wide and important comment. Thereafter, for many years Mr. Turner was one of the literary staff of McClure's Magazine and he wrote both articles and fiction on a great variety of subjects. Mr. Turner is the author of many books, short stories and articles, but "Hagar's Hoard," a story of the yellow fever epidemic in Memphis, Tenn., filled with fact and dramatic incident, and "White Shoulders" are guaranteed to keep Mr. Turner conspicuously to the front in our literature. In the story that follows, written for the Star Author Series of Matrimonial Adventures, the husband is drawn as only a man keen in understanding of men could picture him. The side of marriage that Mr. Turner presents in "Birth Stones" is novel and at the same time universally appealing. MARY STEWART CUTTING, JR.

These jewel brokers are all over the city—in Maiden Lane, on the Bowery, up around Fifth avenue—all kinds, for all kinds of business—buying or selling. They're a wise crowd. They have to be. They get some dangerous propositions put up to them—and some wild ones, particularly in hard times.

They had some extra wild ones in that financial cave-in after the war—especially the Fifth avenue ones. Half the upper West side was fighting to drive the wolf from the new limousine door.

It was a year ago last March—at the worst of it—when this one I'm telling you of drifted into Harry Volpe's place on Fifth avenue. In the late afternoon, Volpe was alone in the office, staring down out of his second-story window on the two streams of automobile tops on the avenue.

"You the proprietor?" asked this stranger back of him at the entrance—a big, red-faced husky, with big shoulders and a small nose and a red necktie. Volpe figured him right away; then as some sort of a contractor.

"Sure," he said, coming over, dusting his hands. "What'll you have?" "My name's Coogan—Din Coogan," said the big man, introducing himself. "Glad to know you," said Harry Volpe, sizing him up. "What can I do for you?"

"What would you say this was worth?" said the stranger, reaching in and dragging out a big diamond necklace that seemed to be lying loose, without any case, in the right-hand lower pocket of his coat.

"What you paid for it—or what you could realize?" Volpe asked him, still sizing him up—the way you have to in that business. And went over it with his glass and told him what he might probably get—if he got a buyer.

"But you'd have hard work finding one just now for anything as big as that. I know I wouldn't buy it—not now!"

"You couldn't—not if you wanted to!" said the other man. "I wouldn't sell it for all the money in Wall street."

And he looked as if he meant it. "But here's the thing I want to know," he said. "Could you pull out enough stones from this to stand for a pledge for a ten thousand-dollar loan?"

"Why yes—probably," said Volpe. "Though we don't generally want to handle unset stones. Because—you know?"

"They're apt to be stolen, huh? Is that it?" said the big man.

"Yeah. They break them up out of their settings, so they can't be identified."

"But you've got your setting here."

"I wasn't talking about this," said Volpe. "I was just telling you."

"Well, about how many would you say?" the customer asked him. And he told him about a third of them.

"Now the next thing," said the man, satisfied apparently, "is—could you take this; could you take that amount of stones out of their settings, and put back substitutes in their place—good ones, so they wouldn't be noticed?"

"Why yes—probably. If I had the time."

"Now then another thing," he said, fixing his little blue-gray eyes on him—as if this was important. "How long would be the shortest time you could do it in—if you had everything all ready and waiting to do it with? Take these out of their settings and put the phony ones in? Could you do it in a day?"

"I might," said Volpe, looking them over, seeing they were a good standard cut.

"What'll it cost—the whole thing? Ten thousand for three months," asked the man, his eyes boring in still. And Volpe figured out a good thing on it—and told him what he'd do.

"But now it's understood," said the man—"you'll have to have it all done in a day—when I bring it in!"

"Why—what's the great hurry?" asked Volpe, looking at him, starting wondering a little then.

"It's my wife. She'll want to wear them. You know how women are!" Volpe nodded. He knew some things about the women—and their freaks and whims. You do, handling jewelry.

"And don't call me up at the apartment, either. I'll bring them in some day soon—I can't be sure just when. But I don't want how women are—about such things!" he said again, looking nervous—Volpe noticed at the time.

He noticed that. You keep your eyes open in that business and the deal was queer on the face of it. But it was no queerer than others he'd had.

And of course, if anything suspicious came up when he came in again, that next week, Volpe would be right there watching—before any money passed.

But next week when the big man showed up again with his big necklace in his pocket, to get his money and have the substitution made, Volpe was surer than ever of the thing—for one reason from the way he acted about the stones that were coming out to lie there as a pledge for the ten thousand.

"You'll have them all here—the identical same ones—when I come after them?" he asked—looking red and anxious. "There's no danger they'll get mixed up any way?"

"Not a danger," Volpe told him. "For it would mean something to me—if there was a mix-up on this—"

he said. "They're our luck." "Lucky stones, huh?" said Volpe, and smiled to himself when he had gone—surer than ever about the thing—though curious naturally on what it was all about.

About two weeks afterward the man showed up again and wanted another ten thousand on another third of the stones.

That was different. "I thought you said ten thousand was all you'd need," said Volpe studying him, thinking fast.

"I thought it was myself. And it will be this time. But you know how the contracting business is—especially now. Up and down. Mostly down! But it will be all right this time—I can promise you that."

"I guess you can when you get it," said Volpe to himself—getting under way behind that soft, sweet jewelry salesman's smile.

"Have you got them with you?" he asked him, smiling.

"No," said the other man getting red—and bringing in a new idea now. "And I've got to get you to do something else this time. I've got to have you make that next substitution of stones for me—some night."

"Some night!" said Volpe after him. "Yes," he said, getting redder still. "You know how women are—when they get an idea in their head."

"What's this?" said Volpe to himself, with a sudden sinking spell—wondering what it was he had run into.

"All right," he said aloud—smiling more sweetly than ever. "Bring them in."

"What night?" asked Volpe, more and more polite. "I'll call you up—this evening—just before six o'clock, and tell you," he said. "I might be able to get in to-night. It hope so."

"How'd he strike you?" Volpe asked his stenographer. She was about as wise as he was, seeing them coming in and going out.

"He's like the rest of them—all over the lot like the dandelions. He's got something on his mind all right. But he's straight enough, I'll say. He's too thick to be anything else."

"Will he be back again?" Volpe asked her. "He sure will. The battle fleet couldn't chase him away. He's got to have that money. Right now!"

Volpe thought the same. And the man still looked honest to him, somehow.

"But why at night?" he said to himself, when the girl was gone. "And why this stall about the woman—having to have them? Does she wear them at breakfast?"

He sat and flipped away a lot of cigarettes out the front window into the avenue—looking down, thinking, as the lights came on—waiting for six o'clock.

And then he jumped up on his feet—with a new idea.

"Here," he said, getting hot in the head. "Suppose this wife business was all a stall! Suppose he was somewhere—in a museum, or a store, where he could have this thing just so long. And had to get it back—at such a time! That might be it!"

"He might just have time enough to have just so many changes made in the setting—at night for instance. Like this—and have it back when things opened up in the morning. And then later he'd take another bite of it!" said Volpe to himself, starting at his cigarette—starting figuring the chances of getting any of that ten thousand dollars back if it was stolen goods—and they traced them back to him.

"If he got him back in there and made him give up where it had come from—get some reward in advance for turning up a sixty or seventy thousand-dollar gem robbery."

He was all up in the air on the thing—and it was getting every minute nearer six o'clock. He was just about to take up the telephone and call the detective bureau when the bell rang—just before six—and this was Coogan's voice, came, saying he'd be down around nine o'clock—as nearly as he could—and to have everything ready.

"I'll have everything ready, don't fret!" said Volpe—which he did—down to the detective from police headquarters that he planted in the next room.

"You'll find probably he's a bad one," said the detective, "most likely."

"He don't look so," said Volpe, "at that. And we can't afford to force things—not till we know."

"I know."

"And he's a big husky brute, you want to take that into consideration."

"Well, he don't want to get too gay," said this McConnell—this detective from the headquarters' squad, who was quite heavy around the shoulders himself.

And just then the elevator door creaked and their man's step came echoing down the hallway to the door.

He came in a hurry—still looking anxious and excited, wiping off his forehead with his handkerchief.

"Well, I'm here," he said to Volpe, as if he'd had a hard time getting there.

Volpe looked at him again—nervous about him, always when he was out of sight; and puzzled more, when he showed up again. He didn't look like a jewelry thief—anything but! And yet you can't tell—some of the best of them are that way. Innocence is their stock in trade.

"Got it with you?" asked Volpe—and got the thing in his hands again. It was all the same as he had left it—the same fake stones among the real—the same odd setting—everything!

"Now, I tell you," said Volpe, starting after that. "I haven't had time to get that ten thousand yet. It was too late when I got around to the bank."

"You can give me your check for it," said the man gazing at him, "can't you?"

"I might, yes," he answered, working along. "Only my balance won't let me—not just now. I'll have to go and get the money myself—tomorrow, maybe."

"Tomorrow! Maybe!" said Coogan after him, his voice rising.

"And besides," said Volpe, "there's another thing come up. My workman didn't show up that I counted on coming to do the resetting for me."

"Didn't show up?" said the big man, looking ugly now.

"So I can't pull the thing off for you tonight."

"Not tonight!" said the man, "I've got to have it tonight! That's all!"

"Say, listen," said Volpe next. "What's the hurry in this thing?"

"I've got to have the money, right off—that's what—in my business! Or I go broke. Right now. Tomorrow."

"I understand," said Volpe. "That's all right. That's easy on that necklace. If everything is the way it looks on the surface. But what I mean is—what's the hurry about this work of mine on the necklace? Why must I have it back always on the minute?"

"And he got no answer."

"In other words," said Volpe, coming stronger, "what's the idea of your sliding in here by night with this thing, and having it to take away with you in the morning?"

"It's my wife," said the big man finally.

"Your wife?"

"I wouldn't have her know about this—now—not for the world!"

We Recommend Gas and Electric Labor-Savers for Quiet, Economical Service in the Home

Are You Proud of Your Cooking?

THERE'S a lot of gratification in baking a fine cake, in serving a roast that is tender, juicy, deliciously cooked.

You may mix your ingredients carefully, you may buy the finest meats, but if your range and its oven are faulty the most careful mixing goes for naught, the finest meats are ruined.

Visit Gas Range Headquarters when selecting a range. Here you will find honest ranges, of the best materials, scientifically constructed, equipped to give the best cooking service.

EVERY range built according to the specifications of the American Gas Association.

EVERY invention of merit for convenience, time and labor-saving is represented.

Come In To-day!

October Offers Many Opportunities in Gas Ranges

$5 DOWN and a year to pay

are the terms on many of these superior ranges.

Best of all, our convenient payment plan enables our customers to place one of these fine ranges in the kitchen and enjoy perfect cooking service, while paying for it in easy-to-meet monthly payments.

Decide Now! To Own the HOOVER

$1.50 DOWN Balance in ten payments monthly

This splendid offer positively ends Wednesday, October 31. Every woman owes it to her ideals in housekeeping to own the Hoover.

You can not buy on more advantageous terms.

The Hoover Electric Suction Cleaner guarantees longer wear from rugs and carpets, because it is scientifically constructed to remove every particle of dirt, even the sharp grit that sits deep down, cutting away the silky nap.

The new and greatly improved Hoover attachments permit thorough cleaning of draperies and upholstery right in their places.

Don't Waste Coal Heating Water

Coils in the furnace, or the "water back" in the coal range are eating up coal. You don't get hot water for nothing just because the furnace or range is lighted. Some of the coal is burned in heating water.

Install a Gas Automatic Storage Water Heater

Provide now against possible coal shortage later. Gas is cheaper, anyway.

Ruid or Kompak Automatic Storage Water Heater

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dizziness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.

Hypnotism Long Practiced. Hypnotism has been known and practiced for ages, but the word hypnotism was originated by Dr. James Braid of England, who gave public exhibitions in 1841.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly soothes the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Howka's Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

Rub Rheumatic Pain From Aching Joints

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappears and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

ing his voice, so the detective in the next room would get it. "When you put my ten thousand back in my hand."

"You'll let me have it! Right now!" said the big man getting red and reaching over and starting to break off the hand Volpe had in, at the wrist.

That was the cue for the detective in the next room.

"Just a minute!" he said, stepping out.

And the big rough-neck looked back at him over his shoulder.

"What are you—?" said McConnell, "getting threatening?"

"Who are you?" said the man who claimed he owned the necklace, setting his small blue eyes on him.

And the officer showed him.

He stopped there, after a minute—his breath coming hard, and his face getting mottled—the way those full-blooded ones do.

"Now, what's your game?" said the officer. "You slip in here with seventy-five thousand dollars' worth of jewelry loose in your side pocket. And (continued on page 6)

Meeting of Parent-Teachers

The first meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held in the school auditorium last Thursday evening, October 18. The parents were introduced to the teachers in the beginning of the meeting and later the meeting was conducted by Mrs. George W. Smith, who is now president of the Association. A recitation was given by Ruth Lutz, of Palmyra. The auditorium was beautifully decorated with cedar trees and baskets of flowers.

ELIZABETH EVANS.

Ice cream was served and the Palmyra high school orchestra furnished the music. A very pleasing musical program was given and the meeting was enjoyed by all who were there. The classes in the school are trying to get all the parents to join Parent-Teachers. The sixth grade has a 100% membership.

Auditorium

One of the important parts of a school is the auditorium and ours is particularly so, because it is used for so many different occasions. Aside from our regular school work it is used for public affairs and Parent-Teacher meetings. Its chief use, however, is in connection with the school work. Twice every week we have morning assembly of about thirty minute periods. The time being spent by singing and recitations and the reading of the Holy Bible by Miss Chew. On October the eleventh (Thursday) we held our Columbus Day exercises there. Patriotic songs were sung, after which the seventh grade, room ten, gave a puppet show on the Discovery of America, that was enjoyed by all, especially the smaller children. The acts were arranged by Frederick Jones and Laddie Dickinson greatly to their credit. The puppets were dressed by the boys and girls of that grade, and portrayed the period of Queen Elizabeth's reign exceedingly well. After the puppet show a little play was given by the sixth grade pupils, called "When Junior meets Junior in the History Book." This was also very nice and brought to a close a very enjoyable period for all.

My Ideal American

My ideal American is a person who abides by the laws of his State and country, keeps his community well organized and helps to keep all people happy and smiling by his smiles and how-do-you-dos. He should help to keep the town or city clean and healthy to live in. He should help to appoint committees for these things in order to make it an up-to-date city. He should appoint officers to fix trees and keep the roads in shape. He should also organize clubs and lodges, and public libraries so that the people should have some entertainment. He should see that the city has good schools and hires good teachers. He should see that the city has a good water supply. He should also see that the town has enough stores and that the taxes are reasonable. He should look after his family and see that they have all they need.

Football

The seventh and eighth grades of Riverton grammar school met for their second game of the season with the score twelve to six favor the seventh grade's team.

The game was played on the Riverton field and a large number of boys and girls turned out to see the game.

The touchdowns were made by Samuel Herbert and Charles Knight, of seventh grade and James Reeves of the eighth. Both teams failed to make a good kick after the touchdowns.

The teams were evenly matched and both had a good line. The lineup is as follows:

Seventh	r.c.	Eighth
Dickinson	r.t.	Rodig
Hicks	r.g.	Perkins
Hemphill	c.l.g.	Green
Steedle	l.g.	Foulke
Showell	l.t.	Green
Bennett	l.e.	Kearns
Barley	r.b.	Shuler
Bowers	r.h.b.	Schneider
Knight	r.b.	Bell
Herbert	r.b.	Hutchins
	r.b.	Reeves

The subs were Smith 7, Whartnaby 7, Reed 8, Foster 7.

The next game will be played on the thirty-first of October, and both teams hope to have a better team than before.

HEROINE OF COLONIAL DAYS

Why the Name of Hannah Dustin Has Been Honored in New England States.

Hannah Dustin was a British-American heroine. March 15 or 16, 1607, Indians attacked the house of Thomas and Hannah Dustin, at Haverhill, Mass., killing Hannah's week-old baby by dashing it against a tree, and making prisoners of Mrs. Dustin and her nurse, Mary Neff.

George Bancroft, in his "History of the United States, From the Discovery of the American Continent," says that Mrs. Dustin "achieved a startling revenge." The historian relates that after days of weary marches, Hannah Dustin and her nurse, with a boy from Worcester, found themselves on an island in the Merrimac, just above Concord, in a wigwam occupied by two Indian families. At night, while the household slumbered, the captives, each with a tomahawk, struck, vigorously, and fleetly, and with wise division of labor—and of the twelve sleepers, ten lay dead. The gun and tomahawk of the murderer of her infant, and a bug heaped full with scalps, were choicely kept as the trophies of the heroine.

According to Lamb's Biographical Dictionary of the United States, Hannah presented the trophies to the governor of Massachusetts colony. The general court gave Mrs. Dustin and the Worcester had each $250. A granite monument was erected at Haverhill by the states of New Hampshire and Massachusetts in 1874, on the tablets of which are inscribed the names of Hannah Dustin, Mary Neff and Samuel Leonardson.

WHY YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

BRAIN, BRAIN, WHO'S GOT HIS BRAIN?

There are many of us whose foreheads are well developed, and sometimes overdeveloped, and do not use intelligence in daily life because other faculties of vitality, will, or intuition are low. But when the forehead is lacking as in this case, there is no hope of any faculty being used intelligently.

Oftentimes one sees a head with the forehead sloping straight back, similar to this one. The observing faculties at the eyebrows may be well developed, and will therefore enable the possessor to go through life fairly successfully, but he is lacking in the element of reason, higher up on the forehead. He will not be able to learn from books—only from the daily routine of life. Intellectually and logically, he is an idiot.

Intelligence and reason both are lacking in the forehead that slopes backward at such an angle as this one. Its owner will not be found doing the unselfish or charitable deed. He makes a better dancer at the public rink than he does a father. When you speak to him he will be more interested in the label of your shirt collar than he will be in you, if he has any social inclinations at all.

Her Need Fulfilled.

Betty had come from a small town to the city school and not a child spoke to her the whole day. Just before leaving for home she stood before most weeping as she saw little girls go off talking to each other. She felt the hot tears coming and she started to run, when bump! she went right against another child. Betty got a hard tumble and now the tears did come. The other little girl picked her up and put her arm around her and spoke comfortingly to her when suddenly Betty smiled through her sobs and said, "O, say, we've acquainted now, isn't we? I need a little friend."

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing every time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

BREAK CHEST COLDS WITH RED PEPPER

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

POPLAR TREES GIRL'S DOWRY

Planted at Child's Birth, They Provide a "Dot" Demanded on Her Marriage.

In the southernmost part of Italy is the province of Calabria. One of the most charming of the customs here in Italy's toe is that relating to a girl's dowry. For, as in most European countries, a Calabrian girl has a slim chance of marriage unless she is the proud possessor of a "dot."

The Calabrians, to avoid such a tragedy as that of bringing up a daughter and not being able to endow her with a sufficient dowry to attract an eligible husband, make provision in her babyhood against such a misfortune. In some parts of Calabria, when a little girl is born, her father plants a row of poplar trees, which are hers. By the time she is seventeen years old the poplars are fine, large trees and ready to be hewn down. Then their wood is sold and the money is set aside for the daughter's dowry.

Calabria also is rich in historic interest. Scilla is one of the seaports. Across the straits of Messina is Sicily. It was here that the mythological monsters, Scylla and Charybdis, were supposed to menace mariners. Even the brave Ulysses was in never-ending fear of Scylla. It has always been filled with romance, and from this mountainous country come thrilling tales of highwaymen and brigands, for it was a favorite haunt for outlaws.

Millet Studio to Be Museum.

The remarkable building in the main street of the art center Barbizon, where Jean-Francois Millet painted "The Angelus" and other masterpieces, is being restored to its exact condition when used by the master. It will be opened officially to tourists and art pilgrims.

The restoration is almost a work of love by Doullin, the last painter of the Barbizon school, who, after discovering a long-hidden set of camera plates showing almost every corner of Millet's home, bought the lease and commenced to rebuild and replace, covering the expense of his operations by the sale of copies of Millet's best known canvases. When completed, the house will be virtually a Millet museum.

New Roadster

Business men—with whom the runabout has always been very popular—are well pleased with the changes embodied in this model.

Always rugged, the car has been made decidedly trimmer and more comfortable.

This result is obtained by raising the radiator and enlarging the cowl, making a decided improvement in looks and providing more leg room.

A well designed top and slanting windshield do their share toward adding a finished, clean-cut appearance.

Make it a point to see the other new models also on display in our show room.

These cars can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur cream at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

There is a grace and charm about Silverware that makes it an ideal gift for many occasions—birthdays, weddings, graduations, etc.

We have an especially select stock that will appeal to you.

Our well-established business reputation of over a quarter of a century is your guarantee as to quality and service.

BIRTH STONES

"You want to have it replaced by other fake stuff. All in a night! So you can take these substitutes right back. And when this man asks you for an explanation you beat him over the head and start taking it away from him—to run off with. What's the idea?"

The big man looked up at him, with his little eyes red like a cornered bull's, and said nothing in answer. "Now listen," said McConnell, the detective. "You can do one of two things. It's up to you. You can show us—take us around to your wife now, at home. Or you can come with me, and have her give her explanation—to headquarters!"

"The big fellow gave a groan, too loud, almost to be natural. "I won't. I can't," he said. "It might kill her. She don't know anything about this. She thinks we're on the top of the world yet—instead of just scraping bankruptcy!"

"There's others," said the detective, watching him, "that have had to hear it before!"

"Not the way she is," said the man, who had introduced himself as Cogan, and went on and told them how it was with her.

"I can't have her now," he said. "I won't. Not till she's over!"

"At that," said McConnell, giving Volpe a look again, "there's other women have gone through with it without being millionaires!"

"I know," he came back. "but it's the sudden bump, coming just now—when she's been thinking up to date everything is going wonderful for us. And then all at once a fall from the top of the world! I can't have it—now. You know yourself how women are—on luxury, and all that! How much more it means to them—and all that."

"And then you've got to remember—another thing," he said, going on when nobody answered—arguing, with the sweat pouring down his face. "You know how it is with the first one! They're scared to death, afraid they'll die!"

"What does the doctor say?" asked McConnell, the detective.

"He don't see it—quite so bad as she does. But he admits himself we've got to be careful. Help all we can! You see—you see how I'm fixed," he said, arguing. "I wouldn't take a chance with that little girl—for the world!"

And then he stepped for a minute. "But where do the diamonds come in?" McConnell, the detective, asked him. "The necklace?"

"That's our luck, she claims," "Your luck?"

"Our lucky stones! You know how women are—about things like that! Superstitious—all of them. I never knew one that wasn't yet. And especially now—now—at times like this. And then her father was a sporting man—too. A kind of a high-class sporting man."

"I see," said McConnell, keeping his face still. "And so?"

"So you see, don't you? You know how women are—over anniversaries and all that. Diamonds were her birthstone. So naturally I gave her diamonds. When I was way up! I gave her this—this necklace. Just to show her—and the rest of the world—how she stood with me. You know how women are—how they've got to show the neighbors—the other women—if things are going right—if you're prosperous. And what their husbands think of them!"

"And there is another turn to it—that she worked out in her head, besides—what it meant to her—good luck and all that."

"And that was?" said McConnell.

PLUTARCH'S RULES OF DIET

Philosopher Seems to Have Had the Right Idea Concerning the Satisfying of Appetite.

He that is hungry should eat necessary food and find it pleasant; but when he is freed from his common appetite, he ought not to raise up a fresh one. For as dancing was no unpleasant exercise to Socrates himself, so he that can make his meal of sweatmen or a second course receives the less damage. But he that has taken already what may sufficiently satisfy his nature ought by all means to avoid them. And concerning these things, indecorum and ambition are no less to be avoided than the love of pleasure or gluttony.

Therefore, when any rare or noble dish is before you, you will get more honor by refraining from it than partaking of it. Remember what Simonides said, that he never repented that he had held his tongue, but often that he had spoken; so we shall not repent that we have refused a good dish or drunk water instead of Falernian, but the contrary. We are not only to commit no violence on nature; but when any of those things are offered to her, even if she has a desire for the appetite, to overcome it and accustom it to diet, that she may be used to it and acquainted with it—Plutarch.

White Buffalo Robe Prized. In the old days Indians cherished the white buffalo robe as almost beyond price. In 1832 or 1833 the Mandans, hearing that the Blackfeet at the mouth of the Yellowstone had a white buffalo robe, sent a delegation with eight horses and with trading-goods to the 200 miles to procure the robe if possible. The delegation left the horses and the goods and returned afoot with the robe. This was consecrated to the Great Spirit and hung upon a pole, out of touch, as powerful medicine.

It is said that not one in a hundred thousand buffaloes was white. Even at that the color was likely to be a yellowish white and the robe was known by the plainmen as a "huck-skin" robe. The pure white robe scarcely existed.

180° Variocoupler Is Easily Constructed. The object of this article is to describe the construction of a cheap and efficient 180-degree variocoupler. The device is so simple that hardly any explanations are necessary. The accompanying sketch shows plainly the details of construction.

The stator and rotor are pieces of cardboard cut out of old round cardboard boxes. These pieces should be given one or two coats of shellac before they are wound. The primary consists of 50 turns of No. 26 D. C. C. wire and the secondary of 40 turns. The shaft is a 3/4-inch round brass rod bought in a 10-cent store. If this is not obtainable, a round lead pencil will work as well. Pieces A, E and base B are of wood (preferably hard wood) 3/4-inch thick. It is well when making piece E to leave it about one-half inch longer than necessary and then drill a hole for the shaft. The ends are cut off evenly coming from the edge of the shaft hole. This will insure a true running rotor. This piece is fastened and placed with glue. D can be of wood or metal and should fit close in the notch in the bracket. A, so as to prevent end-play of the shaft. The coupler can be mounted directly on the back of a panel if desired, in which case base B is omitted. Flexible leads from the primary and secondary coils are led to their respective terminals in the receiving set or connected to four small binding posts mounted on the rear of the base. Taps may be taken off the primary coil at the most convenient positions. This variocoupler has been built at the cost of a few cents and has given as good results as any on the market.

Distortion. Getting any distortion in your program? If so, look at the following: High voltage battery, lighting battery, loose connections. Having looked at the above, if distortion still exists, then a battery of about nine volts potential should be placed in the lead running from the secondary of the amplifying transformer to the filament tap.

Really Nothing New. The man who smokes his cigar today is merely imitating the old-time West Indian who made his tobacco into cylindrical rolls wrapped in maize leaves. The canoe was familiar on North American rivers centuries before it was seen on the Thames; and the Eskimo of the "dark ages" plied an arctic no different from that which serves us so well today. Snowshoes had been used by the Eskimo for hundreds of years before a man first strapped a pair to his feet; and not only was the sledge an old-time invention of the Arctic native, but he have adopted its form, and our explorers even use Eskimo harness for their sled dogs.

Both in the Swim. "My daughter sprang from a line of peers," said a proud father. "Well," said the suitor, "I once jumped off a deck myself."—Everybody's Magazine.

Every one who has paid the $1 yearly Red Cross dues is a member and all ladies are urged to join the procession to help make a good day. Fire starting from a defective chimney damaged the second story of Alex. Brister's home on Second street between Market and Arch Tuesday morning. All the fire companies responded promptly and prevented the high wind from spreading the flames. Mrs. William Jenkins and daughter, Miss Margaret Jenkins, have returned after a ten-day trip during which they visited Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and Toronto. While at Buffalo they were the guests of Mrs. Jenkins' son, William Jenkins, a former resident of Palmyra. Mrs. Katherine Shaw celebrated her eighty-second birthday on Tuesday, October 23rd, at the home of her son, William Shaw, 515 Leconey avenue. Mrs. Shaw's grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ruffe and Mrs. John Koder and Mrs. C. Ruffe, motored from Quakertown, Pa., in honor of the day and spent a very pleasant time. Mrs. May Hayes Hilliard, of Philadelphia, and Jesse Daniel, of Palmyra, were married at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. Fred B. Morley, pastor of the Epworth M. E. Church, last Friday evening. The couple were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Neal, of Spring Garden street and Public Road, with whom they will reside. Justice of the Peace William L. Fichter reports that one winter, about fifteen years ago, there were at least eighty houses for rent in Palmyra. It was almost impossible to rent them in those days and when a tenant would move into a house in the middle of the month, it was customary to give them the fraction of the month's rent free. Try to rent 'em now. Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Blackburne Mr. and Mrs. Leonard R. Baker and son, William, motored to Baltimore and witnessed two of the junior world series games. Russell Blackburne acted as a pinch-hitter for the Kansas City team in one of the games and started a rally which netted five runs, and tied the score with the Orioles. The International League aggregation also rallied in the ninth and Blacky's bunch lost the game.

ARTISANS WILL MEET NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

Will Hold Annual Past Masters' Night with Old Officers in Charge of Meeting. The regular meeting of Palmyra Assembly No. 65, Artisans Order of Mutual Protection, will be held in Society Hall next Tuesday evening. This meeting has been designated as Past Masters' Night, and all members will be occupied by former Past Master Artisans. Keen interest is being displayed by the Palmyra Lodge in connection with the proposed class of 5,000 new members to be initiated by the Artisans on Friday evening, November 30th, at the Philadelphia Ice Palace. The previous record for the largest class ever initiated was 4,068 new members initiated at the Philadelphia Ice Palace, and of this class 1,000 members were initiated by the Artisans on November 30th, and all indications point to a successful culmination of the event. Less than two years ago the membership of Palmyra Artisans was about 250, whereas today the membership exceeds 450, indicating the keen interest being manifested. On Thursday evening, October 18, a delegation of 20 Palmyra Artisans visited Merchantville Assembly, to meet the Most Excellent Master Artisan, Charles H. Grakelov, and the Most Excellent Recorder, Allen P. DeLoach. The delegation was accompanied by their orchestra, and an exceptionally fine vaudeville entertainment. A unique innovation at this joint meeting was the christening of the Palmyra Artisans by the Palmyra Artisans, a name especially invented for use in connection with the big class of 5,000 new members. In commemoration of the christening, the members wore red peppers on the lapels of their coats, signifying that they were "Fullpepp." A most pleasing vaudeville entertainment was arranged for the meeting next Tuesday evening, and special selections will be rendered by the orchestra and glee club. The bowling league of Palmyra Artisans opened their season on February 1st at the Palmyra Artisans' Riverside Alleys, last Tuesday evening. The Footpads, under the leadership of Artie Simons, taking three out of four games from Chic White, the Rev. Charles Bandholtz, captain, by Doc Craig, administered a like trimming to Cy Morris' Bootleggers. A new bowling ball, valued at $17.50, was offered as a prize, and was taken home by George Hardman's friend, "Jumpin' Bill" DuFudway.

ASSESSOR RESIGNS

Mr. Shade Quits Position Due to Ill Health. John W. Shade, borough assessor of Palmyra, presented his resignation at the special meeting of Council Tuesday evening. Mr. Shade has been in ill health for some time and feared he would not be able to efficiently perform his duties this fall. Council accepted the resignation with regrets and expressed hope that Mr. Shade's health would soon improve and enable him to resume his duties. A new assessor will be appointed within a few days. The Mayor and Council are considering a number of possibilities, owing to the importance of the assessor's work and its bearing on the future prosperity and growth of the town, everybody is anxious that the appointee be a man with the necessary ability and time to do the job properly. Council also passed on final reading the ordinance authorizing the purchase of the new fire engine. Former Township Collector Beckenback accepted Council's offer of settlement of his claims for unpaid legal services on the basis of $353.50.

Odd Fellows, All!

Twas a balmy autumn evening And a goodly crowd was there At the I. O. O. F. meeting room On the corner—you know where. It seemed just like the days of old When the boys had to fight for a seat in the fraternal hall. I'll say to the brothers absent that night They certainly missed a treat. Ask any brother who was present Of the old-fashioned fellowship and cheer Of the faces and in the heart of our meeting. It fairly permeated the atmosphere. A jolly good crowd is that Bridgeboro Lodge Coming down in their auto-bus. Eighteen strong tells the story in numbers Yet not enough to win the fuss. The return game of the Indoor Quoit series Was played on our floor that night, And unlike our initial appearance, 'Twas We who conquered Bridgeboro's might. The margin of victory was slim boys. The last game deciding the fuss, But as ever when comes the critical test Cinnaminon came in first. The above tells the story of last week's meeting of Cinnaminon Lodge No. 201, I. O. O. F. It certainly was a rollicking mirthful evening thruout, with everyone busy enjoying themselves with some sort of entertainment, just such an evening as Cinnaminon always enjoyed before the Great War thinned our ranks and slowed up the fraternal spirit in general. But with the ball rolling again we hope to keep up the good work with something new doing all the time. With a growing class of candidates for membership to be initiated into secrets of our Order on the first meeting night in November, we expect a very busy month ahead. Next Friday, October 26th, is radio night. Several sets and a radio cabinet will be present. Guess midnight oil will burn. Nuff said. At a meeting of the county committee of the American Legion held last Thursday evening at the office of William H. Absolum, in Mount Holly, S. Page Scholey, of Burlington, was elected the county commander, to succeed Mr. Absolum. Charles Keeler, of Mount Holly, was elected the vice commander; Raymond E. Parker, Burlington, adjutant; D. W. Knowlton, Palmyra, finance officer; and Edward Lamont, Palmyra, organization officer. The man who walks alone is very often in bad company.—Pfeifer's Pass-

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 28

SOME MISSIONARY TEACHINGS OF THE PROPHETS

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 60:1-3; Jonah 4:10-11; Micah 4:1-3; Zeph. 3:1. GOLDEN TEXT—"The Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising."—Isa. 60:1. PRIMARY TOPIC—"The Story of Jonah." JUNIOR TOPIC—"God's Love for All Nations." INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—"The Prophets as Missionaries." YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—"The Missionary Message of the Prophets."

Perhaps the best way to teach this lesson will be to note the message of the individual prophets. 1. The Message of Isaiah (Isa. 60:1-3). Its Central Fact (v. 1). Israel's light has become a great light. The primary meaning of this is not the incarnation of the Redeemer, but His manifestation in glory and power as He comes back to this earth to reign as Israel's King. This glorious fact is presented under the figure of a bright sunrise. It will be a glorious morning without clouds dawning upon a dark world. 2. The Ringing Summons (v. 1). Meshah himself calls Israel to arouse herself from her long sleep of indifference and shine forth in the glory of her glorious King. 3. The Darkened Earth (v. 2). In spite of all the progress of the arts and sciences spiritual darkness—blindness touching spiritual things—has settled down upon the earth. It will be peculiarly gross in the last days. It can only be dispelled by the glorious appearing of the Lord. 4. The Blessed Result (v. 3). The Gentile nation shall come into the light, being attracted to Zion by the appearing of the Lord. In the midst of such darkness the sudden appearing of the light shall attract the nations and draw them to Jerusalem. 5. The Message of Jonah (Jonah 4:10, 11). Jonah was commanded by the Lord to go to the wicked city Nineveh and proclaim its destruction in forty days. He started in the opposite direction in order to escape this unpleasant task. A storm came up and the superstitious sailors threw him overboard. He was swallowed by a great fish and after three days and nights was cast upon the shore. Having learned the needed lesson he went to Nineveh and preached with such earnestness that the whole city repented. The mercy shown by the Lord in sparing this wicked city so angered Jonah that he went out of the city and improvised a shelter where he could see neither God nor the people. He thought, "God would really destroy Nineveh. To protect the prophet, God made a gourd to quickly spring up and throw a shade over him. When the gourd died and left Jonah exposed to the burning sun he prayed for death. The particular message of Jonah is that God is great in mercy to all the nations when they penitently turn unto Him from their sins. 6. The Message of Micah (Micah 4:1-3). In this message the prophet portrays the blessings of the Messiah's kingdom in the last days. Three things are predicted: 1. The Supremacy of His Kingdom (v. 1). He shall be exalted above all the kingdoms of the earth. His glory shall attract the people from afar. 2. The Extent of it (v. 2). Many nations shall come with the urgent request that others accompany them. The kingdom of Messiah shall be universal, it shall extend from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth. 3. It Shall Bring Peace (v. 3). Enmity will then be taken from men's hearts and they will love each other. When their hearts are changed they will no longer wage war against each other, they will destroy their implements of warfare. War will continue till men's hearts are regenerated. The way to get wars to cease is to get men to love Jesus Christ. 7. The Message of Zephaniah (Zeph. 3:9). Zephaniah declares that following the judgment upon the nations God will turn the people from their impure speech so that they may call upon Him. He declares that God's will is that all nations turn from their filthy conversation and call upon Him. He desires that all nations should come unto Him. Christianity. In order to abolish Christianity the one thing needful is to get rid of Sunday.—George Holyoak. To Appreciate Institutions. Fairly to appreciate institutions you must not hold them up against the light that blazes in Utopia.—Borax Once Scarce and Expensive. One of the first chemicals that entered into commerce was borax, one of the three or four "industrial chemicals" of ancient times. Central Asia was its only source during 4,000 years; its mining was dangerous and expensive and in that time the whole world used only about 1,200 tons, an average of not more than six tons a year. Now the United States alone produces 40,000 tons a year and borax enters into the making of scores of the most common necessities of everyday life. Business Admen. Three men named Jones, all on the same line of business, opened shops next door to each other. The one on the right had the name Jones painted in large letters over the door. The one on the left immediately did the same thing. The sign writer then approached the center Mr. Jones, asked him if he would like his name painted also. "No," said the wily one; "I want you to paint the word 'Entrance' over my door."

HOW

IDEAL METROPOLIS WAS PLANNED FOR KENTUCKY—Picture a coterie of Eighteenth century London gentlemen, fired with the spirit of the creator and pioneer, intently poring over a graphically illuminated chart of "the ideal city of the world," and visualizing over their mugs of ale the day when the virginal hillsides of that frontier region of the New World, called Kentucky—beyond the ragged edge of the lands assimilated by those recalcitrant colonists—should rise this wonder city—Lystra! "The chief city of Kentucky" was the designation put to Lystra on a London map of 1794. Orin M. Mather, of Holmgrove, Ky., student of early Kentucky history, tells of the intended metropolis. "The primeval forest still waves over the spot," Mr. Mather declared. "The site is located in the extreme eastern part of La Rne county, Kentucky, and the only thing that marks it is the post office and general store of Gleanings, a little village several miles away." Muldraugh hill, a landmark in the vicinity, was to be the approximate center of the city and is still there. Lystra was to cover 15,000 square acres, divided into 25 blocks, each block with its individual park. Streets were to be 100 feet wide, and visionary structures and improvements were located and planned—on a map in London. But the Englishmen never came to Kentucky. In the days that have elapsed since, however, the Bluegrass country to the east of Lystra's proposed location has been transformed into a prosperous region known as one of the richest communities in the "New World."

IS ISLAND OF COMMUNISTS

How the Marxian Principle Has Been Made the Rule in Bit of Japanese Archipelago. A Japanese contributor to Politien, Rome, has written an article which believes that the Bolsheviks in their eastward pressure through Asia, may find one place at least where they will need to make no converts. This is the little island of Hatushima in the Japanese archipelago. Private property does not exist there. All movable and immovable wealth belongs to the community, and it is forbidden to buy or sell. The people live by fishing and cutting timber. There are some forty houses on the island. It is not permitted to add to their number nor is the population allowed to increase until it over-crowds these houses. When the number of residents becomes too large, the excess is forced to migrate. Apparently this is an institution somewhat like the ver sacrum of the ancient Latins. There are no distinctions of rank and class, but the heads of families select a governor from their own number. Japan directly exercises her sovereignty over the island only once a year, during the religious festival when the births and deaths are registered. So far as records relate, the people live in peace and amity.—The Living Age. Greece First. Gen. Amos Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service of our army, suggests the introduction of a small quantity of a new "sneeze gas" into illuminating gas, with a view to preventing suicides. Assuredly the man contemplating self-destruction will find it extremely disconcerting to have to pause in the midst of the solemn process for so ridiculous a gesture as that of sneezing. Empedocles, of Erma, or Sophocles with his draught of hemlock, or Cleopatra with her asp could not have departed this life with dignity in the middle of a sneeze. If one stops long enough for that, there is a chance of a sober second thought.

About one suicide in seven in this country is with gas. The fact shows the importance of even so slight an obstacle as a sneeze. A fraction of a second may be enough to upset a foolish determination. If he who hesitates is lost, he also may be saved when the pause means an instantaneous review of the causes leading up to the precipitate deed. It does not take long in such instances to decide that one is in error, and to recant. Parisians Going In for Sport. Paris is becoming more Anglo-Saxon in character. It is having built around it veritable country houses. The latest development is the opening of an 18-hole golf course, together with tennis grounds, at Aubergenville on the Seine near the forest of Saint-Germain, and the hotel which is connected with the club resembles a country house in every respect. More and more Parisians are developing the week-end habit and are going in for sport. It is a complete transformation. Two Houses to a Lot. The high cost of building has been responsible for many radical changes in newly erected houses. This is most noticeable in the suburbs. Real estate, like everything else, costs more, but the wily architect has evolved a system to keep it within reason. He has designed houses to be built facing each other with a common driveway instead of fronting on the street. This allows two houses to be built on a lot that would formerly have been required for only one, says the New York Sun and Globe. Of course it has largely eliminated privacy, but what does that matter in these days of housing shortage?

TOM THUMB WEDES
 Two Performances Given by Lutheran Sunday School

The children of the primary department of the Lutheran Sunday School presented Tom Thumb's wedding in a most delightful and successful way in P. O. S. of A. hall, on Saturday and Monday nights. The crowd was so great that it was found necessary to repeat, and the second audience was almost that of the first.

Everyone received the presentation with great enthusiasm, and all praise is to be given for the way in which the children took their parts.

Very worthy approval was given by the audience, to, from the ushers, who played their parts so well, down to the pretty little bride, who was Helen Habfast, and the bridegroom, who was Harry Bauer. It was indeed a delightful occasion for both the children and the audience.

Epworth Church News

Dr. Harry Farmer, associate secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who has general oversight of the church work of Latin America and address at the regular morning service at the Epworth M. E. Church this Sunday. He will give a brief talk in the Sunday School and will later be the speaker at the Wesleyan Men's class. The pastor, the Rev. Fred B. Morley, will preach on "The Early Church Program" at the evening worship, which starts at 7:45. This week concludes the Go-to-Church campaign which has been in effect during the month of October.

Harry K. Strang will be the leader of the Epworth League service, which is held Sunday evenings from 7 to 7:45. "Unselfishness in Prayer" will be his topic. There will also be some special musical numbers.

The date of the Epworth League Halloween party has been postponed from Thursday, November 1, to Friday, the 2nd.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will be held Monday evening, October 29th, at 8 o'clock, in the Temple. Mrs. Arthur Skinner, of Trenton, will make an address and there will be a missionary pageant given by the ladies of the Society, assisted by friends. Refreshments will be served. All ladies interested are invited to be present.

Lutheran News

Last Sunday, the second anniversary of our first day, Mrs. Caroline H. Woll rendered some especially fine solos.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on "Justice as it is and should be." Dr. D. H. Daugherty will preach. Mrs. E. H. Grafton will sing.

It was on the eve of the 31st of October 1517, over 400 years ago, that Martin Luther, the founder of our church, nailed his 95 theses protesting against his church's methods, on the church door at Wittenberg, Germany. It was this action that caused the immediate beginning of the Reformation. At the Epworth League this Sunday evening, we are going to review this great occasion. The leader is Mrs. William Grollman. Come and hear what occurred, October 31, 1517.

The men of the church and Sunday School should not forget Tuesday night, October 30, bowling at Riverside, and all of you are welcome. Meet at the station at 7:30.

Asbury Notes

Mrs. Lillie Ward entertained Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Anderson and son, Melvin, and Miss Lillie Clevenger and Miss Sadie Coles and John Hepler on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, of Philadelphia, visited their grandmother, Mrs. Mary L. Foster, on Sunday.

Rev. Charles Terry, of Riverside, is expected to have charge of the services Sunday morning and evening; also services every evening next week. He is planning to bring the gospel team with him to help in the services.

Please do not forget the 112th anniversary in Asbury Church on Friday, October 26th.

The October meeting of the Cinnamon Home and School Association was held in the auditorium on Tuesday, October 23rd, at 2:30 p. m. An illustrated talk was given by Miss Philbrook on "The Eight Rules of Health," followed by a business meeting. Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

Holstein Sale to be held at Trenton

The New Jersey State Holstein Association will hold their annual consignment sale at Trenton, Tuesday, November 20, at the fair grounds. Sixty-five head of very choice tuberculin tested pure bred Holsteins will be offered to the highest bidder. Great care has been taken in selecting these animals for type and production. About thirty-five are from fully accredited herds; the remainder are from herds that have passed at least one clean test. Forty-five of these animals are due to freshen before or shortly after the sale.

If any Holstein breeder desires to purchase good, clean cattle from a reliable source, due to freshen in November, he should plan to attend the sale. There will be a complete dispersal of Judge N. Y. Dungan's fully accredited herd which includes several 30 cows.

What is a Lobster?

A man who was compiling a dictionary wrote to Louis Agassiz, the famous Swiss naturalist and authority in ichthyology, asking for a comment on his definition of a lobster.

The description read:

A lobster is a small, red, fish that walks backward.

Professor Agassiz replied, "Sir, the lobster is not small, it is not red, it is not a fish and it does not walk backward. Otherwise your description is correct."

Timely Definition.

"An optimist," observes an exchange, "is one who believes the decorators when they tell him they'll paint and repaper his house in two weeks."

FOOTBALL
 Riverton and Knights All Stars Tie Score 6-6

Last Saturday Riverton and the Knights All Stars battled to a tie score in a game where the clever forward pass work of the visitors was the outstanding feature. Their full back, Prince, threw them with a deadly accuracy such as is seldom seen on any football team, and his passing was responsible for a touchdown in the second quarter, so between the halves the score stood Knights 6, Riverton 0. In the third period the locals, although handicapped by not having some of their best men in the lineup, got going better and rushed the ball by repeated line plunges, in which Anderson was their main asset, to within a few yards of the visitors' goal, where Wright threw a forward pass to Holvick, who scored Riverton's touchdown, making the score 6 to 6, Riverton missing their try for a point from touchdown.

The balance of the game neither side really threatened to score, but the visitors advanced the ball considerably by forward passes, only to have them intercepted or held for downs before they could get within scoring distance.

Lineup:

Riverton	Knights All Stars
Holvick	l. c. Twist
Mays	l. t. McKee
Wolfe	l. g. Strub
Jenkins	c. g. Martin
Wallace	r. g. Schwartz
Morgan	r. t. Russell
Bowers	r. c. Chambers
Hylton	q. b. Hepburn
Stack	l. h. b. J. Cummings
Anderson	f. b. G. Cummings
Meinier	r. h. b. Prince

Substitutions for Riverton—Mack for Mays; Clifton for Morgan; Wright for Hylton; McIlhenry for Stack; Hylton for Meinier.

Substitutions for Knights All Stars—McMullin for McKee; Murphy for Chambers.

Score by periods:

Touchdowns—G. Cummings, P. Holvick. Referee—L. Keating. Umpire—J. Stack. Head linesman—Faunce.

This Saturday, October 27th, Riverton was compelled to change their schedule a bit and will have as their opponents the Holmesburg Blue Jacks, instead of Patuxent, who have been moved back on the schedule to November 17th. This year, Holmesburg's team has been playing a fine brand of football so far and Riverton will have to give the best they have in them if they want to emerge the victors of this contest. Kick off 3:15 p. m. Riverton grounds, Seventh and Cedar avenue.

Last Saturday the Riverton reserves played the ReXalls, of Riverside and won by the score of 3 to 0. After the game the ReXall management protested the score, claiming that the kick which was called a field goal was punted over the goal and not dropped kicked, so he requested that we call the game a tie game and play it off on a subsequent date, which was agreed to by the Riverton management.

N. I. INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

More than eight per cent of the total tax burden of the nation in 1921 was collected from three agencies of transportation, steam and electric railways and motor cars, according to figures presented to the National Tax Association by John E. Walker, former tax adviser to the U. S. treasury department.

City Trees.

Trees in the city have a harder fight for foothold than do the dogs; both are out of their natural surroundings, and some of the dogs get more continual care and protection than most of the trees. The tale of an allanhus tree, planted when it was only 18 inches high in a back yard in 1894, has lately got into the police courts. In time the tree, grown old and crooked, broke down a partition fence and then died, partly on adjoining property. The fact that the trespassing tree was dead did not make the removal of the stark old offender any easier to tenants in the adjoining properties, who wrangled and disputed; and suit for damages is now threatened for the bold spirit who hired men to chop it down. Even in the country many persons do not like trees too near a house; in the city, trees in back yards are almost extinct—like the back yards.—New York World.

Modish Tailored Frocks

One excellent reason for the popularity of cloth utility frocks appear in the picture above. This smart model presents the advantages of a military collar, bell sleeves and braid embroidery. The skirt has a box plait down the front and reveals a narrow inset of satin, in a contrasting color at the sides, emphasized by rows of small buttons and satin faces the collar, sleeves and revers.

Fashion Demands Dresses

For many a year suits have been the mainstay of the up-to-date woman's wardrobe, but this fall fads, cloth dresses disputing their supremacy. One of these handsome rivals of the suit is pictured above, made of twill in a dark color and brightened with embroidery in several colors. Its striking new style features are a high turn-over collar, long, bell sleeves and ankle length skirts with side panels attached along one of their edges.

FEW BID FOR CRIME RELICS

Sale of Grewsone Collection Sparingly Attended, and Articles All Sold for Small Sums.

Relics of famous crimes and criminals no longer have the same fascination for the British man in the street as they did less than a generation ago. The whole private collection of the late George R. Sims, journalist, author and playwright, was auctioned recently in London. Mr. Sims was more than thirty years getting his "Black Museum" together, and the whole of it—relics, news cuttings, and books—was sold to an almost indifferent public in less than half an hour.

One of the most treasured of the relics, a kitchen chair on which a woman was sitting when she was murdered, realized only 5 shillings, little more than $1. Autographed letters from notorious murderers, various things belonging to criminals who had been hanged—all went for a few dollars apiece. Even things having a certain historical value, such as a set of rusty fire irons used on criminals in the eighteenth century and a massive lock from one of the cells in old Newgate prison, failed to interest buyers.

Where Fun Comes in.

Fun is a safety valve that lets the steam pressure off from the boiler, and keeps things from bursting. Fun is the dancing particles, which slip off from the surface of unbotled cider, it is the senseless frolic on the spring lam in the clover, it is the merry twinkle that keeps down the corner of the parson's eye, to stand in the sunlit and see what's going on. Fun is as karlis as a kolt, as happy as a bridegroom, and as silly as a tussle skool-girl. Fun is the holy day wisdom on the sage, the phool's phooly, and everybody's puppet. Next time the virtue in this world, the fun in it is what we can least spare. Truly! Oh! Truly!—Joah Billings.

Lake of Epsom Salt.

The wildest nightmares are no worse than some realities. Imagine a lake of epsom salt. It exists at Basque in British Columbia. It is at least 41 feet deep and perhaps more. The miners who discovered the lake drilled to that depth and were then obliged to cease for lack of drilling facilities. The lake is said to cover an area of seven acres, and to have a hard crystal surface. When the snow melts from the mountain the surface is covered six inches deep with water, which quickly becomes brine. Then the sun evaporates it, and all that is necessary to score and lift off the thick crust that has formed. Spring freshets prepare another seven-acre pan. It is, in this respect, like the lake asphalt in Trinidad.

Older Than King Tut.

Louisiana has an immense cypress tree which contains about 23,000 feet of lumber. It belongs to William Membrum who will not have it felled. Scientists say that this tree is 2,500 years old! It was alive when Jerusalem was entered by Nebuchadnezzar; was 600 years old at the birth of Christ; and more than 2,000 years old when Columbus discovered America. Other wonderful trees of immense age are the Baobab tree in Senegal, which is 4,000 years old; the redwood tree in California and a Dragon tree in Tenerife about the same age; and a cypress in Mexico which is supposed to have reached the remarkable age of 6,000 years.

COULDN'T KEEP ON THE PATH

Fiddler Might "Speed the Plow" a While, but Admitted He Was Sure to Wander.

A certain old chap, who plays the fiddle at country dances, is "great on time," but unless he is argued with he will play "The Girl I Left Behind Me," for eight o'clock till twelve for every dance except the Virginia reel. Some of the old dancers were on the floor and between dances one of them went up to the fiddler, who sat rubbing resin on his bow.

"Uncle," said the dancer, "all the folks on the floor want you to play old 'Speed the Plow' for the next dance. Can't you give it to them?"

The old man tucked his resin into his vest pocket.

"I should like to 'commodate y' fast rate," he said, "but there's nuthin' sing'lar 'bout the tune of 'Speed the Plow'. Jest as soon as I 'Speed the Plow' 'long a little ways I run right into 'The Girl I Left Behind Me.'"

Otherwise Engaged.

"Sorter quaint" things happened whilst I was in town," related Gen. Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, who had just returned from the county seat. "I was mixed up in a swap with a feller when a good sized bunch of ladies, armed with clubs, hatchets, soap pads and so forth, tore past. Somebody said they was on their way to run the mayor and council out of town."

"What in the name of goodness had them officials been doing?" eagerly inquired Mrs. Johnson.

"How do I know? Didn't you hear me say I was mixed up in a swap?"

—Kansas City Star.

Religious Organization.

The teacher of a class at an Indianapolis school had asked the pupils to give the names of five religious organizations.

A girl named the following three among her list:

"The Ladies' Aid, the Brother's hood, and the Lamona's leg."

Investigation revealed that the organization last named was the Laymen's league.

Ten Thousand New Telephones

That's the number of new Bell Telephones which are being added to the Bell System in South Jersey this year, making a total of 90,500. ADDED is the word, for 10,000 is the net figure. To realize this net gain, we must install a total of 20,000 telephones, not including some forty-four hundred which are being moved from one address to another during the year.

And a further gain of 10,800 is expected in 1924. Installing the telephone instrument, however, is the smallest part of the job.

To carry out our full $3,500,000 program this year means several large building operations, fifty thousand miles of new wire, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new switchboards and Central Office equipment.

This is the most stupendous construction program ever undertaken in the telephone history of southern New Jersey.

It is our response to the demand of the people for more and more telephones.
