the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.

INTRODUCTION.

We feel certain that Columbus will be proud of this edition of the City Directory. Its appearance indicates an enterprising, prosperous city, and the contents of the volume will amply prove that appearances in this instance are not deceptive. The plan of the work divides the information contained in the book into three parts: the first pages are devoted to the miscellaneous information, consisting of lists of city and county officers, church directory, secret and benevolent societies, incorporated companies, schools, State government, post office information, the police and fire departments, and many other useful items; this is followed by the directory proper, containing 340 pages and showing the names, occupation and addresses of all the city and suburban residents, and the whole is supplemented by a complete classified business directory, containing the names and addresses of all persons engaged in business or the professions, arranged under the heading to which each belongs. The information has been collected and compiled by thoroughly competent and experienced persons, and we have spared neither labor nor expense to make the work as complete and reliable as possible.

The present population of the city and suburbs we find to be 30,864. We cannot close our labors without expressing sincere thanks to the business and professional men for the support accorded us, and also to the general public for the interest manifested and care taken to give all needed information to our canvassers.

A LETTER FROM DR. BARBEE,

OFFICE OF PASTOR MCKENDREE CHURCH, NASHVILLE, TENN.

I have studied Prof. Woolwine as a teacher and an administrator of school discipline. His success arrested my attention and made him an object of curious interest and thoughtful inquiry to me. How does he execute perfect discipline without mechanical rules, and how inspire such studious application to books in his pupils?

It is upon the principle underlying all government—human and divine, namely, individual responsibility and mutual rights. The first makes the personal man act truly in all matters involving his individual obligations and interests, and the second secures the rights of others, in so far as his obligations to them are concerned.

No mechanical statute or rod held in terroren over the heads of pupils could bring these results to pass, "make the tree good and the fruit will be good, the Master taught.

"The fear o' hell's the hangman's whip
To haud the wretch in order
But when you feel your honor grip
Let that ay be your border."

The sentiment of Scotia's sweet singer is the law of Prof. Woolwine's school, hence his success. The pupils appear to be on their honor to behave well, and they prosecute their studies like intelligent creatures, and not like "dumb driven cattle." In these remarks, of course no invidious comparison with others is designed. As a delighted patron of Prof. Woolwine's school, I write of that in the abstract, and of that school only.

Respectfully,

J. D. BARBEE.

FACTS ABOUT COLUMBUS,

OBTAINED MOSTLY FROM ACTUAL OBSERVATION, DURING OUR CANVASS FOR THE CITY DIRECTORY.

We find a good system of public schools, white and colored, and several private male and female educational institutions.

Churches are numerous, and comprise many handsome specimens of architecture.

No healthier location can be found. The sanitary condition is excellent, and the mortality is surprisingly small.

Transportation facilities are afforded, both by rail and river, in all directions; and are undoubtedly a most important factor in the present prosperity, and will assist greatly the bright future which is certainly in store.

The extent of the trade and commerce is very extensive, and we regret that we are unable in this volume to give exact figures.

The financial condition of Columbus is excellent. The bonded debt is less than half a million dollars, and the value of taxable property has increased steadily.

The population of Columbus, according to the U. S. census of 1870, was 7,401; in 1880 it was 10,123, and it now has, including its suburbs, a population of 30,864, which is, even as we write, steadily increasing.

The annual receipts of cotton amount to about 75,000 bales.

Many of the nation's prominent men claim Columbus as their birth place, and socially and as a city of homes it is unrivalled.

The city is well laid out and well numbered. Some of its buildings show a superior style of architecture, and the city has a substantial, solid look about it, besides being as pretty a place as one would wish to see.

The most noticeable feature about the city, however, is the manufacturing element. All the old mills have been immensely enlarged and new ones erected. The number of hands employed and amount of wages paid is increasing week by week, and that the products find a ready market is evidenced by the fact that although all the mills are working up to their full capacity, they still have orders all the way from a month to three months ahead.

Lastly, we have failed to find a single important feature which merits condemnation.

Instructions to Key Holders.

When you open the box, you will see a lever, which pull down once only and let it go. This is all that is required, the number of the box so pulled will be immediately struck on the Engine House gongs and the fire bell. Should the alarm be turned on from box 15, the bell will strike one; then an intermission of 10 seconds; then strike five; then an intermission of 30 seconds, when the alarm will be repeated in the same manner. If it should be turned in from box 5, then the bell strikes five in succession; then an intermission of 30 seconds, and again repeat the alarm. Should you wish to repeat the alarm, wait until the number of the box has been rung four times, then pull the lever down again. But in no case pull in an alarm while another is being rung. After pulling in an alarm, remain at the box to direct the department to the fire.

SPECIAL SIGNALS.

One stroke of the bell will denote 12 M. Three strokes, fire out. Four strokes, fire near Chief Engineer's house. Twelve strokes, large fire, every member of the department needed.

MILITARY.

COLUMBUS GUARDS.

Captain, S P Gilbert.
1st Lieutenant, J S Harrison.
2d Lieutenant, William Hunter.

Organized in 1834. Soon thereafter they engaged in the Indian War, serving with great valor throughout the entire war, in the engagements in this State and in Florida.

They were among the first to respond to the call of the United States for volunteers in the Mexican War of 1848, when they added additional lustre to their fame.

In 1861 they entered the Confederate service, and were prominent in over 30 of the chief battles, ending at Appomattox, April 9th, 1865. When this war closed all had been killed or had died from disease, save thirteen.

They have always been recognized as one of the crack drill companies of Georgia, and in 1884 they won a high distinction in the Inter-State drill at Houston, Texas.

They now have seventy-five members, and are flourishing.

THE CITY LIGHT GUARDS.

MAX BANNER, Captain. (35 members).

Were organized on June 28, 1846, under the following commanding officers:

Captain, A H Cooper; 1st Lieut, D P Ellis; 2d Lieut, A G Redd; 3d Lieut, S K Hodges.

On April 29, 1861, they enlisted in the Southern cause, were engaged at Sewell's Point, were re-organized in 1862, and became part of the Great Army of Northern Virginia, taking part in the battles around Richmond. Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Wilderness, Gettysburg, Petersburg, Fawnville, etc., suffering severely and finally surrendered with General Robert E. Lee at the fatal Appomattox C. H., the first and only time the company surrendered during the war.

The members of this company having gained an enviable reputation in the service of their country when the smoke of battle was over returned with equal energy to the quiet pursuits of life and are all to-day active and useful members of society, endeavoring to place themselves and section in their former condition of prosperity.
