ALBANY, OREGON

Introductory.

The following pages are the result of an effort to give to the people of Albany a city directory that is at once complete and inexpensive. To this end a great deal of miscellaneous information usually incorporated in books of this kind has been eliminated and more effort put forth to make the directory itself more accurate and complete than is usually the case.

Albany is one of the most progressive and enterprising cities of Oregon, the business houses and private homes comparing favorably with those of any of the cities of equal or greater size on the coast. As this book goes to press the city is taking one of the most important forward steps that any community can take, namely, the improvement of its streets, and it is gratifying to be able to announce that in this improvement the city is showing the wisdom of its people in adopting the system that is universally recognized as the best, the bitulithic process of the Warren Construction Company, for the entire mileage to be improved this coming year.

The population of Albany is in round numbers 5700. This number is not the guess of any individual or the result of any method or system of computation but the result of a careful census which showed between 5650 and 5700 and may be relied upon as being correct.

Church organizations appear in the regular alphabetical division of the book while fraternal and secret organizations appear together under the general classification of Fraternal Societies.

The publishers desire to thank the business element of the community for the generous patronage that has enabled them to publish the book successfully, and take this occasion to announce that the next issue will appear, as promised, two years hence.
