

CHARGE BY A COW.—The Brownsville (Texas) Ranchero tells an amusing story of a charge made by a cow upon the fortifications of 'heroic Matamoras.' Some wages of Cortinas' command caught the cow, and dressing her up in a fantastic manner in raw hides, old tin pans and sheet iron started her off at the top of her speed towards the city. With a noise like thunder, she rushed madly to the very ditch of the works, when Santando's braves, thinking by the clatter that a brigade of cavalry was charging the fort, fired a few shots, and deserting their guns, fled ingloriously to the town plaza. It was several hours before they could be led back to the fort. Those chivalrous Mexicans richly deserve the title of cowards.

KEEPING FOWLS.—Mr. Albert C. Vose, near Mannville R. I., pursues what seems to us a reasonable and profitable course in keeping fowls. He has enclosed an acre and a quarter of land with a high fence; and in this enclosure he keeps about a hundred and fifty hens. He informs us that during nine months of the year these fowls give a net profit of two dollars per day, or say five hundred dollars per year. Is not this keeping fowls to some advantage? In Mr. Vose's enclosure is a running stream and fruit trees. The trees afford shade, while their fruit-bearing is improved by the fowls.—Woonsocket Patriot.

At Albany on Wednesday last a little boy named Hogan was playing among some empty potato barrels with three or four other children. He got into one of them feet foremost, and his innocent companions playfully raised the barrel upon its end, thus placing the boy upon his head. In this position he was left until the blood rushed to his head and his face had become black from the cause. When removed he was taken to his home, but died in a few hours afterwards.

GOOD ADVICE.—Husband—'Mary, my love, this apple dumpling is not half done.' Wife—'Well, finish it then, my dear.'

An Irish laborer recently entered a public-house, and called for half a pint of whiskey. 'Where's your bottle?' asked the barman, when he filled the pewter measure. 'Meself is my bottle,' was the reply; 'I'll carry it inside of me!' The man of whiskey stared, but passed over the utensil. The labourer drained it to the last drop. He came back in about an hour. 'That half-pint of whiskey is very lonesome,' said he; 'give me another to keep him company.' Another was given him, and he drank it. At three o'clock the same afternoon he came again to the whiskey seller. 'Them two half-pints is quarrellin',' he said—'raisin' a disturbance inside of me; let me have another half-pint to separate them.' He drank it; and then ended his night in a police station.

'Miss A—, what is your opinion of the weather? I think it intends to clear. Do you agree with me?' 'I do, indeed, and wish some folks would follow the weather's example, and clear, too.' Mr. B— seized his hat, and has not been seen in that street since.

Professor Marsh, of Yale College, pronounces the fossils recently found at Cohen, N. Y., the bones of a female mastodon, of full growth, though comparatively young, and says that the animal must have existed over ten thousand years ago.

It is a fact not generally known that Washington drew his last breath in the last hour of the last day of the last week, in the last month of the year, and in the last year of the century—Saturday night 12 o'clock, December 31, 1799.

Plumbago is found in great quantities in the Township of Templeton, on the Ottawa, and fifteen thousand dollars have, it is said, been offered for a lot of land there.

TERRIBLE CALAMITY.—A terrible calamity occurred at Memphis on the 19th. The confectionary establishment of Joseph Specht, No. 36, Madison street, took fire between three and four o'clock. About 25 persons were asleep in the third and fourth stories of the building. Fourteen persons were suffocated in their rooms or lost their lives attempting to escape by leaping from the windows.

How FORTUNE BURNED A MAN.—The old proverb that a fool and his money are soon parted, has an odd case more forcibly illustrated than in the case of Johnny Steel, lately the young prince of the Westgate, N. Y., oil region. His aunt, the widow of McClellan, owner of the rich oil farm which bears her name, died in 1861, leaving her nephew then 30 years old $100,000 in greenbacks, $20,000 in gold, and the farm, which yielded an average daily income of $20,000. The young fellow, who had inherited her wealth, was ruined by his good—was about to say well-fortune, and plunged in all kinds of speculations, and a ready prey to gamblers. John Norrisky alias Winans from his $100,000 in two nights. The largest estate real estate in the country is only $100,000 in value. He considered himself on his own; bought jewelry and carriages to give them away, and buying up all in his way in a company of minerals. His race and fall ought to give a lesson to other young lairs, but human nature is the same now as it has ever been. Every rodful of earth in this life for himself, and will be pretty soon, in doing so, to come to the banks at last.

BEAVER MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

THIS Association conducts its business with a great economy, and its rates are remarkably low. It insures farm property for three years or less. A premium note is taken of from 1 to 24 per cent, according to the nature of the risk. One-sixth is payable thereon in cash, and arrangements are made as necessary calls for them. To avoid unnecessary insurance may pay a fixed sum in cash, and receive a full discharge for the term covered by the policy. The Beaver is evidently growing into public favor, and doing a rapidly increasing business. The directors are thoroughly practical agriculturists and trustworthy men of business. The recovery of claims for losses is well guaranteed. It is essentially a Farmer's Insurance Company, and we take pleasure in commending it to our readers as a good and sound institution, affording unusual encouragement to the discharge of a duty which every owner of property owes to himself and those dependent on him.—Canada Farmer, Sep. 1, 1866.

BIRTH.

At Paisley, on the 31st January, the wife of Mr. John Cummings of a daughter.

CAVITIES AND CRIMOLINE.—It appears that in South Africa the infestation, anxiously bent on the morals and manners of their converts, and not knowing much about their sanitary warfare, insist, properly enough, on some addition to the usual somewhat tight costume, and to this end administer a quantity of flabby cotton garters. Now if the remnants of the old-fashioned Caffro, or the dried him or herself by the fire of the kral, and all is right again; but the single cling vest of cotton, garment, never changed, brings on consumption, rheumatism, and all sorts of woe. Civilization ill understood is murderous.

SUSPENDED.—The Ottawa Post, on evening daily, published at Ottawa, has suspended. The material of the establishment has been purchased by the proprietors of the Toronto Telegraph. The Citizen says the decision of the Post was due to that system of competition without regard to business principles, which is almost certain to result disastrously wherever practised.

The Fenian Raucals.

Our neighbors in Canada are enjoying a quiet at present, and an immunity from the dread of a Fenian invasion, which they have not had for a year past. That branch of the Fenian organization whose patriotic duty it was to despoil and slaughter them as a means of overthrowing the British Government, has been so quiet for the last three months that everybody supposes it to be quite dead. Roberts fulminates no more sanguinary proclamations; we hear of no warlike preparations at his headquarters; and he has no new plans of invasion published in the newspapers. Even the contributions, we understand, have ceased to flow into his coffers, and such an apathy has come over his followers as might be supposed to follow the fearful excitement in which he so long kept them. The shameful traitor has meted out to the poor prisoner Lynch and others, incarcerated in Canada, and the outrageous way in which the unhappy wretches are now spoken of by the Fenian organs which bounded them on, have disgusted all decent and generous Irish men and women, and turned a strong tide of feeling against Roberts and his gang. We judge the people of Canada have heard the last of them, and we congratulate our long-hairied neighbors upon the fact.—N. Y. Times.

Review of Coadjutor's Edition.

It has transpired at Montreal, that by directions from England, the death sentences upon the Fenian have been commuted to terms of imprisonment in the Penitentiary. The prisoners at Newburg have been removed to Kingston, and doubtless those at Toronto will speedily follow.

The Cattle Plague Again.

The Times regrets to say that the cattle plague is once more assuming an unwelcome prominence. The experience of all other countries warranted the commission in their expectation that a return of the disease, more or less serious, might be expected in the winter months. The minute particles by which contagion is communicated, when placed in sheltered situations and protected from sun and rain, retain their deleterious qualities for a time incredibly long. When the cattle come to be placed close together in sheds, the disease must be expected to appear in its original malignity, and requires just as much care and anxious attention.

The Indian Massacre.

A despatch received at the Army Headquarters, Washington, confirms the statement that a horrible massacre was perpetrated by the Indians on the 21st ult., near Fort Kearney. The statement is that "Brevet-Colonel Drummond, of the 18th infantry, with ninety-one enlisted men of the Second cavalry and Eighteenth infantry, were surrounded by Indians and every officer and man killed." This horrible atrocity naturally excites the greatest indignation in the United States, and our neighbors forget all their own sins against the Indians, and contemplating the cold-blooded murder of their unfortunate countrymen.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11, 1867.

A Police is announced to take place in St. Andrew's Church, Paisley, on the evening of Thursday, 17th inst., in aid of the liquidation of the debt on said church.

We are requested to state that the annual meeting of the members and adherents of St. Andrew's congregation, Paisley, will be held in the Church on Wednesday the 18th inst. A full attendance is requested.

The enterprising publishers of the Verge Constitution have discontinued that paper, and commenced a semi-weekly paper with the title of the Verge News & Advertiser. We have received the first number, which has language news of the same day.

We were requested to direct attention to the new advertisement of Kergus & Co. It is in language so gross and so full of abuse, that we cannot do otherwise than to call the attention of our readers to it.

Red River.—An important public meeting was lately held at Fort Gary, at which resolutions were passed to memorialize the Imperial Government to establish a crown railway at Red River, also for the Lake Superior route to be opened up, and to be joined to the British American Confederation.

Mr. John V. Dutton is elected mayor of Guelph, and Mr. Robert Gibbons, re-elected.

Dr. H. L. Laver was elected school trustee at the annual meeting of the United school section, Paisley, on Wednesday last. The board now consists of James Blair and McEwen and Dr. McLellan.

The Education Question.—An article in the Kingston Daily News indicates that the Education Question is the great difficulty with the Confederation delegates in London. That paper says that it would appear that the Canadian delegates have made up their minds either to present a petition for their church or to oppose confederation in case they fail. The News thinks the people of Upper Canada will have to appeal to the Imperial Parliament by petition to prevent this arrangement. What now is the position (asks the News) of the Canadian government and Confederation delegates who have brought the petition? It is somewhat curious, however, that matters have come to this in a few months, and confederation in some shape accomplished, at the wonderful house of debate erected by the public men of our day.

Elderly Election.

The contest in Eldersville was a spirited one, the interest, however, lying mainly in a selection of deputy clerk, Mr. W. C. Bruce being elected by a large majority. Although a few votes were polled for Mr. Elliott as clerk, it was not understood that he was running, he being, we understand, disqualified, on account of having a contract with the contractor. It will be seen that only two of the late members of the council are returned—namely, Messrs John Gillies and Ned McKeehan.

In the evening, after the election was over, something nearly approaching a row occurred opposite the school House. A large crowd being assembled, in the midst of which was Mr. Brown, late inspector of roads, general financier of the township, &c., several individuals accusing him of being the author of the resolution of the latter which was published in the Herald last week. This he denied most emphatically, which probably saved him from maltreatment, as much indignation was evinced in the community by the publication of said letter. He, however, gave a very broad hint that he knew who the author was, and that he was a prominent member of the county council!

We have heard many complaints of the petty and malicious spirit shown by the returning officer in the election. If there is any particular qualification one required than another to fill a man for the duties of clerk, it is that of impartiality and fairness to all parties at contested elections. He is placed in a most responsible position, and cannot be too sufficiently impartial and guarded in the performance of his duties. Some eight or nine persons of the Municipality, residing in Paisley, were not allowed to record their votes, although fully qualified according to law, and two or three of their large holders of property. Not only this, but their names were contained in a list of qualified voters furnished to one of the candidates by the clerk as late as the 3rd of January, and certified by him to be correct. In the meantime, however, we presume, the clerk had been instructed that these parties were expected to vote, and therefore their names were struck off the list. The disqualified electors being only those who were expected to vote against the clerk's friends. Mr. Urquhart's conduct does not admit of any excuse or palliation.

The cable reports further arrests at Dublin of supposed Fenian emissaries from America. The burning of the steamer "Fashion" on the Mississippi resulted in a frightful loss of life. There were between 850 and 400 persons on board, and all were lost, except 80.

The Bruce Herald for Mr. Bruce.

The Bruce Herald has again commenced its ill-fated work of publishing anonymous and cowardly letters from Eldersville (namely, one of which appeared in the last number, showing in gross falsehoods and unbecoming insinuations against Mr. Bruce. It is well for the cowardly writers of these letters that they manage to preserve their anonymity, or the township could be too hot to hold them. The writing of anonymous letters to newspapers attacking the private character of public men is one of the worst forms of immorality, as they seldom possess a grain of truth to build their leadership. As a general thing they are not worthy of notice, and are not believed by the public, their insinuations character and insinuations being so grossly untrue as to excite only contempt and indignation. It is impossible to conceive the character of the man who can thus stoop to slander and malign his neighbors and better men than themselves—let coming boldly forward, but seeking around with their lying, malicious tongues and pen to strike the public mind. We are persuaded Mr. Bruce would not have stooped to notice the rubbish alluded to at all had not a celebrated physician being near at hand, and documentary evidence being furnished, furnishing a dispute in a conclusive manner the statements made by the writer in the Herald.

We publish below the address issued by Mr. Bruce previous to the municipal election at his request.

London, Jan. 6.—The most severe and heaviest snow-storm for many years has just visited us. The principal means of travel, and communication for trade purposes, is through the underground railroad. The poor of the city suffer very much. Several accidents have taken place, and old London presents the appearance of a city in the Arctic regions, with the additional disadvantage that it is enveloped in the dense-winter fog only known in this latitude.

received this morning, and referring probably to the same battle, says that the Turks claim a great victory, and the almost entire demolition of the insurgent army. We do not believe this Turkish account. The people of Crete have improved since the day when "one of themselves, even a prophet of their own, said, the Crete are always liars." With reference to the battles in the present conflict, the accounts from Crete have proved to be correct, while the Turks have been the liars.

The English papers announce the death of Rev. Dr. Hincks, an eminent oriental scholar and antiquary, and brother of the Hon Francis Hincks. He Hincks has been Rector of Kill-leagh, County Down, Ireland, since 1836.

ENGLISH POLITICS.—If any reliance can be placed upon the political news from England, a hostile vote towards the Derby administration and a dissolution of Parliament will be among the earliest incidents of the coming session. In such case Confederation would lie over for some weeks, if indeed it could be got through at all this year.

THE CONFEDERATION BILL.—The London correspondent of the Miner, in a recent letter, after mentioning that the Imperial Parliament was expected to meet on the 3th February says:

"This date, you will perceive, is somewhat distant, and I have reason to believe that confederation cannot be finally adopted by Parliament before the lapse of three or four months. According to this reckoning, confederation cannot be proclaimed in Canada until the month of May. Several important sessions will come up for discussion at the opening of Parliament, and two of these which cannot be postponed—Parliamentary Reform and Fenianism—will be apt to take precedence of the Confederation scheme."

Some further particulars have come to hand of the horrid barbarities indicated by the Germans on the crew of the American schooner "General Sherman," as briefly noticed by telegraph a short time ago. The master and crew, along with two English gentlemen—Mr. Thomas and Mr. Hugarth by name, were "rotated to death" by order either of the King of the Germans or his father,—it is not certain which. The unhappy victims of this Fenian outrage were tied down to their berths, and the ship thereafter set on fire. The French Admiral in the Chinese sea intends to visit the barbarians with condign punishment, and it is hoped the British Government will give him their aid.

An official report states that the Atlantic Cable has not more than a quarter of the business it is capable of doing. The company will have to reduce their charges still further. It is calculated that a flash is transmitted from end to end of the cable in thirty-five hundredths of a second. If this estimate be correct, electricity travels more slowly than light, which, astronomers tell us, goes one hundred and eighty thousand miles in a second.

He then came to Canada, and became Principal of Toronto Academy, an institution connected with Knox's College. Mr. Smith was a graduate of King's College, Aberdeen.

Websterian Reminiscence.

Among the number of items of American gossip in one of the English magazines occurs a rather pungent set of anecdotes of the late Daniel Webster. It has a strong British coloring, and there is, probably, only a shade of truth in it.

"Mr. Webster's unequalled reputation for eloquence led to his being made, on every possible occasion, the orator of public and political gatherings and dinners. At these he talked, in the aggregate, as much as any non-sensuous man has been uttered by any other American. At the political dinners of which he was very fond, he almost invariably became tired before his speech time arrived; and some of his most admired after-dinner speeches were the composition of friendly reporters. On one occasion he had to be prompted by a friend who sat just behind him, and gave him, successfully, phrasal and topical. The speech proceeded nearly after this fashion: Prompter—'Tariff! Webster—The tariff, gentlemen, is a subject requiring the profound attention of the statesman. American industry, gentlemen, must be, must be, must be a little'—Prompter—'National debt.' Webster—'And, gentlemen, there's the national debt—it should be paid [loud cheer, which rouse the speaker]; yes, gentlemen, it shall be paid [cheers]—and if it shan't be [taking out his pocket-book]—I'll pay it myself! How much is it?' This last question was asked of a gentleman near him, with drunken seriousness, and coupled with the well-known impetuosity of Webster's pocket-book, excited roars of laughter, amidst which the orator sank into his seat and was soon asleep.

"At a great dinner given in Rochester, N. Y., which is built near the Geneva Falls, Webster made a speech, of which, like that quoted above, no report or account has hitherto appeared in print. It was curious that, while wine affected his thought, it did not alter his voice nor weaken his knees. On the occasion at Rochester, his speech, delivered before a large auditory, was very brief, and ran thus: 'Men of Rochester, I am glad to see you; I am glad to see your noble city. Gentlemen, I saw your Falls, which I am told are one hundred and fifty feet high. That is a very interesting fact. Gentlemen, Rome had her Caesar her Scipio, her Brutus; but Rome in her proudest days had never a waterfall a hundred and fifty feet high! Gentlemen, Greece had her Pericles, her Demosthenes and her Socrates, but Greece in her palmy days never had a waterfall a hundred and fifty feet high! Men of Rochester, go on! No people ever lost their liberties who had a waterfall a hundred and fifty feet high.'

"DINNER to the DELEGATES.—The London Times of the 10th has a report of a dinner given by the Canada Club to the Colonial Delegates on the 9th. Lord Carnarvon delivered a speech of considerable length, for which we are unable to find room to-day. He took care to avoid committing the Government in any way, but concluded by saying, 'that the whole question of the Confederation of the North American Provinces, was under the consideration of the Government, and that whatever measure in their opinion would tend to make those Provinces at once more competent and more powerful, would secure not only their warmest sympathy, but most zealous support.

Bruce County Council.

The Reeve and Deputies from the different townships met in the Court House on Tuesday, the 29th instant, about 8 o'clock in the evening. The following are the names and townships to which they belong:—

- REEVE, DEPUTY. Amabel & Albanee, Jas. Allan. Arran—A. Freeborn, J. Monkman. Beaufort—J. Hecoboth, T. Wilson. Bruce—J. D. McElaine, J. H. Colford. Carleton—A. McFarlane, J. S. Roper. Kincardine—Wm. Miller, J. P. McFarlane. Huron—John Gillies, W. C. Bruce. Lincoln—John Good, John Smith. Simpson—Jan Howard, Joe Stafford. Kintore—Richard Burns. Greenock—Robert Pinkerton. Kincardine, York—W. Russell. Southampton—Thos. Adair.

"The above named gentlemen having had the credentials to the clerk, took their seats. The clerk having taken the chair informed the council that the first duty they had to perform was to elect a Warden. It was moved by Mr. Adair, and seconded by Mr. Allan, that Mr. Bruce be elected Warden. Moved in amendment by Mr. Pinkerton, seconded by Mr. Burns, that Mr. Russell be Warden. The vote stood as follows:—Mr. Bruce, 10; Mr. Allan, 8; Mr. McFarlane, 7; Mr. Allan, 6; Mr. McFarlane, 5; Mr. Allan, 4; Mr. McFarlane, 3; Mr. Allan, 2; Mr. McFarlane, 1. Mr. Bruce was accordingly elected. Having taken the oath of office, and the minutes of last meeting being read and approved, the council adjourned till the 12th inst. 'Allow me to thank you for the confidence you have again placed in me by choosing me to preside over you for another year. I trust that your favor is all the more grateful to me as it is entirely undesired by me. For other gentlemen who are nominated to the office, as well qualified to discharge its duties as I am, and had I been elected would no doubt have done so. It is my hope that the council will in all of its proceedings be guided by the same high and noble principles as those which have guided you on this occasion, and that the long struggle over the county taxes matter has been brought to an end. The taxes have been increasing for some years, because of the increase in the value of the buildings and the improvement making in our roads and harbors. It will be your aim to make, if possible, the taxes appropriated for these purposes a complete self-sufficiency, so that at least no more taxes will be necessary. There is still a deficiency owing, which is required to be supplied from any other buildings; grants of aid for the erection of drill sheds will also be granted, but the present grant put at the end of the latter. He had reason to believe, from the opinion which had been given, that the government would give $20,000 of the amount of the extra work and charges which the inspectors had raised to be made in the next year. An action had not been taken to furnish the Court House, which would have to be attended to. While it was desirable to furnish the office of the officials to a suitable and substantial manner, there was no necessity for extra expenditure. At last meeting he was instructed by the Council to correspond with the Montreal Telegraph Company, in regard to the telegraph communication through the county. He was informed by the Company that it was not intended to run the line through the winter. This agent has been here, and visited several of the villages, and made an effort to construct a telegraph on the poles being found. It was his hope for them to say, when the matter came before them, what assistance they would give. He had no doubt but that it would be for the benefit of the county to have it erected. The Council on adjourned, when at 10 o'clock he had ordered half the quantity of building that was required. There were all the matters he remembered, which he thought it necessary to call their attention to. And he had no doubt to say that once they had elected him to preside over them, he would be glad to do what depended on his own skill and experience in conducting the business of the county. With these remarks he would have the matter in their own hands. Moved by Mr. Adair, seconded by Mr. Russell, that Mr. John Howard of Southampton, be appointed one of the auditors. The Warden named Mr. Collins, of Southampton, as the clerk. It was moved, seconded, and carried, that a committee of five be appointed for the purpose of striking the standing committees. The names of the gentlemen selected were Messrs. Gillies, Russell, McElaine, Adair, and Burns. An account from Mr. Blair, for two stores, was referred to Finance Committee. The Council then adjourned, to meet on the following morning at 10 o'clock.

"Several other accounts read and referred to Finance Committee. Report from Messrs. P. B. Ford and Fraser, School Superintendents, received, read, and referred to School Committee. Application of Mr. Adams, for the office of Superintendent of Schools for the townships of Huron, Kincardine and Lincoln, read, and referred to School Committee. Application of Mr. Maitland, for the office of Superintendent of schools for the townships of Bruce, Kincardine, Huron and Lincoln, read, and referred to School Committee. Dr. A. Blair and company applied for the office of J. B. Sargeant. The latter was appointed. Moved by Mr. Russell, seconded by Mr. Adair, that minutes for appointments till last year be not now made, but that all applications on papers connected therewith be referred to Finance Committee. Carried.

"A letter was read from the Treasurer of Huron, in reference to the Bruce gravel road moneys in his hands. These were $28 in way of debentures for which he had received $69 96 cents. The last $40 00 cent he had paid on his bill, and there was for making total $11,000, which he recommended to be repaid. There were five applications for Inspector of the Inspectors, namely, Messrs. Adams, Thomas Wilson from township of Huron, A. B. Mackintosh, G. Stewart, and H. Harkley. The latter withdrew his application. Benson received the appointment. A petition from the people of Arran, asking the Council for a grant of money for the erection of a drill shed for the volunteers was referred to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Russell, Bruce, Freeborn and Adair. An application from Mr. Richardson for Court House keeper was received and read. A motion was submitted by Messrs. Adair and Rowland, instructing the Engineer to take steps for the reletting of section No. 7 of gravel roads. Mr. Adair explained that his object was simply to have this matter brought before the committee to report upon, and all that he desired was that it should be referred to them. He had no wish to deal harshly with any individual. He thought that, in justice to the other contractors who had made an effort to complete their work at great cost, this dilatoriness on the part of some should not be allowed. He was surprised at Mr. Bruce, at Merchant of Paisley, objecting to the motion, knowing the great loss that had been sustained by some of the people there on account of the backward state of this section of road. Mr. Bruce did not see the justice of making a personal matter of this. There were several sections of road as bad as this one, and why select this particular one? Let the whole matter be brought forward, and if Mr. Ordner is found to be the only defaulter, then let him be dealt with.

Mr. Gillies thought that Mr. Adair was a little too fast in this matter. He had papers with him which he had intended to lay before the committee at Goderich at the last meeting, but it was thought better not to do so until separation took place. The motion was withdrawn on the understanding that the gravel-road committee would report on the matter.

Moved by Mr. Allan, seconded by Mr. Rowland, that the Engineer be required to report to this Council not later than to-morrow what deviations he intends to make, and if they are approved of by this Council that the necessary steps be taken to have them legalized.

Moved by Mr. Allan, seconded by Mr. Rowland, that the Engineer be requested to gravel that portion of road situated in the county of Grey, running through the half mile strip, to connect the northern road with the county of Grey gravel road, provided that the County Council of Grey pay one-half of said expenditure, the cost of the whole not to exceed $200.

Several motions were made for the appointment of School Superintendents, viz:—Mr. Ball, Amabel and Albanee; Dr. Francis, Arran; Mr. Fraser, townships of Bruce, Kincardine, Huron and Lincoln; Mr. Ekeford, townships of Saugeen, Greenock, Huron, Carleton and Colborne. Referred to School Committee.

A motion was made by Mr. Miller, instructing the Engineer to make an approach to a road leading to the village of Kincardine, which had been obstructed by some work done on the gravel road. Referred to Gravel Road Committee.

Moved by Mr. Gillies, seconded by Mr. Good, that applications be received till 10 o'clock to-morrow for the office of clerk of the Council.—Last, 7 to 15.

Moved by Mr. Thomas Wilson and seconded by Mr. Monkman, that the present Clerk be retained.—Yes 11, nay 12, the Warden voting with the nays.

Moved by Mr. Robert Pinkerton, seconded by Mr. Bruce, that Mr. Fraser be appointed Clerk. Moved in amendment by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Purvis, that Mr. McLellan be Clerk. Moved in amendment by Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Ritor, that Joshua Jamieson be Clerk. Moved in amendment by Mr. Freeborn, seconded by Mr. Monkman, that George Gould be Clerk.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Parsill, seconded by Mr. Clerk, that Edmund Savage be Clerk. Moved by Mr. Fraser, 6, McLennan 3, Jamieson 2, Gould 6, Savage 6, 2nd vote—Fraser 5, McLennan 3, Gould 7, Savage 7. 3rd vote—Fraser 6, Gould 0, Savage 10.

Moved by Mr. McLellan, seconded by Mr. Miller concerning damage to Widow McIntosh by change of water-course, and praying for $100 as compensation.

PAISLEY ADVOCATE.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1867.

Our stock of paper for the Advocate is not being cut here, we have thought it better to have the paper in its present form rather than not at all.

Mr. G. W. Malloch has been appointed commissioner for taking affidavits in this county, the separation of the counties having, we understand, made it necessary for commissioners to be re-appointed by the Court of Queen's Bench, before they can set at work.

A Division Court was held at Paisley on the 29th inst. Judge Kingmill presiding. There were but few cases on the court. The new judge is highly spoken of, and the business of the court promises to be conducted in a more orderly manner and better attended to than formerly.

Mr. Montanin will give a scientific lecture and exhibition at Seaboard Hall, Paisley, on Monday evening next.

Shaw Brown.—Up to within a few days ago, snow fell continually for several days together, without very cold weather. From Southampton and Fort Elgin we learned that the roads were impassable for loads of teams for a few days, on account of the drifts. It commenced to thaw last night.

The Paisley company of volunteers were called out for inspection last week. About 15 attended the muster. Major Hutton presided over the muster, and announced a government grant to the 2nd and 3rd companies of 300 dollars, which, added to the 200 dollars from the county council, ought to complete the building in good style.

The Representation of Huron and Bruce.

There is some talk of the probability of a session of the Canadian Parliament being held in April or May, to consider any important changes that may be made in the scheme of Confederation by the delegates now in London. Should such session be held, an election of a member to represent the Counties of Huron and Bruce would of necessity take place, as the seat is now vacant by the appointment of our late member to the Legislature of Huron.

In such case, the Government would no doubt endeavor to take the constituency by surprise so as to get in a man of their own soil. It is worth while, then, to be somewhat prepared, so that these popular Counties may be able to send a representative who will really and truly represent the views of the people. Under the present state of things, Radicalism and Conservatism are obsolete terms. The great question of the approaching election is not the other, but a corrupt combination organized to improve on the country a system of government without reference to the wishes or interests of the people. His enemies desire, then, if those enemies are to send another member to the present parliament, that such member should demand that no Confederation scheme shall become law until approved of either by a direct vote of the people or by a new parliament specially elected to decide on the merits of the scheme.

Twist the matter as you may, the only sound constitutional light to view the question is, in whose interests such importance, which was not granted up at all, at the last election, should not be carried out until submitted, for approval or rejection, to the people who are to live under it for well or for woe.

Bruce County Council.

A. Sprout has been appointed Treasurer at a salary of $800; I. H. Hamlin, engineer, $1150; Geo. Gould, clerk, $400; J. Brown, inspector of bridges and repairs. A resolution was passed by the council to give a bonus of $1000 to any party bringing for sale or to the county to the depth of 1000 feet, or deep enough to discover either. Should two companies commence operations the amount to be divided. The balance of $1432 left on hand of the sum total on account of the road is to be appropriated by a further sum of over $600, and given towards the drill shafts in the county. The balance of $1432 left on hand of the sum total on account of the road is to be appropriated by a further sum of over $600, and given towards the drill shafts in the county. The balance of $1432 left on hand of the sum total on account of the road is to be appropriated by a further sum of over $600, and given towards the drill shafts in the county.

Advices from Vera Cruz to the 19th inst. have been received. The embarkation of the French troops in Mexico, to return home, was proceeding, and the Liberals were advancing by easy roads towards the capital, sweeping everything before them. The French evacuation of the western cities was followed by the flight of the Mexican and French imperialists.

The Madoc Gold Regions.—The reports from the Madoc gold region are increasing in importance. The Richardson mine being mined into the hands of a new company, has been opened for the purpose of being thoroughly tested. The prospects are most flattering, they were expected to be very rich specimens of quartz have been discovered, which, it is stated, will yield several thousand dollars to the ton. There are here from Chicago and other American cities, parties themselves up in the gold regions of Belleville. Every acre of Crown land in Madoc has been bought up by speculators, and the lands in the adjoining townships are being gradually secured. Every indication is in the highest degree favorable.

The Great Fanning Well.—The Detroit Reporter says:—With a perfect indifference to market and price, the King fanning well continues to discharge 225 barrels of daily, through a tube which is three-fourths plugged. The bore is not more than half the depth that the fanning wells of Pibble were; and on this account it is considered the more extraordinary. Vast quantities of both oil and gas have in this instance been tapped, and supplies are probably kept up from the distance. The fortunate company have sought to do a little speculation, an agreeable duty certainly, for any time such a well is a fortune to the owners.

Straws show the current of the stream. The Stafford Heaton (whose editor has recently been in the company of the Canadian delegates) tells Ottawa and so be established if the seat of Government after confederation, is removed to Montreal.

Voting on Confederation.—The idea seems gaining ground that a ratification of the Confederation scheme by popular vote, or by a legislature specially selected with reference to the measure, should take place. The Hon. Mr. T. Ferguson, Esq., has been seen about the city of the county of Inverness by a majority of two votes.

Paris, Jan. 22. Telegrams from all departments of the empire express dissatisfaction with the proposed reforms in the policy of the government.

London, Jan. 24. Advices from Paris state that France is disgusted with the measures recently put forward by the Emperor Napoleon.

Paris, Jan. 23. Information has been received that the workmen are riotously assembled in the streets of Madrid. They clamor for bread. A serious outbreak is anticipated, and the government is taking measures to meet it.

Gold.—The Lindsay Advocate is informed, on what it considers good authority, that gold has been found—and that, too, in no insignificant quantities—in the townships of Ridout and Lutterworth, in the county of Victoria, and also in the township of Sherborne, on the Bobcaygeon Road, in the County of Peterboro.

The Holiday Distillery Case.—This now notorious case came up before the Court of Queen's Bench in Toronto, on Tuesday, in the form of a civil suit brought by the Government for the recovery of thirty cents per gallon on 300,000 gallons of whiskey of which Holiday is accused of defrauding the excise revenue, making a total sum of $90,000. The case was brought to a close on Wednesday night, by the jury returning a verdict for the Crown and $47,000 damages.

The Fenian trials continue to drag along slowly. Since our last Barney Dunn has been convicted and W. Orr, F. Fry, J. Hughes and J. Diamond acquitted.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A terrible accident happened on the farm of Mr. Robert Scott, Burnside, about four miles from Sonforth, in the township of McKillop, on Thursday, 17th inst. A thrashing machine was at work, and Mr. Scott while attending it, was carrying away a bag, when in stepping over the shaft his coat was caught around it, drawing him under it backward. He passed twice around the shaft before the horse could be stopped. On being removed his neck was found to be broken, death having, of course, ensued almost instantaneously. Deceased, Robert Scott, was father-in-law to Mr. Archibald Dickson, postmaster of Goderich. He was a highly respectable man and his sudden death in such a horrible manner has cast a gloom over the neighborhood.—Clinton News Era.

FATAL THRASHING ACCIDENT.—A melancholy and distressing accident, by which Mr. Samuel Reid, an intelligent and highly respected farmer of Mono, suddenly lost his life, occurred on the farm of his brother, Mr. Thus Reid, of West Mono, on Saturday last. The deceased happening to visit Orangeville on Saturday, called at his brother's on his return home in the evening, just as a party of thrashers had all but closed the operations of the day. The machine, however, was still in motion, and the deceased, while in the act of picking up some scattered ears and straw that lay on the floor, was caught by the coat tail in the knuckles of the tumbling shaft, round which he was wound several times before the motion of the shaft could be arrested. The deceased was horribly crushed and mangled, and died a few minutes after the accident. His sudden death will be deeply lamented by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, but more especially by his wife and family, with whom we sincerely sympathize in their deep bereavement.—Orangeville Star.

PROSPECTIVE ADDITIONS TO THE ROYAL FAMILY.—If Royal christenings can make a season brilliant, that of 1867 bears unusual promise. We learn that three additions to the Royal Family may be expected, it being probable that the Princess Christian in April, the Princess of Wales in March, and the Princess May in May, will each contribute a little stranger to the fast increasing list of the descendants of George III.

PUNS.—Advices by the 'Peruvian' indicate a decline in mackerel, cod, and fox, in the European markets. The following are the prices here:—Rats, 12s; Mink, 25.50; Martin, 31.25 to 31.50; Beaver, 31.25 per lb; Otter, 31.00 to 35.00; Fox, 31.25.—Montreal Witness.

Pres. Johnson seems to be in a rather helpless condition. The hills have lately become law without his sanction, the ten days required for either an approval or veto having elapsed without action. The one confers the suffrage on all persons in the territories without respect to colour, and the other repeals the pardoning power possessed by the President.

The Rev. Mr. Babin has been acquitted of the charge of murdering his sister. There is a mystery hanging over the case still that may never be cleared up.

The Babin Murder Case.

This will undoubtedly be one of the strange episodes of Canada, and a more mysterious one, we suppose, never came before a jury.

The facts, as elicited by the evidence, are briefly as follows:—Mr. Babin was a French Canadian, who, having been converted to Protestantism, was educated at Bishop's College, Lennoxville, became a minister of the Church of England, settled at Buckingham on the Lower Canada side of the Ottawa, and married into a highly respectable English family.

On the other hand, to suppose Mr. Babin guilty of the murder would be to imagine even greater depravity; for in his case there was the tie of near relationship as well as the advantage of high moral culture.

London, Feb 2. It is now said that the plans of the Government do not embrace the introduction of a Reform bill. The subject of Reform will be merely recommended.

Advices from the continent state that it is officially announced that Maximilian will remain in Mexico if the Congress of that country, now soon to assemble, will sustain him.

DEATH OF THE MOTHER OF GEN SWEENEY. Mr. Bryan Gallwey, Coroner, held an inquest on Monday last, on the body of a person named Honora Barrett. From the evidence it appeared that the deceased, who was a widow, was out on the streets on Saturday, and in her usual health, but had been drinking on the previous night. On Saturday night a woman named Kolly was called to deceased's room, and she found her dead. The deceased was much addicted to habits of intemperance, was twice married, and the mother of several children, one of whom is the celebrated Fenian Gen. Sweeney. Verdict—Death from congestion of the brain, accelerated by excessive drinking.—Cork Herald, Jan. 10.

THE IMPEACHMENT.—New York, Feb. 2.—The Times Washington special says:—The Judiciary Committee of the House have become satisfied that the testimony already adduced, including that of General Butler, is sufficient to warrant articles of impeachment against the President. This conclusion is based upon the testimony of Radicals only. There has been no testimony yet heard on behalf of the President, and when this is offered it may entirely change the minds of the Committee.

RESTORATION OF THE UNION.—The World's telegram says:—There is foundation for the reported new plan of restoration. The President has asked the views of leading Southerners, and he will submit to the 4th Congress in his Message a basis, which, it is thought, will commend itself to the liberal elements of the republican party.

The Mount Forest Examiner says that Mr Wm. Hewitt, of that village, recently killed a pig of less than seventeen months old, a cross between the Suffolk and large Berkshire breeds, which weighed when killed and dressed 526½ lbs. If any of our South Wellington pork raisers can beat this weight for age, we should like to hear of it.

The Tribune's telegram says:—General Ashley is busy working up the impeachment business. He has just come into possession of some very important facts, exceedingly damaging to the President.

The Guelph Advertiser 'pitches into' Brigade Major Barotto for his conduct at inspection of the Guelph companies on Saturday. Swearing and drunkenness are offences hinted at, besides unwarrantable military airs.

Moved by Mr. Bruce, seconded by Mr. Adair, That whereas from some oversight no appropriation was made in the gravel-road scheme to the town-line of Elderslie and Brant, be it therefore resolved that a grant of $2,000 be made by this Council towards improving the said line.—Referred to road and bridge committee.

Moved by Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Freeborn, That the sum of $1,000 be granted to improve sideline 25 in the townships of Arran and Elderslie, Brant and Carrick.—Referred to road and bridge committee.

Moved by Mr. Gillies, seconded by Mr. Adair, That whereas some dissatisfaction appears to exist respecting the manner in which the gravel road contracts were let and managed by the Council and Committee last year be it therefore resolved that a committee of five be appointed to investigate this matter from the commencement until date, said committee to consist of Messrs. Coullthard, Freeborn, Bruce, Parsill and Good, to report either at this or at the next session, as the Council may direct.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Adair, seconded by Mr. Allan, That the sum of $200 be granted for the purpose of erecting a lookup in the village of Southampton, provided an equal sum be granted by the said village, the look-up to be the property of the county. On a division ensuing there voted ye 9, nay 13.—Lost.

FRIDAY.

Council met at 7 p.m. Minutes read and adopted. A by-law was read requiring that the timber be cut down to a distance of 25 feet on each side of the gravelled roads. The object of this was to allow the sun to get at them, so that they might be kept as dry as possible. In the event of owners of land on these roads not complying with this by-law, the Engineer is instructed to see it carried out. The by-law was adopted.

An account was presented from Mr. Joseph Walker, for removing a portion of his fence off the line of the Durham road. Moved by Mr. Adair, seconded by Mr. Gillies, That this Council cannot pay Mr. Walker's account till he has carried out his agreement with it.—Carried.

A petition, signed by Joseph Walker and others, asking a grant of money from the Council for the construction of a bridge across the Snuggen at the west end of the village of Walkerton, was read.

Moved by Mr. Adair, seconded by Mr. Good, That the petition of Joseph Walker and others be filed.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Wilson seconded by Mr. Pinkerton, That 600 dollars be granted for the bridge referred to in said petition.

Mr. Pinkerton said that he had two reasons for seconding the amendment. The first was, he thought it hard that $600 could not get their motion brought before the Board for want of a seconder; and next, that in a centre of business like Walkerton, it was too bad to make the people build their bridges themselves.

The amendment was lost.

A motion was put and carried, instructing the Warden to procure the necessary weights and measures for the use of his Inspector.

The report of the County Assessment Committee was next taken up. It appeared of valuers for the county being appointed, as being the only way of getting a correct valuation of property in the county. It suggested the appointment of two competent men to that office, and that they report to the Council at its June meeting in 1868; and moreover, that the valuator be required to confine their labors to the summer season, so that a correct assessment may be obtained.

A division was expressed on the part of several members to hear the report discussed. The following amendment was moved by Mr. Facher, seconded by Mr. Parsill, That the report be not now acted upon, but left over till next session of Council.

Several members then spoke. The appointment of valuers was generally approved, though some doubts were expressed as to getting proper men. It was argued that the Equalization Committee had nothing to guide them in arriving at a just decision. The valuator of township assessors was not to be relied upon, and that they did wrong knowingly, but from a difference of opinion as to the value of property. Some examples were given of this.

It was, after some discussion, moved by Mr. Good, seconded by Mr. Rastall, That that part of the report recommending the appointment of valuers be not adopted, but that in this particular the report be amended, and that applications be received for valuers up to the June meeting of Council. The amendment was carried, and the report as amended, adopted.

Moved by Mr. Pinkerton, seconded by Mr. Stafford, That an action be taken at present in the granting of money for drill sheds, but that the Warden be instructed to petition the government for a sufficient sum for that purpose; that owing to the scarcity of the county, the improvements going on, and the poverty of the people, they were not in a position to grant money for this purpose.

After a good deal of discussion, there voted for the amendment Messrs. Pinkerton, Stafford, McLellan, Purvis, J. P. McLintyre, and Miller—7, and against it, 10. The report was then put and adopted.

A communication was read from the Treasurer, calling the attention of the Council to the additional work he had to perform last year, and asking for a fair remuneration. The letter was referred to the finance committee.

Council adjourned.

SATURDAY.

Council met at 9 a.m. Members all present. Minutes read and confirmed.

Report of Jail Committee was submitted. The committee found the jail room and comfortable. No prisoners were at present confined in the Jail. There was one insane person in it, and the committee recommended that steps be taken to have him removed to the asylum.—Report adopted.

Two reports of Road and Bridge Committee cannot recommend the expenditure of any moneys at present.—Report adopted.

Report of Finance Committee was next taken up. In reference to the letter of Mr. Stantoni, asking for the payment of an account, the committee observed that a former Council refused to give the amount asked for, and could not therefore recommend its payment. It recommended that a grant of $1,000 be given to any party or parties who would bore in any part of the county, provided the said party or parties struck. If two wells were to be sunk, they suggest that 800 dollars be given to the first and 400 dollars to the other. They cannot recommend a grant to laborers, as they have no control over them. They recommended that the Treasurer's remuneration be increased to 60,000 dollars, and that his salary of last year be increased 110 dollars, making it in all $250.

Council went into committee of the whole on the report, Mr. Rowand in the chair.

In reference to the item of Local Superintendent's salaries, it was moved by Mr. Brocbeban, seconded by Mr. Rastall, That all accounts in Finance report in regard to Local Superintendents be charged to Huron, said accounts having been raised by general assessment on the united counties for the year 1866.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Pinkerton, seconded by Mr. Stafford, That the clause referring to the oil boring be struck out.—Yeas, Messrs. Pinkerton, Purvis, Alex. McLintyre, Ruter—4. Lost.

Moved by Mr. Stafford, seconded by Mr. Allan, That the recommendation of the addition to Treasurer's salary be 150 dollars instead of 110 dollars—Nays, Messrs. Parsill, Pinkerton, McLellan, A. McLintyre, J. P. McLintyre, Miller, Bruce, Facher—9. Lost.

Report adopted.

Gravel Road Committee Report.—The report recommended that the short piece of road be gravelled which was to connect with the county of Grey gravel roads, provided that county bore half of the expense. That the embankment referred to by Mr. McLintyre, in Kincairdine village, be remedied by the Engineer if necessary, and that the obstructions to road near Mr. Sutton's mill be removed.

Council went into committee on the whole on the report of Mr. Parsill on the above.

In reference to a paragraph in the report on Mr. Simon Orchard a contract, Mr. Bruce moved that the committee proceed to let all unsatisfactory contracts, and not make a special case of Simon Orchard, or any other.

Mr. Bruce then said that the reason for the special action was because of the course taken by his securities.

Mr. Adair said that the committee had an interview with Mr. Orchard and his securities, but he would do nothing unless he was satisfied.

Mr. Bruce said he had no objection that the Council take a stand, but they must make it general and not special.

Mr. Gillies said that it was not unknown to this Board, by Spurge, as well as the statement of the engineer, that it was the best forward of any, and is not likely to be finished next year. There is not a contractor to the county who would be more industriously dealt with than Mr. Orchard, but he puts himself into such a position that it is impossible to do anything with him.

The amendment of Mr. Bruce did not get a seconder.

The report was then put and carried, Mr. Bruce alone voting aye.

Moved by Mr. Pinkerton, seconded by Mr. Rowand, That the Engineer be instructed to examine the line between the townships of Greenock, Bruce, and Kincairdine, and report to the Council at its June meeting the amount it would require to make same passable.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Adair, seconded by Mr. Good, That the Clerk be hereby instructed to be in attendance in his office one day in every two weeks, and that he notify the ratepayers what day he will be in attendance.

The Clerk was instructed to advertise for cordwood to supply the Co. Buildings.

The committee were unable to comply with the request of Mr. Collins, to grant a room in the Court House for Division Court office, there not being one to spare. The Jail Committee were recommended to meet soon, and procure such things as were necessary. In regard to the Registry Office, tenders for its construction are required by the June meeting. Report adopted.

The Clerk was requested to advertise in the local papers for tenders for the county printing.

The Council then adjourned, to meet again on the 15th Monday to June.—[Huron Herald.]

Consultation with the People.

[From the London Free Press.]

From the time of many resolvers, as well as the probability of the case, it appears likely that the Imperial Parliament will pass a Confederation measure subject to the approval of those concerned. If such should be the course adopted, it will be a very public one. For up to the present time the people have not been asked to pronounce upon the matter, though it may be freely accepted as a fact that a very large proportion of the people of Canada are altogether favorable to the measure, as far as it is understood. But this is not the case with all the Provinces. It is very questionable if either Prince Edward, Newfoundland or Nova Scotia will be found so entirely in favor of annexation to Canada as to make it wise to predicate such a measure. Besides, such a radical change should not be made in the constitution of any country, without giving the inhabitants of it the fullest opportunity of expressing their opinion in favor or against it, by means of a vote. Even Louis Napoleon, when seeking to annex Nice, and the other Provinces that had belonged to Italy, thought it best to consult the people; and having obtained their consent in a formal manner, no opening is left for any to say that the step was taken in opposition to the popular wish. If such a course is deemed best in municipal and absolute Europe, how much more necessary is constitutionally democratic Canada? The immediate success of the Confederation party would not compromise for the great while the adoption of the scheme without a consultation of the people would lead to a constitution being introduced to last, and be the groundwork of political progress, the well-appointed gateway of national prosperity, should not be laid upon western ground, but have its foundations so equalized and prepared that no crack may subsequently appear in the walls of the structure. And one of the first conditions we hold to be an unequalled popular assent on the part of all those concerned to the proposal. We trust, therefore, that those forwarding rumors may truly anticipate the event, and that such a measure of Confederation may be submitted to the people as will leave ample scope for the future while meeting the requirements of the present.

Am Inquisitive Scotchman.

It is a common accusation against the Americans that they are the most inquisitive people in the world. The charge has some weight, but is entirely too broad. We have an instance in an incident, not new but none the worse for that, which occurred in Scotland. Two gentlemen fell in together, both travelling on horseback, and strangers to each other, when the following conversation took place:—'Raw evening, sir, rather,' observed the one with an Aberdeen accent.—'Yes, rather,' replied the other. 'You will likely be a stranger in those parts?' continued the Aberdonian. 'If I can,' laconically replied the other, looking, the meantime, neither to the right nor to the left. 'Perhaps, like myself you may be on your way to Banff?' 'Perhaps,' responded the other yawning. 'In that case, perhaps you will put up at Cullen?' 'I may or may not,' answered his companion. 'Pardon me the liberty of the question, sir—may I ask if you are a bachelor?' 'No!' 'Oh! married?' 'No, no!' 'Sir! I beg your pardon, I may have unintentionally touched upon a painful subject; your black dress ought to have checked my enquiries. I beg your pardon, sir—a widower?' 'No, no, no!' 'Neither a bachelor, a married man, nor a widower! In heaven's name, then sir, what can you be?' 'A divorced man, and be hanged to you, since you must know!' exclaimed the stranger, clapping spurs to his horse and dashing out of sight.

A FAST YOUNG MAN.—The young Duke of Hamilton, the premier nobleman of the kingdom of Scotland, and the representative of the Stuart family, three years ago succeeded to his title and an estate which realized $350,000 per annum. He took to horse-racing and other means of lavish expenditure, and now he is a possessor of his creditors, with every acre of his lands, his palaces and town residences in the hands of Jew lenders, where they will probably remain till the next heir of entail succeeds to the title.

TENTH DIVISION COURT.—This court opened in this place on Tuesday morning. Judge Brough presiding. There were sixty-four suits disposed of, the most important of which was one against the sureties of R. E. Rend, late clerk of the Court, for moneys which he had collected but for which no returns had been made.—[Ontonario News Era.]

Lord Talbot de Malahide has publicly stated that at no distant time, and with a settled state of affairs in the country, a royal sojourn in Ireland will take place.

Where are you going so fast, Mr. Smith? demanded Jones. Home, sir, home; don't detain me; I have just bought my wife a new bonnet, and I must deliver it before the fashion changes.

Absence of Mind.

An old friend tells the following amusing instance of absence of mind:—My grand-father was returning home one evening from the hay-field, driving his oxen before a load of hay. He had tied an old mare, which he had been using, to the cart behind; but happening afterwards to think of her favorite tricks of pulling, he untied her again, and mounting, rode alongside, still driving the oxen. He fell into a deep reverie, as was his wont, in which old mares and all other vexatious sub-lunary matters were banished from his mind. But this serene state was suddenly broken upon his happening to think when near home, that he had, when starting from the hayfield, tied that unruly beast to the cart behind. Entirely forgetting the precaution he had afterwards adopted, he whirled about only to discover that she was missing from the place, and supposing she had pulled loose, he rode back at full gallop in search of the stray vixen. In the course of half a mile he met one of his neighbors, a stuttering fellow, to whom he called out to know if he had seen anything of her. Before the man had half surmounted the first letter in his reply (perhaps from a comical expression in his face,) the whole truth flashed into my grandfather's mind, and he turned back at full speed, without waiting for a reply to his inquiry, only exclaiming, 'Let her go, I'll not look her up. But it was too late for him to save himself, and his neighbors never suffered the story to be forgotten as long as he lived there.'

An inkstand was turned over on a white tablecloth; a servant threw over it a mixture of salt and pepper plentifully, and all traces of it disappeared.

A LARGE ROOM.—Two worthies, rather fond of their beer, retired from their regular house of call to a field, one evening, and sat down on a bench to enjoy their favorite beverage alone, having previously supplied themselves with a fair stock. After imbibing of it pretty freely, they both fell fast asleep. About midnight, one of them got up for the purpose of retiring, but, not knowing his whereabouts very well, wandered about for a while and then stumbled upon his companion, whom he awoke, remarking, 'Surely this is an awful size of a room, for I cannot find the floor, and I've been looking for more than half an hour.' I knew nothing about the size of the room, hiccupped his companion, 'but a thing I see, looking up, 'it has a tremendous high ceiling.'

An Eastern editor says that a man in N. Y., got himself into trouble by marrying two wives. A Western editor replies, many men in that section had done the same by marrying one. A Northern editor retorts that, quite a number of his acquaintances found trouble enough by barely promising to marry, without going any further. A southern editor says that a friend of his was bothered enough when simply found in company with another man's wife.

A story is told of a soldier, about one hundred and fifty years ago who was frozen in Siberia. The last expression he made was: 'It is ex—.' He then froze as stiff as marble. In the summer of 1860, some French physicians found him, after having laid for one hundred and fifty years. They gradually thawed him, and upon animation being restored, he concluded his sentence with 'ceedingly cold.'

Fenianism Through French Spectacles.

A writer in the Paris Presse, M. H. Vignault, gives his impression of Fenianism, which he observes that many people erroneously confound with what is called 'the Irish question,' and concludes a lengthy article thus: Fenianism is a cause of disquiet because it is the first, or at least the most palpable revelation of the interests which the United States take in the affairs of Europe. People too easily forget of what these States are composed, and proclaim that our affairs do not occupy them. Only a short time ago the greater part of their population was formed of persons who had emigrated from Europe. The human tide now rolls on, incessantly, carrying with it from our old world to the new the destitute, the irritated, and the greedy. They carry with them their passions and their cupidities, and on landing they do not throw aside their resentments or their hatred. The United States lay up all this to make use of when the hour comes. It is Fenianism to-day, what will it be to-morrow? And for whom will be the nucleus? To hear the manner in which President Johnson speaks of France with respect to Mexico, it seems that the moment is ill chosen to declare ourselves indifferent to the part which the United States may take in the affairs of this or that European power.

The Toboggan.—The toboggan is nothing more or less than a hand-sled, but of peculiar form and shape. It is from four to six feet long, and about two feet wide, made of thin beech or maple wood, in a single piece, one fourth of an inch thick. In front it turns up, and curls gracefully over, like the toe of a skate. A light frame runs along the edges, with two or three cross bars to keep it in shape. It will hold three or four persons sitting apparently flat on the ground, and glides down the hills with most startling swiftness. To-day, provided all things are favorable, a party of forty go out to Cote des Neiges to enjoy this favorite sport. The toboggans are made by the Indians, somewhere in the vicinity of Quebec. At the Falls of Montmorency, near that city, a huge cone of ice forms at the foot of the foaming waters, reaching, in some seasons, to the height of 60 or 70 feet, down which it is a favorite, but somewhat dangerous, sport to slide. In the other day, some boys using the Indian sleigh in a peculiar manner,—one of them lay down at full length, face downward, upon the toboggan, and three other boys sat upon his back. The bottom boy's devotion to the sport must have been unconquerable.—cor. N. Y. paper.

JAMES STEPHENS.—The Tribune makes the following statement in regard to the great Irish agitator.—Mr. James Stephens, the late Head of the Irish in still stopping in Brooklyn, at No. 59 Second Place, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding. Mr. Stephens is, however, making his preparations for an early departure to the South of France as soon as the storm blows over in regard to his late eccentric movements. Mr. Stephens sent a draft for £500 to his wife by her brother, Mr. George Hooper, who was in New York a short time ago, in order to provide for any contingencies that might occur. Mrs. Stephens is at present located at Kingston, Ireland, and is pleasantly occupied in shopping, &c., according to the latest advice. Two of Mr. Stephens' friends left for Europe on Saturday, Col. Halpin and Col. Kelly, and Stephens accompanied them down the bay, but returned to the city in a pilot boat the same afternoon. Mr. Stephens is enjoying excellent health, and is altogether undisturbed by the outside clamor and rumor in regard to his movements.

THE MEXICAN LOAN.—New York, Feb. 13th.—The Tribune's special says: The fifty million Mexican loan proposition was up before the Committee on Foreign Affairs yesterday, but as there was no prospect of getting energy, owing to the unsettled state of affairs in that country, the Committee unanimously decided that it was inexpedient to extend the aid asked.

A Sioux Proposition.—The Sioux Indians have made a proposition to guarantee the safety of travel through their country, and also the frontier settlements, provided the government will authorize the organization of not less than 250 men belonging to their bands; under an officer satisfactory to themselves. They fix the compensation at $600 per month, and rations for themselves, families and horses, furnishing their own arms, ammunition, horses, &c.

THE DUKE OF HAMILTON.—The Scotch papers are commenting severely upon the reckless course of life pursued by the young Duke of Hamilton. It seems that his whole estate is now entirely in the hands of a trustee, his name is continually printed in black lists of dishonourable acceptances, and he is continually mixed up in ignominious and died a dishonoured viceroy of pleasure, but the present is a far worse representative of this wicked and almost royal house.

THE VERY LATEST.

The Fenian Revolt.

London, Feb 18.

The cause of the Fenian outbreak in the south of Ireland is yet buried in obscurity, though the telegraph lines which run over the disaffected districts are working and communication has been restored. Some say that it was caused by the arrest of the American officer, Capt. Moriarty, while others say his prompt arrest prevented a general rising of the Irish.

The British Government had news of the affair early on the 12th inst. An upper servant in the household of the Earl Kenmore had received two anonymous notes stating that a rising was planned in Killarney, and that the leader would reach Killarney from Cahirciveen that night. Constables were immediately sent to intercept him. They met a wagon in which they found Moriarty, whom they took into custody, and on searching his person found letters confirming the assertions in the anonymous letters. A courier named Duggan was sent to Cahirciveen to warn the police. A party of rebels caught him while on his way and demanded his despatches, which he refused to give up, and attempted to escape; they fired upon him and he was badly wounded. So far as is known at present he is the only person who has been hurt.

The police of Cahirciveen got news by other messengers and from several spies among the Fenians. They were strengthened by a detachment from the man-of-war Gladiator, which was lying off Valencia, and saved their station from attack. A band of ninety Fenians took a horse at Kells, for their leader O'Connor, and another band stopped the mail on the road from Killarney to Cahirciveen, but they did no violence to any one. In fact, no where has life been taken or property destroyed.

The Fenian plan was to take Killarney, capture the place and then march to Cork, but the immediate despatch of troops from Cork to Killarney by Gen. Bates and the celerity of Col. Horsford's movements defeated the whole plot and caused the insurgent band to disperse.

The horse of a Fenian courier was caught by the troops. A couple of swords were picked up, but no men have been captured.

O'Connor and his staff are said to have reached the Fenian vessel off Diagle Bay.

Thirty-four suspected persons were arrested in Dublin yesterday, and after examination five of them were retained in custody.

Head Centre Murphy and Colonels Laler Healy and Johnstone have been arrested at Limerick, and important papers have been found on their persons and in their lodgings. The alarm caused by these events is now about over, and the excitement rapidly subsiding.

Fenians.

Boston, Feb 17.

The late cable news from Ireland has caused considerable excitement among the Fenians in this city, and the different circles are working quietly and earnestly in behalf of the cause.

A State Convention was held in this city a few weeks since. Between one and two hundred circles were represented. The proceedings of the convention were very harmonious. Patrick Doody, Esq., was elected State Centre.

The Herald says that on Friday evening last a number of men, apparently Fenian officers left the depot of Boston and Worcester in this city, but their final destination is unknown. A large number of persons witnessed this departure, and upon taking leave of his friends—he who appeared to be leader of the party—was requested to 'keep the field, captain, until we come.' The party entered the New York train and left the depot amid the cheers of the spectators.

A weekly newspaper devoted to the interests of America and Americans is to be established in London.

FICKLE WOMAN.

Miss O'Boyle, of Eramosa, who was to be married to Mr. Wm. Hickey of the same Township, but wasn't, has made quite a stir in Eramosa. It appears that she accompanied Mr. Hickey to Guelph, for the purpose of getting married, but when she got there, a few purchases had to be made, and she started out for the purpose, leaving the happy man, who was to call her his own in an hour, to wait till she came back. Meeting with Daniel McLaughlin, an old 'spark,' he persuaded her to become his wife, and in less than thirty minutes thereafter, the twain was one flesh. Mr. Hickey was horrified when the tale was unfolded to him that his dear one was married to another, and he left for parts unknown.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

Good Story.--A story concerning some sharp things said by the Pope is circulating through the clubs in London. His Holiness is said to have thus touched off the heads of the Liberal party, recently resident in Rome: "Lord Clarendon," observed Pio Nono, "I like and understood. Mr. Gladstone I liked, but couldn't understand. The Duke of Argyll I understood, but didn't like. Lord Russel I didn't like, and didn't understand."

An Elopement.

Information was received yesterday that a Wesleyan minister named Vandenberg, living at Lachute, had eloped with the sister of Mr. Steinforth, with whom he had boarded, taking with him a horse and sleigh, which he had sold. On Friday morning last, the girl having stated that she wished to go to Montreal on a visit to some friends, Vandenberg offered to drive her there, having, he said, some business to do in town. No suspicion was entertained of anything wrong until the arrival on Wednesday of a neighbor at Lachute, who told Mr. Steinforth that he had seen his horse and sleigh at the American Hotel, in possession of a man who had bought them. Mr. Steinforth then came to Montreal, went to the house of his sister's friends, who had seen nothing of her, found at the American Hotel that his horse had left with the purchaser, and then proceeded to the police-station. The Chief of Police despatched Detectives Gullen and Bouchard to make inquiries, who soon discovered that he had put up at the Albion Hotel, in which he and Miss Steinforth had slept, their names being entered in the book as 'Mr. Wood and lady.' Here they remained from Friday till Monday night, passing as man and wife. On Monday night they left by the ten o'clock train for the East, apparently under the belief that the train still went to Portland. What adds to the villainy of this affair, is that Vandenberg has a wife in Cobourg now in a dying state. Some time ago the same Vandenberg lodged information that his wife had been broken open and robbed. There were some curious circumstances connected with the robbery, and it is now believed, as was before suspected, that he himself was the robber.

Consideration and Party Spirit.

Of late, the columns of our contemporary papers are filled with articles on the question whether party spirit should be indulged in, with a strong leaning to the affirmative. As regards the Imperial Parliament, we are of opinion that it is not only just, but necessary, that it should be so.

Accedote of a New York Millionaire.

It is said that on the first day Mr. Stewart, the great Dry Goods merchant, opened his store, one of the clerks stated to a purchaser that a piece of calico was of a certain quality, that the colors were fast and would not wash out, and if not so, the article would be taken back and the money returned. The remarks were overheard by Mr. Stewart and he called the clerk to him and spoke with indignation: 'What do you mean by thus saying what you know to be untrue? This clerk, perhaps astonished at thus being called to account, replied that the woman would not return the goods, and if she did she could easily be put off by stating that she must be mistaken, and the purchase must have been made at some other store. But no; that was not the point. A list had been sold to induce a purchase, and no goods must be sold in his store or in his name under any misrepresentation whatever. The clerk could conform to that rule or at once vacate his place. This interview between him and one of his first clerks was narrated to the writer a few years since, when in a familiar conversation the direct question was asked: 'To what do you attribute your great success as a merchant?' 'That I have conducted my business from the first on the basis of truth. Truth, truth,' he added, with great emphasis, 'is the talismanic word; and if I have any one earthly wish or desire greater than another, it is that in this respect my example may be commended and followed by young men entering into business, and especially by young merchants.'

A BENEVOLENT DOG.—A few years ago in the city of Ellensburg, a splendid Newfoundland dog might have been seen every day visiting every pond or brook in the neighborhood of his master's residence. It had been instrumental more than once in saving persons from a grievous death in the water. He was respected for his amiable qualities, till, strange as it may be considered, this flattery completely turned his head. Saving life from drowning became a passion. Not having sufficient scope for the exercise of his diseased benevolence in the district, he took to a very questionable method of supplying the deficiency. Whenever he found a child on the brink of the water, he watched patiently for the opportunity, and placing his forepaws suddenly on its person plunged it in before it was aware. Now all this was done for the mere purpose of fetching it out again. He appeared to find intense pleasure in this nonsensical sort of work. At last the outcry became so great by parents alarmed for their children, although no life was ever lost by the indulgence of such a singular taste, that the poor dog was reluctantly destroyed.

Taking a walk one day through the commissariat stores in Hong Kong with a friend, I came to a portion of the establishment where four Chinamen were emptying a tub of rum, which they were carrying in gallon measures to another portion of the building. Addressing myself to the one who was apparently the head of the party, I enquired, 'Do you like rum, John?' 'No, sir,' said the Chinaman. 'Why not?' 'Rum not proper, sir; make Chinaman number one fool!'

A strange story is told about an egg merchant at one of the Paris markets. Having been indisposed for several days, he had kept in his warehouse at high temperature, at the recommendation of his doctor. One morning he was awoke by a strange noise and on jumping up he saw on the floor about one hundred and fifty little chickens, while the floor was strewed with eggshells.

CATTLE DISEASE.—Mr. James Lindsay, of Garraza, has lost three head of cattle, a fine horse, and a pig, lately.

On Sabbath last he shot a fine heifer and an excellent horse, which were attacked Tuesday previously as follows:—The animal got lame in the hind legs, and lies down very often; this continues for a day or two, until weakness sets in, and the animal losing all power in the hinder part, is unable to rise. Food is refused and the floor or ground is bitten by the animal while lying. Death relieves the animal in the course of a week. Mr. Lindsay attributes the disease to madness. His dog was rabid in November last, and bit a number of the cattle and the sow before he was killed. It may only be some spinal complaint, however, and we hope that Mr. Lindsay will not lose any more of his valuable stock.

CANADIAN PRINTING PRESS.—The first sheet printed on a press of Canadian manufacture, was printed on Saturday last. The Hill Works, on that day set up their first press. It is a Washington No. 5 of the Hoe pattern, is made of the best material, and finished in beautiful style. It did good work, and is unexcelled. They will, at once, proceed to manufacture Gordon Power Presses of different sizes, and will be able to furnish them, like the Hoe Presses, at a cheaper rate than they can be purchased from American Manufacturers. They have already received several orders and inquiries, and we hope that every Canadian printer will see it to be his interest, as well as his duty, to support home manufactures.—Oshawa Indicator.

ONTARIO.—We have great difficulty in congratulating the Fathers of Confederation on the new name which they intend bestowing on Upper Canada. Ontario is an excellent name for a county, or a lake, but it sounds awkward for an entire Province. And first, what shall we call ourselves? Shall we be known as Ontariowegians, or will people call us Ontarians? In the latter case there is a danger of less pronunciation running us into Ontarians, or Ontario for shortness. This would be a pathetic name, but somewhat wanting in dignity. Again we are liable to be mimicked by the tongue foreign ridicule into Ontiomites. Finally, we would be metamorphosed into Canadian Mites. Some might prefer to name us Ontariosters, and, in time, difficulty would arise in distinguishing us from the well-known bivalves in use.—Toronto Telegraph.

THE RULING PASSION.—A remarkable instance of the ruling passion strong in death was related to us some time since in connection with the decease of a great pigeon-fancier, whose birds had won more races than any in the district. The poor collier was dying, and had received great consolation from the minister. 'I'll be sure to go to heaven, eh minister?' he said. 'Yes, I have no doubt about it, Johnny,' said the minister; 'you have repented of all your sins, and you have not been a very bad boy.' 'That's right; I've done nowt very bad, and I've repented on it all; and will I be a hangel, minister?' 'Yes, Johnny.' 'And have wings, minister?' continued the collier, raising himself up in bed. 'Yes, Johnny, and have wings.' 'And will ye coom to heaven soon day?' the collier went on. 'I hope so Johnny,' said the minister. 'And will ye be a hangel and have wings?' 'Yes, please God,' said the minister. 'Aye, mon, that's grand!' exclaimed Johnny; 'I'll fly ye for a sovereign!'

A good looking young lady recently entered a dyer's shop, and thus accosted him: 'You are the man that dyes, are you not?' 'No,' replied the gallant; 'I'm the man that lives; but I'll dye for you.'

Yankee Ladies.

'What do you say now to our ladies?' I said to me a bluff Yankee, as we sat last night under the verandah, here in the hotel at Saratoga. 'Charming,' of course I answered, 'pale, delicate, bewitching; flashing, too, and radiant.' 'Booh!' cried he, putting up his hands, 'they are just not worth a d—n. They can't work, they can't walk, they can't ride, they can't nurse! 'Ah, you have no wife,' said I, in a soothing tone. 'A wife!' he shouted, 'I should kill her.' 'With kindness?' 'Ugh!' he answered, 'with a poker. Look at those girls over there, dawdling by the fountain. What are they doing now, what have they done all day? Fed and dressed. They have changed their clothes three times, and had their hair washed, combed and curled three times. That is their life. Have they been out for a walk, for a ride? Have they read a book? have they sewed a seam? Not a bit of it. How do your English ladies spend their time? They put on good boots, they tuck up their skirts and lurk away through the country lanes. I was in Hampshire once, my host was a duke; his wife was out before breakfast with clogs on her feet and roses on her cheeks; she rode to the hunt, she walked to the cope; a ditch would not frighten her, a hedge would not turn her back. Why, our women, poor, pale, dot-headed, sickly—' 'Stop,' I said, they are very lovely.' 'Ugh!' said the Yankee, 'they have no bone, no fibre, no juice; they have nothing, but nerves; but what can you expect? They eat parush for bread, they drink ice-water for wine; they wear tight stays, thin silks and barrel skirts. Such things are not fit to live, and thank God, in a hundred years not one of their descendants will be left alive.'

HEN-HUSBANDRY.—An enterprising farmer, of Belgium, has devoted a farm to hen-keeping. He has an immense yard, filled with two thousand fowls, for which he purchases weekly two or three horses, which are cut up and boiled. The broth goes to fatten a hundred hogs, the flesh is chopped up for his hens, and the bones are sold to the sugar refineries, to make charcoal. The eggs are sent to England, and the hens follow them when no longer profitable for laying.

A few days since two men on board the French iron-clad 'Solferino,' now in Toulon harbor, were fighting, when they accidentally fell into an enormous cauldron containing the hot soup for the dinner of the crew. One of them died immediately afterwards and the other is not expected to survive.

Charles E. Crum, Bridgeport, Addison county, Vt., reports having lost several sheep which had eaten too much salt after having been a long time without it. They died in thirty-six hours after eating the salt. The symptoms are excessive shivering all through the body and difficult breathing.

April Fool's Day.

"Well, I don't think anybody can ever deceive me again, on that day. Once in a while you get a very remarkable letter, and it is not until the first of April."

And pretty Mabel Hughes' dilemma of all sorts and kinds, under a false disguise, in a little while, and a flashing merry, saucy look at the company around her.

There was quite a group of young folks assembled to celebrate the day, and the new year in. Mabel Hughes took precedence at large of the village gatherings.

She had a very good reason for her father's large hospitable house was the reason, as the present occasion.

The party felt and enjoyed the day, and while on that theme, April Fool's day had a place in the list of memorable days of the year. Mabel had been looking forward to this day with great interest.

There was a great deal of mischief done on that day, and the young folks were very busy.

The New York Legislature on Confederation.

At Albany, on the 20th inst., Mr. Thaw Wood, by unanimous consent, laid the following resolutions, which were laid over until the 21st.

"Whereas, it is the imperative duty of the people of the United States of America, through their proper representatives, to earnestly protest against the formation of any government in North America not recognizing in form, and in which the people are not allowed to govern themselves and choose their own rulers;

"Whereas, any attempt on the part of the Imperial Government of Great Britain to establish a monarchical government in North America, or to place a viceregalty by act of Parliament over the several North American Provinces would be an infraction of this principle;

"Resolved—That the Governor be requested to transmit copies of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to the President of the United States and to each House of Congress.

American News.

A Herald's Washington special says—It is reported that Sir Frederick Baker has been informed by the British Government that the sentence of the Fenian in Canada will be retried.

The President today sent to Congress his veto of the supplementary Revenue Bill. The Senate passed the bill over the veto by a vote of 40 to 7, and the House by a vote of 116 to 25.

New York, March 25.—The police report that in ten spots in St. Paul street, thirty-three policemen were injured, nine of them seriously. All are reported to be improving.

The Cuban Senate adjourned on Saturday, to meet this morning at six o'clock. The session is still secret, but it is understood that the chief work before the body is the appointment of a Secretary, in room of General P. who was the former occupant of the position.

Washington, March 26.—In the Senate today Mr. Chandler moved that the Senate take up the bill to American citizens who sell arms of war to friendly belligerent States, and spoke at some length in favor of the bill, saying in the course of his remarks that he was willing to let the Alabama claims stand for the present. He would be content to take lead on the northern frontier for them. Great Britain, he said, had consented to renounce the right of the citizen world. This bill, he said, was presented as a purely commercial character, and ought to be an objection to it. Pass this bill, he said, and Great Britain will be giving six months for permission to pay the Alabama claims.

FENIAN HARBOR.—New York, March 25.—The Irish excitement in this city has all subsided, and the late rebellion in Ireland is considered to have been a disgraceful failure. The only party who receive any attention are those who fear a re-division of Canada. Several meetings have been held on the subject of an early invasion, and steps are being taken that look somewhat like war.

The editor of an Ohio newspaper, who left the capital in disgust, says:—The principal arguments in Columbus during the winter are a dance at the music system, a lively time in the city, and a debate in the House of Representatives, and it is difficult to say which is the more cheer.

An Ohio paper says that on 20th inst. in the past ten years, in the month of March, has the wheat crop grown much better, and abundant harvest is at the present time, and that its country exchanges are at the same opinion.

When President Johnson was asked to recognize the Irish Republic, he very decidedly replied that the great question was whether there was any real government; and it is not difficult to answer that question in the negative. The manifesto put forth in its name, proclaiming a republic with perfect freedom and equality, political and religious, was, doubtless, concocted by some American Irishman in the name of the Irish people, who know nothing about it, and never gave the said American any authority to speak for them.

The cold weather in the southwest is the most intense of the season. The Upper Mississippi is frozen solid—something that has not occurred for thirty years. Trains are embargoed, and travel is materially interfered with.

The Citizen New Era says: We mentioned last week that buyers were securing the country purchasing all the ones that were offered for sale. The country was well thinned out last year, and now there is a considerable amount of difference in price, a good cow without paying a very high price for it. The figures now range from $10 to $40. Beef cattle are scarce and good, and butchers' meat is on the rise.

A great fire has taken place in the village of [?], something like one hundred houses being consumed. Numbers of families are rendered homeless, and are leaving the place on almost every train.

Berlin, March 23.—The recent conclusion of a treaty between the Kingdom of Prussia and Bavaria and the Grand Duchy of Baden, whereby Prussia is to have command of the armies of the latter two countries in times of war, has engendered a bitter feeling in France. It is believed that the effort of the Emperor Napoleon to form a confederation of France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland against Prussia, is traceable to the cause.

A Paris correspondent of the London Sunday Gazette states that Stephens and a number of American officers are in Paris, quite innocent of the rising in Ireland which took them by surprise.

Should the numbers submit, this is expected to place a large additional fund at their disposal.

Several hundred man-of-war's men have been ordered from Quebec to the upper lakes for the manning of gunboats whenever navigation opens.

The Belleville Intelligencer says it is the intention of the government to organize and equip a mounted police at once, to do duty in the gold regions of Hastings. The headquarters will be held in Madoc.

THE RESCUE FAIR.—A lively business was done at the Fergus fair on Thursday last. Beavers sold at about $4.00 live weight, and for working oxen $140 per yoke was asked.

AMAZONIAN EXPLORATION.—Mr. W. Chandless, an Englishman, recently gave an account before the Royal Geographical Society in London of an exploration made by him in 1854 of the Purus river, one of the affluent of the Amazon. With a small native canoe and a crew of Indians he ascended the river nearly to its source, a distance of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six miles, finding a good depth of water and no obstacles to navigation for the greater part of the way. It is peopled only by a few tribes of Indians, each speaking a distinct language. The banks are formed of alluvial soil, and are covered throughout with dense forest, rich in Indian rubber trees and other vegetable products of commercial value. The stream, however, was found not to lead to the settled districts of Southern Peru, as had been supposed. The Indians met with near the source had never had communication with white men or civilized tribes, and were ignorant of the use of iron.

In 1855 Mr. Chandless explored the Aquity, a branch of the Purus river, in hopes that it would open a route to Peru, but was again disappointed. This stream, like the Purus, terminated in trackless forests. He spent nine days attempting to cut his way across the country, but found it impossible.

As a man at Oxford, N. H. was releasing his horse, a good sized white horse, from his feet, and blew him against a ledge of rock so violently that both legs were broken.

TO THE FRIENDS OF PROGRESS.

A Convention of the superior merit of the London Commercial College and Seminary, has, as is well known, been established in the midst of the Canadian People. That this work is beginning to be published, is proved in the fact that UPWARDS OF 200 STUDENTS ARE NOW connected with our classes, which is, undoubtedly, more than in any other school in Canada.

Any Other Two Commercial Colleges in Canada! And, what is still more encouraging, the number is constantly increasing. We expect that it will continue to do so, for we have always contended that a Thorough Practical Course of Business Training, coupled with strict Integrity and a sincere regard for the welfare of our students, was sure, sooner or later, to win the confidence of the community at large.

The facts, in this case, have fully demonstrated that this was a correct conclusion. We heartily thank the Public for their patronage so liberally bestowed, and would, at the same time, assure them, that, in the future, as in the past, it shall be our constant aim, to so unite with and teach our Students, as to secure the genuine approval of the Wise and the Good. If we have the co-operation of those, we cannot fail to succeed; for we have premises to this effect, which are as follows:—

"Business the Prevalent Basis." We would, therefore, say to all who are desirous to embark in Business Life, as Men and as Citizens, that we will do the good, for the Lord has spoken good concerning Israel. Our study of Instruction is in the highest degree

SYSTEMATIC AND PRACTICAL, AND OUR ADVANTAGES which are found at no other Commercial College.

Quebec, March 25. A $900 nugget was taken out of one of the Gilbert River pits on Thursday last, and another was found on the property of the Debery Mining Co., and brought to this city to-day. Its weight is officially announced by the government inspector to be fifty and a half ounces, and valued at nearly $900.

A large quantity of Snider-Enfields have been sent west for the use of volunteers.

FENIAN MOVEMENTS.—The reporter of the Globe at Buffalo says:—Four car loads of Fenian ammunition reached here within the last few weeks, and the contents are secreted in the city. The Fenians have advanced the contributions levied from non-military members from 10 to 25 cents a week. Should the numbers submit, this is expected to place a large additional fund at their disposal.

Several hundred man-of-war's men have been ordered from Quebec to the upper lakes for the manning of gunboats whenever navigation opens.

The Belleville Intelligencer says it is the intention of the government to organize and equip a mounted police at once, to do duty in the gold regions of Hastings. The headquarters will be held in Madoc.

THE FEROCUS FAIR.—A lively business was done at the Fergus fair on Thursday last. Beavers sold at about $4.50 live weight, and for working oxen $140 per yoke was asked.

AMAZONIAN EXPLORATION.—Mr. W. Chandless, an English man, recently gave an account before the Royal Geographical Society in London of an exploration made by him in 1864 of the Purus river, one of the affluents of the Amazon. With a small native canoe and a crew of Indians he ascended the river nearly to its sources, a distance of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six miles, finding a good depth of water and no obstacles to navigation for the greater part of the way. It is peopled only by a few tribes of Indians, each speaking a distinct language. The banks are formed of alluvial soil, and are covered throughout with dense forest, rich in India-rubber trees and other vegetable products of commercial value. The stream, however, was found not to lead to the settled districts of Southern Peru, as had been supposed. The Indians met with near the sources had never had communication with white men or civilized tribes, and were ignorant of the use of iron. In 1865 Mr. Chandless explored the Aquiry, a branch of the Purus river, in hopes that it would open a route to Peru, but was again disappointed. This stream, like the Purus, terminated in trackless forests. He spent nine days attempting to cut his way across the country, but found it impossible.

TO THE FRIENDS OF PROGRESS.

A Convention of the superior merit of The London Commercial College and Seminary, has, as is well established in the minds of the Canadian Public. That its work is progressing as it approaches, is evidenced in the fact, that UPWARDS OF 200 STUDENTS Are now connected with our classes, which is, undoubtedly, more than are in attendance at any other Two Commercial Colleges in Canada; And, what is still more encouraging, the number is constantly increasing. We trust that it will continue to do so, for we have always contended that a Thoroughly Practical Course of Business Training, coupled with strict integrity and a sincere regard for the welfare of the student, was sure, sooner or later, to win the confidence of the community at large. The facts, in this case, have fully demonstrated that this was a correct conclusion. We hereby thank the Public for their patronage so liberally bestowed, and would, at the same time, assure them, that, in the future, as in the past, it shall be our constant aim, to so deal with and teach our Students, as to secure the genuine approval of the Wise and the Good. If we have the co-operation of these, we cannot fail to succeed; for, we have provided in this effect, which are as "sure as the Everlasting Hills." We would, therefore, say to all who are about to embark in Business Life, as it were, in this "hab" (come with us and we will do this good, for the Lord has spoken good concerning Israel." Our mode of instruction is in the highest degree SYSTEMATIC AND PRACTICAL, AND WE Offer advantages which are found at no other Commercial College. MARTIAL LAW AND THE VOLUNTEERS.—The Quebec News says that a curious case has arisen within the last few days concerning the important question of how far volunteers are subject to martial law.

GARBALDI AND THE PRIESTS.—The Italian copies from a paper published at Legnano, the following letter of Garibaldi: 'Owing, as a duty to my conscience, I speak to the people of the north—the chief scourge of our country—I knew that I had to do with the priests of deceit, and was prepared at starting for their Jesuitical tricks.'

A little piece of land at the corner of Lombard st., London, a site for one house, was recently let for £2,000 a year; it was sold for a premium of £70,000 and the rental, and there is now building on it a house expected to cost £70,000, and to let for £22,000 a year.

The death of the Earl of Brownlow is announced in England. The deceased was a large name in the history of the year, and was not a few years ago one of the most popular people who were invited to his house, to spend the winter with him at Malvern, he paying all the bills.

The Montreal Mirror's correspondent writes: 'There is a rumor in London that the rich villages of the watch-towers in the five great cities in France, for it is feared that the United States may take away the money of them.'

THE DISCOVERY BETWEEN KENTON AND BIRMINGHAM.

One of the results of a recent publication of religious sensational character, emanating from the disgraced, but not one Rev. J. Baxter, and entitled 'Coming Wonders,' has been exhibited in this city, in the case of a liberator, industrious and worthy mechanic, who has become mentally affected and disqualified for the support of his family.

The character of which we have previously described, purports to interpret the scriptural prophecies in a manner showing that the final consummation of all things subsidiary approaches, and that the era of human wickedness is to be wound up at an early date by the grand battle of Armageddon, to be succeeded by the Millennium.

The deluded convert to the insane teachings of Rev. J. Baxter, in this city, recently exhibited symptoms of mental weakness, but unfortunately the mind weakened in his mind from studying the false doctrine, were not detected until he had disposed of a comfortable residence on John Street, and completely impoverished his family in his course of preparation for the new order of things, which he believed to be at hand.

A frightful and painful case of acridities is reported at Montreal. Some wretches broke out in the flames Catholic church on the night of Wednesday last, forced open the entrance in the secrecy, stole some of the sacred vessels, a portion of the sacrament, and then threw the children and parent about the room.

Good for de Colled Tanned.—The colored men's shoppard at Baltimore, was purchased by them last night through the agency of a man, and 255 soldiers employed, 30 being white. Last night they were to the amount of $75,000, the profit being 25 per cent.

Washington despatches to the New York papers say that the rumor still prevails in Washington that negotiations are pending for the purchase of British America by the United States, Mr. Seward proposing to give the Alabama claims in part payment.

An explanation is being organized by the State Department to explore the American and European people with the view of their recent acquisition. It will start about the first week in May.—U. S. paper.

A correspondent of the Gazette writes that a number of people with the view of their recent acquisition. It will start about the first week in May.—U. S. paper.

Body-snatching.

The late disclosures respecting the traffic in dead bodies at the City of New York (New York) Burial House reminds a Liverpool correspondent of the following good story of a prominent physician in Western New York. His dissection of a 'subject' badly for his dissecting room. He employed a notorious 'night hawk' of the neighborhood to obtain it. The fellow was willing enough; he would do anything short of murder for fifty dollars, and probably would have done that for a hundred. A body was secretly deposited in the doctor's house; the resurrectionist was paid; no questions asked; and in due time the remains had served their purpose, and the polished skeleton was dancing from a cord in the closet. Some time after, an alarm was made in the town that several graves in the cemetery had been tampered with, and among others that of the doctor's son was discovered to be minus an occupant. Horrified and indignant, the doctor summoned the body-snatcher, and told him what he had discovered. 'Now, find me the scoundrel that robbed that grave,' said he. 'I'll give you twenty-five dollars.' 'I'll do it,' quoth the man, 'for cash in advance.' It was immediately paid. 'Well, then, doctor, you need not look far. Your own bones are in your closet. You paid me for getting them.'

Jamaica in a Nutshell.

The whole story of the Jamaica massacres was pitifully told in a dozen lines by Mr. John Gurrin, a Jamaica barrister, who recently appeared before the Royal Commission in England as counsel for the Jamaica Committee. Mr. Gurrin insisted that all the leading acts of atrocity sworn to by the negro witnesses were substantially corroborated by the evidence of British officers and the white inhabitants of the island, and then proceeded as follows:

'Among these may be mentioned the shooting of ten untried prisoners by one black soldier, the hanging up in a chapel of the bodies of nine prisoners who had been shot, the flogging by wire-cut, the execution of passivity at their own doors by soldiers, and in a few cases by order of officers, the executing of prisoners day after day at Morant Bay on a gallows which gave no drop, the compulsory attendance of untried prisoners at the executions, the reckless burnings of hundreds of houses, the hanging of persons who had been first flogged, and the flogging of persons who were untried—in short, the hideous details of what Mr. Roundell, the indefatigable and impartial secretary of the commission, has justly called the "hell-like atmosphere of martial law" were all most fully substantiated out of the mouths of others than negro witnesses.'

The arrest of Governor Eyre seems to have been merely a formal proceeding, as he has been discharged, but the investigation is still in progress.

A lawyer who was sometimes forgetful, having been engaged to plead the cause of an offender, began by saying:—'I know the prisoner at the bar, and he bears the character of being a most consummate and impudent scoundrel.' Here somebody whispered to him that the prisoner was his client, when he immediately concluded, 'But what great and good man ever lived who was not calumniated by many of his contemporaries?'

At a religious meeting among the blacks, a colored preacher requested that some brother should pray. Thereupon half-witted Musa commenced a string of words entirely without meaning. At this the pastor raised his head and inquired, 'Who dat praying? Dat you, brudder Musa? You let somebody pray dat better acquainted with de Lord.'

How Dr. Livingstone was Killed.

Official information of the death of Dr. Livingstone has been received at the British Foreign Office. He was slain during a sudden and unexpected encounter with the very Zulus, of whom, in the last despatch received from him (dated Ngomania, May 18), he said that they had laid waste the country round about him. With an escort reduced to twenty by depositions, death and dismissal, he had traversed the terra incognita between the confluence of the Leondo and Rovuma rivers at Ngomania and the eastern and northern shores of Lake Nyassa, had crossed the lake at some point not yet ascertained, had reached a station named Kampunda, on its western or northwestern shore, and was pushing westward or north-westward into dangerous ground, when between Marenza and Mukiloura a band of implacable savages stopped the way, a mixed herd of Zulus or Matluis and Nyassa folk. The Nyassa folk were armed with bow and arrow. The Zulus with the traditional shield, broad-bladed spears, and axes. With Livingstone there were nine or ten musketeers; his Johanna men were resting with their loads far in the rear. The Matluis instantly came on to fight. There was no parity, no avoidance of the combat. They came on with a rush, with war cries, rattling their shields with their spears. As Livingstone and his party raised their pieces the onset was for a moment checked. Livingstone fired, and two Zulus were shot dead. His boys fired, but their fire was harmless. He was in the act of reloading, when three Matluis leapt upon him through the smoke. There was no resistance, there could be none; one axe cut from behind put him out of life. He fell, and his terror-stricken escort fled. One of the fugitives escaped, and he tells the tale—Ali Mouna chief of his escort of porters.

'One blow killed Dr. Livingstone outright. He had no other wound but this terrible gash. From the description it must have gone through the neck and spire up to the throat in front. It had nearly decapitated him. Death came mercifully in its suddenness. The Matluis had respected him when dead, for he was stripped only of his outer clothing. A grave was dug with sticks and the body buried.'

WANTED, A DECISION.—Two Germans once got into a dispute about the English Language, each contending that he could speak it best. They at length made a bet, and appointed a judge to decide between them. 'Well, Chun,' said the first, 'Did it rain to-morrow?' 'I shall think it wash,' said John. The judge has not yet given his decision.

One of Josh Billings' maxims:—'Ritzatly, work hard and late live on what you can't sell, give nothing awa, and if you don't die ditch, and go to the devil, you anny sue me for damages.'

A teacher said to a little girl at school, 'If a naughty girl should hurt you, like a good girl you would forgive her, wouldn't you?' 'Yes, marn,' she replied. 'If I couldn't catch her?'

Old Mrs. Chibbisa is a pattern of household economy. She says she has made a pair of socks last fifteen years by only knitting new feet to them every winter, and new legs every other winter.

An Irishman, who was near sighted, was about to fight a duel, and insisted that he should stand six paces nearer to his antagonist than the latter did to him and that they were both to fire at the same time.

A daily newspaper man who has just got out of the traces, says he is becoming quite well acquainted with his family. He discovered to his surprise that his daughter could play upon the piano. He never had time to discover the fact before.

The Empty Cradle.

She one bedd the cradle,
And her tears were streaming fast,
She wept the infant only,
But she thinkt of all the Past—
Of the days in her childhood,
When her first-born, smiling to her,
Tribbled her and called her a mother,
That it been an other bliss.
Oh, those happy, happy moments,
They but seem but a dream,
For the breath have the cradle,
And her baby is not there.
There are words of comfort spoken,
And the loud creak of grief
Wears the smiling bow of promise,
And she feels a relief.
But her mourning thoughts will wander,
'Till they settle on the scene
Of the dark and silent chamber,
And of all that might have been!
For a little recent garment,
Or a shining piece of hair,
Tells her least, in tones of anguish,
That her baby is not there.
She sits beside the cradle,
But her tears are no more;
For she sees a blood-stain,
And forgets all earthly care.
Her daily work done, and her
And the tears that looked the
Tears have ceased with the mother,
For there is no one to die.
And while her soul is lifted
By the morning sun of prayer,
Her eye a crystal gate-way toward,
And she sees her baby there.

How Bismarck Appears in Parliament.

A German paper that describes Count Bismarck as he appears in the North German Parliament. He usually enters the Chamber about nine o'clock. The deputies have opened doors shortly to the President, and then sit down on the principal benches, where he occupies the first place. His neighbors on the right, who are mostly generals, nobles and high officials, rise when he comes to take his seat; but their example is scarcely ever followed by the Baron and Countesses, who sit on the left. His speeches are very successful in style and substance, and are very popular. When he rises to answer the charges of his disservice, and when he is reproached with his conduct, he is very graceful in his replies, and his words are full of sagacity and insight. He is very reasonable, and his speaking effect has been felt by many an antagonist in his past. He is very generous to speak, especially since he has been suffering from his present nervous disorder, and he is always polite with those from Munich, who are his nearest deputies, he said to have brought an exaggerated expression of the sentiment. In the North German Parliament he invariably appears in the uniform of an officer of landwehr cavalry, and in the Prussian Parliament he is attended in a military coat of arms, which has given rise to much speculation among the politicians of Berlin.

A young lady, at breakfast, asked a gentleman to hand her the 'hen fruit,' pointing to a plate of eggs. The gentleman suggested 'Shamplin berries' as a more fastidious term.

'Our mothers, industrious tenders, though they often misplace the switch,' was a toast given at a recent railway dinner.

Independence.

"If the solicitor general government has belated to bestow entire independence upon these people...

The above is only one of many similar statements of influential journals both of America and Great Britain...

The first move towards independence will probably be by changing the title of the Governor-General to Viceroy...

And looking at the interests of trade and commerce, Canada would be greatly benefited by the immense and fertile region of the north-west...

It may be that an un satisfactory political condition may be patched up between the north-west and the Canadian Confederation...

At the people of Canada prepared for the day of their independence...

The Horn and Saugen Road. We understand the Horn and Saugen Road, both above and below Paisley...

The weather still continues cold and ungenial, and many farmers have made but little progress in putting in crops...

According to notice given, Mr. Thomas McMurtry, one of the agents of the "United Canadian Alliance for the Total Suppression of the Slave Traffic," delivered a lecture on Temperance in the Canada Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening...

Lord Minto and family are expected early in June.

A new mill will be down 500 feet at Godswick, 20 per cent above year to be dismantled for stock in the Ooderick mill.

From statistics collected relative to the number of women in the State of Wisconsin, it is estimated that there is a decrease as compared with last year...

The military force now in Ireland consists, besides a light body of artillery and engineers, of four troops of the military train, the militia and the regular troops...

The signature of the Government Bonds offered by the Government is a matter of great importance...

The "Great Eastern" is not to return to New York, the speculation not paying.

The ship of grain from our port is now active, not less than three vessels having left with cargoes within the last few days.

The following shows the arrival and departure of vessels from this port during the past week:

May 18th, Steamer Silver Spray, Capt. Rowland, goods and passengers.

May 19th, Steamer Silver Spray, Capt. Rowland, goods and passengers.

May 20th, Steamer Silver Spray, Capt. Rowland, goods and passengers.

May 21st, Steamer Silver Spray, Capt. Rowland, goods and passengers.

Red River

The people of this ill used colony appear to be getting more dissatisfied every day...

The Hudson's Bay Co would be shorn of its political power—the fertile prairies and extensive woodlands would be surveyed...

As the country became populated, the advantages of a summer route to the Atlantic by way of the lakes and Canada would become apparent...

It is to be expected that the English government can take much interest in this question, when its members will be well satisfied by changing the title of the Governor-General to Viceroy...

And looking at the interests of trade and commerce, Canada would be greatly benefited by the immense and fertile region of the north-west...

PART EIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

Part Eight, May 18, 1867.

Mr. Ward, who has been engaged for some time past in teaching school made a grand and adult class in our village...

A deep gloom was cast over our otherwise lively village by the sudden death of Mrs. Doby, which took place on Thursday last...

We were now to have a great boom in the way of telegraph extension to this place, the Montreal Telegraph Co., having agreed to extend their line to this village...

The steamer Silver Spray, is now calling here regularly, weather permitting. Mr. McLeod, the contractor for executing the harbour improvements, is making active preparations to commence work...

I am happy to say that the loss sustained by Mr. Finlay McLeod which had his barn and catch destroyed by lightning, is likely to be in a great measure made up to him, some of his neighbors having taken the matter to hand and are getting up subscriptions in his behalf.

My Experience on a New Farm. [From the Western Herald.] It is a very much easier to write about making a pleasant home in a new country than it is to do it.

I gave a reluctant consent, and in three days he was off. It was pretty late in the season to build a house and get moved, but we thought we had better go in the Fall, so as to be ready for spring time.

The Most Villainous Impostor of the Age.

Whiskey, as commonly sold, is one of the most spurious and deceitfully manufactured commodities imaginable. Putting out of the question the physiological effects on mind and body of genuine whiskey, we are struck by the startling fact that nearly all the liquor sold as whiskey is not only spurious but exceedingly poisonous.

We learn from reliable sources that the farmers of many of the western counties are much troubled with pigeons. These birds have become a perfect scourge, and have done more damage to the crops than any other pest.

From W. Harris and others for change of pathmaker on Oval Road No. 12.

The communications from Wm. E. Eves, desiring to be relieved from the office of headkeeper, and from Wm. McLaughlin, stating that his contract has been completed.

Moved by W. C. Bruce, seconded by T. Falconer, that Mr. Foster, together with committee Noble, be authorized by the council to inspect the job of work let and partly done by James Maughan on the 13th and 14th con, and that if the work has been done to their satisfaction as per contract, they instruct said Maughan to proceed, but if as has been represented, he has only spoiled the road, they do not let the work to come one inch further.

Moved by T. Falconer, seconded by J. A. Noble, that committee McKee, be, and be hereby instructed to examine bridges in need of repair in East No. 2, and be authorized to let jobs of repairing said bridges, or as many of them as the Board of Commissioners may be required to do, and to let jobs of a contract on the side line leading from the 12th to the 13th con, Carried.

Moved by E. A. Noble, seconded by W. C. Bruce, that the fifty dollars appropriated for the improvement of the 23rd side line, on the 5th con, be supplemented by another fifty dollars for the same object, and other fifty dollars be appropriated for the improvement of the same side line between the 6th and 7th con, the same being expended under the direction of Messrs. Moved by N. McKee, seconded by E. A. Noble, that John McDaniel be allowed to commute five years of his statute labor, and perform the same to make a road out through his own lot, it being shown that such is really necessary on account of his being a blind man to get out from his lot. Carried.

Moved by E. A. Noble, seconded by T. Falconer, that the sum of five dollars be granted to build a culvert on the 4th and 5th con, on the lot at the foot of Scott's Hill, and that Thomas Falconer do the same. Carried.

Moved by T. Falconer, seconded by E. A. Noble, that Messrs. E. W. Harsh and John Graham be allowed to perform the balance of their statute labor on economy opposite lots No. 18 and 19, 12 con. In lot 42, and that the clerk be requested to notify the pathmaker of said lot to that effect. Carried.

A statement of account from Jas. Bradley, amounting to $110.32, for road repairs, was submitted and ordered to be paid; and another from Henry Lynn for chopping on 50th side street, amounting to $3.29, was also ordered to be paid. Carried.

Moved by T. Falconer, seconded by E. A. Noble, that with reference to the complaint filed by lots 1 and 2, con. 1, and 2, con. 1, be met with any school section, this council is of opinion that they should be connected with some school section. Be it therefore resolved, that the clerk notify Robert Johnson that it is his intention to attach him to section No. 1, if he then intention to withdraw, he may be attached, and if he wishes in the matter by next meeting of council. Carried.

Moved by N. McKee, seconded by T. Falconer, that as Thos. Hamilton has not as yet commenced work on his contract on the edge of the mill dam at Lockery, nor has he kept it in a reasonable state as agreed upon, and as said road is a dangerous one and almost impassable, be it resolved, that the Council take immediate steps at the expiration of his contract to let said work and hold Hamilton and his executors responsible in damages. Carried.

Moved by N. McKee, seconded by T. Falconer, that the clerk be instructed to notify the Trustees of school sections No. 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6, to attend the next meeting of council, as this council intend to take steps regarding the changing said sections. Carried.

SUCH.
 AS HE SAID IT.
 Such (ribbons, such roses, such ribbons of hair, such feathers and flowers, so white and so fair)
 Such ruddy cheeks, such teeth and such eyes
 Such a merry white neck of such delicate skin
 Such a bit of a waist, such a love of a head, such a foot, such an ankle, such an air of command!
 Such a lot of a woman.
 AS SHE SAID IT.
 Such a fair manly brow, such a modest moustache
 Such a sweet winning way, no swagger or dash
 Such love lighted eyes, such an aquiline nose
 Such a neck, such a necktie, such nice fitting clothes
 Such an air all at once, a model of grace
 Such a form, such a figure, such a beautiful face
 Such a gem of the specie beast, AS HERBERT ELKS SAID IT.
 Such a swell of a chap, such a gay flashing eye
 Such brains, more hair, no wisdom to sell
 Such over-weighted eye glasses astride such a nose
 Such earnest desire for the largest shows,
 Such motion, such gestures, so vulgar, so rude
 Such a pompous young snipe, such a mixing young snipe
 So queer is the human vision.

Slippery Once More!
 A DESCRIPTION OF THE VILLAIN.

The person who goes by the cognomen of Slippery Jack has again commenced his midnight manoeuvres, but for what object, other than law, we cannot at present tell. Two or three days ago we chronicled the fact, that he had pulled up the stairs, and the dwelling of Mr. Charles Hunt, and here we now to report his further progress in this mysterious business. The other night he seems to have left the scene of his late doings on Bathurst street, and is next heard from on the corner of Talbot and Morton streets, at the residence of Mrs. Coppin. He gained an entrance by lifting the dining-room window, taking care to fetch it up while in the house, so that he might make an easy retreat if necessary should require such. Once in, he prowled around for some time and then proceeded to the bedroom where a young lady was sleeping, and in his course thither walked through two bedrooms without molesting the occupants, or waking them. He then commenced to kiss the young lady's feet, and she thought it was some of her relatives, who were playing their tricks for the purpose of luring her away. After he had got through with the first kissing process, the young lady heard distinctly a sort of smothered laugh, and thinking all was right, again dozed over. He again tried the dodge, and the next more pulled up her feet. At the next attempt, Slippery appears to have been excited, and made considerable noise; at any rate the young lady woke up, and saw him standing near her bed with his coat off. She immediately screamed for help, and in an instant Slippery migrated down the stairs at a rapid pace, and left the house. The other members of the family woke up at the cry of the young lady, and heard distinctly the tread of his feet upon the stairs, and his jump into the garden. It was about six o'clock, and on their going outside, there was no one to be seen, but footprints were heard of some one approaching. The two brothers ran up to the gate near the sidewalk, and presently a short stout man came along, dressed in a light blue suit, and a ready hat, with an enormous stick in his hand. The brothers at first thought it was one of the neighbors going home, and concluded not to molest him. Just as the individual had passed them, he took to his heels, headed across the street like a deer, and was soon out of their sight. They then returned to the house, and sat for some time chatting over the mysterious visitor, when a considerable noise was heard on the street. They repaired thither, and found "Slippery" had been timing some of their neighbors, a little further down the street, and in the same direction which the strange man had taken. The house of Mr. Morse, in that neighborhood was also entered, and a dwelling adjoining him, the name of the occupant of which we did not ascertain. He, however, occupied "not less" from all these places, and still practices his midnight adventures. It would be some satisfaction to know how long he intends to keep this work up, and where he is next to visit. Do tell, John!—(London Free Press.)

What is the animal which has the head of a cat and the tail of a cat and the body of a cat, and yet which is not a cat?—Profrance Owen can't tell, but neither thinks it doesn't chew the end. Well, it's a kitten.
 The clergyman in a certain town, as the story is, having published the names of his names between two persons was favored by the clerk's reading the hymn beginning with those words, "Mistaken shall be dream of heaven?"

Two Heroes.

(From the London Daily Telegraph.)
 If ever there was an expedition which seemed like a tragical waste of human life, it was that of Burke and Wills seven years ago. The whole thing was over-estimated; it was done to death by committee. Whilst Byre and Sier had been content to sit back in light marching order, the same expedition was provided with so many telegraphs and so many canals that, when it started, it must have seemed as though Greenwich Observatory and the Zoological Gardens were going out together for a walk. A couple of hardy business could have done the work; but Australian exploration was still in its infancy. The guide and the camel-drivers soon came to grief; the scientific German gentlemen who accompanied the expedition "got lost," and had to be left behind; and the party which had quitted Melbourne amidst the cheers of thousands deluded down, growing faint by degrees and beautifully lame," until it consisted only of O'Hara Burke, the fearless Irishman, William J. Wills, his scientific assistant and second in command, and two others, King and Grey. With provisions for three months, the four men still persevered through respectable privations, and at length, striking a water-course amongst the hills, they followed it until it led them into a region where the luxuriant vegetation of the tropics almost effaced the memory of the Central Australian barrens. And so, still northwards, they pushed on, weak by this time, and beginning to have fears about the homeward march; but suddenly they came upon a river whose tidal ebb and flow of water showed that they had reached the Indian Ocean, at any rate, the great Carpentaria Gulf, which is only an inlet of the Ocean, as the river only an arm of the gulf. The touch of salt in the water, the ebb and flow of the tide, meant victory; and all that remained was to make a safe retreat, and carry back into the settlements the glad news that a path had been discovered across the Continent. They turned back, anxious at times, but hoping, as they had a right to hope, that when they reached the place of rendezvous on Cooper's Creek they would find relief. The march was hard, and one man died upon the road, so, unsuspected, indeed, of striking, until they found out how tragically starvation and weakness had worn him to the bone. At length, their own resources being exhausted, they reached, just as the Australian winter was beginning to close in, the rendezvous. As they approached the place there was no smoke to be seen through the trees; a strange silence prevailed, the signals were not answered; and in a few minutes they learnt that the relief party had abandoned them. Harvest the previous Celtic nature of O'Hara Burke fairly broke down, and in his wrath at a base desertion, in the misery of so utter an abandonment, his eyes were hooded with tears, and he sang himself close ferriest upon the earth, sobbing aloud. To be sure, it was somewhat hard! Deserted by those who should have helped him, he had marched across the continent; he had done a thing hitherto considered by no white man, if by any mortal; and here, coming back, almost within the pale of civilization, even seven years ago, he was left without a mouthful of food.
 Gloomily the explorers encamped, and from the first the fire seemed clear. Wills, a brave, clever Dorsetshire man of about twenty-two, the son of an old country squire at Totnes, had so fit of hysterical passion like that of Burke, but as plainly at Burke, he said that all was over. His brain kept clear and bright, but his bodily strength failed him so completely that he urged Burke and their humble companion, King, to leave him and try their chance. Not without much persuasion they consented; but they consented. Horribly, solemnly, the three exchanged their last farewell. How many days were over the passage of death were on Burke, and then, with a last touch of the wild Celtic bravado, which in him was almost beautiful from its innocence and honesty, he cried, "Leave my body on the ground where you find me, my body in my right hand, that will never find me any more than the 'Explosion!' And so King left him and, as in the time, the corpse was known. Well, meanwhile, had no such defiant speech to make; slowly he agonized; yet in the long sail of charity, amongst the Wills and the Wills, there is an death more heroically borne, not one accepted in a noble or pure spirit, then that of the young soldier, the son of a booby Dorsetshire doctor. The bitter south wind, harsh with Asterion rigor, came blowing up to guard him, and whistled through his rags, as he crept upon the ground, daily growing weaker. For a time he could gather enough of the root called "nardoo" to prevent starvation, though at the cost of terrible physical pain; and so long as his right hand could hold pen or pencil, he could write daily, setting the rights of Wills or the slow lamplike motion of clouds in the northward. He had strength enough left, this man, who perished through lack of food, to have him become he knew that he was dying,—he had strength enough left to make this entry, almost the last, in his journal: "I feel that starvation on nardoo is not so hard as I anticipated." His clothes one had with the other, that he may fall by the beating of the palm how near he is to death; he scrawls the figure in his book; he falls back senseless; and he dies.

 If his story were told of American colonists, it would be only a couple of hundred years old;—it would have been long by a hundred years; it would, by this time, have been one of the sacred traditions of the national life; but it is not yet more than six years old; it is related in newspapers instead of chronicles; and it is comparatively unknown.

The Fenian Craze.

The N. Y. World says: "The Fenian bark Pluto, after a cruise of three months, returned to New York on the 26th ult. She is of 500 tons burden, and left here on the 21th of April, with a crew of forty men, an armament of ten twelve-pounders, and troops to the number of 350. Every man was armed with a Springfield rifle, and in addition she carried about a thousand stand of arms, with sufficient ammunition. The purpose of the cruise was to ascertain whether it was possible to load a large number of men on the Irish coast, it being curiously argued that if one small vessel could load the Fenian cruisers, so a hundred transports could. She got across the 'rearing main' in twenty-three days, with only one danger, which occurred upon encountering an English man-of-war of the coast of Newfoundland. This peril she triumphantly passed by flying the American flag. She first made a landing on the life of Terry, the people of which did not greet her warmly. She afterwards she duly cruised along the coast, landing at several places, in each of which the officers had long talks with leading Fenians from the shore, and all of which, except one, resulted in the decision not to invade Ireland just then. The exception was off the coast of Waterford, where, after the usual comers, six brave fellows left the bark to die or be captured; the latter fate did befall them shortly afterwards. Finally the arrival of the Pluto became generally known throughout the island, and it was determined to return to the States. During the passage back provisions ran short, and the crew and passengers were obliged to depend upon the chance American ships that they met for supplies. On arriving here the arms and ammunition was disembarked and taken charge of by the Brotherhood."
 The Ministers (Chib) Standard gives the following important information for food-growers: "If sheep are kept in the same lot with cows or fat cattle no dogs will disturb them. As soon as the dog approach them they run to the cattle, who drive off the dogs. A farmer of fifty years in Shelby adopted the plan, and never lost a sheep by dogs, although in the neighborhood the dogs killed sheep to the north and south of him."
 LATS AND EARLY.—The regular routine of clearly business filled the history and the upward bits of Charles Lamb. Once at the India house, a superior said to him, "I have remarked, Mr. Lamb that you come very late to office." "Yes, sir," said the wit, "but you must remember that I go away early." The odious of the above situated the reprover.
 AN UNCOMMON PROPORTION.—Two officers observing a fat girl in a milliner's shop, the one an Irishman, proposed to go in and buy a watch ribbon, in order to get a nearer view of her. "Hoist, man," says his northern friend, "no occasion to waste siller; let us grab in and speer if she can give us two sixpences for a shillin'!"
 Mr. Brown, I owe you a grudge; remember that. "I shall not be forgotten, then," replied Mr. B., "for I never knew you to pay anything that you owed."
 "If there is anybody under the canopy of Heaven that I have a later attachment," says Mrs. Partridge, "it is the slandering, going about like a boy constructor, circulating his calumnies upon honest folk."
 The man who never told an odious lie could better his paper has gone out west to marry the woman who never looked into a looking-glass.
 In Illinois the average hedge is planted, cultivated, and weeded, for one year, at 20 cents a rod. In two years it will keep out all stock, and it is said to cost 500 years.
 No man so well understands farming as he who has made poor land rich, and he will keep it rich. He is like one who has earned a thousand dollars.
 Fruit is the antidote of fever, and both come in an even season. The best remedy for the bite of a rattlesnake is loblin, which grows around its den.
 To surround an orchard with hedges of evergreen is to limit a climate good to one 200 miles south. When the country was new, peach grew in Massachusetts.

Joyce Dorman's Story.

By IRAN BROWNE.
CHAPTER XX.
Two hours later Mr. Carmichael sat in his study awaiting a guest—a guest whom, till within the last six months, he had never expected to see beneath the roof of Green Oaks.

It is difficult to say what was Mr. Carmichael's exact feelings as he rubbed his hands softly, and a gleam of triumph lighted up his eyes, and now an anxious expression would cross his brow, and his lips would become compressed.
"What was he thinking?—Not of the years that had passed since he had left Australia, but of the time preceding them. A quick ring at the door bell.

Aunt Letty, listening in the drawing room, held her breath.
She knew it was Mr. Crawford Lynn coming to see Mr. Carmichael on important business, but she knew nothing further. A cloud of mist and dust hovered around her, and she saw nothing clearly.
Doris was half kneeling at Aunt Letty's feet, resting her head on her knee. She was crying bitterly, though she scarce knew why; but a sense of impending trouble to the Lynn family, of which she was somehow the cause, pressed heavily upon her.

Joyce sat very still, trying to see, but her brain was busier than her fingers, and the piece of work fell from her hands; so she leaned her head back, shut her eyes, and tried to place together the thoughts and events of the last few weeks.
"Somehow the servant knew that business of importance was going on—servants always do know everything; and there was an air of solemnity in the manner in which the man opened the door for Mr. Crawford Lynn, and ushered him into his master's study."

Mr. Carmichael rose, but he did not put out his hand, though he was not rubbing his hands now; they were folded behind him. He bowed slightly to Mr. Lynn, and the two men gazed at each other as though in amazement. Mr. Carmichael, unwilling to make the first move.
Mr. Carmichael sat and composed, yet with a nervous twitch ever and anon working at the corners of his mouth; Mr. Lynn, trembling with emotion, anxious and yet to appear calm, to frame his question in suitable words. Both were silent. Mr. Carmichael pointed his finger to a seat. Mr. Lynn sat down and then rose again, and looked at the mantelpiece.

"You desire to ask for some information, Mr. Lynn?" said Mr. Carmichael, and a gleam came into his eye and passed away like a fleeting mist upon his thin lips.
"But Mr. Lynn did not see it, he was looking down upon the ground, his hands were clasped convulsively, and his lips were trying to frame a word, but no sound came. Again and again he endeavored to command his tongue, but at length a faint, almost inaudible word burst forth, so sharp and clear in its impelling tones that even Mr. Carmichael was startled.
"Ellen!"

It died away, and there was no answer. And again the anguished lips moved.
"Your wife?"
"Your wife, my longest wife!" exclaimed Mr. Lynn. "If you have the heart of a man, tell me what of my wife?"
"Your wife," said Mr. Carmichael, "my wife, Ellen Carmichael?"
"My wife!"
"My wife, Mr. Lynn," said Mr. Carmichael, "emphatically, I have a long business in hand."

Mr. Lynn threw himself into the chair and looked eagerly forward.
"I find," began Mr. Carmichael, "by the parish register in the village of Hillfield county—where Mr. Carmichael was interred."
"What count?"
"London count," said Mr. Carmichael, "I am a business man, and must proceed in order. In the register I find in the year 18—, just twenty years ago, the entry of the marriage of John Crawford and Ellen Carmichael. Why this marriage was kept secret at the time I cannot tell, perhaps you can inform me only to be for a time."

Mr. Carmichael went on.
"The witness to this marriage was Henry Bagnave, and after the marriage you went to Australia. My sister followed in the next vessel with Henry Bagnave and his wife, ostensibly as governess to a great niece of Mrs. Bagnave's. Am I right?"
Mr. Lynn nodded.

"I had quarrelled with my sister, and had determined never to speak to her again, therefore her movements were nothing to me, and I was not inquiring that I was made acquainted with them. She was free to go where she pleased, and I did not know that she had left England, until I saw in a paper an account of the loss of the Allerton. It was stated that with the exception of a few of the crew saved in the longboat, all on board had perished. Amongst the names in the list of passengers, I read that of Ellen Carmichael. Of your death, or rather your supposed death, I should say, I had heard previously, and then I felt that, and until lately have had no communication with anyone there."

Mr. Lynn had been sitting quietly himself to listen until Mr. Carmichael had finished speaking. Now he said in a subdued voice,
"And you never knew that your sister was my wife?"
"I should think six months ago."

Mr. Lynn started to his feet.
"And how, how did you know then?"
"My sister told me on her deathbed. Ellen Carmichael did not perish at sea."
"Did not she drown?"
"But living through those long years?"
Mr. Lynn clutched Mr. Carmichael by the shoulder; severely he looked into his face; fleetly as he would he read his intense

"High Carmichael, is this true?"
"As I live, it is true."
Mr. Lynn dropped into his chair and closed his eyes.
"Go on," he groaned; "in mercy, go on, and tell me all these things to hear."
"Your wife and child were saved. They had been put into a boat with some other passengers by the captain, and were taken up by a Spanish vessel bound for Lisbon, where they were landed, and from thence made their way to England. My sister did not go into the north to the old place, but found a home in the south, where she lived, and where she died."

"How long have you known that she was living?"
"Seven years, but never of her marriage until on her deathbed she disclosed the secret. It could do harm to her, she said."
"Why should you tell?"
"Why should I tell? You came here a rich man, with a beautiful wife and children, and what matter was it to you that the sister of the man you scorned, and who was thought to be long since dead, was getting her living by hand making in an obscure village in Devonshire?"
"I never accused you, Hugh Carmichael," said Mr. Lynn, "and if you had any ground for believing so, you are amply recompensed to day."

"Yes, Mr. Carmichael, was revengeful; he felt that he had triumphed over the man whom he had hated all his life. In that point of view he was certainly tasting of the sweets of revenge. Yet bitter so later, that the sweet would not sweeten it, came the thought that he had been far more sinning than he seemed to be."

All that he could only justify, his mother told to the injured party, if he would be satisfied and satisfied at first, it leaves no feeling so as to be. Time, the great healer comes and fits it with his hand, and soothes the irritation, pouring in pain and all ill all is well again. It is easier to say and to justify, to forgive than to seek forgiveness."

Of course, these thoughts found no place in Mr. Carmichael's speculations. True, he had a vague idea that he should be glad to find some lost one wherein his, and not Mr. Lynn, had been the injured party; but he was not to be so easily satisfied. What was he to be content himself with gazing over his present triumph, such as it was.

"You saw my wife on her deathbed, Hugh Carmichael," said Mr. Lynn, in a low, agitated voice.
"Yes."
"Did she leave no message, no remembrance?"
"None. No knowledge of your marriage—of your children; and she begged me to take care of her."

"No message; no one word?"
"None."
Again Mr. Lynn groaned.
"It is a satisfaction to me that my sister, though dead, yet be righted in the justice you can do her kindly. Will you do this, Mr. Carmichael?"
Mr. Lynn looked wonderingly at Mr. Carmichael, as though he did not see the drift of his speech.

"Will you do justice to her child?" repeated Mr. Carmichael.
"Her child? My child? I stood heaven's witness as you see me for? My child? My Ellen's child, what should I not do for her? Where is she? Let me have my child!"

"Your eldest child, remember," said Mr. Carmichael, "emphatically, I claim the estate of Lynncrest for my niece Doris Crawford."
But Mr. Lynn heard not his words; there was but one thought in his heart, his new found daughter.

Strange that his heart should have been so much moved, he scarcely knew what he was doing, he was drawing them together, bringing the daughter of his first wife to watch by the last wife's deathbed. Strange that they both should have along to her in their last solemn hours, as though the one had sent the messenger of peace to hush the crier to her wakeful sleep, that so in death they might be linked together, and leave a daughter orphaned to her love for their united ashes. Oh, Doris! Doris!

"Take me to Doris," he said.
And Mr. Carmichael led the way to the drawing room, where Doris still sat leaning her head upon Aunt Letty's lap. She had left off crying, but her eyes were heavy and swollen.

"Your mother was so kind to have been present at her death," said Mr. Carmichael, "I should like to see her." "Doris, my daughter! Ellen Carmichael was my wife."
But Doris did not speak, she even now will cry and fall senseless into Mr. Lynn's arms.

CORRUPTION IN THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The Albany correspondent of the New York Tribune gives a synopsis of a memorial presented to the Constitutional Convention, on Wednesday, by Mr. H. B. Wilson, in regard to legislative corruption at Albany, which makes the following extracts:—
"Mr. Wilson states that his knowledge had been acquired during four successive sessions at Albany in efforts to secure the passage of an act to suppress the restrictions upon the sale of liquor by retail in New York. Newspapers had alluded to it, but no official report had published in Albany, and he was unable to obtain a limited number of unprinted pamphlets, but the bill had included a large majority of the Legislature. The New York Tribune ascertained, during the last sitting of that body, that of the 100 members in the two houses, 45 were known to receive bribes from any party requiring their vote. This statement fell below the mark. There were nearly that number in one branch alone. Many took pay from both sides when there were competing interests. His adding to this inquiry, he ascertained that the maximum of the more excellent the demands upon the promoters. CONTRACT.

Mr Ward will give his last juvenile Entertainment in the Drill Hall Northampton, on Wednesday next, 11th inst.

Four columns of the Belfast News Letter of the 11th inst. are occupied with a report of the proceedings at a grand demonstration made the night previous in honor of...

Mr McNamara, in the town of Perth, has commenced his business of Watchmaker, &c. in Paisley, and will be quite as popular as the locality.

At election times, particularly when the time of voting approaches, the wisest voters are not going in order to initiate voters or to catch votes. Election should, however, vote according to their convictions of right and duty.

The CANADIAN CONSTITUTIONALIST. This is the title of a large and handsome paper published in Toronto by Bell & Co.

The London Free Press says:—The news of Mr Brown's election has struck with the force of a thunderbolt in all the country constituencies in the West. This is particularly the case in Lanark and the two Elgins.

It is noteworthy that upon the very day on which Mr Brown was elected in North Ontario, the Hon W. McDougall was elected by acclamation in the Globe as the "sound reformer" of North Lanark.

Two important successes have taken place for the Union cause which deserve especial mention. The first is that in Linlithgow, a county that was regarded by Mr. McMillan, who moved the vote of want of confidence last session, here Mr. Benson has been returned, a man of liberal opinions, and heartily favoring the government.

What Does He Mean? Dr. Parker, in a late speech, says he is "in favor of Free Trade," but would at the same time improve the judicial system of the province. In order to "foster our native manufactures."

A subscriber to the Canada Christian Advocate, having proposed the reduction of the price of the paper to 81 a year, leaving only 43 cents to pay all expenses of publishing.

In endeavoring to form the local government of Ontario, the Hon. Sandfield Macdonald says he first went to Mr. McMillan of Toronto, who, however, said he was afraid of the Globe, which would not allow any one to be at the head of the government who was not one of its own clique.

The Toronto Globe is quick at discovering the bad effects of party when it operates against "our party." A late number says:—

There never was a better illustration of the evil effects of party than the support given by a very large number of Conservatives to Mr. J. A. Bayne's motion.

Did not the Globe once support a candidate of the name of Bunnine against the Hon Mr. Allan, and Bayne is certainly not a worse man than Bunnine was.

The Elgin Observer says:—From two to three loads of new fall wheat come into the market for sale every week. It is paying for the best samples from 81 to 91.

It is a fact worth noting, that George Brown never represented the same constituency twice.

The Wholly Gazette says:—The South Ontario election has been held on the 4th inst. and the result is as follows:—

Very little of roofing has been built in the neighbourhood of the Central Railway Road from the...

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the "Wholly Advocate." Dear Sir:—I enclose your correspondent's article which has been in your issue, and publishes a batch of resolutions in support of them.

I do not feel called upon to waste much time in replying to anonymous writers, but will simply call attention to facts which, if noticed, can be easily contradicted or supported by the signature of some respectable party.

Being sure that I had never made a resolution, or written a declaration of some kind, I wrote to Kingston after your correspondent's last letter appeared in a party there to examine the resolution referred to. He found it with Dr. Ross, but it was not in my handwriting.

By giving this place in your paper you will again oblige. Yours truly, A. SHAW, Walsworth, Aug. 20th, 1867.

The Future and the Past. (From the London Free Press.) The results attained by the progress of the elections justify those who have claimed for the last governments under the new constitution a general consolidation.

THE TROUBLED PULLY.—A shocking report from West Cornwall. On evening a youth, aged 17, named Walls, whose mother had been in the parish of Parnham, left the situation service at the neighboring but shortly returned and asked his mother to let him have a look for one in a corner behind the door, and he forthwith proceeded to do so. Near the window an old girl playfully took up and pointed at her, aged 14, who was laughing on her. In an unguarded moment he the trigger, and to his horror, a shot of instantly passed through the girl, and killed her on the spot. The man to her, and called her name, and saw a corpse, and then fell into a swoon and fainted. He had been greatly attached to his niece, and an inquest was held, and a verdict of "manslaughter" returned.—Excerpt.

DEATH OF ELIAS HENSON, JR.—The medical man, was attending of the heart, and after seeking to relieve at Fort and Lane, removed to Bridgeport, Conn., to die. When just at death's door after his body was well up and sure black, he heard a New York female physician, and laid emphasis for his case, pronounced, and he is now able to travel about freely.

THE KING OF DENMARK.—The King of Denmark given Iceland a constitution in about to be submitted to the legislative body of that island (the Althing) or its approval. The new constitution to the Icelandic the same liberties were granted to the Danes by the act of the 5th of June, 1849, and the Danish monarchs are to swear to the Icelandic constitution in whole they are covered. The constitution provides that, though Iceland is to be inseparable part of the Danish Kingdom, it is to maintain its own laws and institutions in local matters.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.—On Wednesday evening a school was held by the flood on in the Temperance Hall, which was largely attended by the members of the lodge, together with a few invited friends. The program was provided by the members of the lodge, and of pleasing feature being the exhibition of an album containing a set of photographs of the members, John McArthur, who it appears is leaving for Paisley to commence a course for himself.—(Paisley News.)

NEW YORK TIMES.—The Times of New York says that skilled men 25 per cent lower in that city was nine months since. Labor is everywhere than it should be at the cost of living.

JACKSON, MISS.—A planter recently in rearing a beautiful field of about fifty acres. The next morning whole field was found riddled by worms.

THE WHOLE OF THE DENMARK.—The whole of the members of the Danish Government have been elected, and all those belonging to the Christian Government that have as yet appeared at the polls, have been successful. The "traitors," "swaggers," "starcuts," consisting of Harriet J. Smith, Madeline W. McDougall, W. P. Howland, and the "Constitutionists," Mr. John A. Macdonald, M. C. Cameron, and Mrs. John Caring, have been elected by the people by large majorities, but the Hon. Geo. Brown, the only true patriot and genuine individual, has been rejected. Strange, very!

A Modern Claudio Buval.

Thomas Herbert Green, the horse thief, remained as much for his daring efforts to break jail, as for his numerous robberies in Western Canada, made a fifth attempt at escape on Thursday morning. He was brought up at a Police Court on a fresh charge of larceny, when he asked leave to consult Mr. Mitchell, his lawyer, for half an hour. The case was accordingly adjourned for that time, and the prisoner and counsel were left together in the Police Magistrate's office. The door being left open, the Chief Constable was in the act of entering, and quietly slipped off his shoes. He then sprang through the open window and ran for the wood pile in rear of the Market House. The chief saw him, and in following chase was kept up until the prisoner reached the grounds below Mr. Stone's store, where Constable Griffiths, who happened to be in that part of the town, ran up and caught him at the moment as the Chief himself.—(Paisley Advertiser.)

WHEAT EXPORT OF THE UNITED STATES. It is now settled that a sufficient amount of wheat has been harvested to leave an unusually large surplus for export beyond the necessary wants of the home market. This brings the case, and, as we must seek a foreign market to dispose of our surplus, or let the price in our market probably determine the price in New York and Chicago during the coming year. The price has always been the case in seasons when low and wheat have been largely exported. The rate in Liverpool, of course, will be determined by the imports from Russia and the Continent, together with the result of the home harvest. From our foreign files we judge that, though the English harvest is deficient, the Continental crop of wheat will be in excess of former years; and hence all the indications point to a year of cheap flour.—[N. Y. World.]

A FLOUR BREAK.—The Frankfort (Ky) Commonwealth of the 23rd says: We are informed that on Friday last the following incident occurred at South Union Baptist Church. We suppose that he was waked up one week, at least. Near the close of the sermon, a snake five feet long, and some four or five inches in diameter, crawled in at the door and up the aisle, passing near the feet of several gentlemen, causing them to jump from the front of the pew, and stretched itself out in back of the pulpit and laid perfectly still, watching the minister until the close of the service. Then it waded and lung up in a tree as a warning to all disturbers of religious worshippers.

Sparkling Water.

Come, let us sing of fount and spring, And nobly stagger first, And tune our pipes to him always,— The great and gracious fiver.

Chorus. No drink but water can compare— We'll drink it all full hearty.

The sweetest draft that can be quaffed Is water sparkling clearly.

Chorus. Each leeny lass, whose song is heard Through hall or kitchen ringing, At stream's brink, will blithely drink To tunc her voice to singing.

Chorus. No drink with water can compare, &c.

Each noble lad, whose song is heard Through grove and meadow ringing, At stream's brink, will blithely drink To tunc his voice to singing.

Chorus. No drink with water can compare, &c.

Joyce Dormer's Story.

BY ANNE BONDAGE.

CHAPTER XXII.

Doris lay low awake that night. Her poor little brain was seething, aching, and she could not clear it of confusion. In vain she pressed her hand to her forehead to smother away the troubled thoughts. She lay still for a few seconds, trying to bring back quietness to her agitated mind. But it was useless; even when she had driven the fierce waters back, they ran again higher than before, and poured their scorching tide in an overwhelming torrent over her soul.

She tried to analyze her feelings, but she could not comprehend them. All that she could make out was a desire to be away, a vague presentiment that she had to fight to be where she was, and above all, an ever increasing distrust of Mr. Carmichael.

The old contented life in the poor village came to her remembrance, and she saw her mother moving gently about and making of that humble abode a blessed place, wherein a guardian angel dwelt and smiled her.

That poor mother! How she had suffered and suffered patiently! With the writing of the packet a clear light had dawned upon her.

It was as if a voice from the ideal had told it to her, she understood now the last few words of her mother's life. She understood now why she had prized next to her Bible the laureate's poem.

Her dreamy night in November it had been long that she had almost spent hours, equally, but by a strong effort she restrained herself.

"I am going to take a long walk, Joyce," she said to herself, they were alone again.

"No!" she answered, looking anxiously at her; "there is no time for that."

"I am a little sick, this walk will do me good."

And Doris laughed—a strange, hollow laugh that chilled her mother's heart.

"I'm not accustomed to being an heiress," continued she, "or to being Miss (Dorothy) Lynn, of Lynnwood. How does it feel, Joyce?"

"Not natural at present, certainly. But why should you take it so much to heart? You are mother and have looked forward to this, or otherwise did she give you the packet?"

There was something in Joyce's argument, yet, strange to say, instead of water, she had to be content with a little of the same.

"My mother was unwell," she replied, "and she died, then she stayed a new thought here, 'stay, where is the packet? It had not been in my hand, I am not of consequence. Perhaps this is not the time to give it. I will keep it a little longer.'"

"I left it on the table last night," replied Joyce, "my mother's paper, and she left up several papers that were lying there, thinking to find it underneath."

But it was gone.

For my secret, she thought, but the packet was nowhere to be found.

so's memory?

Yet Mr. Lynn was gullible. True; but she could not see him again, neither would she claim her inheritance. She had battled with poverty all her life until now she could see no gain.

"I am glad to hear it, dear, it will do you all the good in the world," said Aunt Letty, kissing her affectionately.

He had been thinking of the garden and in to the road. She felt that it was not place one foot before the other, and that she was trying in vain to flee.

"I am better," she said, "but you will be quite well by the time Mr.

T. the Husband who Uses Tobacco.

For it is the chair from morning till night,
The smoke, the smoke,
It is a divine pleasure to me,
To sit and smoke with all his might,
To be as good as dead,
To smoke, the smoke,
To smoke, the smoke.

The girl goes in when the pipe goes out,
To smoke, the smoke,
Now a cloud of smoke comes from his throat,
Then his mouth needs a constant stream
Of coffee to carry a will or a host,
To smoke, the smoke, the smoke.

He sits all day in a smoke or fog,
To smoke, the smoke,
He grows at his wife, and the dog,
He enters with all the carpet and rug,
And his only reply when I give him a log,
To smoke, the smoke, the smoke.

The house all over, from end to end,
To smoke, the smoke,
To whatever room my way I lead,
I take his old clothes to patch and mend,
Ungrateful perfume will be used,
Of smoke, the smoke, the smoke.

At home or abroad, near or far,
To smoke, the smoke,
His mouth is stuffed to the brim,
He smokes the stump of a pipe as dear,
And his days will end, I verily fear,
In smoke, the smoke, the smoke.

A Confirmed Drunkard.

The following will bear republishing occasionally:
Some time ago there lived in Edinburgh a drunken grumbler named Steady Black, whose often-recurring fits of spleen or depression produced some amusing scenes of senseless violence, which were highly resented by all except the brute's good patient little wife. One morning Steady rose as usual; he took his tub and eggs were excellent, done to the burn, and had been ordered by himself the previous evening, and breakfast panned without the looked for cause of complaint.

"What was your name for your dinner, Steady?" said Mrs. Black.
"A chicken, ma'am," said the husband.
"Heat or boiled?" asked the wife.

"Confused it, ma'am, if you had been a good and considerate wife, you'd have known before this what I liked," Steady growled out, and, slamming the door behind him, left the house. It was in the spring, and a friend who was present heard the little wife say, "Steady's bent on a disturbance to-day; I shall not please him, do you see!"

The dinner-time came, and Steady and his friend sat down to dinner; the fish was cold in place, and, on raising the cover, the dish before him, in a towering passion, he called out, "Blessed chicken! I wish it were a chicken boiled in a chicken's blood!"

Immediately the cover was raised for another chicken, roasted in a stew.

"Madam, I won't eat roast chicken," roared Steady; "you know how it should be to be cooked!"

At that instant a broiled chicken, with mushrooms was placed on the table.

"Without green peas!" roared the grumbler.
"Here they are, dear," said Mrs. Black. "How dare you spend my money in that way?"

"They were a present," said the wife, interrupting him.

Rising from his chair and rushing from the room, amidst a roar of laughter from his friend, he clanked his fist and shouted, "I love thee, you receive a present without my leave!"

Captain Horatio Ross.—From an entertaining book of sporting gossip recently published under the odd title of "Sporting Sports," we learn the words of Captain Horatio Ross himself, the secret of the remarkable penetration of a few vigorous youths to a late period of life, which is characteristic of that renowned deer-stalker and rifle shot. "I attribute it," says Captain Ross, "to a great measure to having always kept myself in a state of moderate training. I have always lived well, and for in my years have drunk nothing but light beer, and have had a very good dinner, whether in my own country, whether the weather was in or the reverse, to walk regularly eight miles, and generally twelve miles, every day, every day, unless I had the opportunity of going out shooting. I have also, for a great many years, been very particular in taking a spicing bath of cold water every evening." And now at sixty-five an age which most men are verging towards "young children"—he can walk his fifty miles, at three and a half miles an hour, without fatigue. What he can do with the rest of his body, you may be able to surmise. It is in the last number of the "Sporting Sports" that we are introduced to Captain Ross, and training, as it is understood and practiced at Oxford and Cambridge, are two different things.—[Pall Mall Gazette.]

A young man in Paris has just invented a new mode of a new method of catching the stick fly pin in his breast, and then to catch it. He left a letter saying that he was weary of life, and had chosen that mode of putting an end to his existence. A doctor, however, who had been the first to suggest, a Parisian who declares a new method of "shooting off the mortal coil" should be awarded all the honors due a great discoverer.

A WARNING TO LADIES.—It has been recommended that manufacturers of sewing machines, in order to increase the weight, make it of lead. Women are very apt to hold a thread of silk in the hand, and the lead thus introduced into the system acts as a slow poison.

The Mysterious Woman.

In the memoir of Gov. Briggs, we find this anecdote recorded as it was first related by him at a great meeting in Albany. At a certain point meeting in Pennsylvania, the speaker came up whether any person should be licensed to sell rum. The clergyman, the doctor, the physician, the lawyer, all spoke, all favored it. The man only spoke against it because of the mischief it did. The question was about to be put, when all at once there arose from a corner of the room a miserable woman. She was thick clad, and her appearance indicated that she was a poor creature, and that her mortal career was almost closed. After a moment's silence, and all eyes being fixed upon her, she stretched her attenuated body to its utmost height, and then her arms in their greatest length, and raising her voice in a shrill pitch, she called all to look upon her.

"Yes," said she, "look upon me and then hear me. All that the first speaker has said tends to tempt me to drink, as being the father of drunkenness, is true. All practice, all experience, declares its truth. All drinking of alcoholic poisons as a beverage, is excess. Look upon me, for you all know me, or at least you all know I was once mistress of the best farm in the town; you all know too, I had one of the best—and most devoted of husbands; you all know I had five noble-hearted, industrious boys, and six sturdy and well-behaved girls, and they are now! You all know; you know they are in a row side by side in yonder churchyard, all—overgrown of them filling a drunkard's grave. They were all taught to be temperate, and to abstain from wine, and that excess alone ought to be avoided and they never acknowledged excess. They quoted you, and you, and you" (pointing with her shorn finger to the minister, the doctor, and the lawyer). "They thought themselves safe under such teachers. But I saw the gradual change coming over my family and prospects with dismay and horror; I felt we were all to be estranged from one another, and I tried in ward off the blow; I tried to break the spell—the delusive spell—in which the idea of the benefits of temperate drinking had involved my husband and sons. I begged I prayed; but the evils were against me. The minister said the poison that was destroying my husband and sons was a good provision of God; the doctor said it was the devil's work; and the lawyer said it was the power of the devil; and he said that a little was good, and excess ought to be avoided. My poor husband and my dear boys fell into the snare, and they could not escape; and one after another they were covered in the sorrowful grave of the drunkard."

"Now look at me again. You probably see me for the first time. My mind-of-life have almost run out. I have dragged my exhausted frame from my present home—your point-house—to wash you, decent to men you, false teacher of God's word! and with her arms dug high, and her neck form stretched to its utmost, and her voice raised to an unearthly pitch, she exclaimed, "I shall upon this before the judgment seat of God, I shall meet you there, you false guides, and be witness against you all!"

The miserable woman vanished. A deaf silence pervaded the assembly; the minister, the doctor, and the lawyer long their heads; and the President of the meeting put the question, "Should I license the man granted for the sale of spirituous liquors?" the unanimous response was "No!"

At the University Convocation at Albany, a teacher stated that certain kinds of food were more nourishing to the brain than others. He stated that "if a scholar cannot resolve a problem easily, his brain should be absorbed by a good meal of tripe. The superiority of the boar-chimney is owing to its meat, and the degeneracy of the present inhabitants of Massachusetts to the use of fine wheat flour."

The only fruit which grows in every all state is the strawberry. It is the only fruit which grows in every all state is the strawberry. It is the only fruit which grows in every all state is the strawberry. It is the only fruit which grows in every all state is the strawberry.

A fellow was kicked out of an editorial room the other day for impudently stating that he had been in Germany a while on a large that it required two horses to draw the box across the strings, which would continue to sound for six weeks!

At a printer's festival recently held in Lowell, Mass. The following toast was presented: "The printer—the master of all trades.—He looks the farmer with his hoe, the carpenter with his rule, and the mason with setting up tall columns—he expresses the lawyer and doctor in standing, to his name, and beats a good deal of tripe. The superiority of the boar-chimney is owing to its meat, and the degeneracy of the present inhabitants of Massachusetts to the use of fine wheat flour."

A French christy man that thirty pounds of flesh, thirty-two pounds of blood, and fifty-two pounds of bone, contain as much nitrogen as one thousand pounds of fresh meat and bones. The carbon of a man's body is worth more than a ton of the best iron yard measure, for the purpose of vegetation.

A young man who attended church in Minneapolis, Minn., last Sunday week, went to sleep during the service, and while sleeping suddenly arose to his feet, and with violent gestures exclaimed, "I won't do it! I won't do it! I am going to bed! He was prevented from retiring in so public a place by being awakened.

We lately met a grammarian, says a California paper, who has just made a tour through the mines, consulting, or rather copying, some of the "Pioneer" and other contemporary papers. He is now at the establishment of securities for young ladies where epigraphy, knology, wearology, etc. can be taught—the grammar to receive the degree of P. F. W., or Fit for Wives.

THE STOMACH.—I firmly believe that almost every ailment of the human frame is either the result of, or connected with, the stomach. The most of every other member are founded on your stomach (numbered) and I maintain I have seen a fashionable physician mysteriously consulting the pulse of his patient, but I feel a desire to explain, why he will tell the poor gentleman that he is out of order, and that he must take care, for you have eaten too much, and you've drunk too much, and you have not taken exercise enough! The human frame was not created imperfect. It is we ourselves who have made it so. There exists no disease in creation not originated in our stomachs.

SECRET.—You should be careful not to entrust another unnecessarily with a secret which it may be a hard matter for him to keep, and which may dispose him to somebody's displeasure when it has been discovered that he is the object of your confidence. Your desire for aid, or sympathy, is not to be indulged by dragging other people into your misfortunes. There is as much responsibility in imparting your own secrets, as in keeping those of your neighbors.

The local descendant of Dermot M'Murrough, the last Irish King, is now working as a stone-mason at buildings at Foster Park, Liverpool. The unadmitted representative of the exalted Earl of Eglar, who is finished in the time of Elizabeth, and who gets that monarch a good deal of trouble in Ireland, is a policeman in the Liverpool police force.

In the Mississippi swamps timothy and berds grass have been found, the former of which was first first three inches high, with heads eight inches long. The berds grass was four feet three inches high. The seed was four fangs scattered during the war.

When Van Amburgh's show was in Burlington, Iowa, a few days ago, and passing through the street, the old elephant, Tippo, snub refused to go forward on the street, and so the procession could not proceed. It was said that this same animal fell through this bridge some two years ago, while attempting to cross it, and he is supposed to have remembered it.

A caricature has been published which represents Uncle Sam riding on a big back, with Canada under him, his head on his new Russian purchase, taking an ice cream, and his legs cramped up by a rickety fence named Mexico. Uncle Sam, indignantly, says he will have to stretch his legs soon. The picture tickles the Texans amazingly.

In the little town of Wins, Maine, one hundred thousand birds are annually tanned into sale to be at one January—said to be the largest in the world.

A young man in this city has commenced studying German by drinking lager beer. It is hard to tell whether the students will master him or be the reverse.

A man died at Cairo, Ill., one day last week, from the effects of holding a large piece of ice in his hand while he was overcast.

The London Times has made the discovery that with the exception of a battery or two at Malta and Halifax, all the military settlements—Bermuda, the Mauritius, Aden, even Gibraltar itself—are without any effective artillery.

Joyce looked at her wonderingly. Now, Aunt Lotty's position appeared to be a most peculiar one. She was a widow, and she had a young daughter...

They were my departure from this life, but then I knew that they were my departure, and not parts of it; and yet I felt as if I had been in another world.

It was all very different from the romantic adventures occurring in every-day life, and actually being an ordinary life...

It is not really more romantic than romance itself. I wonder at Doris's courage in daring to take this journey, forgetting how much more she could have done for her father...

The Power of Love.

From the upper window of a tall house one day seen, in a crowded street, a male in a coat, and the driver with a stick in his hand. The male had evidently been insulted, if not assaulted, and his dignity thereby much wounded. The driver circled around his temper, as to make him, for a time, disobedient to the commands of his master. He was as deaf to threats as he was callous to the blows freely dealt across his ribs by the driver.

Matters, however, soon came to a crisis, for such treatment was not to be borne; and, not over by a male, accustomed as he is to cruelty in all its forms. The male decided, under the circumstances, not to pull the cart; and therefore he came to a stand still in front of one window. The male seemed quite determined that he would not go; and his master seemed equally resolved that he would not let him go. The male, however, was not to be so easily put off; and he applied his stick to the poor male's back, but to no purpose; for more he would not do. 'You shall go!' said his master; and thereupon he got out with all his might, pulled at his head.

It was now a matter of male force between the two, but the male proved the stronger; for, instead of the master pulling the male, the male pulled the master in the opposite direction.

Now the people began to stand and look. A crowd assembled. Some seemed very much to enjoy the contest. Some said the male was right, others the man was right; and those who thought the male was wrong went to help the man to make the male go. Some got behind the cart, and laid hold of the wheels, while the master tagged away at the poor creature's head. By the united strength of the whole, the poor male was overcome, and on he went a few yards.

The men thought it was alright now. They had got the victory and were in high spirits; they left the cart to see the result. But no; the male was only overcome by superior force. His determination not to go was the same as ever; and, when they ceased to push, he ceased to go. 'I'll be as good as mine, or could not wait to see the end, and went on about their own business, which, perhaps, they were more able to attend to than they were the male's.

No sound did these who first formed the crowd do these others came up to look, and to ask: 'What's the matter?'

'Matter enough!' says one; 'don't you see that the male won't go? and his master don't know how to make him go.'

'His master's old enough to know,' says another; 'but perhaps he won't be told.'

The old man overheard this, and in a peevish tone said, 'You can't tell me.'

'Well, here's the stick! I'll show you if you give me the stick.'

'Well, here's the stick. Now do it.'

Upon this the stick changed hands; and it was time to bid for the contest had lasted from a clock to half five.

One here and a half lost, and the male in that time had only been violently pushed along some fifty yards. All thought the man driver was going upon the old trick of pushing force and hard-lashed blows. No, no; there had been too much of that already; and he wanted to try a power that had not yet been brought to bear. That power was in the law of kindness. His foot on the stick, and he laid it to the male, and then the male's might laid it on the ground, and then went up to the poor creature and patted his neck, and stroked his nose, and looked into his face with a smile, and spoke words in a very kind, soothing tone. A cart-top was begged of the green-proofer close by, and offered.

At first, the male was not inclined to take it; but with a little more stroking and patting, and smiling and kind words, he took it and ate it, and looked round for more. His sour look was evidently passing away, and he was beginning to assume his usual aspect. A little more stroking and patting, and the male immediately answered, and off it went with a will and a purpose to serve faithfully under the new law of kindness, but as ready as ever to resist the old practice of brute force. 'Here!' shouted some who, they saw the male so susceptible of kindness, and the man so successful in administering it—'Well-Spring.'

The editor of a paper in Mainz has lost his wallet containing a ton three cent scrip, two postage stamps that had been used but once, and a Confederate $1 bill. Poor man!

American Nations of Grades of Villainy.

The man that will take a newspaper for a length of time, and then send it back unrefused, and regard for moral villainy as blind dog's dinner, and then steal the dog for being kind.—Exchange.

He would do worse than that. He would marry a girl on trial, and send her back at the end of the honeymoon with the words 'Don't sell' chalked on her back.—Iron City.

He would do worse than that. He would steal the chalk to write it with, and afterwards he would use it on his shirt, to save the expense of buying, and then use the wife's letter for a soap's heading.—Standard.

Wasn't yet. He'd clean a sick rat two miles over a cordery road, and institute a penitentiary examination after he had caught him, in order to recover a stolen grain of corn.—Morgantown Star.

We endorse every word of the above. He would steal the rotten acorns from a blind pig, and steal all the winter meat of an auditor.—Barnett Herald.

He would be as mean as the man who cursed his poor old and blind mother for stopping in his doorway to beg for bread, and who gave his only child a penny for going to bed supperless, and the next morning charged him a penny for his breakfast.—Tomb-Light.

REMARKABLE FRENCHMAN.—Mr. J. E. Evans, a native of America, recently gave in England an exhibition of remarkable strength. He held a fifty-pound weight in various positions, at arm's length, and increased the number until he raised four fifty-six pound weights above his head, adding them at arm's length, and at the same time held a fifty-pound weight in each hand. He also held the weights on the top of the glasses, and allowed a glass of water to be placed on the top of the weights. He laid flat upon the floor, and let a fifty-pound weight fall a distance of a yard upon his bare chest, and the weight rebounded as though it had come in contact with India-rubber. A piece of stone, four inches thick, was next placed upon his chest, and a blacksmith struck with two blows into fragments. Two blacksmiths then cut a piece of two-inch iron in two across his chest with a hammer and chisel. The feat concluded by Professor Hercules lying flat upon the floor, and allowing a blacksmith to strike him with all his strength, with a sixteen-pound sledge hammer. 'The blow was met by the Professor, and the hammer rebounded without leaving a scratch upon his body.'

CLOVER.—Clover differs entirely from the cereal crops in this; it sends its main roots perpendicularly downwards, when an oblique striation in the way to the depth which the fibrous roots of wheat and barley fail to reach; the principal roots of clover branch off into creeping roots, which again send forth fresh roots downwards. Thus clover, like the most mineral, derives its principal food from layers below the surface soil; and the difference between the two consists mainly in this—that the clover, from its larger and more extensive root surface, can still get a quantity of food in a field where past will no longer thrive; the natural consequence is, that the soil is left proportionately much poorer by clover than by the cereals. Clover, on account of its main roots which form from its own seed, but few formative elements for the young plant, and requires a rich arable surface for its development; but the plant takes but comparatively little food from the surface soil. When the roots have pierced through the soil, the upper parts are soon covered with a corky coating, and only the fine root fibres ramifying through the subsoil convey food to the plant.—Living.

A NEW USE FOR POTATOES, TURNIPS, AND CARROTS.—The Scientific Review says:—There are at present to be seen at the Paris Exhibition objects apparently formed of Masticated potato roots, but which nevertheless, are made of very different substances. The imitation mastication is obtained by peeling sliced potatoes and subjecting them to a chemical process. Turnips treated in the same manner as the potatoes afford an excellent imitation of 'slag' bars, which may be cut into thin plates for veneering and may be made as flexible as leather by agitation in glycerine or water. Carrots treated in the same way afford a fine imitation of corals, which are sewers admirably for veneering and other purposes. 'The Sheffield Telegram says:—We have seen specimens of potato preserved by the above process, and prepared by an artist in Sheffield. They are slices of the ordinary kind of potato about the 16th part of an inch in thickness, of a brownish color, semi-transparent, smooth and tough. The substance is not unlike tortoise-shell, and will doubtless be used for inland work.

There was an old Quaker, who had an unfortunate reputation of non-resistance. It was said that any one could juggle him, tread on his toes, or break his nose, with impunity; and he would say a blessing, fellow being, and tell that you had a new idea, if he was smitten on the cheek, would turn the other also, thought it would be worth to try him. Stepping up to the sturdy, good natured friend, he slapped his face. The old man looked at him severely for a moment, then slowly returned the other cheek, and received another. Upon that he coolly pulled off his coat, 'I have cleared the law,' said he, 'and now these must take it; and he gave the cowardly fellow a tremendous thrashing.

A good thing is told of the President in Raleigh. While replying to a feeling message to the volcano given him, he used the expression: 'Let us, my friends, repair the breaches—'and before he could add 'made by war,' an old woman exclaimed: 'Bless the dear man! he has come home again to work at his old trade.'

CHAPTER XXIV.

Mr. Dorrer lay on his back, and the jacket lay on the table.

More than once he had approached to take it up and open it; but revolution prevailed, and he remained his agitated work.

And yet his heart yearned to read the contents of his letter. He thought he should turn from the unclasp of the packet, and from letting the rays of light fall upon the contents of the beloved book.

Oh, that the pack could be recalled! Why had she not waited?

And for the last seven years she had lived with two hundred miles of him. She had died, and his neighbor had been at his death-bed, and yet he, her husband, had no knowledge of it.

He closed under the thought. It was madness to him; his heart strings seemed stretched as though the next moment they would snap, and misery was so great. He writhed in mental agony, and his lips quivered in agony from his forehead.

He took the packet in his hand.

John Dorrer lay on his side, his eyes fixed on the floor. He felt as if he were in a dream, and he felt as if he were in a dream.

He rose up again; he looked the door that he might not be disturbed, and returning to the table set himself to his painful task. Painful, and yet he felt as if he were in a dream, and he felt as if he were in a dream.

As he was about to open the door, he was startled by the sound of a footstep. He looked up, and saw a woman enter the room.

It was the old woman, the one who had been with him since he was a child. She had been with him since he was a child.

She had been with him since he was a child, and she had been with him since he was a child. She had been with him since he was a child.

She had been with him since he was a child, and she had been with him since he was a child. She had been with him since he was a child.

er, containing letters, and I returned, till, worn out with the strife, I fell ill.

For days I lay between life and death; my frame exhausted, and with scarce strength to lift my head from my weary pillow, and I longed to die.

Then in the night some angel visited me; I could not see them with my earthly vision, yet I knew they were there—sent from heaven to cheer the lonely soul.

Who do not believe in such ministrations, you should pass through my experiences; you should feel the heavenly peace that fell upon my soul. It seemed as though all naturalities had passed away, and the heavenly purity of atmosphere; that the spirits that had wrestled with the poor weak flesh had triumphed, and stood like Michael, the archangel, with his feet clung high upon the walls of heaven.

And I was able to say, "Victory! Victory!"

Then, faint and feeble, I fell back, overcome with the effort; but angelic arms were around me, bearing me up, and pouring in to my fainting heart the peace that passeth all understanding.

At last I rose from my bed of sickness, and returned to the duties of life. One obstacle was removed, but another had fallen across my path. I tried to think it dark, but, somehow, it was harder for me to bear, and everything around me seemed dimmed and faded; yet I was weaker. But I had prayed for strength to bear it, and strength was given—

It was the night of my death. My eyes were closed, and I was in a state of unconsciousness. My mind was in a state of unconsciousness.

My mind was in a state of unconsciousness, and I was in a state of unconsciousness. My mind was in a state of unconsciousness.

It was Saturday, for I had planned that I would see you in church on Sunday. I could not see you then, and you would be ignorant of my presence.

At a village, surrounded by a poor widow, I obtained a lodging for the night. She saw how worn and I was, and had compassion upon me, and then, from my murmuring words she believed me to be like her, a widow.

As I was more than a widow, she had lived all her life as a widow, so she came to talk, and told me all I wanted to know, little laughing but I hung upon her words.

She told me how she had come to Lynn court, and what a fine place it was.

It was worth a stranger's going to see, if I were not too tired after I had had a poor night's rest.

So I tried my strength had all returned, and I was ready to go.

And as I went and saw the place wherein my brother-in-law had lived, I felt as if I had found a new world.

I found that he had died, and I found the handle of the gate because it had often opened for his carriage, and I found the trees as if I thought they had some message for me.

And then we turned and wandered through the church, where she showed me a little grave with a stone cross at its head, wherein were given the names of John and Teresa Dorrer Lynn.

John, you had not forgotten me, I knew it.

I could have fallen down beside that cross and poured out all of thanksgiving for that one word, "Ellen."

It was as a dream of old water to the heart, and I felt as if I had found a new world.

I found that he had died, and I found the handle of the gate because it had often opened for his carriage, and I found the trees as if I thought they had some message for me.

The Box.
It was found impossible to the proceedings in consequence of regular manifestations on the part of the inhabitants of the town. The Committee advised the proposal of M. Verrill, and in consequence of this an understanding was come to by the conservative party to abstain from the committee whose proceedings were not adopted by the Congress. The proposal of the minority was rejected, and subsequently to be sitting at an end.

A French Protest.
A public meeting was held on Wednesday against "the revolutionary tendency" of the Congress. The government is said to have the Congress authoritative that it is a French Congress as a meeting of the people of France, and as an international meeting which is the existence of the Union Republic in the explanation of the excuse of the Paris and the other nations, and their non-attendance, and also of the resignation of the vice-president of the meeting.

The Tunis Gazette. states that the instructions given to the Kings troops in Italy, ordered them, in case they should discover any body of Christians preparing to cross the frontier, to march on them, to lay down their arms, and return to the frontier, should they refuse, the troops were to surround them and kill their property. The reports which are hourly received from the south about that the revolutionary volunteers are invading Roman territory on all sides.
Yesterday a detachment of troops were sent out from Rome to meet the invaders in the mountains, a distance of 15 miles east of the city. A fight took place between them and the Garibaldians near the Abruzzi frontier. The papal troops were again defeated, and compelled to fall back towards Rome.

A report is current that Prussia receives with favor the appeal of the Italian government in the European powers against the treaty of Segre, and will support the demands of Italy in regard to Rome.
London, Oct. 7.

It is said that Lord Derby will soon resign the Premiership.
The Times today says that Edward Thorston, the present editor of the Great Britain in Rio Janeiro, will be appointed ambassador to the United States.

It is reported that Napoleon informed the Italian Government that it may occupy the Roman territory with its troops, but they must not enter the city of Rome.
London, Oct. 8.

Despatches from the East report that a sanguinary conflict had taken place on the Turkish frontier between the Montenegrins and the Serbs.
Brisbane, Oct. 8.

The Marquis De Montebello, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Chevalier De Nigric, Italian Ambassador, arrived here before the troubles broke out in Italy, and have been in constant consultation with the Emperor. It is said the following plan for the settlement of the Roman question has been agreed upon—Italy is to take possession of the Roman Provinces, Pope Pius IX. is to remain in Rome and retain the Government of the city until his death, when the temporal power of the Pope shall cease.

Volunteers of Garibaldi are marching into Rome, and are being directed by the Emperor. The Emperor has ordered the Emperor to occupy the city with his troops.
Garibaldi has issued an address denouncing the Emperor, and urging his followers to carry on war for the possession of Rome.

Rumors constantly arising in regard to the danger of France, cause much anxiety in England and Ireland. All provisions are now being guarded by armed police, to prevent an attempt at rescue. The morning indications lead the authorities to apprehend some disaster at Rome, and proper precautions are being taken.
Brisbane, Oct. 8.

The Fenian convict Kelly died while in prison, and his funeral took place yesterday. There was a great demonstration of sympathy for the deceased. An immense crowd of people surrounded the house, where the remains were laid out, and a long procession followed them to the grave.

The Emperor's Order.—A party of Southern gentlemen gave a dinner to General Bourgeois at the New York Hotel. In the course of his remarks, the General stated that he had received tempting offers from English capitalists to take up his residence in England, as superintendent of the extensive engineering works in that country, but he had concluded, upon calmly surveying the different governments of the world and their status and their inherent strength, that this country presented the most favorable government of any, in relation to the favor of the earth, and that, for his part, he was determined to spend his life under the flag of the government that was the most stable and the least liable to disintegration. It was nothing short of three times over to talk of another rebellion. If they wanted to raise one, they could not do it, it was utterly impossible for them to do so for the next generation.

YELLOW FEVER IN NEW ORLEANS.—A New York paper says that the yellow fever still rages with frightful violence in New Orleans, and a renewed appeal is made to the citizens of New York for help. There is a great need of nurses, of medicine, and of food to keep from starvation the families of those who are stricken down. The starting question is made by the committee who have to do with the matter, and the answer being, the ability of whom some New or comparative strangers, are particularly well qualified. It has been reported that New Orleans never enjoyed such a happy immunity from the dreadful scourge during the time that she was under the rule of Gen. Butler. Butler, it appears, was the most efficient sanitary reformer that New Orleans ever saw and the whole-some regulations he enforced were invaluable. It is claimed for him that he virtually saved the lives of thousands, almost any number of whom have since taken his example, had it been practicable and safe to do so.

A Good Case.—The Bruce Review in speaking of the progress of the negotiation of the Klondike says: "Mr. Hadden informs us that off 18 acres he reaped, this year, 23 bushels of good fall wheat. One field containing 9 acres, which was cultivated, averaged 47 bushels to the acre, and 5 acres averaged 40. We would like to hear if any of our farmers can beat this. The wheat crop, however, as a general thing, turned out well in this section of the County, and the average will be considerably over that of last year."

A student in one of the London Hospitals died on a corpse the other day—that is, his body was placed in a coffin, and he died, and ate it with evident satisfaction. The case is now under investigation.

Wishes.

I ask not that my life be death
 From bands of misery I be free;
 For these I desire the latest wealth
 Of fortune's favour'd smile not see.

I ask not each kind word to keep
 "Farewell, when of thy death be heard;
 Let those who will, if they weep!
 There was worse play upon earth than

I ask but that my death may find
 The Freedom from my bed of pain;
 Ask but the folly of my mind,
 Then, there at last, to quit my bed.

Shine me the whispering, couched room,
 One friend who comes and goes,
 The companion of my hours—
 All that make death a hideous doom.

Not hating, to see me cease to live,
 Some doctor full of phrase and fame,
 To shake his sceptic hand and give
 The bill he cannot cure a name.

Not feign, to take the agonizing toll
 Of the poor shiner bound for death,
 His brother doctor of the soul,
 To converse with official breath.

The future and its vicissitudes—
 This unadvised mystery,
 Which makes me wish death's winning
 Must needs be glad, were that he

Living some of these, but let me be,
 Asleep, or else, as I have said,
 Moved to the minnow and see
 Some one be to my dying eye—

Buried in the sacred folds of morn
 The wild social sea I leave spread—
 His brother doctor of the soul,
 The world which I wish when I am dead.

Which ever was the friend of one,
 No promised love, no love that goes,
 But let it all be generous sun,
 And I live still, and make me live.

There let me pass, till I become
 In soul with what I give or wed
 For the universe, for I am dead,
 To leave to my good mind—instead

Of the sick room, the most strict
 The turmoil for a little here—
 The pure eternal course of life,
 Not human couplings with death.

This feeling, gazing, let me see
 Companion, rational, conscious, clear
 These things, and I am dead,
 To work or wait elsewhere or here!

Joyce Dorman's Story.
 BY JEAN BOURCIE.

She did not understand him yet; she had looked upon him so long as her guardian and protector, almost as a second parent, she had not seen him as a man.

"I have decided what I am going to do, Gabriel," said Doris, shaking back her hair, that had escaped from the fastenings, while a change came over her face and she suddenly lost the weary look.

"I have a talent for drawing, you know," "Well?" "Don't be concerned," replied Mr. Chester. "I'm not concerned. I know I have a talent; and besides, you have told me so often and so often."

"And you intend to be an artist and paint away at London?" "No, I don't. I'm not quite so aspiring as you. I should like to be a painter, but I should like to live upon my own property, and I should like to have a sister in London whose husband does wool-celling, and wants a pupil, I think."

"I don't know what you are talking about," said Doris. "I don't know what you are talking about," said Doris. "I don't know what you are talking about," said Doris.

Our Municipal Institutions.

Since Confederation has been carried, and the consequent establishment of separate local governments, the attention of the Press and of individuals has been directed to a good deal to the consideration of our municipal institutions could not be amplified, so as to reduce the burden of taxation, which our new constitution will undoubtedly augment to a considerable degree. We lately published an article from the Leader on this subject, which our readers will remember. We believe, however, that the prevailing idea is that county councils can be better dispensed with, and that township councils can be conducted with less expense, and the members are more under the eye of their constituents, than county councils. Village, town and township councils, in fact, are indispensable for the purpose of conducting local improvements. But there is no doubt, we think, that many of the duties of county councils might be committed to the townships and others to the provincial government. Those who have paid any attention to these matters must have been struck by the complicated nature of our municipal laws, which appear to have been framed to cause the very utmost confusion possible. Both township and county councils are independent bodies, but their business is intricately mixed up, and the school laws help to complicate the business still more. The accounts of county treasurers are a mass of illegible matter which the general public can make nothing of, and which to most of the councillors themselves are a riddle. The principal duty of county councils is to look after roads and bridges, which might well be left to the townships.

It is necessary for municipalities to have something to do in which they are interested, and which is sufficient to keep the township treasurer's hands, without the additional complication added thereto of a county treasurer involving with them. There is the administration of justice, the laws relating to which are too numerous to mention, and our municipal system, and although municipal councils have little or no control over the officers or the expenditure, they are compelled to pay all bills connected therewith. The conflict of authority and jurisdiction is instanced in the case of the gaoler of this county, who, for the purpose of his duties, and the county council has little or no control over the officers or the expenditure, they are compelled to pay all bills connected therewith. It is necessary for municipalities to have something to do in which they are interested, and which is sufficient to keep the township treasurer's hands, without the additional complication added thereto of a county treasurer involving with them. There is the administration of justice, the laws relating to which are too numerous to mention, and our municipal system, and although municipal councils have little or no control over the officers or the expenditure, they are compelled to pay all bills connected therewith.

Commercial Bank.

Toronto, October 28.
At a meeting of the Commercial Bank Association held on the following resolution was adopted.

Moved by Mr. J. C. Chisholm and seconded by Mr. J. C. Chisholm, "That this Association deplore the late war for gold on the banks in this city as entirely unnecessary and unnecessary, and begs to express its entire confidence in the chartered banks now doing business in the country."

A rumor prevailed throughout the day to the effect that measures were being taken in Montreal to re-establish the Commercial Bank on a new basis, by means of an alliance with a sister institution in that city. Considerable confidence seemed to be in the bank's bill as they were selling and in demand, at 80c, and if dry goods houses offered to take them for goods at par.—Toronto Leader, 29th.

Commercial Bank Bill.—Rates given by brokers here, for Commercial Bank Bill are advancing. Yesterday the ruling bill was 80c in silver and 75c in gold. These rates are a decrease of 10c on the bill on Wednesday. Quote an extensive business in billings in those bills in London.—see for details

We understand that the Commercial Bank has transferred the promissory notes and bills it has discounted, to the Bank of Commerce, which will demand payment for them in Montreal. There had already been considerable speculation in buying up Commercial Bank bills at a discount, for the purpose of paying notes maturing with them at that bank. The transfer for steps that operation, and as the amount of £1,248,970 in circulation when the bank stopped, this step is one which will probably be a relief to the country.—Western Gazette.

The Directors will hold a meeting at Kingston on the 6th of November, when the whole affairs of the Commercial will be fully discussed and considered, and the course to be pursued with reference to the creditors of the Bank determined on. As the time is but short, we would advise holders of Commercial bills to "hold on" until after the meeting of the Board of Directors, as the probability that their bills will regain their par value is considerable. The whole community will look with intense interest, and many with profound anxiety, for the action of the Bank Directors on Thursday, the 6th of November next.

The Charter of the Commercial permits a suspension of specie payments by the Bank for two months, and the directors of the Company, and it is not impossible, considering that their assets are sufficient to meet all liabilities and leave a considerable residue to the shareholders, that the Bank may be enabled to resume business at that period also.

Commercial Bank is Montreal.—A telegram from Montreal says that the bill of the Commercial Bank passed at a very high discount in that city, and merchants are confident that they will be relieved from its full value. No doubt many shrewd and broken are anxious to cry down the bill, because the greater the discount the greater will be their profits.

There is no correct quotation for Commercial Bank stock. It is said that there are no orders under 25, and no buyers over 75.—Montreal Witness.

Some mechanics of this city, who had accepted a meeting in the Commercial Bank yesterday, gathered up the notes of that bank and went to its branches to pay the said acceptance. There they were told that the bills were in the Merchants' Bank, where they tendered the Commercial Bank bills in payment of their debts, and they went back at three o'clock to the Commercial Bank, at which the acceptance were made payable. They waited till five o'clock for the notes, which did not make his appearance, and the Commercial Bank finally received its own notes in payment.—Montreal Witness.

Montreal, Oct. 29.
The preliminary meeting of the Commercial Bank to-day was very lengthy. It was mainly held to request Mr. Holt, Alex. Morris, and Hugh Allen to resign, and means to continue the bank by amalgamating it with some other institution, or in some other way, to apply to parliament at next session for power.

A man on exhibition in London, who calls himself "Natturo," or the Human Frog, is a performer of most wonderful feats in order water. He sits sponge cake and drinks milk at the bottom of an aquarium. He also carries a pipe in his mouth with still lighted. He has remained under water thirty nine seconds at a time.

There is a new magician in London named Daniel. One of whose tricks is to cut off the head of a young lady and carry it to the back of the stage, where he unravels it, and where, at his bidding, it addresses to the audience moral and didactic sentences.

A plebeian, however old colored man, named Alexander White, went to church at sixteen, and on Sunday evening, and his presence was objected to by an ex-rebel ruffian; but the old man stood to the case of the young. On his way home, the ex-rebel way laid and killed him.

The Memphis Post of Oct. 9 says that Dr. Luke H. Blackburn, better known as "Vandy Peter Blackburn," was in the city the day previous on his way to New Orleans. He attended the meeting of the Board of Health, and made some remarks on the subject of yellow fever.

Great discontent prevails among the workmen of Paris on account of the decrease of work. Placards were recently found on several houses in the Faubourg St. Antoine with the following threatening inscription: "Chop bread or war." Similar placards were torn down by the police in the Faubourg in Trappes. The price of bread in Paris is equivalent to about 20 cents the four pound loaf.

The Parisians will have good cause to regret on the great exhibition of the year, it appears that the tick is raging violently in their good town, brought there by the lower orders from the east of Europe.

Mr. Alexander Stafford, hotel keeper of Orilla, was drowned in Lake Simcoe on Friday week. The tug "Simcoe" starting to tow a raft down the lake, Mr. Stafford got on board. He was under the foremast of the tug, and it is supposed, that, while endeavoring to pass along the vessel, he fell overboard unobserved. His body was recovered on the following Sunday.

Cobb accounts a Mason.

I must tell you of the pain and trials I had undergone in order to become a Mason. On the evening in question I presented myself at the door of the large room No. 20, 6th, sign of the shell and corn-lobes. I was conducted into an ante-room where five or six melancholy chaps in black and embroidered aprons were waiting to receive me. On my entrance they all got up and turned back somewhat and then returned their seats. A big, fat fellow, who sat in the middle, and who seemed to be the proprietor, then said, "Since from the outer world, advance, I advanced. Will you sit up everything to you as if you did not know it, I said, there is my wife and my five children. Another party here told me to say yes, as it was merely a matter of form. So I said yes, I gave up everything. The fellows in the towels were pleased, and said "Well, do you want to be a Mason?" I said, "I do." I then sat down to read anything you see in this evening to any human being, and my wife I said you my word I will not say any more, and said to the man, "I say then examined my teeth, and felt my pulse, and made me put out my tongue, and then they grasped again. I said, if I don't feel very well I'll go to bed. The fat man here took the title from me and told me to shut up. He then in a voice of thunder said, "Bring the guest. Another fellow then came up with a big cloth blindfold me. No, you don't. Mr. Mason, I said, no tricks on this. I don't believe in playing blind man's buff with a guest. I'll ride the devil if you like, but I won't get blind. I've had you'll I'll keep you into my room. They were too weak for me to do so, so I had to submit and be blindfolded. The man was then led in, and I could hear him making an awful racket with his horns among the furniture. I began to see that I was being wasted at home, but I was in fact, and could not help myself. Three or four fellows then entered me and with a monstrous lunge pitched me on the animal's back, telling me at the same time to look out for squalls. I have been in a good many scraps Mr. Editor. I've been in a few fights—I've been pitched out of a few story windows—I've gone down in a railroad collision and up in a steamboat collision, but this goat excursion was a little mad of them all. The confounded thing went by all things and horses. It happened as usual the tables and chairs, and the stove and the ceiling, but I hang on like a Trojan. I turned front somewhat, and rolled over and over till I thought it was all over with me. I was just on the point of giving up when the baggage fell from my eyes, and the goat bounded from under me and disappeared through the window with a yell like a Comanche Indian springing up the ghost. I was to a ledge of Masons. They didn't observe for a moment that I could see, so I had a good chance to watch their performance. They were performing their mystic rites with a vengeance. They were dancing a war dance round a big skull, and playing leap frog and turning head springs, and the big fat fellow of the ante room was standing on his head in one corner, flunking the contents of my little bottle. Order was soon restored. I was led up to a desk and told to stand at ease. The Chief Executive of the establishment then put his fingers in the shape of a fan toward me and commencing address. The rest of the brethren did likewise, and were silent. The veteran then addressed me. Brother Cobb, you are one of us. You are a member of an institution which has lasted over a million of years. From this time forward your constitution is sacred. You are impervious to light or heat, or any atmospheric influence. You are water-proof, fire-proof, and oven proof. With impunity you may walk through a river or sit down on a red hot stove. With impunity also you may drink sea water, fire whisky, whisky, whisky, or any other poisonous substance. You are free from rheumatism, dyspepsia, whooping cough and the measles. "He bid" date a little pay for me, and the policemen arrest you for misdemeanor. You are one of us, and you are safe. Have I the pleasure of sitting with you, and a big club you get into any lodge room in Christendom. I then took the oath of allegiance, a pack of cards, and stood the whisky and water all round, and was a Mason. Yours in Faith, Hope and Charity, Koss Cobb Jr.

A Tough Story.

A Western paper tells the following rather tough story. If true, it is the most remarkable on record. An accident of a remarkable nature occurred last week by which a man was thrown 80 feet in the air. He was standing on a balance tree lying across a large log, to see another tree come down, when the tree in its falling course struck the other end of the tree he was standing on, and the tremendous weight of it coming on the spring log, threw him like a shot into the air. The remarkable part of the story remains to be told. When at its highest elevation the man caught hold of a limb in the top of a tree about fifteen feet from the trunk, and remained suspended by the man until the force which fell the tree traveled a distance of five miles and returned with help and a ladder before he could be released from his perilous position. He was found in the same position as when left, miserably in the last spirits, for he was whistling "Yankee Doodle," and asking a swing fight with his feet against a delegation of straps that were endeavoring to bind a net in the rest of his feet. He said upon reaching the ground that he had had a healthy time with the terminus, and attributed his power of endurance wholly to the little cotched canvas he had with the crutch, by their persistent fire to the rear, and the tremendous excitement incident thereto. If that man ever gets into office he will be provided for the rest of his natural life. He will know how to hang on to it.

Dressed Hogs.

To the Editor of the Globe.

Sir,—This is not the first time, we have sent you a letter on the above subject, but so far as we can see, without any beneficial result. Farmers are now commencing to bring their hogs to market, dressed, and as in natural, are disgusted at having to take 4c to 5c per lb for them, while pigs are 5c per bushel. To make the matter worse some are bringing their hogs to market in such a condition, that they have to accept 3c per lb for the reason that the pork is rancid and tainted by the time it reaches Toronto. To avoid this we would strongly urge on their attention the following points:— 1st. Don't kill any hogs until November, and not then unless the weather is good and clear. 2nd. When killing, whatever the size, have them opened out from tail to snout, and don't spare cold water to cleanse them thoroughly. Then prep them open with a pointed stick 6 to 12 inches long, according to size of hog. 3rd. Let them hang in a cool, airy place for 12 to 24 hours before cutting them. 4th. The greater the distance you have to travel the longer should they hang. 4th. Don't crowd them in the wagon at the time of the year, and if your journey is long, travel in the night. Five or six hogs travelling in the sun will spoil them. If farmers follow the above instructions, and have got hogs of good quality, they will not have to sell them at 4c to 4 1/2c. It is difficult of getting hogs when dressed in a good state, in our reason for desiring to have them alive. Yours, &c., W. DAVIS & CO. Toronto, Oct. 16.

One of the American States they passed an Act that no dog should go at large without a muzzle, and a man was brought for violating the statute. In defence he alleged that his dog had a muzzle. How is that, and the justice, "here is no muzzle to be seen." "Why," said the defendant, "the Act says nothing of where the muzzle should be placed, and as I thought the animal would like the fresh air, I put the muzzle on his tail."

"I Don't Know Which."—Cr cheat, on visiting a minister, was comparing the countenance of a monkey to that of his fellow-members at Congress. During his talk as the gentleman had overheard his remarks; he said "I don't know which to apologize to, you or the monkey."

The Union News tells the story of an enterprising grain in Vestal, N. Y., who bought an old watch for $1.50, and a jack-knife for 75 cents; traded the knife for an old gun, traded the watch and gun for an old white horse, traded the horse for five sheep, one calf, one pig, one spring wagon with two wheels, and two dollars in money, besides working the old horse five days on the road.

One hour lost in the morning will put back all the business of the day; one hour gained by rising early will make one month in the year.

An Iowa paper is printed weekly in red ink. An exchange says the editor is determined to have his articles red.

"Don't Stay Long."

A look of yearning tenderness
Beneath her lashes lies,
And hope and love questionable
Are shadowed in her eyes,
As in some deep purpled stream
Are clouds and summer skies.
She passed to early womanhood,
Yon dreamy, sweet girl life,
And crossed the great threshold but
To God herself a wife!
Oh! gently should he lead her steps
Along the path of life!
And as she clasped her small white hand
Upon his arm so strong,
How often, like a summer sigh,
Or a sweet pleading song,
She whispers with a pining sigh,
"Beloved one, don't stay long."
It aint aint aint on her lip,
Her greatest parting words,
Sweet as the fragrance from one lavender,
When by soft zephyrs stirred,
And lingering in the memory
Like some of summer birds.
And in his heart they dwell warm,
When other scenes amid:
It stays not till the weary glow,
As I her fond eyes see hid,
In faces which his in betweens
Beneath each veiling lid.
And oh, how many hearts are kept
By the lost-spring song!
There's a tearful one who on life's waters
Is wistfully borne along,
But what liveboard from some dear lip,
These sweet words—"Don't Stay Long."

ENLARGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY SPECTATOR.

THE PUBLISHERS OF THE "SPECTATOR" have pleasure in announcing to the public that the weekly Spectator has been enlarged, and that several columns of matter have been added to it; making it

One of the Largest Weeklies in the Province.

The grand prize has been the selection of matter for the "Wax" furnishing a full epitome of the Foreign & Domestic News OF THE WEEK.

A new feature has been added, in the publication of a story in each number, which will add greatly to the interest of the paper.

A couple of columns will be devoted weekly to the publication of subjects relating to

AGRICULTURE, And the sections being made with care, will make the paper of great value to the Farmer.

And the approaching Session of Parliament, interesting summaries of the proceedings of both the

GENERAL AND LOCAL PARLIAMENTS. Will be given in the form of Editorial Correspondence from the Seat of Government; likewise reports of the more important debates.

All the press despatches by cable and telegraph are received, and carefully summarized for the Weekly Spectator.

Commercial Intelligence From Europe and America, including the Market Report on the leading Canadian markets, furnished by telegraph to the last hour before going to press, makes the Weekly Spectator of the greatest value to every farmer.

While the paper is thus greatly enlarged, and in every respect improved, the price remains the same, viz—one dollar a year payable strictly in advance, thus making it the cheapest paper in the Province of Ontario.

The circulation of the Weekly Spectator has already quadrupled, since it came into the hands of the present publishers; and the increased value of it, in consequence of the present enlargement, justifies the expectation that it will go on rapidly increasing in circulation. It is now admitted, the most

CHAPTER XXXV.
 FROM JOYCE DORNIER'S MARY.

Mr. Carmichael did not come as was expected, and Mr. Carmichael passed a restless night. "Aunt Loty" thinks it was on account of the disappointment, for he was never about the house, and on the one that arrived at midnight his opinion.

My conviction is that there is something on his mind, and I don't help thinking that he's afraid of what may be in the pocket. Something about himself, I suppose, for I am convinced that he opposed the one that Doris had, and took therefrom his letter to his sister. And he used to write me to ask if I had any news, and I never lost (oh dear! how stupid I am growing, and what a bad opinion I have of myself!) Can I, too, be growing doubtful and insecure, and so judging others by myself? No! I don't think that I am. Mr. Carmichael has deceived me more than once, therefore I am justified in doubting him. I can put a great amount of faith in my thoughts, but I find them not, but I can't afterwards, in the Christian I mention, I think not, and I do not feel unchristian when I say, that I believe Mr. Carmichael has deceived me, and I don't know if he will ever be true to me or not.

Mr. Carmichael's countenance, which was already less cheerful than it had been, grew positively sunshiny.

"You are a sensible girl, Joyce, I think," he said, "and I am glad to hear it."

Not that I took much notice now that there was in it. Mr. Carmichael's dead face, since Doris would not be much longer under his roof. And I wondered if Mr. Carmichael had arrived at another conclusion from his letter. I suppose not, though I could have gathered it from Doris's letter as easily as I did from Doris's. But then when she drew conclusions more readily and with less evidence than men, as I had even now an opportunity of testing, and what is more, these perceptions are generally correct, even though the evidence seems against them. They have a sublime illogical way of disposing surroundings and ambiguities, and working straight through a mass of plausible arguments and statements, and arriving by a short cut at the truth. I think I should have been wiser enough to let this qualification to women in general, though I think he considered Aunt Loty as an exception to the rule. At any rate, he received credit to my own satisfaction, and was altogether in a very good humor.

Aunt Loty was delighted with the improvement in his health and spirits.

"You see, dear, good news is the best medicine after all, and his mind's at rest about Doris now. He has been terribly harassed about her, and as usual, he would have done her wrong for nothing as well as she."

But, of course, when Doris had come, and Aunt Loty's anger vanished, and the prodigal was not without with greater regard than she had ever shown to her. Carmichael was a little constrained in his manner both to Doris and Mr. Chester, but in some of his remarks, he showed the position that was still to a certain extent undecided.

"He was left for murdered on the shore but there happened to be some one on the bay from which a boat had been put out to get water. The sailors found Mr. Lynn lying on the beach, all alive, but insensible, so they took him off to the ship. It was some days before he recovered his consciousness again, and then he found himself in a sailing vessel far away at sea. After many misadventures he at length reached England, where he took the first ship he could get for Paisley. But he was late. In the meantime my mother had sailed in the 'Albatross'."

And Doris, shuddering, crept closer to me.

"Joyce, I wonder why these things are permitted. What had my mother done that she should be suffering all this? I don't know, but I don't think it fair. They say that nothing is balanced against anything else, if one thing is balanced against another, I don't believe it; our lives are not equal."

I did not exactly know how to reply; it was scarcely the time to enter into an argument about such things, besides I was not quite sure whether I should take myself. Therefore, I only said:

"It is all over now, Doris is at peace here, and she is no longer in question (that you have asked a question to know in the end we shall doubtless know the meaning and the purpose of such things, but we must wait for that.)"

And then we spoke of Mr. Lynn again.

"He is so kind, so thoughtful, Joyce," said Doris, "but I am not going to Lynn and I don't think I shall ever see him again. It would be such a sudden change for poor Lynn (I don't know if you have ever seen him) to be put in prison, and as usual, he would have done her wrong for nothing as well as she."

"I don't know if you have ever seen him," said Doris, "but I am not going to Lynn and I don't think I shall ever see him again. It would be such a sudden change for poor Lynn (I don't know if you have ever seen him) to be put in prison, and as usual, he would have done her wrong for nothing as well as she."

The Earth's Changes.

At a meeting of the New York Lyceum of Natural History, Mr. J. Wyatt Reed read the regular paper of the evening on the comparative magnitude of various terrestrial phenomena. He exhibited a large chart of the globe drawn on a scale so small as to include the continents in the form of the British mountains and the relative magnitude of surface phenomena. He was led to remark, that the short time a study of the drift deposits, which are surface in their character, will extend from points as far north as explorations have reached, down to within fifty degrees of the equator, and which are to be found in the same latitudes south of the equator. The period when these drift deposits were made is called the glacial epoch, and a secular cooling of the air and planets was necessary before such a degree of cold could be reached as the theories of geologists demanded, in order to account for the icebergs and glaciers necessary to transport the drift, or more old scratch rocks. The speaker accepted the view of Adairson that continents have not been depressed, but elevated by the ocean. Owing to the precession of the equinoxes the mass of the water is transferred from one hemisphere to the other once in ten thousand five hundred years, and the sun remains eight days longer in one hemisphere than in the other.

At the present time the winters of the southern pole are eight days longer than with us, the ice extends as consequently formed there, and the icebergs that occur at the foot of the southern hemisphere, and the ice covers a space upon and around the south pole more than twice the area of all Europe. The extreme of cold at the Antarctic pole was reached in 1846, since which time the climate has been growing milder, while over our north of the Equator has been growing colder, and in the course of ten thousand years we shall be in the same rigid condition that obtains at the Arctic, or as obtained with us ten thousand years ago.

Barnum's Gorilla.

A New York Scientific Society says that the gorilla is a native of the island of Madagascar. The story about that was a Confederate Soldier in a gorilla's skin, was probably got up by Barnum himself to attract attention to the animal which he was to exhibit in an extract from a report of the Society's proceedings:

The gorilla question was next taken up, and the geological section of the society appeared to be of the opinion that the New York specimen was a hoax, and the investigation practiced upon the public was reprobated in strong terms. It is comforting to know that the animal exhibited in this city was the last link in a vast chain between the gorilla and man, but deserves a place lower down in the scale. Professor Buchner, of Munich, has recently discovered numerous skulls of orang outang, chimpanzee and gibbon, and comes to the conclusion that Darwin has failed to prove the ascent of man from the monkey, and that there are, as Huxley asserted, some links between the species of gorilla and man, they ought to be still in existence. An expedition in search of the lost links would excite great attention, and if a specimen were to be found, our zoological gardens would be well supplied until the question was decided. In the meantime the belief was expressed that neither the gorilla nor the lost link was assured.

Monsieur Carayon—Rufus Lodge, master of the bark 'X' has been in a vast practical in New Orleans for alleged counterfeit gold and silver coins, and there are, as Huxley asserted, some links between the species of gorilla and man, they ought to be still in existence. An expedition in search of the lost links would excite great attention, and if a specimen were to be found, our zoological gardens would be well supplied until the question was decided. In the meantime the belief was expressed that neither the gorilla nor the lost link was assured.

"And then you will go to Lynn court and see him," said Doris.

"I don't know," said Doris, "but I am not going to Lynn and I don't think I shall ever see him again. It would be such a sudden change for poor Lynn (I don't know if you have ever seen him) to be put in prison, and as usual, he would have done her wrong for nothing as well as she."

...pleting just, Hon Mr. Howe came to speak, but on the suggestion of Mr. Wilson, the House took a recess till half-past seven.

After the recess.

Mr. Howe addressed the House at considerable length. He remarked that some friends had suggested that he should not accept of the opposition which he could not support. The question of supporting the present government was a political question, and he thought it better to take his seat in the body of the House as an independent member.

He said that he would support the government, not because he thought it was the best, but because he thought it was the only one that could be supported.

He then spoke of the political situation in Nova Scotia, and said that he thought it was better to have a government that was supported by the people, than to have a government that was supported by the few.

He then spoke of the political situation in the Dominion, and said that he thought it was better to have a government that was supported by the people, than to have a government that was supported by the few.

...to regard to the consideration of the proposed measure, he would not support it. He said that he thought it was better to have a government that was supported by the people, than to have a government that was supported by the few.

...Government Bill vs. Bank Bills.

(To the Editor of the Bruce Herald.)

It is a subject which is forcing itself upon the attention of the community at present time, and I observe that in the last number of the Herald you place the matter before your readers in a fair and rational point of view. I quite agree with you in the opinion that a Government Paper for the use of the bank is not desirable, and that it is the soundest, being backed by the whole law collecting and tax paying population, and is not to be regarded as a mere political device.

It is the right or prerogative, or rather the duty of the government to supply the currency or circulating medium, and it is the duty of the government to do so in a way that will be beneficial to the community.

It is the duty of the government to do so in a way that will be beneficial to the community.

...To Hotel Keepers.

THE omniscient and comfortable Hotel Keepers of the Dominion are to be congratulated upon the fact that they are now in a position to supply their guests with the most comfortable and convenient accommodations.

It is the duty of the government to do so in a way that will be beneficial to the community.

TOMAS MITCHELL, Proprietor, Paisley, August 6, 1867.

Dr. Nathansen's Discovery of America.

In the great and vast world were sealed the book of Ancient American History, with its Aztec and Maya civilizations side by side with the Indian barbarism, with its hieroglyphs of the labour and its mounds and pyramids of the West, its monuments of stone and its temples of wood and its pyramids of stone, its hieroglyphs of the labour and its mounds and pyramids of the West, its monuments of stone and its temples of wood and its pyramids of stone...

This volume there is a dim, blurred page, half history and half myth, as it has ever been deemed, that tells of Scandinavian seafarers riding upon the grapes of a wind, and holding their pages open in the name of Thor and Woden with the sacred symbols of Plymouth rock, while they sail along in Runic rhyme the story of— "These flight, their wanderings, and their woes."

The narrative, as found in the Danish and Icelandic chronicles, is the effect that about the year A. D. 1000, as Icelanders named Eirik, while on a trading voyage to Greenland, was blown off his course by a strong North wind, and after three or four days sail south of the latitude of Greenland, fell in with an unknown land, flat and low and covered with wood.

On reaching Greenland he made known his discovery to Eric the Red, who in leaves in an ancient history as Coast Eric Rife, and who was the original discoverer of the inhabitable land over which he ruled. The Red Coast and his son Lief immediately fitted out a ship with a view of taking possession of the new country; but while on his way to the ship, Eric's horse stumbled and threw him, which he considered an admonition from heaven to desist from his enterprise, and Lief sailed without him.

Though, owing to his imperiousness, the old man never saw the New World, yet he invariably spoke of in connection with the Norsemen's expedition as the discoverer of the country, just as five hundred years later American Vesputius had the same honor of giving a name to the same land, which Columbus had re-discovered. A few days' sail brought Lief to the coast of Newfoundland, which he named Helluland, and soon after he made Nova Scotia, which he called Markland, or Woody Land, and which answered in all respects to the description of the coast, of which he was in pursuit. They again set sail and followed the coast southward, describing various points at which they touched with much accuracy that they can readily be identified, until they entered a bay containing some large islands, whose geographical character, and the determination of its latitude by the observed length of the days, would show it to be Narragansett Bay.

These they disembarked, built houses, repaired their vessels, and spent the entire season. Lief named the country Vinland, on the abundance of grapes found here, and the next spring a colony was sent out under Thorvald, a brother of Lief, who on being slain by the Indians, or Avlking, as they termed them, was succeeded by another brother, Thorerus.

A considerable emigration now took place, the colonists pushing farther and farther south, to the latitude of the Carolina. Cattle and farming implements were imported into the colony, and fish, wheat, grapes and raspines sent to Iceland; constant intercourse was kept up between the two countries, and when in A. D. 1121 Eric, the first Bishop of Greenland, was appointed, he visited Vinland as part of his see. Previous to this, Jaha, a Norse priest had gone to the new settlement by way of Norway, Iceland and Greenland, for the purpose of converting colonies, but was underbid by his pagan flock. Commerce was maintained within a century of the time of Columbus, as the "Annals of Iceland," is a list of the disasters, tempests, &c., as he mentions a vessel being lost in 1347 on her voyage from Greenland to Vinland.

The last Bishop of Greenland was appointed in 1408, soon after which, as it will be known, all communication with the Eastern coast, where the colony was located, was cut off by ice, and nearly 3000 villages disappeared from the world's view. As communication with Greenland thus ceased, its dependency of Vinland was actually soon forgotten amid the internal dissensions that sprang up in the Scandinavian government about this time, and they were probably in part cut off by pestilence, famine, and contests with the savages, while the remnant became incorporated with them and lost to barbarism.

The authorities for these statements consist of Icelandic manuscripts written at the time of the discovery, and of the sagas of the Norse writers; in which Vinland is mentioned as well known; reference to it by Adam of Bremen, in his work on the Propagation of Christianity; and by Vesputius in his "History of an ancient Iceland map of the world, where the coast from Greenland to the United States is laid down with tolerable accuracy, together with a multitude of tales and traditions, all of which have been collected and published in a ponderous volume at Copenhagen by a Northern Antiquarian Society.

But so strong is the prejudice of early discovery that not only the popular mind, but historians, who might be supposed capable of weighing evidence aright, have sunk to their first lesson in American history, that "America was discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1492," and have, with a few exceptions, refused credence to the Norsemen's story. Within a month, however, the history of the Anti-Columbian discovery has received a most remarkable confirmation, amounting to absolute certainty, nothing less than the discovery of the body of one of the colonists, whose death is mentioned in the "Skjaldboga Saga," together with an Icelandic inscription, coins, trinkets, &c.

This Saga was discovered four years ago, in digging among the ruins of the ancient college at Skjaldbog, Iceland, which was founded in 1057, by Bishop Lief. The MS. was in Latin, and bore the date of 1117. It was apparently written by a monk and gives the entire history of the Norsemen's discovery, including much not found in the other sagas. Among other things it gives an account of a voyage of one Harvaldur to the south of Vinland, where he entered a bay or inland sea and sailed up a large river in a Northern direction, till he was stopped by a succession of falls, which from their shape and color were called Hvalfells, or white skin. These falls are especially noticed as being the place where the illegitimate daughter of Saerki, who was born in Vinland, was killed by a spear thrown by one of the Indians, or Skiralingi, as they were called by the Norsemen. Her burial is described, and the length of the day between sea and sea given. Sir Thomas Murray, to whom the saga was referred by the discoverer, Mr. Philip March, gave it as his opinion that the bay referred to was the Chesapeake, the river the Patomac, and the falls the Great Falls in the river, a few miles above Washington, these localities being indicated by the geographical description in the saga, as well as by the latitude deduced from the observed length of the day. The situation of Mr. Redford, fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquarians at Copenhagen, became interested in the matter, and he came to this country for the purpose of investigating it. In company with M. Lejeune, the distinguished geologist, Prof. Brand of Washington, and Dr. Byce of Boston, he examined, scientifically, the banks of the Patomac, ten for several miles above and below the falls, and on the 28th of June last discovered on the large rock, a Runic inscription of the date of 1051, which proved to be the epitaph of the daughter of Saerki, and which corresponded in all respects with the statements in the saga. The description is in the Runic character, and consists of six lines, the letters being three inches long, and cut in an eighth of an inch on a smooth face of the rock about five feet high, the place being overgrown and concealed by vegetation.

The following is the inscription, which shows the remarkable affinity between the English and the old Norse:— His killer Saerki laf-harbi set Farthig lita Kudi syster Thorg son fetha half-krysti gods. God all brenn M.L.I. Here rests Saerki, his kindred, (from) East, Farther Island, (Iceland), (widow) of Kjeld, sister of Thorg, (children of) same father, (aged) half thirty; gladda God her soul, 1051.

On digging immediately in front of the inscription some human remains were found, together with three bronze trinkets, beads, &c., and coins of the tenth century. A photograph of the inscription has been taken, and is for sale in Washington. This long disputed point has been at last settled, and one great step taken to solve the mystery of the early history of this continent.

The manner of the discovery is indeed remarkable, and will win lasting laurels for Mr. Hoffmann. It must have required strong faith to cross the Atlantic, and guided only by the light of that misty prospect, embarked in far off Iceland, gossiping among the rocks and bushes of the Patomac, for the grave of his countryman, who died nearly a thousand years ago; and when his efforts were at last crowned with success, his feelings must have been akin to those of Lazarus, when the sight of his own plant confirmed the truth of his speculations and the correctness of his mathematics.

A New Jersey bill, who was knocked down by a runaway horse, owes her present existence to a large and classic waterfall, which saved her head.

If it wasn't for hope the heart would break, as the old woman said when she buried her seventh husband, and looked seriously among the funeral crowd for another.

The live man is like a little pig, he is weary young and begins to root early. He is the poorer class of creation—the slacker of the world.

The man who can draw New Orleans in the month of January, through a half foot sugar hole, and sing "Home sweet home" while the melon is raining, may be strictly honest, but he isn't sudden enough for the climate.

He is like a decoy duck, always above water, and lives at least eighteen months during each year.

He toes when he walks, and lies down at night only because everybody else has.

He doesn't always cry, but always dies in a hysterical fit, without any food.

FROM TEXAS. From a Correspondence of the Tribune. The "North West" has not been much in the minds of Americans. The word "North West" has awakened a million rebuffs. And the North West is great and the South West is greater. Great sectional violence, border ruffianism and social pretensions have obscured it. But look to the South West on a map. Western Arizona, Western Louisiana, the Indian Nation Reserves (largely the Louisiana), Texas, and New Mexico are but a portion of the region. It abounds in the sweetest natural grain and increasing water and has a climate in which the moving machine is unnecessary to the bread and in which cattle are never sheltered or fed during winter. This vast section is superior to all others for stock raising. The census of 1860 recorded in the United States of all the cattle in the Texas States, 3,500,000 head, of which 60,000 only were milk stock. The rest were "beasts." The Indian Nation in the (partly) of cattle breeders, who, with the re-employment of natural wealth, have the option every year to become cotton planters. The year found some of the civilized Indians in the hands that they did not know their wealth and could not use it. One of them was supposed to own 100,000 horns of cattle and 20,000 horses and mules—but neither he nor his slaves knew how many. Charles Gentry who owned 10,000 head of stock were numerous. All they had to do was to sit still and allow multiplication to take place, interfering with nature's stewardship but once a year to use the branding iron. As it was in western Arizona and Louisiana, and the large tract of New Mexico in dry hides suggests the number of herds.

The important event. That was on the 5th of September. Today is the 24th, and the tent in camp, and in its place is a three story hotel, and handsome accommodations for 80 guests. Opposite the hotel is a vast livery stable for the horses of the drivers. And near the hotel the cows go up a large stair, in which everything a Texas man or woman can need will be sold. And here are the drivers, the industrial class I first saw at Fort Ogle, and last saw at Gettysburg, every man of them unquestionably in the Rebel army. Some of them have not yet worn out their gray clothing, terrible in a fight, yet perfectly great at cattle driving, and not demonstrative in their style of wearing blue-wool. Some of them pay "lightning prices" for ready made clothing to two Jews, who have transported a store out of an empty corral, and are selling goods from Fort Lawrence at from 150 to 200 per cent profit, almost as fast as they take them from the boxes. These rebels are getting reconverted fast.

THE POLICE OATS AND BARLEY.—We observe by a Hamilton (Scotland) paper that a competition had arisen between some of the farmers of the parishes of Carwarth, Wigham and West Calder, as to which could produce the most prolific oats. We show was the first to boast, but her claim was not made by Carwarth, a Mr. Crawford, of that parish, having a field in which single stalks show heads with grain numbering four and five hundred. But West Calder eclipsed Carwarth, a Mr. McNeill having a field of which, on an acre of 712, another 541, and a third 500. At Barabank farm, Chapleton, a bunch of barley, the product of one seed, contained more than 51 distinct stalks, with 1,240 grains.

Which is Worse?—We are all apt to see at the eccentricities of female fashions, and goddess leaves its frequent changes its many offences against good taste, and satisfactions of comfort and health, deserve more than scorn. But is there no cause of complaint against men in this matter? Let the present style of paste wear, and absurdly be more ugly, uncomfortable and absurd! What a pretty figure on the field a game of LaCrosse would be of these "children's shanks" instead what a valuable acquisition he would make in a match game. As for comfort, for these candle-moulds are dark and dim, and long, for fear of compound fracture—being restricted, like ladies with snuffed faces. Tight boots are bad enough but tight pants are worse. While man beholds the beam in the eye of woman let him first take the most out of his own.

DEAREST FAVORABLE TO FAVORING.—It is a fact that all animals flourish in dimly-lighted places in the fall light of day. This is well known in respect to fowls. From experiments made with sheep, conclusions have been reached that in a dark shed, well ventilated and properly warmed, they will make the most numerous and a given amount of food. Not dark stables are set good for horses, or breeding stock of any kind. Fict in view with the most important object is to see.

Surface Mowing. From the Western Rural. I believe in it. I cherish the belief that surface mowing is the way to mow. Every farmer aims to enrich his farm. Let me tell him in a few plain words how to do it, and then, after reading this plan, let him think over his past experience in farming and see if it does not corroborate what is said here.

Apply mow chiefly to your village lands well in grass. By so doing you produce a strong stiffward, filled with grass roots. If you succeed in growing a good crop of grass on a poor soil you have done two things—made your land much better and gained a good crop. As soon, or before, the soil begins to show signs of failure, plough or mow again. If you plough, you have a wealth of grass roots decaying for the food of growing crops. Be sure before the land gets exhausted, and do it occasionally. If you scrimp and starve the soil, don't do it as well as possible. Aim to have it mowed as early as possible. To accomplish this you should send liberal ly. In sending land it is better not to be confused to one kind of grass. In this man-ner lands may be managed for centuries without material deterioration.

As a further argument in favor of surface mowing I mention that it is nature's way. The soil is on the top of the earth, irrigation deposits its fertilizing elements on the surface. Mow as applied to the surface in a field upon by the light, heat and rain—it is elements are much more slowly evolved in the earth than on the surface. Ever farmer should investigate this subject for himself and make his own conclusions.

The Hurdle Signal has the following. An incident which recently took place in this township serves to illustrate strongly the innate selfish honesty of the German character. In April last, Hans (we will call him) bought a yoke of oxen from Jacob. It was agreed that the money should be paid in October, but to do the thing in a business like way a note was to be made for Hans and signed by Hans. Perfectly satisfied, Jacob said Hans had better keep the note, as he would by that means know when the note came due. At the day of maturity Hans forked over the amount, and said "now de money I paid, you keeps it date to show you I keep my rent good word." Comment is unnecessary.

A workman's factory in France died recently from the effects of red-lead which slipped in his hands from a clock used in wiping machinery and was taken into his system with death.

Somebody writes a wife should be like "But look—looker and truly dressed. A bachelor adds "And without any more."

The Currency Question.

We have referred in a previous number to a letter from the Hon. Robert D. Wilton, published in the Montreal Gazette.

It will be seen from the extract that the Hon. Mr. Wilton is of opinion that the present system of currency is not adapted to the requirements of the country.

It is a very long and elaborate paper, and we cannot do more than refer to it, and say that it is a very valuable contribution to the discussion of the currency question.

The following is the extract referred to above: "We have lately witnessed in the United States an entire revolution in banking, and a complete reorganization of the currency system."

A Good and Cheap Paper for EVERY FAMILY.

We have received the American Agriculturalist for December, and this number closes the Twenty-sixth Volume of that paper.

We are glad to say that those who have taken it the last year, feel that they have received a large return for the money invested.

The Agriculturalist is a large periodical of 32 to 40 pages, well printed, and filled with plain, practical, and useful matter, including much of the most beautiful and interesting illustrations in every annual volume.

It contains each month a Calendar of Operations to be performed on the Farm, in the Orchard and Garden, and is adorned with the drawings of the most eminent artists.

The thousands of hints and suggestions which are given, are prepared by practical agriculturists who know what they write about.

The Household Department is valuable to every Housekeeper, affording very many useful hints and directions calculated to lighten and facilitate the labor.

The Department for Children and Youth is replete with special care, to furnish not only amusement, but also to inculcate knowledge and sound moral principles.

The circulation of the American Agriculturalist (about 150,000) is so large that it can be sent at the rate of 1/3 of a year, for 25 cents, for 2/3 of a year, for 50 cents, for one year, for $1.00.

We notice a communication in the Review from F. H. Lynch, Stationer in reference to articles that have appeared in the Advocate on the subject of Free Press.

The Commercial Bank Bill has passed its third reading in the House of Commons. The prospect appears favorable for an early resumption of business, or amalgamation with another Bank.

The House of Representatives has voted down the resolution for impeachment of the President by 100 yeas to 85 nays.

The Judge's charge in all these cases was very clear and impartial, and would have done honor to a Chief Justice.

DETAILS.—Since we commenced publishing the Advocate, quite a number who took the paper have gone to the States, or elsewhere, without paying a cent of their subscription, or leaving a word of apology to excuse their default, thus plainly indicating their dishonest intent.

The Convicted Anglo-Irish Officers.

THE CONVICTED ANGLICAN OFFICERS. FROM THE LONDON STANDARD, FEBRUARY 21ST, 1867.

(From a late Dublin Paper.)

G. N. Falley, Col. Warren, and Capt. Cavelli were brought up for sentence on the 16th of October. In response to the question as to why sentence should not be passed upon Mr. Warren regarding the justification of the Court, and as to the sentence of a peerless informer, and a cowardly, snail, and peerless jury.

Gen. Halpin prevailed against the jurisdiction of the Court to try him; he was, he said, an American, and owed no allegiance to any other Government than that of the United States, and if he were free to-morrow he would rather swear allegiance to the Emperor of Austria than give half an hour's allegiance to a Government that had banished the bones of his wife, and dispersed all. The jury, he said, was packed, and the jurors had made up their minds before they heard the evidence to convict. The Lord Chief Baron then reminded Halpin that he was transposing the limits the Court could allow him, and the following colloquy took place:

Halpin—I am on the ground that the law allows me no privilege at all. But the law is this, that it places me as a British subject without a particle of evidence to show that I am so, and I do say that I look to another place and another people to do justice done.

Lord Chief Justice—This transcends the limits. We cannot deal with any Government, or with anything, but the law as we find it.

Halpin—I am aware that it does not come within your lordship's province to deal with any Government; but if it has only the effect of making the sword of Brother James thus spring from its scabbard, all the punishment you can inflict on me shall be borne bravely and with submission.

The Lord Chief Baron again interposed, and said that such appeals could not be allowed.

Halpin—I am not making an appeal to any man. I demand my conduct to be reviewed. I know how I have been convicted, and I can only say that the first gun fired between these two nations shall salute me as my loyal cell.

Lord Chief Baron—I cannot allow you to make observations as to what Governments or countries may do.

Halpin—With respect to countries, my observation refers to a fact that I hope shall come before long; that I shall bear the death-bell of that infamous Government that—

The Lord Chief Baron said that he could not permit the prisoner to use such language.

Halpin—You cannot help my thinking it. The prisoner went on to complain of Mr. Price refusing to procure him certain newspapers, and also with suppressing letters, which he had written to parties in America. They had heard it said that he was a very bad place, and the devil a very bad boy, but he could not hold a candle to old Price.

The Lord Chief Baron—This is very much outside the limits we can allow you. If you continue in the same repulsive course.

Halpin—Well, I shall say no more about the old girl. It has been stated in newspaper accounts that I have travelled under different names, but I have high authority for that. The other day some non-sensical travelled under a assumed name; and I have heard that the Prince of Wales sometimes changes his name.

Lord Chief Baron—This is so very unreasonable that I cannot allow it to proceed.

Halpin—Then I shall say no more. Cavelli protested his innocence and proclaimed that he was an Irishman born; that he loved Ireland as he loved himself, but that he was an American citizen and desired the jurisdiction of the Court to try him.

The Lord Chief Baron, in passing sentence, referred to the claims of the prisoners under the allegiance of the British Government, by an act of their own, or by the act of any other country or Government, he absolved from their allegiance. It might be said, a casualty in person to be considered as the prisoner as he has appeared to be, in accepting the privileges accorded by the Government of another State, they did that which created conflict between two duties. They might have accepted legally, according to the Constitution of America, all the privileges of American citizenship. With those privileges the Court of Justice in this country did not intend to interfere. Of those privileges they could not deprive them if they would, and, for his own part, would not deprive them if he could, were it so far as they might be in conflict with the duties which the prisoners owe to the Sovereign under whose allegiance they were born. But when they chose to a country to which their allegiance

Governmental Interference.

Instead of leaving the national industry to take its own course, it has been troubled by an interminable series of regulations, all intended for its good and inflicting serious harm. To such a height has this been carried, that the commercial reforms which have distinguished England during the last twenty years, have nearly consisted in making mischievous and intrusive legislation.

The laws formerly enacted on this subject, and too many of which are still in force, are marvellous to contemplate. It is an exaggeration to say, that the history of the commercial legislation of Europe presents every possible combination for hampering the energies of commerce. Indeed, a very high authority, who has maturely studied this subject, has recently declared, that if it had not been for smuggling, trade could not have been conducted, but must have perished, in consequence of the incessant interference.

However paradoxical this assertion may appear, it will be denied by no one who knows how feeble trade once was, and how strong the obstacles were which opposed it. In every quarter and in every moment, the hand of government was felt. Duties on importation and duties on exportation; bounties to raise up a logging trade, and taxes to pull down a remunerative one; this branch of industry forbidden, and that branch of industry encouraged; one article of commerce must not be grown, because it was grown in the colonies, another article might be grown and bought, but not sold again, while a third article might be bought and sold, but not leave the country. Then, too, we had laws to regulate wages; laws to regulate prices; laws to regulate profits; laws to regulate the interest of money; custom house arrangements of the most vexatious kind, aided by a complicated scheme, which was well called the sliding scale—a scheme of such perverse ingenuity, that the duties constantly varied on the same article, and no one could calculate beforehand what it would later be.

To this uncertainty, itself the bane of all commerce, there was added a severity of execution, felt by every class of consumers and producers. The tolls were an onerous tax on double and often quadruple the cost of production. A system was organized, and strictly enforced, of interference with markets, interference with manufactures, interference with machinery, interference with shops. The towns were guarded by excise-men, and the ports swarmed with inspect-writers, whose sole business was to inspect nearly every process of domestic industry, piece into every package, and tax every article; while that absurdity might be carried to its extreme height, a large part of all this was by way of protection, that is to say, the money was avowedly raised and the inconvenience suffered, not for the use of the government, but for the benefit of the people; in other words, the industries classes were robbed in order that industry might thrive.

It is unnecessary to say, that these remarks do not affect the real services rendered to society by every tolerably organized government. In all countries, a power of punishing crime and of framing laws would reside somewhere; otherwise the nation is in a state of anarchy. But the accusation which the historian is bound to bring against every government which has hitherto existed, is, that it has overstepped its proper functions, and, at each step, has done incalculable harm. The loss of exercising power has been found to be so universal, that no class of men who have possessed have been able to avoid abusing it. To insist on that, to prevent the strong from oppressing the weak, and to adopt certain precautions respecting the public health, are the only services which any government can render to the interests of civilization.—[Duck's History of Civilization.]

An ill-looking fellow was asked how he could account for Nature forming him so ugly. 'Nature was not to blame,' said he, 'for when I was two months of age I was the handsomest child in the neighborhood, but by course, to avenge herself upon my parents for some fancied injury at their hands, one day swapped me away for another boy belonging to a friend of hers, whose child was rather plain-looking.'

THE REV. GEORGE FRISVOLD TRAIN came a family of sisters who cared their brothers from swearing by saying damn every time their brothers did. At the table Frisvold would say to George, pass me that damn butter, and Missa would ask Esie for that damn black-wheat cake.

It is an exaggeration to say, that the history of the commercial legislation of Europe presents every possible combination for hampering the energies of commerce. Indeed, a very high authority, who has maturely studied this subject, has recently declared, that if it had not been for smuggling, trade could not have been conducted, but must have perished, in consequence of the incessant interference.

However paradoxical this assertion may appear, it will be denied by no one who knows how feeble trade once was, and how strong the obstacles were which opposed it. In every quarter and in every moment, the hand of government was felt. Duties on importation and duties on exportation; bounties to raise up a logging trade, and taxes to pull down a remunerative one; this branch of industry forbidden, and that branch of industry encouraged; one article of commerce must not be grown, because it was grown in the colonies, another article might be grown and bought, but not sold again, while a third article might be bought and sold, but not leave the country. Then, too, we had laws to regulate wages; laws to regulate prices; laws to regulate profits; laws to regulate the interest of money; custom house arrangements of the most vexatious kind, aided by a complicated scheme, which was well called the sliding scale—a scheme of such perverse ingenuity, that the duties constantly varied on the same article, and no one could calculate beforehand what it would later be.

To this uncertainty, itself the bane of all commerce, there was added a severity of execution, felt by every class of consumers and producers. The tolls were an onerous tax on double and often quadruple the cost of production. A system was organized, and strictly enforced, of interference with markets, interference with manufactures, interference with machinery, interference with shops. The towns were guarded by excise-men, and the ports swarmed with inspect-writers, whose sole business was to inspect nearly every process of domestic industry, piece into every package, and tax every article; while that absurdity might be carried to its extreme height, a large part of all this was by way of protection, that is to say, the money was avowedly raised and the inconvenience suffered, not for the use of the government, but for the benefit of the people; in other words, the industries classes were robbed in order that industry might thrive.

It is unnecessary to say, that these remarks do not affect the real services rendered to society by every tolerably organized government. In all countries, a power of punishing crime and of framing laws would reside somewhere; otherwise the nation is in a state of anarchy. But the accusation which the historian is bound to bring against every government which has hitherto existed, is, that it has overstepped its proper functions, and, at each step, has done incalculable harm. The loss of exercising power has been found to be so universal, that no class of men who have possessed have been able to avoid abusing it. To insist on that, to prevent the strong from oppressing the weak, and to adopt certain precautions respecting the public health, are the only services which any government can render to the interests of civilization.—[Duck's History of Civilization.]

An ill-looking fellow was asked how he could account for Nature forming him so ugly. 'Nature was not to blame,' said he, 'for when I was two months of age I was the handsomest child in the neighborhood, but by course, to avenge herself upon my parents for some fancied injury at their hands, one day swapped me away for another boy belonging to a friend of hers, whose child was rather plain-looking.'

THE REV. GEORGE FRISVOLD TRAIN came a family of sisters who cared their brothers from swearing by saying damn every time their brothers did. At the table Frisvold would say to George, pass me that damn butter, and Missa would ask Esie for that damn black-wheat cake.

The Florida Cracker.

A Canadian Correspondent of the Jamaica Spectator, writing from Florida, gives the following account of the poor population of that State...

The next class for the planters are the poor whites, that are natives of the State. They are mostly the lowest of the inferior classes in the North...

The cracker makes a poor living; he is generally too lazy to work, raising a little corn which is pounded into what is called hominy...

The cracker children are short and stout and have a filthy habit of eating a certain kind of ray, which is something like soap...

The money here is the same yellow appearance in these features, from cleaving a young man. The women have a more filthy habit than clay eating. They dip their mouths...
