COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE

Washington, DC 20224

November 2, 1979

The Honorable G. William Miller
Secretary of the Treasury
Washington, DC 20220

Dear Mr. Secretary:

As required by section 6108 of the Internal Revenue Code, we are sending you Statistics of Income--1976, Estate Tax Returns. The report, based on a sample of estate tax returns filed during calendar year 1977, presents comprehensive data concerning gross estate and its composition, deductions, taxable estate, and tax.

Also included is information on the age, sex, and marital status of the decedents, in addition to bequests to a surviving spouse, and data classifying the taxable estate and tax by the various tax rate brackets of the Federal estate tax.

A limited amount of data on selected provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 is provided. However, since the provisions of the Act did not go into effect until January 1, 1977, and since the estate return was not due until 9 months after date of death, the provisions applied to less than 15 percent of the decedents whose returns are covered in this study.

With kind regards,

Sincerely,

Estate Tax Returns

INTRODUCTION

The Federal estate tax is imposed upon the transfer of a decedent's property to his beneficiaries. In the case of the estate of a citizen or resident of the United States who died in 1976 or prior years, a Form 706 Estate Tax Return was required to be filed by the executor or administrator of the estate if the value of the gross estate was in excess of $60,000 on the date of death. However, in the case of the estate of a citizen or resident of the United States who died in 1977, a return was required to be filed if the value of the gross estate was in excess of $120,000 on the date of death. This change in the filing requirement came about as part of the Tax Reform Act of 1976. Other major changes introduced as part of the 1976 Act are outlined under Changes in Law and elaborated upon under Explanation of Terms.

An estate tax return was required to be filed within 9 months after the date of the decedent's death. However, it was possible for an executor or administrator to obtain an extension of time for filing the return if it could be shown that it was impossible or impractical to file a reasonably complete return within 9 months from the date of death. Except in certain specified situations, payment of the estate tax was required to be made with the return.

This report is based on a sample, selected before audit, of the approximately 201 thousand estate tax returns filed during 1977 for citizen or resident alien decedents. Although the report is included in the Statistics of Income series for 1976, its coverage is not limited to estate tax returns pertaining to deaths during that year. In terms of date of death, approximately 163 thousand of the decedents died in 1976 and 11 thousand died in 1975 or earlier years. The remaining number, about 27 thousand, died in 1977.

If the entire 9 months after death elapsed before the returns were filed, the earliest date of death on returns filed in 1977 would have been April 1, 1976, and the latest date, March 31, 1977. However, it was possible for returns to be filed either before or after the end of the 9 month period. Returns of decedents who died prior to April 1976 represented mostly those cases in which the executor obtained an extension of time in which to file.

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1976

Even though the filing requirement became less stringent, the number of estate tax returns filed for 1976 increased by 26 thousand, or 15 percent, over the number filed for 1972, the last year for which such returns were included in the Statistics of Income series. Over the same period, the total gross estate reported on estate tax returns increased by 24 percent, and the amount of estate tax after credits increased by 20 percent.

Chart 1 provides a comparison of the major components of the gross estate for each of the years in the period 1960 through 1976 for which estate tax returns were tabulated in the Statistics of Income series. The 1976 data show that, for the first time, real estate exceeded corporate stock as the largest component of total gross estate.

Table A shows a summary of statistics by tax status. Table B shows a comparison of data items compiled for 1972 and 1976. Chart 2 shows how the asset composition of estates varied by size of gross estate.

New Information on Lifetime Transfers

In recent years' reports, lifetime transfers were shown in total as a component of gross estate and were not allocated to specific types of property. Prior to 1965, lifetime transfers were allocable to specific asset types, but the amount included in each type was not shown separately. Reports for years prior to 1950 did occasionally separate lifetime transfers for selected asset types, but not all. Therefore, the report for 1976 is the first to present in detail the property distribution of the category "lifetime transfers."

CHANGES IN LAW

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 changed numerous sections of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. Aside from the change in the filing requirement referred to above, the following major items were either introduced or affected by the 1976 Act:

- (1) single unified rate schedule for estate and gift taxes,
- (2) unified credit against estate and gift taxes,

- (3) orphans' deduction,
- (4) special valuation for purposes of the Federal estate tax of certain real property devoted to farming or other closely-held business use,
- (5) (increase in) estate tax marital deduction, and
- (6) (liberalization of) provisions relating to extension of time for payment of estate tax attributable to a closely-held business,
- (7) the inclusion in the decedent's gross estate of all gifts made during the 3-year period prior to the date of the decedent's death without regard to whether these gifts were presumed to be made in contemplation of death or not.

Except for items (4), (6), and (7), for which no statistics are presented in this report, these changes are discussed in the Explanation of Terms.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS

The following explanations of terms are designed to aid the user in interpreting the statistical content of this report and should not be construed as interpretations of the Internal Revenue Code, or related regulations, procedures, or policies.

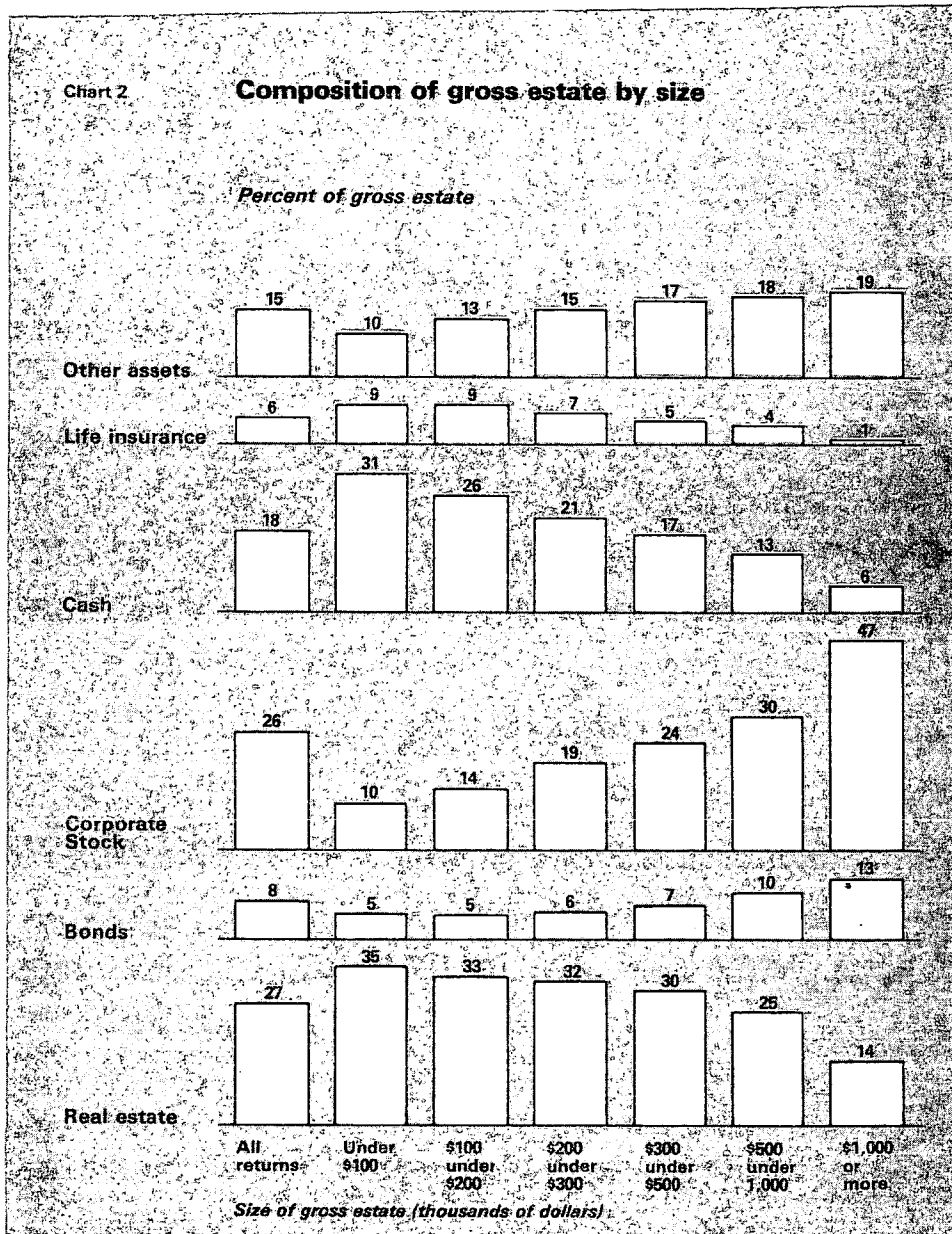

Adjusted gross estate

Adjusted gross estate was the entire value of the decedent's gross estate, less community property and the aggregate amount of the deductions allowed for funeral and administrative expenses and debts and mortgages. See also "Marital deduction."

Age of the decedent

Age was determined by subtracting year of birth from year of death, as reported on Form 706. Months and days were disregarded in this calculation. If either or both years were not reported, the decedent was classified as "age unknown."

"fair market value" of an asset 6 months after the decedent's death, or (2) the value of the asset on the date it was sold or exchanged during the period 6 months after death. However, if elected, the alternate value had to be applied to all items in the estate. The 1976 statistics show that for decedents dying in 1976 and 1977, the executors chose the alternate value of gross estate 6 percent of the time. For those executors who chose the alternate method, the value of corporate stock may have been the major contributing factor in their choice. Corporate stock comprised 53 percent of the gross estate value under this method, but only 22 percent of the gross estate valued under the date-of-death method.

Annuities

The gross estate included the proportionate share of the value of post-death benefits attributable to the decedent's contribution to all annuities or similar contracts or agreements entered into after March 3, 1931. The death payments of the annuity contract could be payable over a period of time or in one lump-sum payment and still be includable. Except for qualified pension, profit-sharing, and stock bonus plans, where the employer's contributions to the annuity were excludable from gross estate, the entire value of all other annuities issued by employers was included in gross estate. The includable value of annuities issued by commercial insurance companies was the replacement cost. Annuity tables were used to value annuities issued by corporations, trusts, other funds, or foundations.

Bequests to surviving spouse

These bequests were property includable in gross estate which were (1) transferred to the surviving spouse, and (2) qualified for the marital deduction. In general, to qualify for the deduction, the transfer must have been a complete and absolute transfer to the spouse and not a transfer in conjunction with any other person. For example, a life interest in property left to the children would not have qualified. Distributions to a surviving spouse were net values. Amounts of qualified transfers were reduced by (1) fees, mortgages, and other costs applicable to these property interests, which could be used as deductions from gross estate, and (2) the Federal estate tax and other death taxes

Alternate value of gross estate

Although the date-of-death value of gross estate determined whether or not an estate tax return had to be filed, the executor could elect a second value for gross estate when computing the estate tax. This alternate value was either (1) the payable out of these property interests. See also "Marital deduction."

Bonds

Total--Besides Federal, State, and local Government issues, total bonds included corporate and foreign bonds and notes. Accrued interest was required to be added to the value of the bonds.

State and local--These included State, county, city, municipal, and district Government bonds and bonds of U.S. possessions, even though the interest from such issues might have been tax-exempt for Federal income tax purposes.

Federal savings--Included in this category were U.S. Savings Bonds and U.S. Savings Notes.

Other Federal--All other issues of the U.S. Government and its instrumentalities were included under this heading.

Corporate and foreign--These included bonds and notes issued by private domestic corporations and foreign bonds whether government or corporate.

Cash

Cash included currency on hand or in safety deposit boxes, checking accounts, bank deposits and notes, and savings and loan accounts.

Charitable bequests

A deduction was allowed for property transferred to or for the use of (1) the United States, any State, or subdivision, (2) religious organizations, and (3) either publicly-owned or privately-owned institutions operated for charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes. Transfers were also deductible if made to fraternal societies, orders, lodges, veterans organizations, and other tax-exempt groups.

Corporate stock

This asset included all common, preferred, and debenture stock, listed or unlisted, of domestic and foreign corporations, including stock in closely-held corporations. Also included were certificates of deposit issued for stock, stock scrip, and dividends accrued on all stocks.

Date-of-death value of gross estate

The amount of property in this category was the fair-market value of all the assets at the death of the decedent. Although this value was used as the criterion for filing an estate tax return, it was not the only measure which could be used in valuing property for estate tax purposes. See also "Alternate value."

Debt deduction

This amount was derived by subtracting nondeductible debts from the total debts of the decedent.

Debts and mortgages

This category included the claims against the estate for medical expenses (including drugs, doctors' and nurses' fees, and other bills outstanding at time of death); unpaid mortgages plus accrued interest; unpaid debts and unsecured notes; accrued property taxes; and, unpaid gift taxes. Tables 1 and 2 show the portion allowable as a deduction. Non-includable debts were unpaid obligations against property includable in the estate which exceeded the value of the property. Table 5 shows the total amount before reduction by the nonincludable portion.

Estate tax after credits

This was the tax liability of the estate remaining after subtraction of credits for State death taxes, foreign death taxes, Federal gift taxes, prior Federal estate taxes (paid by a spouse or other transferor whose death preceded the decedent's), and for 1977 decedents, the unified credit, each discussed under a separate heading.

Estate tax before credits

This was the tax obtained by applying the graduated estate tax rates to "taxable estate." See the tables shown under the explanation of "Taxable estate" for schedules of the rates.

Exemption

Estates of citizen and resident alien decedents, who died in 1976 or prior years, were allowed an exemption of $60,000 from gross estate. For certain nontaxable returns with no taxable estate, the full $60,000 was tabulated whether or not the executor needed it to make the estate nontaxable.

Federal gift tax credit

A credit was allowed for Federal gift taxes paid by decedents on transfers made (during their life) of property which was included in gross estate on the estate tax return. Such transfers included (1) those made within 3 years prior to death

(defined as gifts "in contemplation of death" made by decedents who died prior to 1977; or any gifts, without regard to motive, made by decedents who died in 1977), (2) those in which the decedent had retained an interest, and (3) those which took effect at death. Generally this credit was equal to the lesser of (1) the gift tax paid on the included gift, or (2) the estate tax attributable to the inclusion of the gift in gross estate. For decedents who died in 1977, all gifts made within 3 years of death were includable in gross estate. (See "Lifetime transfers.")

Foreign death tax credit

Credit was allowed for death taxes paid to foreign countries on property includable in gross estate on the tax return. The credit was allowed for taxes on all property provided the taxed property was situated in the country to which the death tax was paid. The estate of citizens and resident-alien decedents had the option to apply all or a portion of the tax, depending upon the limitations or the provisions of tax treaties or conventions where these existed.

Funeral and administrative expenses

The deductions for funeral and administrative expenses were limited to the amounts allowable by the laws of the jurisdiction under which the decedent's estate was administered. Funeral expenses paid by insurance policies, burial plans, or social security benefits were excluded. Administrative expenses were limited to the amounts actually incurred to settle or transfer property of the estate. These expenses included executors' commissions; attorneys' fees; fees of accountants and appraisers; and uncompensated losses from casualties, thefts, or fines which occurred during settlement of the estate.

Certain expenses (such as taxes accrued at the date of the decedent's death) could be claimed both as an estate tax deduction and as an income tax deduction (such as on the fiduciary income tax return, Form 1041, used to report income of the estate prior to settlement). Other administrative expenses could not be deducted for income tax purposes unless the estate waived the right to claim them as an estate tax deduction.

Gross estate

The gross estate as defined in the Internal Revenue Code included all the property or interests in property before reduction by mortgages, debts (except policy loans against life insurance), or administrative expenses. Included were such items as real estate; tangible and intangible personal property; certain lifetime gifts; property over which the decedent had a general power of appointment; dower and curtesy of the surviving spouse (inherited property); the decedent's interest in annuities receivable by the surviving beneficiary; the decedent's part of community property; and, with certain exceptions, joint estates with right of survivorship and tenancies by the entirety.

Gross estate could be valued at one of two points of time. The value at date of death was generally used, but an alternate value (described elsewhere) 6 months later could be substituted in the estate tax computation at the discretion of the executor. Even if the alternate value were chosen, the amount of gross estate at date of death was the criterion for filing the return.

The purpose of an alternate valuation method, first effective in 1935, was to prevent undue hardship from a decline in the value of items in the estate after date of death. If the alternative value was elected, property disposed of within 6 months after death had to be valued by the executor as of the date of disposition; the remaining property had to be valued as of 6 months after the decedent's death. This choice could reduce the tax liability if a major portion of the gross estate had undergone a reduction in value during the first 6 months after the decedent's death. If the choice was made to use the alternate value on one item, however, it had to be applied to all items in the estate.

On some returns however, the executor chose the alternate value even though the estate had appreciated in value during the 6 months after death. In general, the estate tax was minimal or nonexistent on these returns. The higher basis of the property in the hands of beneficiaries reduced the size of any capital gain they might later realize.

The 1976 statistics show that for decedents dying in 1976 and 1977, the executors chose the date-of-death value 94 percent of the time. For those executors who chose the alternate method, the size of corporate stock may have been the major contributing factor in their choice. Corporate stock comprised 53 percent of the gross estate value under the alternate method but only 22 percent of the gross estate valued under the date-of-death method.

Household goods and other assets

This residual category of property consisted of items such as personal effects, royalties, patent and mineral rights, automobiles, cemetery lots, and the lump-sum benefits from social security usable for the decedent's funeral expenses.

Jointly-owned property

Jointly-owned property was property held by the decedent with the spouse as a joint tenant with rights of survivorship. Included was the entire value of the property except that portion attributable to the contributions of the surviving joint tenant. Jointly-owned property is reflected in each of the property types shown in this report and, in addition, is shown separately (in total only) in tables 1 and 2.

Life insurance

Face value--This item included all the insurance on the decedent's life received by the estate and insurance in which the decedent had incidents of ownership (power to change the beneficiary, cancel an assignment, or borrow on the policy). Other includable items were death benefits paid by fraternal beneficial societies operating under the lodge system and the proceeds of policies pledged for loans or other debts. Paid-up additions, accumulated dividends, and post-mortem dividends were required to be added to the total amount. The face value was not reduced by outstanding policy loans (as was done in computing net proceeds for inclusion in gross estate on the tax return).

Policy loans--These loans consisted of the principal and interest on any indebtedness to an insurance company. As mentioned above, these loans were subtracted from the face value to compute the net proceeds of life insurance includable in gross estate. Policy loans against life insurance is shown in table 5.

Lifetime transfers

Included in this item were three categories of gifts which, by law, had to be reported in gross estate: (1) gifts taking effect at death; (2) gifts of property in which the decedent retained income rights; and of property over which the decedent retained the right to alter, amend, revoke, or terminate the employment or use; and (3), for decedents who died in 1976 or prior years, outright gifts made within 3 years prior to death, presumed to be in contemplation of death unless the executor could prove to the contrary. As a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, all gifts made within 3 years of death were includable in gross estate, beginning with decedents who died in 1977. Prior to that year, the presumption that gifts made within 3 years were in "contemplation of death" had caused considerable legal problems concerning the motives of decedents in making gifts. It was felt that such problems should be eliminated by requiring that all such gifts be included in gross estate without having to ascertain the motives of the decedent.

Lifetime transfers allocated to specific types of property are shown in table 4.

Marginal tax rate

See the discussion under "Taxable estate."

Marital deduction

The marital deduction was introduced in the Revenue Act of 1948 in order to equalize the treatment of the decedent's property in noncommunity property States for estate tax purposes. In community property States, generally only one-half of the property was includable in the estate for tax purposes.

The community property system recognizes that the property acquired during marriage belongs equally to the husband and wife. Prior to 1948, however, in common law States practically all the property was the husband's and no division of assets was permitted for purposes of estate taxation.

Although the marital deduction applied to transfers of property to the surviving spouse, the deduction, for returns filed in 1977 for decedents who died in 1976 or prior years, was limited to the smaller of the following:

- (1) the value of the property transferred to the spouse, or
- (2) one-half the adjusted gross estate. (Basically, adjusted gross estate was defined as the entire value of gross estate, other than community property, less expenses, debts and losses, but before reduction by the exemption and charitable deductions).

As a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, the marital deduction was limited to the greater of $250,000, or one-half of the decedent's adjusted gross estate beginning with decedents who died in 1977. It was felt that a decedent with a small- or medium-sized estate should be allowed to leave a minimum amount of property to the surviving spouse without the imposition of an estate tax.

The marital deduction provided a considerable tax savings for the beneficiaries of the decedent's estate. However, property excluded through the marital deduction was later included in the estate of the surviving spouse unless that spouse disposed of it during the interim, or had transferred it to another spouse in the event of remarriage.

Marital status of decedent

The classification of marital status was determined from information on the return form and reflected the decedent's status at time of death. Legally-separated and divorced decedents and decedents whose marital status was not indicated on the return were included in "other decedents" in the tables showing marital status as a classification.

Noncorporate business assets

This was the fair market value of business assets of the decedent, exclusive of real estate. Included were net interests in a sole proprietorship and partnership, both farm and nonfarm, including such items as machinery, accounts receivable, and inventories and other merchandise used in the business.

Nondeductible debts

Nondeductible debts were the portion of unpaid obligations against the decedent's property which exceeded the value of such property. The excess debts were not allowed as a deduction.

This amount was derived from the statistics by subtracting "allowable deductions" from "total deductions" defined below. ("Allowable deductions" is the amount of deductions that was used for estate tax purposes). The amount of "nondeductible debts" is shown in table 5 as a component of "total debts of the decedent."

Nontaxable returns

Nontaxable returns were those with no estate tax after credits.

Notes and mortgages

These assets were in the form of promissory notes; loans; debts due the decedent; mortgages; trust deeds; and contracts to sell land, including the accrued interest associated with any of them.

Orphans' deduction

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 provided a new estate tax deduction for amounts which passed to a child of the decedent, if the child were under 21 years of age and there were no surviving spouse of the decedent. It was felt that a limited deduction, similar in purpose to that for a bequest to surviving spouse, should be allowed for interests passing to a minor orphan, based on the assumed responsibility on the part of the decedent to support the child. The maximum deduction under this provision was $5,000 for each year the child was under age 21. This provision was initially applicable to decedents dying in 1977.

Powers of appointment

This category included the value of all property over which the decedent held a general power of appointment, that is, property over which the decedent did not have the title, but did have the power to designate who should enjoy it. For such property to be included in the estate, a power of appointment must have been able to be exercised in favor of the decedent, the decedent's estate, or creditors of either. For example, if property had been transferred in trust for the life of an individual with a power to consume the entire principal of the trust, the decedent had a general power of appointment. The assets covered by powers of appointments are reflected in each of the asset types shown in this report and, in addition, are shown separately (in total only) in tables 1 and 2.

Prior Federal estate tax credit

A tax credit was allowed for Federal estate tax paid on property received by the decedent or the estate from a transferor who died within 10 years before, or 2 years after, the decedent. The credit was intended to limit the burden of double taxation between successive estates whose owners had died within a short period of time. This credit was first limited to the Federal tax attributable to the transferred property (1) in the transferor's estate, or (2) in the decedent's (transferee's) estate. It was then further limited by the following scale of percentages:

Date of death of decedent (transferee)	Percent of tax paid, allowed as a credit
Within 2 years before or after death of transferor.....	100%
After death of transferor:
Over 2 and under 4 years.....	80%
Over 4 and under 6 years.....	60%
Over 6 and under 8 years.....	40%
Over 8 and under 10 years.....	20%
Over 10 years.....	No credit

Real estate

This asset included the full value, not equity, of business or personal real property (land, buildings, improvements, and natural resources) owned or under contract to purchase by the decedent if situated principally in the United States. For decedents who died after July 1, 1964, all foreign real estate interests were includable in gross estate. The accrued rent on the real property was required to be included in the total.

Sex of the decedent

The classification of the sex of the decedent was determined from the given name of the decedent or title (i.e., Mr., Mrs., Miss or Ms.) and any other relevant information on the return.

State

This geographical classification was determined from the address of the decedent at time of death as reported by the executor or administrator. Returns of decedents who at time of death were residing in the District of Columbia are shown with Maryland. Returns of citizens who at time of death were residing in Puerto Rico, the Panama Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands, and other locations outside the United States are shown in the category "Other areas" (tables 18 and 19).

State death tax credit

A tax credit was permitted for inheritance, legacy, successor, or estate taxes actually paid to any State or the District of Columbia on property included in gross estate, but the credit was limited to the amount computed by using the table below.

Taxable estate

Taxable estate was the base to which the graduated Federal estate tax rates were applied in computing the estate tax before credits. For decedents who died in 1976 or prior years, both allowable deductions and the $60,000 statutory exemption were subtracted from gross estate to arrive at taxable estate. The first table shown below provides the range of estate tax rates which were applicable to various amounts of taxable estate.

In table 15, the number of returns and amounts of taxable estate and estate tax before credits are shown classified by tax rates applicable to decedents who died in 1976 or prior years. The example below, as well as the accompanying illustration, show how the tax was computed at the various graduated rates and provide a guide on how the table was constructed.

The 28 percent rate is the highest, or marginal, rate at which this estate was taxed. In the illustration below, the taxable estate and tax appear in the first five columns opposite the 28 percent rate indicated in the stub as follows: In column 1, "number of returns," this return is counted only once, opposite the 28 percent rate. Column 4, "taxable estate at marginal tax rate," contains that portion of the total taxable estate, $25,000, taxed at the marginal or highest rate.

Column 6, "tax generated at marginal tax rate," contains that portion of the total tax generated at the highest rate, in this instance, $7,000 at the 28 percent rate. Columns 3 and 5 summarize, by the marginal or highest rate, the total taxable estate and tax. In column 5, it is the total tax on the return, $16,500, that is shown to facilitate comparison with the $7,000 taxed at the highest rate.

In the illustration, the estate was classified at each rate used in computing the tax; thus a count of the number of returns taxed at each graduated rate (column 10) is obtained. Notice that, in the example, the return is counted opposite eight rates and not just at its marginal rate as in columns 1, 3-6. However, to avoid duplication this estate is counted only once in the total of column 10. Each increment of taxable estate and tax associated with these eight rates (columns 11-12) appears opposite the rate at which the tax was generated.

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 provided for several significant changes in the computation of taxable estate and tax, beginning with decedents who died in 1977. The marital deduction was liberalized and the orphans' deduction was introduced. More importantly, the $60,000 exemption was replaced by a tax credit (see "unified credit"), and a single unified rate schedule replaced the separate rates for the estate tax and for the gift tax (which had been set at three-fourths the estate rates at corresponding brackets). It was felt that the tax burden imposed on transfers of the same amount of wealth should be substantially the same, whether the transfers were made both during life and at death, or made only at death. The revised unified tax rates are contained in the following table:

If the amount with respect to which the tentative tax to be computed is:

Table 16 is similar to table 15 except for the difference in tax rates. The illustration shown above can be applied to table 16.

Taxable returns

Taxable returns were those with an amount of estate tax after credits.

Tax credits

Tax credits were allowed for five types of taxes paid on property in the decedent's estate. They were State death taxes, Federal gift taxes, foreign death taxes, estate tax on prior transfers, and the new unified credit (explained below).

Total debts of the decedent

This item was derived for the statistics by adding debts and mortgages (including nondeductible debts) and policy loans against life insurance.

Total deductions

For decedents who died in 1976 or prior years, total deductions was the sum of the deductions for funeral and administrative expenses; debts and mortgages; charitable, public, and similar gifts and bequests; the marital deduction; and, the $60,000 statutory exemption. For decedents who died in 1977, there was no $60,000 statutory exemption.

However, an additional deduction, the orphans' deduction, became effective with 1977 decedents.

Unified credit

A unified credit against estate and gift taxes in lieu of the specific exemption became effective with decedents who died in 1977. This credit was introduced as part of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 and was designed to replace the $60,000 exemption previously available to estates of decedents who died before 1977. It was felt that a credit (in lieu of an exemption) would have the effect of reducing the estate tax for the smaller and medium-sized estates, since a credit is applied as a dollar-for-dollar reduction of tax and, therefore, generally confers more tax savings than an exemption or deduction.

The credit was to be phased in over a 3-year period. In 1977, the unified credit was $30,000 (the equivalent of an exemption of $120,667 under the unified rate schedule). As a transitional rule, the unified credit allowable was reduced by an amount equal to 20 percent of the amount allowed as an exemption in computing taxable gifts made before 1977. Thus, in the case in which a donor had benefited from the use of the full $30,000 gift tax specific exemption before 1977, the maximum unified credit allowable was reduced by $6,000.

In table 2, the data indicate that a small number of taxable returns of decedents who died in 1977 did not show the unified tax credit. This may have been due, in part, to the tax preparer's oversight (because this provision was new and the returns were statistically edited prior to audit).

DESCRIPTION OF THE SAMPLE AND LIMITATIONS OF THE DATA

Source of the Data

The data presented in this report are estimates based on a stratified systematic sample of Estate Tax Returns, Form 706, filed for the estates of U.S. citizens and residents at the ten Internal Revenue Service Centers. All returns other than amended returns processed during 1977 were subjected to sampling, without regard to the date of death of the decedent. Amended returns were excluded because another return for the same estate may have been subjected to sampling.

Sample Criteria and Selection

Estate tax returns were stratified based on size of gross estate then subjected to systematic sampling. The sample was manually selected at the following rates: all of the returns with gross estates of $500,000 or more; one fifth (1/5) of the returns with gross estates of at least $200,000 but less than $500,000; and one eighth (1/8) of the returns with gross estates of less than $200,000. Table C shows the number of returns in the population and sample by stratum, together with a description of each stratum.

There is a difference between the total number of returns shown in the tables of this report and

Description of the strata	Number of returns
	Population	Sample

$500,000 or more .....	13,997	13,997

the number of returns in the population, as shown in Table C. This difference is due to the exclusion from the tabulations of (1) tentative returns, (2) duplicate returns, (3) amended returns not attached to the original, and (4) returns with gross estates less than the filing requirements ($60,000 if the date of death was before January 1, 1977, or $120,000 if otherwise).

The adequacy of the sample selected was reviewed within service center and sample stratum. Where the actual number of sample returns differed considerably from the number expected, a followup was conducted.

Method of Estimation

Weighting factors were obtained by dividing the count of returns filed in each sample stratum by the number of sample returns from that stratum. A separate set of these weighting factors was computed for each service center area to decrease the variability of the estimates. The weighting factors were then converted to "integer weighting factors" before they were applied to the sample returns. For example, if a weighting factor of 15.25 were computed for a stratum, 25 percent of the sample returns in that stratum systematically would be assigned an integer weighting factor of 16, and 75 percent a factor of 15.

Sampling Variability

The coefficient of variation (C.V.) is the standard deviation of an estimate expressed as a percentage of the estimate. The standard deviation when added to and subtracted from the estimate provides the computed upper and lower limits of the interval within which approximately two out of three estimates derived from similarly selected samples would be expected to fall.

Upper limit estimates of the coefficients of variation, shown in Table D, were computed using a formula based on the sum-of-squares technique. These upper limit estimates, applicable to frequencies only, may be used as a general guide for use when computed coefficients of variation are not available.

Coefficients of variation for selected estimates were computed using a sum-of-squares formula, and are shown in Table E.

Frequencies or amounts with excessive sampling variability are indicated in this report by a single asterisk (*) to the left of the data item(s).

A dash in place of a frequency or amount indicates that:

(1) If returns were sampled at a rate of 100 percent, no returns had the particular characteristic; or

(2) If returns were sampled at a rate less than 100 percent either no returns in the population had the characteristic or the characteristic was so rare that it did not appear on any sample returns.

Statistical Processing Controls

In editing, transcribing, and tabulating the information from returns in the sample, additional checks were imposed to improve the quality of the resulting estimates. Incorrect or missing entries were corrected during statistical processing to make them consistent with other entries on the return or accompanying schedules.

Quality of the basic data abstracted was controlled by means of a continuous subsampling verification system. In addition, the Statistics Division in the National Office conducted an independent reprocessing of a small subsample of returns statistically processed in the field as a further check on processing. Prior to tabulation numerous computer tests were applied to each return record to assure that proper balance and relationship between return items were maintained.

Finally, prior to publication all statistics and tables were reviewed for reasonableness, in light of provisions of tax laws, taxpayer reporting variations and limitations, economic conditions, comparability with other statistical sources and statistical techniques used in data processing.

However, the controls maintained over the selection of sample returns, the processing of the source data, and the review of the statistics did not completely eliminate the possibility of error. Also, practical operating considerations required the allowance of reasonable tolerances in the statistical processing of the data.

* Estimate should be used with caution because of the small number of returns on which it is based.

** Identifies (a) size classes for which data were deleted because of the small number of sample returns on which they were based and (b) combined frequencies or amounts that include the data thus deleted from another size class.

* Less than $500.

NOTE: Detail may not add to total because of rounding.

* Estimate should be used with caution because of the small number of returns on which it is based.

** Identifies (a) size classes for which data were deleted because of the small number of sample returns on which they were based and (b) combined frequencies or amounts that include the data thus deleted from another size class.

* Less than $500.

NOTE: Detail may not add to total because of rounding.

*Estimate should be used with caution because of the small number of sample returns on which it is based.
 **Identifies (a) size classes for which data were deleted because of the small number of sample returns on which they were based and (b) combined frequencies or amounts that include the data thus deleted from another size class.
<sup>1</sup>Includes legally separated, divorced, and marital status unstated decedents.
 NOTE: Detail may not add to total because of rounding.

<sup>1</sup> Includes legally separated, divorced, and "marital status unstated" decedents.

NOTE: Detail may not add to total because of rounding.

*Estimate should be used with caution because of the small number of sample returns on which it is based.

**Identifies (a) size classes for which data were deleted because of the small number of sample returns on which they were based and (b) combined frequencies or amounts that include the data thus deleted from another size class.

NOTE: Detail may not add to total because of rounding.

Table 17.—Number of Returns, Gross Estate, and Estate Tax After Credits by Size of Gross Estate and Size of Estate Tax After Credits

[All figures are estimates based on samples—money amounts are in thousands of dollars]

Main data table with multiple columns: Size of gross estate, All returns, Returns with no estate tax after credits, Returns with estate tax after credits, and Size of estate tax after credits. The Size of estate tax after credits is further divided into six categories: $7,500 under $10,000, $10,000 under $25,000, $25,000 under $50,000, $50,000 under $100,000, $100,000 under $500,000, and $500,000 or more. Rows include 'All decedents, total' and 'Decedents who died in 1977, total' with various sub-categories.

*Estimate should be used with caution because of the small number of sample returns on which it is based.

**Identifies (a) size classes for which data were deleted because of the small number of sample returns on which they were based and (b) combined frequencies or amounts that include the data thus deleted from another size class.
