IOWA CITY, IOWA SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1932

VOL. XXXII

NUMBER 53

HOOVER TO LAUNCH NEW AID DRIVE

City Appoints Two Appraisers of Water Works

Evaluation of Plant Assured by Aldermen

Set Sept. 15 as Date for Completion of Evaluation Job

With the appointment of the Burns and McDonnell and the Haskins engineering companies of Kansas City as appraisers, the city council last night assured the evaluation of the water company.

According to Edward Sybil, who introduced the resolution, the companies selected are nationally known as expert appraisers of utilities, having made more than 50 evaluations in this state.

Will Cost $6,000
The cost of the appraisal, as stipulated in the resolution, will be $6,000 for two men, $50 per day and expenses for five days if the evaluation is taken into court, and an indefinite sum, preferably less than $1,000, for the payment of the city's bill to the fifth appraiser. The date for the report of the group was set for Sept. 15.

With the arrival of the city's appraisers, they and two men who will be appointed by the water company will select a fifth man, and this group will evaluate the plant. If four out of the five agree upon a figure, that estimate will be placed before the voters next March, when they will decide the question of municipal ownership.

Take Matter to Court
If the appraisers fail to agree, the matter will be taken into court, where testimony of the appraisers will be heard and a final value of the plant will be designated.

Before the council voted on the question, Harry Shulman urged the shelving of municipal ownership for the present time. He offered a plan whereby the city could tax the owner of every building in Iowa City $3 per year, and then after 15 years the city could build its own water plant.

Council members claimed that the tax would have to be high to raise enough money to build a plant, that such a tax would be too hard on the taxpayers, that the taxpayers might as well buy the plant now as to build one in 15 years when materials might be costly, and that an appraisal, even though the plant is not purchased, may be used for the lowering of rates.

Vote Expenses
The council voted to pay the expenses of LeRoy S. Mercer for a trip to Des Moines next week to confer with the budget director on how to raise money for the appraisal.

An invitation of the city employees to attend the picnic for city workers, officials, and their families next Wednesday was accepted by the council. According to Mayor J. J. Carroll, there will be a holiday for city employees Wednesday after 10 a. m. The picnic, to be held north of Iowa City, will include dancing, sports, and card games.

An offer by W. H. Bailey to take up and cancel a judgment against the city if judgment is returned against warrants totaling approximately $11,000 in return for an equal amount of sewer bonds was accepted subject to the approval of the city attorney.

An application of J. K. Duncan asking for a permit to build a 12,000 gallon gasoline storage tank at the south end of Capitol street was rejected until the installation of the tank gets the approval of the fire chief and the city inspector.

The building and grounds committee was ordered to investigate the regulation of heat in the city hall to save coal.

Iowa City Weather Cools as Mercury Drops Seven Points

Without perspiration or any of the other discomforts attendant on hot weather, Iowa City enjoyed itself yesterday.

With the mercury at the lowest point since July 9 and a smooth, cool breeze blowing from the southwest, no one suffered and "nice day" was not an empty greeting.

Seven points below Thursday's 87 degrees, the highest reading yesterday, according to Prof. John F. Reilly, was an even 80 degrees. And at 7 p. m. it had dropped still further, to 71 degrees.

Tenth Olympiad Gets Under Way in Los Angeles Today

Curtis Lends Official Note to Proceeding

2,000 Athletes to Join in Review Before Audience

LOS ANGELES, July 29 (AP)—Vice President Curtis lent the official dignity of the United States to the games of the tenth Olympiad today, arriving here to proclaim the opening of the international classic tomorrow.

He immediately launched into the spirit of the world-wide sports carnival which will take the spotlight with the opening ceremony in the packed Olympiad stadium before 105,000 persons.

A 2,000 piece band will play the national anthem, joined by a choir of 1,000 voices as the vice president appears in the huge concert bowl escorted by Count Henri de Baillet-Latour, president of the tenth Olympiad committee.

Grand Parade
Then follows the grand parade of the nations with 2,000 of the world's finest athletes passing in review in their multi-colored uniforms. Mr. Curtis will be introduced to the vast assembly by Mr. Garland as they stand in the tribune of honor.

In one hushed minute he will speak 16 words in behalf of President Hoover.

"I proclaim open the Olympic Games of Los Angeles, celebrating the tenth Olympiad of the modern year."

And thus, the international classic, a renewal of the Greek games of old, will officially start. A fanfare from trumpeters in the peristyle will answer his words. The Olympic salute from 10 cannons will echo through the great bowl.

The Olympic torch atop the peristyle will be lighted as the chor chants the Olympic hymn. The official banner of the games will be hoisted to the top of the mast, as 2,000 doves burst forth from the entrance archway of the stadium.

Dedication Oath Given
Robert Sproul, president of the University of California, will deliver the dedication address, and pronounce the benediction, after which Lieut. George C. Calnan, U. S. N., representing the United States in his fourth Olympic games, will take the oath of the international games in behalf of the athletes of the world.

The ceremony will be staged in a flag-bedecked setting, with 42 nations of the world represented in the parade.

This afternoon Mr. Curtis presented Amelia Earhart Putnam, transatlantic flyer, the distinguished flying cross and joined Governor Rolph in dedicating the new state building here.

Tonight Mr. Curtis was the honored guest at the president's dinner and formal dance, which brought together a cosmopolitan crowd of the world's leading dignitaries.

Drop City Alliance With Municipalities, Council Determines

Iowa City dropped out of the League of Iowa Municipalities by action of the city council last night.

Dissatisfaction with the management of the league, an organization of cities allegedly for the purpose of bringing weight on the state legislature, was expressed by the councilmen after the reading of a letter asking for annual dues of $40.

The league, with headquarters in Des Moines, is working now on bills cutting trucking taxes which it will bring before the next session of the legislature.

University Not to Issue New Directory

Because of the change in telephone numbers, created by the installation of the new dial system, there will be no second term student directory issued, it was announced today.

Addresses and phone numbers of students attending school during this term of the summer session may be obtained from the summer session office, room 117, university hall, however.

Two Named to Direct Republicans' Eastern Drive for Election

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—On the shoulders of a Rhode Island senator and a New York banker the Republican party today placed the responsibility of leading the eastern battle for Herbert Hoover.

Felix Hebert, 58 year old lawyer, who is serving his first term in the senate, will be eastern campaign manager.

Jeremiah Milbank, 45 year old Wall street financier, will have the job of raising the money for the campaign fight in the 12 middle-Atlantic and northeastern states.

With these two appointments, Everett Sanders, national chairman, laid the groundwork for a ballot drive that will begin to get up steam next week and will reach its full speed in September.

Dictatorship Plan Denied

Von Papen Delivers Radio Address to United States

BERLIN, July 29 (AP)—Chancellor Franz von Papen, whose cabinet is made up of men powerful in the junker and military caste of the old imperial government, assured the United States in a transatlantic broadcast tonight that neither he nor his ministers were maneuvering for a German dictatorship.

Assails Treaty
His address, in which he assailed the Versailles treaty, took on added significance because of two factors. At home Germany is embroiled in the campaign for the Reichstag election Sunday, and abroad she is involved in a new difference with France.

A few hours before the chancellor went on the air, his foreign minister, Baron von Neurath, told the French ambassador that when Defense Minister von Schleicher threatened the other day to arm Germany if the other nations did not disarm, he spoke for every member of the German cabinet and for the whole German nation.

Gives Speech in English
The von Papen radio speech, sponsored by the international radio forum founded by Ira Nelson Morris, American diplomat, was in English, a language the chancellor learned when he served the old imperial government at Washington.

The treaty of Versailles, von Papen said, is the main cause of the fatherland's distress; it fosters radicalism both of the right and of the left.

James Manry Resigns Post at University

Philosophy Professor to Return to India in September

Prof. James C. Manry of the philosophy department has resigned his position here and will return to India in September, it was announced yesterday afternoon by Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts.

Professor Manry, who has been on the university faculty since 1923, will develop a department of educational research, under the auspices of Allahabad Christian college and the University of Allahabad, both of Allahabad, India.

His new work in that country will be on a project recommended by the commission on Christian higher education in India, and his appointment is for a five year period.

After receiving his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Iowa in 1923, Professor Manry spent five years in India, returning to Iowa City in 1929.

His work at the university consisted of courses in philosophy and in character education, the latter of which was in connection with the work of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station. During this last year he also taught in the school of religion.

Professor Manry's resignation is to become effective Sept. 1, and 10 days later he and Mrs. Manry will sail from New York city. His successor has not yet been appointed.

36 Arrested
Thirty-six radical members of the "bonus expeditionary force" had been arrested by police as they left a meeting in an abandoned church in southeast Washington, about 75 more of their number were escorted out of the city, and a general exodus of hundreds of veterans made headway through the day and evening.

District of Columbia officials headed the president's command.

Come On, Boys and Girls! There's Lots of Room for More in Our Swim Contest

Splash!
That's the way to get in the swim, and that's the way that Iowa City boys and girls are responding to The Daily Iowan's free swim contest. They've just jumped right into it.

But there's going to be room for lots more boys and girls who want to take time to write a letter to the editor of The Daily Iowan and tell him what they are doing this summer to earn some money.

Just think what's in store for you, kids. A ride to the Big Dipper pool, two hours of fun in the water, and a ride home again—"all free for nothin'"—except that you must write your letter and hurry it in to The Daily Iowan.

Last of Vets Vacate Camp in Washington

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—In one final gas and fire attack federal troops late today swept away the last veterans of the bonus army encampments in downtown Washington and heard their jobs pronounced well done by their commander-in-chief, President Hoover.

Confident that order at last had been restored after riotous clashes and hand to hand battles between police and veterans, the cavalry was returned to Fort Myer, Virginia, and the infantry taken in trucks to the Washington Quartermaster depot, a temporary war structure several blocks from the White House, where it was quartered for the night.

Just as the tear-gas and torch-bearing troopers and doughboys were firing their last veteran shanty and scattering the few straggling bonus seekers in all directions, President Hoover announced to the nation that the riotous challenge to government authority had been "met swiftly and firmly."

"Government cannot be coerced by mob rule," the president said emphatically. He had ordered a grand jury investigation to bring to book the instigators of yesterday's clashes.

Trade Board Files Petition

Fights Order to Shut Down for 60 Day Period

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Appealing today from the government's decree suspending the world's largest grain market for 60 days, the Chicago board of trade petitioned the U. S. circuit court of appeals for a ruling on the constitutionality of the grain futures act.

A commission of three of President Hoover's cabinet members invoked this act of 1922 to discipline the board of trade after its denial of clearing house privileges to the Farmers National Grain corporation, government-sponsored cooperative.

Taking its controversy with the cooperative into the federal courts, the board of trade contended:

That the invoking of the act deprived the board of its property without due process of law guaranteed by the fifth amendment to the constitution;

That the commission erred in holding that the Farmers' National was a "lawfully farmer cooperative of producers";

That the commission erred in holding the board of trade, clearing corporation was dominated and controlled by the board of trade; and that the board of trade was responsible for the act of the clearing corporation in denying membership to the Farmers' National.

Program to Influence All U.S. Industry

Slum Control Figures in New Program for Rehabilitation

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Plans for a concerted push toward national economic rehabilitation—reaching from coast to coast and into every industry—were outlined in a nine-point program today by President Hoover.

The chief executive counted off to newspapermen called to his office one point after another of a project upon which he and administration leaders are at work.

Enumerates Plans
Quickly he enumerated plans to replace slum districts, stimulate programs for railway replacement and repair, broaden livestock and feeder loans, expand credit facilities and speed up the movement of agricultural commodities.

When these variegated efforts are further advanced, the president said, the "business and industrial" committees composed of prominent men in each of the 12 federal reserve districts will be called into conference "with a view to establishing united and concerted action on a broad front throughout the country."

Lists Entire Program
Threading through almost the entire woof of the program, he then outlined activities of the $3,800,000,000 Reconstruction corporation, the directorate of which he completed yesterday with the naming of Charles A. Miller of Utica, New York, who will be its president.

As the first point in his program, the president spoke of better organizing the corporation's new $1,500,000,000 powers for financing self-liquidating projects. An engineer of standing, he said, will be appointed as chairman of a board of engineers to advise the corporation as to how employment may be stimulated through early orders of material.

First Intimation of Action
The chief executive's mention of a slum-clearing campaign was his first public intimation that he contemplated immediate action along this line. Funds for the work would come from the Reconstruction corporation.

The president also broached for the first time plans for railway replacement and repair as an aid to employment and a speeding up of industry through the placing of orders.

One of the major efforts to spread employment, he said, will be a movement to shorten working hours.

The other points in his nine-point program included expansion of credit facilities, particularly where consumption of the goods concerned is assured, swift organization of the home loan bank system and, lastly, "other avenues of cooperation between the government in aid to public and private agencies."

Demo Chiefs in Conference for Campaign

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt tonight put the finishing touches on his first campaign speech and then went into a huddle with Louis M. Howe and James A. Farley to map out plans for his presidential drive in Republican territory.

Mr. Roosevelt's first political utterance since the Chicago convention which nominated him will be heard over a nation wide radio hookup tomorrow night. He will, at that time, amplify his attitude toward the Democratic platform which he accepted without reservation on July 2. The governor will speak for 30 minutes, commencing at 8 o'clock, eastern standard time.

Supplementing, and to a large extent dependent upon the expressions of the Democratic nominee tomorrow, will be a statement from Governor Ely of Massachusetts to be issued on Monday. Not since the convention has Ely, who supported former Governor Smith, committed himself.

Weaver Lauds Imagination of English Poet

Tells Shelley's Ideas of Values, Utility in Modern Life

Describing Shelley as a man of "more positive genius than Shakespeare," Prof. Bennett Weaver of the English department addressed more than 100 persons last night in Old Capitol on the subject, "Shelley: values and imagination."

Professor Weaver, a poet and a visiting faculty member from the University of Michigan, spoke as the first lecturer in the school of letters series for the second term.

"The principles of Shelley's writings," he declared, "are still being driven through and through the earth at the present time."

Quotes Shelley
Quoting from Shelley, he said that "man, having enslaved the elements, remains himself enslaved," but prophesied that "out of our minds shall arise a power of imagination which shall discover those values which can stay us."

Shelley, he said, was born in a period in which there was war between peoples and revolution among people—in which persons were being gathered from the country into cities. The solution to this problem at that time was more war; but Shelley recognized the futility of war, and turned to poetry, "not as an end, but as a means by which the greatest ends of humanity might be reached."

"Absolute Power"
The imagination with which Shelley dealt, according to Professor Weaver, was not that of the common definition, but rather "an absolute power, an exalted reasoning, which dwells within the mind of man. It is the power by means of which Shelley participated in the infinite."

"When imagination goes dry . . . men hate, despise, deceive, and subjugate one another," he said. "But as man becomes more imaginary, he becomes more godlike; and becoming more godlike, he becomes more creative. And as he becomes more creative, he knows better the values of life; he will save that which is lost and will learn to love all," he concluded.

That's all you have to do—then watch The Daily Iowan to see that your letter appears. When it does, you'll know that you will be called for by The Daily Iowan-Big Dipper car at 2 o'clock that same afternoon, excepting Sunday, and that you enjoy your swim.

Swim times will be Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The winning letters will appear Sunday (for Monday swims) and on the mornings of the other days when the swims will be held.

Watch for Letters
So, if your letter appears Sunday, you'll know that you have two hours of swimming coming Monday; if it appears Tuesday you'll get your chance to swim that afternoon, and so on.

And you can tell mother and dad not to worry, because there will be three life savers on guard at the pool; and there will be two Iowa City social workers on hand to see that you enjoy yourself.

So get your letters in, and watch Sunday's paper for the announcement of the first winners, who will go swimming Monday.

Senator Dickinson Will Open Campaign for Hoover Saturday

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—The Republican party's mid-west campaign to re-elect Herbert Hoover will open Saturday with a radio address by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, director of senatorial campaigns in 12 central states.

The address, scheduled for 12:30 p.m. (central standard time) over the National broadcasting system, is expected to be followed at intervals by other radio talks until the speaking campaign opens in earnest about September 15. Dial Service Takes Effect Late Tonight

Cone Promises Cut Over Will Not Cause Interruption

Near midnight tonight, Iowa City telephone users will hear the familiar "Number, please" for the last time.

At some time near 12 p.m., probably a few moments after, the old manual telephone system that has been in operation for years will have become a thing of the past and dial operation will become effective for the city's 7,000 telephones.

No Interruption

Early this evening two crews of men who have been trained for the job of making the service transfer will assemble in the old and new telephone offices. Both places will be scenes of brisk activity throughout the evening and early morning. Carl Cone, manager for the Northwestern Bell Telephone company, promises that there will be no noticeable interruption in service while the transfer is being made.

H. R. Parrish, telephone engineer, will be in direct command of the many different operations necessary to transfer service to the new system. Seated before telephone equipment in the new building he will maintain constant telephone contact with the groups of men in both the new and old offices.

Transfer Near Midnight

Although the work will progress throughout the evening, the actual transfer of service will not be made until some moment near midnight when the volume of calls passing over the old switch board has decreased to only an occasional conversation.

Seizing a moment, if possible, when no calls are being made, Mr. Parrish will pass a telephone order to rows of men stationed in the terminal room of the old central office. "Pull the heat coils," will be the command. Workmen will pull many pairs of ropes that have been threaded behind the vertical rows of heat coils. These tiny coils, or fuses, are the connecting link in each telephone line and as the ropes are pulled, thousands of pairs of them will be snapped from their clips, disconnecting thousands of telephones.

Masks for Protection

Workmen pulling these ropes will have their faces protected by masks against the heat coils which will shower into the air and against the men.

The removal of these heat coils will mark the end of manual telephone service in Iowa City. Operators will leave their positions at the switchboards the minute the order for removal is issued and lights on the board will go dead as the heat coils are snapped from the frames.

After the moment required for the removal of the heat coils, Mr. Parrish will pass a similar "remove" order to the cutover force located in the enlarged telephone building. Here workmen will pull long wooden poles to which have been attached small wedges that have been placed in the dial equipment. This too will require only a moment's work and when the last wedges have been removed, dial service will be in operation.

Signaled by Humming Noise

As soon as the dial switches are freed from their blocking wedges, the dial tone, a steady humming sound in the receiver, will be the signal to telephone users that dial service is in operation, that the changed numbers in the new green directory are effective, and that telephone numbers should be dialed.

At the same moment the change from manual to dial service is made, long distance telephone lines entering Iowa City will be transferred to the new switchboard on the second floor of the new building.

Operators of New Switchboard Operators will be stationed at this new switchboard and at other switchboard positions where they will be ready to furnish assistance in the completion of any calls should it be necessary.

The change to dial operation will virtually complete the $130,000 construction and improvement program which has been in progress here for nearly a year. With the new system in operation, all phases of telephone service will be handled in the new building.

To witness the change tonight from the old system to the new, 22 department heads of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company have arrived in Iowa City during the last two days. More are expected to arrive today.

The Battle of Anacostia Flats

"YAH, what a country!"

"This will sure go down in history."

"We'll be better organized next time."

And the answer for all three taunts by fleeing bonus seekers was another bombardment of tear gas that finally succeeded in routing the last of the "army" from the capital camps.

Warranted because, in the words of the U. S. army chief of staff, "the government would have been threatened."

President Hoover's calling out the army to combat unruly war veterans and to evict them from government properties is deserving of commendation.

With all due sympathy for the men who participated in earlier peaceful demonstrations for the bonus payment, the movement that might have regained impetus in the fall, had all its supporters believed in law and order, is now a lost cause.

Any organization that will heekle a harassed government beyond endurance deserves no respect of those who are content to wait in peace for the tide of adversity to turn.

Hoover will be criticised roundly for resorting to troops in the attempt to evict the bonuseers and there will be many ready to attach political significance to his act.

Those criticisms might well be ignored as made by people who would attach political meaning to anything.

The government has asserted itself at last, and that is the major significance of the entire farce.

The government has proven itself stronger than the misguided efforts of a handful of agitators thought it would be, and while their regrets are mingling with their epithets, their plight is a warning to all who might seek to circumvent the slow, deliberate system by a show of bull-headed, lawless force.

Where to Look, What to Find

AN OBSERVATION that Iowa school children should know more about dictionaries and their intelligent use was made the other day by Prof. Fred D. Cram of Iowa State Teachers college, speaking before the annual conference of county school superintendents in Des Moines. Few students, he added, are thoroughly acquainted with dictionaries, encyclopedias, and general reference books. That may be because too many teachers think if they tell their pupils to "look that up for yourself, John" it is an admission of ignorance, so they look it up themselves; or it may be due to almost any number of other causes.

The dictionary as a source of information, as a biography, a pronouncing gazetteer, or a source of a million and one other things, rightly deserves a place between the book ends on the front room table, no less than does the Bible and much maligned family album. To insure its constant use it might even be carried in the vest pocket, slid under one's favorite chair, or secreted under the pillow. It has even been known to be used as a form of punishment for children who refuse to eat their spinach, but that often results in a greater consumption of the vegetable rather than of learning.

As for reference books, there are too many to describe here, but some are of general interest and ought to be made a regular part of the educational diet. For example, there is the Dictionary of Statistics, in which one might discover the value of milk-cows in Iowa in 1890 or the number of white males in New South Wales in 1891. There is the Fact Book with dissertations and illustrations on anything from Maltese lace to where the railroad dollar goes; the Encyclopedia of Food, with the latest information about all sorts of culinary tid-bits from Swedish cheese to Italian bread-sticks. There are year books, containing everything one might want to know—and more—about every country in the world; dictionaries in Sanskrit, Gaelic, Greek, Russian; encyclopedias in German, French, Italian; dictionaries of slang, of authors, of science; a dictionary of dates and mythology, and a whole set of volumes about "Ideas That Have Influenced Civilization."

They are a guide—if more people only knew it—to how to become educated, in any number of easy lessons, and are no end of value in holding the spotlight in polite conversation. Of course, one could never expect to remember very much of anything those books contain—but there are people who have never seen one.

Another Pioneer Passes

PNEUMONIA ENDED the life, a few days ago, of one of the real pioneers of Iowa. Fred Duesenberg, builder of some of the fastest automobiles in the world, died Tuesday after an auto accident which occurred July 2.

Within the 55 years of his life, he had a career rivaling many of those outlined by Horatio Alger. An immigrant boy from Germany, he settled in Iowa at the age of eight, with his parents, who followed the trade of their forebears, farming.

As a boy, he developed an extraordinary ability at fixing bicycles. When the gasoline engine was developed to a point where it was used practically, he combined the bicycle with the "latest" means of getting motive power, and with these first crude motorcycles expanded his repair business.

He also built himself a reputation for winning races, on both the bicycle and motorcycle.

As cycling passed from a popular sport to a child's recreation, he turned his attention to the newer form of transportation, the automobile. He was designer for the Maytag-Mason automobile company of Des Moines back in those early days of the motor car.

His brother, August, had been his helper through all the previous years, and the two became the founders of the Duesenberg automobile company, producing cars which have established world records in performance.

Two developments especially have been produced by Duesenberg in the automotive field. One is the front wheel drive principle, the other the electric timing devices used at the Indianapolis speedway and at automotive proving grounds, which make possible detailed records of automobile performance.

The Ford factory at Dagenham, Essex, England burns hundreds of tons of London's refuse after chemical treatment and converts it into power. Somebody can do the same with millions of tons of prosperity hooley and get rich quick.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Now it's the Hoover nine point plan to restore prosperity. The program, when completed, will operate from each of the 12 federal reserve districts with committees of business and industrial leaders as sponsors. It will take into account every responsible manner and mode of relief of destitution, aiding railroads, the farmer, the merchant, the working man.

The plan will seek to bring into effective operation the government relief agencies, especially the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and clear the way for closer cooperation between those agencies and applicants for assistance.

If it works out as President Hoover expects, the plan will result in an almost immediate noticeable change in the trend—farmers will obtain loans for livestock, railroads will obtain loans for improvements, prospective home owners will realize their aim with little delay, credit facilities will be available—in fact, all the promised government relief will become reality.

The new program takes cognizance of the fact that half the problem of setting up government relief agencies is in proper administration and distribution of aid, as well as clearing the barriers for actual operation. The greater part of the program will completely absorb the powers of the finance corporation under the extension granted by congress. No doubt, Hoover had this nine point plan in mind when he asked congress to increase the membership of the corporation's directorate from five to seven. He's planned enough work for 20.

Number 1 of the plan seeks to organize the new powers of the R.F.C. with regard to $1,500,000,000 worth of self-liquidating works, that have been hanging fire ever since congress increased the appropriation. That appropriation was a direct outgrowth of the defeated "pork barrel" plan for public buildings construction throughout the country.

Number 2 is a new proposal—stimulation of a move for clearing slum districts under the reconstruction act. Number 3 is an effort to make adequate provision for livestock and feeder loans, using reconstruction funds. Number 4 concerns speeding the movement of agricultural commodities into consumption in order to stimulate demands through restoration of orderly marketing. That would be a good move if it could be accomplished. However, with cooperative marketing associations in the way and other agricultural combinations competing—it may fall a long way short of its mark.

Number 5 concerns expansion of credit facilities to business and industry. Once such facilities are assured, not just fancy, it won't take long for normal production and employment—with, of course, a corresponding increase in consumption. Number 6 is a move to increase repair work on railroads, with greater expenditures also for maintenance. That will mean more loans to railroads, since a number of them have already left wide gashes in the R.F.C. pie. Number 7 has to do with getting Hoover's home loan plan into operation, selection of the board in control, and coordinating that plan with other governmental agencies.

Number 8 would reduce working hours to increase employment. That plan is already being operated in some of the major industries in many small plants and businesses. Number 9 is a blanket proposal to gain cooperation between government and private agencies.

With the right kind of publicity and the right kind of leaders to get the various ramifications in motion, the nine-point plan should succeed, at least, in getting the country out of the hole by Christmas. With enough political ballyhoo, however, that ought to be getting up momentum in a few days, there won't be a chance.

"Rum. There's fancier drinks brought into the port of Boston, but by God there's nothing tastier than West Indian rum. Rum. The Seventeen States import every year nine million gallons from the British West Indies alone. A noble drink, served hot or cold, fancy mixed or plain. Times are bad, and folks say war's in the offing, but I'd like to see the British or any other damned tyrannic nation take away America's rum."

BEHIND THE SCENES

IN HOLLYWOOD By HARRISON CARROLL

STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD—With Paramount cameras set to make exclusive pictures of the salvaging of the Lusitania, Sam Katz yesterday began picking players for the film that will commemorate this feat of maritime engineering. He names Richard Bennett, Frances Dee and Gene Raymond for important parts in the story that will be made under the title of "The Lusitania Secret." While the starting date of the picture depends upon the salvage operations, Cyril Hume and Martin Flavin have been instructed to get the screen play into shape for early production. They will base it upon an original story by James Bernard Fagan, who wrote "Hawthorne of the U.S.A.," and a number of other hits. Frances Dee and Gene Raymond, you'll note, are being developed as a team by Paramount. On that recent trip to the "Billy the Kid" country, Douglas Fairbanks and his party happened to board the train at Fairbanks, New Mexico. Jokingly, some one asked an inhabitant if the town was named after Doug. The old-timer replied dryly: "Well, actually it ain't, but to save explaining to tourists we usually say 'Yes.'"

Iowa Bars Sale of "Package Securities"

DES MOINES, July 29 (AP)—Sale of what are termed "package securities" by Iowa brokers was forbidden in an order issued today by G. C. Greenwalt, secretary of state.

Fischer informed Greenwalt that various dealers in stocks were selling blocks of securities of one share or 20 or more different stocks as "package securities."

"After having made examination of the loading cost of these securities and also the cost to the investor of disposing of them, it is found that this method of selling securities is not equitable to the investors," Fischer stated.

Prints for Summer Fashion's Favorite

Cool and Colorful Materials Enjoy Growing Popularity in Models for All Occasions. Mode Will Reach Peak at Coming Olympiad.

HOLLYWOOD—The printed word is no more important than the printed frock, according to the latest dictates of Dame Fashion.

Most of the printed frocks have their accompanying jacket. And it behooves milady, if she would be considered modish, to pay strict attention to the selection of these jackets.

There are some beautiful models of these little jackets to choose from. Taffeta, silk crepe and organdy are available in attractive styles.

Taffeta goes really well with sheer cotton or organdie and velveteen is an excellent accompaniment for pique and cotton lace dresses.

Some of the sports outfits turned out in printed material are striking in their colorful smartness. Most of these ensembles pay tribute to sections. Large gatherings were not allowed.

To help those veterans who want to get away by way of Maryland, a number of state trucks converged in this vicinity.

Some of the veterans who want to get away by way of Maryland, a number of state trucks converged in this vicinity.

The death toll, however, still stood at one. The victim was William Huska, 37, Chicago, shot by a policeman yesterday in the struggle which led district officials to notify President Hoover they could no longer cope with the situation.

There is a wide range of printed dresses for street wear. The most popular length for the walking dress is slightly below the calf.

The very formal of the printed frocks are fashioned in the backless, sleeveless style. The material used in this instance is mostly crepe.

Officers in charge of the troops said the infantrymen would probably be billeted for the night in the city, but the cavalry troops summoned yesterday by Secretary Hurley late in the day recrossed the Potomac river to their Ft. Myer barracks.

Officers said order had been completely restored and they expected no further trouble.

Rural, Grade Schools Rank High Under Iowa Plan

More than 450 rural schools and 425 grade rooms have ratings of 100 per cent under the Iowa dental plan, it was revealed by the latest reports on the work of the university bureau of dental hygiene.

The Iowa dental plan calls for a thorough inspection of the teeth of each pupil, together with recommendations of dental work needed.

Eighty-three of the 99 counties in Iowa have ordered supplies for their rural school systems during the last year; and 460 city, town, consolidated, or parochial schools either have ordered supplies or are active in the Iowa dental plan.

There are also 19 towns or school buildings within towns with 100 per cent records. These include the grades in Corydonville, Craig, Dyart, Indianola, Lake Mills, Monticello, Spencer, Sully and Wyoming; three schools in Davenport; Dyart high school, one school at Ft. Dodge, five at Ft. Madison, one at Independence, two in Iowa City, four at Keokuk, one at Washington, and Scranton high school.

Upsets abounded in the Mississippi Valley tournament yesterday, favorites in all divisions of the tournament taking reverses.

John Curtiss, former Big Ten star at Northwestern, will meet Robins in the final this afternoon and in gaining that position he turned in two upsets.

In the women's singles department of the tournament, it was the triumph of Diane Southern of Des Moines over the seeded number two player, Mrs. Eleanor Bell of Cedar Rapids, former state champion, that reversed the dope.

"I proclaim open the Olympic Games of Los Angeles, celebrating the tenth Olympiad of the modern year."

For the next two weeks, 2,000 of the world's finest athletes will be striving in the vast stadium built by the state of California and Los Angeles for the athletic supremacy of the 42 nations competing.

The athletes are all ready for the opening of competition and without exception, so reports say, the U. S. stars are at top peak for the Games and should have no reason for alibis other than better men beat them—that is, if they are beaten.

After the two weeks of competition at Los Angeles is concluded, the track and field stars of the world will still have plenty to do.

More Indiana farm boys and girls are enrolled in 4-H clubs than ever this year.

Merle Robins of Ames, defending champion, has a chance of repeating his efforts of last year in the finals of the men's singles of the Mississippi Valley tennis tournament this afternoon at 1:30.

The title holder reached the final round by victories over Gil Sheldon of Evanston, Ill. in the quarter-final round and Ron Reddig of Rock Island in the semi-finals.

His opponent in the finals, and now the only threat to his title, is the steady John Curtiss of Evanston who, in successive matches yesterday, put the young Texas threats, Jack Taylor and George Dullin, out of the running.

Curtiss, using his strong backhand to advantage combined with a steady forehand drive, was forced to three sets to down Dullin, 5-7, 6-4, 5-2, his careful placements giving him the edge.

Reddig Upsets Brody The big upset of the day's play, though, was Reddig's victory over Frank Brody of Des Moines, former state champion, in the quarter-finals although Reddig was later eliminated.

Des Moines Stars in Women's Finals

Appearing for the first time in the tournament, Betty Butler of Des Moines, top ranking player, was forced to go three sets before defeating Lucille Kautenberger of the same city.

A hard hit forehand drive featured Miss Butler's play against the sharp chopping ground strokes of Miss Kautenberger.

Diane Southern of Des Moines came through yesterday to defeat Mrs. Eleanor Bell of Cedar Rapids who was seeded in second position.

The match today between the two Des Moines players in the finals will be featured by the hard driving of both. Miss Butler in her first match yesterday also exhibited a fair game at the net.

Iowa Supply Upsets Odd Fellows, 5 to 4; Result Doesn't Count

Iowa Supply defeated the Odd Fellows, 5 to 4, in a Twilight league game at the City park last night, but an agreement was made before the contest that the outcome would not alter the standings any for the book store outfit used several players from other teams in the loop, including "Boo" Bright who turned in a good job of pitching for them.

The Supply boys stepped out and won the game by counting all their runs in the second inning. The hitting of the contest was featured by long triples by Eastwood and Dohrer of the lodge nine.

Eastwood did the huriling for the losers with Moore behind the bat, the receiving end for Bright, while Manager Sherm Greene was on

Wilson Leads Dodger Win

Gets Homer, Double as Cardinals Fall by 7-4 Count

BROOKLYN, July 29 (AP)—Burl Hack Wilson, last year's "forgotten man" of baseball, set a warm pace today and his Brooklyn team mates followed it to win their fifth victory in six games against the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 4, and to step past the world champions into fifth place in the National league.

Hack started the Dodgers off in the first inning by driving his 18th home run of the season against the right field screen with O'Doul on base. Previously Rosenfeld had opened with a double off Dean and scored on a balk and Stripp's fly.

The Dodgers got another run in the fourth on Slade's single and Sukeforth's triple, then Wilson cut loose again in the fifth. He capped a double to drive in Joe Stripp, who also had hit for two bases, surprised the fans by reaching third ahead of Gelbert's throw when Cuccinello hit to the shortstop and then scored on Wright's fly.

Vance, who started for Brooklyn and rang up his eleventh victory of the season, equalling his 1931 winning record, was forced to retire in the sixth because of a lame back.

Iowan Ready for Qualifying Competition

Final on Wednesday; Gordon Set for Olympics

Of all the dozens of competition days in his hurdling career, next Tuesday and Wednesday loom as the most important for George J. Saling of the University of Iowa and the American Olympic team.

More than ever before, Saling wants to be "right" on those days of his racing within a space of 25 hours will determine his place in the Olympic 110-meter high hurdles.

Tuesday Gordon's Day Tuesday is the crucial day for Edward Gordon, the Hawkeye Negro broad jumper who is a veteran of one Olympiad. His competition is concentrated into a space of less than two hours. Olympic stadium at Los Angeles is the scene of the Hawkeyes' efforts.

Both Saling himself and his coach, George T. Bresnahan, report that the champion hurdler has recaptured his strength which was sapped by a sea jaunt along the California coast in mid-July. He appears close to his June peak, during which he broke world's records for the 120 yard and 110 meter high hurdles.

Trial Heats Booked The Iowan will run his first race in an Olympic uniform Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. (Iowa time). If he places first or second in this trial heat, he will run a semi-final at 6:15 p.m. The winner and the second man in each of three semi-final races will qualify for the final, if the plan used at the 1924 and 1928 games is followed.

Track critics publicly have predicted that Jack Keller, Saling, and Percy Beard, the American trio, will finish 1, 2, 3 in the final. The three appear to be the finest men ever sent by America into an Olympic high hurdle race.

Europeans Threaten But the foreign threat is no minor one, although in general the class of competition appears weaker than that of the 1928 games. Wegner of Germany, and Sjostedt of Finland, each have equalled the accepted world's record of 3:44 and several men of less reputation are likely to astound the experts as they do in each Olympiad.

Should Saling come safely through to the final, which he should do, barring accidents, he will run for the championship Wednesday at 5:45 p.m. (Iowa time). And Iowa fans cling to the belief that if he beats Keller, the winner of the final American trials, he will be Olympic champion.

Gordon Potential 26-Footer Gordon, jumping better now than he ever has before, may clear 26 feet, Coach Bresnahan believes. Such a jump, or even one of several inches less, probably will give him the title, despite the presence of Nambu of Japan, holder of the world's mark of 26 feet 2 1/8 inches and Cator of Haiti, whose 26 foot 1-8 inch effort was the universal standard for three years. The Iowan's competition begins Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

Vines Bows in Big Upset of Cup Play

Jean Borotra Turns in Great Exhibition to Triumph

PARIS, July 29 (AP)—Jean Borotra, who thought he was too old to play tennis, tonight was the toast of Paris, victor over the American and Wimbledon champion, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., as France swept the first two matches of the series with the United States in defense of the Davis Cup.

The colorful Borotra, drafted for the French team against his wishes, swept to convincing victory over his young opponent 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, while Henri Cochet won as expected from Wilmer Allison, 5-7, 7-5, 7-5, 6-2.

The unexpected defeat of Vines just about dashed any hopes the Americans had of regaining the trophy France won at Germantown in 1927. They must win the next three matches, the doubles tomorrow and the two singles Sunday, to win the cup and that appeared to be an impossible task with Borotra playing the best tennis of his life and Cochet still the master of old.

Wood Wins Men's Title at Seabright

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 29 (AP)—Sidney E. Wood's supremacy on the tennis court over his doubles partner, Gregory Mangin, continued today as the youthful New Yorker won the Seabright lawn tennis championship for the second time in three years. The scores were 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

The women's doubles title went to Helen Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey, defeating Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Cal., and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 6-3, 7-5.

C. T. Hancock, farmer near Brandon, Mo., in the Ozark region realized $900 from one and three-quarters acres of strawberries.

EMBERS OF LOVE

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FIFTY

The buchen was well. He was chubby and blooming. He reached for the crystal beads around Lily Lou's neck, and pulled on them steadily.

But he didn't know her. Oh, he didn't know her!

Mrs. Jensen came and took him from Lily Lou's arms, and he reached his little hand, and put it on Mrs. Jensen's shoulder as she bore him away.

Lily Lou wept.

"Pshaw!" Mrs. Jensen said, "don't you care! They never know anybody really at that age."

Lily Lou was not comforted. She told Tony about it when he came in to see her that evening. "Sure, he's too young to remember. Let's eat and you'll feel better," he said.

He had with him a can of antipasto, two tins of anchovies and a long loaf of Italian bread and half a pound of Swiss cheese.

She made coffee and they feasted.

"Too bad Maxie is out. She'll miss the party."

"I can't be sorry," Tony said, with his mouth full of bread and cheese.

"I know you don't like her. But she's been such a good friend to me, Tony. Where do you suppose I'd be living now if it weren't for her? And, oh, Tony, if I just had enough to hire someone to take care of the buchen here Maxine would even agree to that! And there aren't many that would, now, are there, Tony?"

For answer he swore in his native Italian. Then he got up and began to pace the floor, waving his arms, muttering to himself:

"To think that I—that I would cut off my right arm for you—"

"Tony!"

"Don't stop me, I adore you. You know that. Always—from the first. And now this hellish poverty. Bills, debts, bills! Nothing to offer you."

Lily Lou's mouth twitched. She didn't know whether she was going to laugh or cry. Tony, poor blessed, darling Tony...

He loved her. Not because she was pretty or because she had the beginnings of a career, but just for herself.

She found her eyes filling.

"Tony," she said gently, "it does not matter, do you see? Because all that—all love—everything like that—is gone for me. Dear Tony, I loved the man I married, and I couldn't ever—couldn't ever—"

"You still love him!"

"Yes, I suppose so, Tony. Not that it matters."

"After all that is past you can still love him?"

"Yes, no matter what he did, it doesn't matter, because he's part of me."

She went through the want ads in the papers. But if she did get a job it wouldn't begin to pay for her lessons, with Gwin or anyone else worth while. And how would she eat and what would the buchen do?

Better to have given up—stayed in California. But if she did that the baby... No, there was no going back. She'd have to go on, somehow.

She borrowed $50 from Wanda Pillsbury, hating herself for asking, hating herself for taking it, hating Wanda for her air of "I never expect to see it again, but I'm kind-hearted and can't refuse."

That melted in 10 days, what with her share of the month's expenses in the apartment, and the woolly rabbit with the floppy ears that she couldn't resist for the baby.

It was well along in September

now, Gwin came in twice a week, and after the first of October she would work with him every day, and would be able to take the weekly check conscientiously. If she could just hold out until then... Mrs. Jensen's $50 was due on the twenty-first, and there would be extras besides, perhaps $12 or $15.

She had started work in the Metropolitan chorus, three nights a week for rehearsals now, and soon it would be every night. Dramatic lessons, too, and Gwin told her it was time she took fencing and dancing... watching her with that glitter in his eyes...

"What's the trouble today?"

"Nothing. It's just that I'm overwhelmed when I realize how unprepared I am—even for the little parts I'm likely to get this season, if I'm lucky—"

"What did I tell you when you came here a year ago—all ready to sing Butterfly, and a few other big roles?"

"I know. But I didn't realize then. How could I? When I look back now and think of the hopes I had and how easy it seemed to realize them when I had only a smattering of languages—"

"You mean when you knew no languages and couldn't sing English correctly?"

"Yes, and when I think of all the other girls I've known—lots of them not so young as I, nor so—so pretty—striving—and hoping—Oh, Gwin, aren't you sorry for me? For all the girls who want to be singers, and are going to fail? Aren't you sorry for me too? I am—I could weep for all of us—"

He had been sitting on the piano bench. He rose now and took her gently into his arms.

"Don't say Gwin—it's ridiculous. Say Dwight—"

"Dwight, then—it doesn't matter, does it?"

He held her off at arm's length, studying her. Her sweeping of dark, waving hair, her fabulous lily-like skin, her dark brows, her full scarlet lips. "Yes, it matters. It matters a lot. You're not altogether a fool. What's the answer going to be? Oh, you don't have to give it now—this minute. Think it over, that's all. I've got to know."

Lily Lou walked home, prepared her dinner and Maxine's. Canned spinach with a poached egg. Nourishing and cheap.

Her hands laid the table, broke the eggs into the boiling water, scooped them out with a serving spoon.

But she hardly saw them, hardly saw what she was doing.

"Oh, gosh, spinach!" Maxine sighed, coming into the kitchen to sniff of the signs of food. "Well, never mind, I'll eat it. But let's have that can of plum pudding who were going to save for Thanksgiving. I could stand the spinach, if I was sure of the dessert... well! You've been crying. It's a real tragedy all right, if you shed a tear. Tell me, has little Robin got whooping cough, or did your voice leave you?"

All that night Lily Lou tossed in her bed. In the morning she rose at six, to go to Jamaica Park to see the buchen, before work at the studio. That would help... would help her to decide. When she held him in her arms she had courage... courage for anything...

"He's growing out of all his clothes," Mrs. Jensen said, "and I don't know as I can keep him this winter or not, because I'm thinking of getting married again... yes, ma'am, and while my husband ain't opposed to children none, not if they was his, that is, still he don't want a houseful of other people's—"

"I see," Lily Lou said. Mrs. Jensen was making up her mind for her.

At rehearsal that night the chorus master singled her out to sing a difficult phrase alone.

Afterwards he said, "Very sorry, my dear, very sorry now, we shall hear from you. This season the minor parts and next season... you know? Take care of your throat, mind, no straining! Do not force that white tone. Remember that interpretation is the big thing. But I need not say that to a pupil of Gwin."

She told Gwin what he had said, hoping to propitiate him.

He smiled, and said nothing. He was coaching her in two entire roles now, Traviata and Butterfly. She already knew Rosina in the Barber of Seville, and Gilda in Rigoletto, and Mignon and Manon, would follow.

Could anyone expect her to give up a chance like that? Wasn't there some way? Some way... but she couldn't think of any...

"What is the matter with you?" Maxine demanded, that night.

"Nothing. Just—finances—"

"Fudge! With Gwin to back you, and Tony in line for the big money too, and Nahman—"

"She's in Europe!"

"Landed today, on the Ile de France. Don't you read your papers?"

Lily Lou picked the unwashed dishes on the sink, grabbed a napkin and coat.

"Hotel Ritz," she told the taxi man she hailed at the corner.

Nahman might not be at the Ritz, of course. She might be out. She might not even consent to see her.

At the desk she asked Nahman's room number, and was curtly refused the information.

A young man in a creased tweed suit who had followed her to the desk turned away just as she did.

"Hard luck!" he said.

"Yes," she said, trying to answer his blithe smile.

She walked over to a chair to sit for a while. Perhaps some idea would come to her. Perhaps Madame Nahman might come in, and see her. Or, she might go to a public telephone and call the hotel and ask for Susanne Cohn!

She started up. The strange young man was right beside her. "What's the hunch?" he asked her.

"Why—I don't know just what you mean—"

"Aren't you a newspaper woman?"

"Oh my goodness, no!"

He grinned. "My mistake. Thought you were too pretty for me. I had a hunch myself. Thought I might let you in on it."

She dismissed him, smiling, wishing him luck. After a while he strolled over toward the elevators, and Lily Lou gathered courage to go to the public telephone, and ask for Susanne Cohn.

"It's Lily Lou! Lily Lou Lansing! I just heard you got in on the Ile de France. I wonder if Madame—"

"Why, Miss Lansing, how glad I am to hear of you... just a moment, Madame heard me call your name. Where are you? Downstairs? Oh, Madame says, come up at once!"

Madame Nahman embraced her, cried over her, "My dear, how I have missed you! Let me look at you. The same Lily! Oh, I have so much to tell you. Sit down. Such a hard summer. No, sit close to me—now—we can talk—"

So different from the last, cool meeting.

Indians' 4 Run Rally Hands 6th Upset to Gomez

CLEVELAND, July 29 (AP)—Earl Averill's 25th home run of the season brought the Indians a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees today and gave them the series 3 games to 1. The defeat reduced the Yanks' lead to 7 1/2 games.

For six innings Cleveland couldn't get a run off Gomez while the Yankees nipped Clint Brown for 3 hits and a 2 to 0 lead in the fourth. In the seventh, however, the Tribe broke loose. Cissel opened with a single and Kamm clouted a triple for the first run. Then with two out and two on base, Averill drove high over the right field wall to finish a four run rally.

The Yanks staged a one-man attempt to recover in the ninth when Babe Ruth, the first man up, hit over the same barrier for his 29th homer of the season and his third in two days, but Brown set the next three men down in order and recorded his eleventh victory of the season. He gave only six hits to the league leaders.

Gomez, the Yankee ace, was charged with his sixth defeat of the season against 17 victories. He worked eight innings, yielding nine hits and fanning five.

Demos Name Nominees for Court Offices

Two Candidates Picked After Retreat of Opposition

DES MOINES, July 29 (AP) — J. W. Kintzinger of Dubuque, M. F. Donegan of Davenport and John W. Anderson of Sioux City today were nominated by the Democratic state judicial convention for the state supreme court bench.

The nominations were made by acclamation after the withdrawal of two other candidates, J. D. Bracewell of Corydon and R. F. Mitchell of Ft. Dodge, had averted a threatened contest.

Bracewell and Mitchell withdrew in the interests of party harmony after the five names had been presented to the convention by a roll call of counties.

Hears Keynote Address
The brief convention also heard the keynote address of L. R. Roddewig of Davenport and short talks by its nominees and officers, and adopted a resolution urging election of the party's judicial candidates in order to provide a bipartisan bench.

Roddewig expressed hope that the state eventually would see fit to enact legislation "that will permit the bar of the state, regardless of political parties, to name their best and most available men."

Recalls Kinney's Record
Recalling that but one Democrat has been elected to the state supreme bench since the Civil war, he said the record of Judge Kinney on that bench "amply proves that he was the equal of any of and the superior to most of the Republicans who have monopolized the court since its institution."

The method of selecting district judges through members of the bar of each judicial district was praised, Roddewig contending that under this system "men are picked for their ability and legal training and among them you will find both Democrats and Republicans."

Issues of Campaign
The principal issues of the campaign, Roddewig said, are tax reduction, governmental economy, adequate farm relief and employment. These ends and tariff revision, extension of farm loans and repeal of the eighteenth amendment can be obtained by electing Democrats to national and state offices, he said.

Roddewig branded as "frightful mismanagement" the conduct of the present federal administration, asserting that the "lack of leadership and constructive legislation is apparent on every hand."

Open State Headquarters
State Chairman C. D. Huston of Cedar Rapids, announced that state headquarters will be opened next week in Des Moines and that organization of every county will be begun immediately.

The convention retained Roddewig as permanent chairman by voting to make the temporary officers permanent. Walter R. Hutchinson of Cedar Rapids served as secretary.

The three judicial nominees were appointed members of a committee to work out plans for filling a vacant judicial district nomination in the fifth district.

Local Democrats Attend Convention
Thirty-six Iowa City Democrats went to Des Moines yesterday to attend the state Democratic judicial convention. Most of them are expected to return to Iowa City last night.

The delegates are: Frank F. Messer, W. F. Murphy, John Sheetz, F. J. Belger, Mrs. W. J. McDonald, O. A. Eyrington, William F. Bristol, W. M. Ball, Nora Donohue, F. R. Boyles, Charles Kennett, T. M. Fairchild, M. E. Baker, Paul A. Korab, E. P. Korab.

Kaspar, J. J. Krall, C. J. Mann, Mrs. Grover C. Watson, James Fieschinger, Ed Koser, Andrew Duttlinger, and John Gegenhart.

Set Date to Hear Plea for Approval of Claim Settlement
Hearing on the application of L. A. Andrew, receiver for the Farmers Savings bank of Oxford, for the court's approval of a settlement agreement with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Simpkins and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Simpkins was set yesterday for Aug. 4 at 9 a.m.

The agreement calls for payment of $2,000 in full settlement of claims of the receiver. One thousand dollars, according to the agreement, is to be paid upon approval by the court and the balance in installments. The payment of $1,000 balance is to be secured by a first mortgage against the property of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Simpkins and a second mortgage against the property of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Simpkins. Kenneth M. Dunlop is attorney for the receiver.

Setback Hits Grain Market After Advance

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP) — Material setbacks in grain prices today accompanied buyers' shyness following a three-day advance of more than 7 cents in wheat.

Lowest quotations for wheat were reached just before the close, but a fractional rally ensued at the last. Bearish factors included refusal of the Liverpool market to follow advances on this side of the Atlantic, and it was asserted European importers were holding off.

Wheat closed unsettled 14 to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, corn 3 3/8 to 5/8 off, oats at 14 decline to 1-8 advance, and provisions, 7 to 15 cents down.

Favorable weather for harvesting and threshing in the American northwest had a contributing bearish effect. Country marketings were expected to show a rapid increase from now on at spring wheat centers.

Buying support was fairly large on price setbacks, and some reinstatement of lines was apparent on the part of speculative buyers who had sold out late yesterday at higher prices.

Beneficial rains over almost the entire southern half of the corn belt weakened that market. Oats were steadied by intimations of good exin today's stock market and kept enough steam in the cylinders to generate another general expansion in quoted values.

Both shares and bonds met profit-taking particularly in the morning, only to encounter enough new buying to resume their rise. Stocks looked strongest in the rail division, although utilities also ran well. Most industrials were a little more sober, but several specialties received fresh inspiration. The average advance was just a point. Volume totaled 2,101,874 shares.

Carriers Improve

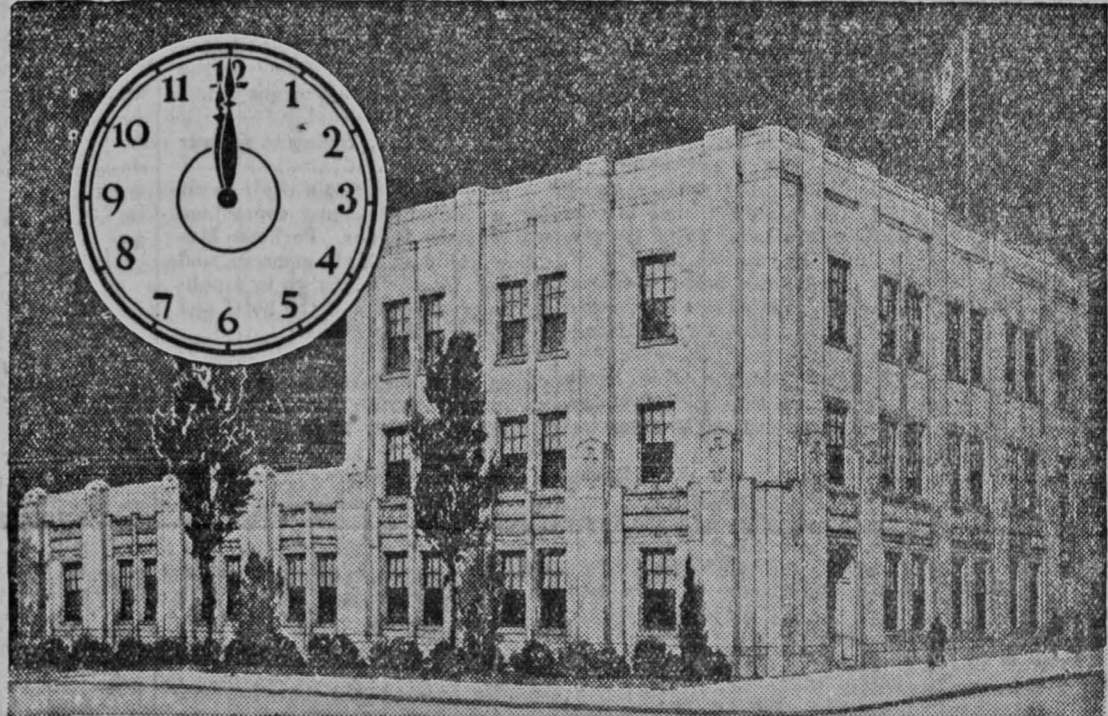

Buying of carrier equities appeared predicated on Washington discussions for the granting of loans to railroads to facilitate maintenance and repairs. In addition, leading systems are going seriously about the business of smoothing out competitive difficulties and meeting their mutual problems.

New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania and Delaware & Hudson climbed from nearly 2 to more than 3 points, while Norfolk & Western rose 6 1-2. Rail equipments were strong, especially locomotive company shares. U. S. Steel preferred seemed more eager to anticipate a possible improvement in earnings than unfavorable action on its dividend next October, advancing nearly 4 points at the best. The common, with American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, General Motors, National Biscuit, Eastman and a number of other old-line favorites, closed fractionally higher.

Telephone Gains

American Telephone finished up 2 1-4 at 89 1-4, its top price, which compared with the recent low of 76 1-4. Also in the 2 point class were

Near Midnight Tonight DIAL TELEPHONES WILL BE PLACED IN SERVICE

Near midnight tonight, at some moment when few telephone calls are being made, the new dial telephone equipment in the enlarged Iowa City telephone building will be placed in operation. Everything has been prepared so that the change to dial service can be made without interruption in service.

After the new equipment is placed in service, when you lift your telephone receiver to make a call, you will hear a humming sound. This is the dial tone and informs you that the dial equipment is ready to handle the numbers you dial.

Use Your New Telephone Directory

The first thing to do in making telephone calls Sunday morning is to start using your new telephone directory—the one with the green cover. This is necessary because all telephones in Iowa City will have new numbers which must be used in order to reach the telephone called.

The introduction of dial telephone service in Iowa City is the climax of an extensive telephone construction program. The telephone building has been enlarged, new equipment and new lines have been installed, all for the purpose of providing Iowa City with satisfactory telephone service now and in the future.
